Woman Dashed Through Streets Carrying Dead Infant in Coffin.

Miss Mickleson, School Teacher, Tells of Narrow Escape.

Settlers for Miles Around Suffered Greatly by the Fire.

Clinging wildly to the coffin in which her baby child was enclosed for a burial, which was to have taken place Sunday afternoon from Lundell & Son's undertaking rooms at Chisholm, a frantic mother Saturday evening raced shrieking between the walls of flames that marked the main street of the doomed town.

This and many other gruesome stories were told yesterday afternoon by passengers of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern train from Hibbing, which arrived in Duluth at 3:30 o'clock. It was told by Mrs. W. Wye, whose husband was proprietor of a livery stable in the ill-fated town. Miss Dora Sheffeld of Minneapolis and Miss Alta Rechard of Princeton, Minn., who had been visiting Mrs. Wye, were also on the train. Mrs. Wye, with her two guests, were not at Chisholm at the time of the fire, but had received a vivid account of it from Mr. Wye, who had been an eye witness.

Mrs. Wye described the fire as it had been described to her by her husband. They lost everything in the fire, barn, horses and all. When the flames rolled in upon the town Mr. Wye attempted

FIRES RAGING NEAR HOLYOKE

Settlers Are Making Great Fight to Save Their Homes.

Forest fires it is said are raging in the vicinity of Holyoke, Nickerson and Foxboro, stations about fifteen miles apart on the Great Northern road, thirty miles from Duluth.

Train crews brought the news to Duluth this morning, and report that the farmers are organized into fire fighting brigades and making a noble effort to save their homes. The country is thickly wooded and if the flames get away, with a strong west wind, they will travel directly into South Superior.

Smoke is so thick that day is turned into night. Some of the men have worked steadily for thirty-six hours, and they hope to have the main blaze under control by tonight.

Only the barest details of this fire can be obtained, and the extent of the fire is unknown.

LOSSES DUE TO THE FOREST FIRES IN THE TOWNS AND TO THE TIMBER REACH TOTAL OF ABOUT $3,500,000

Thousands of People Homeless and in Need of Aid.

No Lives Were Lost as Far as Known at Present.

Company M of Hibbing on Guard Over Ruins at Chisholm.

Nashwauk and Buhl are safe. No lives were lost during the fire.

Chisholm is wiped off the map, only thirty buildings being left standing. These are all dwellings, with the exception of the high school and one saloon.

The fires are still smoldering in the woods, and a brisk breeze would cause them to break forth again.

Hibbing was threatened for a time, but was saved by the fire department there.

The town of Wrenshall, thirty-five miles from Duluth, is menaced by the flames, but can probably be saved.

The total loss at Chisholm is estimated at $1,500,000, and it is believed that at least $2,000,000 worth of standing timber has been destroyed.

Company M of Hibbing is on guard over the ruins, and yesterday seventy-nine Montenegrins were arrested for plundering and holding up citizens.

Hibbing has opened its doors wide to the refugees, and is housing them in the schools, churches and public buildings. Citizens have also given the use of their homes and meals are being served by various orginizations. Duluth has contributed more than $10,000 toward a fund for the refugees A trainload of supplies was sent to the range today, and yesterday the Commercial club sent some provisions and bedding up on a special train provided by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad.

The Missabe road will carry all refugees to Duluth, who are anxious to reach this city. Many have friends here who will take care of their immediate wants.

REST OF THE RANGE TOWNS ARE PROBABLY NOW SAFE

Chisholm's Great Disaster Largely Due to the Water Plant Being Early Destroyed by the Flames.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

It is probable that the fire which devastated Chisholm is a thing of the past. Fires are smoldering in the woods north of Hibbing for twenty-five miles, and lumber cruisers and others predict dire things should another hard wind like Saturday's spring up, but this morning there were no evidences of it, and the rest of the range towns are probably safe.

The first reports of the fire were exaggerated. While Chisholm is practically wiped off the map, about thirty residences, two schoolhouses and two churches being all that is left of the lively little town of 4,000 people, Buhl and Nashwauk are safe and in no danger. Between sixty and seventy men fought the fire at Buhl Saturday night and Sunday morning, and succeeded in saving the town without any damage to buildings. At present three or four men are patrolling the outskirts. At Nashwauk the people also had to fight to save their homes, but, thanks to an adequate water supply, they were able to do so.

Dies From Heart Failure.

The Pillsbury mine location is the only one which was burned. Supt. Leo Mitchell's residence, the employes' residences and the mine buildings around the open pit mine were destroyed. Though there were some narrow escapes at Chisholm there were no lives lost directly because of the fire. The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Okerstrom, wife of J. F. Okerstrom of Chisholm, occurred from heart failure soon after the fire struck the town, and the sudden death was probably due to excitement. She had been ailing for some time however, and was in a weak condition.

The fire which swept Chisholm came with a suddenness, which caught the people unawares. It was 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon when the whistles sounded the fire call, which brought the men of the town to the front to fight the fire. In the short interval the fire had leaped from stump to stump in the clearing which bordered the town, swept across the cleared space in a moment and reached the nearest houses. The resort operated by May Fisher was one of the first places to go. Mrs. Fisher is not dead as reported, but did not come to Hibbing Saturday night, camping on the other side of the lake.

By the time the men arrived to fight the fire the smoke and flames had become so dense that they were forced to flee back toward the other side of the town. The flames ran along the edge of town and soon reached the water plant, which supplied the only water pressure and when the water supply ceased the valiant fighters gave up the battle and fled. In half an hour the fierce breath of the flames had swept the little town from end to end, leaving only one business structure, a saloon, at the opposite end from where the fire struck. People escaped with their lives, and were thankful. Business men, rushing home from the business district in search of their families found their homes in flames, and their wives and children gone. With comparatively little attempt to take anything more than the clothes on their backs, the people fled. There are many harrowing tales of the escape.

A Night of Terror.

The worst experience reported was that of Mrs. Karon, wife of a small Jewish clothing merchant of Chisholm. They had seven children. In the flight the family became separated. Karon, with three of the children kept on toward Hibbing, four miles distant, thinking his wife somewhere in the crowd. Mrs. Karon, blinded by the smoke and flames, lost her way and wandered off in the other direction.

With her four little ones, she stumbled straight into the fire zone. All night she wandered aimlessly through the smoke filled woods and was not

BLACK RIVER FALLS SAFE

Fire No Longer Threatens the Little Wisconsin Town.

Superior People Go to Its Assistance in Automobiles.

There seems to be no further danger to Black River Falls today unless the wind grows stronger. This is according to reports of the fire there received in Superior this morning by returning fire fighters.

All Saturday night and Sunday scores of Superior people went to the assistance of the little towns in rigs and automobiles, loaded down with buckets and barrels to carry water. The fire burned fiercely all Saturday night and most of Sunday, but today is said to be under control. At least ten families of settlers have been burned out, and are left without a bit of clothing or provisions except what they had on their backs.

The fire department sent Assistant George Colon to Black River Falls, Saturday night to take charge of the fire recruits. He reports the fire under control today, and there is no great danger of further spreading unless a strong wind springs up.

The Superior fire department was hard at work all day yesterday checking the brush fires about Superior. A few barns and houses were destroyed.

ANNIVERSARY OF HINCKLEY FIRE

Disastrous Conflagration There Just Fourteen Years Ago.

Just fourteen years ago almost to the day, people in Duluth were startled by the great and destructive fires that swept everything in the vicinity of Hinckley, Minn. The fires started on the second day of September, and on the night of the third a relief train with Charles A. Towne, Dr. Magie and a number of other prominent citizens of Duluth left with provisions, medicines and clothing for the scene of the fire.

On the relief train sent out of Duluth on that memorable occasion fourteen years ago, thirty-six bodies were picked up and brought to Duluth.

Fortunately no deaths have yet been reported in the Chisholm fire, but the property loss is probably much greater.

GOVERNOR IS READY TO HELP

Will Appoint Commission to Visit Range If Needed.

Governor Johnson, over the long distance telephone yesterday, stated to Martin Hughes, the Hibbing member of the relief committee appointed by him, that if it were necessary or desirable he would appoint a special commission of two or three men to visit the range, investigate conditions at once and make an official report on the supplies needed.

Owing to the generous response to the appeals for help, it is doubtful if such a step will be needed, but it can be taken at any time.

HARD FIGHTING SAVES WRENSHALL

Carlton County Town Believed to be Out of Danger.

Carlton, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The destructive forest fires that have been raging near Wrenshall and vicinity for the past week and which at one time threatened the village are now apparently under control. All citizens and a large force of men recruited from neighboring villages have been continuously fighting forest fires for the past three days in an heroic effort to save the town, which at present is seemingly in no immediate danger. It is reported that several small farmers near Dewey on the Great Northern railway have been burned out, but the extent of the loss is not yet known.

A SQUARE DEAL

The iron ranges ask a square deal from Duluth Republicans. The ranges cast about half the Republican vote of St. Louis county, yet Duluth has eight of a possible nine county offices. That's not good business or good politics for Duluth; and it's not square. Hibbing, metropolis of the ranges, has never had a county office. It asks Duluth Republicans for a square deal and a vote for Judge of Probate for

QUICK TIME WAS MADE

Wholesale Firm Loads Car for the Chisholm Fire Sufferers.

Some record time in packing a car was made by the office force of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company yesterday afternoon, when word was sent to them at their respective homes about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The car was one of the largest used on the Missabe road and the work was in charge of William Garvey, foreman of the shipping department of the wholesale house. With only about three-quarters of an hour to get the car loaded so that it might be hitched to the end of the regular train, and no time lost in getting the provisions to the sufferers, the men worked like demons.

It was tough work for these employes of the office, but they never stopped to think about it at the time and when the last truck load had been hauled in, the exhausted ones sat down on the piles of sacked flour entirely exhausted.

The car, which was of the 80,000-pound variety, was loaded with every imaginable product, so that when it arrived in the yards at Chisholm last night there was plenty for all. The Missabe road has some work trains at the spur, where Chisholm used to be and the cooks of this construction train will cook the food for the people. The long train of cars are also used as sleeping quarters.

Even the most minute detail was not overlooked. Mr. McGonagle and Maj. Eva, who were at the wholesale house while the car was being packed, asked that candy for the children, and tobacco for the men, be sent. This was done so that everything, even to blankets, were included in the outfit.

UNION MEN WILL GIVE

A Collection Will be Taken Up at the Picnic.

Horror of the Fire Dawning Rapidly on Duluth People.

Everywhere are subscriptions being taken up for the people who were burned out of house and home in the disastrous fire that swept the range Saturday. The full significance of the fire did not dawn on Duluth people when the news was first given them Sunday morning, but by Sunday afternoon they began to wake up, and it wasn't long before $8,000 was subscribed.

One man, who is prominent in union labor circles said: "I am not a rich man, and I need my money badly, but I am going to give $5 towards helping those people."

A. R. McDonald, the orator of the day, at the union picnic at Fairmount Park this afternoon, will ask that a collection be taken up among the laboring people of the city.

through the woods, are doubtless homeless on account of the fire. Few of them have yet been heard from, and some may have perished.

Chisholm and Hibbing have both organized relief committees, and are at work trying to bring order out of chaos. The homeless ones are facing the situation bravely, and already one man has gone back to Chisholm with a load of lumber to begin work on his new home.

What can Duluth do to help her neighbors? Contribute food, clothing or money to the relief committee. The Herald will receive contributions, or they may be sent to the headquarters of the committee on Second avenue west, near First street.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

With a roar that could be heard for miles, a wall of fire swept down upon the village of Chisholm, late Saturday afternoon, and in two hours the village was nothing but a pile of blackened timbers and smoking ruins.

The village was surrounded on three sides by woods, and on the fourth side by Longyear lake. For days the fires had been raging in the dry timber about the village, and Saturday afternoon the three advancing walls of fire joined and swept toward the town. Trees and stumps were licked up by the wall of flame in its irresistible advance, and the citizens fled for their lives. The frame buildings of the city crumbled before the flames, and in two hours only thirty structures in the entire village were left standing.

FIRST HINT OF DANGER.

The first hint that the fire was likely to be dangerous to the village was given at about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. At that time the three walls of flame were seen to unite, and the whistles at the mining locations called out the citizens. A brave effort to combat the flames was made by the volunteer fire department, headed by Mike Kealy, but almost the first building to go was the water company's plant, and the village was left at the mercy of the flames, which swept through the old wooden shacks like wildfire. The newer brick buildings were unable to withstand the intense heat and crumbled together with the frame buildings.

LOCATIONS SAVED.

The Pillsbury location was swept by the flames, but the Hartley, Jordan, Myers, Munroe and Shenango locations are safe.

Of the thirty buildings left standing, the only business house was a saloon building. The rest are dwellings. The high school also escaped destruction. . .

THE LOSS.

Among the business structures destroyed were: The First National bank, $30,000; the Miners' State bank, $25,000; Lundall & Sons, $15,000; the Range Light & Power plant, $50,000; Adam Peyton's saloon, $10,000; city hall, $25,000; O'Neil hotel, $25,000; Chisholm filterplant, $15,000; Lawrence Kovack building, $13,000; Shapiro & Sons' building, $12,000, and also buildings owned by A. Bergeron, John Turja, C. R. Johnson, M. Pesantin, Matt Matsella, S. Rubioff, James Dowling, John McDonald, John Auscinas, James Perovich, Ben Le Doux, W. A. Masters, J. M. David, J. J. Hayes, M. Audn, M. Talus, E. L. Casey, Frank Tobinowitz, H. Tetzlass, John Winquist, D. C. Hackett, William Jacobson and others. A conservative estimate of the loss on buildings alone is $1,000,000, and it is estimated that the stocks of merchandise in the buildings destroyed will total an additional $500,000.

It is impossible to estimate the loss on the standing timber destroyed by the flames. Lumbermen at Hibbing last evening, in discussing the fire, estimated the loss on the range alone at $3,000,000, and they claim that the fires in the lower part of the county caused a loss of an additional $1,000,000.

TAKE REFUGE IN MINES.

The citizens of Chisholm took refuge in the open pits of the mines and along the shore of the lake while the flames were destroying their homes. As soon as the fire had passed they headed for Hibbing and the other range towns. The Great Northern road took a large number to Hibbing in box cars. Others had vehicles and the great majority walked the four miles. About 4,000 in all went to Hibbing Saturday night, and yesterday about 1,500 were quartered in Hibbing. The others are scattered through the other range towns and in Duluth, a few remaining at Chisholm.

NO LIVES LOST.

The report that Mrs. Fisher, the proprietor of a disorderly resort, had perished in the flames was untrue. She had spent the night across the lake and was not injured.

ROBBERS AT WORK.

As soon as the refugees reached Hibbing it was reported that some Montenegran laborers were plundering the ruins, and Company M was immediately ordered out by Governor Johnson, who was reached over the long-distance telephone. The militiamen made record-breaking time to Chisholm, and took prompt charge of affairs. They discovered large bands of the Montenegrans at work in the ruins of the burning houses, and began making wholesale arrests. Every man carrying plunder of any kind was arrested, and altogether seventy-nine men were rounded up. They were taken to the Monroe-Tener location office, and locked up there. It was reported that they had held up several of the refugees on their way to Hibbing with what valuables they could save from the ruins. Feeling against the men is running very high on the range, and it is likely that every effort will be made to bind over every man arrested to the grand jury, on a charge of grand larceny.

WELCOME HOMELESS.

When the refugees reached Hibbing they were immediately taken in charge by the citizens. Some were given beds in the Kopla hall, and others spent the night in the schools and churches. The citizens of Hibbing also opened their homes, and many of the refugees found shelter in private residences.

The Ladies' Aid societies of the different churches got together and prepared meals for the homeless ones. About 100 were fed Saturday night, and Sunday, meals were furnished to about 200. Supplies are needed, however, and Hibbing will not be able to bear the burden alone for any length of time.

The Chisholm refugees immediately prepared to take charge of their own relief work. Judge Edward Freeman was appointed to take charge of the supplies. Dr. A. B. Kirk and Herman Tetzlass were appointed a committee on sanitation, and George Train, cashier of the First National bank and J. P. Naughan, were appointed a committee on finance. The committee on housing consists of F. I. Carey, E. C. Hackett and Parker Shellmann. The committee on food is composed of C. A. Munroe, Joseph Austin, W. G. Shane, Rev. J. B. Mauley, Rev. Father Schell and James Dowling.

Hibbing also organized a relief committee to aid in the work, Martin Hughes taking an active part in it. The general relief committee is composed of A. B. Pfremmer, John A. Redfern, John Kieffman, J. J. Cox, Al Sayer, J. B. Connors, A. L. Griffin and A. P. Silliman. The refugees are registered as they come in, and their addresses taken, so that their friends may be able to communicate with them.

BUHL AND NASHWAUK SAFE.

Buhl and Nashwauk, which were threatened by the flames are reported to be safe, and the fire at Chisholm has about burned itself out. The fires are still smouldering in the woods, however, and a heavy wind today might cause them to break out with renewed force.

HIBBING THREATENED.

Hibbing was threatened for a time, and burning embers were carried into the village setting fire to a number of buildings on the outskirts. The fire department was able to extinguish them without much damage, however, and the village is now safe.

A party composed of W. F. Crandall, Victor Beneau and J. S. Wilke drove into Hibbing yesterday from Sturgeon river, a distance of forty miles. They reported that fires were raging throughout that distance and that in the last twenty miles they were at times driving through flames which scorched their clothes and faces.

A WEEK OF

Fall Fashion Showing

We realize that the introduction of new season styles always brings with it a time when the majority of women are hardly yet ready to buy, but are much interested in "what is to be worn." It is with this consideration in mind that we have set aside this week as an informal display week.

Every woman interested in fashion, is cordially invited to come and get acquainted with the coming season's modes.

The phases of garment representation are wide and varied; clearly reflecting the creative genius of fashion designers, and the clever art of the cloth workers' craft.

We lay particular stress upon the fact that Gidding wearables are designed for the purpose of meeting the individual tastes and class requirements of careful dressers.

You will be much interested in such styles as the Princesse-Directoire—50-inch military effects with Napoleon collar, and other variations of the Directoire craze, together with the strictly plain "CUSAOM" MADE garments, and plain, practical styles for business women and commonplace wear.

Junior Suits

The smartest ever! Very snappy styles, cut on youthful lines, in attractive variations of the season's cloth weaves, such as Cheviots, Serges and Worsteds. Prices $16.50 to $35.00.

Fall Skirts and Waists

have put in an appearance, and are delightful examples of Fall Fashion ideas. Messaline, Net, Taffeta, Wool and Fancy Waists.

Skirts quite of Directoire and Sheath influence.

WRENSHALL IN DANGER

Citizens Are Making Brave Fight Against the Flames.

Settlers Along the Great Northern Homeless—Holman Cut Off.

The flames are still menacing the town of Wrenshall, twenty-three miles west of Duluth.

The town was thought to be doomed by the flames Saturday night, but the inhabitants have succeeded in fighting them off up to the present time.

The military road, about a mile out of the city, stopped the fire for a time, and the citizens took advantage of this obstruction to wage their fight against the fire.

John Lowry of the firm of Dixon & Lowry returned last evening from Wrenshall. He states that the fires are raging all along the line of the road between Carlton and Wrenshall, and that many settlers have been burned out.

The Great Northern train yesterday stopped several times between stations to pick up settlers who had been left homeless by the flames, and brought them to Duluth.

The 600 inhabitants of Wrenshall are making a desperate fight against the flames, and they should win unless a strong wind should spring up today.

The village of Holman near Grand Rapids is reported to be threatened. The town has no fire fighting apparatus and it has been cut off from communication with Grand Rapids by telephone and telegraph.

Sheriff Bates is on the range lending his assistance in preserving order.

HORSE RETURNS; BRINGS CORPSES

Wabash Man Kills Widow and Self When She Refuses to Wed.

Wabash, Ind., Sept 7.—Murder and suicide have ended the farewell ride of Joel F. Baker, a carpenter, and Mrs. Sylvia Hernice, a widow. Mrs. Hernice planned to leave for Benton Harbor to be married and her drive with Baker, an avowed admirer was to tell him his fate. A traveling man found a horse standing in front of a livery stable with a man and woman in the buggy, apparently asleep. He aroused the hostler, who opened the doors and the horse entered the stable. No attempt was made to arouse the occupants of the vehicle, but later the proprietor, thinking they were intoxicated, sent for an officer. Over the woman a lap robe had been thrown and when this was removed, it was seen five bullets had been sent into her body. In Baker's right hand was a revolver; his hat was on his head, and he was sitting in a natural position, dead. The horse had returned to the stabel with the bodies, pasing the business section of the town.

BLOCKADE OF VENEZUELA NOV. 1

Holland's Note Demands That Castro Revoke Decree Before Then.

The Hague, Sept. 7.—Holland's note to Venezuela contains one point, which appears to be practically an ultimatum. Holland demands of Venezuela the revocation before Nov. 1, of the decree issued by President Castro May 14, which resulted in the practical suppresion of Curacoa's trade. Since this government fixes a definite period in which the decree must be revoked, it appears unlikely a blockade will begin before Nov. 1.

Novel Majority Rule.

To the Editor of The Herald:

To elect a United States senator under the old system requires a majority of the strongest party in a legislature, together with enough others, usually from the same party, to make an actual majority of the entire body. Under the new system of primary elections, at least as operative in Illinois and Wisconsin, the will of a minority of the leading party electorate may control all the legislative representatives of that party. The result this year in each of the two states named will probably be the choice of a senator to represent a whole state who is, as a matter of fact, the choice of only a small minority of the voters in that state, and the choice of only a minority faction in his own party. In Wisconsin, Mr. Stephenson gets 42,000 Republican votes, while 96,000 Republican votes are cast against him for other candidates. Of course, no other voters of the state count, or are counted, if a Republican legislature is elected. But even so, an obligation resting on the representatives of 138,000 voters to ratify the choice of 42,000 voters is a novel example of majority rule. They may like that sort of thing in Republican states, but I don't think Democratic states would tolerate it—not more than once.

SAMUEL GOMPERS ASSAILS CANNON

Danville, Ill., Sept. 7.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, invaded the Eighteenth Congressional district of Illinois, today, for the avowed purpose of bringing about the defeat of Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives, who is making his nineteenth campaign for congress. Mr. Gompers made his first address at the Labor day celebration here today.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Labor day, opening a new week of political activities, found the arena agog with significant moves. William Jennings Bryan arrived today and reviewed the Labor parade besides addressing several labor meetings. National Chairman Norman E. Mack arrived yesterday and Vice Presidential Nominee Kern comes tonight, after speaking in Muncie, Ind. Tomorrow the Democratic national committee adopts campaign plans. This gathering of party managers will probably be the most important in the Democratic campaign, for on the adopted plans will depend in a great measure the outcome of the election. Announcement is made today that John W. Kern will stump the East.

Victor Rosewater, head of the Republican publicity bureau has given out a statement signed by Grand Master Morrissey of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen to the effect that that order has no political program and indorses no party or candidates.

Distribution of the campaign textbook began today, the book to be scattered broadcast throughout the country. It contains 300 pages and has the Democratic and Republican platforms arranged in "deadly parallel" order. Referring to the Aldrich-Vreeland bill, the book, says in part:

Currency Bill Arraigned.

"Here is a bill designed to prevent panics like that which swept over the land last fall. And nowhere in the bill do you find the slightest mention of the cause of that and of all other panics—the distrust of the bank depositor. If the situation were not so serious, this bill would be the most colossal joke of the century. The bill neither gives the elastic currency of the Canadian plan nor the direct government action of the Democratic plan. The machinery for issuing the emergency currency is so roundabout that half a dozen panics could be well under way before the circulating medium could get out.

"But the principal fault of the bill is that it is not honest. The government is asked to go into partnership with the banks, even farther into partnership than now. When the United States government lends its name to an enterprise, the least it can do is to insure that every one dealing with that enterprise gets fair play. If the government is to co-operate in the banking business, then the government must secure the bank depositors. If this is not done, then the government should withdraw altogether and meddle no more with banks than with grocery stores."

Bryan Is Pleased.

No recent news has afforded Mr. Bryan so much satisfaction as the announcement that Mr. Taft intends making a campaign tour. Bryan regards this as a distinct vindication of his course in the present as well as in his two previous campaigns, when he tracked over the country, delivering speeches.

Taft today left Middle Bass Island, Ohio, for Sandusky, where he will make two addresses tomorrow, leaving later for Cincinnati.

Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock of the Republican national committee arrived in New York yesterday and will remain at the Eastern headquarters until after the election in Maine, on Sept. 14.

Hop Sa-sa Tra-la-la.

The National Swedish dancers and their country fidlers, who made such a tremendous success in the Eastern cities on their previous American tour, are drawing great crowds to Lester Park. Everybody is wild over them. The barn dance as danced in Europe two centuries ago is making a great hit. Saturday evening there will be a big dance in the pavilion. The national dancers will take part after the performance.

The last appearance of the dancers will be Labor day evening.

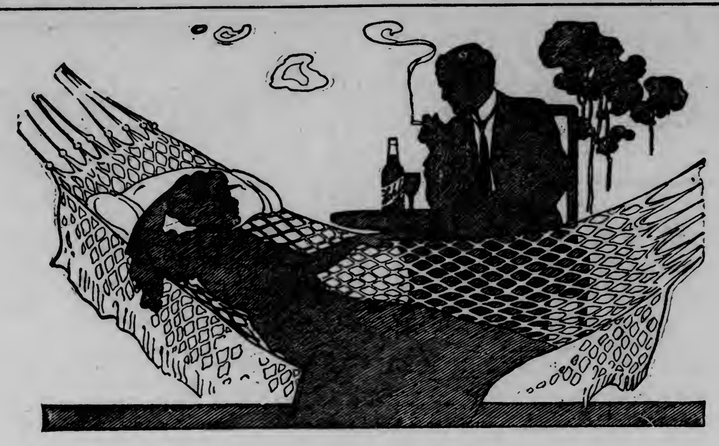

SANDBAGGED AND ROBBED

B. W. Armstrong Victim of Highwaymen Early Sunday Morning.

B. W. Armstrong of 121 East Ninth street was held up and robbed of $28 and a gold watch by two highwaymen at First avenue east and Sixth street early yesterday morning.

Armstrong told the police that he was walking home and as he passed close to a building a short, stout man stepped out of the shadow and told him to throw up his hands. He did so and another man stepped out and hit him on the back of the head with a sandbag. He fell to the sidewalk and both men went through his pockets, taking everything of value.

Armstrong says he did not lose consciousness, though he lay on the sidewalk dazed for several minutes. He made his way home and telephoned the police, but the officers were unable to find his assailants. He said he secured a good look at the men and would be able to identify them.

MALTED BARLEY is digested food. Hops are a tonic—also an aid to sleep. That's what you get in beer. That's why the doctor says "drink beer" when one lacks vitality.

Beer quiets the nerves, not because of the alcohol. There is only 3½ per cent. of that. But because of the hops, for hops are soporific.

A bottle of Schlitz at bedtime induces sleep.

In every way the drinking of beer is good for you, providing the beer is pure. It is only the wrong beer that leads to bad after effects and to biliousness.

Schlitz beer is pure. We spend more on purity than on all other costs of our brewing. Even the air that cools it is filtered. And every bottle is sterilized.

There is all the good of beer, and none of the harm, in Schlitz.

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz.
To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded Schlitz.

DUVAL HELD FOR FORGERY

Ex-Convict Said to Have Operated Extensively in Duluth.

Works Smooth Game He Used Here in Former Years.

"King of Forgers" is the complimentary title the police bestow on Albert Duval, one of the smoothest confidence men who ever operated at the Head of the Lakes. Duval was arrested as he was alighting from a hack in the red light district Saturday night, and he is being held at the central station facing three charges of forgery, with the possibility that more will turn up.

Duval was sent to the Wisconsin state penitentiary about three years ago for breaking jail at Superior while he was awaiting trial on a charge of forgery. He was released from prison about two months ago, and is known to have been in Duluth for over a week. The police knew that he was in town, and, realizing his dangerous character, they have been on the look out for him, without success until Saturday night. He remained in the West end and West Duluth until Saturday night, and the detectives were unsuccessful in their search for him.

Saturday, the police say, Duval made a deal to purchase a horse from Lawrence Duplais of the West end, and tendered a check for $550 on the Farmers' Bank of Bryant, S. D. Duval left the check and said he would take the horse Tuesday. Duplais wired the bank and was notified that the check was a forgery. Saturday also, it is said, he purchased a carload of beer from the Duluth branch of the Minneapolis Brewing company, giving a check for $1,000 on a Minneapolis bank. The check was sent to Minneapolis and no return has been received on it yet. After gaining the confidence of the local agents of the Minneapolis concern by the big check, Duval is said to have drawn a check for $3 and cashed it with them.

The police say the game is one Duval played here before. He gains the confidence of his men by means of big purchases, which are paid for with checks for the exact amount, thereby disarming suspicion on account of their being no change in return for the check. Then, after confidence is gained, he is said to tender smaller checks for cashing, receiving coin for them and disappearing.

Duval owned a meat market at Scanlon years ago and was respectable. When he went wrong, the police say, he came to Duluth several times, made big purchases, tendered checks in payment and then followed them up with checks for small amounts, which were cashed.

Duval is a man of about 37 years of age, but prison life has told on him, and he appears to be about 50 years old. He is distinguished-looking, is a good talker and his appearance bears out the role he assumes, that of a respectable business man from a small town. In contracting for the delivery Tuesday of what he purchased, he figured on the Saturday half holiday, Sunday and Labor day to keep the checks out of the banks on which they were drawn, thus allowing him time for further operations with small checks.

Duval's entrance into the red light district Saturday night was his undoing. Detectives Terry and Walsh were "tipped off" that he was headed for Duluth and were given a description of the horses. They kept a lookout and noticed the team when it entered the city from West Duluth. They followed it into the red light district and arrested Duval as he alighted from the hack.

It is believed by the police that his operations in Duluth were more extensive than those that have already come to the surface. Duval is known to have been in Duluth for over a week, and was living high. The police know of two rigs he hired, and he has been spending money in the West end and West Duluth all during last week. He only received $3 in cash on his checks, as far as is known, so it is believed that other small checks will come to the surface as soon as the story of Duval's arrest and operations comes to the notice of his victims.

DID NOT MISLEAD GIRL.

Man Arrested at Minot Denies Northfield Woman's Charge.

Minot, N. D., Sept. 7.—G. L. Knapp of Northfield, Minn., who was arrested day before yesterday on the request of Mrs. Markham of Minot, who charges that Knapp ran away with her daughter, Adelaine, denies the charge and says that he can prove that Mrs. Markham has no ground on which to base the charge.

Knapp says that he went with Miss Adelaine from Northfield, Minn., to Belvidere, Ill., where they visited friends. He says that Mrs. Markham did not live in Northfield, and that after they had their visit at Belvidere, Ill., they voluntarily came to Minot. He says that he told Adelaine all along that he was married and that he could not marry her until he received the divorce papers, which he was expecting any day. He said that Miss Markham went out walking with him with the son of his first wife, and that she knew all the time that he was married.

"Instead of runing away with Miss Markham, I brought her to her mother, and her mother thanked me for it," said Mr. Knapp.

The police received word from Mr. Markham at Northfield, Minn., to hold Knapp until the necesary requisition papers were issued.

Mrs. Markham does not live with Mrs. D. C. Robbine as at first reported, but in a house owned by Mrs. Robbins.

TWO BEARS ARE SHOT HERE, DRIVEN IN BY THE FIRES

THE BEAR SHOT AT LAKESIDE.

Are forest fires driving bears into the city?

Two black fellows were shot yesterday on the threshold of the city. John Naddy and Fred Stephenson shot a 200-pound Bruin two miles beyond Lakeside yesterday morning, and Carl Gruesen, 1418 Jefferson street, shot a 110-pound bear near Chester park.

The animal shot by Naddy and Stephenson was a splendid specimen, about one year old. The captors brought their carcasses to the city yesterday afternoon.

Several people saw two bears in the vicinity of Chester park yesterday. One was a good sized one, while the other was small. Among those who went out in search of the animals was Gruesen, and when he encountered them, succeeded in bagging the smaller one.

DIDN'T LIKE THE SCHOOL

John Lushene Escaped From Owatonna and Started Home.

Was in the Woods Three Days With But Little to Eat.

With his bare feet covered with cuts, bruises and blisters, and with only a thin duck shirt and short trousers covering his shivering body, John Lushene, the 11-year-old son of a miner at Mountain Iron, arrived in Duluth after a three days' trip from the state training school at Owatonna, from which he escaped. He was arrested at the union station last night by Patrolman Westerlund and was cared for at the central station last night.

The boy tells a story of three days' misery and hardship. He says that after escaping from the institution, he was pursued for fifteen miles by guards on bicycles, but he managed to evade them. Even after the chase was given up, he says, he continued to run, and covered the entire forty miles to Hastings before he stopped.

At Hastings he secured something to eat and continued on his journey to St. Paul. For two nights he slept by the roadside, sleeping for an hour or so and then running a couple of miles to get warm and take the stiffness out of his bones. At St. Paul he found a sympathetic train crew, who allowed him to ride in the caboose to Duluth and gave him something to eat.

The boy says he was at the state school but two weeks, and they made him work so hard, he had to run away. He says his father didn't want to send him there, but his stepmother insisted that he go. "If I am going to work so hard, I may as well work at home and receive money for it," he said to the police. The boy's father will be communicated with, and some disposition will be made of him by the police today.

INCENDIARISM IS SUSPECTED

Chief Black Investigating Fire in Overall Factory Saturday Night.

The automatic sprinkling device in the overall factory of H. Heistein & Co., Fifth avenue west and Railroad street, saved the building from fire, but destroyed the entire stock about 9 o'clock Saturday night.

The fire started simultaneously in three places on the third floor of the building and its origin is unknown. The fire department officials do not entirely like the manner in which the fire started, and they have began an investigation. Incendiarism is suspected. Chief Black said: "The fire started in three places on the third floor, and one may draw his own conclusions."

The fire had been burning but a short time, when the heat set the automatic sprinklers to working. The entire building was flooded with water and the fire extinguished, but the stock was badly damaged. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

DENNIS HAYES OUT OF RACE

Two Harbors Man Withdraws From Campaign for Legislature.

Dennis J. Hayes, of Two Harbors, has withdrawn from the legislative race in the Fifty-first district, and in a communication, announcing his retirement, urges the voters to support Congdon and Buck. His withdrawal announcement follows:

"To the Voters of the Fifty-first Legislative district:

"I hereby announce my withdrawal from the legislative contest in this district, and in doing so I wish to express my cordial appreciation of the sympathy and support that have been tendered, and to give my reasons for withdrawing. I went into the contest believing that it was my duty to do so, and that Lake county should be represented in the legislature, and because I was endorsed by the county convention, and I then found a great deal of dissatisfaction among my own people, and am convinced for this reason that I could not be elected.

"Still later, the citizens of Duluth induced two exceptionally strong men, Chester A. Congdon and George W. Buck, to enter the race, which made it still more doubtful whether Lake county could gain representation. After a careful survey of the field, both in St. Louis county and in Lake county, I have concluded that it is my duty to withdraw from the race, for I consider it of the highest importance to those counties that the strongest possible men should be sent to the legislature, and I do not wish to complicate and perhaps defeat this need of the district by remaining in the race. It is the good of the district and not of myself that I have sought, and I believe that the best interests of the district will be served by the election of these two men.

"Before coming to this decision, however, I made a special effort to see that proper attention will be given to the reapportionment of the state, so that Northern Minnesota shall have its proper share of representation in the legislature, and particularly that Lake and Cook counties shall be granted a representative of their own.

"I have the assurance of both Mr. Congdon and Mr. Buck, as well as that of many other leading Republicans of Duluth, that every effort will be made for the general reapportionment of the state, and that whether that fight is successful or not, the next legislature will set Lake and Cook counties apart into a separate representative district, so that they can elect their own representatives hereafter without outside interference.

"My name will still remain upon the ballot, under the law, but I wish it understood that I am not a candidate, and I ask my friends to vote for Messrs. Congdon and Buck. Again thanking those who have tendered me their support, I remain,

"Very sincerely,

"DENNIS J. HAYES."

SCHOOLS READY FOR OPENING

Attendance This Year Will Probably Pass 13,000 Mark

Only fire or sudden death can intervene between the small boy and school. As the last eagerly held hours slip into oblivion, and night approaches, so comes the inevitable morning and the first day of school. Only a sudden holacaust of school buildings, or school teachers, can avert the threatened tragedy, and Duluth youth for the most part is making up its mind to consent with only reasonable objections, to having its ears scrubbed to a fiery red, and its hair tied with huge bows, and then pranco off quite willingly to school.

Tomorrow is the first day of the new school year, and by the close of tomorrow's daily sessions, the children of the grade schools will be ready to go on with the routine work. In the high school it will take a while longer. The school buildings have undergone the necessary repairs, and the teachers have returned from their vacation. A larger attendance is expected this year, and in some of the schools more rooms have been added to accommodate the increased attendance. Last year the enrollment was 12,500, and it is expected this year to pass 13,000. The schools have been examined as to their fire safety, and many new provisions made for the protection of the children.

How to Get Strong.

P. J. Daly of 1247 West Congress street, Chicago, tells of a way to become strong. He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. WILL PLAY "TAG" IN AUTOMOBILES

Machines Will Aid Duluth Women in Charity Work

The women of Duluth, who will tag the population next Saturday in the interests of the Red Cross Charity day, will have many of the automobiles of the city enlisted in the work to expedite matters and give what assistance they may during the day. Many of the owners of the cars in the city have volunteered the service of their motors for the day. Those engaged in the work will be decorated with red cross emblems, and will be used to convey the solicitors to the outlying districts and for necessary messenger service during the day.

The preparations for the day, which will be held Saturday of this week, are being completed and the chaperones are receiving a hearty response to their request for aid. Any automobile owner who is willing to lend his machine for the day is requested to communicate with any member of the executive committee, which consists of Mesdames A. M. Miller, W. R. Stone, James E. Granger, J. B. Adams or A. B. Wolvin.

MEMBERS PLEASED

With the Newly Decorated First Methodist Church Auditorium.

For the first time in six weeks the members of the First Methodist church assembled Sunday morning in the main auditorium of the building for morning service. The church has been newly decorated throughout, and now compares favorably with any in the West.

While the repairs have been going on the services have been held in the Sunday school rooms. The interior has been decorated to harmonize with the pipe organ; done in brown, which gradually gets lighter toward the top. Many of the members saw the new church Sunday morning for the first time, and members of the committee, which had the work in charge were warmly congratulated on their good taste shown.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

ONE CLUE IS FOUND

Dead Man Bought Pair of Shoes in East Grand Forks.

Police Are Hunting for Man Last Seen With Deceased.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the shoes of the man recently found in the Red river in their possession and the knowledge that the shoes were purchased at the F. Dorsky store in this city three weeks ago, and that at that time the fellow, who is supposed to be K. Jokiaho of Eveleth, Minn., was well supplied with money, the officials have commenced a search for the man who was with the deceased on the day he made the purchase. It is believed that when he is found the murder mystery will be solved. Only a meager description of this man has been obtained by the police officials.

The fact that the shoes of the dead man had been found in the river the day after the body was found, only came to light Saturday afternoon when the finder, a boat hand working on the government fleet of boats on the Red river, made casual mention of the fact to Capt. Hayes. The fact was immediately reported to the police authorities with the result that the place of purchase was discovered and other information was gained. At this point, however, the officers are again up against it.

There is also some question now as to which side of the river the murder was committed. The shoes were found on the North Dakota side of the river, while the body was found near the Minnesota side. This fact has led to a union of the forces of the police of the two cities with the hope of solving the mystery.

The theory that the man was knocked from the Northern Pacific bridge by a passing train is given little credence by the police authorities.

NEW VARIETY OF RYE IS OFFERED

Minnesota Experiment Station Furnished Farmers With it

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new variety of winter rye called Minnesota No. 2 has been originated by the Minnesota experimental station and is now ready for distribution. This rye was obtained by selection from the Swedish rye and is an exceptionally high yielder. The average yield upon the station grounds for the past eight years is 40.4 bushels per acre, while the average yield of other varieties for the state in the same time was 19.2 bushels per acre. One field of 1.9 acres yielded forty-eight bushels per acre this fall.

The grain of this new variety is plump, and much larger than the varieties commonly grown. The straw is stiff, tall and stands up well.

A few bushels were distributed for trial throughout the state last year in order that yields might be compared under farm conditions with the common varieties. The returns from the entire acreage show that Minnesota No. 2 averaged 27.2 bushels per acre, while other rye grown under similar conditions averaged 17.7 bushels per acre.

Minnesota No. 2 rye is offered to the farmers of the state in two to five-bushel lots at the price of $1.25 per bushel, including sacks. Seed will be supplied either by the station or by farmers who have co-operated with the station as seed growers. Communications in regard to the rye should be addressed to Andrew Boss, agriculturist, Minnesota experiment station, St. Paul.

BELIEVES WOMAN INNOCENT.

Mrs. Wright's Attorney Confident Woman Cannot be Convicted.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 7.—(Special to the Herald.)—Attorney John Samson, of Lakota, has been in Grand Forks in connection with the famous case of Mrs. Mary Wright, of Derrick, Ramsey county, who is being held in the county jail at Devils Lake, on a charge of murder, Beulah Cox, her adopted daughter, being the victim of the alleged crime. Attorney Samson, who is the leading counsel for the defense, while doubting whether or not the Devils Lake justice of the peace before whom the preliminary hearing is being held, will take the responsibility of discharging Mrs. Wright from custody, is certain that if the case comes to trial in the district court, she will be acquitted.

The defense has moved for the discharge of the defendant, on two important grounds, claiming that the state has failed to show that the girl was murdered, or that Mrs. Mary Wright was in any way connected with the murder, in case there was such a crime committed.

McDONNELL'S QUICK TRIP.

Duluth Contractor Flies Between Minneapolis and Pine City.

Pine City, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—P. R. McDonnell, the well known Duluth contractor, made a record automobile trip from the Twin Cities here Saturday, covering the distance of about seventy-eight miles in two and one-half hours. Considering the condition of the roads and the need for being on the lookout for pedestrians and teams along the highways this is considered a remarkable run.

While here the Duluth man met a a legion of supporters of Governor Johnson and W. J. Bryan and expressed himself as pleased with the sentiment in this section.

VILAS WAS VERY RICH.

Late Wisconsin Statesman Left Nearly Million Dollars.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 7—According to the petition to probate the will of the late Col. William F. Vilas, filed in the county court, his estate is valued at $342,000. It consists of $142,000 in real estate and $700,000 in personal property. The indebtedness of the estate is estimated at $70,000. This, however, is subject to correction. The heirs-at-law are Mrs. Anna M. Vilas, the widow, and a daughter, Mary Esther Vilas Hanks.

By special request of Burr W. Jones, attorney for the Vilas estate, the provisions of the will will not be made public until later. The will is dated Aug. 27, 1902, and a codicil of the will is dated June 22, 1903. The petition will be heard at the October term of the county court.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 7.—While out fishing on Lake Mendota late Sunday afternoon Governor Davidson rescued two men from drowning. They were in a canoe, which was capsized by a heavy wind, and were clinging to the sides of the canoe. A sudden squall upset several canoes on Lake Mendota. The names of the men rescued by Governor Davidson were not learned.

CALUMET LANDMARK GONE.

First Postoffice Building, Built in Sixties, is Torn Down.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Quietly and unostentatiously a building, twenty by thirty feet on School street, owned by Frank B. Lyon, and standing on Calumet & Hecla ground has been torn down. It will be news to many to learn that this was Calumet's first postoffice, and that in that building the first mail was received and delivered to Calumet residents. The postmaster was Thomas Doolittle, father of the late Mrs. Jay Hubbell, known to many of the older residents of this section.

The building was erected by Mr. Doolittle in 1867 or 1868, and was used as a hardware store, tin shop, and a postoffice. It was in a very fair state of preservation, despite its forty years weathering of the Lake Superior winters. Mr. Lyon wanted the building removed because of its uselessness at the present time, and with no one willing to purchase it, it was decided to take it down.

ARE DECEIVING PEOPLE.

Duluth Man Denounces Western Information Bureaus.

Moorhead, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. Matheson, brother-in-law of J. M. Witherow, and whose home is at Duluth, has been a few days in the city upon his return trip fro mthe Flathead country in Montana. Mr. Matheson and party traveled from 600 to 800 miles by wagon over the Flathead reservation and the Bitter Root country, and he says that the Flathead reservation contains splendid timber. Mr. Matheson is very bitter against the information bureaus which deal with the prospective opening of the reservation. While he had no interest in the matter, being out only on pleasure, he declares these bureaus to be frauds, and says that they give no information except such as can be obtained from the interior department of the government. Mr. Matheson made the Western trip while his wife, who is Mr. Witherow's sister, is in Europe with their three children.

CANVASSING BOARD ADJOURNS

Vote Not All in So Further Delay Results.

Bismarck, N. D., Sept. 7.—After being in session three days last week canvassing the returns of the primary election, the state canvassing board adjourned to meet Sept. 24. All returns for United States senators, congressmen and state officials of both the Republicans and Democrats have been fully canvassed and certified to by the board, but returns for legislative candidates from Oliver county have not been submitted to the secretary of state by the auditor of that county and that with a few legal propositions, which appear in the new primary law and are not clear to the board at this time made it necessary for the board to adjourn to a later date, when all the returns will be completed.

SAILING DOWN THE MUDDY.

Magazine Writer Gathering Material Along the Missouri.

Bismarck, N. D., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—John G. Niehardt, representing the Outing Magazine, stopped here on his cruise down the Missouri river.

Mr. Niehardt is gathering material for a series of articles of the Northwest to be published in the Outing, and is especially interested in some matters of local interest to the people of this city.

He took a look at Fort Benton and came down the river to this place, where he is now tied up for repairs on his engine. There were three in party at the start, but one, a photographer, was taken sick and had to abandon the party. The third one is a plucky lad of 17, Chester Marshall, and is making "good."

KIMBALL BANK SOLD.

Kimball, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The State bank of Kimball has been sold to parties in Dassel and Litchfield and possession will be given on Oct. 1. C. D. Brower, who has been county treasurer of Meeker county for the past few years, will be cashier and from now on will spend much of his time getting onto the ropes at the institution. The stockholders will be Messrs. Buck, McGrew, Larson, Nelson, Brower and George F. Sherwood.

FARGO LABOR DAY EXCERCISES FINE

Governor Burke, L. B. Hanna and Others are Among Speakers

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Burke, President Worst of the North Dakota Agricultural college and L. B. Hanna, Republican nominee for congress, were the chief speakers at the Labor day exercises in Fargo today. All three are eloquent speakers and there was an immense audience when the exercises began in Ireland park this afternoon. The usual forenoon parade was abandoned, but there was a sport program this afternoon and the annual ball occurs this evening. The Memorial exercises Sunday afternoon were impressive and addresses were made by Pastors Beard, Lenard, Adams and DeLong of different city churches, while the Orpheus Singing society furnished the music.

BANK AT BROOKPARK.

I. C. Hazlett of Wadena Back of Enterprise.

Brookpark, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Brookpark is to have a state bank and one more step in local progress is made. There has been considerable talk of such an institution for some time and several parties have considered the location and thought favorably of it, but it was not until a few days ago that a definite assurance was given of establishing one here.

The last preliminary steps towards the organization were taken Wednesday during a visit by Messrs. Empey and Folsom.

The bank will be ready for business about Nov. 1 and will be known as the Brookpark State bank and will be largely owned by I. C. Hazlett, the Wadena capitalist.

FOUND DYING BY TRACKS.

Mystery Surrounds Death of Man at Harvey, N. D.

Harvey, N. D., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local authorities are investigating the mystery surrounding the death of a man who registered at a local hotel as H. W. Akerman, but who also went under the name of H. A. Watson, who was found in an unconscious condition by a railroad track, dying shortly afterwards. Watson, which is the name he gave shortly before his death, had been employed near Manfred, but was later engaged as a cook. He had been lying by the track all day, no notice being taken of him until evening when an attempt to rouse him revealed the fact that he was nearly dead. A short time before his death he was known to have about $20 in cash, but had made several purchases later. At the time of death, there was no money or valuables about his person. The coroner did not hold an inquest, it appearing at the time that the fellow's death was from natural causes. The fact that he was without money has led to the belief that he was robbed.

NORTH DAKOTA BAPTISTS MEET IN FARGO SEPT. 22-25.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 7.—(Special to the Herald.)—The twenty-fifth annual state convention of the North Dakota Baptists will be held in Fargo, Sept. 22-25. On account of the importance of the anniversary, special efforts are being made by the members of the church in Fargo to make the occasion a memorable one. The programme is especially attractive, as it contains the names of prominent Baptists from New York to Kansas City. There will also be a number of heads of the different allied organizations of the church here, at that time.

MILLER AT ISANTI.

Candidate Addresses Large Audiance in Woodmen Hall.

Isanti, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hon. Clarence B. Miller of Duluth, candidate for representative in congress from this district, received a warm reception here Saturday night, when he spoke in Woodmen hall on the issues of the day, making what is declared to have been a very favorable impression. It was his first public appearance in this place.

UPPER MICHIGAN FIRES PASSED DANGER MARK.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the dying down of the wind, the forest fires that have raged in this vicinity the past several days have more or less burned out, and for the time being danger is past, rain, however, is badly needed, and unless it is forthcoming soon, further damage may be expected. The damage in the Kewaunee peninsula to date has been the greatest in years.

DUCK HUNTER KILLED.

Williston, N. D., Sept. 7.—Evelin Hollis accidentally shot himself Saturday while hunting ducks. He was creeping along the ground with a loaded rifle when the trigger was caught on brush and the load discharged. His mother is Mrs. Susan Hollis of Long Lake, Minn.

Street Car Kills Baby.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 7.—William Neitzel, aged 2 years, was run over and instantly killed by a street car Saturday. The accident happened on Ninth street, near the corner of Michigan street. The car struck the child with force, breaking his back and almost completely disemboweling him.

Wanted for Forgery.

Leeds, N. D., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Warrants have been issued here for the arrest of Walter Sanders, a young man who was employed here for some little time. The charge made is forgery, and the defendant is in parts unknown to local authorities. Sanders was successful in passing $13 checks, drawn in his favor and signed by the name of William Conway, a prominent farmer residing near here.

Charged With Assault.

Towner, N. D., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chris Freece of Drake, lodged in the county jail here on a charge of assaulting Emanuel Wels in a poolroom row at Drake, will have his preliminary hearing on Wednesday, Sept. 10. He has been allowed a $3,000 bail, but so far has been unable to furnish the amount. The affair resulting in Freece's arrest occurred in a quarrel over a trivial matter, of which neither party has any recollection at the present time.

Dietz Has Close Call.

Winter, Wis., Sept. 7.—After having dodged the bullets of deputies who have tried to drive him from the Cameron dam site, J. Dietz had a narrow escape from being blown to atoms while blasting stumps. He was thrown twenty feet by the premature explosion and rendered unconscious and is now confined to his home. Dietz had placed a stick of dynamite under a large stump and fired the fuse. The fuse burning out, he relighted it and the blast followed before he had time to get to a safe distance.

They Take the Kinks Out.

"I have used Dr. King's New Life Pills for many years, with increasing satisfaction. They take the kinks out of stomach, liver and bowels, without fuss or friction," says N. H. Brown of Pittsfield, Vt. Guaranteed satisfactory at all drug stores, 25 cents.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Hawley — Ruth, the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rittman has been undergoing a severe attack of blood poisoning for the past two weeks, and her condition for several days was very critical. She was taken first to the Detroit hospital, where an examination of her leg was made, and then sent to St. Luke's hospital at St. Paul, where she has since been treated by specialists.

St. Cloud—Charles A. Leagle, the veteran clothing salesman of St. Cloud, died Friday morning at the hotel in Riverside, Cal., where he has been living recently. He went to California last October, where he contemplated spending his declining years. He was 78 years old. As far as known Mr. Leagle had no relatives.

Brainerd—The Sunday school of the Norwegian Lutheran church had its picnic out at Zakariasen's place on Sunday, Sept. 6. Rev. M. L. Hostager held services in the morning. In the evening the children gave a program in the church on Seventh street.

Moorhead—Ole Johnson, a laboring man, fell from the Great Northern bridge Friday afternoon and sustained a number of bruises and a broken arm. Johnson is 50 years old and arrived in Fargo from Fergus Falls on Tuesday.

Long Prairie—The county fair is to be held at Long Prairie next Fsiday and Saturday. There will be the usual prizes and premiums. On each day there is to be a balloon ascension, and Conreid's trick acrobats are to be here during the two days and give exhibitions at the grounds. On Saturday there is to be a free-for-all trot and pace for Todd county horses for a purse of $30.

Pine City—On Wednesday evening about thirty of the women of the M. E. church and their husbands met at the home of W. P. Grotty and tendered Mrs. John Griffith, who departs in a short time for Seattle, Wash., a farewell party, and presented her with a couple of very nice gifts.

St. Cloud—Joseph Spies, the forger who was arrested at Hauklnson, N. D., by Sheriff Moritz, confessed and will plead guilty to the charge when the case comes up for trial. The Melrose man, who at first denied all knowledge of the crime, gradually weakened and made a clean breast of it to County Attorney Himsel and Sheriff Moritz.

Thief River Falls—Hellem postoffice in Marshall county has been discontinued. Mail formerly going to that point is now sent to Strip. As rapidly as possible the more unimportant offices in this neighborhood are being weeded out, the mail being sent out from more central points by star and rural routes.

Climax—Ole and John Braseth, who built and have for several years been operating the flour mill at Climax, have disposed of the property to Marcus and August Gilbertson of that place.

Little Falls—St. Aloysius parochoal school opened Tuesday morning for the 1908-09 term of school, and now has an enrollment of 150 pupils. This, it is expected, will be increased to a total of 200 during the course of the term. The first day was spent in arranging the class and the distribution of school books, and the regular sessions were begun Wednesday morning.

Brookpark—John Pearson and family left Thrusday for Bellingham, Wash., where they expect to make their home. They have made many friends during the years they have lived here, and were comparatively old residents.

Crookston—The new Carnegie library is nearing completion, and Architect Keck says that it will be practically ready to turn over to the city in about two weeks. Every effort is being made to push the work as rapidly as sellsopb cmfwyp eta oinvbgkqj cm as possible, and there seems to be no room for doubting but that it will be ready for service this coming fall.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—Bishop Shanley and Drs. Darrow and Campbell gave addresses at the graduation of a class of professional nurses from St. John's hospital. The institution is conducted by the sisters of the Order of St. Joseph.

Jamestown, N. D.—A daring check forger was caught at Jamestown after he had cashed two checks amounting to $60 at two Jamestown stores. The man, who is 35 years of age, and gave the name of W. Ewring, cashed one check at White & Henderson's store for $30.12, on the James River National bank and signed William Price, a well-known farmer near Bloom.

Fargo, N. D.—The case of the state vs. Chester S. Glavin, the man who forged a check and passed it on the Harrington hardware store, was dismissed by Judge Miller. It is said that Glavin's mother put up the cash to pay the costs in the case and to make good the forced check.

Bismarck, N. D.—Mr. and Mrs. P. Cressinger of Tacoma, Wash., are visiting their daughter, Mrs. H. T. Murphy. They will spend several weeks visiting in Bismarck and Mandan. They were old time settlers in Morton county and are enjoying the meeting of old friends.

Grand Forks, N. D.—J. Kempsey, who was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Johnson on the charge of blind pigging at Northwood, waived examination and will plead guilty to the charge when Judge Templeton returns. Kempsey, it is claimed, was a partner of Ingwald Benson, now in jail on a similar charge.

Minot, N. D.—Supt. S. H. Wolfe has announced the list of teachers for the school year, which opens Tuesday, Sept. 7. The list comprises twenty-nine all together, and the corps is considered an exceptionally strong one.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Kenosha—The end of a thirty-year courtship came in Kenosha Friday when John Folks of Chicago, an expert machinist, was married to his cousin, Mary Folks of New York city. The two had grown up together and always been intimate friends, but the bride declined to become Folks' wife because they were first cousins.

Madison—The state railroad commission Friday held a hearing on a complaint of S. M. Reinardy and other residents of Burlington against the Wisconsin Telephone company, the charge being an unlawful increase in rates. The company contended that the increase was necessary and not in contravention of the law.

Algoma—The Door-Kewaunee county training school for teachers opened with the largest enrollment of any similar institution in the state. There were more applications than could be accommodated. The percentage of boys in attendance is a record-breaker for training schools.

Grand Rapids—Dr. Byron Robinson of Chicago, a former resident of this city, has donated to the people a tract of twenty acres for park purposes. The place is heavily wooded and Mr. Robinson in making the gift suggested that so far as practicable the natural growth be preserved.

Milwaukee—Miss Stella Gough, who shot herself accidentally while examining an old revolver Sunday morning, died Friday in Trinity hospital. The young woman was rummaging in a library table drawer when she found the weapon which was discharged, the bullet entering her abdomen. Miss Gough was 26 years of age.

Appleton—Elijah Antone, the Oneida Indian who was arrested on the charge of murdering his 18-year-old son, was given a hearing in municipal court and was sent back to jail without bond until Sept. 10, when the hearing will be completed.

Beloit—Erwin and James Churchill, aged 14 and 17 years respectively, and Otto Schultz, aged 18 years, were sentenced to the industrial school for boys at Waukesha for the theft of the three horses stolen here Wednesday night. They had driven the horses about ten miles into Illinois where they abandoned them and returned to their homes.

Ashland — Helen Louise, the 15-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Solberg of 519 Ninth avenue west died Friday morning. The funeral was held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the Swedish Lutheran church, Rev. Mr. Caistad officiating.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Lake Linden—Frank Collins, an employe of the C. & H. Mining company, in the boiler house at the Lake Linden stamp mills, met with a shocking accident to his right hand, three of his fingers and a portion of his thumb being torn off through being caught in some machinery.

Calumet—One of the worst electrical storms for some time occurred Thursday night. At about 12 o'clock lightning struck the home of Thomas Stanaway, of Seventh street, Tamarack, doing considerable damage to the interior of the house.

Laurium—The funeral of the late Mrs. Duncan MacKennan took place Friday noon, with interment in Lake View. She is survived by her husband, both parents, two sisters, Mrs. M. Harrison, of the Tamarack, and Mrs. Hector Mackenzie, of Plainesdale, and six brothers, George of the Soo and William, James, Thomas and Richard of this city.

Escanaba—Capt. John Loell, of the Escanaba baseball team, has been engaged to serve as athletic director at the Northwester Military academy at Highland Park, during the coming year, and expects to take charge of the football squad.

Houghton—John Nelmi, William G. Koppolo and John Huhtassari, of Painesdale, have gone to Valparaiso, Ind., where they will take a business course. The youths have worked in the Champion mine for several years and managed to save enough out of their wages to cover the cost of an education.

Calumet—Clerk C. E. L. Thomas reports a total of sixty-five births and twenty-two deaths for the month of August just ended, for the township of Calumet. This is about the average of the previous months of the year.

Hancock—Mrs. H. W. Nikali and son Henry, and John Pelto, have returned from a visit of several weeks in Minnesota and the Dakotas. While in Minnesota they attended the great state fair at Minneapolis.

Ontonagon—After smouldering in a sawdust bed since last Sunday, fire broke out again in the lumber yard of Steire and Zuekel here and destroyed many piles of dressed lumber, the total value of which was probably $30,000.

The distinctive coined name, "CascaRoyal-Pills," is the new name adopted for Blackburn's Castor-Oil-Pills, the 10c remedy that made Mr. Blackburn wealthy.

THE NEW DRESS GOODS—Chief amongst the exclusive novelties in Dress Goods or Suitings is the combination Prunellas—in suit patterns only. The combination pattern of stripe and check for the skirts, and the plain cloths to match for the coats. These rare fabrics come in the new shades of taupe, bronze and blues—each pattern consists of 5 yards of fancy Skirting Cloths, and 3½ yards of the plain Coat Cloth—the richest and rarest of all the new things—at, per pattern..... $25.00

SIDE BAND OR BORDERED CLOTH—Another of the rare novelties upon which "Dame Fashion" has deigned to smile approval is the Side Band or Bordered Cloth. This fabric comes in Herringbone or invisible stripes; it has a deep border of a lighter shade, in a Grecian key pattern—and is being shown here in all the popular wanted shades of taupe, olive, mode and the blue series, is full 50 inches wide, at a yard. $2.25

THE NEW SILKS—Amongst the new silks, the Bordered Taffetas are particularly worthy of mention. They are destined to be worn greatly during the coming season, and when you see their beauty you will see the secret of their popularity. Fancy Swiss Taffetas, with a heavy satin border—the body is in the plain popular shades of this season—while the border is of richly colored designs to match—27 inches wide—per yard..... $2.25

PANTOME MESSALINES—A small striped, Chiffon weight, foreign Messaline. Added to all the new shades of taupe, etc, we are showing crimson rose, jasper and oxblood colors, 20 inches wide, per yard..... $1.00

MESSALINES—Your fashion journals will tell you that Messalines of all descriptions will play the leading role in silk fabrics for dresses this season. We can offer you values in these, unapproached by any competitor, viz: 26-inch fine Chiffon Messaline that we know is sold elsewhere for, and is worth $1.25, in this season's new shades only—Canard blue, Edison blue, saddle, taupe, gun metal, smoke, a yd... $1.00

PERSIAN SILKS—The only really new things in fancy silks are the Printed Warp Persians. This fabric is a fine French Taffeta—with rich Persian patterns. GIVE!

Once more are the generous citizens of Duluth called upon to respond to the needs of humanity in distress.

The situation on the Western Mesaba range, where the thriving village of Chisholm, with a population of 4,000 souls, has been wiped out almost in the twinkling of an eye, requires no special appeal to touch the sympathies of Duluth. The pathos of a stricken community, with its homeless, afflicted women and children, speaks with an eloquence that has not failed to stir the ever-ready generosity of the people, not only in Duluth but elsewhere in the state.

But the need is urgent. A dollar now is worth ten a week from now. The village of Hibbing, which opened its hospitable doors and its generous hearts to the fleeing residents of Chisholm, is overtaxed. There is need of everything—of clothing, food, shelter—everything that humanity requires to protect it from hunger and the elements.

Governor Johnson, immediately upon receipt of the terrible news, issued a proclamation to the people of the state, and appointed a relief committee consisting of Mayor Haven, A. C. Weiss, Milie Bunnell, A. L. Ordean, H. M. Peyton, J. L. Washburn and Martin Hughes, the latter of Hibbing. Mr. Peyton has been made treasurer of the committee, and offerings may be sent to him, to any member of the committee, or to The Herald. Relief headquarters have been established on the west side of Second avenue west, between Superior and First streets, in the vacant store room adjoining the temporary location of Day's jewelry store.. Donations of clothing will be received there and promptly consigned to the needy ones. There is especial need of clothing for women and children.

Already the enterprising people of Chisholm, who had built up a splendid little city in a few years, only to see it vanish before a wind-swept forest fire in an hour, are planning the reconstruction of their community with characteristic American energy. But in the meantime, there is immediate need of relief for the homeless ones who have lost their all. Practically every business house and every home in Chisholm is destroyed, and as insurance rates were nearly prohibitive, there is almost no prospect of relief from that source. Shelter, food and clothing for these stricken neighbors and friends of Duluth are needed, and it is a source of vast satisfaction to know that that need is being promptly met, not only in Duluth but elsewhere throughout the state.

In the meantime, the heartfelt sympathies of all Duluth go out over the blackened wastes to the fire-swept community, together with a prayer of thanksgiving to the Almighty that, by a miracle, no lives were lost in the furnace of flames that destroyed Duluth's fair little sister of the Mesaba.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

The change which turned the Irving high school in West Duluth into the Duluth Industrial high school is a change fraught with far deeper importance and value than the average citizen, probably, has yet begun to realize. That school, hereafter, will seek to provide its pupils with practical education that will fit them directly for the life of industry that awaits them. It will train their hands and their brains at the same time, and instead of loading their minds with useless matter under the guise of "training," it will equip them with practical knowledge that will be of concrete use to them when they go out into the world and go to work.

They will not be taught trades. That is a further step which has not yet been reached; but it is one that is going to be made. Too long have the public schools of this country devoted their entire energy to the production of the infinitely small percentage of high school graduates who expect to go on to the higher schools and take up professional work. Too long have the vital needs of the vast majority, and therefore of society, been almost entirely neglected in the make-up of the average school course.

Here is a story in point: New Bedford, Mass., is a very important cotton manufacturing center. A few years ago one of the chiefs in this industry discovered, greatly to his dismay, that he had nobody in his shops fitted to take the higher and more technical responsibilities upon which so much depends. He was importing all his experts and superintendents. Cotton-manufacturing is a highly specialized industry, and while workers may become very proficient in the particular branch upon which they are engaged, they do not "learn the business," and they do not grasp the more technical branches or fit themselves for superintendence.

Clearly, this was altogether wrong. So, to cut a long story short, New Bedford established a textile school, in which the pupils are taught "textile technology, with special regard to the manufacture of cotton and subjects allied thereto," to quote the catalogue of the school, for a copy of which The Herald is indebted to Rev. R. J. Mooney of this city. In this school the mill workers who desire to advance have every facility to learn the theory and practice of cotton manufacturing in all its details, from the raw cotton to the finished fabric, and also to have instruction in the scientific principles which underly the construction of the machinery and its operation, and the artistic principles which are involved in the production of ornamental fabrics.

This school is turning out practically equipped graduates who find ready and profitable employment in the cotton mills there and elsewhere. It is not only a great advantage to the young people of New Bedford, but it is of the greatest advantage to the manufacturers, who no longer have to seek their skilled help in Europe.

Most European countries, including England, France, Belgium, Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Russia, now conduct such schools. The United States, which is competing with these countries in the world's markets, has very few such institutions. This points the need of an awakening of the American people to the value of practical education.

This has a local interest, too. Duluth is about to become a steel and iron manufacttring center. The factories that are coming will give employment to Duluth young people if they are equipped for the work. The industry will be more successful if it has a local supply of trained workers to draw upon.

Isn't there something here for the people of Duluth to think about?

LABOR DAY.

All of us do a good deal of talking about the "dignity of labor," showing that even though we are anxious to have somebody else do most of the laboring, and though we often forget to see that labor's dignity is suitably recognized and labor's toil suitably remunerated, at least our lip service recognizes the fundamental nobility and necessity of toil. Without it, life would be a waste, the world would be a barren wilderness, and humanity would be a race of brutes and madmen.

It is not only those who toil with their hands that are laborers. Those who work with hand and brain combined, and those who work with brain alone, are toilers just as much as those condemned to the treadmill of an automatic round of ceaseless labor in which muscle alone is exerted. Labor day, therefore, is not only the special holiday of the workers whose brawny and clean-cut forms parade the streets today, but it should be the special holiday of the world, barring only those useless parasites who toil with neither hand nor brain, but live upon the rich fruits of the labors of others.

Yet today we consider chiefly those workers who combine brain and sinew in the more ardent physical tasks. These are the producers. It is Labor, applied under the guidance of Capital—though Labor conceives it possible that it could direct its own energies and reap the fruits of its own production—that makes prosperity. Labor, working upon the natural wealth that a beneficent Creator bequeathed to all mankind, produces wealth; and upon the fair distribution of that wealth depends the comfort of average humanity, the security of society and the ultimate redemption of the human family. When the products of toil are unfairly distributed; when the specially privileged few reap the richest of the harvest while the productive many go half-fed, ill-clothed and despoiled; when the injustice of class privilege breeds plutocrats and paupers: then labor's dignity is a joke and labor's energies are devoted to following false hopes. It is not quite that bad now, but it would be that bad—and worse—if the people were not constantly on their guard over the precious hostage of free government, prepared to repel the greedy, clutching fingers of organized greed.

It is the duty of society not alone to recognize the dignity of labor but to see that it gets a fair share of the fruits of its toil. This is necessary not only because it is right, but because the security of free government depends upon a laboring class that is comfortable and contented because it is treated fairly. If labor is ill-paid, those whom labor patronizes cannot prosper. If labor is ill-paid, those dependent upon labor's earnings cannot thrive. If labor is ill-paid, labor's wives and children must suffer, and if they suffer the motherhood and childhood of the nation are blighted.

It is no charity to labor to yield it its due, grudgingly and under compulsion. It is a duty which society owes itself, and society, through its organized governments, must stand between the rights of labor and the aggressions of greed, guaranteeing to every man who wishes to work the right to an honest day's work for an honest day's pay, the right to continuous and uninterrupted employment, and the right to comfort and cheer proportionate to the laborer's gifts to society.

TRUE PARTISANSHIP.

The wrong kind of partisanship, which is happily going out of fashion in this country, is that which induces its adherents to vote the party ticket whether it is right or wrong, thereby confirming corruption in its evil ways and hurrying on the harvest of defeat which the erring political party invites.

The right kind of partisanship, which is largely supplanting the wrong kind, is that which places the public interests first, and which rebukes the party when it is wrong in order to make it right.

For instance, the Crookston Times is a Republican newspaper, but it is not so partisan that it is blind to the shameful alliance of corrupt party machinery and selfish interests which produced the nomination of Jacobson as the Republican candidate for governor of Minnesota. It did not like this alliance, and it did not hesitate to say so. When Jacobson made his keynote speech, arraigning the Johnson administration for extravagance, its partisanship did not blind it to the fact that the real source of extravagance is the Republican legislature, and it did not hesitate to point out Jacobson's absurd and ludricous mistake.

For these reasons it has been accused of infidelity to the Republican party, and in a recent issue it says: "There are times when a self-respecting newspaper must be untrue to its principles and totally fail in its duty toward the public and the better interests of the community, if it supports and advocates everything or everybody that may secure recognition from any political party. A paper is entitled to be known as a Republican or Democratic paper when it supports and advocates the true principles belonging to either one of the parties and supports candidates whose candidacy embodies these principles.

"When, however, it becomes apparent that candidates and platforms do not follow the true principles of the party, and the paper calls attention to the fact, that paper should not lose its party standing. When men secure control of the party organization and direct its influence and color its policies toward selfish and purely personal ends, then a paper is not worthy of the name if it does not fight this tendency with all the power that it may have at its control. The Times believes that the state should have a Republican executive, and its attitude has been based upon a fervent hope for eventual Republican success. We believe, however, that the party in this state is not in good hands, and that if success is to come real leaders that have some sympathy with the rank and file of the part, men not tied to a political hierarchy, must be selected. We believe the present powers in the party have lost the power to bring success, and it is only a matter of a few short months before the people will be aroused to the true situation within the organization. The state's interests are higher than those of any party or any candidate, and we believe at the present time the future policy of the state as to questions having to do with its development and growth, consequently its prosperity, are at stake."

The partisan newspaper or individual who supports the party when it is wrong helps it to deserve defeat. The newspaper or individual who rebukes the party when it is wrong, and thereby compels it to be right, works best not only for his party, but for his country.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"New York is going to the devil," remarked Ned Bardon, of the John Cort theatrical enterprises, when discussing the drama's prospects for this season in the Spalding today.

"I mean by this that the town's latest craze is the Hungarian comedy, 'The Devil,' which is packing two of the important theaters, the Garden and the Belasco, nightly, and pirated versions of which will soon be seen in the cheaper houses.

"Last season, Hungary gave New York and a good share of the rest of the country, 'The Merry Widow,' and everybody knows what a tremendous hit it was here. But this latest importation from Budapest is a straight comedy, with no music and is already well on the road to popularity.

"Stock companies are already producing pirated versions of 'The Devil,' two burlesques of the piece are under way and I understand the road burlesque troupes are planning to give Devil entertainments.

"The introduction of the play to New York was sensational and quite enough to arouse the interest of that part of the public which had not already heard of the Hungarian piece.

"Harrison Grey Fiske, well known independent manager, suddenly came out with an announcement that he would produce at the Belasco theater the authorized version of 'The Devil' with George Arliss in the title role. Now Col. Henry W. Savage was planning to put on the only authorized name-blown-in-the-bottle version himself and naturally, the announcement of the Fiske plans annoyed him. Fiske had been quietly rehearsing his company for some time and was prepared to give a finished production on the opening night at the Belasco. Col. Savage was unprepared but he set right at work to produce 'The Devil' at the same time Fiske did. He selected the Garden theater as the home for his production and set the actors and others participating, hard at work. His first performance could hardly be called as smooth as the Fiske effort, but he soon whipped things into shape and now New York has two 'regular' Devils. You pay your money and take your choice.

"I understand Edgar Smith is hard at work writing a burlesque of the piece for Florenz Ziegfield, Jr., and another burlesque of the piece has been forecasted, as well, not to mention the many imitations which will flood the vaudeville and road burlesque fields.

"Just wait. It will only be a few weeks before we will have 'The Devil' hats, 'Devil neckties,' 'Devil stickpins,' 'Devil girdles' and all the rest."

"Travel in this part of the country is bound to be cheaper than you bargain for just now," observed W. A. Mair, formerly of Duluth but now of Ashland, in the lobby of the St. Louis last evening.

"Incipient forest fires are blazing away at several different points between Duluth and Ashland, although Saturday none had come within a mile or so of the tracks, so that travel was not delayed any.

"Some of these incipient fires, however, are liable to develop into something more dangerous. From the train at different intervals, we could see great clouds of smoke rising above the tree tops in the distance, and sometimes cinders were falling on the track.

"Just east of Superior, the smoke was very thick and the fire seemed near at hand.

"The dense smoke and falling cinders caused great uneasiness among the feminine passengers and I guess everyone rather drew breaths of relief when the train pulled into Superior and the fire zone had been passed."

Song of the Speed-Mad.

See, see! That speck in the distance!
We'll pass it afiash,
Yo, ho! There's nothing can reach us
As forward we dash.
The road is a'reeling
Beneath us, revealing
As curves we take, heeling,
The peril of smash.

On, on! As woodlands whiz by us
Their shadow flits damp
Fly, fly! No tride may try us
No limit may cramp.
Fast villages rushing,
Through Night's comber hushing,
Till Morning dawns blushing,
Surprised at our lamp.

Speed ,speed! What mortal can master
The slaves of my wheel?
Go, go! No king can go faster
Nor kingller feel
What joy in the flying,
With rush of winds vying,
Olympus defying,
As onward we reel.

Way, way! Make way for the meteor
Flashing through space
Way, way! Make way for my motor car
Keeping the pace.
What king can disarm us,
What foeman can harm us,
What peril alarm us,
Save losing the race?

Hoot, hoot! Let cowards plead peril—
Cautiously crawl,
Men scorn a safety so sterile—
Pitter for thrall,
While speed offers pleasure
No fears will I treasure
But life in full measure
And die e'er it pall.

THE WEATHER.

These are fair days indeed—too fair altogether with the dry woods inviting disaster from forest fires and the brisk breezes spreading terror. The wind died down yesterday and was mild this morning, but the weather man fears that there may be brisk southerly winds tonight that may fan the flames to further depredations. Otherwise, the outlook is for fine weather and moderate temperatures. A year ago today it was cloudy early, fine later.

The sun rose this morning at 5:35 and sets tonight at 6:37, making 13 hours and 2 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "A disturbance of considerable intensity is central over Northern Alberta. During the past twenty-four hours it caused warm weather throughout most of the Northwest, and showers in Northern Idaho only. Fresh easterly and southerly winds prevail over Northwestern states. The barometer is high in the lake region and the weather is generally clear in the lake region and thence westward to including the Dakotas, Manitoba and Southern Montana.

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

Bismarck	82	Marquette	64
Calgary	84	Missoula	92
Chicago	72	Miles City	88
Devils Lake	78	Milwaukee	76
Duluth	66	Minnedosa	72
Edmonton	74	Moorhead	74

The Comic Supplement.

Chicago Evening Post: A correspondent who hides her identity behind the pen name Constantia, recently addressed the editor of the New York Sun, on the subject of the Sunday supplement, which she unkindly, though perhaps not untruthfully, styled "a school for malicious mischief." Constantia's estimate of the Sunday supplement was based upon the subsequent predictions of a neighbor's twins who, though too young to read, had made pertinent if infantile deductions from the pictures of the comic sheet. After a few weeks of observation Constantia was constrained to ask:

"Am I deficient in intellectual power or in appreciation of real humor when I cannot see anything funny when children spill three pails of water which the servant was using to scrup the floor with? Is it puritanical sternness that prevents one from going into kinks of laughter when one of the twins pulls a chair from under a visitor? Am I wooden that I cannot enter into the spirit of a child who delights to kick a mahogany table (a priceless heirloom) for an outlet to anger on being denied any privilege he covets?"

Other sane Americans must have asked themselves the same questions. The leading papers of the country are supposed to mirror the tastes of the great mass of the American people, and yet if in their comic supplements they reflect the public sense of wit, then never was a people more lacking in humor than we. On the stage the slapstick series only the most benighted rural localities, and yet the slapstick compares most favorably with the pranks of comic-sheet characters.

It is not its negative stupidity, however, but its positive tendency to inspire mischief that is the worst feature of the Sunday supplement. Children cannot understand that what inspires their parents to laughter in a picture should not be equally risible in real life. And when Sunday after Sunday their minds are fed with rowdyism, it is not unnatural for them to become young rowdies in their play, and to forget that youth owes any tribute of respect to age. No thoughtful parent would permit his children to sully their minds with pictures of "police" papers probably would work less mischief in the playroom than the average "funny sheet" of Sunday newspapers.

The American people, we believe, have a higher and cleaner sense of humor than an onlooker would infer from a glance at these weekly offenses. That they will long survive in papers which make any appeal to persons of refinement and propriety may be doubted.

Labor Day.

The men of the world are out today
For naught but justice and fair play
And get remunerative pay.
May their cause succeed, may they clear the way
Then shout with might, Hurrah! Hurrah!

The thrones of Europe are badly scared
In oppression and vice they have been reared,
They don't wish their ills in public aired,
For the fate of Brazil they're not prepared,
But the toiling millions must have a say.

We'll make the oppressors and tyrant yield,
And the Flag of Justice will be our shield
Without fire or sword we'll win the field
And the doom of oppression will be sealed
By united labor—on Labor day.

The Defeat of Jenkins.

Chicago Evening Post: John J. Jenkins, Republican, who has represented the Eleventh Wisconsin district in congress for seven terms, was defeated for renomination at the primaries yesterday by Irving L. Lenroot. Progressive Republicans will shed no tears over the Wisconsin voters' repudiation of Mr. Jenkins.

As chairman of the house committee on judiciary and as custodian in chief of the measures sent to that body for consideration, Mr. Jenkins has developed a conscience that is constitutionally tender. He has been possessed of sharp fear that many of the bills introduced during the Roosevelt administration if enacted into law would shatter the Bulwark of our liberties. They have been given no chance to begin the shattering. The Appalachian mountain forest preserve measure was given into the keeping of Mr. Jenkins and his committee. So great was his alarm lest a national woodland set aside to save the country from alternate flood and drought would bring disaster to the great document that he saw to it that the evil day was put off until yet another season.

The great conservative leaders of the Republican party will mourn the departure of Mr. Jenkins from the halls of congress. The progressive party men will not have great difficulty in veiling their grief.

On the "Red Special."

Lincoln State Journal: Mr. Debs begins to tour in the "red special" with a display of free speech fit to make him the envy of other presidential candidates. When men run for office with a chance to win, their position demands circumspection. Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan cannot speak their minds on the woman's suffrage question, or the liquor issue, or the wickedness of local bosses who range here and there in their respective parties. They are fighting on certain lines, and cannot afford to complicate the situation by taking on other issues. Considerations of expediency do not hamper the minor candidate, and it is his joy to prod the major leaders for their sacrifices to the political god, success. Candidates for offices are seldom happy, but of all candidates the hopeless one should be happiest. He is out to stir up the animals for the very fun of it, harassed by no lions in his path because having no fear of defeat, privileged to criticise interminably with no counter obligation to set up a mark of his own. Mr. Debs can deliver his roasts with the joyous abandon of the mosquito at the ear of the armless man.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

William R. Merriam, the young St. Paul banker, was nominated for governor by the Republican state convention on the sixth ballot. The first ballot stood: Merriam, 156; McGill, 143; Scheffer, 116; Gilman, 17; Clement, 8; Merriam gained steadily and in the sixth ballot had 270; necessary for a choice, 223. An effort was made to induce Scheffer to rise and make Marriani's nomination unanimous, but he refused and left the hall, declaring he would have nothing to do with the campaign. After his departure the nomination was made unanimous. The rest of the ticket was nominated as follows: Chief justice, James Gilfillan, associate justice, L. W. Collins, lieutenant governor, A. E. Rice; secretary of state, Hans Mattson; state treasurer, Joseph Bobleter; state auditor, W. W. Braden; attorney general, Moses E. Clapp.

Prof. DeLong, the lightning artist at present with the Model shoe store, has secured the contract for painting the scenery in the Grand opera house.

The positions of chief engineer and superintendent of the St. Paul & Duluth road have been abolished, Vice President Dudley performing the duties, as a result of the policy of retrenchment.

H. L. Loucks, president of the Farmers' Alliance and interested in the Scandinavian Elevator company, was yesterday afternoon elected to membership in the Duluth board of trade. On the same day he was rejected as a member of the Minneapolis board, because he represented farmers, whose methods were distasteful to the elevator men.

Miss Susie Keavney of Detroit is in the city, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Matthews.

Yesterday the Duluth Steel company gave the contract to McGregor & Co., boilermakers, for the shell of the blast furnace. The shell is of heavy boiler plates, is twenty feet in diameter and fifty-seven feet high and will weigh in the neighborhood of forty tons. A large portion of the $150,000 to be spent for the first furnace is to be expended in Duluth.

Duncan, Brewer & Co., are making arrangements to ship to Tonawanda, N. Y., a cargo of 500,000 feet of good quality lumber. It will be the first shipment of the season from Duluth eastward.

MILLER AND BEDE.

Aitkin Age: J. Adam Bede was one of the Joe Cannon congresmen who helped block all legislation and did the will of the speaker. He came home and boasted of his friendship and allegiance to Cannon, and is now asking you to re-elect him on his record. While all this was taking place Clarence B. Miller was serving his district in the state legislature where he made a name for himself as one of the leaders of the house, regardless of the fact that it was his first term. Not only this, but he remained loyal to the people's interests. He isn't the kind that will have to be in congress two or three terms before he can attend to the duties of the district, and in the slang parlance of J. Adam Bede, he will not have to "get next" to anybody nor "get wise" before he rolls up his sleeves and gets to work in the interest of his district.

Anoka Free Press: Clarence B. Miller is an aggressive, wide-awake man of splendid abilities. His championship of public measures in the last legislature commanded the attention of the state. His vigor, his activity and his oratorial abilities promise great things for the future. He cannot possibly do less or worse for the district than Bede has done, and he may prove the very man the district needs and the man that it will be worth while keeping in congress.

Pine County Courier: Congressman Bede is having a hard time to convince the people of this district that he has been a supporter of Roosevelt and Cannon at the same time. But maybe that is only intended as another funny joke.

Pine City Pine Poker: Mr. Bede is climbing up the ladder to within reach of the plums; why pull him down? Why cut the vine which has proven hardy and which cannot be replaced for years to come? Let us let well enough alone; surely we have in Mr. Bede a congressman of ability and activity, one who stands head and shoulders above the average of his colleagues.

Ely Miner: Every day the Bede chances of securing the nomination and election are improving, contrary to the large amount of money and time the Duluth bunch, headed by the News Tribune is putting into their campaign of fabrication and villifying. Mr. Bede so far has called every bluff with a straightforward statement which, on several occasions, has been substantiated by such men as Senators Clapp and Nelson, Congressman Tawney, and others, and all of which is shown in public documents at Washington.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Duluth News Tribune and some of the enemies of Mr. Bede continue the senseless cry that Mr. Bede has neglected his duties at Washington, and that the only remedy for the neglected district is Mr. Miller. Mr. Miller gained all of his legislative experience in one term as a member of the state house of representatives, and it is not reasonable to even dream that he could get anything for the Eighth congressional district that Mr. Bede cannot get.

Isanti News: Congressman Jenkins, who represents the Eleventh congressional district in Wisconsin, was defeated for renomination at the primary election held there this week. After a bitter campaign for several weeks, during which both candidates spoke in all parts of the district, I. L. Lenroot is nominated over Jenkins by a majority of several thousand votes. Jenkins is an able man and occupies a high position under Speaker Cannon, but Cannonized congressmen are not wanted this year, and our own dear Adam Bede will "get wise" in a few days and go way back and sit down with his friend Jenkins.

Rootless Cactus.

Kansas City Journal: Curious among vegetable growths is the rootless cactus of the California desert. This plant, a round, compact growth, rolls about the level floor of the desert for some eight or nine months of the year, tossed hither and yon by the winds which blow with fierceness over all California's sand plat during those months. At the coming of the rains, or rather the cloudbursts, which sweep the desert in its springtime, this cactus takes root, wherever it happens to have been dropped by the last wind of which it was the plaything, and immediately begins to put out all around it small shoots, which in turn become cacti exactly like the parent plant.

The Cannon Issue.

Washington Herald: The Boston Transcript finds a novel feature in the campaign to be the prominence which reform of the house rules has gained in current discussion: It says:

"For the first time in our history, a speaker of the house (elected by that body itself) is virtually running for his office before the people, hardly less so than the president himself, who is to be chosen by an electoral college. No other plank in the Democratic platform is winning so much approval in independent quarters as that which criticises Mr. Cannon. Vice Presidential Candidate Kern shrewdly sensed public opinion in making it the main topic of his speech of acceptance. Even in New England candidates for the house are already talking of what they would do in case their constituents required a pledge, for or against, the speaker's reelection. The situation has thus become one of the highly serious aspects of the campaign."

The reason for this is plain enough. It is that the office of speaker is second in power and influence only to that of the president himself. He is virtually the autocrat of legislation, having authority of life and death over all projects of law, over the details of the national budget, and to a considerable extent over the careers of representatives themselves. Yet under our Constitution this powerful and influential public officer is elected by a majority of the house, and if sufficiently popular in his own district may stand outside the main currents of political thought, an obstruction, and, as many think, a necessary obstruction, to the consummation of legislative and governmental reforms. But there is a growing feeling that such an officer is an anomaly in our political system, and that the house should somewhat reduce his dimensions.

The political instinct of the American people has scented a way to get at the speaker. Constitutions may provide that the house shall choose its own presiding officer, but Constitutions cannot prevent the people from making the speakership an issue, and virtually compelling Mr. Cannon, as the Transcript says, to go before the electorate on the question of his re-election. It is contrary to every democratic principle that an officer of so much effective power in the government should be irresponsible to the people, and it is hardly to be expected that the speakership would be overlooked in the democratic movement of the time. We believe it has been proposed by some political innovators that the speaker should be elected by popular vote; it would seem that the innovation is about to be effected, as far as our constitutional forms permit. This is one of the unexpected developments of a campaign that appears to be proceeding along no fixed lines and conforming with no traditional rules.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

For many, the last of the season's gaities will be enjoyed today. A large per cent of Duluth's population is doing its united best to make this day the climax of the vacation's joys, and do what one can, the hours slip by with alarming rapidity, and they seem not very different from those first ones of the early summer that were so prodigally wasted. The weather is ideal for out-of-door enjoyment and picnic parties and sailing parties, and any number were entertained during the day.

At the Spirit Lake branch of the Boat club thirty-two members were entertained for the week end, and at dinner yesterday more than a hundred guests were present. The sports for today include a tennis tournament and launch races, and of course, canoeing, and word by special wire this morning told of one fair huntress who went out early to "tearfully o'erstep the dew," which was sufficient excitement for one September morning.

Several hundred guests are expected at the branch during the day.

Waste Basket Hat.

Cartoonists and humorists who have found so fertile a source of inspiration in the Merry Widow hat should turn to another Paris eccentricity in the millinery line. This resembles nothing so much as a waste basket inverted over the wearer's head. Specimens of the new shape have been seen already here, and it may reach as much favor with us here as it has with Frenchwomen. The hats are made of braided rush and are of such a size as to conceal completely the features of the wearer from a person at her left. At the right the lower edge is bent up to show the face and hair, and is caught with a large cluster of uncuried ostrich plumes—plumes that shoot up in the air in all directions, then turn abruptly downward as if broken. Other favorite materials used for hats of the kind in Paris are shirred cretonne, bound with black velvet ribbon, and dotted tulle, surrounded with rows of ruches or rose garlands.

THE HANDS.

Pretty Poses Suggested For Soft Pink Members.

"Pale hands, pink tipped like lotus flowers," are seldom realized.

As a rule, too, people do not know how to use the hand gracefully.

Keeping the hand closed when in repose is awkward, for it accentuates the breadth.

A pretty pose of the hand is obtained by bending it at the knuckle joints and curving in the little and fourth fingers. Crooking the little finger and letting it stick out is one of the most unbecoming poses of the hand.

In the posture a long hand looks as though it had a tall and the width of a short one is emphasized.

The best way is to bend down the little finger from the knuckle joint and let the fourth have a similar angle.

By this attitude the breadth of the hand is materially decreased and the whole hand made attractive.

Observation will show that actors and actresses use only the thumb and first two fingers.

By this method the hand is made to look more slender and the act of picking up a handkerchief becomes a rhythmic movement.

A supple wrist is desired for beauty and may be attained by letting the hands hang loosely and shaking from the wrist.

This movement after a time so limbers the cords and muscles that the hand is more gracefully used.

When the hand is to be lifted, the arm from the wrist to the elbow should come up first.

During this motion the hand should hang free and not until the wrist is on a line with the object should it be raised to a level with it.

FASHION OF FAINTING

Old-Time Fad to Be Revived —Maybe.

Women are reviving the once popular trick of fainting. That fashion, like all fashions of femininity, moves in cycles, and time has brought around this odd specialty once more.

Women are fainting now where a few years ago they would have proved their nerve by taking shock or accident as bravely as man. A couple of generations ago women fainted as a matter of course.

They fainted in season and out of season; fainting was not so much of a habit as a fad. In those days the bottle of smelling salts was ever at hand. Then women reformed. They threatened to wear sensible clothes and the mere threat gave them an incentive to expand their lungs.

They became athletic, took long walks, rode horses, paddled canoes, played tennis and golf, and as a natural result fainting went out of fashion. Now physicians tell us fainting is coming in again because the athletic girl is "going out." And why is the athletic girl doing that? What a question! Simply because fashion has decreed that the figure must be slight. Athletics is not conducive to that end, and, of course, there can be no choice between healthy sport and fashion.

the EVENING STORY

A BELATED REPENTANCE

By Nellie Cravey Gillmore.

Harcourt had always evinced an unusual fondness for the society of women—so long as the book of sentimentality lay closed between them and him. But when the image of sweet, brown-eyed Elsie Carroll crept subtly into his life, he told himself over and over again that he was in love at last, and very, very happy—as other men were upon similar discoveries.

He thought much of the woman who had first come singly into his heart. The pale, almost Madonna face, soft-shaded by waves of shining, molé-brown hair; the sensitive lips with their drooping corners, the soft brown eyes that looked their love and dependence into his own—all exerted a strange, appealing fascination that was new and delicious to his hitherto unstirred heart. There was a sense of unspeakable rest in listening to the quiet, musical tones of the girl who loved him; in feeling the warm, tender pressure of her young hands in his. Truly, he told himself, the flower called Romance had bloomed for him at last! Not the mad, delirious thing that takes men's reason, but a true, placid devotion that made life very sweet and happy indeed.

But that the spirit of any woman could ever supplant the one fierce passion of his heart was a thought which never occurred to Harcourt as anything but an impossibility. Art was the lode-star of his existence. He had long ago dedicated the better part of his nature to Ambition; an unquenchable love for his profession and an indomitable will to reach the acme of it.

At times he gave to Elsie all the sincere affection of a newly-awakened nature; he studied her wishes attentively, but in a mechanical sort of way, accepting the quiet, intense devotion she lavished upon him as man's natural heritage.

And she? For the first time the girl began to realize in some way the magnitude that one person's power over another may possess. Because of her own great love with its thousand hopes and fears, she hesitated to analyze what she did not always understand in her lover. To her, the coming of this mysterious, glorious thing into her maiden heart was the sun and substance of life. To Harcourt, it was but one of the many pleasurable consequences incident to the masculine's earthly sojourn.

Time drifted away, and the awakening came. Elsie had gone away with her parents for a last quiet month before the bustle of preparations for the marriage should begin.

It was the week following her departure, Harcourt came in late, restless and excited. For more than an hour he paced feverishly up and down the long length of his studio. His hands were locked convulsively behind him, and despite the tense mouth-lines and deep-circled eyes, his head throbbed with a fierce, reckless delight that was irrepressible. His nature seemed stirred by some strange, crazed joy whose very intensity robbed him of reason and rendered self-control out of the question. He saw again and again, through rosy mists, the beautiful, alluring face of Woman—the full, crimsoned lips, the softly rounded chin, and neck of creamy whiteness; the long, halfclosed blue-black eyes, whose subtle glance thrilled him as with physical pain. The man trembled in the grip of a first great passion.

At intervals, Harcourt tried weakly to remember the sweet soul-face of Elsie, his promised bride, but a new fire had passed into his veins that was like some weird elixir of madness, shrinking all else to nothingness.

Where was the cherished Art? Where the zealous dreams of youth and later manhood? The toil and struggle of years? The unquenchable Ambition? Between them and him had risen at last the insuperable Barrier.

With the coming of this new influence into his life, Harcourt was conscious of the fact that all the old days were melting into vacuum—and he did not care! The one emotion which dominated his being, was an insatiate craving to be near his new love.

Days slipped by; weeks. No blighting sun had yet risen to cast its sting upon the perfectness of his new-found joy. But after awhile, the underlying significance of it all began to creep stealthily into his brain. At times, the dragged senses would rouse to a part realization of his true position. The long periods of blissful dreaming began to lose some of their completeness; the delicious abandon with which he had revelled in every thought and dream to his love, had given place to a sense of heaviness and unrest.

In three days Elsie would be with him. Then, the end of his brief, intoxicating experience. The sweet hours of nonsense must pass out of his life forever, and the exquisite breath of passion had swept him must give place to the prosiac realities of everyday life.

One night Harcourt came home and walked unsteadily into the disordered studio, sinking dazedly, as though under some physical blow, into the nearest chair. After an hour's dull reverie he took out a big cigar and lighted it. In contrast to his recent wild happiness had come the crushing weight of an awful misery.

With the ever-recurring thought of the woman who had snapped the tension of his placid existence and drugged it with this slow, insidious poison, the sweet, untainted spirit of Elsie passed from his life. The burnt-out cigar presently dropped from his fingers, and for a long time he sat in motionless silence, lacking the nerve to execute the resolution that had fastened upon his surcharged brain.

But after awhile he lifted his head determinedly, his hands clenching themselves in a last vague struggle. For an instant light came to the befuddled mind; a flash of rationality lit up his pallid face; he drew in his breath, strengthened. But even while he battled that Other Voice called, and the best part of him died. He rose mechanically and walked over to his writing-desk and sat down. With unseeing eyes he drew pen and ink and paper before him and wrote rapidly, tremulously, for five minutes. At the end of that time the last tie which had bound him to Elsie was severed.

Two days later the postman left a small, square white envelope at Harcourt's studio. It was late when he came in that night. He sat down wearily in the dark and rested his throbbing head on a table. For some time he did not stir. Half-dreaming, the faint scent of violets came to him, as, all-unconscious, his face was pressed against the unopened letter.

He roused with a start and struck a match impatiently. With unsteady fingers he applied it to a candle. He glanced about him dully, half-feverishly for a moment; then his eyes fell upon the white envelope. Across his brain flashed the vision of a pale, Madonna face, beautiful beyond compare, with a woman's best beauty. His own face suddenly went gray as the dawn and life itself seemed withering within him.

Then all at once there came to him the vivid recollection of another face; his own ruin and subsequent despair. In thinking of her there was no regret for the woman herself—only for what he had lost through her.

After a brief interval, during which he regained in part his self-control, he took up the letter dully and opened it.

"I have loved you too well," it ran simply, "to wish for other than your own happiness, or to consent to stand in the light of it. I pray for you always. Farewell."

With a gesture of inexpressible despair he raised the sheet to his lips and held it there feverishly, then thrust it away from him with a groan. The touch of anything that had been hers stirred in him a feeling of reverence and a pang of fierce anguish.

At dawn thin blue streaks stole in through the shutters, mingling dismally with the garish light from the sputtering candle.

The first bar of sunlight that penetrated the lonely room fell mockingly upon the drawn, sunken face of a broken-hearted man. Once he stirred uneasily and his lips formed the one word, "Elsie."

He started up half-eagerly, half-fearfully, and looked about him in bewilderment. Then out of the blackness memory dawned and his head fell forward on his breast.

ON THE IRON RANGES

BLOOD HOUNDS ARE SENT BACK

Brutes Unable to Follow Track of Biwabik Bank Robbers

Biwabik, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—R. W. Jackson has returned to Superior with his bloodhounds, having been unable to accomplish anything in the way of tracking the men who attacked and tried to blow open the safe of the First National bank here early Saturday. The brutes lost the scent each time they attempted to follow the track of the highwayman, in a creek flowing through the Austrian location, about a mile from town, where the robbers are supposed to have secured a rig and made their escape.

Peter Hotland, who was wounded by the highwaymen, is still alive and unless complications result, will probably recover.

Several detectives have arrived on the scene and are trying to obtain a clue that will aid in running the highwaymen to cover, but so far as known are making little progress.

BANK THIEVES FORGOTTEN

Fire on Range Gives Biwabik Yeggmen a Chance to Escape.

In the hurry and excitement of the fires that have devasted the range, the gang of desparadoes, who so daringly entered the bank at Biwabic, shooting Peter Hotland, a citizen, who crossed their path, and making their escape into the forest, have been overlooked and forgotten.

The call of the sufferers and their need has absorbed the attention of the entire range, and the yeggmen have been forgotten.

The fire, coming as it did on the heels of their depredations, was most opportune for them, and if under cover of the smoke and excitement, they do not make a getaway, they will not be as clever as they are credited with being.

EVELETH IS HELPING.

Taking Steps to Relieve Suffering at Chisholm.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—As soon as the news of the burning of Chisholm was received Saturday night, a number of people started out in buggies to the scene, as they had property in the burned district, and they also went to see what could be done for the refugees. Sunday morning, Mayor Smith and others went over to investigate for relief measures. At the meeting of the Business Men's association tonight some steps will probably be taken toward collecting funds for the relief of the stricken village.

SPARTA DEAL ABOUT ENDED.

Negotiations for Disposing of Property Nearly Completed.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a very few days the town of Sparta will be no more. The negotiations that have been pending between the Steel corporation and the property owners are almost finished, and about $200,000 will be turned over to the property owners of Sparta by the Steel corporation, through their representative, Mr. Mouser, formerly agent at the Sparta depot. At present about four are holding out for a higher price from the corporation, among whom is McHale, the owner of the livery, and three other prominent men, but it is very evident that the Steel corporation will find a way to owning the whole town.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT HERE.

President's Son Visits Duluth on Return From Coleraine.

Kermit Roosevelt, son of the president of the United States was in Duluth yesterday and Saturday. He has been the guest of John C. Greenway at Coleraine.

Young Roosevelt was accompanied by Robert H. M. Ferguson, who was a member of Roosevelt's rough riders during the Spanish-American war. The president's son declines to be interviewed.

Today Messrs. Roosevelt and Ferguson will leave for Northern Itasca county, where they will take a canoe trip and hunt. After the outing there is concluded, they will go to South Dakota to hunt.

Odd Fellows' Picnic.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 7—(Special to The Herald.)—This afternoon at the Ely lake picnic grounds, the Range Odd Fellows are holding a large picnic. Congressman J. Adam Bede will deliver the address of the day. The local Odd Fellows formed in a parade here and marched out to the grounds.

Two Harbors Celebrating.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a general observance of Labor day here today. Among the events of the day that are attracting attention is the game of baseball to be played by the Two Harbors nine and the fast Wolvin nine of Duluth. There will be other sports suitable for the day. Tonight there will be a dance in the opera house. Business was generally suspended here during the day.

Notes From Ashawa.

Ashawa, Minn., Sept. 7.—Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. McCrackin and son Richard, who have been visiting with Thomas and James White for the past two weeks, have returned to their home in Michigan.

John Carter and Henry Franklin went to Duluth Tuesday morning as witnesses for the state in the William Schrieber murder case.

Thomas Stump has returned to Virginia to resume his duties as conductor on the Rainy Lake road.

Mrs. Agnes Bladow has returned to Ashawa after a month's visit with her parents in Wisconsin.

Miss Grace O'Hail has left for St. Paul, where she will teach during the coming year.

Bovey Store Changes.

Bovey, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The management of the Barron department store has changed, J. P. Raatama of the firm retiring, and his place having been taken by Miss Lena Barron, daughter of Mr. Barron. Miss Barron came from Menahga a few weeks ago and will take an active part in assisting in the management of the store. The firm now consists of A. Barron, Lena Barron and V. S. Komulainen.

NEW PLACE FOR LABOR

Bryan Demands Separate Department for Workmen in the Cabinet

Says Toilers' Organization is Yoked Up With Trusts

SOME OF THE BEST THINGS BRYAN SAID:

"The labor organization helps those outside of it as well as its members, because the increased wages and improved conditions are shared by non-union men as well as by union men."

"The first thing that is needed for a better understanding of labor questions is the recognition of the equal rights of all and, second, more intimate acquaintance."

"The labor organization has been seriously handicapped by the fact that it has been—and I am not sure that it has not been done unwittingly—yoked up with the industrial combinations known as trusts."

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Advocating the creation of a department of labor with a cabinet officer at its head and decrying the fact that the labor organization has been yoked up with trusts, William Jennings Bryan, Labor day orator at Chicago's industrial celebration, today evoked cheer after cheer from a host of union workmen.

Along with other opposing forces, the Democratic presidential nominee has been called on to combat a new foe—bolls. They attacked him en route from Fairview and when he stepped from the train this morning, though he smiled bravely, his neck was swathed in a bage silk handkerchief.

In part, Mr. Bryan said:

Quotes from the Proverbs.

"If it were proper to speak from a text, I would select a passage from Proverbs, for I know of no better one than that furnished by the words of Solomon when he declared that as a man 'thinketh in his heart, so is he.' This is Bible doctrine; it is common sense, and it is human experience. We think in our hearts as well as in our heads—out of the heart 'are the issues of life.' It is a poor head that cannot find plausible reason for doing what the heart wants to do. I begin my speech with this proposition because I want to impress it upon the minds of those who listen to me, and upon those who read what I say to you. The labor question is more a moral than an intellectual one.

"Tolstoi, the great Russian philosopher, in defining the doctrine of 'dread labor,' gives as one of the reasons in support of it, that personal contact with manual labor—not a recollection of former toil, but continued acquaintance with it—is necessary to keep one in sympathy with those who work with their hands. He contends—and is it not true?—that lack of sympathy, one with another, is at the root of most of the problems of society and government.

"The world is growing toward brotherhood, and our nation is leading the way. There is more altruism in this country than anywhere else in the world, and more today than there ever has been before. There is more recognition of the kinship that exists between us, more thought about the questions which concern a common humanity than at any preceding time. The labor organization is a part of this great movement of the masses toward closer fellowship. It has worked wonders in the past and its work is only commenced.

"The labor organization helps those outside of it as its members because the increased wages and improved conditions are shared by non-union men as well as by union men.

"Do not understand me to say that a labor organization is perfect; 'the king can do no wrong,' can no more be spoken of a group than of individuals. The labor organization is composed of men; its affairs are controlled by human beings, and human beings are not perfect. All that man touches is stained with man's imperfections, and his frailty can be traced through all his works. But, fortunately for the laboring man, the judgment pronounced against his mistakes must be tempered by the fact that those with whom the laboring man comes into contact are also likely to err. When the employe deals with the employer, he is dealing with one of like passions with himself. Each is likely to be insistent upon what he believes to be right, and the opinion of each, as to what is right, is likely to be colored by selfish interests and affected by incomplete information as to the facts. If the employe has sometimes resorted to violence to enforce his wishes, the employer has sometimes employed his position to secure an unfair share of the joint product. It is the province of the law to place limitations upon both, and the security of our government is found in the fact that both employer and employe in their calmer moments, will join in the enactment of laws which will restrain them in moments of temptation.

Shield and Sword.

"The important lesson to be learned by the citizen in a government like ours is that the ballot is both shield and sword—it protects him from injury and enforces his rights.

"The first thing that is needed for a better understanding of labor questions is the recognition of the equal rights of all, and, second, more intimate acquaintance.

"A long step toward the elevation of labor to its proper position in the nation's deliberations is to be found in the establishment of a department of labor, with a cabinet officer at its head. The wage-earners deserve this recognition, and the executive is entitled to the assistance which such an official could render him. I regard the inauguration of this reform as the opening of a new era in which those who toil will have a voice in the deliberations of the president's council chamber.

"The labor organization has been seriously handicapped by the fact that it has been—and I am not sure that it has not been done unwittingly—yoked up with the industrial combinations known as trusts. The proneness of trust defenders to use the labor organizations as an excuse for combinations in restraint of trade has aroused the suspicion that they have been classed together for the purpose of shielding the combinations of capital. As the result of eighteen years of anti-trust legislation, only one man has been given a penal sentence for violating the federal law on this subject, and that man was a member of a labor organization rather than a trust magnate. The laboring man is justified in his demand that a distinction shall be drawn between the labor organization and the industrial monopoly.

Criticises Taft's Attitude.

Mr. Bryan discussed the platforms of the Democratic and Republican parties on the issue of injunctions and contempt cases, arising under injunctions, and criticised Mr. Taft's attitude on these questions. In closing, he said:

"The labor question, as it presents itself at this time, is chiefly a question of distribution, and the legislation asked for is legislation which will secure to each that to which his services entitle him. As legislation is secured through the ballot every one should use the ballot to obtain the legislation necessary. The Democratic platform presents the ideal toward which the Democratic party is striving, namely, justice in the distribution of rewards. The Democratic party proclaims that each individual should receive from society a reward for his toil commensurate with his contribution to the welfare of society, and unless some other party can do the work better, the Democratic party ought to have the support of all, whether they belong to the wage-earning class or occupy positions in which they direct the efforts of others."

Paving of Steel.

There is a section of the streets of Paris where steel paving blocks are being laid as an experiment. It is claimed that an advantage will be a uniform surface of greater wearing resistence. New inventions are being perfected every day, but it is a question if anything will ever be manufactured that will equal golden grain belt beer in food value and tonic properties, or supplant it in favor as a home beverage. CHEERY OLD COUPLE

Find Grape-Nuts a Blessing.

After one is seventy, the question of nourishment is a very delicate one.

When old age comes on we do not need so much food as during the more active years, but the digestive organs are very sensitive and care must be exercised in its selection.

No food has the strength giving properties and is so easy to digest by old and young as Grape-Nuts.

"For years I have been troubled with dyspepsia—for one period, 8 years"—writes our aged minister.

"I finally began using Grape-Nuts and have had no trouble with my stomach since, feel perfectly well and strong, and though I am 71 years old I feel like a boy.

"Then, too, my wife has been troubled for years with biliousness and sick headaches. Since she began to use Grape-Nuts, about 8 weeks ago, she has no further trouble.

"She is quite well and strong, much more cheery and happy than in other years. Grape-Nuts and Postum occupy an important place on our breakfast table, and in our daily food. It would be hard for me to tell what we owe to Grape-Nuts."

"There's a Reason."

Journalism in Duluth.

Under the heading of "Duluth and the Pork Barrel," and signed "By W. H. Patton," there appeared in the Duluth News Tribune, among its lay editorials, on Sunday morning, May 31st, 1908, the following article:

"Senator Nelson came to the aid of Duluth in the nick of time, and this city will get the $95,000 for the federal building site. Mr. Bede should be congratulated by the citizens of the Eighth congressional district for having such a valuable ally as the senator, who has performed a meritorious service which Duluth will not soon forget.

"Mr. Bede has been fortunate in obtaining skilled help in times of need. When J. B. Cotton, T. F. Cole and others went to Washington to see about that bridge over the St. Louis river, which will be a benefit not only to the Minnesota Steel company, but to every citizen in Duluth and on the Mesaba range, Mr. Bede was absent, but in the emergency his friend Congressman Jenkins of Wisconsin, came to the rescue and the bridge will be built.

"Two years ago the appropriation of $125,000 for Duluth was obtained by the active labor of Congressman Stevens, Mr. Bede being unable to give his time to the matter.

"It is necessary for big cities and their contiguous territory to be 'next' to the national pork barrel. It is fortunate that Duluth has a congressman who is so efficient as to have influential friends who can attend to his duties when he is unable to give them proper consideration."

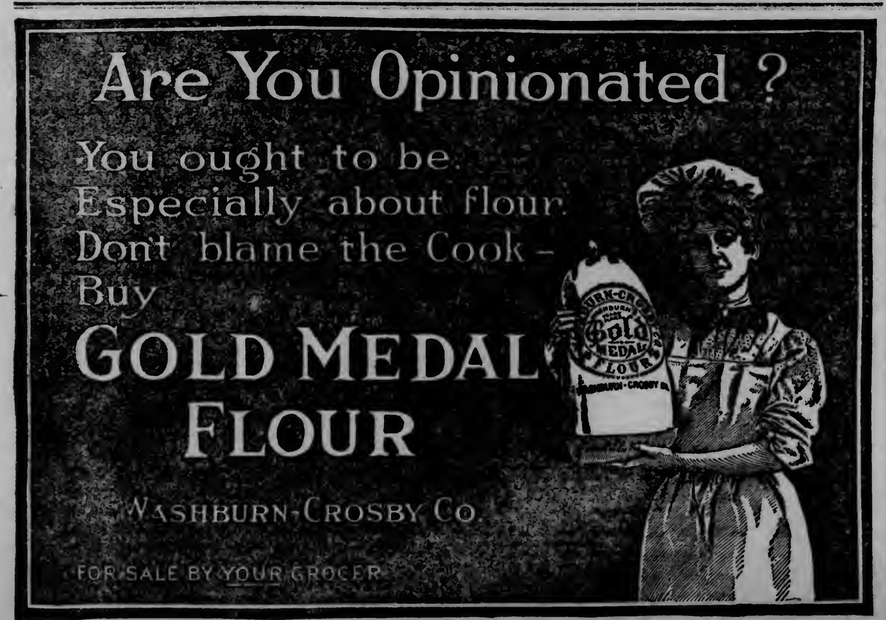

First of all in reply to the above, it would seem sufficient to say that there is not in Duluth any such person as W. H. Patton. Such name does not appear in the city or telephone directories, and I have made diligent inquiry to discover the alleged author of this article. In my search I have inquired of the editor of the Duluth News Tribune, but he is unable to give me any information on the subject. The only rational conclusion to draw is that the article was written in the News Tribune office and a fictitious name signed to it. So far as it refers to me, every statement is false, except the satire that I have friends in congress. I have been in the newspaper business myself, and can assure the public that no paper would print such an article without proof of the authorship, and it is up to the News Tribune to produce the author in this case, or stand condemned as a malicious liar and libeler.

So far as the item of $125,000 carried in the public buildings bill two years ago is concerned, I secured such item in the house bill unaided by any one. When the bill got to the senate the item was cut down to $100,000. The bill then came back to the house and went to conference. Mr. Stevens rendered good and valiant services in getting the senate amendment stricken out, and the item put back to the original $125,000.

The statement regarding the bill for a bridge over the St. Louis river for the new steel plant, is untrue in every particular. When the gentlemen representing the steel company reached Washington, I met them at their hotel, introduced them to Secretary Taft, Chief Engineer McKenzie of the war department, presented them to the several members of the Interstate Commerce committee who had to pass on their bill, was present at the hearing of the full committee and personally made a statement of fact regarding the measure. The bill was favorably reported from the committee, and I personally called it up in the house, moved a suspension of the rules, and secured its passage—all liars to the contrary notwithstanding. Mr Cole was not in Washington, but the gentlemen interested, and who were present, stand ready to deny the News Tribune statement. As there was some opposition to the measure in Wisconsin it was thought wise to have a Wisconsin member introduce the bill. What we wanted was results, and we got them.

The $95,000 item for additional grounds for a proposed federal building in Duluth is already pretty well understood. The Duluth people desired to adopt the grouping plan for the courthouse, city hall and postoffice. I assured them that I would do everything I could at Washington and urged those in charge of the matter to make their estimate of the cost of the additional grounds needed, and get their item to me at Washington as early as possible. Congress met the first Monday in December and the item reached me the first of April, when we were already talking of adjournment. I immediately secured a meeting of the full committee on buildings and grounds, and had a hearing on this item. I had already put in a bill for $60,000 for a building at Virginia, and the committee informed me that no congressional district could have more than one such item. Further, if the Duluth item were put in the bill it must contain a condition that the city would buy the old postoffice when abandoned. It was too late to take the matter up with Duluth lest the bill should be brought in and passed during the correspondence and Duluth be left out in the cold. So I decided to take the Virginia item and have the Duluth item put in as a senate amendment without conditions. We did it. We got it. Therefore, some folks are sad.

In conclusion, let me suggest that the above quoted falsehoods are all from that great exponent of civic Christianity, and regulator of our domestic affairs—the Duluth News Tribune. J. ADAM BEDE.

DULUTH UNIONS' MEMBERS, 2,000 STRONG, MARCH THROUGH STREETS OF CITY ON LABOR'S HOLIDAY

Weatherman Smiles on the Working Men of City.

Thousands Gather for Big Picnic at Fairmount Park.

A. R. McDonald Makes the Annual Labor Day Address.

No more auspicious day could have been chosen for Duluth's celebration of labor's national holiday. It was clear, warm and bright, except for the cloud of smoke from the forest fires, which hung over the city.

At 8 o'clock crowds began to gather on First and Superior streets to witness the passing of the parade, and by 9 o'clock the sidewalks were crowded to their full capacity with gay holiday pleasure seekers, and the parade in no way disappointed them.

The parade, which was nearly 2,000 strong, representing practically every local in the city, formed its line of march in front of The Herald building, and at 9:30 o'clock, with banners flying and bands playing, set out on its course along First street, east to Second avenue, down to Superior street, and west to Eighth avenue, where it countermarched east again to Kalamazoo hall, disbanding there.

Unions Represented.

Nearly every union was well represented in the procession, which extended for nearly a mile along First and Superior streets. While the rear of the column was at Second avenue east the head was passing it on its return to the hall. A platoon of thirty policemen marched at the head, followed closely by LaBrosse's band, then a carriage bearing A. R. MacDonald, speaker of the day, Mayor Haven, and members of the city council. There were four carriages containing the members of the Duluth council. On their heels was a carriage bearing four of the Women's Union Label league's delegates to the Federated Trades assembly. Besides La Brosse's band, the Third Regiment and Marine bands furnished the music for marching, each at the head of a division of the marching order.

Only Two Floats.

The Women's Union Label league and the Blacksmith's union were the only ones to be represented by floats in the procession. The boosters for the union label, rode in a very attractively decorated wagon, covered with bunting of the national colors, red, white and blue, and encircled with a purple band. The women carried bouquets of flowers and were dressed in white. The Blacksmith's display did them much credit. At a number of anvils, members of the union pursued their trade, girted in their aprons of leather, sending sparks flying beneath the constant strokes of their hammers. It was a very vivid representation. The steel and metal workers wore hats of tin and carried canes of the same material. The barbers shouldered stripped poles; the Building laborers marched in their shirt sleeves; butchers wore a costume symbolic of their profession; bricklayers marched without coats, and in a brake sat a number of the cooks and waiters of the city.

All up and down Superior street and in every portion of the city labor of all kind ceased for the day. All the big stores and wholesale houses were closed, and the postoffice remained open, only between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock. All Duluth entered into the spirit of the holiday, donned its best clothes and set out in search of pleasure.

Fairmount park was a scene of animation all the afternoon. Races, games, sports of all sorts and descriptions took place, and the winners were awarded prizes in money. On every hand under the trees crowds gathered about picnic baskets and enjoyed to the full the day of outing.

The Labor Day Speech.

The feature of the afternoon was the speech delivered at Fairmount park, by Mr. MacDonald, editor of the Labor World, Duluth's weekly labor paper.

Mr. McDonald spoke in part as follows:

"The pleasure which I should feel in having been honored by the confidence of your Labor day committee, in inviting me to address you on this occasion, is very much impaired by the humiliating conviction that I shall not do justice to your humblest expectations.

"You have assembled on this occasion to publicly attest your devotion to the principles of organized labor, and by methods consonant with good citizenship evoke greater enthusiasm for a movement whose air and purpose is the betterment and enhancement of the earthly lot of the toiling millions of our nation.

"While demonstrating your fealty by public parades and other ceremonies, you are also urged by those in positions of authority in the movement, to exemplify in a most emphatic manner by educative exercises appropriate to labor's great holiday, your unanimity of sentiment against certain un-American and liberty destroying court decisions, and against the cringing of national legislators to the representatives of interests at war with every principle that brought our nation into being. A discussion even in a meager way of any considerable number of the issues involved in the subjects indicated would be manifestly impossible in a few minutes' address.

"There is one subject, however, to which I wish to refer at the outset because I believe it to be primarily responsible for the larger share of the cruelties, tyrannies, hardships and oppressions to which unoffending labor has been subjected in all ages, and from which it is today suffering in a more or less degree in our own country.

"I have reference to a sentiment deducted from certain labor statements contained in the book of Genesis in connection with the fall of man.

"For the purpose of my argument it is immaterial to me whether one believes in the story of Genesis or not, or whether one accepts the account of the fall of man as allegorical or literal, the stubborn fact remains that the truth of the principle involved in the story of the fall is in absolute accord with human experience from the days of Adam down to and including the days of Harry Orchard, and the human race in all ages has exhibited all the attributes predicated by orthodox Jew and by orthodox Christian of man in a fallen state.

"But my thought now has only to do with the interpretation placed upon certain expressions used by the author of Holy Writ in giving account of Adam and Eve's transgression, and which interpretation has had to do with moulding the opinions of men and creating that wicked sentiment which makes work a degradation, and a punishment.

Work Not a Degradation.

"Did it ever occur to you that the undisputed and unanswerable facts of life give the lie direct to the interpretation of any passage in the book of Genesis, which would represent work as a curse consequent upon violated law? That the human family should have so long acquiesced in a pernicious sentiment based upon a spurious interpretation is itself as evidence that we have fallen and there is great need of our arising.

"In the absence of the blessing of work, life itself would become a burden and a curse. Health and strength of body and mind are conditioned upon the performance of honest work.

"Mental degeneracy and bodily decay are the fruits of a lack of work along lines to engage these powers and keep them in exercise. It is work that has changed the desert and the forest into cultivated fields; that has covered the earth with cities and the ocean with ships, and that would today give plenty, comfort and elegance, instead of want, misery and squalor, to every member of the human family, young and old, were it not for bad economic conditions upheld by unrighteous laws.

"Speaking with great reverence, God himself is a worker. We know it upon the testimony of His only Begotten Son. My father worketh hitherto and I work. The heavens declare His glory and the firmament showeth His handiwork.

"One more reference to the false sentiment already alluded to, and I shall have done with it. When God created man in His own image He glorified forever the nobility of work, when He placed Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden. For what purpose? To work; nothing more, nothing less. They were instructed to dress it, and till it, and partake of the abundance of its fruits, all but one; so you see the blessing of work antedates in time, the curse of the fall.

"The curse of the fall consisted in the change, which it made in man's mental attitude toward the blessing of work, and that perverse attitude has prevailed from that day to this.

"Adam and Eve in a luckless moment suffered themselves to be approached by that Animalism, which is the progenitor of greed, and by subtle reasoning he persuaded them that notwithstanding they already had an abundance and to spare, they should extend their activities, appropriate all the apples in sight, and thus have a monopoly of the fruits of the garden.

"He also assured them of certain other advantages, which would accrue to them from giving heed to his persuasions. They lived to regret their folly.

The Same Serpent.

"Today the most enlightened country in the world, and under the best form of government ever yet conceived by the mind of man, and also the richest country in the world, the same arch conspirator with his hydraheaded offsprings of trusts and vested interests, is at work, and succeeding to such an extent, as to necessitate that the men, who by the sweat of their brow produce the nations wealth in time of peace, and protect with their lives the nations' flag in time of war, must form organizations of trades unions to protect themselves and those dependent upon them from want and destitution. This is a sad commentary upon our civilization, and is a positive proof that there is something "rotten in Denmark" with those who are entrusted with the administration of the people's government.

"Roosevelt says there is, and he is in a position to know. What is government for, unless it is to protect the weak against the strong; the virtuous citizen against the vicious; honest industry and honest capital against the monopolistic greed of unscrupulous exploiters of the body politic?

Must Enter Politics.

"No man can deny that hostile courts, time-serving legislators, business perfidy, paupdom and want are rapidly dividing God's paradise into two hostile camps, and if labor is to have its own rights and those of the people any longer regarded, it must enter politics in earnest, as recommended by President Gompers, and see to it that men who regard the sacredness of human rights as paramount to property rights are representing the people in the halls of legislation.

"Not that property rights are to be disregarded, but that man is of more consequence than the almight dollar, and that property rights should be made subservient to human rights.

"The growing tendency of our materialistic age is to regard property as everything and man as nothing. If the lesson of history teaches anything, it is that the nation must change such policy or its doom is sealed. It is not pleasant to call attention to these things, but the prophetic eye of the immortal Lincoln saw them in advance and warned us of them. Listen to his words:

"'I see in the near future a crisis that unnerves me, and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. As a result of war, corporations have been enthroned, and an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working on the prejudices of the people, until all the wealth is aggregated in a few hands and the republic is destroyed.'

"I bid the laboring people beware of surrendering the power which they possess, and which, if surrendered, will surely be used to shut the door of advancement for such as they, and fix new disabilities and burdens upon them, until all of our liberty shall be lost.

"But the laboring people, the common people of our nation, are not going to surrender. They uphold the integrity of the nation in Lincoln's day by means of bullets; they will uphold it in our day by means of ballots. Avarice and greed were at the bottom of the nations trouble then, and they are at the bottom of it now; but the little red schoolhouse has been abroad in the land, and the common people have entered upon a new and better era in the evolution of progress.

"History has not been very considerate of the common people. It has very little to say about them. A perusal of its pages would give one the idea that the world in the earlier days was made up of kings and princes and dissolute aristocrats of men and women and the like, and that the common people had not yet come into existence.

"It tells us of the toiling millions, and less of the throbbing impulses and heroic efforts by which they sought to climb toward the rightful place in life's great drama.

"We read of Julius Caesar, and from the record of history, Shakespeare has immortalized the tragedy of his death at the foot of Pompeii's statue.

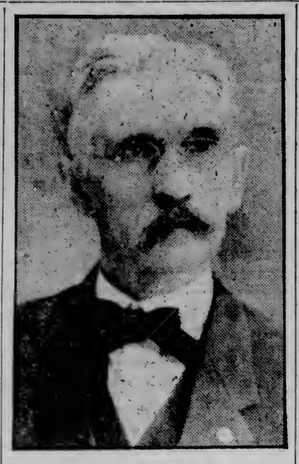

"But what of the thousands of slaves, many of them scholars and skilled artisans, whose crushed hopes and crying aspirations were more true and pure than the anguish of Caesar at the treachery of his friends?

"The loneliness of Napoleon on the isle of St. Helena is graphically told by the historian, and as we see the great little Corsican fretting his life away in the humiliation of his bondage, we are moved to feelings of compassion.

"But no historian has attempted to portray the loneliness and sufferings of the thousands of innocent children and broken hearted women, whose homes were made desolate by his campaigns of conquest, or the sufferings of the millions who helped mark his bloody trail over the face of Europe.

"Says one: 'When Marie Antoinette was led to the guillotine, all the world stood aghast. When the knife fell and the blood spurted and the headless trunk of the queen was carted off, A thrill of horror encircled the globe. It was royal blood that the Revolution shed. One royal execution attracted more attention and commanded more sympathy than ten thousand human wretches, whose lives were harrowed out of them by crimes committed in the name of the law.'

"When the cravat of Louis the Sixteenth was severed and his royal neck laid on the block of the Revolution, the crowned heads of Europe fell into a rage. They were shocked that a fat and stupid king should be done to death. Shocked indeed, though they had borne complacently enough the sufferings of their own unnumbered victims.

"It was nothing to them that the trenches of senseless battle-fields should be filled with the mangled bodies of fathers and husbands; it was nothing to them that their mute dungeons should confound the innocent with the guilty and stop forever the piteous cry for justice and liberty; it was nothing to them that harpies held high revel in king's places while the weight of taxes, and men, women and children were driven to starvation.

"When some months ago a royal libertine was assasinated, the president of the United States sent messages of condolence to the place of mourning. But who will send messages of comfort to the many homes burdened by the extravagances of the dead king and the princely parasites who surrounded his throne?

"Our modern American newspapers furnish daily chronicles of the kings of today, narrating minutely the whims and follies and doings of royalty, and the European perigrinations of millionaire American girls in their quest for husbands among the degenerate counts of decaying dynasties, while the arts and movements of the common people are rejected or boiled down to condensed paragraphs.

"Mr. Gladstone said that all the great movements for the development of the race have sprung from the common people. History may ignore the common people, but it was they, who made history worth reading. It is in their footprints progress has stepped along through the ages.

Common Things Ignored.

"By a strange fatuity in human nature, we never appreciate the common things. The wild tornado that levels whole cities to the ground and overwhelms our ships in the devouring seas, impresses the mind with horror that time can seldom efface; while the common air that keeps the mysterious machine of life in motion scarcely excites a passing thought. A few years ago, I made a trip to the Pacific coast. The wonderful Rainier mountains, whose lone summit is robed in perpetual snow, arrested my imagination with an intensity that for the time being, no object, however pleasing, could divert, while the extended plains and valleys whose humble shrubs and flowers and fruits brought abundance and happiness all around, I found myself seeing without emotion and passing by without a second notice.

"Going through the Rocky mountains, all of our passengers were rushing to the windows to catch a glimpse of each dreary and barren mountain peak we passed, but the bountiful wheat producing prairies of Minnesota and Dakota, did not excite enough interest to divert the minds of the same passengers from their newspapers and their novels.

"Time has justified the theory of Jefferson, that monopoly and Democracy are incompatible and cannot be assimilated. They cannot coexist. One or the other is certain to be extirpated, and wise men believe we have already entered the critical period during which the question of survival of Democratic America is to be determined.

"All former democracies were destroyed by monopoly, when the prosperity of the few had reached its zenith, the poverty of the many had reached its nadir, and the government and the people perished. Shall ours share the same fate? The sentiment of patriotism prompts us to immediately answer a thousand times, 'No!' and reason confirms the sentiment.

"Democracy will survive, and monopoly will perish, because the schoolmaster has been abroad in our land and, as a consequence, labor is endowed with an intelligence and political power which it did not enjoy in any of the former democracies.

"Labor is studying the philosophy of Jefferson, and it is learning that its safety and its happiness alike require equality of opportunity, as well as equality before the law, without equality of opportunity, is merely a delusion, an irridescent dream, incapable of practical realization.

The Trusts.

"The Sherman anti trust law became effective on July 2, 1890, eighteen years ago. Since that time the trusts have multiplied from year to year, have driven competition from business, plundered the people, forced individual proprietors into bankruptcy, oppressed labor, debauched and corrupted our political life, and defied congress and the courts.

"All this in violation of the law, for which in the eighteen years there have been instituted in the courts of our government only fifty-three cases in all, including both civil and criminal. And the result from these cases, as shown by the attorney-general's report, has been extremely meager and unsatisfactory.

"What are trusts? I answer candidly that they are the outgrowth of a vicious system of government for which somebody is responsible.

"We, the people of the United States, by our so-called protective tariffs have nursed the infant corporations too long, so long that in the present political campaign there is not running for office a stand-pat tariff politician so far as I know, but has against him in his own party a man who stands, not for the stand-patism of Speaker Cannon, but for tariff reform and a change o fspeakership.

"The people of this country can not be further misled into the belief that the tariff policy has been for the just and reasonable protection of American industry and labor, for they are convinced that that policy has gone far beyond the point of such protection.

"They are convinced that it is what the dominant forces intended it should be—a veritable Chinese wall around our borders to prevent competition from abroad.

"They are convinced that its object and purpose was and is to aid an unscrupulous and greedy band of commercial and industrial pirates in holding up the people of this country for the purpose of extortion and plunder.

"More trusts have been formed in our country in the last ten years than in all the previous history of our government.

"They have multiplied in number and grown in power until their imperious sway has been extended over almost every field of human industry, and they hold in their heartless and monopolistic grasp almost every article of necessity and daily use among the people.

"They dictate prices to the producer and extort tribute from the consumer, while they dictate to labor the terms and conditions of employment.

"The citizen cannot escape their power. As tax gatherers they stalk in multitudes by his side by day and by night, and without sympathy or compassion demand and collect a tax upon almost every purchase or sale his necessities require him to make.

"This is no fairy tale but a hard and cruel fact, which casts its hideous and sickining shadow over millions of helpless homes in our nation.

"And this is not all. These monopolies which you and I have fostered have flooded this country with their securities, which have for their basis no real property value, but have for their support only their monopolistic power to extort from the people.

"The returns from these securities usually being so attractive by reason of being so remunerative, many of the bankers of the country invest heavily in them the money of their depositors, and what is the result?

"Even a threat of prosecution against the monopolies for violation of the anti-trust laws creates fear and distrust and precipitates a panic, and every working man in Duluth is today suffering from the effects of the last one, and right in the face of all this unoffending organized labor is almost prostrate, bound hand and foot by the Sherman anti-trust law as recently construed by the supreme court.

Darkest Before Dawn.

"But while this is so, we are ever to remember that darkness is the herald and messenger of dawn and new illumination and inspiration that must come. Let me say here and now that I have no faith whatever in the optimism which says that whatever is is right. Such philosophy is only a fatalistic resignation that leads to merely drifting, not bravely rowing. The true optimism is that which brings all its best and highest to meet conditions as they exist.

"Reduce depressing effects to a minimum and raise uplifting efforts to a maximum is the principle by which our organized labor must be governed in the present crisis.

"Let organized labor stand for its rights upon its own merits, and let all the members lock shileds with those who demand for justice against special privilege, and the ultimate outcome will be a glorious victory. These times call for men who are not afraid to assert their manhood.

Injunctions.

"Understand, if you please, that in my observations today, whether in reference to governmental matters or court adjudications, I am addressing myself not to any form of government or the genius of our courts, but to evils which have arisen, and are liable to arise, under the best government ever yet conceived by the mind of man.

"Ours is that government, and I think the old saying, 'that the best cure for all evils arising from democracy is more democracy,' is peculiarly applicable to the abuse of the equitable writ of injunction so plevalent in our day that it is abused, goes without saying, for every unbiased man who has given the subject any attention, from from the humblest citizen to President Roosevelt, declares that the abuse exists, and that legislation to inhibit its further continuance is imperatively demanded by the best interests of all our people.

"From the foundation of our government, injunctions have been recognized for the protection of property, and organized labor upholds that doctrine. Section 917 of the United States revised statutes empowers the supreme court to prescribe rules for its own regulation. Rule 65, promulgated in 1866, provides that special injunctions shall be grantable only upon due notice to the other party.

"The labor injunction is an innovation which was invented by Alex Smith, attorney for the Ann Arbor railway in the strike of 1894. It was applied by Federal Judge Taft, who committed Frank Phelan to jail for six months for some technical violation of the writ, and since then nearly every court has granted these writs on demand, and upon an ex parte showing.

"Now, organized labor, as I understand the position of its duly accredited representative men, asks no rights or privileges for its membership that it is not perfectly willing to accord to all others.

"In improving the condition of the workers, in securing for them their rights, liberty and sovereignty, there is not involved the tearing down or the destruction of any one or of anything. The labor movement and its results encompass the well-being of every man, woman and child in the country over. Organized labor is not destructive, but constructive.

"But it realizes that in the contest known as the struggle for existence, some men develop strength, courage, perseverance and all the best and most ennobling traits of the human heart and mind; whilst others develop naught but selfishness and those ignoble traits that debase and degrade, and which not only make their possessor an intolerable and unrelenting oppressor, but also tend to increase the misery of all mankind, because the heartless selfishness of such individuals is ever urging them to ride on to the acquiring of more millions, over the ruins of their fellowmen, and organized labor insists as an American right under our country's Constitution, that the characters last mentioned be not given unfair advantages, either by congress or by courts, over the toiling millions of our land.

"Among the objections to the labor injunction may be enumerated:

"First—It is contrary to the spirit of our institutions to have any one man arrogate to himself the powers of law maker, judge and executioner.

"Second—The labor injunction makes the rights of man subservient to the rights of gold, and punishes as a criminal the man who protests against the grinding and inhuman policy of unfair employers.

"Third—The labor injunction is a judge made law, which was never authorized or recognized by any legislature, and denies the American workingman a right accorded to the meanest criminal—viz, a trial by jury.

A Plutocracy Governs.

"It must be apparent to the intelligence of the most optimistically inclined defender of the present political situation that the policy which brought the labor injunction into being is very far removed from the people's government ideal, and that corporate wealth is fast gaining the upper hand of the people, and slowly but surely converting this country from democracy to plutocracy, from a nation governed by the whole people to a nation governed by a few mercenary individuals, and that to accomplish the purposes certain employers have brought to their assistance the powers of the government, have hoodwinked judges, and have supported powerful lobbies in our national seat of government.

"It is, therefore, the duty of every trade unionist to interest himself in the politics of his locality, to ascertain the character of the men who are destined to make the laws that will guide the destinies of our people and to cast his vote only for those reforms which are necessary to further permit the free employment of organized labor along the lines of justice and fair dealing.

"To that end organized labor must use its ballot to put an eternal veto upon the power of the courts to make or unmake laws, and as the best possible check upon whimsical or hasty legislation, or even crookedness of the legislators' work, and vote for the referendum and the right of recall.

"The referendum—that means the vote of all the people, in any country—is stronger than all the senates and presidents and courts in the world. Therefore the best cure for any evils arising from democracy is more democracy.

Socialism.

"I am not a Socialist, but I realize that many of the ideas advanced by the Socialists must sooner or later be embodied in our governmental policies, before the spirit of equality and equal opportunity contemplated by our Declaration of Independence shall have full expression in the economic and industrial affairs of our country.

"Excessive wealth is neither glory nor happiness, and, wherever there is excessive wealth, it is always in its train an excessive poverty, and the Socialists say that the conditions which multiply millionaires at one end of the pole and paupers at the other, are inhuman, unchristianlike and un-American, and that much the better way would be to take the unearned increment and exploit it for the general good of the people, rather than bestowing it upon a few individuals here and there, that they may expend it in luxurious indulgencies, enervating if not demoralizing pleasures, and in corrupting the machinery of government.

"I confess my inability to see how anything but good could result from having our Republican statesmen and our Democratic statesmen, too, imbued in full measure with this doctrine. They might not find it possible to put the doctrine into practice in all its rigidity, but it would restrain them from passing laws subversive of humanitarian principles, and it would constrain them to repeal all laws now existing that give the rich an unfair advantage over the poor. Equal rights to all and special privileges to none, would be the guiding star of their legislative action.

"If we approved the first thing they would do would be to smash into smithereens our present tariff laws and our judge-made injunction laws.

"Legislation in Great Britain, Germany, Australia, New Zealand, and other countries, has not suffered a particle, on the contrary has gained from having a sprinkling of wise and conservative Socialists in the parliaments of those countries.

"Whatever else may be said of the Socialists, they are certainly self denying and persevering in their devotion to their principles, and although I do not believe their philosophy shall ever gain full ascendancy in our country, it will always exert a healthful influence in restraining that foolish tendency toward aristocracy altogether too common in the ranks of our privileged classes.

The Sweatshops.

"You are aware there are thousands of men, women and children in this grand and glorious country today who are toiling out a miserable existence on sweatshop wages, who are living in dens where morals are polluted and where filth and disease stalk hand in hand; that women, children who are being ground down under the tyrannical heel of oppression of the sweatshop employer.

"You are also aware that there are a large number of earnest, loyal manufacturers of union made goods in this country who are working to give you your money's worth, and you don't persevere and all the best and most ennobling traits of the human heart and mind; whilst others develop naught but selfishness and those ignoble traits that debase and degrade, and which not only make their possessor an intolerable and unrelenting oppressor, but also tend to increase the misery of all mankind, because the heartless selfishness of such individuals is ever urging them to ride on to the acquiring of more millions, over the ruins of their fellowmen, and organized labor insists as an American right under our country's Constitution, that the characters last mentioned be not given unfair advantages, either by congress or by courts, over the toiling millions of our land.

The Sweatshops.

"You are aware there are thousands of men, women and children in this grand and glorious country today who are toiling out a miserable existence on sweatshop wages, who are living in dens where morals are polluted and where filth and disease stalk hand in hand; that women, children who are being ground down under the tyrannical heel of oppression of the sweatshop employer.

"You are also aware that there are a large number of earnest, loyal manufacturers of union made goods in this country who are working to give you your money's worth, and you don't persevere and all the best and most ennobling traits of the human heart and mind; whilst others develop naught but selfishness and those ignoble traits that debase and degrade, and which not only make their possessor an intolerable and unrelenting oppressor, but also tend to increase the misery of all mankind, because the heartless selfishness of such individuals is ever urging them to ride on to the acquiring of more millions, over the ruins of their fellowmen, and organized labor insists as an American right under our country's Constitution, that the characters last mentioned be not given unfair advantages, either by congress or by courts, over the toiling millions of our land.

"Among the objections to the labor injunction may be enumerated:

"First—It is contrary to the spirit of our institutions to have any one man arrogate to himself the powers of law maker, judge and executioner.

"Second—The labor injunction makes the rights of man subservient to the rights of gold, and punishes as a criminal the man who protests against the grinding and inhuman policy of unfair employers.

"Third—The labor injunction is a judge made law, which was never authorized or recognized by any legislature, and denies the American workingman a right accorded to the meanest criminal—viz, a trial by jury.

A Plutocracy Governs.

"It must be apparent to the intelligence of the most optimistically inclined defender of the present political situation that the policy which brought the labor injunction into being is very far removed from the people's government ideal, and that corporate wealth is fast gaining the upper hand of the people, and slowly but surely converting this country from democracy to plutocracy, from a nation governed by the whole people to a nation governed by a few mercenary individuals, and that to accomplish the purposes certain employers have brought to their assistance the powers of the government, have hoodwinked judges, and have supported powerful lobbies in our national seat of government.

"It is, therefore, the duty of every trade unionist to interest himself in the politics of his locality, to ascertain the character of the men who are destined to make the laws that will guide the destinies of our people and to cast his vote only for those reforms which are necessary to further permit the free employment of organized labor along the lines of justice and fair dealing.

"To that end organized labor must use its ballot to put an eternal veto upon the power of the courts to make or unmake laws, and as the best possible check upon whimsical or hasty legislation, or even crookedness of the legislators' work, and vote for the referendum and the right of recall.

"The referendum—that means the vote of all the people, in any country—is stronger than all the senates and presidents and courts in the world. Therefore the best cure for any evils arising from democracy is more democracy.

HE MAY BE GOVERNOR

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 7.—After being a "closed" town seven months, Kansas City yesterday went back to its old ways, and theaters, cigar and grocery stores, pool halls and other places of business were open. Gov. Joseph W. Folk arrived late at night, having received information that the saloons were to re-open.

ORGANIZE TO FIGHT PLAGUE

Anti-Tuberculosis League Will be Formed in Duluth.

At the meeting of Duluth people interested in the Anti-Tuberculosis league, which will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the rooms of the Commercial club, a local organization will be perfected. Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele will preside. A permanent chairman, secretary and treasurer will be elected and committees will be appointed to carry on the work and to assist in preparations for the tuberculosis exhibit, which will be held in Duluth the first week in November.

Short addresses will be made on interesting phases of the subject. Mayor Haven will speak on the results of the disease on the municipality. Dr. E. L. Twohy and Dr. T. L Chapman will speak on tuberculosis from a medical standpoint.

Methods of advertising the exhibit and interesting the general public in the subject will be discussed. A part of the exhibit which will be shown here will be brought from Washington and will be most complete. Some of the Duluth men interested in the matter are planning to attend the International congress of the Anti-Tuberculosis league, which will be held Oct. 13 to 18 at Washington.

NO RAIN FOR THE RANGES

Nature Will Not Aid Fire Fighters, Says Richardson.

Southerly Winds Will Sweep Conflagration Away From Towns.

The range fire fighters will have to do the best they can without rain. Weather Forecaster Richardson said this morning that he regretted that he could not predict rain for the next two or three days.

Mr. Richardson says that southerly winds, reaching a velocity of possibly twenty miles an hour, are due on the ranges today. This will be of some assistance as the big fires which are reported raging in the Sturgeon lake district are north of Hibbing, and the other towns and a southerly wind will sweep the flames in the other direction.

Every one on the range has been praying for rain and only after a good downpour will the people or the smaller towns breathe safely. Small fires can be seen smoldering all through the woods and a favorable breeze might fan any of these into a conflagration. The southerly wind will be welcomed at Hibbing, however.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

VIRGINIA TAKES TWO

Saturday's Game Was 12 to 6, and Sunday's 7 to 3.

Currie of Virginia Pitches a Brilliant Game Saturday.

In spite of the fact that the Eveleth-Virginia ball game on Saturday afternoon was something of a frost, one of the largest crowds of the season turned out yesterday afternoon, and was not disappointed. The game was a good one, being featured by the brilliant box work of Currie of Virginia.

Thorsen was on the hill for the Eveleth team and only allowed four hits, but he was wild as a hawk at times.

The final score was 7 to 3 in favor of the Virginia boys, but the game was much closer than the score would indicate. The Saturday game, which was about as raw an exhibition as was ever witnessed on the local grounds, went to the same team by the score of 12 to 6.

The two teams play again this afternoon.

Cubs Lose and Win.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Chicago threw away one game yesterday and came near losing a second to Pittsburg. The crowd was too great to allow of free ball playing, and the bad plays were numerous, although all could not be classed as errors. Pittsburg won the first game by scoring three runs in the seventh inning on a scratch double, allowed by ground rules, an error charged to Overall because of Steinfeldt's failure to cover third. Clark's single, a bad throw by Chance and a wild pitch.

Overall pitched grand ball barring the one inning, striking out eleven of the visitors.

The second game was one of free batting, and Chicago narrowly escaped defeat when Pittsburg made a furious rally in the ninth. Two-baggers by Slagle and Steinfeldt, passes to Hofman and Chance and a wild throw by Phelps gave Chicago four runs at the start. In the fifth bases on balls to Slagle and Evers and hits by Chance, Steinfeldt and Schulte sent in four more. Pittsburg was blanked till the seventh, when Wagner, Gill, Wilson, H. Phelps and Leifield hit safe, scoring three tallies. In the ninth Abbatticchio, Wilson, Phelps and Gibson made singles. Pfelster quit and Brown was hit safe by Leach, but managed to stop the hitting after four runs had been scored. Scores:

Each Win a Game.

Cincinnati, Sept. 7.—Cincinnati and St. Louis each won a game in the double-header yesterday afternoon. In the first game the locals combined their hits with errors of the visitors, scoring an easy victory. The second game went to St. Louis because of the efficiency of Baldwin, a new pitcher, with men on bases. The visitors bunched hits on Rowan, the new Cincinnati pitcher. Scores:

Sox Win and Tie.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Smith proved a puzzle in the opening game of the double header yesterday between Cleveland and Chicago, the locals winning 7 to 1. Rhoades, who started to pitch for the visitors, was batted for seven safeties and a total of four runs in two innings, retiring in favor of Liebhardt, who was wild and ineffective. The second game was a battle between Owen of Chicago and Berger of Cleveland, each allowing five hits and one score. The contest was called at the end of the eleventh inning on account of darkness. Score:

Waddell Knocked Out.

St. Louis, Sept. 7.—Detroit by defeating St. Louis 6 to 4 yesterday held first place in the pennant race. Waddell started the first game for St. Louis, but was hit hard and in the seventh was relieved by Dineen. The hitting of McIntyre, Crawford and Smith were the features. Another large crowd witnessed the game and ground rules were necessary. Score: R. H. E.

Millers Win Ragged Game.

Minneapolis, Sept. 7.—Minneapolis played the better ball in a ragged game of the series with Milwaukee by a score of 8 to 6. Wilson started to pitch, but when he failed to fleid a bunt because of a bad knee he was taken out and replaced by Patterson, who managed to keep the hits more scattered than his opponent. Both teams made costly errors and there was little in the line of fielding features. Score: R. H. E.

Indiana Bunch Hits.

Louisville, Sept. 7.—Indianapolis won the last game of the series here yesterday from Louisville through better all around playing. Durham kept the locals' hits scattered, while the visitors bunched theirs off Adams, coupled with errors. Busch's playing and a beautiful throw by Stanley, making a double play, were features. Score:

BIG SPORT CARD FOR THE WEEK

Labor Day Program is Heavy, With Other Events to Follow.

New York, Sept. 7.—Labor day holds forth an attractive program of sporting events throughout the country. There will be athletics, golf, tennis, cricket, baseball, automobile races, horse races, prize fighting, yachting—in fact every branch of the sports. Probably the most interesting athletic meeting will be that at Celtic park, Long Island, where the Irish-American Athletic club will hold track and field sports, in which a large number of the athletes who won honors in the Olympic games will compete. Next Saturday at Travers Island, the summer home of the New York Athletic club, the senior all-round Metropolitan champion will be decided.

In water sports the program for Labor day embraces the Middle States association rowing regatta on the Potomac at Washington; the St. Louis Marathon swimming race, ten miles in the Mississippi river and regattas by the Atlantic, Norwalk, Larchmont and other yacht clubs.

For the automobilists there has been arranged a 250-mile race to be run today at Lowell, Mass., and road races at Denver, Colo. Beginning Friday and ending Saturday, a twenty-four-hour race will be run over the Brighton Beach race track.

The grand circuit harness races will be run this week at Hartford, Conn.

Again this week, the riflemen will shoot at Sea Girt, N. J., for various trophies.

Several interesting fights will be decided during the week, two of them world championship affairs. California gets both of these today at Colma; Abe Attel, the featherweight champion, will defend his title in a bout with Owen Moran, the Englishman, and Wednesday at San Francisco Joe Gans will endeavor to wrest his former title in the lightweight division from Battling Nelson. Today at Los Angeles, Stanley Ketchell and Billy Papke will fight.

BASEBALL! TODAY

CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES.

VIRGINIA vs. EVELETH

GAME CALLED AT 3 P.M.

TWO FIGHTS FOR TITLES

Abe Attell Strong Favorite Over Owen Moran of England.

Ketchell and Papke to Meet Again at Los Angeles.

San Francisco, Sept. 7.—Today, Labor day, two boxing championships will be decided in California among four men who are acknowledged heads of their classes. At San Francisco, Abe Attell and Owen Moran, the English boxer, will fight for the featherweight title and at Los Angeles, Stanley Ketchel, the middle weight champion, will meet Billy Papke. Both fights will begin about 3 p. m., Pacific time, the limit of the Attell-Moran contest being twenty-three rounds and the Ketchell - Papke, twenty-five rounds. Two days later, Battling Nelson and Joe Gans will meet in San Francisco and for the third time, box for the lightweight championship.

There has been no difficulty in determining the choices of the public in these fights. From the very moment speculation on the result began, the favorites were Attell, Ketchell and Nelson. Attell is strongly fancied over the Englishman, the odds standing today at 10 to 7, with a tendency to lengthen. Ketchell is almost a prohibitive favorite over Papke, the odds standing 4 to 1, while 10 to 7 represents the extent of the public confidence in Nelson to beat Gans.

To those who measure the chances of a pugilist by past performances, it is rather surprising to see Attell such a favorite over Moran. When these two boxers met in this city a year ago, Moran gave Attell the battle of his life, although he was supposed to have to do hard training work up to the late hour in order to make the weight. Both of these little men have just finished a long and strenuous period of training and are declared to be in the very best condition to fight for a world's championship. This fight will take place in Coffroth's open air arena at Cloma.

Two Harbors, 4; Wolvins, 1.

Two Harbors, Sept. 7.—In a well played game here yesterday afternoon, the local nine defeated the Wolvins of Duluth by a score of 4 to 1. Both pitchers worked well, but the locals were able to bunch off Lowe in the third and seventh frames. Score:

Two Harbors ..0 0 2 0 0 0 2 0 x—4 7 3

SPORTS FOR TODAY.

Fighting — Stanley Ketchell and Billy Papke will fight for the middleweight championship at Los Angeles.

Golf tournament at the Country club.

Races—Motor boat races at the Spirit Lake branch.

Yacht races by the Duluth Yacht club on the bay.

Baseball—Virginia vs. Eveleth at Athletic park.

Fitzwells at Grand Rapids.

Outdoor Sports—At the union picnic at Fairmont park.

Joyland.

A good line of sports for the day has been arranged, and the day promises to be a memorable occasion, long to be remembered by the sportists of the city.

In the first place there is baseball out at Athletic park between the Eveleth and Virginia ball teams. Virginia has won two games and Eveleth will make a hard try to get away with the last one. The Fitwells are playing at Grand Rapids, while the Wolvin team is at Two Harbors trying to get even with the village body for their beating received Sunday.

The motor boat races at the Boat club branch will draw hundreds of people interested in this sport, as the race has been so long in coming off, and has been so long talked of that many are anxious to see the final windup.

At Los Angeles, two crappy boys are fighting for the middleweight championship of the world. This fight has been talked of for some months, and the outcome is being watched by Duluth people with interest. There is very little betting either on the scene of the battle or here in the city.

At the Northland Country club the annual fall tournament is being held. Putting contests and bridge are also being featured.

The weather man has promised a clear day, not too warm, and that was the last thing needed to make the day successful in every way.

Ada Ball Nine Defeated.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ada, Minn., baseball team was defeated Sunday afternoon on the East Grand Forks park by the Grand Forks Picketts, the score being 6 to 0. The game was a steady grind, Ada having little chance of winning from the very stare. Score:

R. H. E.
Grand Forks ...0 1 0 0 0 0 0 5 x—6 9 4
Ada .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 3 4

Tie Game.

The Duluth Heights battled with the Spaldings yesterday on the Heights for twelve innings, and at last the game was called on account of darkness. It was the most exciting game that was ever witnessed on the Heights. It was a pitchers' battle. The features of the game were evenly divided. The batteries were, for Spaldings, Daniels and Dryer, and for the Heights, Graham, Pease and Harran. The Duluth Heights have a record that any other amateur team hasn't got. The Heights played twenty-one games and lost three.

Hurley Beats Ashland.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 7.—The biggest attendance of the season saw Hurley defeat Ashland yesterday afternoon, by a score of 3 to 2. Errors, made at critical stages, lost the game for the locals. Both Krick for Ashland and Rooney, for Hurley, pitched good ball. Score: R. H. E.
Hurley .....1 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0—3 4 4
Ashland .....0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—2 5 5

Batteries—Rooner and Tyler; Krick and Schaefer.

Ironwood Wins.

Ironwood, Mich., Sept. 7.—Ironwood took the second game from Hibbing here, by a score of 6 to 3. The locals made five errors, but they were not costly. Schanze, of the visitors, was touched up for 1 clean hits. Score:

R. H. E.
Hibbing .....0 2 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—3 8 2
Ironwood .....0 0 0 5 1 0 0 0 x—6 1 5

Batteries—Schanze and Carroll; Perce and Fuener.

Looking for Games.

The Broadway football team of Superior has organized for the season of 1908 and would like to arrange games with any 130 or 135-pound teams at the Head of the Lakes; out of town games preferred. Members of the team will start practice Tuesday evening at 6:30, at Hammond park. For games, address Manager, 1422 Broadway street, Superior, Wis.

Hibbing, 1; Ironwood, 0.

Ironwood, Mich., Sept. 7.—In one of the prettiest exhibitions of baseball ever seen in this city, Hibbing defeated the local team yesterday afternoon by a score of 1 to 0. Schmiler, pitcher for the locals, fanned fourteen of the visitors and Sage for Hibbing struck out ten men. Sage did not allow a hit. Over 1,500 spectators witnessed the contest. The score: R. H. E.

Fedjes, 12; Columbias, 4.

The Columbia Clothing team received a bad beating from the Fedjes yesterday afternoon, on the grounds at Thirty-second avenue west, the score being 12 to 4. Hackett and Murray did the battery work for the Fedjes and Cole and Elliott for the Columbias.

Wins Floric Cup.

Bologna, Sept. 7.—Felice Nazzaro, the Italian automobile driver, yesterday won the Floric cup, covering 315 miles in 4 hours, 25 minutes and 21 seconds.

Cutlers Forfeit Game.

The Cutlers failed to show up Saturday to meet the Hummers in a championship game that was scheduled to be played on the open field at Thirty-second avenue west, and the umpire forfeited the game to the Hummers, 9 to 0.

to get the horses out of town, but the fire fear was too strong upon them and he was forced to let them run wild, and seek safety for himself on the other side of Longyear lake.

When he was running down the street toward the bridge across the lake he came upon the woman carrying her dead child. He said he had seen the woman many times, but did not know her name. She did not know where she was going. All she wished was to save all she had left of her baby, its little dead body. He tried to persuade her to leave her dead child to the flames and flee with him, but the woman was panic stricken and beyond all reason, so he grabbed her and hurried her with her dead to a place of safety.

Mrs. Wye's Story.

"I, with my guests, had been camping at Sturgeon lake and were returning home last evening, when we were met by the fire," said Mrs. Wye. "We had had forest fires about Sturgeon lake and the settlers there had to fight them, but we had no idea that they were so bad. Up the road ahead of us we could see the flames leaping into the treetops and coming towards us apparently at a high rate of speed, and it was becoming dark very fast, though it was only early in the afternoon. We turned the team about and went back to a road to Hibbing we had passed. Even then we had a hard struggle." Here Mrs. Wye displayed the palms of her hands, which were covered with blisters. Her face was also red and blistered from coming into contact with the heat of the terrible fires, and so were the faces of her two companions. "It was a run for our lives I tell you. In places where the fire had passed, and left the burning remains of trees fallen across the road we had to get out, and with the aid of other fugitives, who were traveling the same road, cut a way through them. It was hard, hot work and we women had to work as well as the men.

"We got into Hibbing at about 9 o'clock and there we received the first news of the burning of Chisholm," continued Mrs. Wye. "The streets were crowded with Chisholm people I knew and whose homes, like ours, were nothing but heap of ashes. And all the time more and more came pouring in to seek safety in Hibbing."

Teacher Was Hatless.

There were few of the sufferers to arrive on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern train yesterday afternoon. Among those to come, besides Mrs. Wye and her friends were Miss Wanda Mickleson, a Chisholm school teacher, and B. Karon, a real estate man of that town. Neither of them had saved a thing from the flames except the clothes they had on their backs. Miss Mickleson did not even have a hat. All she had eaten since morning was a little fruit and some candy she had secured on the train.

Miss Mickleson was stopping at the hotel belonging to A. R. O'Neil, which is said to have been the first victim of the flames. She said that she had no idea that the town was in any danger. The firemen had been busy at the outskirts of the place fighting fire most of the day, but that it was right upon them, never entered her head.

"It must have been about 5 o'clock when it struck," said Miss Mickleson. "The wind was blowing strong from the southwest, I think, when all of a sudden the whole sky became black, and the air was filled with blazing embers. I heard people shouting fire, so ran out into the street. Every one was running madly up and down. I joined them. Every minute it was getting darker and darker except for the light the flames gave. My hotel was a mass of flames, the power plant next burst into flames and every minute some building became ablaze. It seemed to start all at once, and almost on every side. The heat soon became unbearable. It was a terrible sight, though I really was too frightened to take any notice of it.

Crowded Into Box Cars.

"While running down the street," continued Miss Mickleson, "I joined a crowd that was headed for the depot. There were a lot of box cars standing there on the track and we crowded into them. The car I was in was jammed with foreigners. The smoke was stifling, and it was hard to breathe in the close car until some one closed the door towards the town and then it was better. A locomotive hitched on to our cars and pulled us to Hibbing, where I got a place to sleep at the Hibbing hotel. Mr. Haley was most hospitable and took in everybody he possibly could."

When asked if she thought that there would be any school at Chisholm this year, she said, yes, that she had heard that one of the school buildings by a miracle remained untouched, and had sheltered a good many people during the night. The Great Northern station was also undamaged.

Spent Night By Lake.

B. Karon, said he had stayed at Chisholm all night during the fire. His eyes were bloodshot, and he showed signs of having passed through a severe ordeal. He with several hundred Chisholm citizens had passed the night on the east side of Longyear lake, which was not reached by the flames. From that point of safety they had watched their town totter, building after building before the flames, and fall, a mound of ashes and charred timbers. Women cried and even men watched their homes pass away with tears streaming down their cheeks.

At about 3 o'clock Sunday morning the town lay smouldering at their feet, and the fire still unsatisfied had passed beyond. Mr. Karon, walked around Longyear lake to the side on which the town had but a few hours before stood. The bridge across the lake was burned, and he could not go that way.

When asked if any lives had been lost Mr. Karon said he could not say. "One woman by the name of May Fisher, who was intoxicated, is said to have burned, and several people claim they saw a man trying to cross the bridge over Longyear lake when it was burning. If there was, he never got across. It will be strange if no lives were lost. The fire came so quickly, blown up by a hurricane, that it leaped from the forest into the town in an instant, scattering fire brands in every direction, and before we had hardly time to get out of our homes the whole town was ablaze.

"This morning from about 2 o'clock until late in the morning I was on the scene of the fire. Few buildings were left standing, and among them was the school house. It was a dreary scene, and one I shall never forget.

Begin Rebuilding.

"On my way to Hibbing this noon I was passed by a man driving a load of lumber. I asked him what he was going to do, and he said, 'start rebuilding my home.' It won't be long before they have the town built up again.

"The settlers for miles about the country suffered greatly by that fire. Hundreds of them lost their homes on homesteads. I think the only mining location near Chisholm that suffered any loss was the Pillsbury, and I believe they were entirely burned out."

THE MINNESOTA SUPREME COURT SAYS:—

"It is a matter of common knowledge that blind pigs are relatively more numerous and far more pernicious in prohibition districts than they are in licensed districts."

PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOR.

St. Paul, Sept. 7.—Governor Johnson has issued the following proclamation:

"A great disaster has come to Northeastern Minnesota. Chisholm, one of the splendid cities of the Mesaba range, has been totally destroyed by a destructive forest fire, which swept over a large portion of St. Louis county. Every home and business house of that community is burned and 6,000 people are suddenly rendered homeless. The property loss amounts to millions of dollars. Early reports indicate also the total destruction of the mining locations of Shenango and Pillsbury. The total number of people rendered homeless will reach 12,000 and vast tracts of agricultural lands have also been devastated.

"The disaster is without parallel in the history of Minnesota and in view of this I appeal to the generosity of the people of Minnesota for liberal aid and owing to the great necessity ask that assistance be as prompt as possible.

"To this end I hereby appoint Hon. R. D. Haven, A. C. Weiss, Millie Bunnell, A. L. Ordean, J. L. Washburn and H. M. Peyton of Duluth, and Martin Hughes of Hibbing, a general commission to receive and disburse contributions for the relief of the sufferers.

"I also appoint the mayors of the several cities and villages of the state as special commissioners to take charge of the work of organization in their respective municipalities, and to proceed immediately, that the suffering of the afflicted be minimized. (Signed)

"JOHN A. JOHNSON,
"Governor."

DULUTH FIRE FIGHTERS HELP

Hose Sent to Hibbing, Assistant Chief at Wrenshall.

Chief Black of the Duluth fire department Saturday evening sent 1,000 feet of hose to Hibbing to supplement the apparatus there in fighting the forest fires and protect the outlying mining locations. None of the Duluth men was sent with the hose. No apparatus was sent from Duluth yesterday to the range.

First Assistant Chief Randall was dispatched to Wrenshall, when the first reports of the forest fires were received in Duluth from there. On his return Sunday he reported that the conflagration was not within a mile of the little town on the Northern Pacific.

Sunday afternoon the town clerk of Carlton telephoned to Scanlon and other nearby towns for assistance to aid in fighting the forest fires in the region of Wrenshall and the surrounding country, that were said to be fast gaining headway. Scanlon sent a crew of men to the scene immediately. They were there all Saturday night and Sunday.

VAULTS ARE LEFT STANDING

Thousands of Dollars in Cash in Chisholm Ruins.

Three vaults containing thousands of dollars are standing amid the ruins of the Chisholm fire, and is is impossible to ascertain as yet whether or not their contents have been destroyed.

The postoffice vault contained about $6,000 worth of money and stamps, a new supply of stamps having just been received.

The vaults of the First National and Miners' State bank contained many thousands of dollars, but the exact amount is not known. All three vaults are still standing, but it is impossible to reach them as yet.

BEROUN BREWERY BURNED.

Beer Factory and Lot of Beer in Pine County Destroyed.

Pine City, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The brewery owned by the Beroun Bohemian Brewing company at Beroun was burned to the ground Thursday mornign. The fire started at about 7 o'clock, and in a very short time it was reduced to ashes. A defective flue was the probable cause of the fire.

The loss is a total one and Manager Chalupsky does not think that the $2,500 insurance held on the brewery will be nearly sufficient to replace the structure and apparatus burned and destroyed.

At the time of the fire 180 barrels of beer were storod in the brewery. These were destroyed, the only thing left being a heap of ice. Heroic measures were taken to prevent a spread of the flames. In the face of a rising southeasterly wind and in the very path of the flames the bucket brigade worked unceasingly to save a setting of grain stacks. The stacks were but a few yards from the seething fire and it is quite likely that the little burg would have been doomed to destruction had the stacks caught fire.

S.S.S. NATURE'S PERFECT TONIC

There is scarcely any one, no matter how vigorous and healthy, who does not need a tonic sometimes. Little physical irregularities upset the system, the appetite fails, digestion is poor, the body feels tired and worn-out, and other unpleasant symptoms give warning that the system is disordered and needs assistance to ward off, perhaps, some serious sickness or ailment. S. S. S. is recognized everywhere as the best of all tonics, nature's medicine, made entirely of healing, cleansing, invigorating roots and herbs, a systemic remedy without an equal. S. S. S. has the additional value of being the greatest of all blood purifiers. It re-establishes the healthy circulation of the blood, rids the body of that tired, worn-out feeling, improves the appetite and digestion, and brings about a return of health to those whose systems have been weakened or depleted. S. S. S. acts more promptly and pleasantly than any other medicine, and those who are run down in health should commence its use at once. It will thoroughly purify the blood and tone up the system. S. S. S. is admirably suited for a systemic remedy because it is free from minerals; it may be used without harmful results or unpleasant effects by persons of any age.

TO THE CITIZENS OF DULUTH.

The greatest catastrophe in the history of St. Louis county has occurred at our doors. The demon of fire has swept over the city of Chisholm, leaving nothing but the ground upon which it stood. Other villages have suffered. Thousands of our neighbors have lost everything except their lives. Homeless and without clothing or food, these men, women and children must depend upon their fellowmen for that with which to live. This very serious condition seems to make it my duty to call upon the citizens of Duluth to rally to the support of our neighbors in this hour of their distress. A great responsibility is ours. Let the response be generous. All can help. While we are celebrating this Labor Day let every one remember that only a short distance away a fellow workman and his family need help. Remember the children. Provisions and clothing are needed. Watch the papers for particulars and help those that have met this terrible misfortune.

Duluth's Tobacco Bill

The City Spends Thousands of Dollars Monthly for Tobacco, Cigars and "Pills"

THE NEWSBOYS AND THEIR "WADS"

HIS AFTER DINNER SMOKE

A GOOD CIGAR.

A QUIET PIPE

Money tight?

Perhaps. Smoking a luxury? Well, maybe, but most men think they must smoke, be the times good or bad. It is one luxury they feel they cannot do without. Figuring on this basis, the great American public, or the masculine portion of it, at least, considers tobacco a necessity.

Even with necessities, there is a lessening in the demand during a tightness in the money market. That explains why cigar and tobacco sales in Duluth at the present time, show a falling off as compared with the same period last year. But taking this fact into consideration, men of the Zenith City still spend about $3,000 a day for the seductive weed, and about twice that amount for tobacco and cigars. That is to say, nearly $10,000 a day is spent in Duluth for smoking materials.

"These figures are very conservative," said Charles Oswald, for many years a wholesale cigar and tobacco dealer, and probably a man with more experience than any person in the business in Duluth. "I am not sure that the estimate should not be placed a little higher than that. In good times, the total would be much greater. But just now, when times are considered rather dull, the daily average, it is figured, is about $3,000.

"It seems hard to believe that in a city the size of Duluth that amount of money should be spent every day for cigars alone, and probably twice that amount for tobacco and cigarettes, but is can easily be figured out. There are 169 saloons in the city, twenty-six drug stores, about seven exclusive cigar and tobacco stores and say forty confectionery stores that have a fairly good sale of the weed. This is a total of 249, and oes not include the scores of grocery stores that do a small business in cigars, and some of the smaller confectionery stores.

"Figuring an average of only 120 cigars a day for all these places, would bring the total up to 30,000, with an average price of 10 cents each. I think the average will hold that high, for there is a large amount of the higher grade cigars consumed in Duluth, running up into the 15, 25 and 50-cent grades. But even though the average cost were placed below 10 cents, which would be unreasonable, all these grocery and smaller confectionery and other stores handling smokables would bring the total figure above my estimate. I am figuring from what I have seen of the cigar sales this summer, and from past experience in the business.

"In what we would call good times, the average sale of the 249 establishments would easily run 200 cigars a day, and probably much higher than that, bringing the daily cigar total here to at least 50,000, meaning a money expenditure of $5,000. As I said before, the figures given a minute ago are very conservative. A good many dealers would say that even under present conditions, the total would reach $6,000 a day. Of course, it is no easy matter to arrive at a close estimate of the total, for there are so many places selling cigars, and their day's business differs so widely.

"Again, there are some dealers who will not agree with me in saying the tobacco sales are as much heavier in proportion to the cigar sales as I have given, in my comparative statement. One must take into consideration, however, that while a package of tobacco will last longer than a cigar, there are more pipe smokers than cigar smokers, and the man with a pipe, as a rule, smokes much oftener than the man who smokes cigars exclusively, and in the tobacco sales is included package tobacco for cigarette rolling purposes, and also tobacco for chewing purposes.

"It is coming to be quite the fashion to smoke a pipe in Duluth and you can find hardly a man who does not own one or more, and smoke it occasionally, even though he is in the habit of using up eight or ten cigars a day. Pipe smoking is coming more into vogue right along. Perhaps this is because so many Canadians have made their homes here. In many parts of Canada the pipe is smoked almost exclusively, and in the smoking compartments of trains you will find two pipes to every cigar."

"It makes me weary to hear so much and read so much about how much money a man could save if he would cut out smoking. Think how much he would save if he cut out going to the theater, cut out spending money on the girls, cut out taking trips for pleasure, cut out buying anything but hand-me-down clothes, cut out eating anything but corned beef and cabbage, and drinking anything but water, cut out rooming anywhere but where his rent amounted to $5 or $10 a month, cut out buying Christmas presents and other presents, cut out everything, in fact, that gave him the least pleasure, and without which one could get along without starving or freezing to death. One could save a lot of money by doing that, couldn't one, but what a poor fool you, or I, or any one else would be to do it. They would call us misers, or brand us as insane and send us to Fergus Falls."

SEND COIN IF POSSIBLE

M. C. Palmer Says Chisholm Sufferers Need Money Most

Purchase of Lumber Most Necessary Thing in Affording Shelter

"The need of the sufferers at Chisholm and the surrounding settlements is money," said M. C. Palmer of this city, who was mayor of Virginia at the time that that range town was destroyed by fire. "At the time of the Virginia fire we were surfeited with clothing and provisions," said Mr. Palmer this morning and the desperate need under such conditions is money in order that lumber may be purchased and shelters for the homeless ones erected as soon as possible. In every possible case where there may be an opportunity of choosing whether clothing or provisions or money should be sent, the donor should send money. Any one who has experienced in part such a misfortune as has visited the people of Chisholm will realize that what I say is true and that no help greater than money can be sent."

ALL MARKETS ARE CLOSED

The Grain and Stock Exchanges Are Observing Labor Day.

Labor day is being observed by all the grain and stock exchanges in the nation, and no trades in either grain or securities are being carried on.

The Duluth board of trade held no session and the Minneapolis chamber of commerce, the Chicago board of trade and the other grain markets are closed.

The Boston and New York stock exchanges adjourned Friday until Tuesday morning and there is nothing doing in the coppers on the local curb.

The brokers' offices along Superior street were closed all day.

Chisago County Fair.

Rush City, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Everything is in readiness for the Chisago county fair to be held here this week beginning Wednesday and ending Saturday. Among the features will be addresses by Jacob Jacobson, Republican candidate for governor, and Congressman F. C. Stevens Thursday, which will be farmers' day. There will also be baseball games and races Thursday and Friday.

MORE HOPE IN "PEN."

Evangelist Says Average Congregation Has Less Chance Than Convict.

"I think most of the people confined in the state penitentiary have more chances in life than the ordinary man."

This statement was made by Rev. E. H. Rasmussen, evangelist, following his sermon last evening at the West Duluth Baptist church. The sermon subject was, "Why Be a Christian?"

In his sermon he said, "Education and culture will not keep a man from falling before sin in the hour of temptation. In the averag congregation, there is less culture and education than in the penitentiary." I recently paid a visit to a prison and I honestly believe what I say is true."

Mr. Rasmussen in his sermon pointed out the advantages of the Christian life, saying that he believed it to be the most satisfactory and helpful. As an example he stated that all the world's greatest men are Christians.

Gasoline Launch Burns.

From an explosion in the launch belonging to Gray McLeod a fire started last evening about 7 o'clock, which destroyed Mr. McLeod's launch and boathouse at the foot of Fifty-eighth avenue west.

The fire spread to the boathouse belonging to Arthur Jacoby and Fred Harris, and it was only after a hard fight that the West Duluth fire department managed to save the latter.

The explosion was caused by Mr. McLeod lighting a match in his boat. In some manner the flame was communicated to the gasoline tank and was immediately followed by an explosion. The fire spread with lightning-like swiftness.

West Duluth Briefs.

Allyn Scott has returned to Minneapolis, where he will continue his studies at the university.

Wallace Cliff of Ashland, Wis., is visiting in West Duluth.

Clarence McGurt of Rockford, Ill., is visiting friends and relatives in West Duluth.

The West Duluth Republican club met Saturday evening in the rooms of the West Duluth Commercial club. Several speeches were made boosting Jacob Jacobson for the governor of Minnesota.

Fraternity lodge of West Duluth, Duluth lodge of the West end and the Superior lodge, Modern Brotherhood of America, held a joint picnic at Fairmount park yesterday, which was a great success.

Dr. S. E. Shannon and W. H. Richter made a short trip to Moose Lake yesterday.

J. Adam Bede delivered an address at the Plymouth Congregational church Sunday evening. His subject was "Good Government."

The Young People's society of the Immanuel Lutheran church will be entertained at the home of Miss Lena Clementson Thursday evening.

Thursday afternoon the Ladies' guild of the Holy Apostles' Episcopal church, will hold its first meeting of the season at the church.

L. W. POWELL IS OPPIMISTIC

General Manager of Bisbee Properties is Pleased With Conditions.

Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg are both in good condition, according to L. W. Powell, who has returned to Duluth for a short visit, after an absence of two years. Mr. Powell, who is general manager of the two properties, says that the recent developments in the Hoatson and Junecliff shafts are very encouraging. He says that the Bisbee production is fully up to the standard, and the Calumet & Arizona smelters are working at about their capacity.

Mr. Powell expects to remain in Duluth for several days, after which he will go to the Copper country of Michigan for a few days before returning to Bisbee. He says the climate of the Southwest agrees with him and his appearance bears out the statement. Mr. Powell has been mentioned as a candidate for congress from Arizona, but he says he has not the time to devote to the office, if he were elected, and he has not been a candidate at any time.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Superiorites Encouroged.

The Superior delegates to the Municipal league convention, held at Oconomowoc, are encouraged over the prospect of receiving at least a portion of the state railroad taxes collected at the terminals within the city limits. Mayor Cummings attended and was elected vice president for the Eleventh congressional district. City Attorney Lyons was given a place on the legislative committee.

Appointment Postponed.

The appointmen of a successor to the position of general manager of the Superior Water, Light & Power company, made necessary by the death of B. F. Ellison, was postponed until a meeting of the directors, which will take place early in the week. Charles A. Chase, president of the Bank of Commerce, was elected to the board of directors.

Labor Day Exercises.

Following the Labor day parade in Superior this morning, Louis Hanitch, a prominent attorney of the city, delivered the address of the day at Nemadji park, at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The parede this morning was divided into two divisions, each headed by a band. They marched up Tower avenue from Third to Sixteenth streets, and then countermarched to Broadway and over to Ogden avenue, where they disbanded. T. L. Edwards was marshal and his assistants were John Morisset and William O'Carroll.

Board of Trade Busy.

The Superior board of trade is now in active operation and many applications for membership are being received. Saturday more than 100 cars of North Dakota wheat was received for inspection and a general increase is expected from now on.

New Bell Blessed.

At the new Catholic church at Foxboro, Wis., the bell was blessed last week by Father Augustine Gagnon, the pastor, and Bishop Shinner, who performed the ceremony. Several of the Superior clergy attended.

Blaze in Pile of Ties.

The Superior fire department fought a stubborn blaze Saturday afternoon in a pile of ties between the Northwestern dock No. 2 on the St. Louis bay and the Great Northern flour sheds. It was several hours before they had the fire under control.

Coal Docks Full.

The coal docks at Superior are now loaded to overflowing, but there is still little demand from the West, though a vigorous campaign is on foot among the local dealers to induce the farmers and Western towns to secure their winter's supply of coal before the rush that is sure to come later. It is expected that the influx of grain to the Head of the Lakes will exceed that of former years by many millions of bushels.

Duluth's Fashionable Store

Will devote this week to a very informal showing of "What Will Be Worn." This gives all women an opportunity to get acquainted with the Gidding styles, even though they do not contemplate making any purchases.

AMUSEMENTS.

Strong Attractions Are Being Offered for Labor Day.

A good amusement program is offered Duluth theater lovers today. At the Lyceum "The Clansman" is being presented with a matinee and evening performance, and the Bijou offers a strong vaudeville bill.

Canadian Town Suffers Loss.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 7.—A large portion of the business section of Altona, in Southern Manitoba, near the boundary, was destroyed by fire early today. The stores of Yoerger, Freesen and Coblenz, three merchants, were burned, also the bank of Montecal, the Western Canada Land company's block, the Commercial hotel and the postoffice. Loss, $100,000.

You may know more about real estate hereabouts in half an hour from now—if you spend that time reading the ads.—than anybody else who has not read the latest ads.

A PITIFUL SPECTACLE

Men Wept as They Saw Work of Years Destroyed.

Women Ran Screaming Along Streets Looking for Children.

The streets of Chisholm presented a pitiful spectacle during the fire, say those who came to Duluth yesterday from the ruined town. The screams of women were heard. Wild-eyede mothers were looking for their missing ones. Strong men broke down as they saw the work of years being swept away before their very eyes, with no way of stopping the progress of the flames.

Household goods were dragged out into the streets and stored away until the residents saw that their efforts were of no use, then they sat down and as quietly as possible saw their homes and business property ruined in a few minutes.

The heat was terrible.

The fire was raging at this time all through the woods, and as they walked along the track these inhabitants of what was Chisholm often times had to run through a patch of flames as it leaped up from either side of the track. One small boy of 9 years was badly burned in an instance of this kind. He is being treated with hundreds of others at the hospital, in Hibbing, and it is feared he cannot live. His name could not be learned.

Many pitiful instances are told of poor people who lost their all. One man who had worked and saved for years to own his own team, and who did a general draying business, was so discouraged and heartbroken, that he sat on the track between Chisholm and Hibbing and cried like a child.

Jacob Johnson, proprietor of a general store, who was burned out the time of the Virginia fire, some time ago, had started anewe and had just completed his new store, and a brand new stock only received a few days ago, was on the shelves. The entire business was of course wiped out, and Mr. Johnson left just where he was years ago.

Guns Are Flashed.

Plundering of the ruins of the devastated town began almost immediately. A number of Montenegrin laborers employed in the vicinity are said to have started for the town in hope of getting booty from the ruins as soon as the fire was stopped. Those who remained near the stricken town had several hard fights in which guns were flashed and slaughter was threatened several times. At 1 o'clock Saturday night in response to an appeal from Hibbing, Governor Johnson ordered Company M, of the Hibbing militia to guard the ruins. They placed seventy-nine of the Montenegrins under arrest and they are now in the guard house on the Monroe-Tenner location. Most of them had plunder of various forms on them when arrested. A number were carrying off trunks bodily, and one man had a cash register in his arms. The houses which were not not burned were victims of the plunderers as well as those which suffered. The militia is still on guard on the site of the stricken town, and last night great gasoline torches were placed at the points which used to be the street intersections, to illuminate the scene. It is reported that some of the fleeing Chisholm residents were held up by the Montenegrins between Hibbing and Chisholm, but no confirmation could be secured of this report.

Taking It Well.

The people of Chisholm are showing a fine spirit, and a gameness which can hardly be beaten. Unwilling to let Hibbing bear the brunt of the relief work, they held an informal meeting at about 7:30 last night and appointed Judge Edward Freeman of Chisholm in charge. He will superintend the receipt and disposal of supplies from Duluth.

Rebuilding Already.

The town is already springing from its ruins. Several loads of lumber went into the town yesterday. One enterprising merchant set up a store consisting of a plank across two barrels and was doing a brisk trade in cigars and candy. The erection of temporary business structures will be begun this afternoon.

The Insurance.

The total loss to building by the insurance will cover only about $500,000, about a third of the loss.

The insurance companies have been charging a rate of 10 per cent in Chisholm, varying somewhat with the style of building, and the result was that a comparatively small portion of the property was insured.

Big Merchants Ruined.

A curious feature of the affair was that while most of the Smaller merchants carried insurance right up to the limit, and are perhaps, better off today than they were Friday, a lot of the larger business men carried no insurance, and today, through losses in timber and in the town district, have not a dollar in the world.

As to the timber losses, lumbermen say that no one can tell for months within thousands of dollars what the loss has been. The fire was not so large in extent as was at first supposed, not extending as far east as Mountain Iron or Biwabik to any serious extent. Mr. How of Stitt & How, who was out in the woods near Sturgeon Lake last night and had a harrowing trip over burned culverts and between falling, flaming trees, stated that a fire like this might burn fiercely through the woods, consuming the smaller growth and the strippings, and yet leave very much of the biggest and best timber. The only result in such a case would be to necessitate the immediate cutting of the timber and a possible flooding of the local market. For reasons such as this the timber damage on the Missabe is very hard to estimate. Lumbermen, stating that their figures were merely guesses, place it at all the way from $250,000 to $1,000,000. The last figure is probably very high.

Several parties driving in from Bear River yesterday reported the woods aflame from Sturgeon Lake to within one mile of the outskirts of Hibbing. Culverts and corduroy was burned out and the trip in was an awful one. The travelers arrived blinded by smoke and flames and in a nearly complete state of exhaustion. One traveler had his horse balk in the midst of a blazing swamp, and the falling of a great flaming tree close at hand was all that started him on his way out of the flames.

It was reported that the Powers-Simpson Lumber company's headquarters, near Hibbing, were endangered, but they were reached over the telephones this morning, and stated that after an all-night fight Saturday night and most of Sunday morning, and a little work last night, they now felt confident that they were safe. Accordingly to the reports of the travelers coming in from the direction of Sturgeon lake, a number of homesteaders in the district within twenty miles north of Hibbing must have been burned out. W. E. Crandall, Vic Beneo and J. S. Wilkie composed one of the parties who drove through the fire country yesterday. Their description of the trip is harrowing. The Cloquet, the Northern, and the Swan River logging companies in the Hibbing district are all reported safe. Their loss in the immediate vicinity of Hibbing is very slight.

Hibbing in Danger.

For a time Saturday afternoon Hibbing was in great danger. Only a change in the direction of the wind saved the town from destruction. On the south and the north west flames swept down upon the town and nearly 200 men fought the fire fiercely for two hours. Some of the houses in the vicinity of the cemetery caught fire, but were damaged but slightly. The general belief is that Hibbing is out of danger. This morning a dense fog settled over the town, and as it was laden with smoke, the rumor spread that the fires had broken out with renewed violence again. The fog lifted about 9 o'clock, however. Mr. How, the lumberman, reports that the fire in the north woods is still raging fiercely and he fears for Hibbing if a wind comes up from the north today. The woods there are thick with second growth pines and strippings and the conflagration will not cease for several days.

The most promising fact of the present situation, however, is that the holocaust at Chisholm has left all the rest of the range towns watching for traces of fire. It is generally agreed that if the outskirts of Chisholm had been properly patrolled, as were those of Buhl and Nashwauk, the town could probably have been saved. Blazes in the woods are so common, however, that not enough importance was attached to this one, and the fire swept into the town almost before they were aware of its existence.

A week ago, they fought fire all one day, with success. The battle was commenced at that time, before the fire was within a block of the clearing around the edges of the town, and was successful. Chisholm had an adequate water pressure, and hydrants at every street corner, with a volunteer fire force of twenty-four men, headed by Chief Mike Healy. They were rendered helpless very early in the game by an unexpected spurt of the flames along the north side of town, to the water works, which were destroyed. The flames performed some strange gyrations in Chisholm, skipping a square block on one side of the town, but cutting a straight swath down the main street. It was less than half an hour after the time that the flames struck the town, until they reached the other side. The vaults of the First National and Miners' state banks are still intact, and it is thought that their contents are safe. The postoffice had just received a six month's supply of stamps, post cards, stamped envelopes, etc., and all this is in the safe. Whether it is destroyed by the intense heat or not, is not definitely known. The safe is as yet too hot to tamper with. The vaults are being guarded by the militia.

Guard Is Posted.

The militia are keeping a very strict surveillance over the ruins of the stricken town. No one is allowed on the scene unless he has business there, and mere curiosity seeking is not regarded as business. In view of the serious depredations on the part of the Montenegrin element, they have orders to shoot if necessary, and every man entering the town is challenged.

W. C. Baird of Hibbing lost a $600 team of horses yesterday morning. In charge of Ben La Doux, the driver, they were going along the road between Hibbing and the site of Chisholm when they came to a wooden culvert which was covered with gravel above. The culvert was afire below, but the gravel concealed the blaze, and when the horses struck the center, eaten away by the flames, they were dropped into a blazing furnace of fire. La Doux had a narrow escape from pitching forward into the flames himself, and he had to shoot the horses at once.

A dairyman at Chisholm lost a herd of thirteen cows. He ran to the pasture at the first alarm of fire and let down the bars, but so rapid was the progress of the fire that he was forced to flee before stifling smoke, leaving the cattle to their fate. Billy Hahn, a farmer on the Sturgeon Lake road, also lost a number of cattle, as did Joe Karl, the Hibbing butcher.

William Brown, a civil engineer who had a cabin several miles from Hibbing on the Sturgeon Lake road, was burned out.

Ed La France and Ralph S. O'Neill, of Chisholm, who were out in the woods when the fire swept down, fought their way into the clearing with difficulty, but arrived safe. A man named Hayes, who was out logging, also had a harrowing experience of stumbling over fallen trees, through blazing swamps, and through the blinding smoke to safety.

Total	$9,747

Duluth has, figuratively speaking, taken off its coat and turned in to help its homeless neighbors on the range.

The sum of $8,475 was raised in a few hours yesterday afternoon, after the relief committee was appointed by Governor Johnson and this morning the total reached $9,747. The public has as yet had little opportunity to contribute, and the money already raised which will be sufficient to relieve the immediate wants of the homeless people on the range, was contributed by the few men who were in close touch with the committee and who realized the need of immediate action to prevent suffering on the part of the homeless people.

The committee appointed by Governor Johnson consisted of Mayor Haven, A. C. Weiss, Millie Bunnell, A. L. Ordean J. L. Washburn and H. M. Peyton of Duluth and Martin Hughes of Hibbing. Of these only the first three were in the city. They met yesterday afternoon and made an effort to get into communication with Mayor Welrick of Hibbing, but they did not succeed until late in the evening. He stated that there was need of prompt action. Food, clothing and ready money are needed.

The committee immediately began the work of raising subscriptions, and by means of the telephone secured pledges of $8,475 before they ceased work for the night.

This morning the following subscriptions were telephoned to The Herald: Marshall-Wells Hardware company, $1,000; W. J. Olcott, $100; Bridgeman & Russell, $100; Gronseth & Olson, $50; M. A. Hanna Coal company, $50; Dr. David Grahum, $10; Lyle S. Meader, $10; J. B. Cade, $2.

Richardson & Day donated the use of a store room at Second avenue west near First street, and this will be the headquarters for the relief work. A committee will be in charge to receive donations. The Herald and the Duluth News Tribune will also receive donations toward the fund.

A trainload of supplies will be sent to Hibbing today. With the money already pledged and with the funds and supplies that will be donated today, the committee can get together enough food and clothing to relieve the immediate wants of the sufferers today, and no time will be lost.

KING EDWARD'S WINE.

The Tatler: Chablis is the one wine invariably drunk by the king both at lunch and dinner. It is usually mixed with natural mineral water, and comes almost exclusively from one vineyard, being forwarded to this country in bulk.

Most of this wine is bottled in the vaults underneath St. James' palace, where every facility for this work exists. A large stock is constantly maintained here, and it is depleted to supply the whne cellars of Windsor, Buckingham palace and Sandringham. Thus it is that none of the king's wine bears the name of the maker or brand, but simply the name and the vintage year, surmounted by the royal crown.

THE CREDIT SIDE WOULD TELL.

"The late Admiral Balch," said a Raleigh man, "used often to complain of the increasing cost of national armaments.

"The armaments, he would say, continually cried out for money, money, nothing but money. They were like the shopkeeper's son.

"'When did James last write to us?' the shopkeeper asked his wife one day.

"'Look in the cash book,' the wife replied."

This is not one of the days you can afford to "skip all of the ads."

HIBBING THROWS OPEN DOORS TO THE REFUGEES

Citizens Give Up Their Own Beds to the Homeless Fire Sufferers.

Coffee Cooked on the Street Corners--- "Women First" is the Cry.

According to H. A. Goodman, a traveling man for a Minneapolis dry-goods house, who returned to Duluth yesterday on the Missabe train, Hibbing is doing wonderful work in the way of caring for the fire sufferers. When the hundreds of homeless ones, tired, hot, dusty and discouraged, reached Hibbing Saturday night, the people of Hibbing welcomed them with open arms, many of them giving up their beds that the sufferers might rest. Houses were thrown open, strangers gave up their rooms in the hotels, bakers were set to work baking bread, a relief committee was formed, sandwiches made, and delivered, and in fact everything that could be done was done without a moment's hesitation.

Fires were built on the street corners, and huge kettles of coffee made, of which the sufferers partook freely. Many of the residents of Hibbing opened their houses, gave up their beds, and almost every woman and child was safely housed. A great number of men walked the streets all night.

Over all hung a heavy cloud of smoke that made it nearly impossible to breathe, while the heat from the fire was so great that many people fainted.

All was excitement until the small hours of the morning, when most of the women were cared for, and the men resigned themselves to an all night walk. The excitement has died down now, and the people are taking things easier. The fire is under control if a strong wind does not spring up, and already plans are being made to again build up the town, according to Mr. Goodman.

"EVERYONE IS FAIRLY WELL TAKEN CARE OF"

The Commercial Club's Prompt Action Prevents Much Suffering.

Four Young Men Abandon Picnic to Help Load Car.

"Every one is now being fairly well taken care of," wired J. W. Kreitter, from the range this morning.

"The carload of provisions, and the carload of bedding and cots, have arrived. What we need most now is women's and children's clothing."

The action of the Commercial club officers is being highly commended today. The officers of the club did not wait for instructions, but went ahead and got the provisions together, trusting that the club would be reimbursed from the general relief fund. The club incurred an expense of probably $2,000. It is not known yet just what the bill will amount to, but the officers felt that haste was necessary, and resolved to go ahead without instructions.

Maj. Eva was reached on the telephone yesterday morning by T. W. Hugo and W. A. McGonagle, and it was decided to rush a car load of provisions to Chisholm.

Maj. Eva went out on Superior street and met E. J. Willcutts, of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company.

They started for the warehouse at once, picking up whoever they could find on their way, to assist in loading the car.

Four young men employed in the office of the company were met. They were accompanied by four young women, and were headed for a picnic. Unceremoniously dropping the girls, the young men took off their coats and turned in to work, in their best summer togery. The girls made their way home alone, after telling the young men to "go ahead and help."

Maj. Eva's army experience stood him in good stead, and the provisions were carefully selected.

CONGREGATION AIDS SUFFERERS

Collection Is Taken at First Presbyterian Church

Anticipating the call for assistance, which would be made necessary by the disaster at Chisholm, pledges were taken up yesterday morning at the First Presbyterian church for the relief of the fire sufferers. The pastor, Rev. Campbell C. Coyle sends the following message to those who pledged their support yesterday:

"I would respectfully regest that all persons who pledged money at the First Presbyterian church yesterday in behalf of the Chisholm fire suffers pay the money as soon as possible to H. M. Peyton at the American Exchange bank and that all who pledged to give clothing or articles have them delivered as soon as possible to Second avenue west and First street.

CAMPBELL C. COYLE."

WAS IGNORANT OF HIS LOSS

Chisholm Merchant Received Word of Fire In Duluth

B. Magnuson, general merchant at Chisholm, returned to Duluth Saturday night from the Bitter Root valley, Montana, and retired at the McKay hotel, totally oblivious of the great loss he had sustained by the fire, until a friend aroused him and notified him of what had happened. He tried to get in communication with Chisholm over the telephone, but of course was unsuccessful, and spent a nerve-racking night waiting for a chance to hurry to the scene by the first train Sunday. Mr. Magnuson lost his store and home, and placed his loss at about $35,000, with about $15,000 insurance.

"It's pretty tough luck," he said, "but I am not going to lay down. I have made arrangements to rebuild and will be able to furnish my customers as before in a few days, having received plenty of offers of assistance from wholesale Duluth firms."

Jack Skala and Martni Knueclk, two other merchants of Chisholm, are also in the West, having gone to the Bitter Root valley about the time Mr. Magnuson did. They have probably learned of the disaster, and are expected to be returning as fast as steam can bring them.

COMMITTEE MEETING.

Duluth's Relief Body in Session at the City Hall.

The Duluth committee appointed by the governor to aid the people made homeless by the devastating forest fires at Chisholm and other places in the vicinity of Duluth, was in session this noon at the mayor's office in the city hall.

The committee will work in conjunction with the relief committees at Hibbing and other range towns.

Grand Concert

Will be given by the Zenith Choral Club, under the direction of Prof. Landi, Wednesday Evening, Sept. 9th, at 8 o'clock, at First Presbyterian Church. Tickets 50 cents.

DROVE WOLVES FROM NEW YORK.

Newark Valley Herald: Wolf drives were held in this section less than a century ago. To the Herald, Dr. Gates writes the following interesting account of a famous drive in Tioga county, New York.

In the year of our Lord 1828 the wolves then running in this county became so numerous and so pestilent that the towsn of Richford, Berkshire, Candor, Union and Lisle held a conference over the question and at that meeting it was resolved to appoint two men in each town to act as a committee to drive the wolves beyond the Susquehanna river.

I can give the names of only two men on that committee, these being Anthony M. Tyler of this town and Horace Gates of the town of Union, there being no town of Maine then. In addition to the committee other men and large boys joined the drive. The outfit for each man was a dog, if he had one, a gun and plenty of ammunition and a large cow bell. Nights they stood on guard, ringing the cow bells and shooting off their guns so the wolves would not go back.

The march commenced about half way between Hartford Mills and Richford and was formed east toward Hunt's Corners and west toward Slaterville. The signal to march south was the firing of a gun at North Richford, then every man on the line that had a gun fired it and every one rang his bell. At night dry trees were set on fire so the men could warm themselves and wild beasts would keep back. It must have been after the second Tuesday in February, for that was town meeting day at that time.

Every man had his knapsack on his back full of good victuals and could replenish it at almos any house he came o.

The order of march was like a half moon, the ends of each line ahead of the center. Every day new volunteers joined in the march.

Quite likely some old readers of this story can remember how long Pennsylvania held a grudge against New York for this act of driving the wolves into Pennsylvania.

FLATS MAKE LIFE EASIER.

In Spite of a Boston Idea of Their Defects.

At the recent meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Boston one of the speakers denounced the modern flat, saying it resembled a real home as much as a French corset did a woman's natural form. She referred particularly to flats that exclude children; possibly she overlooked the fact that the really up to date expensive apartment includes a nursery suite among its many rooms, says the New York Sun.

This view of the flat interested the women, although many did not agree with it. A New York club woman who has given much time and thought to the subject declares that on the contrary the establishment of the flat or one floor household in America is one of the milestone in the general betterment of the conditions of her sex.

"The flat idea," she said, "came to us from France, a nation economical even in its luxuries. With them the home is pre-eminent.

"The plan of the flat was to decrease the expenses of large establishments while retaining the comfort. It was one of the greatest economical ideas. It is of advantage even to persons able to maintain a large establishment.

"Even in the largest apartments in Europe, as in America, a small staff of servants is ample. A cook, a butler and a maid are enough in most of the fashionable flats, whereas a dozen servants might be needed to carry on the same amount of style in a separate house.

"It is this fact which of late years has made apartment life the choice of even very rich people—who have thus done away with all the fuss and powdered hair and silk stockings that are a fashion in some wealthy homes. Young people especially do not care to saddle themselves with the care of large homes and the retinue of help that must be housed and fed and dressed for all seasons.

"The flat idea simplifies living, and the simpler you make home life the nearer perfection it approaches. The more entertainment, state, ceremony in living, the further you get from true home life.

"But, passing from the homes of wealth to those of the fairly well-to-do, the middle classes and the working people, it is impossible to overestimate the advantages of the flat as a home. It saves the wife and mother and her assistants the needless work that in the old days made housekeeping a genuine terror to women. Housekeeping women now have time for rest, for study, for the care of their bodies, for amusement, and even for clubs, things which in the old days were denied them. The old fashioned house made women old in effect long before their time.

"In the days before flats were general the wife and mother of average means lived in a two or three-story and basement house. Generally she kept a servant. Each morning a fire was kindled newly in a kitchen two flights of stairs below the sleeping floor, sometimes beneath the ground surface, and therefore damp.

"In the ordinary work of a day she had to journey up and down stairs more than a dozen times, in itself no small strain on a woman's strength. Those same stairs had to be dusted each day, and a back porch sometimes, and always an areaway to be kept clean, with brasses or silver to shine.

"Vestibules had to be cleaned daily, and as for the basement area, it became the receptacle for all sorts of germ breeders. And the cellar! What a trial it was in the old time home! It must be whitewashed and cleaned yearly, and there was a furnace to be attended to.

"The basement became symbolic of drudgery. It did much to brutalize the idea of housework, which idea still holds today with some—namely, that the labor of caring for a home practically is degrading. The house, too, had dozens of windows to be cleaned, and this was before the days of window cleaning companies.

"The solitary servant earned her wages in such a house, which really required two servants. She had to hang the wash out in the back yard in all weathers instead of ascending to the roof, as she does now, the clothes being sent up in an elevator, and there being possibly an indoor drying room for bad weather. Every spring and fall there was a housecleaning. Carpets were ripped up and a demoralization set in that became the theme of humorists.

"We never clean house in that fashion now, certainly not in flats where rugs are generally used and are shaken every week. We are far more clean and hygienic than our grandmothers of the days before flats, and we keep our youth longer.

"A flat is kept perfectly clean with about half the labor required for a house of the same number of rooms. Refuse of all sorts is disposed of each day. Old furniture and clothing is got rid of, for there is no place for it, and out it goes to some one who can use it.

"There are chutes for the removal of waste paper, ashes; there are dumb-waiters that bring up groceries, and as for the new and up-to-date apartments with their thirty rooms and four baths a description sounds like a fairy tale. There are electric equipments in many of them for cooking; safes, cold air refrigerators, telephones between the rooms.

"But it is the average woman that benefits even more than her richer sister. She can keep house with ease, and if she has the gift of management at much less expense than formerly.

"Young couples who could not afford a house in the old flatless days betook themselves to a boarding house, where they had the glory of dwelling in a private house at all events. It is true that in those first days a flat was considered a decidedly Bohemian method of life, but so were rugs in place of carpets, and upright pianos were no better than they should be to the ultra-conservative.

"Nearly all young people, and certainly all women, who marry nowadays, look forward to a flat, no matter how small. The girl, if she knows anything, is aware of the small economies it makes possible, and the man should know that the responsibility, the caring for a home, by each of them means much toward their happiness.

"Getting up to light the fire is no longer a bugbear, as it used to be. It simply means rising in a warmed and well ventilated set of rooms and lighting the gas under a ten kettle.

"Bread and milk are brought to the kitchen. The dining room is but a step away. Preparing breakfast under such conditions is like play in comparison with the old way of climbing down two flights of stairs to a cold and gloomy basement and getting in wood and coal to start a fire.

"Then how pipes used to freeze in the winter in those detached dwellings with basements! Now a woman can alone, if need be, cook and serve a meal, daintily and without any of the slavish labor that was necessary when coal and wood and ashes had to be attended to and when they seemed made for a race of giants.

The kitchen has ceased to be a scullery. It is part of the home, and in the average flat it is the most cheerful and best kept room of the house. And the most popular hotel dwellers envy flatters nothing so much as their dirty little kitchens, and the cook's day out is a time for culinary larking.

People who leave their comfortable flats for cottages in the country about this time of year get their first shock when they find how much more work is necessary and how much busier the one or two servants seem to be kept. It is true that flat dwelling crowds humanity somewhat, especially in the lower priced places, and it is not so dignified as the idea of the one roof over the one home. But as every commuter learns in time this is largely a poetic fancy. The one roof leaks often!

"In the newer and finer apartments there are nursery suites, with deadened floors and walls, safety windows, and all kinds of sanitary arrangements for ventilation. There are no stairs for baby to tumble down, and in one house overlooking the Hudson there is a wire protected balcony that can be used as a playground in the daytime and a bedroom at night.

"Flats surely were invented by a friend to womankind. They lessen the drudgery and better the physical condition. The flat system opened the door to a new life. It is a scientific answer to the problem of household labor, just as the sewing machine came to relieve the weary seamstress.

"To a great extent it has solved the servant problem, and it certainly has made life easier for the servant."

THE MARGIN OF PROFIT.

Charles M. Schwab, at a reception he gave to the boilermakers of America during their convention in Detroit, said he neither knew personally nor by repute a single dishonest American millionaire.

Discussing business ethics afterwards Mr. Schwab very luminously pointed out the fact that fairness compounded at so much on the dollar, are not quite so unjust to the creditors concerned as some people seem to think.

"'For instance,' said Mr. Schwab, 'there was a general storekeeper near Loretto who was forced to the wall by the hard times, and resolved to make an assignment. He figured out that he would be able to pay 40 cents on the dollar.

"'Well, a certain wholesale grocer that he had dealt pretty heavily with heard of his plight, and came post haste to see him.

"'What!' the grocer shouted. 'Going to make an assignment! Pay only 40 cents on the dollar! A pretty state of things this is!'

"'Calm yourself, Mr. Cangoods,' said the general storekeeper. 'It is true I am going to assign. These hard times have played the very deuce with me. And it's true I'm going to pay 40 cents on the dollar. But all your goods, it happens, are intact; not a case has been opened; and they shall be returned to you at once.'

"But Cangoods sneered:

"'What!' he shouted, angrier than ever. 'Return my goods! Not on your life. I insist on my lawful 40 per cent, the same as the other creditors.'"

CALIFORNIA BROWN PELICAN.

Los Angeles Times: The pelican familiar to the visitor at the seaside resorts of Southern California is known as the California brown pelican. His length is from four to five feet and his wings and tail are of silver gray streaked with seal brown.

The breeding range of these interesting birds is off the coast of Mexico and Lower California. May and June are the nesting months. Occasionally they build their nests in low trees, but ordinarily it is on the ground. It is a loosely constructed affair, built of weed stalks and sticks and lined with grass.

At the seaside the pelicans are seen lazily flying through the air. It is their fashion to fly one behind the other. Each, following the signal from the leader, gives five or six strokes and then all soar in unison. At feeding time their wont is to drive the fish by a noisy beating of the wings to a point close in shore, when the birds will dive from considerable heights. This performance is quite spectacular, as with closely folded wings the bird drops as a ball headforemost into the water. Under the water they evidently turn a somersault, as the bird invariably emerges head first.

The pouch or game bag of the pelican will hold ten or fifteen pounds of fish, and as the bird is provided with no means of defense, he is the victim of sure-thing operators and confidence workers in the form of predatory gulls. Too lazy to fish for themselves, these thieves will pursue and attack the pelican, causing him to dive as a matter of self-protection. So closely are the pelicans pursued by their more agile enemies that finally, half exhausted, they give up the trophies of their chase. This they do with a cynical smile as they see their hard-earned gain gobbled by the gulls.

A. H. W. ECKSTEIN, of Richardson-Eckstein-Millen Co., Grain Commission, Duluth.

DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY

The "Coppers," as this property is locally known, are located in the Mazatzall mountains, about 15 miles west of the village of Payson, Tonto Basin, on the southwest side of the East Verde river, in an air line about 60 miles south-of-east of Jerome. The group consists of 44 claims, running north and south, six claims in length, taking in the three big ledges which they were located to cover. Through the east side of the property, and traversing the entire length of the group, is a mammoth iron dyke, which contains shutes of ore that carry 17 per cent copper, as well as 5 ounces of silver and 80 cents in gold. Elsewhere in the southwest where a similar iron has been developed, there has always been a pay mine opened.

Through the six center and west line claims the immense ore outcroppings run in which at intervals there are large and rich deposits of high grade copper ore, and from all of it pay assays have been the result where samples have been taken. Running along the west line of the "Coppers" is an immense slate dyke, and along its east side an immense porphyry dyke. The formations are iron of different character, porphyry, a slate-porphyry and slate. The ground has every appearance of being in place, and where work has been done it has so proven.

In several places cuts have been made into the outcroppings, all of them being in pay rock. There is an abundance of water and timber for all mining and smelting purposes. Power for the mines would be taken from the Fossil creek power proposition, which is now being developed. The claims are only 12 miles from the power plant.

EXTRACTS FROM ENGINEER'S REPORT

Jerome, Aug. 5, 1908.—To the Stockholders of the Mazatzal Copper company: The manager submits the following report of the work on the property to date and a review of our plans and expectations for the future:

In driving the Bullfrog tunnel a body of siliceous sulphide ore, apparently of vein formation was encountered and gave assay values of 5½ per cent copper, 5 per cent galena, 2 ounces silver and 40 cents gold.

I decided to explore this ore body and drifted on it for a distance of 170 feet to the south. For the first twenty-two feet we had sulphides ranging in value from 4 to 11 per cent, the higher values being from the floor of the drift and then carbonate ores for nearly 150 feet assaying from 6 to 15 per cent with occasional samples as high as 23 per cent.

At 70 feet from the main tunnel a crosscut was run to the west for thirty feet, showing a width of thirty-five feet with NEITHER WALL exposed and showing carbonate ores of good grade. The face of the main drift has a vertical depth of 140 feet under a splendid surface croppings of carbonate ore.

Another tunnel 400 feet to the south of the Bullfrog shows a width of 25 feet of carbonate ore in the same ore body.

Believing that water level would define the sulphide zone, a shaft was started in the crosscut just mentioned. A station was cut, a hoist purchased and at this date the shaft was down thirty-one feet. For the first sixteen feet good carbonates were found. At the bottom permanency of formation is very evident, there being well defined laminations of carbonates and a rather soft vein filling showing dip and strike conforming to the slate hanging wall. ELIMINATING THE CARBONATES, this vein filling, coated with copper sulphide, assays from 2 to 4 per cent.

Since the commencement of operations I have at no time been so well satisfied with the results and future prospects as at this time. I am confident that depth alone is necessary to disclose sulphide ore bodies of great extent, of good commercial value, and judging from the strike and dip as exposed at a depth of thirty feet, I will not be surprised to find the ore body fully 75 to 100 feet in width at about 100 to 125 feet of depth.

By the first of the year, barring unforseen accidents, I believe that this work will prove that the exceptional surface indications have developed into still larger and better ore bodies at depth and we can with confidence assert that within the next two years the "Mazatzal" will be classed with the Copper Queen of Arizona, the United Verde or the Cananea.

We are now equipped with a boiler, compressor, hoist and pump and our intention is to sink 200 feet and do such crosscutting and drifting as may be deemed advisable in addition to advancing the Bullfrog tunnel a distance of about seventy feet to the next big cropping or ledge. This work will be expedited by the use of larger power drills now on the way to the property.

It should be remembered that we are but twelve miles from the location of the first power station of the Arizona Power company, and that this company expects to deliver 1,500-horse power to the United Verde alone by February next year.

The belief of my associates and myself in the development of one of the notable mines of the West has not only never wavered, but is today stronger, if possible, than ever.

I feel safe in saying that the element of uncertainty attending all new mining ventures is eliminated as far as the "Mazatzal Copper company," is concerned and I am satisfied that we will open up ore bodies that will surprise the natives.

JOSEPH J. SHAW.

DEVELOPMENT WORK TO DATE

DEVELOPMENT WORK WAS COMMENCED IN JANUARY, 1907, AND HAS BEEN CONTINUED WITHOUT INTERRUPTION UP TO THE PRESENT TIME, AND THE RESULT IS THAT WE HAVE OVER 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifting, sinking and cross-cutting done to date with most gratifying results to the present stockholders.

Splendid and encouraging reports received weekly and this stock will advance fast, because every foot of sinking or drifting in every direction as it is continued, is in solid and rich ore, and the only dead work done now is in driving and advancing the Bullfrog or main tunnel to the next KNOWN LARGE ORE BODY only 70 feet away, which it is expected will be reached by October 1st or sooner. Our first ore body is fully 60 feet wide and known to be over 400 feet long and the development work shows up more daily, both in drifting on the ore body and sinking on same. Within 90 days the stock will advance to $5 per share and in eight or ten months it will sell for $10 or more, and IN TWO YEARS WILL SELL FOR $50 a share AND IN 4 YEARS FOR $100 OR MORE, AND IN THE MEANTIME PAY HANDSOME DIVIDENDS TO THE FORTUNATE HOLDER OF THE STOCK.

Future Development Work and Plans

decided upon during the next eight or ten months include—

FIRST—1,000 feet of new drifting, cross-cutting and sinking, and continuing the Bullfrog Tunnel to the next big ore body, only 70 feet away now.
SECOND—Of installing a 250-ton smelter and increasing the capacity as fast as possible.
THIRD—Of increasing the force, and push development work vigorously.

REMEMBER IT'S A WINNER

WE OWN FORTY-FOUR MINING CLAIMS—(600x1,500 feet each), embracing 880 acres, in a solid body. Located to cover the three big ledges, two miles long; have absolute and good title and no debts and financially in good shape. Our ore averages 8 per cent copper, and is getting richer as we go deeper, where we have solid and high-grade sulphides below water level and that our engineer says, (and he knows what he is talking about, having been, and still is, closely connected with the "United Verde" for the past three years, and prior thereto with the great "Iron Mountain" Copper company of California for a number of years), THAT IN TWO YEARS THE MAZATZAL COPPER COMPANY'S MINE will be classed with such prominent and well known mines as the "United Verde" of Jerome, Copper Queen of Bisbee, Arizona, and the Cananea.

ALSO REMEMBER

That the Company already has many heavy well pleased stockholders in Duluth, and that the subscription books will open Wednesday morning next, September 9th, and the stock will undoubtedly be all subscribed for within two or three days, from assurances already received.

The right is reserved in event of over-subscription, to reject any subscription, either wholly or in part.

Refuses to Prosecute.

Archie Hadley was arrested by the Duluth police last night on information furnished by the Superior police. It was charged that he had stolen a diamond ring, valued at $175, and a watch, valued at $75, from a girl. She came to Duluth this morning, he returned the articles and she refused to prosecute, so he was released.

Porterfield In Again.

John Porterfield, who has appeared in police court often during the last year, was arrested again last night on complaint of neighbors, who said that he had been creating a disturbance at home and threatened to injure his wife and children. He was arraigned in police court this morning and his examination set for tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Ordered Out Again.

William Goodman, a short change artist known as the "Jew Kid," who was ordered out of Duluth for two years some time ago, telephoned over from Superior yesterday that he wanted to come across and collect some money a man here owed him. The police thought he was a different Goodman, so consented, but when Officer Rerg saw him on the street he arrested him. He was released in police court this morning, but warned to get out of the city by noon.

Showing of Fall Styles.

J. M. Gidding & Company will devote this week to a very informal showing of the new season's styles. The object of this display is that all women interested in the fashion changes may feel no hesitation in coming to acquaint themselves with fall modes, even though they are not yet ready to buy.

Wants Fare Home.

The case of Veliko Radeff, a Bulgarian laborer, who applied to the immigration office for fare to his home in Bulgaria, has been taken up by Inspector-in-Charge W. H. Dean. Radeff is a cripple for life, due to a heavy stone falling on his foot in the Wisconsin Central tunnel on July 26.

Would Commit Suicide.

A sensation was created at the state free employment agency Saturday afternoon by Peter Nestadt, who declared that unless he was given work he would commit suicide. James Walsh, manager, provided the man with temporary employment. He claimed to be without work or money, and said he had been so for some time.

MARINE NEWS

BREAKWATER FINISHED.

Hugo & Tims Complete Their Five-Year Contract.

The great concrete breakwater which Hugo & Tims have been building at Harbor Beach, Mich., has been completed. This is one of the largest breakwaters on the Great Lakes and has been five years under construction. It is 4,985 feet in length and 88 feet wide at the water line. The old breakwater was of wood.

Harbor Beach is a place of refuge on Lake Huron.

Smoke on the Lakes.

Ashland, Sept. 7.—The captains report that there is more smoke on the lakes than in years past, especially on Lake Superior, the north part of Lake Michigan and Ontario. Vessels were obliged to anchor last night in Chequamegon bay as the smoke was too thick to get out.

The Ellwood Fumigated.

Ashland, Sept. 7.—Over twenty men were vaccinated on the Ellwood and the steamer was thoroughly fumigated. No one shows any signs of smallpox on board. Joe Tardiff, the fireman who was taken down with the disease, was examined before leaving Chicago and the physicians there stated that he had no smallpox, but the disease was well developed by the time the Ellwood reached the Soo.

The Hurlbut Wrecked.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 7.—Caught in a gale on Lake Superior Saturday night, the steamer Hurlbut was driven ashore near White Fish Point early today, and has since gone to pieces. Her crew was rescued by life savers. The schooner Clint, which the Hurlbut was towing, was picked up in a sinking condition by the Anchor line freighter, Lackawanna, this morning and was beached at White Fish Point. Her crew is safe.

Steamer Hurlbut Ashore.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Anchor line Lackawanna, arriving here last night, reports the steamer Hurlburt ashore twelve miles west of Whitefish Point, and that the Lackawanna had picked up the Hurlburt's tow, the schooner Clint, in a waterlogged condition, with her rigging gone, and had beached her in behind Whitefish Point. Both boats were down bound with stampsand.

They were caught in Saturday night's blow and the machinery of the Hurlburt became disabled, so that she is now reported a total loss. Both crews were saved.

Steamers Collide.

Port Huron, Sept. 7.—((Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Amasa Stone, up bound, early this morning, collided with the steamer Edward bound down, at the turn abreast of Sarnia. Both boats continued on their way.

King Edward a Busy Man.

Even Theodore, the much occupied, is a person of leisure compared with Edward VII. The London correspondent of Town and Country reports the contents of a note from one of the king's equerries stating that "his majesty's engagements do not warrant him in the disposal of a single hour before September." And the note was written early in June.

According to the correspondent, King Edward puts in more time at real work than the emperor of Germany does, for fully a quarter of the emperor's time is occupied in his dressing room. The king seldom changes his clothes more than three times a day, morning, afternoon and evening, whereas the kaiser has become a veritable Fregoli in the manner of donning and doffing his costumes.

The first thing in the morning he is up in the greenish riding costume of a German jager. A hard hour's riding brings him back to his bath, from which he comes adorned in a plain morning costume, made for business purposes. An hour or two in this monotonous garb fully fits the emperor for something more elaborate, and if there is no reception on, he appears in the undress uniform of the guards.

This carries him until luncheon time, after which there are some three hundred uniforms to select from, and as the kaiser usually has two or three functions of some sort to perform he makes use of his vast wardrobe regularly and in proper rotation. It is in the evening that the kaiser is less brilliant.

He makes but a poor show in evening dress; in fact as a civilian he is not a success. His frock coats, according to the discerning editor of the Tailor and Cutter, a sartorial expert, hang loosely and in a most undistinguished manner, and his evening dress waistcoats are things only to be worn by German rentiers and French mayors.

There is only one fortress during all these years that King Edward has not been able to capture, and that is the stern determination of public opinion to resist with all its might the encroachment of the tall white hat. Every season for years, both as king and prince of Wales, he has attempted to lead the nation into the realms of white hatdom, but this is the one thing wherein people will not follow their sovereign.

To advertise your real estate twice as much as another man advertises he does not indicate that you are twice as anxious to sell as he is—but that you know twice as much as he does about how to sell.

SEPTEMBER 5, 1908.

You will notice some of the brokers are quoting Ballaklava at $8.00 to $8.25. Try to buy this stock and you will find that there is nothing offered at all. Which of the stockholders would now sell Ballaklava. The shaft went into solid ore about two days ago—very high grade. It is another time that a big rich mine is being opened up fast. Stock acts at the present time about the same as the C. & A. shares did when the good news began to come. You all remember when C. & A. sold at $10. Do not forget that we are now giving you a mine so rich that even $50 a share may look cheap for it. Stock closed today at $9.00 in this office. Bring it to me.

Buy Butte & Superior. Here is a chance to make ten for one if everything opens up rich, as expected on the 1,200. Do not be afraid to take a chance on this one, for you stand to win big, and only a chance to lose a few cents a share, for the market will not change much on this stock even if they do not get copper in big deposits on the 1,200 they will on the lower levels. Stock closed $1.25 bid. To everybody—Bring in your stock.

We will try to give you the right information on all stocks and treat you absolutely square on everything.

DUVAL IS BOUND OVER

Alleged Forger Waives Examination in Municipal Court.

Duluth Brewing & Malting Co. Loses $25 on Bad Check.

Albert Duval, the alleged forger arrested by the city detectives Saturday night, was arraigned in municipal court this morning and was bound over to the grand jury, which is at present in session. Duval appeared unconcerned in court, waived examination and appeared prepared to go through whatever is before him calmly.

Another of Duval's checks appeared this morning through another beer deal, which netted him $25. The game was the same as that played on the Duluth branch of the Minneapolis Brewing company and the Duluth Brewing & Malting company was the victim. Duval appeared Saturday and ordered a carload of beer, to be shipped to A. S. Stoeckle of Grew, Minn., Wednesday. He tendered a check for $1,900 on the Bank of Willmar and said he would be in today to complete the deal and order the shipment.

He then sprung his game. He said he was temporarily out of funds and asked the manager to cash a check for $25 for him. Not suspecting anything, the manager complied. Both checks were signed A. S. Stoeckle, as were those given to Lawrence Duplais and the Minneapolis Brewing company. The one on the Bank of Willmar was a plain check, while those on the Farmers and Citizens' bank of Bryant, S. D., were printed for Arenson & Stoeckle, real estate dealers.

The police believe that other checks will come to light. As far as is known, Duval is supposed to have drawn checks for $2,578, which netted him $25 in cash. He had 65 cents on his person when he was arrested.

ROAD TO TAKE STRIKERS BACK

Canadian Pacific Unexpectedly Decides to Reinstate Mechanics

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 7.—The Canadian Pacific has decided to take the mechanics on strike back to work this week in their old positions on the wage scale agreed upon by the majority report of the board of conciliation, pending a further investigation by a second board on some points. The decision is an unexpected consession.

THE GOPHER IS PRAISED

Commander White Speaks Highly of Minnisota Naval Militia

Report to Secretary of the Navy is Most Favorable

Commander William P. White's report to the navy department on the United States training ship Gopher, after his inspection at the maneuvers in Lake Michigan last month, is most favorable, and gives great praise to the Minnesota Naval Militia, which manned the boat and carried her ahead of all the other militia ships during the exercises at South Manitou Island.

In the report Mr. White, who was in command of the militia fleet, speaks in the highest terms of the actions of the Minnesota men during the various drills which were a part of the inspection, and has the highest praise for the condition of the ship and the manner in which it was handled during the cruise.

"Too much credit cannot be given to Commander Eaton for the manner in which he has taken this old lighthouse tender and given her the semblance of a well-regulated, well-kept man-of-war," writes Mr. White in his report.

"Lieut. F. S. Whitten, in his report, notes the excellence of the Gopher in all ship's details. He suggests that the armory of this organization be provided with a 4-inch gun, or one of larger caliber, for training at that size of gun.

"The executive officer of the Gopher, Lieut. Commander George H. Scully, U. S. N., has had experience on board a naval vessel, being one of the volunteers during the Spanish-American war, and the cleanliness of the ship and the ship-shape manner in which all drills and exercises were conducted reflects great credit upon Commander Eaton and Lieut. Commander Scully. The men were alert and showed a great aptitude for the work. This organization would, in a short time, if incorporated in a ship's company, become a very valuable factor."

Speaking of the "man overboard" drill, the reports state that the lifeboat's crew of the watch was up forward when the alarm was sounded, and that notwithstanding this fact, the boat was in the water in twenty seconds. The buoy was picked up in one minute and five seconds, and the boat hoisted in two minutes and fifty-two seconds.

The report states that the Gopher rifle team made the best score in the drill with rifle and pistol, at South Manitou, its total score being 1,477. The Dorothea made a score of 1,327 and the Don Juan de Austria a score of 1,275. The Gopher squad was in command of Lieut. Smith.

It is understood that Assistant Secretary of the Navy Newberry is well pleased with the showing made by the Gopher at the maneuvers.

CASEY NEARLY SAVES SUICIDE

Plunges Into Waters and Almost Reaches Drowning One.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attempting to drown himself by making a most spectacular leap from the steel arch bridge, John Stromberg was nearly saved from death yesterday afternoon in the surging waters of the Mississippi, through the heroism of James Casey, an unknown sailor who is believed to have appeared last week in the state fair. Though hampered by heavy clothing, Casey swam to within five feet of the suicide, when the latter sank for the last time.

The suicide and attempted rescue were most spectacular and were witnessed by a large number of people. Stromberg was crazed through drink.

WEST END

SAMARITANS' BIG TIME.

Beta Council Will Initiate Class of Half a Hundred.

About half a hundred candidates will be initiated by Beta Council No. 2, Modern Samaritans and Beneficent Degree at Columbia hall Sept. 14, and members of the organization are planning to make it a gala occasion.

Abel Carlson, imperial deputy organizer, will have charge of the exercises and an invitation to attend has been extended to Alpha Council No. 1 and members of the imperial council, all of Duluth.

The drill teams will give some fancy exhibitions and an interesting program, followed by refreshments, will be given.

Observing the Day.

Labor day is being generally observed in the West end.

The dry goods stores, the shoe stores, grocery stores, butcher shops and similar establishments remained shut all day, with only the drug stores and the confectionery shops open for business.

West End Shortrails.

Rev. S. Slaatte of Evanston, Ill., conducted services in the First Norweigan-Danish M. E. church yesterday morning. He is visiting friends in the West end.

Miss Dagne Olson, formerly of Christiania, Norway, gave a missionary talk at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church last evening. Miss Olson is a missionary by profession. She has been in this country three years.

Mrs. John Simons has returned from St. Paul, where she has been visiting her parents for the past two weeks.

Rev. A. Edstam, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church, will go to St. Paul Tuesday, where he will give a talk before the conference of the Swedish Baptists of America. It is expected that about 600 persons will attend the gathering.

The young people of Zion Norwegian Lutheran church are holding a picnic today at Lester Park.

Doctors Gresley and Haney, who have offices in the Sloan block, have gone to Chicago.

The stewards of the First Swedish Methodist church will meet in the church parlors Wednesday evening.

A number of West end people went to Two Harbors on the excursion yesterday.

FIGHTS FOR HIS WATCH

Alleged Thief and Victim Are Both Badly Used Up

Joe Brer Follows John Chomczyk From Two Harbors

A fight, in which both men were pretty badly used up, was interrupted by Patrolman Dickman last night in the railroad yards on lower Fifth avenue west. Joe Brer and John Chomczyk were the principals and when the officer came upon them, they were both bleeding freely and were almost exhausted from an hour's fighting. A knife was evidently brought into the fight, but both men denied using it and the police could not find it.

Chomczyk could not speak English, so Brer's story was the only side heard. He said that yesterday morning at Two Harbors, Chomczyk had stolen his coat and watch. After hunting for him in Two Harbors, Brer took a train for Duluth and Chomczyk got on the same train a little farther down. On arriving at the station, Brer accosted Chomczyk and asked him what had become of the articles. Chomczyk broke away and ran down Fifth avenue. Brer overtook him and Chomczyk picked up a rock and threw it, breaking Brer's wrist.

The fight started behind a freight shed and by the time the officer came on the men, they were both pretty well used up. Brer's hands were both injured and he had numerous cuts and bruises. Chomczyk's face was badly cut and he had a scalp wound several inches long. The men were arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct this morning and their examination was set for tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

DUNCAN M'LEAN DIES AT HIS HOME

Old Resident of Duluth Passes Away Among His Children

Duncan McLean, one of Duluth's oldest residents, passed away at the age of 89 years, at his home at 1016 East Sixth street, Saturday. He leaves seven children, Mrs. David McCarter, Mrs. R. R. Knox and Julia, Hector, Angus, J. D. and Duncan McLean. They were all present at his bedside when he died.

Mr. McLean was born in Scotland, on the island of Mull. He emigrated to Canada as a boy, and soon after his arrival enlisted in the famous McKenzie rebellion of 1837. He came to Duluth in 1882 and has since made his home here. Mr. McLean was a familiar figure on the streets here and his death will be sincerely regretted by his wide circle of friends and those of his family.

NORTH WIND WINS SECOND PLACE

Peter Pan Second With Yaqui Third—Good Stiff Breeze.

In the second of the races for the Consolation prizes for 28-foot boats, held under the auspices of the Duluth Yacht club Saturday afternoon, the North Wind, sailed by Frank Farrell, won first, with Peter Pan second, and Yaqui third. The course lay from the clubhouse to the Imperial mill, to the dyke, and back to the clubhouse twice around.

The strongest wind of the season was experienced by the sailors, and they all had to take reefs in their sails before starting out.

Wedding at Joyland.

Miss Matilda Eckhorn and John Bergerholz were married at Joyland yesterday afternoon and several hundred guests were present at the ceremony. The bridal couple and the officiating clergyman, Rev. Willes Asher of New York, stood on the public platform during the ceremony. The congratulations were cheers from the crowd, and Mr. Bergerholz and his bride went for a wedding trip on the Ferris wheel, which was reserved for their exclusive use.

NASHWAUK IS PROBABLY SAFE

Nashwauk, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of buildings on the outskirts of town were destroyed by the forest fires on Saturday and Sunday. Men are at work fighting the fires on all sides of the village, and it is believed the danger to the town has passed, although fires are burning on all sides. The Dupont powder house was in danger Saturday, but a fortunate shifting of the wind sent the fire in another direction.

NO BAD FIRES ON COLERAINE LINE

W. H. Fenstermacher, the local real estate man, came down this morning from Coleraine. He says that brush fires were prevalent in the woods all along the line yesterday, but that they have apparently burned themselves out today, and no apprehension is felt for the towns along that branch of the D., M. & N. All of the towns are on the alert now, and there is little probability that any of them will suffer.

CLOTHING FOR THE CHILDREN

"Clothing for the women and children of Chisholm seems to be needed most just now from what we hear from the range," said W. A. McGonagle, general manager of the Missabe road, when discussing the situation with a reporter for The Herald this morning. "The men can wear almost anything; overalls and all that sort of thing, but there is a great need of clothing of all kinds for the women and the youngsters. Most of them were obliged to flee in such a hurry that they were unable to save anything but the clothes they had on their backs. They lost about everything they had, and they need clothes."

Bishop McGolrick, from what he had heard from the scenes of the fires, expressed the same sentiment.

WAS DETERMINED TO KILL HERSELF

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 8.—Mrs. Mary Cooper, 40, shot and killed herself Saturday night on a farm near Inkster, N. D. She first attempted to end her life by drinking laudanum, but was unsuccessful. The physician attending her was about to leave the farm, when the woman procured a revolver and shot herself twice, the first bullet entering the abdomen and second the head. Ill health was the cause of the act. She leaves a husband and two children.

PACKAGE WITH $52,000 STOLEN

Portland, Or., Sept. 8.—A package, entrusted to the care of the Wells-Fargo Express company at Salem, Or., by J. R. Albert, president of the Capital National bank of that city, and addressed to Joseph M. Meyers, at the Portland hotel here, containing notes and other valuable papers, representing $52,000, is missing.

The package was taken some time between 11:30 p. m. Aug. 21 and 1:30 a. m. Aug. 22. During these hours the men in the express office are rushed with work, and it is possible the door of the office was left open for a few moments and that the thief entered then.

COWBOY MAYOR IS 1,800 VOTE LOSER

J. C. DAHLMAN.

Omaha, Sept. 8.—"Jim" Dahlman, Omaha's popular "cowboy mayor," has lost in the contest for the Democratic nomination for governor of Nebraska by 1,800 votes. The nomination goes to A. C. Shallenberger of Alma, with Berge, Populist, third in the race. Mayor Dahlman was one of William Jennings Bryan's chief henchmen at the recent national Democratic convention in Denver, and was understood to have Mr. Bryan's personal support for the nomination for governor.

Oyster Bay Report Tells of Attack From Ambush on President.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 8.—A searching investigation is being made today to determine the circumstances giving rise to the report that a shot was fired from ambush upon President Roosevelt, last Saturday. Every foot of ground in the vicinity where the attempt is alleged to have been made, is being gone over, and the closest quest is being prosecuted to ascertain whether or not any person to whom suspicion might attach was seen in the vicinity of Oyster Bay, about the time the shot is said to have been fired.

According to the story in circulation here, a shot was fired from a

PERISHED IN THE SLEEPER

Brainerd, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sleeping car attached to Northern Pacific passenger train No. 14, Eastbound, caught fire at Staples last night, while the train was standing on a siding, preparatory to starting out, and was destroyed. Four other cars were badly burned. Mrs. Joseph Eitts, of Lisbon, N. D., perished in the sleeper, being suffocated before she could be warned of danger. The other occupants of the car escaped. The origin of the fire is not known.

NEAR RACE WAR; NEGROES ARMING

Kansas City, Sept. 8.—Since the killing of a white man by a negro, Saturday, there has been a growing fear of a race war among the colored population, and the police learn that many of them are purchasing firearms.

A pownbroker reports that negroes have purchased all the shotguns, rifles and revolvers in his store, besides a large amount of ammunition.

Robert Thomas, a negro was arrested yesterday for carrying a revolver, and Robert Maupin, another negro, fatally wounded himself while cleaning a revolver, which it is believed he intended to carry for his own protection.

Excited groups of colored men have been dispersed by the police.

GIRL PERFORMER HANGING BY TEETH, SLIDES TO DEATH

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 8.—Mlle. Marie La Blanche, one of the performers at the Toronto exhibition, was fatally injured last night. Her act was to slide down a wire stretched from a high pole to the ground, hanging by her teeth. She had hardly started when the pole began to lean over, causing the wire to sag and throwing her to the ground. Her spine was broken.

SUMMARY OF FIRE CONDITIONS.

Aurora is apparently out of danger. The fires came up close to the town, but were fought back.

Mitchell is safe, the Missabe road having fought back the fires and saved its yards there.

The fate of Snowball is in doubt. All wires are down and there is no way of getting into communication with it. It is nearest to the Great Northern road, and the superintendent's office at Superior has had no word of its destruction.

All three range roads have men out fighting the fires all along their lines, and reports received at local offices this morning, are to the effect that the fires are apparently burning themselves out in the woods, and that no more towns have been destroyed.

The fires are reported as far east and north as Grand Marais, Minnesota, and it is stated that there is some danger to that village.

The fire has spread right down to Duluth's back doors. The woods are ablaze in the district about French river, and only a few miles back of the city there are reports of fires.

The weather bureau forecasts light showers, probably not heavy enough to do any great good, and predicts winds raging from thirty to forty miles an hour, swinging from the southwest to the northwest. This may cause a renewed outburst of the fire, all over the ranges.

The fire has broken out again in the northern part of Douglas county, Wis., and the towns of Coyne and South Range are threatened. Help has been sent out from Superior to the threatened villages.

McCARREN AND MURPHY ENGAGE IN A STRUGGLE AT THE PRIMARIES

New York, Sept. 8.—More interesting than any other feature of the Republican primaries in Greater New York today is a so-called Hughes test. In all the ten assembly districts in Manhattan and two in Brooklyn the voters will be asked whether they favor the renomination of the governor.

There are contests among Republicans for leadership in seven Manhattan and Bronx districts, but there is little more than local interest in them.

Except for the struggle in Kings county, which may mean the downfall of Senator McCarren and the triumph in that borough of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall, there is also little of general interest that is foreshadowed for the Democratic primaries either in that county or this, but Queens county has a lively contest by the ex-borough president, Joseph Cassidy, to regain control from Sheriff Herbert S. Harvey.

URGE BRYAN TO SPEAK A MONTH

National Committeemen Believe He Should Camp on Trail of Taft.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Preliminary to the invasion of the East by William J. Bryan, members of the Democratic national committee held a counsel of war today and studied plans devised to bring victory. There were conferences of the advisory and finance committees and they joined in a general conference in which Bryan took part.

It is believed the effort to have Bryan take the stump during the entire month of October will prove successful. In view of the announcement that Taft will make a speaking trip through the Middle West and the East, the Democratic leaders believe the fight should be forced all along the line until election day and that to that end Bryan should continue his trips until the campaign's end.

theYonolimfw mf mf mf mf mf mf m

Chairman Mack and other members of the committee are not a little concerned over the question whether Bryan's strength would enable him to duplicate the arduous campaign of 1896 though Bryan has said he is willing to do whatever the committee feels is required.

The committees will try to stimulate further public interest in the Democratic precinct clubs as a potent factor in bringing about the election of Bryan. Upon these clubs and the Democratic press the national committee is depending for its campaign funds.

INDEPENDENTS NAME A TICKET

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 8.—At a meeting of members of the Independence party of Minnesota last night, the following state ticket was selected, which will be put before the voters at the election in November:

Governor, William W. Allen, St. Paul; lieutenant governor, Roscoe B. Higbee, St. Paul; secretary of state, J. G. Waterson, mayor of Scanlon, Minn.; attorney general, John T. P. Powers, St. Paul; treasurer, Andrew Nordloz, Willmar; chairman state central committee, Roscoe B. Higbee; secretary state central committee, Arnold Joerns, Duluth.

HIBBING IS IN GRAVE DANGER

Flames Getting Nearer and Business Places Closed.

Duluth Ships Engine and Hose to Threatened Town.

Coleraine and Bovey Safe Now Unless the Wind Changes.

Hibbing, the largest and most prosperous town on the Mesaba range, is threatened with destruction by fire.

Despite the fact that the city is fairly well protected by clearings and large open pit mines, the flames have been getting closer all the time and every place of business in the town is closed and the men are all out fighting the flames.

"The fire is getting dangerously close and the situation looks serious," is the opening sentence of a telegram received from J. W. Kreitter, superintendent of the Missabe, at the general offices of the road at 3:30 this afternoon.

The rest of the telegram follows:

"The fire comes very near the Great Northern spur on this side of Brooklyn, a suburb of Hibbing, and the wind is blowing in our direction, but not so hard as an hour ago.

"The city has all available hose out and every man we can find is fighting the fire. They have established a pipe line and installed two pumps there. The sky is clearing of smoke somewhat now, but we are threatened on the north side as well.

"Ten Oliver engines just passed with men going to fight the fire. The schools are closed; the business houses are closed and have sent their men out to fight the fire. All the saloons are closed."

The Duluth fire department has just received a telegram from the department at Hibbing asking that an engine and all the hose that can be spared, shipped to them by special train at once. Chief Black, with a number of men and the engine, left Duluth shortly after 4 o'clock for the scene of the fire.

The Missabe road, realizing the danger of the inhabitants of the range, has trains in waiting at Hibbing to take the people away from the scene of danger.

Smoke from the forest fires, which surround the town, make Hibbing so dark that the electric lights have been turned on there all day, to enable the citizens to see their way about.

The smoke is stifling and is causing a great deal of discomfort. The heat is also very oppressive.

COLERAINE AND BOVEY SAFE.

Unless the wind changes, Coleraine and Bovey will be safe from fire for the present at least.

According to the latest advices from those towns, the situation looked serious for a while this afternoon, but the wind is now blowing the fire in an opposite direction from the towns.

The schools and business houses are all closed and everyone is out fighting the fire and preparing to vacate their homes at a moment's notice.

The following telegram was received from Coleraine and Bovey at 3:45 at the Duluth, Missabe & Northern offices:

"Fire is in the timber about half a mile northeast of Coleraine and half a mile directly north of Bovey. There are fires half a mile east of Bovey as well. The wind is blowing from fifteen to twenty miles an hour, but is taking the fire away from Coleraine and Bovey.

"There are no fires close to any of our buildings, except northeast of here, where a section house is in some danger. However it does look serious.

"It looked bad for a while this afternoon. The schools and business places are closed and everyone is out fighting the fire. Some are packing their belongings. There seems to be a big fire north of here."

WEATHER—Partly cloudy and cooler tonight and Wednesday, with probably local showers.

MUNICIPAL COURT.

Eleven Jury Cases Up for Trial at September Term.

The municipal court September term will open tomorrow morning. There are eleven jury cases, two of them criminal actions and the other civil cases, up for jury trial. None of the cases is of much consequence.

One criminal case is that of the city against C. A. Johnson, charged with selling milk that fell below the butterfat test. The other case is against Charles Ruprecht, charged with the theft of a row boat from Park Point.

Is Kicked By Horse.

Moose Lake, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Alfred Anderson, who lives on a farm near here, was kicked in the head and rendered unconscious, by a horse she was trying to lead into the barn, Sunday. Her condition is serious, but she will probably recover.

FRANTIC WOMEN

Organic disturbances of the feminine system act like a firebrand on the nerves of women, often driving them fairly frantic.

A nervous, irritable woman is a source of misery not only to herself, but to all those who come under her influence. That such conditions can be entirely overcome by taking is proven by the following letters.

Mrs. Mary Wood, of Christiana, Tenn., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had the worst form of female troubles and my nerves were all torn to pieces; sometimes I suffered so much that it seemed as though I could not live.

"I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I feel like a different person. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold, and I cannot say enough for your advice."

Mrs. Wallace Wilson, Thompsonville, Conn., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was all run down, nervous, and could not rest nights. Doctors failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to perfect health."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

GRAND MARAIS IS IN GREAT DANGER OF BEING BURNED AND NO AVENUE OF ESCAPE

Forest Fires Raging Within a Mile of the Town and Fate of the Place is in Doubt.

East Wind Would Cause the Town's Destruction Within an Hour and the People Would Probably Perish.

Grand Marais, Minn., on the north shore, is in the clutches of the fire demon. The people are in worse straits than the range people, in that they have no place to flee to. Forest fires are raging within a mile of the town. Women are weeping with fright, and the worst part of the situation is that there is no avenue of escape open. Al J. Smith, county attorney of Hennepin county, who has been camping beyond Grand Marais with Judge Purdy and Judge Noyes, also of Minneapolis, was burned out at his camp and with his party had to escape to Grand Marais in a launch.

Settlers in the country along the north shore are walking into Grand Marais, arriving smoke begrimed, burned and exhausted, with packs of their most valuable belongings on their backs and their families dragging wearily along behind them.

There was an incendiary fire in Grand Marais a week ago, which has added to the terror of the people. The woods are dry as tinder, as there has not been a drop of rain in the north shore country for fourteen weeks. The fire is rushing down upon the town in great bounds.

Mr. Smith and his friends marshalled the terror stricken citizens of Grand Marais for a meeting last night and got forty men to widen the clearing around the town. The smoke, according to Mr. Smith, who came to Duluth on the America this morning, is growing so dense as to make breathing difficult. The citizens fear suffocation before a boat can reach them.

When he left, the fate of the town was in doubt. The citizens were loath to leave their homes and belongings without making a fight for them, so many of them remained behind. Women, weeping, begged those who went to send a boat back for them quickly. They wanted the steamer Gopher to come up and lie in the harbor, so that if necessary there might be a place to flee to. The Gopher could perform a wonderful work in picking up settlers along the shore, they argued.

It is reported that homesteaders along the north shore have left their cabins and are sleeping in tents and in the open, close to the lake shore. Mr. Smith says that an east wind will bring on the destruction of Grand Marais in an hour, and no power on earth can save the town. If fire comes before a boat gets there, the fate of the population of the little town is a matter of considerable doubt.

An Authoritative Showing of Fall Fashions

KEEPING in close touch with the Arbiters of Fashion, and devoting our entire energy to the correct dressing of women and girls, we are enabled to show more exclusive creations than any other Duluth concern.

Thus we have always taken the initiative in fashion-showing for the vicinity, and the present display eclipses all previous successes. This is indeed a weighty statement when one stops to consider the broad scope and fashion-exclusiveness which have ever characterized Gidding displays.

Our two-store purchasing power, and a New York office with its eye on every fashion move, enables us to present fashions to our patrons simultaneously with the New York merchant.

This Informal Display presents an opportunity for every woman to post herself on the styles of the season.

Beside the grown-ups' wear—the snappy Junior Suits are a feature of the showing—sizes 12 to 20 years.

FIRES APPROACH CITY OF ASHLAND

Municipality Not Afraid, But Nearby Farming Country Endangered.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a strong southwest wind blowing and a continuation of abnormally dry weather, conditions are ideal for forest fires. The air is full of smoke, which extended practically all over Lake Superior.

Two requests for help have been telephoned to Ashland this morning. One came from White River, where the Wisconsin Central has a large crew at work. The other was from the farming region south of Ashland. Fires have jumped the road and are gradually getting nearer Ashland. The timber was removed near Ashland years ago and there is no danger to the city, but farmers may suffer. Not since the great Hinckley fire has there been so much smoke.

PUT LITERATURE IN HIS BED

John Porterfield Says His Wife Drove Him to Drink.

John Porterfield of Duluth Heights, arrested on a drunk and disorderly charge, said in police court this morning that he had been driven to drink, because his wife was a fanatic on Christian Science. He was arrested, because he abused his wife, and threatened her with bodily harm Saturday night. Judge Windom gave him a jail sentence of twenty days straight, without the alternative of a fine.

"Only a man with an extraordinarily strong character and will power could keep from drinking or committing suicide if compelled to live with her, your honor," said Porterfield on the witness stand. "I never drank to any extent until she became daffy on religion. She has filled the house with Christian Science literature, and insists that I read it, too. Not content with having the literature strewn all over the place, she even places it in my bed, and at times I have been compelled to sleep in the front room on the couch.

"I don't want to study up on Christian Science, but she gets angry if I don't comply with her requests. She is of a nervous temperament, and gets mad very easily. I get along better with her when I am drunk than when I am sober. If I run out of the house to the barn, to escape her eternal Chrisian Science talk, and settle quietly down on a bale of hay, the first thing I know she comes poking her head through the door, with one of the books in her hand, and insists on my reading it. If any ordinary man wouldn't drink after all that persecution, I'd like to know the reason why."

Judge Windom did not seem to place a great deal of confidence in the man's remarks as to the cause of his drinking, and reminded him that he had imbibed more or less before Mrs. Porterfield took up Christian Science. Porterfield has been in police court several times before because of his drinking. He has been engaged in the lumber business, and has done very well, it is understood, although it is claimed that drink has cut largely into his income. He claims Mrs. Porterfield has practically forced him out of business, by asking people around town not to trust him with any money.

ELEVEN ARE INDICTED

Grand Jury Makes First Report to District Court.

William Schreiber Charged With Murder in the First Degree.

The grand jury, which went into session last Wednesday, made its first report this morning, returning eleven indictments against prisoners now in custody in the county jail. One charges murder in the first degree, two grand larceny in the first degree and one assault in the first degree.

William Schreiber is charged with murder in the first degree. He is alleged to have murdered a companion, Frank Massapust, Feb. 9 last on the ne¼, Section 12, Township 62 north, Range 20 west, north of Virginia. He was arrested some time after the alleged crime and is held at the county jail.

Joseph Tingler, who is alleged to have stolen a watch from L. J. Emery of the Spalding hotel Aug. 4, was indicted for grand larceny in the first degree, and John Smith, who is alleged to have received the watch from Tingler Aug. 10, knowing that it was stolen, was indicted for receiving stolen property.

John Peterson, who is alleged to have pointed a revolver at one Myrtle Willard of Duluth June 6 of last year, was indicted for assault in the second degree.

Two indictments were returned against Ray Nichols, one jointly with Bert Moore and the other against him alone. The joint indictment charges that Nichols and Moore swindled Wallace Lapp out of $20 on Aug. 15 by means of a pool game. The indictment against Nichols charges that Feb. 24 of this year he swindled Hjalmar Sathers out of $20 through a pool game.

Patrick Connelly is charged with grand larceny in the first degree in the theft of a watch from one J. P. Murray at Proctorknott April 9, 1906. The watch was valued at $35.

Leander Korti, who is alleged to have stabbed August Knutl, marshal of Aurora, July 19, was indicted on a charge of assault in the first degree. Knutl was badly slashed and it was feared for a time that his injuries would be fatal.

Leander Oman is indicted for burglary in the third degree in entering the store of R. Steinberg at Virginia on May 26, 1908.

Fred Ballard was indicted for forgery in the second degree. It is charged that on June 19 he passed a forged check for $6, drawn on the City National Bank of Duluth, purported to be made to the order of Frank Baker by Martin & Thomas per H. Y.

Frank Johnson, who is alleged to have stolen two gold rings and a brooch pin from Mrs. Clara Schmitz of 37 North Central avenue Aug. 15, was indicted on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree.

It is expected the grand jury will be in session for several days yet, as there are still a considerable number of cases to be investigated. A report will probably be made every day. If the ninety Montenegrins, who were arrested on the range, charged with looting the ruins of Hibbing, are brought before the present grand jury, their work will be considerably extended.

Pioneer Lawyers of Duluth.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The News Tribune in this morning's edition makes an attempt to publish a full list of the pioneer lawyers of Duluth, and those locating here during the following years up to 1890, and subsequent thereto, a full and complete list of all of whom could have been obtained at the office of the clerk of the district court. Without referring to the list, either as kept by the clerk or as published in the court calendars several times each year, I beg leave to supply a few omitted names, which by reason of the prominence of the person leaves the list, published this morning, conspicuously incomplete. Among the pioneer lawyers the name of Hon. Henry N. Setzer, one of the leaders of the bar, does not appear. Mr. Setzer was not only a pioneer of the St. Louis county bar, but he was a great lawyer who was connected with much of the most important litigation in the early days, and above all he was one of God's noblest works—an honest man. In 1882, S. L. Smith, still prominent in practice, located in Duluth to form a partnership with Mr. Setzer, which partnership continued for several years and until severed by sickness and death in the family of Mr. Setzer. Later, Mr. Smith became city attorney, being four times elected to that office, his term of service embracing that of several administrations. Judge W. A. Cant's name is omitted as one of the judges of the district court, and instead the name of one Osborn is mentioned.

The names of Rufus P. Edson, once city attorney; William Edson, for years judge of the municipal court; Roger S. Powell, judge of same court; Edmund Sherwood, for two terms county attorney; the late Henry S. Mahon, and others prominent as lawyers and as city and county officials might be mentioned, not least among whom are Hon. William L. Windom and Hon. Frank Cutting, present judges of the municipal court. This is not a corrected list, but the mention of a few important names without which the list is conspicuously incomplete.

BOY SCRATCHED DAY AND NIGHT

Eczema Began When a Tiny Baby and Lasted 7 Years—Tore Crusts from Face Till It was All Raw—Screamed with Pain and Could not Sleep—Though Specialists Failed

CUTICURA EFFECTED A WONDERFUL CURE

"When my little boy was six weeks old an eruption broke out on his face. I took him to a doctor and got ointments and medicines but his face kept on getting worse until it got so bad that no one could look at him. His whole face was one crust and must have been very painful. He scratched day and night until his face sometimes looked like a raw piece of meat. I was nearly insane with his scratching day and night. Then I took him to all the best specialists in skin diseases but they could not do much for him. He sometimes screamed with pain when I put on the salve they gave me.

"When he was two years old the eczema got on his arms and legs so that I had to keep them bandaged up and I made gloves for his hands so the nails could not poison him worse. We could not get a night's sleep in months and my husband and I were all broken up. Then my mother asked why I did not give up the doctors and try Cuticura. So I got a set and he felt relieved the first time I used them, the Cuticura Ointment felt so cool. He used to wake up and ask for Cuticura to be put on when he itched so badly that he could not sleep, and he would say, 'Oh! Mama, that makes my sores feel so good!' I gave the Cuticura Remedies a good trial and gradually the eczema healed all up and now he is as well as any other children. He is now seven years old and the cure has lasted two months, so I think it will never return. I can't tell you how glad I am that Cuticura did such wonderful work in our case and I shall recommend it everywhere. Mrs. John G. Klumpp, 80 Niagara St., Newark, N. J., Oct. 17 and 22, 1907."

A single set of Cuticura Remedies, consisting of Cuticura Soap (25c.), Ointment (50c.), and Resolvent (50c.), or Pills (25c. per vial of 60), is often sufficient to cure. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass.

THRESH OUT SCHOOL ROW

Aurora-Biwabik Dispute Comes Before County Board.

County May Make Appropriation for the Range People.

The Aurora-Biwabik school district row, which has stirred up the people of school districts Nos. 13 and 24, which include Aurora and Biwabik, respectively, was brought before the county board this morning by delegations from the two districts. The people of district No. 13 seek to have Sections 4 and 9, township 58, north range 15 west, which are now in district No. 24, taken from that district and annexed to district No. 13. The people of the Biwabik district are against the move, and both sides had representatives on hand to set forth their respective sides of the case. The board took no definite action this morning, but Commissioner McInnis served notice that this afternoon he would move for the appointment of a committee from the county board to confer with the boards of the two school districts, with a view to effecting some settlement whereby an adjustment of the difficulty might be made with satisfaction to both sides.

The matter has been before the board before and Secretary Walker had figures ready showing the amount of valuation affected by the proposed change. The assessed valuation of district No. 13 at present, he said, is $8,611,498, and of district No. 24, $3,859,970. The valuation of the two sections involved in the proposed change is $923,514. If they were added to district No. 13, that district would have a valuation of $9,535,212, leaving district No. 24 a valuation of $2,936,156.

The superintendent of the Aurora district gave their side of the case from an educational viewpoint. He pointed out that the dividing line of the two districts cut the village of Aurora, leaving part of the children of the village to go to school in the Biwabik district. He said the school they were supposed to attend is three-fourths of a mile from their homes, while the big school of Aurora is within a few blocks. The Biwabik school has only two teachers for eight grades and the educational facilities are not nearly as good as the children would have at Aurora.

The clerk of the Biwabik district argued vigorously against the change, taking the valuation side of the question wholly. He said the educational facilities were just as good in the Biwabik district and the sole object of the Aurora people in petitioning for the change was to secure the Miller and Mohawk mine locations in the school district, with the increased valuation. He pointed out that the village of Aurora comprised about four sections of land, while the built up portion of the town could be put on eighty acres. He said that at a conference between the Aurora and Biwabik people, Biwabik offered Aurora certain forties of the school district on which the children involved in the deal lived, but that the offer was refused, as the Aurora people want to get the two mines, with their valuation, in the school district.

A resident of the Miller mine location, one of the Aurora delegation, said that the children could not get the education to which they are entitled in the small school in the Biwabik district. He said there is one man to teach si xgrades, and he cannot do justice to any of them with that amount of work. He said the people of the district were willing to exchange valuation equal to that of the sections desired by district 13 if a compromise could be arranged to that effect. The clerk of district 24 asked for a committee of the board to investigate the matter and confer with the boards of the two districts, and the matter was allowed to rest there until the afternoon session.

A. J. Meagher, a Floodwood settler, again appeared on behalf of his bill for building a mile and a half of road on the Floodwood Island road and was flatly turned down by the board on recommendation of Commissioner Kauppi. Meagher, in stating his case, said the road had been legalized by the commissioners, but no work was done on it. He had no public means of getting to his farms on the road and was compelled to drive through another man's land. The other man objected, so he went ahead and built the legalized county road, clearing twenty feet wide for a mile and a half.

He put in a bill for the amount, but the commissioners denied it once. They held that, as Meagher was not authorized to do any work for the county, his going ahead and doing it was his own business and for his own convenience and the county could not be held liable for the work. The members of the board held that the payment of the bill would result in establishing a bad precedent, so Meagher's bill was passed over.

Commissioner Ryan brought before the board a resolution setting aside a sum for the relief of the forest fire victims on the range. He left the sum blank, but said that he would suggest not less than $10,000 as an appropriation for relief measures. He said that immediate action is necessary by the board and urged the adoption of the resolution with a sum specified. The matter was referred to the county attorney for an opinion on the legality of the resolution and it will be taken up again at the afternoon session.

The detailed report of the inspector of mines of St. Louis county for the fiscal year ending June 20, 1908, which has already been filed with the state commissioner of labor and a resume of which was published in The Herald last week, was filed with the board and received.

Petitions were received for the construction of five county roads in the northern part of the county. The board adjourned until 1:30.

WINDOWS ARE DEMOLISHED

Drunken Sailor Plays Havoc Along West First Street.

Plate glass windows along West First street were broken and damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars by John McGraw, a drunken sailor, last night. He was arrested by Patrolman Dickman. His window breaking operations had resulted disastrously to himself, and he was covered with blood from head to foot.

After breaking glass close to the sidewalk along the north side of West First street he stopped before the Wolvin building and pounded on an 8-foot plate glass until it, too, was broken. He was struck by the sharp edges of the falling glass, and was wounded in several places. The flesh hung in shreds from his right hand.

Duluth People Helped by Cas-Ka

Do You Know Them? This Will Make You Think

Do you know that the secret of success with CAS-KA is its action on the kidneys? Some people say, Well, that CAS-KA is a good physic, anyhow.

Do you suppose that you would see hundreds of people paying 35c a bottle for CAS-KA if it was only good for the bowels? You can get 10c worth of salts and make six bottles of physic. If you ask your family doctor he will tell you that you cannot relieve a person's rheumatism, kidney or stomach by physicing them. You ask any doctor who has watched the action of CAS-KA and if he tells you what he knows about CAS-KA, it will be in CAS-KA'S favor. Come to the drug store and talk with some of the people that are buying this medicine and you will find that those that have been trying CAS-KA are buying more.

N. J. Smith with Cox Bros.' Meat Market, Superior street, lives at 211 Twenty-seventh avenue west. "Well I should say I can recommend that CAS-KA. My wife has been taking everything she heard of for stomach and kidney trouble, and I have not got the command of words to tell you the good it has done her. I am going to get a dozen bottles of that CAS-KA before the prices goes up to $1.00."

William F. Crosier, assistant shipping master Lake Carriers' association: "I have been taking everything I heard of for backache and kidney and liver trouble, but this CAS-KA is the only thing that ever gave me any relief. For the bowels it's the finest thing I ever took."

John Stewart, Highland avenue, corner Myrtle street, Duluth Heights: "Yes, I can recommend CAS-KA, as I have been bothered with kidney trouble and sick headaches, which CAS-KA has helped. Some of my neighbors who were taking CAS-KA for rheumatism recommended it to me."

P. Martill, 110 Eighteenth avenue: "Yes, I know CAS-KA is a good kidney medicine as I have a child that wet the bed, whom CAS-KA has helped."

A. L. Glenn, 1220 West Superior street: "CAS-KA has helped me for rheumatism and backache."

F. E. Dease, 219 Seventeenth avenue east: "My wife was laid up in bed last week with kidney trouble. I got her a bottle of this CAS-KA. She has taken it ten days and is now up and around, feeling fine."

If you are so situated that you cannot come twice a day to try CAS-KA FREE, you can get one of the $1 bottles for 35 cents or three for $1, and if you don't notice any benefit for catarrh or rheumatism, take the bottle back and get your money. And in ten days if we don't relieve your stomach, kidney or liver trouble, we refund your money.

Sick headache, female weakness, or getting up nights, caused by weak kidneys, relieved in four or five days. You can use part or the entire bottle as a test. Now, you don't have to spend even 35 cents to find this is true, as you can come twice a day and try it free until Saturday, Dec. 7.

CAS-KA does these things by making the blood pure.

Mail orders will receive prompt attention from those living at a distance.

F. J. McMillan, Mgr. for Cas-Ka Co. Boyce Drug Store, 329 West Superior street, Agents.

RESPONSE OF CITIZENS HAS BEEN MOST GENEROUS

lief of the range sufferers up to $23,593.25. Contributions of clothes are beginning to come in generous numbers, but the biggest part of the clothing donation is not expected until tomorrow. The relief bureau is located at Second avenue west and First street, and by calling 1785-A, on the new 'phone, a rig will be sent out for donations.

Duluth is responding most generously to the appeal for aid from the burned-over districts of the range. Up to this morning more than $14,000 in cash contributions had been made, in addition to a large quantity of provisions and clothing. Clothing for women and children is especially desired now. Stoves are also needed.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern road is carrying free all freight designed to assist the fire sufferers. Donations are pouring into the office of the local relief committee. The Herald is receiving cash contributions, which, as fast as received, are turned over the proper authorities. Several churches and civic organizations have interested themselves in the needs of Duluth's neighbors in distress, and the public generally is responding nobly to the appeal for aid.

In his talk at the Labor day celebration at Fairmount park yesterday, John H. Norton proposed that a cash contribution be taken for the relief of the range people. E. H. Holdren, Frank Bereen and Edward Blackwood were appointed on a committee to look after the matter. A hurried trip through the assembled crowd resulted in a cash fund of $30.45. Almost everybody on the ground contributed his mite.

Societies Active.

The Duluth Humane society is active in the work of relief, and is receiving donations of clothing, provisions, etc. Tomorrow morning between the hours of 9 and 12 o'clock the basement of St. Paul's Episcopal church will be converted into a relief headquarters, and the church people will receive donations of all descriptions. Rev. R. J. Mooney has issued an appeal to all the Episcopalians in the city to help, and their donations will be received at the church. Rev. R. S. Reed will be on hand at St. Paul's church in the morning, and will have general charge of this branch of the work. Everybody wishing to help through the Episcopal church will be expected to send their donations to the place designated. A request has come from the range for stoves, and it is hoped that a number of stoves suitable for the purpose will be forthcoming.

The Herald is in a position to handle cash contributions promptly, putting them immediately where they will do the most good. The list of contributions made through The Herald will be published from day to day. The immediate need on the range is very great, and those in charge of the relief work are anxious that any one who intends to help do so at once, without any delay in the matter.

Mayor R. D. Haven, chairman of the relief committee appointed by Governor Johnson to take charge of the immediate work of succoring the homeless, left for the stricken district this morning to get in the closest possible touch with the situation and make definite arrangements for handling the flood of supplies and clothing that is pouring into the burned district. The mayor will make a particular point of finding what relief measures will best aid the stricken towns. Mr. Haven is expected home tomorrow. He will then have a general idea of the situation, and will be in a position to send all supplies to the spot where they are most needed, and to distribute them as they should be distributed.

N. J. Miller in Charge.

N. J. Miller, who has had a good deal of experience in bringing relief to destitute people in several big fires, including the Hinckley, New Richmond and Virginia disasters, has been placed in charge of the relief headquarters at Second avenue west and First street. He will visit the merchants of Duluth today and ask them for donations of clothing, especially children's apparel. The need for food at Chisholm is not so urgent as the demand for clothing and materials for shelter. The range towns are able to supply provisions temporarily, but at the same time contributions from Duluth are needed, and are being thankfully received.

Totman's livery and the West End livery have placed teams and wagons at the disposal of the relief committee to be used in gathering donated supplies all over the city. Telephones were installed at relief headquarters this morning, and anyone notifying the committee by 'phone of donations will be visited by teams for the purpose of carrying supplies to headquarters.

Rev. James A. Geer of the Lester Park M. E. church, formerly pastor of the Methodist church at Chisholm, returned to Duluth yesterday from the scene of the fire. He is heading a movement among the churches of the city toward organizing a system of donations.

Those who have so far contributed clothing to the sufferers are Mrs. W. C. Agnew, F. E. House, W. H. Prior, D. M. Campbell, J. R. Patterson, Hoskins, W. W. Seeklns, Miss Effie Lang, Miss Carter, J. T. Melvin, Mr. Stuhlbusch, B. M. Buckminster, C. Markell, J. D. Murray, H. J. Mullen, Mrs. H. Bisbee, First Presbyterian church, Watson S. Moore, Mrs. W. H. Hoyt, Maj. Frank Walt, Salvation Army, T. L. Crawford.

Following are the contributions received up to the present time:

THE LABOR DAY PARADE.

BRUSH AND TIMBER FIRES ARE STILL RAGING.

the Duluth, Missabe & Northern general offices in Duluth, that important yard center on the road's system has been snatched from the mouth of the fire, but only by dint of strenuous endeavor on the part of the employes of the railroad company and other citizens.

Vice President McGonagle of the Missabe road stated this noon that additional fire hose had been sent to Mitchell and the forces fighting the flames in the vicinity had been increased, and that from all information he had received up to that time, it looked as if the place had been saved.

Mitchell is located a few miles east of Hibbing and is an important yard station on the Missabe. There the ore trains from the busy Hibbing district are made up and started out.

No apprehension for the safety of the city of Hibbing was felt today in Missabe offices here. While it might be possible for the flames to sweep over the town, it is most unlikely for the reason that the place is so well surrounded by timberless country.

Past performances of forest fires have demonstrated that the gases formed by the conflagrations have permitted the flames to leap through the air for long distances, but the feeling seems to be now that Hibbing will escape damage from the blazes.

Huge open pit mines and clearings for several miles on every side afford Hibbing pretty good protection against fire, but every precaution is being taken to prevent the flames from encroaching upon the city.

"Men are patrolling tracks, guarding mines and fighting fire everywhere possible, in an effort to prevent the further spreading of fire," said Mr. McGonagle.

"Even places which have not been even threatened yet are taking every precaution to prevent fires and to quench the small blazes that are found here and there. Some fires are reported from the Westerin Mesaba, but they have not done a great deal of damage there."

A crew of men has returned after fighting a fire on the Duluth & Iron Range road, this side of Two Harbors. It is understood that they were successful in preventing a serious spread of the flames there.

H. Johnson, general freight and passenger agent of the Iron Range, went to Aurora this morning to look into the situation there. It was reported that the place was endangered. No word has been received from Mr Johnson at the Iron Range offices this afternoon

A Mountain Iron man discussing the situation, in the Wolvin building this morning, said that while there were fires around that place, no great apprehension was felt there. An effort had been made to wet down everything in the place.

A mining man telephoned into the Oliver company's office this morning from Eveleth, saying that everything was all right there.

Gus Johnson of Eveleth, who came to Duluth on the Missabe this morning, reiterated the mining man's statements. I. Norris of Virginia, who came in on the same train, stated that his home city was all right.

NEARLY CUT OFF BY FLAMES

Chisholm Man Says He Could Not See a Block.

Carl Dambren, who had a saloon in the First National Bank building, is in the city, disconsolate over the loss of all his money and the business that was just beginning to get back for him the money he had invested.

Dambrea was a short distance outside of Chisholm, watching the fire in the forest, when the flames, under cover of a heavy smoke which hung over the town, crept in from another quarter and enveloped almost every building in the place. He narrowly escaped with his life.

"If I had not been pretty familiar with the way Chisholm was laid out I would never have got out alive," said Mr. Dambrea today. "The smoke was so thick that I could not see a block and I did not know then that the town was burning."

In his mad flight to escape from the fire and smoke, Dambrea passed his brother's house, where he roomed, only to see it being consumed. He was able to enter only long enough to grab one or two articles he prized and skip for the bridge which led across the lake and to safety. There, he said, the smoke was less thick and it was possible to see.

HIBBING IS NOW OUT OF DANGER

Fire Successfully Beaten Back and Vigilance is Increasing.

Hibbing, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is little wind here this morning and no immediate danger confronts Hibbing, regardless of sensational reports to the contrary. While the smoke of fires burning in the distance is, of course, visible, there is less smoke here than last night, when it was thick enough to cut with a knife. About 150 men hired by the mining companies and by the village of Hibbing put in a busy day yesterday extinguishing fires that broke out on the remote outskirts of town, the hardest fire fighting being at Brooklyn, a suburban location about a quarter of a mile distant, where the main portion of the fire fighting force concentrated its efforts.

As a precautionary measure the fire department has stationed men in the alleys in the more thickly populated portions of town ready to pounce upon any fire brands that may drop in that locality and promptly extinguish them.

"I don't think there is any immediate danger," said Chief of Police Wring this morning, a statement that is confirmed by the fire department.

The only thing to fear, is, of course, a strong wind and fires breaking out again with in what may be styled the danger zone. The authorities believe that the big fire-fighting force now available is able to coup with any reasonably sized brush fire and to promptly aid the firemen in stopping the march of the flames if they catch anywhere in the city. Everyone is on the alert and the best of order prevails. The small town of Mitchell, about one mue southeast of Hibbing, was threatened for a time yesterday, but hard work by employes of the Missabe road roundhouse and citizens extinguished the fire before any buildings caught.

Nothing is known here this morning as to the reported destruction of Snowball or of the rumors that Buhl and Nashwauk are menaced.

Reports from Chisholm today are that the relief measure provided are working nicely, that all cases of destitution are being easily handled. In the remaining portion of one of the partly burned buildings at Chisholm, the trial is being conducted today of the eighty-two Montenegrins arrested for looting. Yesterday afternoon the accused were marshalled by Sheriff Bates, who is on the ground, and deputies aided by the militia, and compelled to drag from the ruins of Mangusons meat shop the carcasses of fourteen cattle that perished in the fire and haul them away from the townsite to be destroyed before becoming putrid and dangerous to the health.

AURORA FIRES EXTINGUISHED

Water Supply Adequate and Town Thought to be Safe.

Aurora, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fires that threatened this town have been extinguished and unless they start up again and are fanned by a strong wind there is little liklihood of Aurora being again menaced by the fire fiend. The town has plenty of water in its big tanks in which the fire supply is stored, the citizens and the firemen are on the alert and all are determined to fight to the limit before allowing a repetition of the Chisholm disaster here.

About a quarter of a mile east of here, near the Aetna powder house, fires were burning in the forest yesterday morning. The firemen attacked the blaze and by dint of hard work soon extinguished them. Unfortunately a passing engine again started up the fire which again called the defenders of the town to duty and before evening the flames had been extinguished. The worst fire that threatened the town was probably about a quarter of a mile to the north of the Meadows location. This was put out Sunday and yesterday as was ablaze between the Meadows and St. James locations. At noon today the situation is very encouraging and every one feels that the crisis has passed unless a strong wind should develop and new fires break out afresh. The town is of course covered with a pall of smoke, which adds to the nervousness of every one, but unless a furious wind arises there is believed to be nothing in the situation to warrant the dire forebodings circulated about Aurora's danger.

MANY REFUGEES REACH VIRGINIA

Flocking There From Chisholm; Buhl Believed to Be Safe.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern train, reaching Virginia last evening, was crowded with people from Chisholm, many of whom had lost their homes and came here to be sheltered temporarily by friends.

Reports were brought by passengers on the Great Northern train that about 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon the village of Buhl was in great danger and many people began moving their goods to places of safety on top the dumps, but the fire was conquered later and it is now considered that the village is practically safe.

GRAND MARAIS IS THREATENED

Al J. Smith Driven From Fishing Camp by Flames.

Grand Marais, the pretty little town on the north shore and county seat of Cook county, is in danger from forest fires which are raging near there.

Al J. Smith, county attorney of Hennepin county, just came down from Grand Marais and reports the loss of his summer fishing camp, near there, from a forest fire.

Although Grand Marais was in no immediate danger when he left, Mr. Smith intimated that unless the winds were favorable and the efforts to prevent a spread of the fire successful. Grand Marais might go.

Mr. Smith lost his summer cottage by fire. He has been going there every summer for several years but this year, the fire cut short his stay.

HIBBING PEOPLE ARE CONFIDENT

Travelers From Hibbing Say Town is Out of Danger.

Hibbing is safe for the time being. If the high wind which is predicted strikes the ranges before a rain, there is no telling what will happen. This is the opinion of the people who came in on the Hibbing and Virginia train over the D., M. & N. at 10:30 this morning.

M. S. Treleven, a traveling man who makes his range headquartere at Hibbing, left there at 7:10 this morning. At that time every one was confident that the town was safe. There was no general apprehension as to the town's safety yesterday afternoon, he says. About 150 men fought the fire at Brooklyn, but at no time did it look as if it was going to get the best of them. Mitchell was endangered for a time, but was saved without great difficulty. The Hibbing people are skeptical as to the report of the destruction of Snowball, as they have heard nothing of it at Hibbing.

J. T. Thompson, a Hibbing man who has worked through the woods there considerably of late, says that a hard wind will raise a lot of trouble. The worst of the fire in the immediate vicinity of Hibbing he believes to be over, however, as the woods are pretty well burned over by this time. He says that there is practically no apprehension now on the part of Hibbing people, though, with the air thick with smoke, it is hard to forget the proximity of the fire. The alleys, Mr. Thompson says, are being watched in the main part of the city, and for a time yesterday firebrands were carried over the town. A little watchfulness did away with danger from this source, however. Mitchell is safe and in no immediate danger. According to Mr. Thompson, Nashwauk and Buhl were still safe, and in no great danger this morning. The range people are praying for rain. Nothing else will be of any lasting benefit, and the danger of the fire will be ever present until after the first deluge.

The fires northwest of the city, in the Sturgeon Lake district, are still raging fiercely.

IS NOT YET THREATENED

Fire in Neighborhood of Virginia Not Serious as Yet.

Virginia people coming in on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern train this morning say that there is nothing more serious than brush fires in the neighborhood of their town, and that while men are being kept patroling the outskirts, no serious apprehension is felt by the residents there. No report of the destruction of Snowball has been received there either. Most of the range people are rather skeptical as to whether it occurred.

There are no fires in the vicinity of Virginia large enough to make it necessary to watch for firebrands or other menaces of like nature. The woods about Virginia are dry as tinder, and small fires are visible every block or so. A wind and no rain would doubtless cause a bad fire. Most of the Virginia residents feel fairly confident that their fire protection is adequate, however.

COOK GOES TO RANGE.

A. P. Cook, the county poor commissioner, received a telegram this morning from J. H. Hearing, a member of the county poor board from Eveleth, stating that he had better come to Hibbing and aid in the work of relieving the sufferers there. Mr. Cook left for the range this afternoon.

MINNEAPOLIS IS RAISING FUND

Mayor Haynes Appoints Committee to Handle Relief Work.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 8.—No time is being lost in giving the people of Minneapolis an opportunity to come to the aid of Chisholm and the surrounding country which was Saturday stricken by a disaster without parallel, except in the Hinckley fire, in the history of Minnesota.

Since the first word of the destruction wrought by forest fires in Northeastern Minnesota reached Minneapolis, expressions of genuine sympathy and desire to be of aid have been heard on every hand.

In connection with the relief movement started by Governor John A. Johnson, a committee was yesterday appointed to direct and facilitate the relief work in Minneapolis. The governor estimates the need of $250,000 as a relief fund. Mayor James C. Haynes, in appointing the Minneapolis relief committee, placed the fund which this city should raise at $50,000.

The Mayor's Proclamation.

The mayor's proclamation follows:

"To the people of the city of Minneapolis:

"Acting upon the appointment of his excellency, Governor John A. Johnson, and pursuant to his proclamation appealing to the people of the state for contributions for the relief of the inhabitants of Chisholm and adjacent communities who have suffered a complete loss of their homes and all their worldly effects by reason of the destructive forest fire which has swept over that portion of St. Louis county, I do hereby most earnestly appeal to the people of Minneapolis to make a prompt and generous response to the governor's call.

"I also request the several newspapers of the city to open their columns to popular subscriptions, and I do hereby appoint Messrs. B. F. Nelson, Charles H. Hamblin, H. V. Jones, F. W. Kellogg, F. A. Chamberlain, George H. Partridge and Wallace G. Nye a general committee to take charge of the work of collecting and forwarding the funds contributed to the aid of said sufferers. Said committee will meet at the mayor's office at 10 a. m. Tuesday, the 8th inst.

"Witness my official hand the 7th day of September, A. D., 1908.

EVELETH IS HELPING OUT

Generous People of City Join in Extending Aid To Chisholm.

Commettees Raising Funds and Supplies; Right Spirit Shown.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept., 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The people not to be outdone by any others in their desire to help out the sufferers at Chisholm have organized a relief association with Supt. J. Hearding at the head and with two committees composed of Rev. A. Carswell, Rev. R. J. Taylor, Rev. Floyd, Rev. Rankin, Charles McDough and Judge Prince as a supply committee and Messrs. Rohrer, Jesmore Glode, Ellisworth, Mulligan, Trezona and Hatch as a soliciting committee. Headquarters for the receiving of clothing and other things for women and children were opened at the fire hall with members of the committees in charge. Bills were printed and spread broadcast announcing the facts about securing supplies. At the dept four boxes of goods for Chisholm were sent yesterday off on the afternoon train for Hibbing. The solicitators went around the town and secured quite a sum of money.

In the evening a meeting of the Business Men's association was held at the city hall and was very well attended. The relief of the people at Chisholmwas discussed and the local people will do what they can. The various ladies societies of the churches will send around committees to secure money and clothing for the sufferers.

Benefit At Theater.

The manager of the Lyceum theater has offered to give the receipts at his theater for Wednesday night to the fund, while Manager Miller of the Bijou has offered to put on a show on Wednesday afternoon, the receipts of which will be given to the fund. The ladies will probably sell tickets for the two places so that a crowd larger than usual, will attend to help swell the funds. George A. Perham of the News has offered to print the tickets for the show at the Lyceum for Wednesday and these will be sold at whatever prices over the regular admission that will be offered, all of which money will be given to the Chisholm fund. The local militia has sent over some cots to the desolated village. Charles McNamara of the Fourth of July committee said that some money from that source was in the treasury and he thought it would be a good idea to give what remained to the fund. The ladies of the Methodist church, the Catholic ladies and the ladies of the Macabees are doing all in their power to help. A. W. Murnik, the local dry goods man gave $25 in cash and $25 in goods that were picked out by a few prominent women, and these were packed in a box and sent down to the depot to help make up the shipment to Chisholm. The people of this town realizing just what a catastrophe has happened at Chisholm, and thankful that it did not come here, are seeing that everything possible is done for the Chisholm sufferers. A number of the losers at Chisholm are over here staying with some of their friends till they will have a chance to go back. As far as Eveleth is concerned, there is hardly any danger from forest fires as the surrounding country has all been cleared off. On account of a political meeting that was going to be held in the Vall hall, the meeting adjourned until tonight.

Biwabik Shut Them Out.

Aurora, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A team, composed of Aurora and McKinley players, contested for honors with the Biwabik baseball team Sunday, and were shut out by the score of 4 to 0, at Biwabik.

Hibbing Labor Day Ball.

Hibbing, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Secial to The Herald.)—The Hibbing city band gave its annual Labor day ball in Close's hall, last night, which, despite the unpleasant conditions prevailing in this section, proved quite a success. There was a large attendance, an orchestra of fifteen pieces furnishing the music.

HELP FROM VIRGINIA

Prompt Measures Being Taken to Aid Unfortunates at Chisholm.

Liberal Subscriptions of Money and Many Supplies Forwarded.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia residents are responding nobly to the appeal for assistance on behalf of the fire sufferers at Chisholm. Early yesterday morning a committee, consisting of P. R. Vall, A. C. Osborn, D. W. Elmquist, M. Boylan and A. Keller, gathered up all the cooked meats, canned meats and bread they could find in town and shipped over 2,000 pounds of those provisions to Chisholm. The food was accompanied by Messrs. Osborn, Elmquist and Keller.

Messrs. Vall and Boylan then proceeded to secure money donations. On account of the fact that it was Labor day the business houses were not visited. This will be done today. A few of the more prominent citizens were visited and over $1,350 was raised in a short time.

Money Donations.

The following-named donated $200 each: D. B. McDonald, A. B. Coates; these gave $100 each: P. R. Vall, Marcus L. Fay, W. T. Bailey Lumber company, George H. St. Clair, O. H. Griggs; those donating $50 each were: Norman McDonald, John D. Lamont, American Exchange bank, First National bank; and the following made $25 donations: W. B. Shaver, E. G. Bush, W. H. Eaton, Andrew Hawkinson, A. Keller, Andrew Grande, M. McDonald and Dr. C. V. Malmgren.

It is expected that fully double this amount will be donated by Virginia citizens, many of whom have passed through the same harrowing experience that the people of Chisholm are now suffering from.

MANY RAILROAD TIES ARE LOST

Fires Between Tower and Ely Destroy Much Stored Timber.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—On account of the danger to timber and ties piled along the line of the Duluth & Iron Range from forest fires the company has night and day watchmen prepared for eventualities.

Fires have been burning between Tower and Ely, west of Bassett station, near Rollins, and York and Mile 44; but the only damage reported was near Britton siding on the Drummond branch, where the Duluth & Iron Range and Contractor William Cutliffe have extensive tie piles of which about half were burned or about 4,000 or 5,000 belonging mostly to the latter. A switch engine and an extra gang of men were sent there about 3 a. m. Sunday and worked until about 4 p. m. fighting the flames, and to their efforts is due that the loss was not much greater.

VIRGINIA LOST HEAVILY.

Chisholm Disaster Fell Upon Several Residents of City.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—There were several Virginia people heavy losers in the Chisholm fire. Among the heaviest losses was that of the Virginia Brewing company, which lost a saloon building, five sets of saloon fixtures, its storehouse and icehouse and about 200 beer kegs. The loss is estimated at about $10,000 above the insurance, which amounted to $2,000. The company will rebuild at once.

Frank Klink was the owner of two buildings that were destroyed. His loss was about $4,500. Insurance, $2,000. He will rebuild as soon as he can assemble the materials.

TO WORK NIGHT SHIFT.

Skibo Sawmill at Two Harbors to Increase Force—Other Events.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Skibo Timber company at Skibo, formerly Nolan Bros. & Laird, will start their mill working night shift within a few days, an indication of better business conditions.

The schooner W. Le Baron Jenney discharged a cargo of coal at the local docks Friday and Saturday.

The Duluth & Iron Range has a force of men at work rewiring all the ore docks, the new wires being run through pipes for better protection.

The Ladies' guild of the Presbyterian church held their annual picnic at the city park Wednesday and had a pleasant time.

John R. Relgart, superintendent of the Crosby mine, near Hibbing, visited with friends here over Sunday.

The engagement of Miss Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Moulton, to John W. Dorsey, has been announced. The wedding will occur in October.

Earl J. Atkins has resigned his position as agent for the Duluth & Iron Range at Tower on account of ill health, and has been succeeded by Thomas Buttery of Sparta.

The local Y. M. C. A. educational committee has arranged for evening classes in English, shorthand, mechanical drawing and shop mathematics for the coming winter's work and has included two lectures in the course. Study will start the first week in October.

MIKE PAVLIK'S FUNERAL.

Minorca Mine Victim is Borne to His Grave.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 8.—The funeral of Mike Pavlik, who was fatally injured by falling down a shaft at the Minorca mine, Friday afternoon, was held yesterday afternoon at the Polish Catholic church. Pavlik was a young man and left a wife in the old country, whom he intended to send for as soon as he earned the necessary funds.

M. F. Marion, of Tower, arrived in town yesterday, on his way to Chisholm, where he owned one of the burned business buildings.

C. F. Fairbairn, general mine superintendent for the Republic Iron & Steel company, came up from Duluth, yesterday.

EVELETH SCHOOLS OPENED.

Despite of Loss of High School, All Branches Are Taught..

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—School commenced today at 9 o'clock. At the teacher's meeting held yesterday, the plans for the work were all laid out, and the various teachers assigned to the different schools. Notwithstanding the burning down of the high school, the school work in all branches except chemistry, will be taught, and besides the new commercial course will be offered to the students. The latter course will be placed in the Mesaba Mountain township hall. All the necessary text books for the grades and high school, have been received, so that no time will be lost in getting the pupils started on the fall work.

DETAINED ON SUSPICION.

Biwabik, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Giving the name of Edward Johnson, and claiming to be a detective, working on the local bank robbery, a man has been arrested at Mesaba, and as no one here knows anything about his being employed as a detective, he is being detained because of his suspicious actions. Two of the shot guns taken from the local hardware store, at the time of the attempt to blow up the bank, last Saturday morning, were found under the sidewalk within two blocks of the bank. Neither had been discharged and had probably been concealed there before the robbery.

Peter Hotland, who was wounded by the highwayman, is slowly recovering, and, barring complications, will survive.

There are no new developments in the search for the highwaymen.

THREE POLLING PLACES IN IRON RANGE TOWNSHIP.

Coleraine, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Iron Range township has been divided into three voting precints for the primary, Sept. 15, as follows: Erick Johnson's hall, at Bovey; carriage room of Oliver Mining company's barn, Lynn Grove building, at Coleraine. The township includes Coleraine, Bovey and Taconite.

Beginning today, the school board is offering transportation to the eighth grade and high school pupils at Taconite.

END THEIR DIFFERENCES.

Factions in Aurora Catholic Church Get Together.

Aurora, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Catholic church fight here is at an end. Mass and services were held last Sunday by Father Riban of Eveleth and both factions were present. The residence for the new priest, Father Burton, will not be built until next spring, and he will reside in Eveleth until then.

Digging For Water Mains.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work was commenced digging the trenches preparatory to putting in the new water mains. The old ones will remain where they are while the new ones are being built. The work is being done by Pastoret & Lunz, the Two Harbors contractors. The pipes for the mains are already on the ground, so that it will not take a very long time before the main will be ready for use.

Nashwauk Briefs.

Nashwauk, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Lanto spent Monday at Bovey.

Ole Reine returned Monday, after a few days' visit with Bovey friends.

Miss Waller arrived Saturday from Duluth and will teach school here the coming term.

Mrs. John Wellwood of Biwabik arrived Friday and is looking after her property here.

Drinks Shoe Dye for Whisky and Forfeits His Life.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Thompson, a colored bootblack, forfeited his life yesterday afternoon by mistaking Lightning shoe dye for whisky, which he had hidden in a dark corner of his shoe-shining parlor. He had been drinking and, reaching for the bottle, in a semi-conscious condition, drank the poison before discovering the mistake, and died within an hour.

ARAB DEAD LIE IN PILES

Tribesmen Charge French Forces With Reckless Courage; Are Defeated.

Make Onslaught After Onslaught In Face of Artillery Fire.

Colomb-Bechar, Sept. 8.—Dispatches from Col. Allix, commander of the reinforcements that went to the relief of Boudenib, a French post on the Algerian frontier, where the small garrison was surrounded by Moors, and in danger of annihilation, state that he has completely crushed the Berabo tribesmen, estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000, capturing their camp and all equipments.

The column of 5,000 men under Col. Allix, marched out from Boudenib yesterday afternoon, in the direction of the enemy's camp, at Djorf. When half the distance had been traversed, the French encountered the Arabs, who with reckless courage, hurled themselves upon the front and flanks simultaneously, seeking to cut off Boudenib, but the artillery kept up a terrible fire, in the face of which the Arabs were unable to approach to close quarters.

They returned, again and again to the charge, leaving their dead in heaps, but finally became discouraged and retired. Col. Allix followed up his advantage and occupied the camp, completely routing the enemy, who dispersed in all directions, hotly pursued by the French cavalry. The total French loss was Lieut. Schwartz, of the Third Sharpshooters, and twenty-one others wounded, of whom only three were seriously hurt. The enemy's loss totals far into the hundreds.

WEST END

REPUBLICAN MEETING.

West End Club Will Gather in Sloan's Hall.

The West End Republican club will hold its last meeting before the primaries, this evening in Sloan's hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

It is unlikely that any of the Republican candidates for the nominations will be indorsed, as no action in this matter has been taken on the question so far. The club is waiting until after the contests between members of the party for the nominations have been settled and the entire body is working for victory against the Democrats, before taking an active part in things.

During the last two months, many candidates have appeared before the club in their own behalf, but the organization as such has not approved of any one of them in particular.

Talked Socialism.

David Holmgren, a former member of the Swedish Ricksdag, delivered a lecture on "Socialism" at the West End hotel last evening. The talk was given in the Swedish language and was listened to by quite a gathering of citizens who understand that tongue.

West End Shortrails.

Miss Dagne Olson, formerly of Christiania, Norway, will speak Thursday evening at the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church.

Dr. A. Olson is expected to return today from Minneapolis, where he has been for the past week.

The Ladies' Aid society of Zion Norwegian Lutheran church will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. H. Stepness of Twenty-third avenue west.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. E. O. Reppe of Thirty-third street, Park Point.

Miss Muriel Phillips has returned from New Richmond, Wis., where she has been visiting relatives.

The business of the past year will be reviewed tomorrow evening by the stewards of the First Swedish Methodist church, when they will hold their regular meeting.

The Epworth league of the First Swedish Methodist church will meet Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. John Sundeen of 2113 West Second street. A musical program will be given.

Miss Emma Schultze and John Schultze of 2029 West Third street have returned from the state fair.

Al Murphy of the West end and W. A. Forbes of Proctor have returned from St. Paul, where they went last week to take in the state fair.

A number of West enders will attend the Swedish Baptist conference in St. Paul this week. Rev. A. Edstam, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church, will be one of the speakers.

FOURTH VICTIM OF GAS EXPIRES

Hans Hendrickson of Norh Valley, Wis., Dies In St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 8.—Hans Hendrickson, aged 72, of North Valley, Wis., the fourth victim of asphyxiation in the home of the late P. J. Schollert, died early today in the city hospital. The other victims of the accident were Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Schollert, prominent residents of St. Paul, and Lewis Christianson of North Valley, Wis.

GAME WARDEN CATCHES GANG BREAKING LAWS.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Game Warden Munch has just completed the most clever coupe of the season, succeeding in breaking up a gang which had organized a system for the killing and shipment of game to St. Paul and Minneapolis for the market, and the fining of one member of the outfit $70 and costs, and also landed a hotel man at Hallock, having him fined $20 and costs, for serving game birds for dinner last Sunday.

lieved to have been members of a group of employes working overtime, were burned to death in an incendiary fire, which destroyed a seven-story factory building on Water street. The bodies, burned beyond recognition, were found after the fire had been extinguished. Three of the victims were men and the fourth a woman. None were identified.

Though badly burned, John Tuck, real estate dealer, returned to a burning apartment in Brooklyn for a child and saved it, but at the expense of his own life. He had already rescued the mother, Mrs. William Stampel, using his coats to protect her as he carried her downstairs. She cried for her child when the street was reached and disregarding his own injuries, Tuck hurried back and safely brought the infant out of the house. On his second trip he was unable to prevent his own clothing from taking fire and he burned to death.

DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY

The "Coppers," as this property is locally known, are located in the Matzatzall mountains, about 15 miles west of the village of Payson, Tonto Basin, on the southwest side of the East Verde river, in an air line about 60 miles south-of-east of Jerome. The group consists of 44 claims, running north and south, six claims in length, taking in the three big ledges which they were located to cover. Through the east side of the property, and traversing the entire length of the group, is a mammoth iron dyke, which contains shutes of ore that carry 17 per cent copper, as well as 5 ounces of silver and 80 cents in gold. Elsewhere in the southwest where a similar iron has been developed, there has always been a pay mine opened.

Through the six center and west line claims the immense ore outcroppings run in which at intervals there are large and rich deposits of high grade copper ore, and from all of it pay assays have been the result where samples have been taken. Running along the west line of the "Coppers" is an immense slate dyke, and along its east side an immense porphyry dyke. The formations are iron of different character, porphyry, a slate-porphy and slate. The ground has every appearance of being in place, and where work has been done it has so proven.

In several places cuts have been made into the outcroppings, all of them being in pay rock. There is an abundance of water and timber for all mining and smelting purposes. Power for the mines would be taken from the Fossil creek power propostion, which is now being developed. The claims are only 12 miles from the power plant.

EXTRACTS FROM ENGINEER'S REPORT

Jerome, Aug. 5, 1908.—To the Stockholders of the Mazatzal Copper company: The manager submits the following report of the work on the property to date and a review of our plans and expectations for the future:

In driving the Bullfrog tunnel a body of silicious sulphide ore, apparently of vein formation was encountered and gave assay values of 5½ per cent copper, 5 per cent galena, 2 ounces silver and 40 cents gold.

I decided to explore this ore body and drifted on it for a distance of 170 feet to the south. For the first twenty-two feet we had sulphides ranging in value from 4 to 11 per cent, the higher values being from the floor of the drift and then carbonate ores for nearly 150 feet assaying from 6 to 15 per cent with occasional samples as high as 23 per cent.

At 70 feet from the main tunnel a crossent was run to the west for thirty feet, showing a width of thirty-five feet with NEITHER WALL exposed and showing carbonate ores of good grade. The face of the main drift has a vertical depth of 140 feet under a splendid surface cropping of carbonate ore.

Another tunnel 400 feet to the south of the Bullfrog shows a width of 25 feet of carbonate ore in the same ore body.

Believing that water level would define the sulphide zone, a shaft was started in the crosscut just mentioned. A station was cut, a hoist purchased and at this date the shaft was down thirty-one feet. For the first sixteen feet good carbonates were found. At the bottom permanency of formation is very evident, there being well defined laminations of carbonates and a rather soft vein filling showing dip and strike conforming to the slate hanging wall. ELIMINATING THE CARBONATES, this vein filling, coated with copper sulphide, assays from 2 to 4 per cent.

Since the commencement of operations I have at no time been so well satisfied with the results and future prospects as at this time. I am confident that depth alone is necessary to disclose sulphide ore bodies of great extent, of good commercial value, and judging from the strike and dip as exposed at a depth of thirty feet, I will not be surprised to find the ore body fully 75 to 100 feet in width at about 100 to 125 feet of depth.

By the first of the year, barring unforseen accidents, I believe that this work will prove that the exceptional surface indications have developed into still larger and better ore bodies at depth and we can with confidence assert that within the next two years the "Mazatzal" will be classed with the Copper Queen of Arizona, the United Verde or the Cananea.

We are now equipped with a boiler, compressor, hoist and pump and our intention is to sink 200 feet and do such crosscutting and drifting as may be deemed advisable in addition to advancing the Bullfrog tunnel a distance of about seventy feet to the next big cropping or ledge. This work will be expedited by the use of larger power drills now on the way to the property.

It should be remembered that we are but twelve miles from the location of the first power station of the Arizona Power company, and that this company expects to deliver 1,500-horse power to the United Verde alone by February next year.

The belief of my associates and myself in the development of one of the notable mines of the West has not only never wavered, but is today stronger, if possible, than ever.

I feel safe in saying that the element of uncertainty attending all new mining ventures is eliminated as far as the "Mazatzal Copper company," is concerned and I am satisfied that we will open up ore bodies that will surprise the natives. JOSEPH J. SHAW.

DEVELOPMENT WORK TO DATE

DEVELOPMENT WORK WAS COMMENCED IN JANUARY, 1907, AND HAS BEEN CONTINUED WITHOUT INTERRUPTION UP TO THE PRESENT TIME, AND THE RESULT IS THAT WE HAVE OVER 1,600 feet of tunnelling, drifting, sinking and cross-cutting done to date with most gratifying results to the present stockholders.

Splendid and encouraging reports received weekly and this stock will advance fast, because every foot of sinking or drifting in every direction as it is continued, is in solid and rich ore, and the only dead work done now is in drifting and advancing the Bullfrog or main tunnel to the next KNOWN LARGE ORE BODY only 70 feet away, which it is expected will be reached by October 1st or sooner. Our first ore body is fully 60 feet wide and known to be over 400 feet long and the development work shows up more daily, both in drifting on the ore body and sinking on same. Within 90 days the stock will advance to $5 per share and in eight or ten months it will sell for $10 or more, and IN TWO YEARS WILL SELL FOR $50 a share AND IN 4 YEARS FOR $100 OR MORE, AND IN THE MEANTIME PAY HANDSOME DIVIDENDS TO THE FORTUNATE HOLDER OF THE STOCK.

Future Development Work and Plans

decided upon during the next eight or ten months include—

FIRST—1,000 feet of new drifting, cross-cutting and sinking, and continuing the Bullfrog Tunnel to the next big ore body, only 70 feet away now.
SECOND—Of installing a 250-ton smelter and increasing the capacity as fast as possible.
THIRD—Of increasing the force, and push development work vigorously.

REMEMBER IT'S A WINNER

WE OWN FORTY-FOUR MINING CLAIMS—(600x1,500 feet each), embracing 880 acres, in a solid body. Located to cover the three big ledges, two miles long; have absolute and good title and no debts and financially in good shape. Our ore averages 8 per cent copper, and is getting richer as we go deeper, where we have solid and high-grade sulphides below water level and our engineer says, (and he knows what he is talking about, having been, and still is, closely connected with the "United Verde" for the past three years, and prior thereto with the great "Iron Mountain" Copper company of California for a number of years), THAT IN TWO YEARS THE MAZATZAL COPPER COMPANY'S MINE will be classed with such prominent and well known mines as the "United Verde" of Jerome, Copper Queen of Bisbee, Arizona, and the Cananea.

ALSO REMEMBER

That the Company already has many heavy well pleased stockholders in Duluth, and that the subscription books will open Wednesday morning next, September 9th, and the stock will undoubtedly be all subscribed for within two or three days, from assurances already received.

The right is reserved in event of over-subscription, to reject any subscription, either wholly or in part.

clump of bushes near the roadside, while the president and a friend were returning from a horseback ride, last Saturday. The report of the shot came from close at hand, it is said, and after the first shock of surprise, which caused the president to urge his horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and push on a-foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill.

No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home, or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as later told, that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity, and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and their driver, also is said to have heard the report of the shot, and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion, which immediately followed. No one yet has been found, however, who saw the man who is said to have fired the shot.

AT OYSTER BAY WITH A GUN.

Secret Service Guard Captures Man Found to be Insane.

Oyster Bay, Sept. 8.—A crank armed with an antiquated revolver was caught near the president's summer home by a secret service official. The man described himself as John Cughlin, a detective and when stopped by the secret service officer presented a card upon which was inscribed his name and the word "officer." He said he had come to ask the president to order out 10,000 troops to watch yeggmen, who had been terrorizing Boston.

The secret service agent tried to explain that the president was not seeing visitors. Coughlin hesitated a moment and then slid his hand toward the back pocket of his trousers. The officer grappled with him and made him a prisoner.

Coughlin Pronounced Insane.

Mineola, L. I., Sept. 8.—John Coughlin, arrested while attempting to reach the president at Sagamore Hill yesterday, was examined by physicians today and pronounced insane. He will be sent to an asylum in Kings Park, L. I.

ABRUZZI WEDDING, JAN. 29.

Duke Coming Soon to See Senator Elkins' Daughter.

Rome, Sept. 8.—The Milan Union, publishes an article which has been reproduced by the whole Italian press, to the effect that the duke of the Abruzzi will soon go to the United States to make arrangements for his marriage with Miss Catherine Elkins, daughter of Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, and that the ceremony will take place Jan. 29, the duke's birthday anniversary.

Successful Operation.

Baltimore, Sept. 8.—A surgical operation was performed upon Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, at Johns Hopkins hospital yesterday. The operation was said to have been successful.

FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL

12,000 Duluth Children Go Back Ready for Year's Work.

Freshmen as Usual Get Lost in the Big Brown Stone Building.

With their faces shining and books under their arms, more than 12,000 Duluth school children trudged back to school this morning, prepared for another nine months of "'rithmetic, jogrefy and spellin'." They all had their report cards of last year except those who hadn't been promoted; they had forgotten theirs. All were right anxious to find out who their next year's teacher was to be, and many were the discussions overheard as to the merits of this teacher, and someone else.

The primary departments all over the city are overcrowded. The number to come in on the first day of school is even greater than was expected. Especially is this true in the Endion and Jefferson schools. These two schools were overcrowded last year, and the sending of more children into them means more crowded quarters than ever.

Many rooms in the basement are used for school room purposes that should not be used for this purpose at all, and the board of education is anxious to get the new Salter school built, so that these two buildings may be made more comfortable.

At the high school the entering class is the largest in the history of the school, all was confusion there this morning, with the greetings of the older pupils, the voices of the teachers and the members of the entering class wandering aimlessly up and down the halls, the vain hunt for the place they should be. Some were found strolling about in the basement, while others of an investigating frame of mind were found up in the tower trying to find out how the town clock ran. The absence of the customary hazing was noticeable this morning. While a few were taken down into the basement and made to crawl through the line to the tune of the human spanking machines, the teachers were watching for this kind of thing, and more than one young man was rescued just in time.

At 10 o'clock the members of the four classes filed into thee assembly hall and listened to talks by Principal Smith and Supt. Denfeld. By tomorrow or next day the faculty expects to have things in running order.

COMPLAIN TO POLICE

Five Men Tell Story of Employment Agency Abuse.

No Jobs After Walking Twenty-Two Miles In Swamp.

What is probably the worst case of abuse on the part of local employment agents that was ever brought to the attention of the police, came to light this morning, through the complaint of five men, members of a party of eight, who said they followed instructions and walked across twenty-two miles of swamp, only to find at the end of their long journey that there was no work for them.

The Lake Superior Employment company is said to be the offender. O. C. Olson, John Sundin, William Lang, Peter Olson and Otto Sanberg, appeared at police headquarters, and asked that steps be taken to prosecute the concern. The matter was turned over to the city attorney. The men say they paid the regular office fee for woods' work. They were given cards, supposed to guarantee them work in the camps of J. E. Erickson, twenty-two miles across country from Swan River, Minn. They also paid their own fares, which, with the employment office fee, amounted to $5 in each case. Besides this, they are out their time and living expenses on the road.

When they got to Swan River, they found they still had a journey by foot of twenty-two miles before them. The road was pointed out, and they started across through the woods. The entire distance, they say, was swamp, and the walking was very disagreeable and difficult. Tired and hungry, they arrived at the camp, only to find that there not only were no men needed, but that Erickson was laying off men every week, getting his force down to the smallest possible working basis.

On top of all this, the camp was too small to provide sleeping accommodations for the party of eight men, and they were compelled to sleep out of doos, underneath the trees, they say. The next morning they started on their long hike back to Swan River. They arrived in Duluth this morning, reported at the employment office, and say the employment company refused absolutely to allow them a refund, claiming that it was not responsible for the fact that they did not find work.

There have been several complaints lately along the same line, and the police are highly indignant. It is understood the council will be asked to drive all the local agents out of business.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

DICK SCHELL HAS KICK COMING

Says Handicap Placed on His Boat Was Too Great.

Richard Schell, owner of the Dingle Doman, the motor boat which completely outdistanced all the others in the races held here yesetrday on St. Louis river, has a kick coming in regard to the results given out by the officials of the Duluth Boat club.

"We were all asked to be on hand for a motor boat race," said Mr. Schell, and at the last moment the committee told me I would have to give the other boats a handicap of 1 minute and 58 seconds. This didn't appeal to me at all, as the race was only for two miles, and I would have to make a trifle better than thirty miles an hour in order to win. I told them that this was impossible, as the distance was so short, but they insisted. There was no one sent to measure up the boats and the affair was of a strictly informal nature. I don't see how they could figure the handicap without measuring up the boats, which I told them.

"They then told me if I wouldn't agree to the conditions I could keep out of it. I knew I had the fastest boat, and was willing to give the fairest kind of odds, but this was too much. When the boats started I waited one full minute, the handicap that I was originally willing to give, and then beat the Robert B. the leader of the race out by a quarter of a mile."

Mr. Schell insists that if there was any race run yesterday he won it. In addition to giving them a minute the best of the argument, Mr. Schell took wide swaths in the river, covering much more distance than the others.

The Buster, a 30-horse power boat of small dimensions, was started on the scratch with the Doman and the Robert B, boats of at least 50-horse power.

Mr. Schell thinks he should be given the credit of winning the race, and says that he will have something to say in a few days.

SPALDINGS WIN.

They Take the News Tribune Team Into Camp Handily.

The Spaldings defeated the News Tribune team on the grounds at Thirty-second avenue west yesterday afternoon by the score of 7 to 3.

The newspaper men were off color and couldn't connect with Danielson, who was on the hill for the Spaldings, while the other side got to Machalic, the Tribune pitcher, at will.

The Spalding team will close the season next Saturday in Superior, when they will line up against the strong Clipper team of that city. Their season this year has been a very successful one. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
News Tribune ..000200001	3	2	6
Spaldings 0130021 00	7	7	3

Batteries—Machalic and Petock; Danielson and Olson.

Wolvins Defeated.

Two Harbors, Sept. 8.—The village boys got even with the Wolvin team, taking both the game played Sunday and the Labor day game. The game yesterday was a walkaway for the Two Harbors men, and they won easily by the score of 13 to 2. Score:

Two Harbors 10025500	13
Wolvin 0201000x	3

Batteries—Lowe and Dorworth; Bloomberg and Foster.

SCUD IS BARRED

From Yacht Races for Rest of This Year.

The Scud, sailed by J. A. Roth, got away with the race held on the bay yesterday morning under the auspices of the Yacht club. The Viking finished second, 45 seconds behind the winner, and the Freckles was third.

Bob Fiske brought the Freckles over the line first in the afternoon, the Scud finishing second and the Viking third.

The Scud will be barred from taking part in any more of the races in this class for this year on account of a foul her skipper committed while passing the first buoy. The final race will be run off next Saturday afternoon.

A number of the members of the club went to Allouez yesterday, that being the annual cruise day for the organization.

HUSBAND KILLED; WIFE IS INJURED

Paris Fletcher of St. Paul Loses Life in Auto Accident.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Paris Fletcher, who was injured in the automobile accident in which her husband was killed yesterday one mile from Minnetska, Wabasha county, was brought to the city on a St. Paul train at 9:40 o'clock last night, and was immediately taken to St. Joseph's hospital. It is said that her spine is wrenched and she has numerous bruises on her body, but it was reported this morning that she was resting comfortably. She will probably recover.

The body of Mr. Fletcher, who was killed in the accident, was taken to Winona, the nearest depot, and brought to St. Paul.

Mr. Fletcher's injuries consisted of six fractured ribs, a broken back and ruptured liver.

It has not yet been ascertained just how the accident occurred. Mrs. Fletcher is the only person who can give any explanation and, on account of her weakened condition her physicians will not allow her to discuss the accident.

TWO YOUNG MEN ARE HIGHWAYMEN

Minneapolis Merchant is Held Up and Robbed While Going Home.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. L. Anderson of the firm of Newstrom & Anderson, proprietors of the shoe store on Washington avenue south, Minneapolis, was held up last night and robbed of $60 by two young men. Anderson was accosted while going from a nearby saloon to his place of business, and was forced to throw up his hands, while one of the robbers relieved him of his valuables.

Anderson was too surprised to make an outcry, and it was some time after the robbery before the police were notified, and though a thorough search was made by detectives, nothing was found of the young men who are supposed to have carried out the hold-up.

SUPERIOR JUDGE IN ANANIAS CLUB

Jenkins Letter From Roosevelt Not False as Smith Claimed.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Sept. 8.—Judge Smith of the superior court, Superior, Wis., was consigned to the Ananias club by President Roosevelt in a letter today to Congressman Jenkins. Smith, it is stated on the eve of the primary campaign in which Jenkins was defeated, sent out a circular letter asserting Jenkins' statement that Roosevelt endorsed Jenkins for re-election was false.

RED CROSS TAG DAY
SATURDAY, SEPT. 12.

SUPERIOR NEWS

No Changes Wanted.

A numerously signed petition from the residents of the Fifth ward, asking that no change be made in the school district boundaries, was considered last night by the board of education, and granted. The children who have heretofore attended the Blaine school, though it is overcrowded, will still continue to go there until the board adopts further recommendations.

The Knights Win.

The Knights of Columbus defeated the Pittsburg City league team yesterday at Hammond park by a score of 8 to 4.

Self Defense.

Jacob Meisman who, in defense of his life, shot and killed James Smith, alias Scott, highwayman, will not be brought up for trial. This was decided before the coroner's jury which heard the testimony concerning the case yesterday afternoon. Their verdict was that Meisman had been forced to shoot to save his own life. Meisman, his nephew, Charles Jaques, and C. O. Stenarud, were the only witnesses. The jury was composed of A. F. Kinney, foreman; William Mullen, J. J. Karsky, J. H. Selder, W. Wedge and A. Crowley.

Labor Day in Superior.

It was estimated that fully 10,000 people flocked to Nemadji park yesterday to witness the Labor day sports and to picnic and dance. In spite of the crowd there was not a single instance of disorderly behavior. The programs of sports, which was most complete, was carried out in full. Thomas W. McManus of Duluth acted as master of ceremonies.

The Labor day address was delivered by Louis Hanitch. He made a plea to the unions to take a broad view of the present day conditions, that they may be sure they are not fighting their own interests.

OLCOTT IN DULUTH.

Famous Irish Singer Enjoys Day on the Golf Links.

With two special cars of scenery and stage settings, Chauncey Olcott and his company arrived in the city this morning.

"Ragged Robin," is almost as large a production as a musical comedy. There are thirty people in the company.

Mr. Olcott stated that it was the largest production he had ever attempted.

He had not been in the city an hour before he was headed for the golf grounds, F. P. Alexander and H. W. Fisher are friends of Mr. Olcott and they took him to the Northland Country club, where he enjoyed a morning on the links. He is a most enthusiastic golfer and at his beautiful summer home at Saratoga, he has a private golf course.

"I always look forward to my Duluth visits," said Mr. Olcott this morning. "There isn't a city in the country where I get a warmer welcome than Duluth. This year I have a number of new songs, and the best of the old ones, and the biggest production I ever carried. Mrs. Olcott assisted in writing the play, which is a beautiful little story of Irish life."

THE FIGURE
How Too Much Fat May Be Safely Reduced at Home.
"Oh, that this too, too solid flesh would melt" cry the ladies nowadays as they try to squirm into a princess frock. How much would the too generously proportioned dame not give up for four inches less in the waistline as she compares herself with the more fortunate one hundred and twenty-five pound sister. Various devises are suggested to arrest the flesh producing tendency and keep the figure trim, including exercising, walking and dieting as well as numerous patented remedies, but there are objections to all of these. Exercising is hard work and takes up precious time; dieting is distasteful and a real punishment, and most of the patent remedies are dangerous to health.
The very best thing for the overfat, whether male or female, is a simple home receipt: ¼ oz. Marmola, ¼ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 3½ oz. Peppermint Water, which can be obtained of any druggist at small cost. This should be taken a teaspoonful at a time after meals and at bedtime, and results will be both speedy and certain. This is a harmless mixture that cannot bring on any stomach troubles nor cause the dried-up wrinkled appearance of those who starve or take "patent reducers" to get thin. On the contrary, although it often takes the fat off at the rate of a pound a day, it is really very beneficial to the system, cleansing the blood and causing the complexion to become fair and beautiful. The cost of the three ingredients is a mere bagatelle, and one may, if they prefer, get them separately and mix them together at home.

IS GRANTED A DIVORCE

Hilda J. Eide Secures Legal Separation From Her Husband.

The District Court Settles Down to Regular Calendar.

Hilda J. Eide was this morning granted a divorce by Judge Ensign in district court from her husband, Bernhard J. Eide. The decree was given on statutory grounds and the custody of the children was given to Mrs. Eide.

The case grew out of the sensational arrest of Eide with a Duluth woman at St. Cloud last winter. He was tried in court at Fergus Falls. Eide did not contest the divorce this morning, but had an attorney in court. John Jensweld, Jr., appeared for Mrs. Eide.

District court settled down this morning to the disposal of the calendar after the Labor day holiday. The petit jury assembled this morning, was sworn in and took up the first jury cases. The case of B. J. Carlson vs. Robert M. Stitt et al, was taken up before Judge Dibell. It is a suit for about $150 for supplies furnished a camp. A similar case, that of the Grand Marais Mercantile company vs. John McAlpine, was taken up before Judge Ensign. It involves about $360.

Arguments were begun before Judge Cant in the case of Keitel & Co., vs. the Duluth Brewing & Malting company. The plaintiff alleges breach of contract. The Brewing & Malting company puts in a counter claim for $10,000, alleging a violation of a contract to sell malt by the Keital company and corrupt dealing in the sale of malt as agent for the Brewing company. Howard T. Abbott and H. B. Fryberger appear for the plaintiff and Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer for the Brewing company.

LIKE DULUTH.

Skansen Dancers Appeared Before 20,000 People While in City.

The Skansen dancers, under the management of Olaf King, completed their ten days' engagement at Lester Park yesterday. They appeared before nearly 20,000 people while in the city. They went through the Swedish national dances every afternoon and evening for ten days, and always were greeted by a large crowd. From Duluth they will make a tour of the ranges.

Individual members of the troup expressed themselves as delighted with Duluth. Mr. King says he likes Duluth as well as any city he has seen in America, and expressed surprise at the great natural beauty of Lester Park. He believes that in time it will rival the greatest parks in Sweden.

17 TO 0.
Every newspaper on the ranges is demanding the nomination of A. E. Pfremmer of Hibbing for Probate Judge—17 of them—not a single exception. Duluth has eight out of a possible nine county offices—the ranges have one. Is not the demand of the ranges reasonable? Is it not good politics for Duluth to recognize that demand. For Judge of Probate give the ranges a square deal by voting for

CONGRESSMAN BEDE WILL SPEAK

Will Be at the Armory Next Tuesday Night.

Congressman J. Adam Bede will deliver a political address at the Armory Thursday evening, Sept. 10, discussing the issues of the campaign, and paying particular attention to the congressional fight in this district.

The contest between Congressman Bede and Mr. Miller is a spirited one, and is attracting more attention in Duluth than any of the other contests for public office. The campaign will, it is expected, be a warm one from now on.

POKER WITH TRANSFER.

Manager Found Clerks Enjoying the Game in Novel Maner.

"Two pairs—sevens and fours."

"Got that skinned. I have threes—all sixes, too."

"Mine's a Wyandotte. I've got nits. Guess I lose."

"Fives full on deuces."

This line of talk attracted the attention of the manager in an uptown wholesale dry goods store one day last week, says the Kansas City Journal. Just about noon each day he had noticed several clerks gather in the washroom. That in itself created some suspicion, but when he heard the talk, unaccompanied by the shuffling of cards or the significant clicking of chips, it somewhat puzzled him.

"I wonder why those boys gathered in there," he said to himself. "Now, there is one thing that this firm will not stand for, and that is a poker game in here. They must have blotter cards and rubber chips, though, or I would have heard something."

He decided to walk boldly in and beard the young lions in their gambling den. Every man held a street car transfer in his hand. There were no cards, no chips.

"What are you doing in here?" he asked as harshly as possible.

"Conducting a noiseless poker game, I guess," a wag informed him. "A poker game without chips or cards. Did you ever hear of one before?"

Then the system was explained to the manager. Several clerks had entered into the spirit of the "noiseless poker game." It was required that on the way to the office each morning every one was to ask for a transfer and keep it. About noon they would meet and the game was on. The game was played by eliminating the kings, queens and jacks, as no such faces can be found on a street car transfer. They used only the aces, or ones, to tens inclusive. They had to include the tens so as to make use of the naughts when coupled with a one.

The manager made every man "show his hand." The one who had sevens and fours produced a transfer numbered 77404. The clerk with three sixes showed one numbered 46636. The man with a "Wyandotte," which in a five-dice game means nothing, held a ticket numbered 53478 and the winner, with a grin of satisfaction showed No. 25552.

The "noiseless poker" game is played by the clerks each noon to see who is "stuck" for the cigars after lunch. It's a game of chance, and one has just as good a show as another. It is against the rules to trade transfers with another passenger because it would make you a good hand. You are supposed to be honest with the boys and keep the transfer given you. The transfer must also bear the date on which the game is played. That rule is made to keep from introducing "ringers" which have been in the game before.

"I guess it's harmless," said the manager, "but don't make too much racket about it."

This is not one of the days you can afford to "skip all of the ads."

THE SMALL END.

Congressman Longworth, at a dinner during the Republican convention in Chicago, talked about honest politics.

"Honest politics alone pay in the end," said he. "Your dishonest politician comes out like Lurgan of Cincinnati. Lurgan was canvassing for votes. He dropped it at a grocer's.

"'Good morning,' he said, 'I may count on your support, I hope?'

"'Why, no, Mr. Lurgan,' said the grocer. 'I've promised my support to your rival.'

"Lurgan laughed easily.

"'Ah, but, in politics,' said he, 'promising and performing are two different matters.'

"'In that case,' said the grocer, heartily, 'I shall be most happy to give you my promise, Mr. Lurgan.'"

"The proof is in the package." All the arguments in the world are outweighed by proof. You prove the matchless quality of "Salada" Tea the first time you drink it.

PIFFLE!

Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Clover Leaf and Chicago & Alton railroads, says that if the railroads are not left alone and allowed to manage their business in their own way, "we will have in this country an era of misery that will send to eternal damnation those who are responsible for it."

This is strong language, and like most language too strong for its purpose, will create amusement rather than consternation. It must be remembered that it is but one railroad man who talks this way—whatever some others may think—and that one railroad man does not speak for the entire business any more than one swallow makes summer. This in case Mr. Shonts' intemperate language should arouse more feeling against the railroads than the situation calls for.

The railroads had been "let alone" entirely too long when the public began to take an interest in the management of their affairs. They had got to feeling that they should always be let alone, and that they must manage their business in their own way no matter how much their methods oppressed the people. They had been building up monopolies by giving rebates, they had been robbing the little fellows to enrich the big fellows, they had been arrogantly dictating politics and public affairs in the nation and in the states. If, when the people revolted against such ways, a little too much force was applied here and there, it was not a thing to marvel at. Considering everything in the history of the railroad business, the long-suffering people showed remarkable restraint and temperance when they finally awoke to the need of regulating the railroads.

The railroad business is not a private business, to be conducted as its owners—or its directors, for stockholders are usually pretty decent and pretty harmless folks—may see fit. It is a public business, to be conducted for the public good. By chance, it has fallen out in this country—though it has happened that way in but few other countries—that the control of railroads has fallen into private hands instead of public. That makes no difference in the fact that rail highways are just as much public thoroughfares as water highways or macadam roads, and nobody must lose sight of that fact.

Railroad investors are entitled to a fair return upon their honest investments for performing the public service of transportation, and that is all there is to it. If they ask more than a fair return they are despoiling the people. If the people seek to compel them to perform their service for less than fairly remunerative rates, the people are not dealing justly with an important and necessary public utility. If the railroads make unjust demands, they are arousing a free people to the point of taking retaliatory measures that may hurt. If the people deal too harshly with the railroads, they hurt themselves by injuring the service.

Fair play on both sides is the most that either should or can ask. If the railroads give that, the people cannot complain. If the people, in insisting upon getting justice, concede fair play to the railroads, that is as much as the railroads should expect. Violently absurd remarks like those of Mr. Shonts do not tend to promote the temperate consideration of the common welfare that is needed.

NON-PARTISAN JUDICIARY.

If there is a branch of the public service that should be kept strictly out of politics it is the judiciary, and that reminds us that by common consent the judiciary of this district is kept pretty well out of politics. This is well, especially when the bench of the Eleventh judicial district is adorned by three such upright, just and clear-visioned judges as Josiah D. Ensign, William A. Cant and Homer B. Dibell.

This year two of these officials, Judge Ensign and Judge Cant, are candidates for re-election to further terms of six years each. Neither has opposition, for nomination or for election. Both are nominally Republicans, though it has never happened that one of the Duluth judges carried his partisanship upon the bench with him. The bar and the public being more than satisfied with existing conditions, nobody has filed for the nomination of either party except the two incumbents, and they will, therefore, be re-elected without opposition. This is a tribute which they have earned by their contributions to the universal faith that exists in the integrity of the bench of this district.

Some time it will be so arranged that judges will not be nominated or elected upon partisan lines at all. When the poorest possible qualification of a judge is his affiliation with one party or another, it is folly to nominate and elect judges upon partisan lines. The fact that there has been no opposition to any of the Duluth judges in recent years proves not only the public confidence in these judges, but the popular appreciation of the fact that the judgeship should be kept out of politics.

SAVING COAL WASTE.

Though the exhaustion of American coal beds is still far in the future, the rate at which coal is being mined and consumed is great enough to make people think about the inevitable end, and the result is a valuable study in economy of coal-using which the government is taking up under the direction of the chief of the technological branch of the United States geological survey. The investigations so far have shown the possibility of utilizing, through washing, coking and briqueting, poorer grades of coal than are now commonly used, while the gas producer process also gives superior results from lower grade coal. In the past these poor grades have been thrown in with the debris from the mine, and much of them wasted. Mixed with the dirt and rock from the mine, it will be impossible to recover it. However, if these experiments show practical results, as they seem likely to do, in the future greater care will undoubtedly be taken in coal-mining.

Government statistics, lately compiled, show that 480,450,042 tons of coal, valued at $614,831,549, were produced in this country last year. It was the largest yearly output of coal this country has ever seen, exceeding the previous record, that of 1906, by 66,292,764 tons, and exceeding that of Great Britain in 1907 by 180,480,373 tons. Last year our coal production, with corresponding consumption, was 60 per cent greater than that of Great Britain, which until a few years ago was the leading coal producer of the world. This is a striking illustration of the industrial advance of this country.

Pennsylvania leads all the states in coal production. Its output last year was 85,604,312 tons of anthracite, worth $163,584,056, and 150,321,437 tons of bituminous coal, valued at $155,837,770, making a total production of 235,925,749 tons, worth $319,421,826 at the mines.

The total production of bituminous coal in this country last year was 394,845,730 tons, valued at $451,247,493, as against 342,874,867 tons, worth $381,162,115, in 1906. The output of anthracite coal in 1907 was 85,604,312 tons, valued at $131,917,634, as against 71,282,414 tons, valued at $100,251,272, in 1906.

Thus in one year the total remaining coal supply of the nation was reduced nearly half a billion tons. The deposits are vast, but they are being drawn upon at a prodigious rate, and the figures are enough to make scientists begin to think not only of economy in the use of coal, but of what is to take its place when it is gone. Doubtless the development of water power, now in its infancy, will do the greatest part in solving the problem.

BACK TO SCHOOL.

Today the doors of the many public school buildings in Duluth opened again after the summer vacation, and more than 12,000 young people more or less gladly trooped up the steps and into the schoolrooms, where later in the day that suppressed buzz characteristic of a room full of irrepressible youth was humming away as though it had never ceased at all.

It is customary at the beginning of the new school year to talk profoundly to the young people about the splendid advantages the schools offer them, and about how they ought to apply themselves diligently in order to show their appreciation of what society is doing for them and in order that they may be wise and capable and successful citizens later on in life. Our experience is, however, judging by more or less remote memories of the effects of such counsel upon the young folks who find themselves, much against their will, compelled again to face the weary round of school tasks, that though it is pleasant to the ears of the grown folks to hear themselves saying it, forgetting how they hated to hear it when they were young, it is of mighty little benefit to the pupils at this stage of the school year.

Just now they are a little irritated at the dire necessity that put a period to the joys of vacation and plunged them again into the work of a new school year, and they are in no mood to be told what a splendid thing it is. However, this condition of mind will presently wear off. It is exactly like that of the grown person who, after a hard-won vacation, returns to the treadmill on Monday morning, wishing vacation lasted all the time and that the need of work did not exist. That wears off, too, in a day or two, just as soon as you have adjusted yourself once more to the round of labor. The school children will feel differently about it in a few days, too, and then —not now—is the time to get that profound advice delivered to them.

MORE SHALLOW REASONING.

Another curious feature of the arguments against the plan of guaranteeing bank deposits is that every candidate or newspaper that talks against it seems to assume that if the plan goes into effect, all other laws for the regulation of banking will be repealed or allowed to fall into inaction.

For instance, here is the Chicago Evening News, worrying thus: "Under Mr. Bryan's plan a good deal of the banking probably would be done by men who had no proper claim to the title of bankers, either through experience or through the use of safe methods in handling the funds of depositors. If that should prove to be the case it would not be many years before a shocking state of demoralization would develop."

This is absurdity gone mad. Such a result could not happen unless every existing law aimed to compel safe methods in banking were repealed. As a matter of fact, the adoption of the guaranty plan would tend to improve banking methods in two ways: First, it would result in the enactment of still stronger laws regulating the banking business, and there is no harm in that because upon sound banking methods depends not only the safety of the people's money but the continuance of credit, which is the life of business. Second, it would give the bankers themselves a new incentive to keep close watch upon the methods of their competitors. If the bankers in a given community found that a competitor were indulging in reckless methods, they would realize that if these methods led to his collapse they would have to help pay depositors, and they would take measures to bring the reckless banker to time, either by refusing him the privileges of the clearing house or by calling in the bank examiners.

As a matter of fact, not a single valid argument has yet been made against the guaranty of bank deposits. It is unfortunate that the issue has been made political, because it has compelled Republican candidates and Republican newspapers to rack their brains for arguments in opposition to it. These have been wonderfully poor and strangely feeble arguments, but the bare fact that a considerable number of "authorities" do oppose it and argue against it may lead those who do not analyze the reasoning to fear that the adoption of the plan would be followed by disastrous consequences.

It is a good, sound, practical method of warding off panic. Bankers oppose it because of its expense, without stopping to realize that the mere assurance of the safety of deposits would protect the bankers in the normal operation of their two services to the public—that of receiving and caring for the people's savings and that of loaning them out that business may thrive—and would prevent losses enough to pay the cost. Many a sound bank has failed because the senseless fear of depositors caused a "run," because no bank, when the law requires that at most 25 per cent of the deposits shall be in the bank's vaults, is in a position to withstand a demand for the immediate return of all its deposits. A bank having failed, the costs of receivership, the wasting of securities because of the depression brought on by the failure, and the bankruptcy of debtors caused by the sudden withdrawal of credit, result in real losses to depositors that never would have come about if the depositors, knowing that their money was safe, had let the bank alone. The guaranty plan would cause depositors to let the banks alone, and the banks could then let their debtors alone.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Kermit Roosevelt, son of the president, will have good bear hunting in the Coleraine district if special police in the employ of the mining companies have anything to say about it. There is nothing in the game laws which prohibits the shooting of bruin, but it is said arrest will be the fate of any man other than a member of Kermit's party who is caught shooting at these denizens of the forest while the president's son is in Northern Minnesota.

"A man cannot even protect his own stock, the way things are now," said a Coleraine merchant, who was in the city yesterday at the St. Louis, and who does not care to have his name used in connection with the story, for business reasons. "I have about 100 hogs not many miles from Coleraine. That is to say, I had about 100 earlier in the season. The man in charge of the place says there are only seventy-six head now on the ground, and at the present rate of decrease there will be only fifty very shortly, unless young Roosevelt gets busy with his rifle and sustains the reputation of his father as a bear hunter.

"Bears are particularly partial to pork, and frequently members of a bruin family near my hog ranch pay a visit to the place, never returning home without a luscious porker clutched in their arms. This thing has been going on for some little time, much to my annoyance and disgust. Last week I made up my mind to see if I couldn't put a cog in the wheels, or, more correctly speaking, a bullet in the ribs of some of the tribe. Accordingly I shouldered my trusty rifle and hied me to the scene of trouble.

"I found bear signs, all right, and determined to lie in wait until Mr. or Mrs. Bruin showed up. I stationed myself in a likely spot, and hadn't been there long before along came a special police employed by one of the mining companies. 'What are you doing here?' he demanded. 'Trying to shoot one of those pesky bears, to stop inroads on my hog farm,' said I.

"'Shoot one of them bears and you will be arrested and jailed for the unlawful discharge of firearms within the village limits,' said the fellow. I asked for an explanation.

"'President Roosevelt's son is coming up here, and we want to show him a good time,' he volunteered. 'We want to see him bag a bear or two, and don't intend to stand around and see other people stand around and mar his chances. Better let your hogs shift for themselves awhile.'

"I took his advice."

Mr. Bryan's "Change."

Cincinnati Enquirer: It is heard on all sides from Mr. Bryan's friends that he is a different man from the Bryan who so dashingly led a glittering hope in 1896. Contemplation of his speech at Minneapolis leads one to agree with this view. He has changed measurably. He has gained greatly in finesse, he is far more adroit; he handles all the fine-edged tools of the politician with the skill of a master of the craft. In his earlier campaigns Mr. Bryan spoke out of his heart. It would be unjust to say that he does not do the same today, but it is certain that he has added to this the wisdom of his brain.

Mr. Bryan's Minneapolis speech carried out his new ideal. He talked economy and let loose the phials of his wrath upon the Republican party for permitting the last congress to spend a billion dollars. A sermon on economy is always popular when preached to a congregation of frugal people.

The people of Minnesota and of the neighbor state, Washington, are largely of a stock and ancestry noted for economical ideas. Many of them have been inured to poverty and hard work. They believe in frugality in home life no less than in the affairs of state and nation. No one would accuse them of parsimony in either. Moreover, in both states they have had practical illustration of reform and economical state management. It is scarcely to be believed that the sturdy people of these states will easily forget the principles and ideas inculcated under the Johnson and LaFollette administrations. They seem to have approved of them at home. Mr. Bryan's appeal then, to Minnesota voters appears to have been particularly adroit and well timed. Why should they not set the seal of their voting approval upon one pledged to retrenchment in national affairs? It would seem to be but a natural conclusion to infer that they are just as much interested in the nation's economy as in the state's.

Vermont and November.

Washington Star: Vermont has spoken, and in tones carrying no surprise. The figures warrant neither great elation in the winners nor great discouragement in the losers, so far as the national situation is concerned. We get no definite line on November from them. Green mountain politics has at no time been stirred by the problems which have so deeply stirred the West and the Northwest the past few years, and upon which Mr. Bryan is basing his hope of victory. Tariff revision, railroad regulation, union labor and guaranteed bank deposits have not shaken Vermont as they have Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Kansas and Nebraska. Yesterday's returns, although they show no turn of the Republican tide in an old Republican stronghold, are not to be accepted as settling anything but the local contests. November, with the national problems, is still ahead, and the battle is on.

THE WEATHER.

It isn't often that this section of the country really wishes an old-fashioned northeaster, but that is exactly what the tinder-dry woods surrounding the villages and settlements of Northeastern Minnesota need; though no doubt if it came it wouldn't be a day old before a lot of people would be complaining about it, for such is humanity. The weather man promises no blessing, however. This morning it was clear, mild and charming, and the mild breezes furnished the only item of hope for the fire-threatened, though the weather man says there will probably be local showers, which might help a great deal. Yesterday's highest temperature was 68 degs., and last night's lowest was 56 degs.

A year ago today a northeaster was in progress, with rain and wind all day.

The sun rose this morning at 5:36 and sets tonight at 6:35, making 12 hours and 59 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "An area of low barometric pressure is central over Northern Saskatchewan. This disturbance caused very high temperatures throughout the greater part of the Northwest during the past twenty-four hours, as well as light to copious showers in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Utah and Arizona. Showers also occurred over the Middle and Eastern gulf states. The barometer remains high in the eastern lake region. Rising pressures in the North Pacific districts and the plateau region are attended by cooler weather there. Conditions favor rather strong westerly winds in St. Louis and Douglas counties tonight and Wednesday, but local showers are probable."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

Brisk southwest to northwest winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON, Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Forecasts until 7 p. m., Wednesday: Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday with possibly showers; warmer tonight; cooler in west and central portions Wednesday.

Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer tonight; cooler Wednesday afternoon.

Minnesota—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; cooler Wednesday and in west and north portions tonight.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; cooler tonight and in east portion Wednesday.

Upper Lakes—Brisk and possibly high southwest winds tonight, shifting to west and northwest by Wednesday night; partly cloudy weather with showers on Superior.

A Real Barometer.

New York World: Of far greater political significance than the Vermont election is the result of the primaries in Nebraska, Wisconsin and Michigan.

We have never been greatly impressed by the superstition that Vermont is a political barometer. It may measure the enthusiasm or apathy of a large element of the New England voters, but the New England voters do not decide presidential contests.

For example, in the September election of 1896, the Vermont Democrats polled only 14,855 votes. In the September election of 1900, they polled 17,129. Judged by Vermont, Mr. Bryan should have been a stronger candidate in 1900 than in 1896, yet he was weaker and the majority against him was larger.

In the September election of 1904 the Vermont Democrats polled nearly as many votes as in 1900, but Judge Parker was worse beaten than Greeley. Even in respect to the Independence league, the 1,200 votes of the Hearst candidate Tuesday, in Vermont, are no index of what the Hearst ticket may do next November in the state of New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and California.

The Middle Western primaries, however, deserve careful consideration. In Nebraska the two most prominent Bryan seekers after the governorship, Dahlman and Berge, were opposed by Shallenberger, who has never been conspicuous as a promoter of Bryanism. Dahlman is not only a member of the Bryan kitchen cabinet, but is a vociferous friend of Mr. Roosevelt and My Policies.

In Wisconsin, Senator Stephenson was indorsed for re-election, although La Follette had broken with him and erased the O. K. mark. Representative Jenkins, chairman of the house judiciary committee, was defeated for renomination.

Whether or not the Middle West is more radical than ever, it is certainly more independent. The voters are not asking Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Bryan, Mr. La Follette or anybody else whom they shall nominate and elect to office. They have their own ideas on that subject, and more and more they resent anything that resembles dictation.

This feeling is sure to manifest itself in the November elections. Four years ago professional politicians were astonished by the independent voting which elected Douglas governor of Massachusetts and Johnson governor of Minnesota, despite the overwhelming Roosevelt majorities in those states. This year they are likely to be still more astonished. The American voter is learning how to mark his ballot.

An Unsympathetic World.

Young's Magazine: "How we are misunderstood," said Miss Blanche Walsh. "This is an unsympathetic world. I overheard two chambermaids in my hotel discussing a guest the other day.

"'He's a very finicky, fussy gentleman,' said the first.

"'Indeed, you're right he is,' the other agreed warmly. 'He caught me using one of his razors one morning to pry open a stiff window with and kicked up an awful row. Some folks hate a bit of fresh air.'"

New York "Hold-Ups."

New York Times: If comparisons are of any worth, this city is in a worse predicament because of its thieves and murderers, than were the old frontier towns of the West.

A Mosquito Trap.

Chambers' Journal: All of those whose lot unfortunately casts them in regions where the mosquito thrives fully realize the ravages of this pest and the discomfort experienced from their attacks—not taking into consideration any such maladies, such as malaria, which they disseminate—if proper precautionary methods are not practiced. A simple and inexpensive little trap which Mr. Maxwell Lefroy of the Indian Eutomological department has devised and found highly effective is a distinct acquisition to every tropical residence. It is a small box some twelve inches square and nine inches wide, fitted with a hinged lid provided with a small orifice, over which moves a sliding cover. The box is lined with dark green baize and has a tin floor. The trap is placed in a shady corner of the room, and the mosquitoes upon entering the house in the morning seclude themselves therein to escape the sunlight. When the insects have duly settled the lid is shut and about a teaspoonful of bonzine injected into the box. Within a short time the flies succumb. Mr. Lefroy continued htis process daily until the mosquitoes ceased to be troublesome, and within thirty-one days he caught and killed over 2,300 of these insects.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

•••Allan C. Miller, who has lived in Duluth for the past three years and who has lately been the city agent of Fleischman & Co.'s yeast, died at the residence of Alexander Hamilton on East Superior street and his remains will be shipped to his parents at Owen Sound, Ont.

•••Mrs. Arthur P. Cook returned yesterday from a long visit at her old home in the East.

•••Forest H. Orton returned home from St. Paul yesterday afternoon to visit his mother and sister.

•••The contract for the foundation of the new West end twelve-room school has been let to Watterworth & Fee for $9,400.

•••Word has been received here that the steamer Toledo of the Ward line has been practically destroyed by fire at Detroit.

•••Physicians report that typhoid and kindred diseases, which have been very frequent during the past few months, are decreasing in number and that the general health of the city is improving.

•••The Cox broom factory has proved so successful in Duluth that a branch office has been started at Fargo, William Schadtke, a former employe of Mr. Cox here, being in charge.

•••The board of trade held a meeting yesterday afternoon to discuss the reports received from Chicago that the Minnesota state warehouse commissioners are proposing to reduce the grades of wheat, whereby the old grade of No. 1 hard would be practically wiped out and No. 1 Northern substituted on speculative contracts. When it became known that hard wheat was to be virtually wiped out by the admission of 10 per cent of unsound grain the board was wrathy. It was decided to make a strong protest against any change in the grades.

•••Talks with delegates to the state Republican convention showed that the Western counties in the Forty-sixth legislative district are willing to concede the nomination of a representative to St. Louis county.

•••It is practically settled that Alexander Morrison will be J. P. Johnson's opponent for clerk of court and that Henry Truelson will come up again for sheriff. E. H. Hall is talked of as the Democratic candidate for register of deeds, while "Jimmy" Smith will be nominated for auditor.

•••Miss Hopkins' school for young children will open tomorrow at the corner of Second street and Fourth avenue west.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON.

Warroad Plaindealer (Rep.): The Democrats knew enough for once to nominate the right man; and in John A. Johnson as the Democratic nominee to succeed himself as governor, the members of the old Republican state machine steered by Bob Dunn see gone into smithereens the alluring but deceptive glass in which they had been fondly gazing upon their images as reflected from the capitol, with the lust of land, mineral, water power and timber plunder in their eyes.

Fergus Falls Globe: Governor Johnson's nomination for a third term was unavoidable, and meets with the hearty approval of the many persons whom we have heard express themselves on the subject. Governor Johnson did not want the nomination; but the political exigencies demanded it, and he had to yield, and reluctantly accepted. It will be a hot campaign, in which Johnson will win again.

Willmar Journal: The Republican party of this state settled the third term question in 1879, when it renominated John S. Pillsbury for a third term, and the people of Minnesota set their seal of approval on the act by reelecting him. If it was all right for a Republican governor to serve three terms, it must be proper enough for a Democrat to do the same. But as the politicians cannot find anything in Johnson's official career to criticise, they may be excusable for drifting off on these side issues.

Albert Lea Standard: Some of the hidebound Republican organs are criticising Governor Johnson for accepting a renomination after he said he would not, and for standing for a third term. They stupidly fail to realize that they are thus knocking some of the most eminent apostles and leaders of their own party. Roosevelt, in the most explosive adjectives of the dictionary, declared by the great horn spoons he would never accept the vice presidency on the first McKinley ticket, but Tom Platt, the malodorous Tom Platt, nominated him, and, awful to state—he accepted it. As to a third term, the Republican party of this state gave us an example in Governor Pillsbury, and Wisconsin another in La Follette, and Iowa yet another in Cummins—all Republicans. Such knocking is a boomerang—it knocks the knockers silly.

New Ulm Review: The Franklin Tribune insists that in order to elect Jacobson it is necessary to get rid of all barnacles of the Dunn type, to suppress Frank Eddy's funnicisms, and to treat John A. Johnson like a gentleman. In other words, Johnson will be elected.

St. Cloud Times: Traveling men at the local hotels who go all over the state say that they are surprised at the Bryan sentiment they meet with everywhere. Asked as to the chances of Johnson, they only laugh and remark aht "if Johnson ever pries himself loose from the governorship, it will not be with the help of the people of Minnesota."

Fairmont Sentinel It doesn't pay for the old party hacks to abuse and misrepresent Governor Johnson. The Pioneer Press, in its issue of Sunday, Aug. 30, speaks of the governor's popularity, and his "personal magnetism and gift of felicitous platform utterance." It also says, while these are admirable qualities, "a much more respectable source of Governor Johnson's strenght is the fact that he has as governor exercised sound judgment, and has shown both the power and the disposition to absorb good advice." "These," said the Pioneer Press, "are the very essential qualities in a governor."

How cheap the little chaps must feel after reading such admissions from the leading party organ.

Backfire.

Kansas City Times: The failure of Representative Jenkins of the Eleventh Wisconsin district to secure a renomination, and the success of Mr. Irvine L. Lenroot, a conspicuous LaFollette man, may be attributed directly to the attitude of the house judiciary committee in the last two sessions of congress. Mr. Jenkins was chairman of that committee. In his general policy of obstruction Speaker Cannon found the judiciary committee one of his must useful mediums.

The defeat of Cannon men within the Republican party ought to be a pointer for Democratic congressional candidates in districts where Cannon men are renominated by the Republicans.

The Cannon issue is the highest issue in the congressional elections.

Philadelphia Press: Dumley—I'm sure if you accepted me I'd make you a good husband.

Miss Brightly—That's out of the question, but I'm sure I'd make you a good husband if I accepted you.

The Socialist Canvass.

Kansas City Times: A nominal contest for the presidency is only an incident in the Socialist campaign. Mr. Debs, as the most prominent political leader of the Socialist propaganda, will be as much, or as little, of a force in the country after the election as before it.

The time is past when Socialism and the aims of the Socialist political organization can be ignored. Its doctrines and its leaders are not yet understood by the mass of the people; but at one time they were so wholly misunderstood or misrepresented that Socialism was assumed to be all that was bad and its confusion with Anarchism was general among all but its initiates and a comparative few of its critics.

The significant growth of a movement that takes in all civilized countries proves that it has a strong foundation in the humanities and that it must possess much in common with the aspirations of all men and women who are friends, and not enemies, of righteousness.

Socialism is, in fact, a manifestation of social unrest; with it is a constructive program—whether rightly constructive or wrongly so. Whatever of this program is visionary, ultra-radical and threatening, even of violent revolt, finds strength chiefly in so far as the good that is in the Socialist ideals is denounced or ignored along with the bad or impractical.

To the extent that Socialism teaches a destructive spirit of class consciousness it is self-destructive. By equally fair reasoning to the extent that Socialism is condemned or opposed in a class-conscious spirit of fear or hatred, Socialism will spread. There is reason for the belief that a correction of the abuses of our present social system and a fair, inquiring spirit concerning the inequities which have given rise to Socialism will cause that propaganda to disappear for lack of usefulness.

Embarrassing.

From a New York Letter: Two young men, immaculately attired in flannels, swinging slender canes, and plus all the rest of the summer regalia, walked into Central park the other morning. They spied a couple of girls they knew sitting on the grass, and, of course, strolled over for a chat. Maybe they noticed that the girls sat very closely to the ground and kept their toes tucked under, and maybe they didn't. If they observed the very obvious embarrassment of the young women they made no comment. Both chaps were talking, gossiping, kidding, when one of the young women leaped to her feet with a wild yell. Then it was quite possible even for a distant observer to see that she had discarded shoes and stockings.

"I just couldn't help it," she said, apologetically, as she sat down again on the grass, her back to the callers, and resumed her footgear. "You know, it is the fad now among girls to come out here in the morning and do the Kneipp thing. If you see a couple of girls sitting on the lawn and looking frightened you may be sure they have pulled off shoes and hose, and are getting 'earth electricity' by the barefoot way, I can assure you that we didn't want any callers this morning. It's hard enough to get the shoes back on without attracting attention, anyhow. But when that ant bit my toe I just had to scream."

FIRE SWEEPS THE PRAIRIE

Flames Eat Up Grass, Haystacks and All Other Combustibles.

Awful Spectacle Witnessed By Passengers Near Holmes Station.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The passengers northbound on the Northern Pacific train from Holmes station, yesterday afternoon, were treated to a rare sight in recent years. A section of prairie, ten miles long and about five miles wide, was a mass of flames. The fire, fanned by a high wind, traveled as the speed of a race horse, and the loss will be heavy, as at one time over twenty hay stacks could be seen burning.

Despite the heavy rains of a week ago, the winds have dried the grass to resemble tinder, and it burned fiercely. Detailed information as to losses is not obtainable, but from the train men, women and children could be seen fighting to save their homes and property.

Two hours before, a freight train was standing at Holmes, and at that time there was no sign of fire. It is supposed the fire was started by sparks from the engine of the northbound freight train, and in two hours had devastated a territory of about fifty or sixty square miles. Late last night the fire could be seen from here, still raging with the entire heavens to the east and southeast lit up by the conflagration.

WHEAT KING BURIED.

Funeral of Oliver Dalrymple Held in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Oliver Dalrymple, the bonanza farmer, who died Thursday near Casselton, N. D., was held from his home here, 265 Summit avenue, on Sunday. Rev. Dr. John W. Wright, rector of St. Paul's church, read the services. Interment in Oakland cemetery was private. Nephews and other relatives of Mr. Dalrymple were pallbearers, as follows: P. S. Dalrymple, P. C. Dalrymple and D. N. Dalrymple of St. Paul; H. A. Button, Casselton, N. D.; W. S. Moore, Minneapolis, and M. D. Messenger, St. Paul.

A service for Mr. Dalrymple was held at the farm residence near Casselton Friday, the clergyman being Rev. O. Childs of the Casselton Episcopal church. Prominent business men of Casselton were the pallbearers. The remains were sent to St. Paul Friday night.

POOR FUND EXHAUSTED.

Dickinson County Hard Pressed to Care for Its Indigents.

Norway, Mich., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—In part because of the depression in the iron trade, which in turn has resulted in the curtailment of mining operations, on the activity of which the prosperity of many Upper Michigan towns largely depends, the demands upon the treasury of the Dickinson county poor commissioners have been unusually heavy this year. The available funds have become exhausted, in fact. An appropriation of $25,000 was made for the support of the poor at the last annual meeting of the supervisors. This amount became available the first of the year, and since then it has been entirely expended. Now, with the treasury empty, the orders issued are made payable Feb. 1 next, with interest at the rate of 6 per cent. It is estimated that the disbursements for the year will approximate not far from $40,000.

WOULD EXTRADITE HAMILTON

Sheriff Beck of Houghton Wants Man in Duluth Jail.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff Beck has caused Justice Prand to issue a complaint against and a warrant for the arrest of George Hamilton of Duluth, who, it is alleged, shipped the box of explosives to the sheriff last July, which, but for the caution of that officer in opening it, would have killed himself, his family and his deputy, William Anderson, as well as wrecked a whole wing of the courthouse.

It is known that an effort is being made to extradite Hamilton from Duluth, where he is in jail awaiting trial on the charge of forgery, and that some difficulty is being experienced. Mr. Beck thinks it prudent to work quietly, and he will not give out anything for publication until Hamilton is brought here.

INHERITS LARGE AMOUNT.

Sherburne County Farmer's Wife Gets Nice Windfall.

Elk River Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Anna Bartholomew, wife of E. P. Bartholomew, who resides on the D. H. Freeman farm in this Sherburne county has fallen heir to about $8,000. She received word a few weeks ago that her brother, William Heath, an attorney in England, had left an estate valued at $100,000, to be divided among six sisters and one brother. Mrs. Bartholomew received a check for 500 pounds sterling, or $2,500, as the first instalment about a week ago. This is her share of what was realized on the personal property. This part of the estate, which was sold at auction, brought only $17,500, although it is stated that it was worth nearly $30,000. The real estate will be disposed of in the near future. Owing to the fact that the property will be sold at a low cash price in order to turn it into cash, Mrs. Bartholomew does not believe that her share will be over $8,000 or $9,000.

SENSATION IS ENDED.

Alleged Kidnaping Case Probably Ended at Minot.

Minot, N. D., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The curtain has fallen on the scene of the alleged kidnaping of Miss Adelaine Markham by G. L. Knapp of Northfield, Minn.

Mr. Knapp, who was held temporarily awaiting instructions from the Northfield authorities has left for the East, an apparently free man, and unless a warrant is issued at Northfield, there will probably nothing come of the case.

"I do not believe that they are going to do anything about it," said Mr. Knapp before leaving. "We have heard nothing from Northfield. The Minot officials wired that if I was to be extradited to Minnesota, the Northfield people would have to pay the cost of the proceedings, and I guess they decided not to put up the money."

Knapp left, leaving Adelaine, the girl in the case, and her mother in Minot. The only echo of the event is the criminal case instituted against O. B. Granum, who is charged with trying to extort $10 out of Mrs. Markham on consideration of not publishing her name in connection with the story.

WASHINGTON COUNTY FAIR.

Fourth Annual Exhibition Begins Tuesday at Stillwater.

Stillwater, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Washington county fair began here today and will continue four days.

In addition to a good exhibit along the lines of farm products and other line of industry and art, there will be a good special program for three days. Some special attractions are also arranged for. The Stillwater band will hsome out-of-town talent will be a good one. It will parade the streets three days and furnish music at the track.

Wednesday will be Stillwater day and the business houses and shops of the city are expected to close for the afternoon.

Friday will be children's day and the schools will close for the afternoon. School pupils will be admitted that day for 10 cents.

A large number of entries have been made for the race events and many entries have been recorded for exhibits.

THRESHING WELL ALONG.

With Favorable Weather, Work Will Finish in Ten Days.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The present week with a continuation of good weather will see the completion of threshing operations in Grand Forks county, while ten days more will find the work about finished throughout the northern part of the state. This, at least, is the opinion of those who have been out in different sections of the country within the past few days. In Grand Forks county the work has been pushed ahead remarkably fast this year, an early start resulting in the larger part of the grain being threshed out at the present time. Along the Soo line from Ardoch to Kenmare, the threshing is a little behind that of this district, weather conditions resulting in more delay than it did in the valley districts.

The yield has been very satisfactory and the high prices prevailing has resulted in farmers making good this year.

CONDUCTED OPIUM JOINT.

Serious Charge Against Couple Arrested in Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Though the first charge against them was attempting to bribe an officer, Elmer Todd and his wife, colored, are now being held on charges of having an opium outfit in their possession. The couple had a complete opium smoking outfit, including a large quantity of opium, the possession of which is contrary to the state laws. The charge of attempting to bribe an officer was dismissed upon the finding of the opium and they will have a hearing on this latter charge today. It was first claimed that they had attempted to bribe Capt. Sullivan in order to be allowed to work a hold-up game.

Frazee School Burned.

Frazee, Minn., Sept. 8.—The Frazee public school building was entirely destroyed by fire, the origin of the fire being unknown.

The building was originally constructed at a cost of about $16,000, and improvements in the way of a large addition, new heating plant, also plumbing and ventilation were added to it at a cost of $16,000 additional. The work of construction was nearing completion at the time of the fire. Work on another building will begin at once.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Crookston—C. R. Brackett and A. H. Lyman of Excelsior, Minn., returned Saturday from a hunting trip in Kittson and Roseau counties. They had with them a big bag of game and are well satisfied with the result of their trip.

Ranier—William Barrigan, superintendent of bridges and construction for the Rainy Lake road has been spending a few days here putting in some lights on the bridge. The lightning will consist of two pier lights on each peir, one to the east and one to the west. The bridge will have what is known as a Schurzer Lift Bridge Danger light.

St. Cloud—The largest labor demonstration which has ever been held in this city took place Monday. The program of events as arranged by the committee was full of interesting events and attracted hundreds of people.

International Falls—Capt. Wilson is placing the tug Moose on the Canadian ways in order to fit her with a new propellor preparatory to bringing down the Cook-O'Brien logs, which are coming out of Namakan lake for shipment to the Virginia mills. The spur to the lake at Ranier on which the logs will be taken out has been completed and the hoisting outfit will be in place ready for action when the logs reach the village by the lake.

Moorhead—Pargil O. Smartland, a prosperous farmer, residing on the Buffalo river, died on Friday. He was born March 11, 1860 and leaves a wife and three children. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon and interment was at Concordit cemetery.

Brainerd—The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. has taken action toward a systematic membership which will be undertaken in the near future, probably from the 10th to the 20th of September. A list of over 460 names of possible members is in the hands of the board and secretary and it will be swelled by 1,000 more names before the work is commenced.

Akeley—The first issue of the Laporte News will be issued about Sept. 15. The outfit for the plant was installed Monday. C. T. Kelley formerly of the Herald here is to be editor.

Grand Marais—Alex E. Zimmerman of Duluth, a former resident of this county and once a candidate for county auditor, was in town last week. He went into the woods with several others who accompanied him. Mr. Zimmerman is at present assistant city clerk of Duluth.

Aitkin—The congressional campaign was fairly opened here on Thursday evening, when Clarence B. Miller, who is contesting with J. Adam Bede for the latter's seat in congress, presented his claims to a fine audience at the opera house.

Stillwater—George A. Lammers left Sunday for Shuswap, B. C. Shuswap is the point where the Adams River Lumber company, of which Mr. Lammers is astockholder, is building a mill and getting in readiness to operate an extensive lumber business.

St. Hilaire—The American Society of Equity which was organized here last July held its first regular meting on Aug. 28 and elected the following officers: N. A. Nelson, president; P. O. Hagglund, vice president; John R. Gottla, secretary and treasurer. The next regular meeting will be held the last Friday of this month, Sept. 25.

St. Cloud—Joseph Bebensee, formerly of this city, but now of Duluth, arrived in the city Saturday morning. Mr. Bebensee has not been here in the last twenty years and he was naturally surprised at the growth of the city during that time.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Hancock—Mrs. Matt Furth and son of Duluth, who formerly resided in Hancock, are guests of Conductor and Mrs. C. F. Wern, at their home on Water street. They expect to spend about ten days in Hancock.

Houghton—Alfalfa raised in Houghton county will be exhibited at the coming county fair by several farmers who have been experimenting with this kind of hay and have had success.

Ahmeek—The Houghton County Street Railway company has unloaded several cars of railroad ties at the Ahmeek siding. Practically all the grading between Ahmeek and Wolverine has been completed and there just remains a short strip between Ahmeek and Mohawk to be graded.

Calumet—The Mack-Leone company of Duluth opened a week's engagement at the Calumet theater, Monday, Labor day afternoon, playing "The Man On the Box."

Ironwood—Dan Luther, of Ithaca, has been appointed court stenographer of the Thirty-second judicial circuit, comprising this and Gogebic counties, and will make his headquarters at Ironwood. Mr. Luther served in this capacity at the last term of court.

Ontonagon—President Meilleur, of the bank, has purchased a fine Rambler touring car. It is equipped with a four-cylinder thirty horsepower engine and is one of the latest machines made by this concern.

Calumet—John Chop, a trammer, and August Kortela, a miner, were injured while at work underground at the Old Colony, Friday afternoon. Chop was the more seriously injured of the two, and is now in the Calumet public hospital in a critical condition. He is suffering from severe internal injuries.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—Following the opening of the public schools and the business colleges in Fargo, the others are getting ready for the fall work. The term at the North Dakota Agricultural college begins next Monday, the Fargo Congregational college a day later and the Oak Grove Lutheran Ladies' seminary begins Sept. 29.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Mrs. E. R. Day of Donaldson, Ind., whose money and ticket was stolen from No. 6 of the Great Northern, Thursday evening, received money from her husband and Saturday evening purchased a ticket to her home. No clue as to the identity of the thief has been obtained.

Minot, N. D.—O. B. Granum, representative of the Minot Daily Reporter, has been arrested on a charge of extortion, preferred by Mrs. Nellie Markham, mother of Adelaine Markham, with whom G. L. Knapp was charged with running away from Northfield, Minn.

Fargo, N. D.—Merritt Kimball was elected captain of the high school football team by the squad after he had resigned his managership, and Fred Wood was elected manager. It is hoped that this change will be for the best and that they will have a successful year under its leadership.

Mandan, N. D.—The Morton county fair will be held on Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1, at Mandan. The premium list is now issued.

Beach, N. D.—Thursday night some one left a baby girl on the doorstep at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Schillo, who live on the Joe Morris farm, east of town. Nothing is known as to where the child came from or who its parents are.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Sheboygan—Alleging that the Fraternal Reserve association of Oshkosh, has refused to pay the insurance on a $1,000 policy on the death of his son, Arthur, Louis W. Olsen has brought suit against the company.

Madison—The famous Duke murder case of Ashland will ibe one of the interesting matters before the next Wisconsin legislature. William French, formerly of Ashland, but now of Chicago, who killed James Duke in that city after a quarrel, will present a claim to the Wisconsin legislature for damages, which he alleges the state inflicted on him by illegal confinement.

Manitowoc—Fred Rous, a farmer of Branch, this county, sold his farm, receiving $930 in gold as a first payment. Finding the banks closed, he decided on taking the money to his home and gave it to his wife, who placed it in a handbag which she carried in her lap. About four miles out of town she noticed that the bag had disappeared. Retracing their way they made an ineffectual hunt for the lost money.

Milwaukee—The Eklery band will bid farewell to Milwaukee next Saturday night. This will probably be the last time that the band will appear in Milwaukee for several years as Col. Eklery contemplates a trip abroad with the band during the coming year, a corporation capitalized for $100,000, now being organized in Chicago, for that purpose.

Eau Claire—There is no abatement in the epidemic of spinal disease in this city, three new cases and one death being reported Saturday. The death was the second in the same family and of the same disease within a period of four days.

HARRIMAN HALTS EXTENSION WORK

Awaits Easier Money Situation Before Making Improvements.

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—In an interview here, E. H. Harriman, who is on his way East from his summer home in Southern Oregon, says there will be no extensive improvement work begun on any railway lines under his control until the financial situation shall have relaxed considerably. Harriman commented on what he termed the apathy shown over the coming presidential election and said this state of affairs might prove dangerous, as conservative voters possibly would not have sufficient interest to come to the polls.

He declared he is in favor of tariff revision and believes the tariff should have been revised six or seven years ago, when other financial changes were made.

Following a visit of John D. Spreckels to the offices of Harriman, it is reported the Oceanic Steamship company, represented by Mr. Spreckels, has arranged to sell to the Pacific Mail Steamship company, connected with the Harriman enterprises, the steamers Ventura, Sierra and Sonoma, which were taken off the run to Honolulu and Australia several months ago, and which have since been idle. It is said to be the intention of Harriman to institute, with these vessels, an express service to Ancon, and it is pointed out that this arrangement will enable coast bidders to compete in the matter of supplies for the Panama canal.

Mr. Harriman will leave for the East tonight.

FINDS GOOD IN DEPRESSION.

Powderly Says Money Stringency Helped Spread Americanism.

Pittsburg, Sept. 8.—"The recent business depression has been the best thing for the country, in one sense, that could have happened," says T. V. Powderly, chief of the division of information of the bureau of immigration, who was a Labor day orator here. "I mean in the spread of American ideas in Europe because of it. The return to their old homes of thousands of workmen, because of the industrial shutdown has meant that to almost every nook and corner of the world there has gone some apostle of Americanism, whose precepts and practice, however humble and insignificant, cannot work but for good.

"Will they come back? Undoubtedly, most of them. Those who remain will send their brothers or friends, to whom will be given the benefit of their own experience.

"Do you know that were all the great mills and other industries of the country to start up tomorrow, there would not be half enough men to do the work? I am not afraid of immigration. We can take care of all the aliens that come, provided they are good ones, capable of developing into proper citizens—and we are seeing to it now that none but the good ones come."

ANARCHISTS TRY TO RUN MEETING

Create Furore at Gathering of the Unemployed in New York.

New York, Sept. 8.—An attempt was made to turn a meeting of unemployed working men into an anarchistic demonstration and for half an hour a meeting held in Cooper Union hall was the scene of wild excitement, during which red flags were raised, the police denounced and incendiary speeches made.

Alexander Borkman, the anarchist who some years ago shot Henry C. Frick, in the Homestead strike in Pennsylvania, was dragged from the hall and locked up by the police. A young woman, who gave her name as Mary Smith, and who stood by Borkman, was also arrested, and Emma Goldman was forced to leave.

Not since the disturbing scenes following a meeting held in Grand Central palace to celebrate the acquittal of William D. Haywood has the anarchist element raised such a disturbance here.

James Eads How of St. Louis, the "millionaire hobo," planned the meeting.

HE PRACTICES WHAT HE PREACHES

THE GRONSETH FAMILY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I certainly agree with our daily papers, the Commercial club, as well as our plucky energetic and enterprising citizens in general, who are trying to help along in building up a greater Duluth. We have the location and the great resources in various forms surrounding us, and all we have to do is to push along. If we are to work shoulder to shoulder in upbuilding our fair city to be the metropolis of the Northwest, we must have some capital invested in building suitable houses for the working classes. A man who works for from $1.75 to $2.25 per day cannot afford to rent a flat of five or seven rooms for from $30 to $45 per month; if he does, he will have nothing left for living through the month. Everything is so high that I cannot see how they can live at all. This has been the hardest problem for years to solve, how to get a house to locate themselves in that would compare with their income, and at the same time be large enough to house the family.

As a rule it is the working men and the men of moderate means who are raising families. The rich and the so-called better classes are too busy for that. I will take my hat off twice to a man with a large family who is industrious, sober and doing all he can to bring his children up the best way he knows how, according to his means. The rich society people look down on a man with a large family, and of late it is getting so that it is impossible for a man with a good-sized family to get a chance to rent a house. It is large families that count in building up a great city, and the sooner those people who have houses to rent quit turning up their noses and turning away a man with a large family when he is looking around for a house, the better it will be. This reminds me of a story I heard a few years ago, about a man who was scouring the city for a house, and everywhere he went he was asked, 'have you any children?' and he answered, "Eight," and that settled it. In disgust he was about to give up, but a bright thought struck him. He tried once more. This time he struck a lady proprietor, and, of course, the same questions were asked in regard to how large the family was. He told her he had eight, and she said she was sorry but she would rather have a family without children, "but, Madam, they are all out in the graveyard," said he in a rather low tone, drawing a deep sigh. That was said, she thought in a kind of a sympathetic way, and she leased him the house. The next day they moved in and the eight children came along. The landlady now woke up and said, "Did you not say that your children were all dead when you came and I leased my house?" "No, Madam, I said they were all out in the cemetery." That is the way they got their house leased.

There are some people who are so selfish that they cannot even stand to hear children play in the public playgrounds if their noise comes within hearing distance, and complaint was made to that effect this summer, but praise be to the mayor and to the board of playgrounds, who have done so much for establishing playgrounds for the children this summer. That is what I call taking real interest in upbuilding the city.

Who is going to rent your houses when all the childless families die out? Did you ever stop to figure that out? If it was not for the men with big families, what would become of the nations? Children are the blessing of God, the blessing of the homes and of the nations. They bind together the matrimonial ties more than any other thing and prevent separation and divorces in many households. Citizens of Duluth, waks up and make preparation and invite good, industrious, sober working men with a respectable family, both in size as well as in character, as these are the men we need in order to grow to greatness. Good, honest working men are the foundation for all capital, and it is no more than right that the capital should provide for such men as I have referred to, that they may find suitable houses at a moderate price. Yours truly,

ANTON GRONSETH.

EXHIBIT TO COME HERE

Duluth Perfects Organization in Anti-Tuberculosis Movement.

The State Exhibit Will Be Brought to This City.

Fifty interested citizens attended the meeting at the Commercial club last evening, called for the purpose of considering the matter of organizing and bringing to Duluth the state tuberculosis exhibit. Steps were taken which will result in the exhibit being brought here. According to figures compiled by Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele, consumption is responsible for 10 per cent of the deaths in Duluth. More than half the deaths of people from this affliction were of people between the ages of 20 and 40 years.

Rev. Wurtele called the meeting to order, speaking briefly of the purpose of the gathering and the good results which it is hoped will come from the state exhibit. He said that many Duluth people had been heard to express themselves as greatly in sympathy with any movement that promises to check the spread of the white plague and to effect cures of the disease when possible. He said G. G. Hartley had been heard to express himself as being willing to contribute $1,000 toward a fund for the establishment of a sanitarium for the treatment of people suffering with tuberculosis.

Mayor R. D. Haven, Dr. E. L. Tuohy and Dr. T. L. Chapman addressed the meeting, endorsing the work. The physicians gave technical addresses, telling how the disease spreads, and how it may be checked if proper precautions are taken. They said that indiscriminate spitting on the sidewalk had much to do with the spread of the infection. A permanent organization was effected, with the following officers:

T. W. Hugo, chairman; C. L. Rakowski, secretary, and H. S. McGregor, treasurer. The following named persons were elected a committee to cooperate with the chairman in the work before the organization: G. G. Hartley, Dr. E. L. Tuohy, Dr. A. J. Braden, Rev. A. H. Wurtele, Rev. J. T. Moody, Bishop James McGolrick, Father D. W. Lynch, S. S. McDonald, George C. Stone, Dr. W. H. Magle, Mrs. F. E. House and Mrs. J. L. Washburn.

EXCURSION BOAT DAMAGED.

The Rutledge Caught in Drawbridge at Winona—None Injured.

Winona, Minn., Sept. 8.—The steamer Rutledge, the largest excursion craft in local waters, was badly damaged while attempting to pass through the Northwestern drawbridge yesterday afternoon. The regulation whistle was sounded and when the boat, going at full speed approached the bridge, the engineer for some unknown reason suddenly started the machinery closing the draw, with the result hat the vessel and the swing came together with a crash. The steamer was badly wrecked, the smokestack being crushed like a pipestem and the pilot house crumbled. Fortunately the river at that time was crowded with small pleasure launches and with the ready assistance of these craft the steamer was towed to shore in a sinking condition. No one was injured.

FLAMES ON ALL SIDES

M. W. and Dr. F. C. Lee Drive Auto Through Forest Fires.

Forced to Flee From Chisholm Before Destructive Fire Fiend.

To dash in an automobile between walls of flame lining the roadway and showering and burning sparks on them, always with the danger that the gasoline tank under them would explode form the fierce heat of the forest fire, was the harrowing experience of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Lee and Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Lee Saturday. They arrived in Duluth yesterday afternoon and told the story.

The party started from Duluth Saturday morning and passed through Virginia and Eveleth. Between Mountain Iron and Buhl, they encountered a few incipient fires and could see indications of a greater conflagration ahead. At Buhl, the people were in consternation for fear that the flames would sweep down on their town and to the westward, the sky was filled with smoke and reflected the timber-destroying flames.

The people at Buhl urged the automobile party to go no farther, but they disregarded the warning and continued. They had not progressed far before they entered the very heart of the fire area. They were trapped by the flames closing in behind them and could not turn back. They wrapped wet blankets around the gasoline tank and held dump cloths and proceeded, through smoke, which almost smothered them, and burning embers, which threatened to set their clothing on fire. They finally reached Chisholm, but they had been there but a few minutes, when the flames, which wiped out the town, swept down on it. When they saw that Chisholm was doomed, they moved on again, going to Hibbing through the fire swept area.

Minnesotan Drops Dead.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 8.—J. D. Pettett of Backoo, N. D., passed through Grand Forks Saturday with the body of his brother, who died very suddenly at Backoo. The body was taken to Worthingham, Minn., for burial. The deceased had not been in the best of health and he recently arrived for a visit. Saturday morning he dropped dead.

AUTOMOBILE BREAKS DOWN

Victor Huot and Charles Fitzgerald Sleep in Woods.

Victor Huot and Charles Fitzgerald spent a cold and chilly night on the Miller Trunk road, twelve miles from the nearest habitation of man, Saturday, because of a breakdown in their automobile. Uncomfortable seats were the only beds they had, and thec lothes they had on their backs were the only protection from the chill night air.

The men left Duluth Saturday afternoon for Edward Fillatrault's camp, a few miles north of Pike Lake. They arrived in Duluth on the return trip yesterday afternoon, in a rig drawn by an old-fashioned team of horses. The auto is still in the woods. Machinists were sent to the spot today to repair it and bring it back to the city.

The breakdown occurred about 8 o'clock Saturday evening. They worked on it from then until midnight, and settled down in what comfort they could on the hard seats. Needless to say they didn't get much sleep. They went to a doubtful sleep supperless, and had to get along with nuts and berries for breakfast. A settler and his horse took them to camp finally.

LIFE'S JOURNEY

IS BURDENSOME TO MANY IN DULUTH.

Life's journey is a heavy burden
With a constantly aching back,
With urinary disorders, diabetes,
With any kidney ill.
Doan's Kidney Pills relieve and cure.
Here is Duluth proof that this is so:

Mrs. Agnes McKay, formerly of 125 Nineteenth avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "Though it is fully six years since I first recommended Doan's Kidney Pills in a testimonial, I have just as much faith in that remedy today as ever. I do not like to be published in the paper as a rule, but Doan's Kidney Pills are such a reliable remedy that I would like every sufferer from kidney complaint to know it. The symptoms of this trouble are many and varied. In many cases the headaches and bearing-down pains in the small of the back were quickly banished, and my system was invigorated and toned up. I have not had the slightest return of my old trouble since."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

KNIGHTS WILL CONVENE HERE

About 300 Members of Pythian Lodge to Be Entertained.

About 300 members of the Knights of Khorassan, a branch of the Knights of Pythias, will be in Duluth this evening and tomorrow for the annual district convention, which will open tonight and close tomorrow evening.

The program for this evening consists of a parade and a ceremonial at the old Masonic Temple. The knights will gather at the Elks' hall at 6:30 o'clock and march to the Masonic Temple, where the degree work will be put on. A banquet will be served at midnight.

Tomorrow morning the time of the visitors will be their own. At noon a dinner will be served at Lester Park, after which a short business session of the convention will be held. Luncheon will be served at the park at 6 o'clock. In the evening the North Star degree team will give an exemplification of the work at the old Masonic Temple.

Grand Chancellor De Forest Ward of Fairmont, Grand Vice Chancellor Pliny McAllister of Minneapolis and G. K. S. K. Fred E. Greaton of Minneapolis will attend the convention. Past Grand Chancellor F. L. Young of Duluth will preside. A number of the visiting knights will be accompanied by their ladies, who will be entertained by the two lodges of Pythian Sisters of Duluth.

FRET OVER STATE ROW

Republican National Committeemen Worry About West Virginia.

Bryan Likely to Tour Pacific Coast Country Next Month.

New York, Sept. 8.—The West Virginia gubernatorial nomination, which is of so much concern to the Republican national committee because of the possible ill effect upon the national ticket if it is not settled so as to unite the two Republican factions of the state, will be taken up by Chairman Hitchcock tomorrow.

The refusal of Judge Goff to accept the nomination if Swisher and Scherr withdraw, is not taken as final by officials of the national committee, and it still hopes some settlements of the controversy may be effected.

Bryan in Far West.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Efforts are being made to have W. J. Bryan make a long swing through the Far Western states during October, and it is likely he will consent.

Starts War on Cannon.

Danville, Ill., Sept. 8.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, opening his campaign against the re-election of Joseph G. Cannon as a member of the national house of representatives, spoke at the Labor day celebration here and said:

"If you wish to defeat Cannon, you will have to vote for a man who is here listening to this address."

With this reference to H. C. Bell, the Democratic opponent of Speaker Cannon, Mr. Gompers quit the stand. Immediately there were cries for Bell. The labor leaders of Danville and surrounding country, who had the celebration in charge, refused, however, to allow Bell to mount the rostrum, despite the fact that the Democratic candidate had told Mr. Gompers that he would be glad to address the crowd.

Kern Quotes Mitchell.

Muncie, Ind., Sept. 8.—John W. Kern's address was the feature of the Labor day celebration in this city. The candidate for vice president was heard at the fair grounds in the afternoon. Mr. Kern repeatedly turned to the sayings of John Mitchell for reference, and when the latter's name was mentioned the grand stand shook with enthusiasm.

TERRORIZED A TOWN

For Two Days and Nights and Then Was Shot Dead.

East St. Louis, Ill., Sept. 8.—After having terrorized the citizens of Edgemont for two days and nights, Chub Olin, a miner, was shot and killed yesterday by Charles Berger, owner of an ice cream parlor. Olin began drinking heavily Saturday and had since walked the streets, making threats of trouble. Entering Berger's ice cream parlor, he attempted to slash Berger with a razor and was shot dead. Berger immediately surrendered to the police and was taken into custody. Olin came from Mystic, Iowa, two years ago. It is said he had a wife and two children in Iowa.

ABBOTT NOMINATED.

Defeats George Beadle for Insurance Commissioner of Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 8.—James E. Abbott of Madison is nominated for insurance commissioner on the Republican ticket by about 400 votes. The figures on all the counties, with the exception of Forest county, could not be obtained accurately, but Abbott, it is believed, carried it by a small majority. Abbott was opposed for the nomination by George Beadle, the present insurance commissioner.

Famine Threatened.

Pekin, Sept. 8.—A famine is threatened in the region between the Yellow river and the great wall, as the result of the floods, which are destroying the rice crops.

THE APATHY DEPRESSES

Rank and File Republicans Calling for More Enthusiasm.

Chairman Hitchcock Willing If Some One Will Show How.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 8.—James P. Hornaday, staff correspondent of the News, telegraphs from Chicago: There is a general and insistent demand on Chairman Hitchcock that some ginger be put into the Republican national campaign, and put in at once. The message that is coming up from every fighting ground state is that old "general apathy" is stalking about, and refuses to vacate. No one is more anxious than the national chairman to infuse the ginger if some one will point out the way. Not much of an attempt is made by the Republican management to conceal its anxiety about the general situation. The cold fact is that there is not much interest in the national election anywhere. The Democrats have had the best of the enthusiasm thus far. This may be explained by the fact that the Democratic nominee for president has been more active than the Republican nominee; has put some life into his speeches and has been out among the people.

An old newspaper man who has been through many campaigns and was stationed at Democratic headquarters in New York four years ago, said today: "The Republican campaign up to date reminds me of the Parker campaign. It was impossible for Mr. Parker to stir up any enthusiasm among Democrats. He was not built that way. He tried to make some speeches, but what he did was to read a few legal opinions. Before election day came on there was an entire absence of any enthusiasm in the Democratic party."

A Condition, Not a Theory.

It is the fear among Republicans in many states that their campaign will be allowed to drift along until election day without any enthusiasm being started and it is this feeling that is inspiring them to demand in injection of ginger at this time.

"It is a condition, not a theory, that confronts us," said one Republican from a nearby state, who was at headquarters today. "Here is a trivial incident, but it tells the story: I was waiting for a train at a station in a small country town this morning, when I overheard this conversation between two citizens:

"'I see Taft is to be at Toledo on Wednesday. Are you going over?'

"'Taft! I wouldn't go across the street to see him.'

"Now, I happen to know that the man who said that is a Republican, and he, no doubt, intends to vote the Republican ticket, but the candidate has failed to give him any thrills."

The appeals that are coming up to headquarters are something like this: "If we are to win this election the voters must be aroused. We have got to make a whoop and hurrah campaign, and we have got to get at it at once." Some very careful inquiries made by disinterested persons — disinterested, except that they have a desire to know what the real situation is—indicate that the feeling is very widespread that it will not make much difference who is elected president this year.

No Cause for Excitement.

Persons who have taken pains to seek for the truth say this is unquestionably the general feeling. The average man is inclined to say: "Oh, well, I do not see that there is anything to get excited about. The party platforms are very much alike. Either platform, honestly administered, would give us good government. And as to the candidates, I cannot see that there is much choice between them." Such is the sort of talk the Republican politicians have heard until they have become alarmed. And so they want the ginger injected.

Undoubtedly the Republican management intends to do its utmost to put life into the campaign. The officeholders and officeseekers out in the states cannot be half as anxious to see a fire built as Chairman Hitchcock is to build one. If anybody can tell the national chairman how to start the fire and start it now, he will be a welcome addition to the force at headquarters. Ordinarily the nominee for president would be looked to to put enthusiasm into the campaign, but evidently the feeling is that Mr. Taft, with all his good qualities, is not an adept at manufacturing enthusiasm. It is evident that the national campaign management is in doubt as to whether the candidate should be sent on a "swing around the circle." It was announced from Middle Bass island the first of the week that he would make a speaking tour of all the doubtful states, but there is no confirmation of that announcement here at headquarters.

If the candidate is to make such a trip the national chairman does not know about it. Arrangements are being made for Sherman to go into as many of the doubtful states as possible, but no one expects him to create much of a furore. Indeed, some of the states west of the Missouri river have indicated that if he should come out there he would do the party more harm than good. Old associates of the vice presidential candidate do not see how he can make anything but a standpat speech, and the Westerners assert that they do not want any speeches of that kind this year.

If enthusiasm is to be aroused—created—the speakers the national committee will send out must do the work. Mr. Hitchcock expects to have a choice lot of speakers in the field. The "dead ones" are to be weeded out. This year's national organization has a notion that in the past many speakers have done more harm than good. The old custom was to put on the pay roll spell-binders who came well recommended and to send them hither and yonder regardless as to whether the set speeches they delivered fitted to local conditions. There is not to be any of that reckless campaigning this year. Before a speaker goes into a particular state or particular neighborhood, the national management must be satisfied that he can make a speech that will appeal to that particular locality.

Depends on the Territory.

For instance, a speaker of national repute, who had prepared an eloquent address opposing the bank guaranty plank, might be of great service in one of the Eastern states and not fit in at all in Kansas, where the Republicans have declared for the guaranty of deposits, or in South Dakota, where the Republican state platform also favors the guaranty idea. Likewise a Western spellbinder, who had prepared a speech eulogizing President Roosevelt and giving assurance that all the policies of Roosevelt will be carried out under Taft, would be able to cause many thrills in communities in the West, but his speech would not take well at a noon day political meeting in Wall street. So the national chairman is wise in undertaking to reform the speakers' bureau this year.

Persons who are not a part of the public life of the country are not to have an active part in the speaking campaign. The national management believes that men who are connected in one way or another with the Federal government have a better understanding of public questions that are to be discussed than the man—the lawyer, say—who works at his profession pretty steadily and therefore has not the time to study public questions.

Where Democrats Are Weak.

So the speaking campaign, as far as possible, is to be conducted by officeholders—senators, members of congress cabinet officers, etc.

This puts the Democrats at a disadvantage, for they cannot muster a very large army of officeholders for their speaking campaign. They are forced to depend on men who are not on the government pay rolls.

Coming back to the question of puting ginger into the Republican campaign, it may be said that there are underground rumors to the effect that Roosevelt may yet be called on to inject the ginger. "If is the one man that can do it," said a congressman from the West who had just filed his complaint against old general apathy. "You bet he will start something if they will let him. He can build a fire under this campaign in about fifteen minutes. Unless I miss my guess, they will have to call on him to do it. They talk about him dwarfing Taft if he has to take this job. That makes me tired. What we need is a fire under this campaign, and he is the boy to start it and keep it going."

A Traveling Man's Experience.

"I must tell you my experience on an East bound O. R. & N. R. R. train from Pendleton to Le Grande, Oo.," writes Sam A. Garber, a well known traveling man. "I was in the smoking department with some other traveling men when one of them went out into the coach and came back and said, 'There is a woman sick unto death in the car.' I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with cramp colic, her hands and arms were drawn up so you could not straighten them, and with a deathlike look on her face. Two or three ladies were working with her and giving her whisky. I went to my suit case and got my bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (I never travel without it), ran to the water tank, put a double dose of the medicine in the glass, poured some water into it and stirred it with a pencil; then I had quite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her, but I succeeded. I could at once see the effect and I worked with her, rubbing her hands, and in twenty minutes I gave her another dose. By this time we were almost into Le Grande, where I was to leave the train. I gave the bottle to the husband to be used in case another dose should be needed, but by the time the train ran into Le Grande she was all right, and I received the thanks of every passenger in the car." HEIR TO MILLIONS.

German Carpenter Gets $7,500,000 Cash and Much Property.

Berlin, Sept. 8.—Friedrich Schmidt, a carpenter of Spindelhof, Upper Palatinate, has been notified through the Bavarian legation at St. Petersburg, that he is heir to $7,500,000 in cash and to several estates in Russia, the property of a certain German soldier of fortune, named Schmidt. The latter was in the Russian service during the Crimean war and was promoted to be a general. He married a rich countess. His heir won the iron cross in the Franco-Prussian war.

MISS PECK SUCCEEDS

In Her Second Attempt to Reach Mount Huascaran's Summit.

Lima, Peru, Sept. 8.—Miss Annie S. Peck of Providence, R. I., the mountain climber, has succeeded in her second attempt, within a month, in reaching the summit of Mount Huascaran. She calculates that the height of the summit is 26,000 feet. A Swiss companion of Miss Peck had a foot and both hands frozen, which caused gangrene to set in, and an Indian guide was miraculously saved from death after falling a thousand feet down a ravine. This last attempt of Miss Peck to scale the Huascaran was begun on Aug. 29.

Woman's Curiosity Painful.

Royalton, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Stephen Lozea and two children were injured at their home near here recently. Mrs. Lozea was trying to find out what a dynamite cap, which she picked up, was, and started to pick it apart with a pin when the explosive went off and tore the lady's left thumb and first finger entirely off and the next finger was injured. A ten months' old baby, which Mrs. Lozea carried, was badly burned about the face and a small son was burned by the explosion.

Using Its Own Roadbed.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Wisconsin & Michigan railroad, which some time ago extended its service here, using the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul company from Cundry, is now running trains into the Menominee iron range metropolis over its own steel, its line to this city having been completed. The southern terminus of the road is Peshtigo Harbor, Wis., between which point and South Chicago a car ferry system is operated.

FINE BOOST FOR COUNTY

Bishop McGolrick Highly Praises St. Louis Exhibit at Fair.

Prelate Says It Cannot be Too Highly Lauded.

"There was nothing better at the state fair than St. Louis county's agricultural exhibit, and no one need fear to praise it too highly," said Bishop James McGolrick today.

"The Duluth Commercial club has not done anything of greater advantage to the city and the surrounding country than this exhibit at the fair," continued the bishop. "Probably 30,000 people saw the exhibits during the week and realized that, after all, St. Louis county is not a wilderness which grows no fruits, no vegetables, no grains.

"St. Louis county's building, which has not been used by us for some years, was attractively fitted up and interested many visitors during the week. The county had a special booth in the general agricultural building, and it was very attractively arranged by Mr. Hostetter of the Commercial club. There were splendid exhibits of seeds, wheat, oats, rye, barley, grasses, alfalfa, small fruits and vegetables, and they all looked very fine indeed.

"Another showing made by St. Louis county was a series of slides representing the agricultural, commercial and educational work that is being done here, and they were interestingly explained by W. E. Culkin, who kindly volunteered his services. This was on 'Newspaper row,' and attracted a great deal of attention.

"A representation of a St. Louis county stock farm, showing everything that is found on such a place, and prepared by Mr. Jostin, was highly praised. It was requested that the exhibit be turned over later to the state agricultural college at St. Anthony Park.

"A great number of people have had an idea that St. Louis county was a sort of a 'North Pole community,' which grew nothing, and the showing made at the fair did much to dispell that impression, I am sure.

"Even people who live right here do not realize what is going on around them. One Duluth lady at the fair, seeing the agricultural products of her own county displayed, exclaimed that it was all a fake, and that the exhibits were not grown here. Mr. Williams happened to be standing near at hand, and he said, 'I beg your pardon, madam, but you don't know what you are talking about. If you will visit my farm, I can show vegetables and grain grown there which are fresher and consequently better looking than these.' The lady was somewhat discomfited."

SECRETED IN A COAL MINE

"Black Hand" Operator Besieged by Posse at Scottsburg, Ill.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Joseph Sciurba, wanted by the local police for alleged "Black Hand" operations, is believed to be secreted in the dark reaches of a coal mine, at Scottsburg, Ill., a village four miles from Marion, his home. The vicinity of the mine is guarded by a posse, awaiting the hour when hunger shall drive the fugitive from his concealment. News of this situation was brought to Chicago yesterday by Detective Longobardi, who trailed Sciurba to his home.

The officer was at once put on another "Black Hand" case and narrowly escaped assassination. Antonia Lavoiedi, a grocer, had received a letter ordering him to deposit $1,000 at a place designated, on the Indiana street bridge. A woman, whose name was not made public by the police, heard of the plot, and, herself having received threatening letters, resolved to take the case into her own hands. She waited at the bridge and when Longobardi, and other detectives approached she mistook them for the senders of the letters. Using a stiletto, she made a lunge at Longobardi, but the knife glanced from his star and inflicted only a flesh wound. The woman was taken into custody, but upon showing the threatening letters she had received, she was exonerated of any intention of injuring the police.

The chase after Sciurba was an exciting one. When Longobardi, on Friday last, approached the former's home, he was driven back by relatives of the alleged "Black Hand" leader. The latter escaped to a cornfield, from where he fired several times at the posse, which had been organized. He then disappeared into the coal mine, and Longobardi left the case in the hands of the local authorities.

THREATENING LETTER

That Was Sent to Judge Taft, is Made Public.

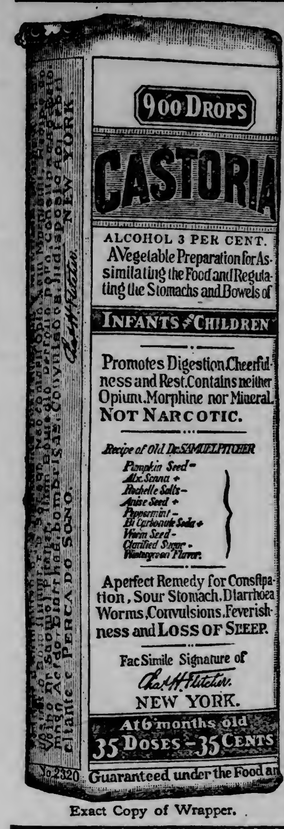

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 8.—The State Journal prints an unsigned letter, mailed at Topeka in the latter part of August, and addressed to Judge William H. Taft, in which the writer warns the Republican presidential nominee of an alleged plot to assassinate him. The letter, which was mailed to the chief of police of Topeka, by direction of Judge Taft, was made public here by the latter official. The writer is believed to be of unsound mind. The letter follows:

"Secretary of War, W. H. Taft—Dear Sir: I feel it is my duty to enlighten you on some facts which deeply concern you. Four or five suspicious-looking men were seen in close conversation in a box car, which was standing in the Rock Island railroad yards. I was very close to the car, and having rubber shoes, they did not hear my approach. They were busy formulating plans to assassinate the next president, who they said would be you, and, moreover, they were going to try their best to implicate some negro men, one of whom was very desperate, and swore he would do it at Chicago, the next time you came; but that he would do so with a rifle, from the top of some skyscraper. Yours respectfully.

"YOUR UNKNOWN FRIEND."

Gas System About Ready.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—After having been in course of installation for a number of months, the Iron Mountain Gas & Fuel company's gas system is expected to go into commission Oct. 1. The last of the mains are now being put in by a large force of men. The machinery at the gas works is nearly all in position. The gas system will be the only one on the Menominee range. The company in control is composed of Southern Michigan capitalists, represented by State Senator Fyfe. The terms of the franchise are very favorable, and it is expected the gas people will realize handsomely on their investment.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

TEAMS PLAY TIE GAME

Last Contest Between Eveleth and Virginia Goes 13 Innings.

Game Is Finally Called on Account of Darkness.

The final game played yesterday afternoon between the Eveleth and Virginia ball teams, at Athletic park, was an exciting affair, with plenty of hitting and many sensational stops, which kept the fans up in the air half the time. The contest went thirteen innings, and would have gone farther had not the sun gone down and left the diamond in darkness. Both teams played gilt-edged ball, and the score was 7 to 7.

Old Jim Haney, he of the burlesque stunts, was on the firing line for Eveleth, and Graham, trew 'em over for Virginia. Both pitchers were on their mettle, and except in the first of the eighth, when Eveleth got to Graham, beating out five hits and netting four runs, which tied the score.

The stick work of Jimmy Hart was a feature of the game, he getting five clean hits, two of the doubles out of five times at bat. The score:

Phillies Win One.

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—Philadelphia developed a batting streak in the ninth inning of yesterday's game and beat New York by 2 to 1. It was Philadelphia's only victory in the series of eight games here with the leaders in the race. Corridon pitched very effectively against the New Yorkers, and they got their only run in the fifth inning, when Bridwell singled and was forced by Crandall, who scored on Tenney's double. Crandall worked out of three difficult situations before the ninth inning. Then with one out, Magee singled and scored on Bransfield's double. Doolan scored Bransfield and won the game with a single. ATTELL AND MORAN DRAW

The Featherweights Have Rather Tame Battle at San Francisco.

Attell Does Not Show Old Speed and Science.

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—Abe Attell, the champion featherweight of America and Owen Moran, England's premier boxer in the same division, fought a draw battle at the Colma open-air arena yesterday afternoon, in the presence of about 6,000 spectators. The battle lasted twenty-three rounds, and at its conclusion Referee Jack Welsh unhesitatingly grasped both lads by the hand, signifying that the fight was a draw. The decision seemed to please the crowd and there were cheers for each fighter as he wended his way from the ringside.

The fight on the whole was rather tame, but this was offset by the cleverness of both fighters. It was a very even one and was marked by Moran's aggressiveness and Attell's cleverness in blocking and his all-round work from a defensive standpoint. The consensus of opinion would seem to indicate, however, that the Californian did not show his best form of former contests and that he lacks the dazzling speed which has made him a marvel of cleverness.

After the fight, Owen Moran declared:

"I broke my right hand in the second round. After that it was almost useless. At that I think I won by a mile. I am willing to fight Attell forty-five rounds, winner to take all."

An Associated Press reporter visited the Englishman in his dressing room, after the contest, and carefully examined the right hand, which Moran claimed was broken. The hand was badly swollen around the thumb, but it was not possible to verify the claim of a broken hand.

Moran's face was much battered and the left eye was nearly closed, as a result of Attell's almost ceaseless prodding. On the other hand, Attell emerged from the fight without a mark. Attell gave out this statement, after being informed of Moran's challenge for a return match:

"I will fight no one forty-five rounds. I want to live a while yet. But I will give him a return match for any number of rounds up to twenty-five. I beat him at every stage."

An examination of Attell's right hand disclosed the fact that the middle knuckle had been disjointed.

A resume of the fight by rounds shows that Attell had more or less advantage in nine rounds, Moran was given six and the balance shows even honors.

LIGHTWEIGHTS READY FOR GONG

Another World's Championship at Stake in Wednesday's Fight.

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—The pugilist carnival of this week, wherein possession of two world's championships were yesterday at stake, will have its climax tomorrow afternoon at Colma, when Battling Nelson will defend his right to the lightweight championship and Joe Gans will endeavor to regain the laurels lost to the Dane in their last encounter. The promoters of the match confidently expect that the receipts will exceed the $13,300 taken in yesterday at the Attell-Moran fight. Both contestants were present at yesterday's fight and received more attention for a few moments than was shown the principals.

Nelson last night weighed a fraction over 133 pounds, and expects to reduce to that figure without dieting. The light road work of yesterday is to be repeated today. Gans is exactly at weight and will confine his training work today to a short run and light gymnasium work. Betting is brisk at 10 to 6, with Nelson the favorite.

Opinion as to the relative merits of the fighters appears as evenly divided as when they last met. Supporters of Gans, contending that he was not in proper condition when he lost the title expect him to keep Nelson at a greater distance, while the Dane's admirers count confidently on his aggressive rushing and ability to absorb punishment to gain him the victory.

KETCHEL IS DEFEATED

Middleweight Champion Loses His Title to Billy Papke.

Fighting Machine Goes Down Before Onslaught of Thunderbolt.

Los Angeles, Sept. 8.—Stanley Ketchell of Michigan, former middle weight champion of the world, was knocked out in the twelfth round at Jeffries' Vernon Arena at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Billy Papke of Illinois, who is now middle weight champion of the world.

It was a case of the Illinois "Thunderbolt" against a Michigan "Killer" and the "Thunderbolt" won.

Both men entered the ring in apparent perfect condition and neither had ever been knocked out. Ketchel had a decision over Papke in a previous 10-round bout.

Both men are as clean-looking prize fighters as any one sees, but the bout ended as one of the bloodiest in ring history.

Ketchel came in wearing a tattered dressing gown and a worn hunting cap and trunks of green gauze. He had a feline stride, the smile of an unspoiled boy, a fine brow, wide clear eyes, and a shrewd look of purpose. When Papke came in he also wore an old dressing gown and a boyish smile. Ketchel was freshly shaven while Papke was unshaven. Ketchel wore the air of an undefeated conqueror and was plainly the great favorite of the crowd, which had been betting on him at 2 to 1.

When Papke entered, he walked blithely to Ketchel's corner and greeted him with a handshake and a cordial smile, but when James J. Jeffries, the referee, called time and Ketchel walked to the center extending his hand for the shake, Papke ignored the hand and sailed into the Michigan man with the fierce impetuosity, which entitled him to be called "The Thunderbolt."

The fight was over a minute and twenty seconds after the gong sounded. From that time on it was merely a question as to how long Ketchel would last. Papke tore into Ketchel with such fury that the undefeated champion was simply lifted off his feet four times within the next minute. Papke knocked Ketchel to the mat for the count and from his first knockdown, Ketchel never really recovered his form. He was a defeated man, dazed, bleeding, struggling from twenty blows in the face, and yet he came back and stayed with a terrible determination, and for at least three rounds held his own with the victorious challenger.

When Ketchel stepped to the center for the second round it was seen that his right eye was closed. At the next intermission his seconds lanced the eye and sucked the blood, but Ketchel never regained the sight of his right eye. Before the finish the other eye was all but closed and for the last three rounds he staggered about the ring dizzily like a drunken man, practically blinded.

In the third Ketchel showed his best form when he forced Papke through the ropes. When Ketchel was finally knocked out after having been saved by the gong several times, after being knocked through the ropes, Papke was almost as strong as when he entered the ring. When Ketchel was carried to his dressing room, both his eyes were swollen into great black puffs and completely closed. His lips were cut and swollen to several times their normal size.

On the Sport Page.

I must be getting woozy
Or dropping out of date—
I fear the Nineteen-Eighthers
May rub me out of their slate;
For though I try my blamedest
To tee the Knowledge mark,
The sporting pages leave me
Completely in the dark.

The English that is scattered
Throughout their columns long
Is surely not the language
Of poesy or song;
And baseball Literati
The words so weird and wild
They thoroughly befuddle
My mother's fav'rite child.

They talk of yelping TIGERS
With fangs and cruel claws,
And prate about the prowess
Of CUBS with frightful paws;
And glory, too, in GIANTS—
Like Cyclops fierce of old—
Who hunt these vicious junglers
And oftimes stretch them cold.

I scarcely stop to marvel
What these strange tales may mean
When, lo, U read of QUAKERS
And EATERS of the BEAN.
Then suddenly I shudder,
For there, in black and white,
I see that PIRATES slaughtered
Each QUAKER and BEAN-KNIGHT.

Surprises still await me,
I hear of those who DODGED
The THOLLEYS in the city
Where usually they lodge;
And then I hear of PILGRIMS
With hosiery of red,
Where CARDINALS are known,
And France, la belle, where many
NAPOLEONS have grown.

It's all so very puzzling
I fear I'll never learn
This brand of cultured patois,
However long I yearn;
But this much Anglo-Saxon
I readily can spot,
When asked about the pennant,
"I know the BROWNS will win."

Are You on Good Terms With Your Stomach?

Treat it right—its your best friend. Abuse it—and you'll find there's a limit. When the limit is reached, the stomach must rest. Kodol rests it.

That is what Kodol is for. The stomach cannot stop work; if it did you would stop existing. It cannot even take a vacation and "rest up"—except when it has Kodol to assist it.

Very likely you never gave a thought to how hard your stomach works. Most people don't until they have to. Sometimes, though, it cost less to do a little thinking before one has to.

Even the galley-slave of the ancients rested—at intervals. But the stomach of modern man works harder than the galley-slave, and it never rests—of itself.

Kodol, of course, will rest the stomach, but that is something nature didn't provide for. If people now-a-days lived the way nature intended, it wouldn't have been necessary to provide for it. But they don't that's the trouble.

Better keep on good terms with your stomach, if you can. Your health depends absolutely upon the perfect performance of the stomach's functions. Ever think of that—or why it is true?

The human body is composed of certain chemical elements. These are combined to form substances such as fat, protein, carbohydrates, mineral matter and water.

The food we eat is composed of exactly these elements. The stomach must disintegrate this food and correctly apportion it to the needs of the system. Looks like a lot of work for the stomach, doesn't it? No wonder it occasionally needs Kodol to help it do this.

The person who has the kind of a stomach that can do its own work continuously, without assistance has a good deal to be thankful for. Most people haven't that kind. That is why they require Kodol.

Kodol will do all the stomach's work for it, when necessary—giving it a period of complete rest. The rest that restores health. That's how Kodol cures indigestion—which is merely a good digestion "gone wrong."

People used to think that when they had indigestion they should stop eating or limit themselves to a prescribed diet. Others commenced purging with cathartics. All that is very disagreeable and unpleasant. Also, it isn't necessary.

Starvation or purging doesn't cure anything. Kodol doesn't cure anything either—but shows nature the right road, in short order. Kodol merely establishes complete and perfect digestion. It does this by digesting every particle of the food. The stomach then rests and cures itself. That is what was intended when Kodol was made. It couldn't be any other way.

Kodol is quite indispensable to a good many persons. To all, in fact, who haven't time in their daily lives for a careful selection of foods and diet. It very quickly enables nature to rectify any disagreeable effects of wrong eating.

The dollar bottle contains 2¼ times as much as the fifty cent bottle. Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

ROBERT B. WINS RACE

Exciting Motor Boat Race Witnessed by Some 600 People.

Schell's Boat Not in Race, But Distances Others.

The most exciting event to be run off at the Spirit Lake branch of the Duluth Boat club yesterday was the much talked of motor race between the fastest boats in the local harbor. In this event with Dick Schell with his boat Dingle Doman out of the race, the Robert B. owned by J. H. Barnes had an easy time outdistancing all the others. Lady Jane, owned by E. Fitzgerald, was second and Doman, owned by Frank Wade of West Duluth, third. The Ona O., owned by Ray Odell, was fourth; the Buster, owned by Guy Warren, was fifth; the Carlisle boat was sixth, and the Hans, owned by Jay Finkleson, was last.

The race was run on the river course, starting about two miles down this side of the clubhouse, and the boats were in view of the people on the hill almost from the start.

Richard Schell was on the ground with his boat, the Dingle Doman, but refused to stand for his boat being handicapped 1 minute and 58 seconds on a run of two miles. He did give the others the lead in order to try out his boat, however, and beat them all out.

This event was witnessed by several hundred people from the docks and grounds of the branch, while at least 300 more watched it from launches, tugs and rowboats.

In the "real slow" class the Daisy, owned by Murray Peyton, defeated the Constitution, owned by Tony Telford. While Mr. Peyton was slightly in the lead at the finish Mr. Telford is satisfied with the result, and he will protest against the decision before the Snalls Racing association. Some fellow that thought he was awfully funny, tied an iron washtub on the back of Mr. Telford's boat, and he didn't discover it until the race was nearly over.

The tennis results were as follows:
Doubles—
McBride and Delghton beat Watterworth and Gravett, 6-1, 6-3.
Libby and Daugherty beat Marshall and Ginder, 6-2, 6-5.
Gridley and Platnicky beat Kennedy and Sellwood, 4-6, 6-3, 1-6.
Graff and Messer beat Grand and Armstrong, 6-1, 6-4.
J. E. McGregor and Ingalls beat H. S. McGregor and Hall, 6-4, 6-5.
Gravett and Marshall beat Fladin and Messer, 6-3, 6-3.
In the semi-finals McBride and Delghton beat Libby and Delghton, 6-3, 6-2.
Gridley and Platnicky beat Graff and Messer, 6-2, 5-6, 6-2.
Gravett and Marshall beat J. E. McGregor and Ingalls, 6-5, 4-6, 6-5.
Hall and Mather beat Agatin and Sleepeck, 6-4, 6-2.
McBride and Delghton beat Gridley and Platnicky, 6-0, 6-3.
Hall and Mather beat Gravett and Marshall, 6-5, 6-1.
In the final match, Hall and Mather beat McBride and Delghton, 6-4, 6-5.
Singles—
Gridley beat H. S. McGregor, 4-2, 4-1.
McBride beat Ames, 4-3, 4-3.
Kennedy beat Grady, 6-1, 6-3.
Ingalls beat Gravett, 4-1, 4-1.
McBride beat Gridley, 4-1, 4-3.
Kennedy beat Ingalls, 4-0, 3-5, 1-4.
Libby beat Messer, 4-0, 4-1.
In the final, Kennedy beat Libby, 4-1, 4-0.

"Was It You—Or Me?"

From memory's fleeting pages
I see a face tonight;
A wee small chap, in ragged jeans,
A portrait of delight.

A baseball park, with fences high,
A cheerful throng inside—
Two teams arrayed in bitter fight,
And one—the small boy's pride.

He watched the game with bated breath,
And cheered for every play.
His eyes were glad to each man's form,
For he was there to stay.

He saww the plays and cheered the men,
As though it was immense;
He looked at every lightning more
Through a knot hole in the fence.

He longed to get a closer view,
And thought of future days
When he would have the cash to spare
To watch those glittering plays.

Did he enjoy the game? Well, yes,
His interest was intense,
He was the hottest baseball fan
That peeked in through the fence.

But years have changed the picture,
And changed his ways to see.
But tell me, friendly reader,
Was that boy you—or me?

Sixty-Six Suicides.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 8.—There were sixty-six suicide cases in this city last week. A large proportion of that number were working girls between the ages of 18 and 25 years.

INSPECTION OF SUNDBY ROAD

Delegation of Duluthians Goes Over the Proposed Route.

About twenty-five representative Duluthians, including several city and county officials, yesterday afternoon drove over the route of the proposed Sundby road, making an inspection of the ground, with a view to ascertaining whether all the claims made for it as a direct, easy-grade road to the farming district back of the city were well founded.

It seems to be the sentiment of members of the party that the road would be a good thing. J. A. Wharton will prepare a report of the trip, with recommendations, which will be signed by the men who accompanied him on the inspection tour, and later submitted to the common council. The proposed road is largely within the city limits, and the city will act first in the matter. The county, it is understood, will work in conjunction with the city.

The party left the Commercial club at 1 p. m., and had supper at Pike Lake. The route was from Sixth avenue east and Fifth street, up through Duluth Heights, thence over the Maple Grove road to Five Corners, and then north to Pike Lake. Following are the names of those who composed the party:

C. Sundby, C. P. Craig, J. A. Wharton, John G. Williams, Luther Mendenhall, S. Morterud, R. J. Mooney, Charles Kauppi, John Sundeen, George Tischer, Grant Mahlon, Neil McInnis, Edward M. Patterson, Aldermen Emil Tessman and M. J. Fillatrault, Thomas Dillon and O. G. Olson. The party was in charge of Mr. Sundby, who has earnestly advocated the new road, and whose name the proposed highway bears.

BLACK HILLS CONFRONTED BY FIRES IN THE FOREST.

Sturgis, S. D., Sept. 8.—Three troops of the Fourth cavalry, stationed at Fort Meade, were sent out yesterday afternoon to fight a forest fire which threatens the large preserves of the Homestake Mining company south of here. Reports received here indicate that more than a score of forest fires are burning in the Black Hills.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The chaperones who will be in charge of the receiving district for the Red Cross Charity day, on Saturday, will meet Thursday morning of this week at 10 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. A. B. Wolvin, of 1103 East Superior street, to receive boxes and the final instructions.

The interest in the work is not abating, and the many women interested in the work are anticipating a liberal response from the Duluth public.

The origin of St. Luke's hospital is of interest. The early settlers will remember the struggles which marked the efforts of those who tried in the early day to care for the sick and unfortunate. Many years ago, two men were found in a box car, ill with typhoid fever, and no place was available to care for them. Rev. Cummings, then pastor of St. Paul's church, with the aid of Mrs. A. M. Miller, with less than $50 in funds, arranged an improvised hospital, in a building which has since been moved to the east side of Third avenue east, between Superior and First street, and is now used as a blacksmith shop. This effort was the beginning of the present St. Luke's hospital.

For those to whom figures are of interest, the following facts may appeal. The bonded indebtedness of the hospital is $25,000, with a deficit of $5,800, and two mortgages of $3,200. The mortgages, which were added recently, were made necessary by the addition of a maternity hospital, which has met a great need.

The honorary committee, to assist on Red Cross Charity day, consists of Mayor Haven, chairman, A. B. Wolvin, Judge Ensign, T. F. Cole, A. C. Weiss, Ward Ames, J. S. Pardee, George Spencer, A. M. Marshall, A. L. Ordean, F. A. Patrick, Judge Morris, John Miller, H. M. Peyton, Joseph Sellwood and Mills Bunnell.

HOME WEDDING.

Miss Lathrop Becomes Bride of H. R. Kohagen.

The wedding of Miss Ruth Lathrop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Lathrop, to Harry R. Kohagen, took place this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wright of 1420 London road. The parlor in which the service was read was prettily decorated in green and white, and in the hall and dining room mountain ash berries were used effectively. The service was read at 2 o'clock by Rev. James A. Geer of the Lester Park Methodist church. There were no attendants. The bride wore her traveling costume of brown cloth, with hat to match. A wedding luncheon was served and during the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Kohagen left for a wedding trip. They will be at home at Lakeside after their return.

House Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Davis chaperoned a house party at the Richard's cabin on the Lester river, over Labor day. The guests were:

Misses:
Julia Hunter, Helen Clothier,
Frances Swift, Lillian Gowan.

Messrs.
Carvar Richards, Chas. McLennan,
James Manley, George Barnum.

COMMON SOUP.

Historical and Romantic, Practical and Hygienic.

"As a man thinketh, so is he," and as a man drinketh, so is he, also, says an exchange. The drink of a nation—its beverages, its soups contain much of interest to the student of domestic economy. Soups, especially, represent the struggles of the people—either the very poor or the whole country in times of famine.

Or tail soup was first introduced into England in the seventeenth century and at once became popular among the poor. They could by the ox tails, which, up to that time, had been thrown away as refuse.

The barley and mutton broth of Scotland, the mid-continental cabbage soup, the olla podrida of Spain and the "cuscus" of the Turks, all speak volumes for the national effort to "fill up" on something cheap.

A popular dish in France is the bouillabalsse—originally made in Marseilles from the Mediterranean fish, but served, too, in Paris and immortalized by Thackeray in his poem of Bouillabalsse. He calls it a "sort of broth or soup or stew," and says it was a "hotch-potch of all sorts of dishes." However, it is certain that fish largely figures in its preparation, and it is a cheap concoction in Southern France, where it originated.

We find no allusion in writing of any kind to soup, as we understand it—earlier than the seventeenth century. The early Greeks had a hot drink made from the juice of onions, and there are frequent allusions in the Roman writings to soups made of "acids, oils and spices." But the juice of meat is not mentioned for the purpose until the seventeenth century Italian novel, when there are descriptions of "capon broth with flour paste"—which sounds remarkably like our plain chicken soup. This would indicate a beginning of our present custom of using "stock."

But apart from its historical and romantic side, soup has a practical and hygienic value which all housewives should recognize. A bowl of hot beef or vegetable broth "warms the cockles," as the Scotch say, and is a grace to the homeliest fare. Any cheap cut of meat is far better boiled. Other methods are wasteful and indigestible compared to the slowly simmering soup with its wholesome carrot, its tang of onion, its dash of spice and parsley.

Board Meeting.

The members of the board of managers of the Young Women's Christian association were entertained at luncheon today, at the home of Mrs. W. C. Sherwood, of Hunter's Park. The luncheon was followed by the regular monthly board meeting.

Household Hints.

A preparation for washing rugs and carpets is made of four ounces of good white soap, dissolved in four ounces of boiling water; when cool add five ounces of ammonia, two and one-half ounces of alcohol, two and one-half ounces of glycerin and two ounces of ether or chloroform. Bottle and cork tightly.

To clean a carpet add a teaspoonful of the preparation to a pail of tepid water and wring the soap from this. The same preparation will also clean men's clothes.

Two tablespoonfuls to a point of water will remove the most obstinate stains.

Matting should be washed with strong salt and water to strengthen the fibers.

If a white or cream-colored matting has become faded, wash with strong soda water, and, while this will turn it a deeper shade of creamy yellow, it will be all one color instead of variegated.

Matting should always be swept the way of the weave, not across it. If some of the figures in the pattern have becomedingy, they can be brightened by rubbing dye into the matting with an old toothbrush, following the lines of the figure, which can be strengthened with a pencil before applying the dye.

TOO MUCH REIN

Desired by Present Day Women—Says Man.

He was a man who had never married—an elderly man, and by reason of his freedom, as he chose to call it, and of his wide opportunities for observation, was entitled to the respectful attention paid to his words by the group of young women whom he encountered at the home of his niece one afternoon, says an exchange.

The conversation turned upon marriage, after some passing, time-worn jokes about leap year. "Theoretically, marriage is enchanting; practically, not," said the man, partly, it seemed, to rouse opposition. "If you don't marry," he continued, "you are perhaps lonely, but you have peace. If you do marry," he continued, you are apt to be lonely, and you don't always have peace! Women nowadays want too much rein. They used to be held in check—just as they used to be."

"That is the old-time view of things," replied the niece hostess, defensively. She was only recently married, "I promised to obey my husband—for I knew I should never have to. I shouldn't be willing to have the man I marry let me do everything."

"You remind me of the two weeks' bride who wrote home how happy she was, and whose mother said: 'He would be a poor stick of a man if he couldn't make a woman happy for two weeks.' Softness of heart is an admirable quality," the elderly relative hastened to add, seeing the resentment on the faces of the little group, "but when it extends its area until it also becomes softness of head its results are anything but admirable. It is a good thing for a woman to combine a warm heart with a cool head; to be true, to be loving, to be simple."

"It has been said," quoted the unmarried woman-writer guest, while the others listened respectfully, "that every man needs one of two women—one whose dependence brings out his tenderness and manhood, or one who is herself so strong that she can develop his powers and make his inefficiency strength."

"He needs both natures in a wife," declared the man rather impetuously, with a searching look at the woman. "I think that a person who has some one depending upon him can never feel that life is not worth living. He doesn't need any outside stimulus to urge him on; the motives for exertion lie in his feeling for her. Men are much more sentimental than women, whose chief fault, indeed, is their excessive sense," he ended brusquely. "No, thank you, no tea; I must go back to the club."

How Mealy Carried the Ward

By Arthur Preston.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

Mealy, whose official title was the "devil," worked in a job print shop. Probably he had another name, but if so no one around the shop had ever heard of it, or would have remembered it if they had. He was a freckled-faced youth, with watery blue eyes, and a tangled mass of reddish yellow hair, which had thus far been unsubdued by brush or comb. He had no perceptible eyebrows, and his saucy, upturned pug nose had the appearance of being constantly at war with his otherwise habitually serious expression. What his age may have been is only conjecture, but, seated on the tallest office stool, supplemented by a discarded copy of Webster's Unabridged, he could, by dint of much stretching and consequent damage to the single suspender button which supported his trousers, just reach the upper case "A."

It was election morning and a rebel campaign of municipal reform was on. The "gang," realizing that they were up against it in earnest, had figured out the wards they needed and were confining their operations to them, and concentrating their energy on those votes known as "floating." Sparks, the owner, and Mealy were alone in the office, all the printers having been let off for the day, when the door opened and in walked Grogan.

"Hullo, Jim," he said.

"Morning, Grogan; how are things coming?"

"It's going to be a hot one, we have got to keep moving. Say, have you any old tickets on hand? Any kind will do."

"I'll see," said Sparks. He arose and went to the rear of the shop where, from under a case he extracted a dust covered package.

"Here's a lot of tickets that were ordered for a nigger raffle and never called for. How will they do?"

"Just the thing. How many are there?"

"A thousand," answered Sparks.

"Good," returned Grogan; "that will be just about what we need."

"What are you going to do with them?" queried Sparks.

"Well," answered Grogan, "you know that they have closed up every saloon tighter than a drum today, but we'll fool 'em. We have got a lot of kegs down in Murphy's barn, and each one of these tickets will entitle the bearer to a nip and no questions asked. We will put that around where they will do the most good. Clever scheme, eh?"

The two men chuckled together a few moments in self-congratulation.

"Well, I must run along," said Grogan. "You'll be out after a while?"

"Sure."

Sparks, after working awhile, took down his coat and hat. "If anyone calls, Mealy," he said, "I won't be in again before dinner. You can look after the shop, there won't be anything doing."

Left alone, Mealy stolidly continued throwing in the type on which he was working, but rage burned within him. Why should he alone, of all the shop force, be compelled to sta ycooped up at work when there was fun to be had outside? He thought of his companions, probably at this moment playing "knuckle down" for keeps or shooting craps for pennies in a sunny corner he knew so well, and all the world seemed in a conspiracy to keep him from his rightful pleasures. It was tough luck, and he turned his head and spat viciously from between his teeth. As he did so his glance rested on a small square of red pasteboard. He gazed at it with an unfriendly eye for some time, when, suddenly, his countenance brightened and he slid from the stool, pying a stickful of type and tumbling the dictionary to the floor as he went.

He picked up the bit of pasteboard and carried it over to the stock rack from main plcr, after a careful comparison, he drew several sheets. These he cut into small squares and, after a busy half hour at the case and on the make-up slab, set the press going.

At 12, with a snug package under his arm, Mealy left the shop, and, after bolting a huge piece of pie and gulping down a mug of coffee at a nearby lunch counter, betook himself down a familiar alley to a secluded corner where the street gamins were wont to spend the noon hour. Calling aside two of his special cronies, he pursued an animated conversation, following which the package was transferred to one of the twain, who promptly departed. Mealy returned to the shop, mounted his stool, and worked industriously, whistling cheerily the while.

About 3 o'clock Sparks came in and graciously dismissed Mealy for the rest of the day, a permission which he accepted with alacrity. Perhaps a couple of hours later the door was pushed violently open and Grogan rushed in.

"For heaven's sake, Jim," he shouted, "how many of those tickets did you give me?"

"A thousand," answered Sparks. "What's the matter?"

"Matter! All Hades to pay," returned Grogan, excitedly. "We have honored twice that many, and they are still pouring in. Our stuff is all gone, and we must get more; the workmen we gave the tickets to are just coming to the polls. They swear it is a trick, and have passed the word to vote for the other fellows. The ward will go against us sure as shooting!"

It did, and the city went with it. If either Sparks or Grogan "smelled a rat," Mealy never heard of it, and he kept his own counsel.

OPENING OF NORMAL TERM

Washburn Hall Already Filled With Outside Students.

Students were enrolled today at the Duluth state normal school in both the normal and model school departments. The school is entering upon its sixth year of work, which promises to be the most successful of its career. In the school department 150 pupils are accommodated, and applications for this number are very soon exhausted. At noon 109 students had enrolled for normal training and the office was open the entire day for registration.

It is expected that this department will have a larger enrollment than ever before. All of the rooms at Washburn hall, the dormitory of the school, have already been engaged by out of town students. The regular class work will begin tomorrow.

EXPLOSION; THREE DROWN.

Accident on Gasoline Launch Fatal to Fishermen..

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 8.—By the explosion of gasoline in a launch on Rainy Lake, near Fort Frances, Moses Infeldt, the owner of a fishing fleet, and two fishermen with him in the boat, were drowned.

LONGWORTH STABLE BURNS.

Building and Five Carriages Consumed With Loss of $30,000.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 8.—Congressman Nicholas Nongworth's two-story brick stable at his Grandin Road home was destroyed by fire early today with a loss of $30,000. With the stable were burned five carriages, but the servants and horses got out safely.

MARINE NEWS

AGAIN IN LIMELIGHT

Vessel Men Bring Up Old Discussion of Duluth Breakwater.

Gilchrist Fleet To Be Moved Because Of Heavy Seas.

The work of deepening the harbor has been under way for some time, and harbor men and vessel owners are wondering how the deep harbor will act when a stiff northeaster comes. The deepening of the harbor basin only makes room for more and greater improvements. The need of a great breakwater out in the lake will be felt more than ever. Even now, with the slightest wind from the northeast a big sea is kicked up in the main shipping portion of the bay.

It is impossible to keep a boat at anchor, as driven by wind from the outside, the boat is taken away from her moorings, and is helpless unless she has steam up.

The Gilchrist company is about to move its fleet of boats, which have been anchored directly opposite the boat club since last spring, claiming that the slightest wind sets them to rocking and rubbing against one another so that much damage is done. Even the tugs at the dock at the foot of Seventh avenue west, have to head into the storm and work their engines, at half speed in order to keep from being washed away.

With the additional debth of the harbor, and a wind from the northeast, the height of the waves will be much greater, and the need of a breakwater realized to a greater extent.

The elevators will get the brunt of the storm, and if the breakwater is not built, they will have to build around their base, in order to protect themselves.

This breakwater matter has been brought up time and again by those interested. Various plans have been suggested by prominent marine men, but there is some fault to be found with all of them. "The question of a breakwater in Duluth," said a tugman today, "is a question that has got to be settled before very long. The sooner we get down—dig out the best plan for it, and then go ahead and do it, the sooner the accident list will be cut in half."

Loses Her Anchor.

Harbor Beach, Sept. 8.—The schooner J. L. Green, loaded with shingles for Forester, struck the main pier while making harbor and lost her anchor. She is now lying at the dock water logged.

Record Broken.

Eighteen ore boats were loaded and sent down the lakes Saturday, taking a total of over 147,800 tons of ore. This, the officials of the Steel corporation claim, is the largest number of boats ever loaded at the Missabe docks in one day, also the greatest number of boats to get out in twenty-four hours. Each boat took all the way from 6,000 to 8,000 tons.

A Chemical Mystery.

Some years since a meteor that fell in Mexico attracted attention from scientists all over the world, because there was some reason for thinking that it might be a fragment of a lost comet. A scientific nutrition proves that golden grain belt beer is rich in nuitrition and nerve food, and a pure, wholesome drink that aids digestion. Have it on the family table and enjoy its benefits. IS IT FAIR?

That the ranges should have but one county office when they cast about half of the Republican vote of St. Louis county? Fair play, good politics and the square deal back the ranges in their request that Duluth Republicans vote for a range man this year for Judge of Probate.

"The Clansman," Thomas Dixon's forceful play of the reconstruction period of the South was presented at the Lyceum yesterday to two capacity houses. The play is founded on the two well known novels by the same author, "The Leopard's Spots," and "The Clansman," and Mr. Dixon has combined them in the play to make a piece of rebarkable intensity and interest. He has presented faithfully the types of characters of the period, the childishly ignorant and the vicious negro, the ex-slave loyal to his master, and the ambitious negro of exceptional ability who has been educated and brought to a position of power only to realize that though he might himself be willing to "go through hell to remove the stain from his skin" that that stain will bar him effectually from perfect equality with the white man. The types of whites are also sketched with a verile pen and the characters which stand out during the storm and stress of the reconstruction period are brought prominently before the auditors. The play is watched with absorbing interest and the tense moments when the inevitable struggle between the whites and the newly freed colored people, are of great appeal.

The company, which is presented is one of commendable evenness. Charles J. Wilson presents Silas Lynch, the young negro, who becomes lieutenant governor of South Carolina in a splended manner. Franklin Ritchie as Ben Cameron, the Clansman presents clearly the attitude of the Southern white which drove them into the organization of the Clan which drove terror into the soul of the superstitious negro and which in many cases was the only remedy which could bring him to a respect for any power but his own newly acquired rights. The cast throughout was of the kind which presents an evenly balanced and thoroughly enjoyable performance.

Ruth Hart, as a daughter of the South, acts with reserve and a pretty naturalness a part which might easily be overacted. With the exception of her big scene with The Clansman, Eugenie Hayden acted well the role of Elsie Stoneman, the Northern sweetheart of the Clansman. In that one scene a tendency to parlor elocution marred it somewhat.

GOOD BILL AT BIJOU.

Labor Day Audiences Very Enthusiastic Over Show.

Some huge Labor day audiences enjoyed the new offerings for the week at the Bijou theater last evening, and they decided that the management had certainly provided enough entertainment to give them their money's worth, and more.

The three Zaras and Carmen whirl and spin themselves about the Bijou stage in a wonderfully speedy fashion, and won the applause of last night's audience very handily. Their act differs in many ways from the conventional acrobatic turn that is seen on the modern vaudeville stage.

Kikuda is a Japanese juggler and he is a very good one. His entire act is given with an artistic nonchalance that embraces its value.

"Billy's Girl" is a skit well done by Alice Morlock and company. Miss Alice has the "fat" part, of course, but she made a decided hit.

De Voy and the Dayton sisters have a well dressed singing and dancing act that makes a valuable addition to the program, and Tom Dempsey gets away with a monologue with more than the average success which greets such efforts.

Isadore Silver has a new illustrated song and the moving pictures tell "The Tale That the Searchlight Told."

Chauncy Olcott.

Commencing tonight, tomorrow matinee and night and Thursday night Augustus Pitou offers Chauncey Olcott in his latest success, "Ragged Robin," an Irish play in three acts, by Rida Johnson Young in collaboration with Rita Olcott. It is a story of peasant life in Ireland nearly a century ago and is without doubt the most characteristic Irish drama that has been produced in many years. The hero is a wandering minstrel, who lives with the fairies at night and with everyday mortals in the daytime. The peculiarity of the character has given Mr. Olcott numerous chances for the introduction of new songs and his latest compositions are among his best.

Passed Examination Successfully.

James Donahue, New Britain, Conn., writes: "I tried several kidney remedies, and was treated by our best physicians for diabetes, but did not improve until I took Foley's Kidney Remedy. After the second bottle I showed improvement, and five bottles cured me completely. I have since passed a rigid examination for life insurance." Foley's Kidney Remedy cures backache and all forms of kidney and bladder trouble. Sold by all druggists.

PAPER COMPANY REORGANIZES

B. M. Peyton Buys the Leslie Stock in Zenith Concern.

The Zenith Paper company, one of Duluth's most enterprising and progressive wholesale concerns, has reorganized upon an entirely new basis, with a larger capital stock, and B. M. Peyton has purchased all the stock formerly owned by Frank Leslie and John Leslie. These two men will have no further connection with the company.

Mr. Peyton, who is president of the Proctor State bank, president of the Bank of Lake Nebagamon, and of the Superior state bank, is made president and treasurer of the reorganized company and owns a controlling interest in it. He will continue an active working interest in the Superior State bank, as heretofore, his new duties not interfering with the old.

The Zenith Paper company has been in existence for the past ten years. Henceforth its field will be extended, and business will be pushed with all the energy characteristic of the men making up its set of officers and board of directors. Duluth is considered a good location for such an institution, and it is believed that within a very few years the Zenith Paper company will be one of the largest establishments of the kind in the Northwest. The old board of directors consisted of Frank Leslie, John Leslie, Charles McBride, J. J. Letourneau and H. M. Peyton. Following is the new list of officers and board of directors: B. M. Peyton, president and treasurer; A. H. Crassweller, vice pesident; C. J. McBride, secretary; J. J. Letourneau and H. H. Peyton.

Charles J. McBride will be retained as manager of the paper department, and B. M. Peyton will have charge of the credit end of the company.

J. Adam Bede

Member of Congress
8th District of Minnesota

The Man Who Knows Folks and Does Things

Candidate for Renomination

Duluth and the Rivers and Harbors Committee.

For fourteen years this district has had a member of the Rivers and Harbors committee. Much has been accomplished for the Head of the Lakes and the whole Northwest, but there is much yet to be done. The present member of congress is on this most important committee and has studied river and harbor improvements from ocean to ocean, at his own personal expense—for congress does not pay the bills of the committee. He has made himself a strong factor in this work. If he remains in congress he will continue on this committee. But it is not at all probable that any new member could secure the place, as the interior of the country demands improvement for its water courses, and is pressing its older members for every vacancy.

This is a low, groveling business matter, and perhaps ought not to be mentioned, but it is bound to bob up in the minds of many as they mark their ballots.

Roll the idea over on your intellect a few times.

Chance to Make Money.

I will give $10 for any valid reason, from a Republican standpoint, why our present member of congress should not be renominated.

I will give $25 to any one who will discover the authorship of the article in the News Tribune of Sunday, May 31, signed by the fictitious name of W. H. Patton. Brief reference to the file and the liar will be found elsewhere.

I will give $100 to anyone who can name anything of a public character, from a rural route to a breakwater, asked for by the people of this district, that I have neglected.

J. ADAM BEDE.

P. S.—I am a member of the Rivers and Harbors committee which is doing things for Duluth and for every farmer and miner in the Northwest.

Back to the Soil.

The Duluth newspapers in recent years have written miles of editorials about the need of developing our soil resources. And yet because I am living on a farm and developing it, they object to my representing Duluth in congress. They want all their farmers to live on Superior street. But I am no toy farmer—I am the real thing—trying to make living cheaper for the toilers in Duluth, and thus make a great city possible.

The first thing I can remember in life, I was milking a cow, and when I was twelve years old I milked fifteen cows night and morning, and did a day's work in the field besides. It was milking that gave me such a good grip on things.

Forty sixty mornings in the fall when I still went barefooted I used to warm my feet where the cows had been lying down. That's what I call farming.

No Debts to Pay.

J. Adam Bede pays his own campaign expenses, and when he gets to Washington is under obligations to no man and can serve all the people. He has no millionaire favorites to tell him what to do in the departments or the halls of congress.

He has money to pay for political workers, and has promised no office for support. He is opposed to the spoils system.

Catechism for a Candidate.

Is he absolutely on the square? A public officer should possess more than common honesty.

If already in office, has he voted right? Has he neglected anything? Has he done his work well? Does he flag twice? Is he puffed up with a little brief authority?

Has he mortgaged himself to millionaires for campaign expenses so he cannot represent you?

Can he be reached by the interests when needed?

Listen a Minute.

Did you ever notice that the wholesale houses of Duluth do not change their traveling men and managers every year or two? Probably they have learned that experience and acquaintance are worth something.

Every member of congress votes for the whole country and should therefore visit all parts of it and study the problemt of the people from their viewpoint. I have done this in the face of idiotic criticism and shall continue to do so. But wherever I have gone I have kept the name of Duluth at the front.

While attending industriously to all local matters, I am not a mere lobbyist for this district, but am earnestly endeavoring to master the problems which concern our whole people as the greatest nation on earth.

Leaving home at the age of 10 years, I came up through every grade in the school of adversity and graduated with honors from the University of Hard Knocks. I am not personally acquainted with all of the alumni of my alma mater, but shall be glad to meet them at any time, and trust that they, as well as the output of other reputable schools and character foundries, may look with indulgence upon my humble efforts to serve them.

J. ADAM BEDE.

Mr. Bede will speak at the Armory, Thursday night, Sept. 10.

FATHER BADLY BEATS SON.

Disappears, Leaving Youth Unconscious and Bleeding in Shrubbery.

St. Paul, Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a terrific hand-to-hand fight with his powerful father, John Antyon, Jr., 20, was left unconscious and bleeding in the shrubbery of a yard next to his home, 856 Minnehaha street.

The two engaged in a fierce quarrel late at night. They fought the length of their own yard and fell, struggling over a low fence into that of their neighbor. There the father got on top, beat the boy and left him bruised and bleeding in the weeds.

Neighbors found the boy unconscious and called a policeman. The athletic parent, has disappeared.

HIBBING SCARE WAS UNFOUNDED

Rumors That the Village is Burning Are Denied Over the Telephone.

Reports were spread about Duluth this afternoon that the town of Hibbing was on fire.

Frantic calls were received at The Herald office by the score this afternoon, asking if the report were true. The Herald was in communication with its Hibbing correspondent at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, and he stated that there was no truth in the report, and that conditions at Hibbing were the same this afternoon as they were this morning. He denied that there was any immediate danger of the destruction of the village.

IOWANS IN DEADLOCK

Republican Legislators Split, Cummins Getting 44 Votes.

Party Leaders Say Chances of Carrying State Are Shaken.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 8.—A deadlock in the Iowa legislature, over the contested United States senatorship, was made sure this afternoon, when the lower house members voted as follows:

Governor Cummins (Rep.)	44
Porter (Dem.)	31
Scattering (Rep.)	28

Republican leaders on both sides admitted after this ballot had been taken, that Iowa's chance of going Republican at the general election in November are badly shaken. It is even predicted among the ultra-Cummins men that the state will swing for Bryan by a healthy majority, if the standpatters, who scattered their twenty-eight votes, do not come into the governor's fold and elect him, to succeed the late William B. Allison.

The senate late today will split its strength among Cummins, Porter and the standpat scattering candidates.

All hope of harmony was dispelled before the voting began by the authorized announcement that the reactionaries were to continue standing pat. The railroads have their biggest knives out for Cummins and they are wielding them about the capitol this afternoon, in open display. It is the biggest political fight Iowa has had in many a day.

TAFT SPEAKS IN SANDUSKY.

Is Given His Second Try-Out as Ready Campaigner.

Sandusky, Ohio, Sept. 8.—William H. Taft, as a ready campaigner, was given his second try-out today. Most of his speeches will be from the rear platform of his train and will present all shades of conditions in oratorical "roughing it." His first political speech will be at a rally in the theater here, although he got his voice warmed up by an address at the residents of the Erie County Soldiers' home. His itinerary calls for addresses in Tiffin, Carey, Wharton, Forest, Bellefortaine, Urbana, Springfield and Dayton.

TRAINERS' TEMPTATIONS.

Bribe of $50,000 Offered to Scratch a Favorite.

Tit Bits.—Perhaps the largest bribe ever offered occurred when Belantrae won a big back-end handicap some four years ago. This horse's victory took an immense sum out of the ring, but two days before the race a patron of the stable was offered £10,000 if he would pursuade the ultimate winner's owner to scratch his horse. It is superfluous to add that this underhand proposition met with no success, whereupon the trainer was next approached, with, happily, the same result.

Attempts to "nobble" the favorite of a classic race or big handicap are still common. Last year the trainer of a fancied candidate for the Derby received a letter to the effect that £5,000 would be paid him if he undertook to interfere with his horse's preparation so that it could under no circumstances be seen at the starting post. Naturally such a barefaced proposal was treated with utter contempt, but a few mornings afterward, on one of the gallops on Newmarket Heath, where this horse took his daily exercise, a litter of broken glass was laid. Happily this was discovered by a stable boy before exercise, otherwise the horse would have been severely lamed.

The poisoning of Orme, who was confidently expected to win the Derby some years ago, was one of those turf mysteries which will probably always remain unsolved, but an owner of horses closely connected with the stable informed the writer that there was little doubt that the agent of some firm of bookmakers who stood to lose a collosal sum by Orme's victory had by heavy bribes "got at" an inmate of the stable and induced him—or her, as the case may be—to perpetrate the deed.

The ingenious methods by which outsiders endeavor to worm themselves into a trainer's confidence would seem worthy of a better cause. Thus the famous trainer, Matthew Dawson was wont to tell many humorous stories of attempts made to gain his trust. On one occasion, for instance, a meek little parson took up his residence in some quiet lodgings near the stables and every morning betook himself to the Heath, "as," he said "his doctor had informed him that the air there was the most bracing in the world for invalids." Mile after mile the "worthy divine" would walk, apparently taking not the slightest interest in the racehorses or indeed in racing matters at all.

One morning, however, after he had been there a fortnight, the clergyman approached the string of horses and meekly asked their trainer if he might look over the stables one day. "Because," he added, "he had heard the residence of a thoroughbred was almost as luxurious as any palace." This request was met with a polite refusal, whereat the clerical visitor seemed intensely disappointed and expressed a hope that he might do so at any rate, on some future occasion.

This proposal was also refused, but some two nights later the head lad of the stable caught the clergyman scrambling over the wall of the stable yard after the horses had been locked up for the night, and it afterward transpired that he was not a clergyman at all, but was the agent of a clique of professional backers who stood to lose heavily by the victory of this particular horse. Instead of handing over the culprit to the law the trainer adopted the simple device of leaving him to the tender mercies of the stable boys, who quietly but firmly stripped him of his clerical garments and deposited him in the nearest horse pond.

SUNDAY GOLF IN SCOTLAND.

Pall Mall Gazette: In the Highlands, as might be expected, Sunday golf has always been frowned upon—Auld Lichts, Wee Frees, Big Frees and other varieties of Scottish religionists being at one in denouncing the "desecration of the Sawbath."

But in spite of this there were two or three golf courses in the north on which a quiet game might be played on Sunday. The golfer who made use of the privilege had to act circumspectly, taking care that his paraphernalia were not displayed so conspicuously as to offend local susceptibilities. Indeed, he had to take his game almost surreptitiously, and it is want of circumspection on the part of certain players which has put an end to Sunday golf in the highlands.

Not long ago there was a rising of the crofters whose grazings form part of the Brora course, with the result that the club had to face the alternatives of forbidding Sunday golf or having their course curtailed to such an extent as to make it useless. Since the fleet began to visit the Cromarty Firth many of the officers have been in the habit of playing over the Nigg Golf club's course, but the popularity of the pastime among the officers doomed their Sunday play. The club has issued a notice that henceforth the course is to be closed on Sunday. Which means that now there will be no golfing on Sunday north of the highland line.

BOYS ARRESTED.

Suspected of Robbery and Throwing Open a Switch.

James Hicke, living at 226 North Forty-sixth avenue west and Third street, has reported to the West Duluth police that yesterday morning, while he and his family were in Duluth to see the Labor day parade, his store was broken into, the cash drawer emptied and cigars and candy stolen.

Mr. Hicks has also put in the hands of the police the names of two boys whom he thinks are responsible for the robbery. The police are investigating the matter.

Two St. Paul boys, who had "bummed" their way to Duluth to visit an uncle, Joseph Gojka, whom, they claim, lives in this city, were last night arrested on suspicion.

They gave their names as Joseph Prokofsky, 15 years old, 1045 Arcade street, and Tony Gvaegoewski of 772 Magnolia street. Their arrest followed the throwing open of a switch on the Northern Pacific tracks, near Smithville. The open switch was discovered by some section hands before any disaster occurred. The boys were held at the station over night and an investigation will be made. They probably will be tried before the juvenile court. Both took their arrest very hard and were in tears all the time they were being questioned. They had not succeeded in locating their uncle in Duluth, they said, and were on their way back to St. Paul when they were arrested. It is also said they admitted they left the switch open.

ATTENDANCE HAS GROWN.

About 1,100 Pupils Are Enrolled at the Irving School.

The names of approximately 1,100 pupils were enrolled this morning at the West Duluth Technical high school building, about 100 in the high school department and 1,000 in the grades.

In the grades the number is about the same as last year, but in the high school there is a slight increase, last year there being about eighty pupils attending. There is a decrease in faculty forces this year. There are twenty-five members and last year there were twenty-seven. This is owing to the fact that it is planned to transfer about 200 pupils, which are attending the Irving to other West Duluth grade schools, which are in the district to where they belong. As it is now the school is somewhat overcrowded. The cutting down of the faculty is also in part due to the combining of the domestic science courses.

Most of the temporary repairs made necessary by the recent fire which took place in the building, have been finished, and no delay of any moment has been experienced in starting the fall term.

POLICE HAVE TROUBLE.

Lame Woman Has to be Carried to Police Station.

Mrs. Eugenia Coulter, with her periodic drunks, is fast becoming a nightmare to the West Duluth police and Judge Flack of the justice court.

She appeared in court this morning for the second time this month on a drunk and disorderly charge, sworn out by her neighbors. Mrs. Coulter is an elderly woman of large proportions. She is afflicted with a lame foot. That it is no easy matter to arrest her and get her to the police station, can be testified to by Officers Brouillette and Christ Johnson, whose duty it was last evening. They had to carry her to the patrol wagon and out of it at the station, and their attentions were strenuously objected to by the woman.

On her former arrest, Judge Flack sentenced her to thirteen days in the county jail. This morning he added seventeen days to her former sentence and sent her to jail for thirty days. She had hardly finished her other term of imprisonment before she is starting in on a fresh one.

All last night she regaled the members of the police force and the fire department with songs. At times she became crazed and attempted to break her way through the bars by hurling a chair against them. Christ Johnson had the privilege of taking her to jail this morning.

Bad Chimney Fire.

A defective chimney was the cause of a fire that started in the home of Mrs. P. J. Wilnot of Fifty-ninth avenue west and Grand avenue this morning at about 10 o'clock. The telephone at the Wilnot home was not in order, so she called across the street to one of the neighbors to send in the alarm. Before the message got to the fire department, it was so twisted that the burning house was said to be located at Fifty-ninth avenue west near the Irving school. The department was much delayed, and by the time they arrived the whole rear portion of the house was burned.

The furniture was not covered by insurance. The building was rented by Scott-Kriedler & Co.

Largest Ever

Today's enrollment at Duluth Business University surpasses all records.

The enrollment of new members at the Duluth Business University today was larger than at any previous opening in the history of the college, 88 day students having for the first time joined its classes. Thirty-six of these young people live in Duluth, the others come from outside the city. Those from outside the city represent seven states, Ontario and Manitoba. Night school opens tonight and promises a large enrollment also. New day and night classes will be organized on Monday, Sept. 14th to accommodate a large number who could not enter at the opening. The office is open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. each week day. Location, 105-7 West Superior Street.

WANT TO WIN $2,000?

Make an Aeroplane Stay Up Five Minutes.

A new prize has been offered in Paris for the competition of the constantly growing number of aviators. It is given by Rene Quinton, who attracted some attention in Paris a couple of years ago by his experiments having to do with the curative value of sea water, says the New York Sun.

The prize is $2,000. It is to go to the first aeroplane which succeeds in remaining in the air for five minutes after its motor is stopped, and utilizing no force but the force of wind, without descending further than fifty metres.

The announcement of the offer of the prize was at first met with laughter and sarcastic comments. M. Quinton hastened to affirm the sincerity of his motive. He explained that he had long been greatly interested in the study of the flight of those great birds which suspend themselves and circulate in the air without utilizing the familiar wing motions in flight, like for instance, the vulture, and he pointed out further that as the brothers Wright had succeeded in maintaining their aeroplane in the air for seventy-two seconds the way had clearly been opened toward the attainment of this long desired end.

"The pigeon," said M. Quinton, "built to fly in placid airs, has breast muscles three times more powerful than those of the sea gull, which flies in high winds. Thus it may be seen that for the same apparent work a motor paper, of . . .v.Jip-Ebbiis etaoinetaoin of one-third the strength suffices for the bird which avails itself of the forces of the wind."

M. Quinton says that his prize has a definite purpose. It is to attract attention to the phenomenon too little known which is represented in this ability of certain birds to float in the air without motion and to the possibilities it presents to the builders of aeroplanes.

The public today, he says, is all but convinced that aerial navigation by vessels heavier than air has no practical future, because no one can sustain these bodies in the air once their motors cease to work. M. Quinton is of a different opinion.

"If we are to believe what we are told," he said, "M. Marcel Deprez has just presented to the Academy of Sciences a work in which he announces that he has succeeded in sustaining in the air a free body heavier than air by the sole means of the power of the wind. That must prove an accomplishment of high importance.

"The experiment in M. Dejrez's laboratory is of the highest interest. By directing a current of air, a light breeze, against a body with a concave surface, such as a wing presents, he has been able to see the concave body not only rise on the wind but advance against it. This is an experimental demonstration of the principle of the flight of eagles, vultures an dcondors, which for so long a time was denied even by scientists.

"While stormy petrel and the albatross cannot fly in a calm. Then they rest upon the waters like swans. But let a breeze arise, and far from putting a difficulty in their way it carries or propels them and enables them to maneuvre as they will. The forces which these birds utilize men will utilize equally, and the prize that I offer will soon be easily taken, I hope, on the principle of brisk airs acting upon aeroplanes.

"Such success would not be without consequence. It would make plain to all the practical and economic future of aviation, and progress aided by an armv of prosevytes would advance with giant strides."

UNCOMMON SENSE

YOU are not hard to fit. You have been told that you are, but the real trouble lay in the fact that your tailor did not know how to fit you. He was hedging, so that if your clothes did fit you, he could properly impress you with his skill; and if they did not, he could have a soft place to fall on.

We do not deny that there are scores of capable and trustworthy tailors in America, who turn out satisfactory clothes. But the chances are that you have not found one of them in your town. If you have, we congratulate you and pass on. If you have not, we say this to you:

Organization, high salaries and skilled men have so lifted up modern wholesale tailoring that today the results which you can obtain at comparatively small outlay are far beyond the power of the ordinary tailor to equal.

You can be properly fitted in modern high-grade ready-to-wear clothes. You are short-sighted to keep up relations with a small-shop tailor.

Besides agreeing that good custom tailors can be found existing here and there in the world, we add with great good will that there are also other wholesale tailors besides Stein-Bloch who frequently make such good clothes that one would find great trouble in criticizing them. At this stage in the development of the American ready-to-wear clothing industry, to claim otherwise would be an affront to your intelligence. But these two following facts we do insist upon, and they are of the utmost importance to you, no matter where you live.

One—That no other wholesale makers in America know how to tailor ready-to-wear clothes in so wide a variety of sizes that fit so well and are so uniformly stylish and well made from the first suit to the last, as do the Stein-Bloch tailors.

Two—That while we do not claim that Stein-Bloch Smart Clothes will fit without a wrinkle every man who tries them on, we do assert with positiveness that they will fit him with less alterations and more satisfaction than any other clothes in America or Europe, bar none.

If you do not receive one in your mail, send for catalogue which illustrates for you plainly and without exaggeration, the various Stein-Bloch styles for fall and winter in business suits, semi-formal and formal suits, overcoats and rain coats. You should be able to find something among them that will appeal to your personality and taste.

Try on these clothes, look at yourself in them, feel their quality, and ask their price. You may not buy them, but you will at least think deeply regarding them.

And learn this by heart:

When you examine clothes in any store you enter, insist upon being shown the Stein-Bloch label. It is sewed in every coat that Stein-Bloch make. By it you are guaranteed all that you have read above. It also stands for 54 Years of Knowing How.

FAWN THAT WASN'T AFRAID.

Springfield Republican: One day last week E. N. Rogers, a farmer in the Shirkshire district, found a doe and a beautiful fawn not more than three or four days old in his meadow.

The doe became frightened and fled, but the fawn showed no sign of fear, permitting the farmer to caress it, and finally it followed him to the barn. Mr. Rogers drove to Shelburne Falls and had the fawn lying at the feet of his two little daughters, photographed.

During the picture taking the fawn gazed steadily at the photographer and his camera but gave no indication of being afraid. On returning to his home Mr. Rogers took the little animal back to the meadow and in a short time it was joined by the doe.

WHIPPING POST AND STOCKS.

Charlotte Observer: Up until the end of the war and a little while after, the whipping post and stocks stood not far from the northwest corner of the courthouse and between that building and the present postoffice, and there the last whipping took place, though as it began it was sought to be stopped by a Federal officer. The sheriff was, however, simply carrying out the mandate of the old court of pleas and quarter sessions.

In those days the stocks and the whipping post too were special attractions, notably to boys. The latter were allowed to ridicule people who sat in the stocks, which held their hands and feet, but not to throw anything at them.

Of course this deprived the boys of some degree of pleasure, yet they contrived to get a good deal of fun out of the thing anyway. It seems odd now even to think of such scenes as these must have been. Figure to yourself passing by the courthouse green at Charlotte or Raleigh and seeing a gentleman held by the ankles and wrists by wooden bars, sitting there in the sunshine for all the world to look at.

Those were the days of the branding iron, too. A set of gyves of iron in use for holding the ankles or wrists, are on exhibition here, but of branding irons there are none. These were used here in January, 1865, for the last time.

F. J. M'MILLAN THE CAS-KA MAN

INTERVIEWED BY HERALD—TWO WELL-KNOWN BUSINESS MEN HELPED BY CAS-KA, SEE PAGE 2, FOR THEIR TESTIMONIALS.

F. J. McMillan was asked this morning if it was not a little strong to say in the Caska advertisements that one could go into hardly a store in town but what he could find someone that was trying CAS-KA? In reply, Mr. McMillan said: Now, you can start right here at Gasser's big grocery store. One of those salesmen has been bothered all summer with his kidneys and stomach. CAS-KA did him so much good that you will find of the fifty people employed in that store, every one that has anything wrong with his kidneys or stomach is trying CAS-KA. Then further down the street, at Cox Bros.' Market, see what Mr. Smith says on page 2.

And you will find it also in every business house that employs many people, in Duluth. We have sold many bottles of CAS-KA to people bothered with rheumatism, catarrh, stomach, kidney and liver troubles, and every one has been sold with the guarantee that if it did not help, they could get their money back. Only one person has asked for money back, and he got it. See the testimonials on page 2 of Duluth people CAS-KA has helped. CAS-KA does these things by making the blood pure.

BOVEY AND TACONITE ARE NOW MENACED BY FLAMES

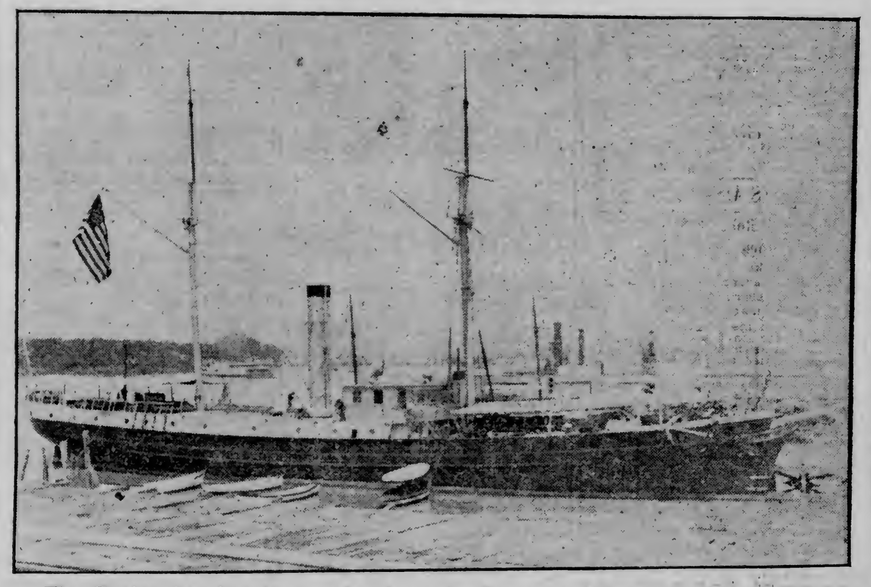

All Bovey Stores are Closed and Many Merchants Packing Their Goods---Change of Wind Alone Can Save Town.

Coleraine, Minn., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Heavy forest fires are raging near Taconite and Bovey this afternoon, and both places are menaced. This city is almost deserted, every one having gone to Bovey to aid in fighting the progress of the flames.

There is no danger at Coleraine at present. All Bovey stores are closed and many merchants are packing their goods preparatory to moving out. The clang of fire alarms is heard almost continuously and there is great excitement. The changing of the wind is about all that can save Bovey, according to current opinion this afternoon.

Taconite is in great danger, as the fires are rapidly approaching the town. Marble is reported to be safe.

THE GOPHER ORDERED OUT BY GOVERNOR JOHNSON TO GET NORTH SHORE PEOPLE

The Gopher has just been ordered out by Governor Johnson to pick up refugees along the north shore. She will leave just after the arrival of Attorney General Wood, at 10 o'clock this evening. She will take supplies for a three weeks' cruise along the shore and make her headquarters at Grand Marais, which is seriously threatened by fire. A crew of thirty or forty men from both divisions of the local militia will accompany her. Gen. Wood will be in command.

AID SUPERIOR FIRE FIGHTERS

Duluth Engine Goes Across Bay to Help in Battle.

The Duluth fire department this afternoon sent a fire engine to the assistance of the Superior fire department, which has been made short of apparatus by the sending of one of their engines to Dedham, Wis., where the fires are reported to be gaining headway.

The Superior fire department was thus left handicapped in fighting the bush fires, that are constantly threatening the outskirts of the city, and the homes of the people living there. The Superior fire department has been constantly in demand since early Saturday afternoon.

JUDGMENT FOR BOAT COMPANY

Judge Morris Decides Against Lehigh Valley Coal Company

Judge Page Morris this morning handed down his decision in the case of the Iona Steamship company against the Lehigh Valley Coal company. The judge finds that the boat which was chartered to carry coal from lower lake ports, was, as was claimed by them, delayed in the discharge of her cargo, and so lay idle at a cost of $175 a day to the coal company.

It was at the time of year when the services of the boats was in great demand, and in his decision the Lehigh Coal company is ordered to pay the sum of $1,400, the total amount of time that the boat was idle, together with the interest at 6 per cent, amounting in all to $1,960.14.

The delay was caused by the refusal of the foreman of the company's dock at Houghton to accept the cargo of coal. The boat then had to lay in at Houghton until orders came to proceed to Duluth. The coal company claimed that the boat was disabled and that the delay would have happened if the orders had not been slow in coming.

"WIFE" ON SHORT NOTICE.

Maa Threatened by Bushwhackers, Saved by Woman's Trick.

Capt. Alex H. Lacy, the veteran editor of the Wet Mountain Tribune of Westcliff, Colo., was in Missouri recently, looking over the ground where stirring history had been made during his residence here. When chaos ruled in Missouri Capt. Lacy was identified with the Unionist party, and even before the breaking out of actual hostilities his espousal of that cause placed his life in jeopardy several times, says the Kansas City Star:

In the '50s Capt. Lacy was a cub printer in the Hannibal Union office and enjoyed the intimate association of Mark Twain, who, he frankly confesses intensely surprised him by developing into a man of letters. The captain says the grout humorist didn't reveal any symptoms of his future career when they were mutually engaged in covering themselves with ink in the old Union printery. Later Capt. Lacy went into the secret service for the government and assisted in procuring the arrest and conviction of several renegades who had scented the approach of war and were prematurely creating trouble for the government.

While the war was going on the Hannibal & St. Joseph railroad was doing its best to deliver the Eastern mail regularly to the "pony express," which began its 2,000 mile run for the coast at St. Joseph.

While shaking hands with his many old friends at Macon, Capt. Lacy reverted to an incident of 1864, when he was a railway postal messenger, handling the mail to and from the coast.

"I am not a believer in dreams, nor in ghosts, nor in the superstitions regarding the positions from which you should first observe the new moon," said Capt. Lacy, "but this is the way a warning came to me: One night when we reached St. Joe, I was too tired to walk around to the hotel, and went to sleep on the sacks in the mail room. I awoke about midnight, after a distressing dream of being carved into small pieces by guerrillas. Bill Anderson's desperate gang had but recently annihilated Maj. Johnson's militia at Centralia, and shot down a train load of soldiers there besides. The whole country was aghast at the atrocity. The discovery that only the iron staples on the mail sacks had been pressing into my flesh did not dispel the influence of the dream. I told Conductor Count Harris and several of the crew about it. They laughed and said I was getting womanish. On the eastward trip that day they made life a misery by putting their heads into my department and sarcastically inquiring about the locality of the bandits. At Hunnewell—somewhat more than half across the state—we were held a short while until a wreck ahead of us was cleared away. The suspense of waiting brought the dream back with double force, and I secreted the registered mail and valuable packages about my clothes. Then I told Conductor Harris that I wasn't going any further down the road that day. He questioned my courage, and this time he was serious. I couldn't stand that, and resolved to stand with the train. We had proceeded but a short distance before we were stopped with a jolt. A stack of ties had been thrown across the track and we were surrounded by the toughest set of bushwhackers I ever laid eyes on. They seemed to be shooting at everything and everybody as they circled around the train on their frantic horses. I looked at them until I recognized in the gang the brother of a man I had run down when I was in the secret service. He did not know me personally, but he knew the man who had chased his brother was a mail messenger on the steam end of the 'Pony Express.' If anything was to be done it had to be accomplished in a hurry. I slipped out of the mail car and made my way to the rear coach. A young woman holding an infant gave me an inspiration. I went to her instantly.

"'Madame,' I said, 'would you object to me being your husband about fifteen minutes?'

"I have no doubt she meant it when she said it was the most remarkable proposition she had ever heard. I explained tersely.

"'We're held up by Bill Anderson's gang, and one of them has sworn to take my life. He knows I'm not married, and if you—'

"But she understood by this time, and it was not necessary for me to say anything more. The average woman can always be relied on to do the right thing in time of peril. The Civil war demonstrated that over and over again. She passed the baby over to me to help out the subterfuge. It was a quiet, chubby little chap, and made no protest over the change. The woman sat close, with her hand resting carelessly on my shoulder. By this time the bushwhackers burst in like a tornado. At the head was the deadliest foe I ever had in the world. Unless someone had pointed me out as the messenger I was safe, but it seemed a slender hope, as he made right for me. Then he stopped and glared down.

"'That your man?' he asked the woman.

"'Yes sir,' she said promptly.

"'Half a score of outlaws were crowding up to us.

"'Stand up and let's see how you hold the baby,' the man commanded.

"'My sister had a baby and I had acquired some practice, for which I thanked a merciful heaven.

"'Now kiss it.'

"My heart shot down in my boots. Had he asked me to kiss my alleged wife I haven't the slightest doubt that that good angel would have met the situation promptly and satisfactorily. But who knows the whim of a child? The slightest indication of disdain on the tiny face would have meant a vacancy in Uncle Sam's postal service. But the blessed baby didn't balk for an instant. It turned its little face to me, cooed and touched its lips to mine. Then it threw one chubby arm around my neck and laid its curly head upon my shoulder. I was young then and my moustache had not become fierce. The fellow, who had been fingering his revolver, slipped it back in his belt. As he turned away the mother reached for her little one, and I never saw a baby get such a kissing.

"The gang got $50,000 in gold dust out of the safe, and took the engineer's gold watch. There were two soldiers on board, but the women tore their uniforms off and threw blankets over them. Then they made them lay down on the seats and pretend to be sick. To do the soldiers justice, they wanted to fight the miscreants and would have faced the odds great as they were, but the women forced them to play sick.

"One of the guerrillas found an accordion in the possession of a passenger and immediately appropriated it. He seemed to be an expert performer, as he began playing as the troop rode away, and the last thing we heard of them was the mournful wailing of the instrument."

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fierce forest fire surrounds the Ahmeek mining location near here, being held in check twenty yards from the town by two fire departments and a hundred volunteers. The town and thousands of dollars worth of valuable mining property are endangered, but it is believed the flames can be kept back.

ANOTHER SUBSCRIPTION.

Chicago Firm Sends $1,000 to the Fire Sufferers..

In a telegram to A. C. Weiss, manager of the Evening Herald, Sears-Roebuck & Company, the big Chicago mail-order house, this afternoon subscribed $1,000 to the fund for the Chisholm fire sufferers.

The telegram follows:

"We read with deep regret of Minnesota calamity, through forest fires. Please notify your committee to draw on us for $1,000, as our contribution to the relief of the sufferers."

SHOWERS, MAY BE.

Rain Would be Welcomed in This Part of County.

There is just a bare possibility that showers may come tonight or tomorrow. The weather bureau doesn't hold out much hope, but says they might come. The excessive heat of today is the hot wave that has been hovering over Montana, and the Dakotas for the past two days brought here by the west winds.

Many people imagined that the heat was from the forest fire raging all over the range, this is not true. Tonight, and tomorrow promise to be cooler.

If the wind shifts slightly to the east it will bring with it cool drops of rain that will be welcomed by both Duluth and range people.

WANT COUNTY MONEY.

Two Commissioners Would See Board Use It for Fire Sufferers.

An attempt was made at the county board meeting this afternoon to appropriate $5,000 from the county funds to aid the fire sufferers.

The attempt was made, despite an opinion from Special Attorney Stevenson that it was irregular.

However, the motion was lost, only two votes being cast in favor of it.

GOLF ON A HOUSETOP.

London Daily Mail: Aerial observers may see on the leads of a large house looking over Regent's park a sort of huge cricket net and rugs of cocoanut matting. In another large house in the neighborhood the owner, who is a member of the house of lords, has turned out his billiard table, stretched matting over the floor and perforated five round holes.

Both these strange spectacles are indication of the still increasing prevalence of the golf habit. The net on the leads is for practice at driving, the billiard room is converted into a putting green.

A new and striking example of the habit was exhibited in the Royal Botanic gardens yesterday, when the School of Golf opened its term. One of the first pupils was a famous Harley street physician, a Scotsman, who put himself down for a lesson at 7:15 each morning.

The chief apparatus of the school consists of nets and putting greens. The beginners, under the personal instruction of professionals, are almost completely encircled by netting, but they strike a free ball and can tell whether it is sliced or pulled.

For the advanced golfer forty-foot nets, stretched on telegraph wires and gigantic telegraph posts, are provided, and it is calculated that a good player can safely drive at the net from a distance of forty to fifty yards. No regular links are provided, but there is plenty of room for short approaches.

WORSE THAN NIGHT RIDERS.

Sharpsburg World: George Clark, a farmer several miles southeast of town, had sown a tobacco plant bed with the intention of growing a crop this year. In order, possibly, to frighten night riders (which were doubtless purely imaginary, as we have no real night riders in this section), he planted two United States flags, one at either end of his tobacco bed. In the same field with the tobacco bed were two bulls, and these animals were evidently strongly in favor of "no crop in 1908" idea. At any rate, seeing the red on Uncle Sam's flags floating defiantly in the spring zephyrs, they naturally construed it as a challenge to combat, as these animals will do when red comes to their view. After holding a council of war in their style, they made a combined charge on the flags, so we are informed. When the battle was over Mr. Clark was minus his tobacco bed and the flags. The bed was pawed up by the enraged animals and the flags were torn and trampled into the ground.

A Catfish's Thiepiece.
St. Louis Times: Henry Schmidt, proprietor of a fish booth at the Soulard market, found in the stomach of a forty-eight pound catfish a woman's gold watch and chain.

Schmidt has the fish and the watch to substantiate his story and a list of witnesses, who were summoned to the booth immediately after the opening of the unique jewelry store, as long as a candidate's petition.

Schmidt says he caught the big Midas fish Sunday in the Mississippi at Carroll street and kept it on ice until Thursday. He thinks some excursionist dropped the watch overboard.

WHEAT HAS GOOD RALLY

Strength Comes After the First Hour of Trading.

Government Report Not Bullish—Flax Lower at Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, Sept. 8—After a weak opening, caused by large Northwestern receipts, wheat rallied in the American market today and closed firm, the closing prices showing fractional gains over Saturday. There were no sessions yesterday, Labor day.

Most of the strength, given the market after the first hour came from Chicago, which developed a strong bullish sentiment.

Car receipts of wheat for Saturday, Sunday and Monday in Duluth were 1,147, against 174 for the same time a year ago.

The government report was not considered at all bullish, showing the average condition of spring wheat when harvested, last month, as 80.7 as against 77.1 for the year 1907.

Liverpool closed ⅝c lower, Paris unchanged to ⅛c higher, and Berlin ½c lower.

The September option closed 1¼c higher in Duluth, Chicago and St. Louis, ½c higher for new wheat in Minneapolis, ⅝c lower than Friday in New York and ⅜c higher than Saturday in Kansas City. The October option closed ⅝c lower in Winnipeg. The December option closed unchanged in Duluth, ⅛c higher in Chicago, ¼c higher in Minneapolis and Kansas City, ⅜c higher in New York and ⅛@⅜c lower in St. Louis and ⅜c lower in Winnipeg.

September corn closed ½c lower in Chicago and ⅝d to ½d higher in Liverpool. September oats closed ⅜c higher in Chicago.

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week the week previous, and the corresponding week a year ago, are shown, as follows:

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—As a result of the lower American cables on Saturday and predictions of heavy American receipts, the market has been under selling pressure, with offerings large. Another factor for the decline was the heavy Russian and Danubian shipments for the week, and the fact that Manitoba parcels are being offered at 7½d decline from previous prices. Toward midday the undertone became steadier, with slight advance in values from this low level, with shorts covering. At this time the market was dull and 1⅛d lower than Saturday.

"Corn was easy, ⅝@¾d lower. Further declined ¼d during the morning under free arrivals of La Plata and poor consumptive demand. At midday the market was easy and from ⅜d to ½d lower than Saturday."

Car receipts of wheat were 848 against 104 last year. Chicago received 82 against 285 last year. Winnipeg received 282.

Primary receipts of wheat were 2,149,000 bus, last year 774,000 bus. Shipments, 862,000 bus, last year 425,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 402,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 572,000 bus, last year 916,000 bus. Shipments 364,000 bus, last year 430,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 19,559 bus.

Wheat opened with a rush in Duluth and kept active during all the session. September wheat opened 1½c lower, at 98¾c, advanced to $1.00½, declined to $1 and closed there, a gain of ⅛c over Saturday. December wheat opened ½c lower, at 98¾c, declined to 98½c, reacted finally to $1 and declined by the close to 99¾c, unchanged from Saturday. May wheat was inactive and closed unchanged from Saturday at $1.03.

Durum wheat closed 1½c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over September for No. 1 Northern.

Flax opened weak, but regained some of its losses before the close. Trading was active. September flax opened ½c lower at $1.25, declined to $1.24½ and rallied by the close to $1.25, a loss of ½c from Saturday. October flax opened 1½c lower at $1.23, advanced to $1.24 and closed there, a loss of ½c from Saturday. November flax opened 1½c lower at $1.23, advanced to $1.24 and closed there, a loss of ½c from Saturday. December flax sold at $1.22, advanced to $1.22½ and closed there, a loss of ½c from Saturday.

Barley closed 1½c to 4c lower and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Advance on a Light Volume of Business.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Wheat prices on the local exchange advanced nearly 1c today on a light volume of business following declines of ⅞c to ⅝c at the opening. Pit traders sold at the start on the expectation of an extremely free movement of wheat in the Northwest, but the arrivals today at Minneapolis and Duluth were only 1,856 (for three days) cars, whereas it had been expected Saturday that the receipts would aggregate nearly 2,000 cars. Moderate demand by commission houses forced the December delivery up to 97⅜c from the opening price of 96½c to 96¾c. A decline of more than 1d at Liverpool seems to have no effect on the local market. Total receipts today at Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago were reported at 1,919 cars against 758 cars last week and 991 cars a year ago.

The government report caused a still further advance in prices. December rallying to 98¼c. The official statistics estimated the condition of the spring sown crop at the time of harvest to be 77.6 per cent of a normal yield compared with 80.7 last month. A large part of the gain was lost later in the session on profit-taking, the market closing barely steady with prices unchanged to ⅛c higher. December closed at 97¼c.

Drought in the corn belt caused a strong market for corn, prices advancing almost a cent during the early trading. According to the weather bureau almost no rain had fallen in the principal corn growing states the past three days, and there was none in the forecast. Prices at the start were ¼c lower to ⅛@¼c higher with September showing some weakness, owing to liberal receipts. December opened at 67⅝c to 67¾c and soon advanced to 68¾c. Local receipts were 420 cars with 150 of contract grade.

Trade in oats were light, but the market was firm because of the strength of wheat and corn. December opened a shade lower to ⅛@¼c higher, at 50¼c to 50⅜c and for a time, held within that range. Local receipts were 383 cars.

Provisions were firm on small receipts of live hogs at western packing centers, today's arrivals being about 10,000 less than the corresponding day a year ago. Prices at the opening were 2½@5c to 12½c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

No Serious Decline Noted, Despite the Free Offerings.

Minneapolis, Sept. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—All eyes were on the lookout for receipts today. Estimates Saturday varied from 900 to 1,100 cars of wheat. The railroads actually brought in over the double holiday, 759 cars. Of these coarse grains, corn, oats, barley, rye and flax, there was 817 cars, making a total of 1,576 cars of grain of all kinds. This, with 1,097 cars wheat at Duluth, bore heavily upon the market to put all futures lower. The calls came 1¼d off for Liverpool, which was additionally weakening, but the closing cables showed recovery and a price only ⅝d lower. The market hardened on this and made recovery to Saturday's close and above. The visible increase of 2,51,000 had no effect. St. Louis, Kansas City and Chicago, got moderate receipts, and as the local cars were away under the estimates, a good many turned buyers and the hedging sales were taken care of. September opened 98¼@99c; high, $1.00½; low, 98¼c; close, $1.00¼. Old September opened 99⅝c; high, $1.01⅛; low, 99¼c; close $1.00⅝. December opened 99⅜@99c; high, $1.00¾; low, 99c; close, $1.00⅝. Old December closed, $1.00⅝. May closed $1.04⅛@1.04¼.

Cash trade was heavy in volume, the tables piled high with samples. Despite the free offerings there was no serious decline, No. 1 selling at 2½c over, with some lots 3c over, and No. 2 going at about September price. Local and country millers bought and there was good shipping demand. Close: No. 1 northern spot, $1.02½@1.03; to arrive, $1.02½; No. 2 northern spot, $1@1.00¼; to arrive, $1; No. 3 wheat, 97⅛@98½c. No. 3 yellow corn, 78¾c. No. 3 white oats, 47¾@48c. No. 2 rye, 72¼c.

The barley market got 486 cars or much more than expected. Some big receivers held their barley off at first, letting it come on later. Prices averaged ½c lower for good to choice malting, 1c lower for ordinary to good malting, 1@1½c lower for feeding grades, but later in the day feeding grades were firmer and about ½c lower. Close 55@58c. Flax receipts, 97 cars. Good demand. Average sales ¼c under Duluth September. Close $1.23¾. Millstuffs steady, $18.50@19.00 for bran in bulk.

Flour demand is excellent and the larger shipments reflect the improvement in conditions. Domestic has picked up and there is increasing foreign inquiry for clears and patents. Shipments 68,961. First patents $5.65@5.75; second patents, $5.50@5.60; first clears, $4.30@4.40; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

ADVANCES IN STOCK

Market Started With Higher Prices and Ruled Quite Strong.

Close Active and Irregular But Near the Best Figures.

New York, Sept. 8.—Operations in stocks, after the three-day holiday interval, were resumed at higher prices than on Friday. The Harriman and Hill stocks were the conspicuous features, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Illinois Central and Erie rising 1, Erie first preferred 1¾ and Southern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio substantial fractions. American Locomotive rose 1⅛, Republic Steel preferred and Northwestern 1 and Colorado & Southern ⅝. Trading was brisk.

Demand for stocks continued good and there was a further advance in prices, notably among the low-priced issues. A sudden reaction of 2⅝ in American Locomotive, which placed it 1½ under last week's closing, checked the improvement and there was a slight set-back. The high prices showed Erie first preferred, Brooklyn Union Gas and Republic Steel preferred up 2, Kansas City Southern preferred 1⅜ and Colorado & Southern, the second preferred, Southern Railway preferred, Republic Steel and Sloss-Sheffield Steel, 1. Atlantic Coast Line and American Smelting preferred saged 1¾.

Union Pacific made a fresh advance of 1⅝, but the main strength of the market was in low priced shares. Erie rose 1¾ and United States Steel 1¼. These stocks and Southern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio, which rose a point, touched new high prices for the year. Trading became almost stagnant. Bonds were irregular.

Large blocks of United States Steel changed hands in the neighborhood of 48 and there was also an inquiry for Reading and Erie, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific. Otherwise there was little of interest in the market and fluctuations were unimportant. Union Pacific gained 1⅛ in all, Third Avenue 1¼ and Ontario & Western 1. Westinghouse Electric fell 1.

The market closed active and irregular. Western Union became active at an advance of 2⅝, and Consolidated Gas 2. Brooklyn Union Gas 3, and American Car preferred 1. Elsewhere there was speculative liquidation induced by the complexion of the government crop report. There was some rally when the shorts covered, and American Smelting recovered 2 and the Harriman stocks to the best prices.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street. Closing prices are bid.

COTTON GINNERIES SHOW BIG INCREASE

Washington, Sept. 8.—A total of 397,924 bales of cotton ginned from the growth of 1908 to Sept. 1, and 6,613 active ginneries are announced in a census report issued today. This is against 200,278 bales and 4,080 active ginneries in 1907. These figures count round as half bales. The report includes 20,514 round bales for 1908; 11,503 for 1907; 21,855 for 1906, and 22,231 for 1905. The report also embraces 1,324 Sea Island bales for 1908; 85 for 1907; 63 for 1906, and 1,165 for 1905.

To the People of Duluth and surrounding country:

Many of you are standing to one side and watching the Ballaklava open up one of the richest capper mines in the United States, with exactly the same kind of ore and the very same veins as the North Butte mine. How can you even stop to question this great property. On the 700-foot level, over 200 feet of the richest vein matter in the Butte camp or on Anaconda Hill. No proposition that has come before the public since North Butte and Calumet & Arizona were put on can even begin to compare with this one, with its 3,600 feet of vein matter, which can be followed no matter how deep the leads are or even if they reach across the state of Montana. It can with a three-compartment shaft, after further development, equal the production made by its closest neighbor, the North Butte mine. Buy this one, for the shaft at 925 feet has gone into the richest kind of ore. What will happen to Ballaklava when the rich deposits on the 1,000-foot level are opened up. If Ballaklava stock is not worth $30 on the showing on this level it is not worth anything. Sell them all and buy B. & B. for the biggest sure money since C. & A. was put on. It will pass the Greene and Superior & Pittsburg and should easily pass the Shattuck in the next few days. Only 25 days from the 1,000-foot level. Stock is $9.00 bid. Bring it to me.

Butte & Superior should easily double in price and is one of the best on the board for a big clean up, if they strike it rich on the 1,200.

Copper Queen also looks very good and should sell much higher. Calumet & Sonora is strong at $10.25 and should sell much higher.

Whatever you do, buy Ballaklava. I want to get this on record, that I told you to.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR PROBATE OF WILL.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Eliza B. Withrow, Decedent.

A certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of Eliza B. Withrow, having been presented to this court and the petition of Maggie J. Forgy, being duly filed herein, representing, among other things, that said decedent, then being a resident of the county of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died testate in the county of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of August, 1908, and that said petitioner is the executrix named in the will of deceased and praying that said instrument be allowed and admitted to probate as the last will and testament of said decedent, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon.

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House in Duluth, in said county, on Monday, the 21st day of September, 1908 at ten o'clock A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter, are hereby cited and requited at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., Aug 24, 1908.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

Tin Can Clubs.

B. H. Green of Monterey, Cal., has sent out a circular giving information regarding the Tin Can clubs through whose beneficent activities he expects to see the country supplied with needed forests.

The attempts to cultivate tree claims in the Dakotas many years ago were rather discouraging, says the National Magazine, but Mr. Green insists that he has been successful in planting tree seeds, nuts and cuttings in refuse tin cans, and can now show an oak tree twenty feet high only eight years of age and also a redwood tree, grown from seed, which is now fully thirty feet high and only twelve years of age.

Mr. Green insists that a tomato can with a fair sized hole punched in the bottom and filled with good earth is just the thing needed to start a tree in and that if the earth is never allowed to become dry the growth of the young tree will be amazing. Later, the little trees are transplanted without removing from the cans, for the rust eats away the can sufficiently to allow the roots to free themselves as they need more room.

Rare Washington Relic.

Mrs. F. Luis Mora of this city owns a Washington relic, which as far as is known, is the only one of its kind in existence. It is one of six medallions which were made to order for Gen. Lafayette.

eBfore Lafayette took leave of the officers of his staff, says the Circle, he had these medallions made in Paris and presented them to the six officers immediately under him. The five others have disappeared and may have been destroyed.

The one in Mrs. Mora's possession is made of cut glass, bound by a heavy rim of solid gold, to which is attached a gold ring by which it may be suspended. Between the two layers of glass is a beautifully modeled head of Washington in plaster, silvered.

On the reverse is the inscription "Desprez, Rue des Recolets No. 2, a Paris Wasington." Note the omission of the letter "h" in Washington.

The medallion came into Mrs. Mora's possession through her great-grandfather, Lewis Compton, to whom it was presented soon after the Revolutionary war.

HIBBING'S GREATEST DANGER PROBABLY PASSED, BUT STILL NECESSARY TO FIGHT BACK THE FIRE

RELIEF FUND IS STILL GROWING

Subscriptions Received in Duluth Now Total Over $32,000.

Churches Organize to Collect Clothing for the Homeless.

Fifty Beds are Sent by the Salvation Army.

The contribution list for the fire sufferers of the range is now over $32,000, or to be exact, the sum collected up to date is $32,689.10. This list will in all probability reach $50,000 by the time it is closed. The larger corporations are subscribing with a will; individuals who cannot give much, are anxious to give what they can, and the spirit of the thing is growing rapidly on Duluth people.

Further steps toward the relief of the fire sufferers were taken yesterday. Rev. J. A. Geer, pastor of the Lester Park Methodist church, yesterday called upon practically all of the ministers of the city, asking them to do whatever they could in the way of urging their congregations to contribute to the relief of the sufferers.

As a result of this call, the ladies' aid societies of the churches of the city have united and are collecting clothes to be sent to the Chisholm fire sufferers. Every minister in the city called upon the aid society of his church, or some kindred charitable so-

LITTLE AID FROM NATURE

Weather Man Holds Out No Hope of Rain.

According to H. W. Richardson, local forecaster of the United States weather bureau, there will be no rain today in Cook, Lake, Pine, St. Louis or Lake counties. These are the counties that need it most on account of the fierce forest fires raging in the forests, and for the next thirty-six hours at least there is no prospect of rain.

Neither will there be any wind except such as is created by the flames. Last night it looked for a time as though the rain so earnestly prayed for might come, but the clouds moved away and now there is no hope before tomorro wevening.

DEMOCRATS IN DAKOTA

Are Hopeful of Swinging North Dakota Into the Bryan Column.

Governor Johnson and Ex-Governor Lind to Speak in State.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—In pursuance to the decision of the state central committee, the Democratic party of North Dakota will open headquarters in Grand Forks during the present week and enter into the campaign. S. Torgerson, president of the Scandinavian American bank of this city, will have active charge of the headquarters office with J. L. Cashel of Grafton, chairman of the state committee, will be here a large portion of the time after Sept. 15. It is the purpose of the Democrats to make a thorough campaign of North Dakota this year with the hope of seWilliam Bryan, and in their campaign they expect to be assisted by a number of prominent outside Democrats.

Two Minnesota leaders of Democracy will appear in North Dakota within the next two months' Governor John A. Johnson and ex-Governor John Lind will be the speakers, but as yet no definite dates have been announced. Governor Johnson is billed for at least three cities, Grand Forks, Hillsboro and Fargo, and will very likely speak during the present month. Ex-Governor Lind will make a longer stay than will Johnson, and he will cover dates over the central and western portions of the state. On his recent visit in

BERTHA CLAICHE, MURDERESS, FREE

Woman Forced to Barter Her Honor, Released from Prison.

BERTHA E. CLAICHE.

Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Bertha E. Claiche, chief figure in one of New York's most noted murder cases and a convict in Auburn prison, had her application for liberty favorably acted upon by the prison parole board yesterday.

Bertha Claiche was tried for the shooting of Emile Gendron in New York June 6, 1906. She was convicted and sentenced to serve an indeterminate term in the woman's prison here. Much sympathy was manifested for the young French woman, although the evidence showed the murder to have been deliberate.

Her story that Gendron had forced her to go upon the street and barter her womanhood to support him, secured for her a large amount of consideration.

BRYAN IN STATE PLEA

Wants Sovereignty of the Commonwealth Respected.

Declares Trusts Try to Drag Cases Into Federal Courts.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 9.—In his address here, today, William J. Bryan said, in part:

"The success of our system of government rests upon the careful observance of the constitutional division of power between the state and the nation. A number of expressions have been coined to describe the relations existing between the Federal government and the several subdivisions, but no one has been more felicitous in definitions than Jefferson or more accurate in drawing lines of demarkation. He presented the historic position of the Democratic party when he declared himself in favor of "the support of the state governments in all their rights, as the most competent administrations for our domestic concerns and the surest bulwarks against anti-Republican tendencies," and "the preservation of the general government in its whole constitutional vigor, as the sheet anchor of our safety at home and peace abroad." The Democratic platform, adopted at Denver, quotes the language of Jefferson and declares that it ex-

BROOKSTON NOW FEELS BETTER

Brookston, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The people of Brookston are breathing easier today, yesterday afternoon having been a period of intense anxiety, because of the fierce brush fires surrounding the town. About two and one-half miles south of town a fire was burning in a manner that foreboded disaster, if not checked, as it was eating its way toward town at an alarming rate. Another big fire, about four miles away, was also taking on dangerous proportions, and the whole town prepared itself for the worst. The progress of the fire was temporarily checked, and last evening the wind died down, removing danger for the time being. Fires are still burning this morning, but there is no immediate danger.

LABOR MEN WANT JURY

Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison Reply in Stove Boycott Case.

Federation President, Waxing Facetious, Avers He is No Clairvoyant.

EXAMINER IS NAMED TO TAKE TESTIMONY

Washington, Sept. 9.—In the case of the contempt proceedings against Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, in connection with the Buck Stove & Range company, Judge Gould today decided to appoint an examiner to take testimony, and Albert Harper was designated to perform that service. Thirty days are given each side for the purpose of taking the testimony.

Washington, Sept. 9.—In their answers to the petition of the Buck Stove & Range company to have Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor punished for contempt of the charge of violating the order of Justice Gould enjoining them from continuing the boycott against the stove company by publishing the name of that company in the "We Don't Patronize" list, which was filed today in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, the three defendants ask that the issues be tried before a jury and not by Justice Gould alone.

Most of the specifications of the petition relate to publications in the American Federationist, the official organ of the federation of which Mr. Gompers is editor, and to public addresses made by him, and his response is of much greater length than those of Messrs. Mitchell and Morrison, both of whom profess ignorance as to the majority of the utterances quoted. For the most part, Mr. Gompers admits the correctness of the quotations from his speeches, interviews and editorials, but he declared that none of them was intended to be in contempt of any decree of the court.

The principal charge refers to criticisms on injunctions which were made

PALL OF SMOKE IS STILL HEAVY

No Damage to Towns Along the Iron Range Road.

Large Quantities of Ties Burned Near Britton Siding.

No Word in Regard to Fires at Beaver Bay.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the pall of smoke still hangs heavy over this entire district, making it difficult to locate the source of same, and dead cinders have been falling here all yesterday and today, the indications are that the fire are at a considerable distance. The slight westerly breeze probably bringing the greater amount from the burning districts in St. Louis county. A careful canvass of the situation in Lake county and along the Duluth & Iron Range road indicates that, outside of the damage to stumpage, which will be great, as yet no other extensive damage has been done though there is still great danger. The woods, swamps and leaves are very dry, and any heavy wind would soon blow up extensive fires.

Between Duluth and Two Harbors there is much smoke but no fires are

PESHTIGO HAS BIG FIRE LOSS

Car Shops in Wisconsin City Destroyed and Town Menaced.

Menominee, Mich., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Forest fires encroaching on the city of Peshtigo, Wis., destroyed the city car shop and rolling material of the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad there last night. The fire is still burning and the city is in danger. The damage to the car shops and rolling stock is about $65,000, fully insured.

WOOD NARROWLY MISSES INJURY

Major General Thrown From Horse at German Army Maneuvers.

MAJ. GEN. LEONARD WOOD.

St. Johann-on-the-Saar, Sept. 9.—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood of the United States army, who is witnessing the German army maneuvers here, had a narrow escape from a serious accident yesterday. His horse became frightened, reared up and fell. Beyond a shaking up, Gen. Wood was unhurt.

INSANE, HE KILLS THREE WITH AX

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 9.—Pearson Talley, 60, while temporarily insane, attacked his wife in bed, splitting her skull open with an ax.

He then attacked his niece, splitting her head open, and fractured the skull of her husband, Andrew Johansen.

The victims are in a hospital dying, and Talley is under arrest.

DANGER IS NOT NOW IMMINENT

All Towns as Safe Now as at Any Time Until Rains Come.

Buhl Saved by the Rarest of Good Fortune---The Wind Shifted.

Every town on the range is just as safe now as it will be at any time, until the prayers of the terror-stricken people for rain, are answered. There is no immediate danger of Hibbing, Nashwauk, Buhl, Coleraine, Bovey or Taconite going down before the flames, but a twenty-five mile gale, which is blowing from the Northwest today, carries with it a menace, which must be heeded by the fighting forces.

The fires will burn as long as there is no rain. There is plenty to feed them and the least wind fans dying embers into theratening tongues of flame. In every town on the range, the men are fighting constantly to protect their houes and property from the terrible force, which destroyed Chisholm, and against which they have been fighting since last week.

Hibbing is safe for the present, but the northwest wind is fanning the isolated areas of fire northwest of the town, and constant vigilance and hard work on the part of the fire fighters is necessary. To the northwest of the town, the dumps at the Burt-Sellers and Hull-Rust mines form barriers for the attacking flames, and help the firefighters by reducing the area, which they must cover.

Messages received from Coleraine and Taconite say there is no immediate danger there. After yesterday's harrowing experience, Buhl, also, is safe, for the present, but not entirely out of danger. Nashwauk is in the same condition.

A Night of Terror.

The ranges passed through a period of terror and Duluth through one of anxiety yesterday afternoon and last night, but today the fighting forces have a respite. All day yesterday, at half a dozen of the most prosperous towns on the range, men fought against the terrible onslaughts of the fire fiend. Every means at the command of the threatened town was brought into play in fighting to ward off the impending disaster. Half a dozen times at each of the towns it was thought the fight was over and the fire had won. People began to collect their belongings for flight, but the little bodies of men battled on in desperation, and last night had the satisfaction of seeing the wind shift, the threatening flames die down to smouldering embers, and the danger pass.

Buhl Saved.

Buhl was saved by the rarest of good fortune. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the flames assailed the little town with fury. The men who were fighting the fire proved equal to the task and every business place in the town was closed and their occupants rushed to the front. Fanned by a southwest wind, the flames spread on, and the streams of water poured upon them

THE GRANT MINE IS THREATENED

And Croxton and Kinney Locations Are Also in Danger.

Buhl, Minn., September 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A shift of the wind at 3 p. m. yesterday saved the town from destruction by forest fires. At 3 a. m. today the fire department, assisted by hundreds of men, began back-firing from the southeast side of the town and they are meeting with good success. A strong wind blows this fire from the town. At 1 p. m., strong fires on the northwest were blowing before a heavy wind and threaten the Grant mine. Nothing but a wind from the west will take the fire away. At this hour, the Croxton mine location is threatened and there are small hopes for its escape.

Fires are also burning fast toward the depot, at Flanders, one mile west of Croxton, and it seems doomed.

The Kinney mine location is still in grave danger, and is almost surrounded by fire.

The Mesaba Southern railway headquarters at Kinross, six miles east of here, are threatened by destruction, and the railway began hauling all cars, derricks and engines from there this noon. Nothing but rain will save another disaster, somewhere on the range.

INCIDENTS OF THE CHISHOLM FLIGHT

Invalid Widow of Judge Bateson Saved by Her Daughter.

Chisholm, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The story of the flight of the people of Chisholm from impending disaster Saturday afternoon is being retold and many are the incidents of personal heroism recorded. With bulldog tenacity and with a fortitude that makes heroes and martyrs, many a family remained around their hearthstone until the rooftrees of their homes were ablaze, hopeful all the time that fickle fortune would come to their aid and save their homes. Some of the wise ones made efforts to save part of their effects, but many were so carried away by the excitement that they forgot anything more than the clothes on their backs.

A local druggist had an odd experience. He procured a wagon and the best team available, proposing to take his family and some of their personal effects to places of safety, but he was doomed to disappointment. Before he could load any of his own goods into the wagon neighbors besieged him and, pleading for seats in the wagon and the privilege of carrying away a few things, loaded his conveyance, and he drove away from his burning home, carrying everybody's things but his own.

Saved Her Mother.

A pathetic story was that of the widow of Judge Bateson, an invalid, who, with her daughter, Hilda, aged 16, and a little girl living with them on Central avenue, were alone and knew no one to whom they could turn for aid when the calamity struck Chisholm. Sitting on the porch, the helpless widow saw the flames approaching her home. She begged her daughter to take the little girl and flee, leaving her poor old mother to her fate. But Hilda was not of that sort. She seized hold of the invalid's chair and dragged her mother into the street through the fire and along the highway, being the last to leave the doomed village. They found shelter with a kind family and remained there until finally located by relatives.

FOREST FIRES AT ISLE ROYALE

Timber Back of Rock Harbor Burning, But Not Yet Dangerous.

Isle Royale, Lake Superior's famous summer resort, may be swept by fire.

Word was received here yesterday that there were fires in the timber there and that there was danger of their spreading into conflagrations, while hmight envelope the entire island.

A resident of Rock Harbor, in a letter to a friend in Duluth, received yesterday, stated that a fire was raging in the wood a mile back of that resort and looked as if the Rock Harbor folk would have to get out and fight the blaze.

At the time the letter was written it was apparent that the fire had not yet reached a serious stage.

ST. PAUL RAISES A RELIEF FUND

City Council Grants $5,000 and Mayor Names Committee.

St. Paul, Minn, Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a record-breaking session of the common council, held a few minutes after noon yesterday, a resolution was passed by both bodies appropriating $5,000 from the miscellaneous account of the general fund for the aid of the fire sufferers at Chisholm and other points in Northeastern Minnesota. The resolution was promptly signed by the mayor, and was published yesterday afternoon.

City Comptroller Betz said that there would be no difficulty in the way of furnishing the money immediately and placing it in the hands of the mayor for transmission to the general relief committee at Duluth without delay.

Another item of business transacted by both bodies and approved by the mayor was the passage of a resolution authorizing the mayor to appoint a committee of seven, consisting of one member of each body of the common council and five who are not members of the council, to receive contributions for the relief fund.

The mayor lost no time in appointing this committee. It consists of Assemblyman Frank Yoerg, Alderman Corning, Joseph McKibbin, H. Thomas Quinlan, President F. Y. Locke of the Commercial club, J. George Smith and A. P. Cameron.

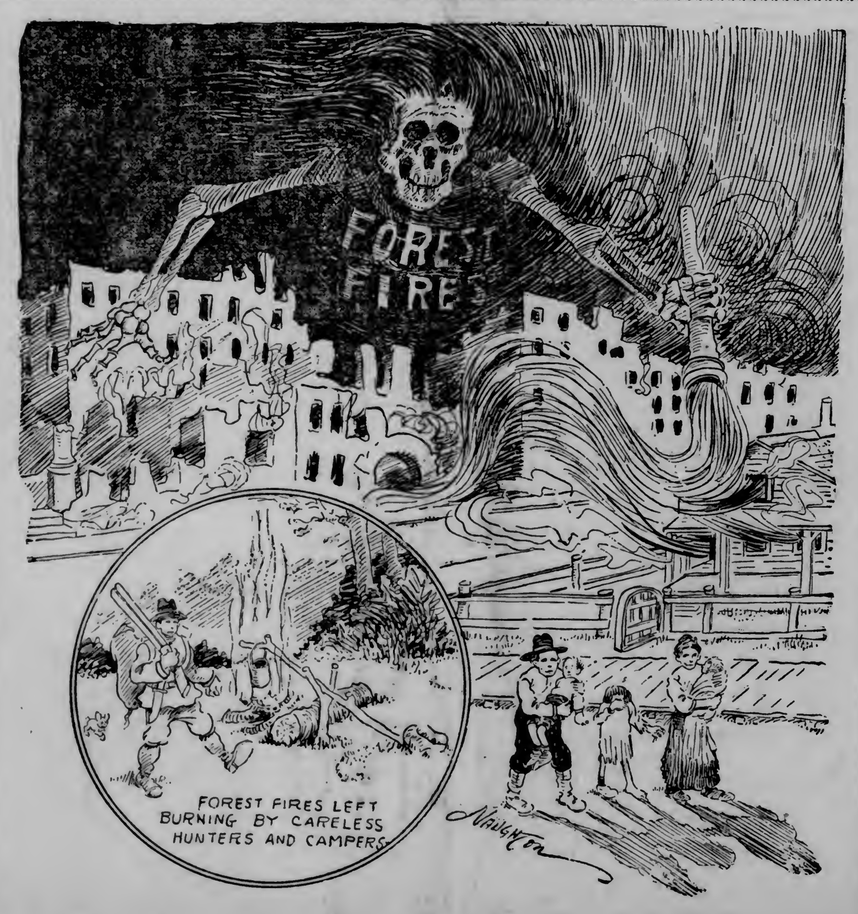

Mr. Cameron stated at the council meeting the builders' exchange would have a meeting to consider the appropriation of funds for the victims.

H. A. Boardman, on behalf of the Commercial club, said that body would also take the matter up without delay, and circulate a subscription paper among its members to raise funds.

AERIAL BRIDGE BEING REPAIRED

Two Unions Clash Over Who Shall Do the Work.

The aerial bridge is undergoing repairs today, and will be out of commission for the remainder of the week. Meantime a ferry is running between the Booth dock and Park Point.

Repair work came very nearly being delayed this morning because of friction between the Bridge Workers union and the Boilermakers' union. The Northwestern Boiler company was given the contract to do the work on the bridge, and took five men from their plant on Lake avenue to work on the structure. Members of the Bridge Workers' union heard of what was going on, and entered serious objections to boilermakers doing bridge work. The difficulty was adjusted after considerable argument, and the boilermakers continued at the work.

There is nothing seriously wrong with the bridge. It is merely in need of a general overhauling, with repairs at different points in the structure. To keep it in thoroughly good shape it is necessary to have a crew of men go over it at frequent intervals.

SUPERIOR FIGHTING FOREST FIRES

WHERE THE WISCONSIN FIRES ARE BURNING.

The fire conditions about Superior have somewhat improved since yesterday, and no further loss of houses or barns has been reported. All day yesterday ashes from fires, almost ten miles away, were carried into the city by the strong winds from the south.

Farms and timber have been laid waste for miles around. The property of the Superior Crushed Rock company, at Rockmount, besides the farm house and the other buildings of County School Superintendent A. N. Young, were saved only after a hard struggle.

Chief Johnson of the fire department sent assistance to Dedham. A steamer from the Eighteenth street hall, and three men with 1,000 feet of hose, were sent. The Duluth fire department in turn loaned Superior one of its engines.

The vicinity of Black River Falls was reported to be in no immediate danger by County Commissioner Ely, who returned from there last evening. South Range has not been touched by the flames. Hawthorn could not be reached by telephone, though little anxiety is felt for it. The fire was reported to be dangerously near Brule last evening. A big fire is raging between Iron River and Ashland. Small fires are burning about Nebagamon. There are fires near Bennett, though they are not yet dangerous.

CITIZENS ARE AWAKE

Begin to Realize Importance of Legislative Nominations.

Need for Strong Men Was Never Greater Than Now.

The citizens of Duluth and St. Louis county seem to be thoroughly awake to the need of making a careful choice of legislative candidates at the primary election next Tuesday.

In Duluth men who seldom take an active interest in politics are taking off their coats for the candidates of their choice, and the candidates themselves, though several of them are new at the game and were brought into the contest much against their wills and solely because of the apparent popular demand for them to run, are actively and effectively pursuing their canvasses in a manner that promises victory.

Duluth is divided into three legislative districts as follows: The Fifty-first, which includes Lake and Cook counties, the eastern third of St. Louis county and the First, Second and Fourth wards of Duluth; the Fiftieth, which includes the Third, Fifth and Sixth wards of Duluth and the central portion of the county; and the Forty-ninth, which includes the Seventh and Eighth wards of Duluth and the greater part of the Mesaba range, the Vermilion range being divided between the Fifty-first and Fiftieth districts.

Sentiment in this county seems to have crystallized pretty clearly upon the candiddates who are likely to be chosen for the Republican nominations in these three districts, each of which will elect two members of the legislature.

In the Fifty-first district the business interests of all kinds have centered upon George W. Buck and Chester A. Congdon, both of whom were induced to enter the race at considerable personal sacrifice. Hard and aggressive work is being done for these two men by all interests and all classes, and their nomination seems very probable.

In the Fiftieth district, in which there are five candidates, popular opinion seems to have picked as the winner Richard F. Grant and Anton Borgen, the former a well-known young attorney of Duluth and the latter an old and well-known business man who has lived in the district many years. In this district the Democrats have picked two good men, J. W. Reynolds and Dr. Orelson, who have no opposition in the nomination.

In the Forty-ninth district, while there are three candidates, there seems to be little doubt of the nomination of Dr. David Graham of West Duluth, who served a term in the house in the session of 1903, and Joseph Austin of Chisholm, who was a member of the last house.

"Duluth and St. Louis county have let their legislative selections go by default too long," said a Duluth business man, who has kept closely in touch with the legislature in recent years, in speaking of the situation today. "There is no occasion for upbraiding those who have served these districts in the past, some of whom have been good and faithful men, but it is clear to everybody that the voters have not taken sufficient interest in this matter, in view of the importance of proper representation from Northern Minnesota in the legislature. Thanks to all antiquated apportionment, this part of the state has far less representation than its population entitles it to, and this, coupled with the fact that Northern Minnesota has peculiar needs which Southern Minnesota does not understand, and the fact that this misunderstanding often leads the majority in the southern part of the state to make unjust assaults upon this section, points the need of picking out the very ablest men that can be chosen to represent us in the legislature."

WILLIAM A. RYAN PASSES AWAY

Popular Young Duluth Man Dies at St. Mary's Hospital.

William A. Ryan, thirty years of age, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ryan, of 2128 East Fourth street, died this morning at St. Mary's hospital, of peritonitis.

He had been ill since Sunday evening and it was not until last night that his condition was considered at all serious.

WILLIAM A. RYAN.

Mr. Ryan had lived in Duluth for the past thirteen years, being employed as secretary in the offices of Kinney & Hawkins. He was known to almost everyone. Endowed with a sunny disposition, and always wearing a happy smile, he was well liked by all. The news of his death will be read with keen regret by his many friends.

Arrangements for the funeral have not as yet been completed, but the body will be sent to Janesville, Wis., his former home, some time tomorrow, for burial.

DUFFY GIVEN A BIG FINE

Pays $100 for Theft From Management of Spalding.

C. B. Duffy, employed in the Flemish room at the Spalding hotel, this morning pleaded guilty in municipal court to the charge of petit larceny, and was fined $100 and costs, with an alternative of ninety days in jail, by Judge Windom. Duffy paid his fine and was released.

Robert Mallory, whose confession was responsible for the arrest of Duffy, was let off with a $10 fine. He could not pay this morning, and so took the alternative of ten days in jail. Mallory was arrested last week, charged with taking money which belonged to the Spalding management. He was a waiter in the Flemish room, and instead of turning over all the cash, worked a scheme with Duffy whereby they retained a part of it.

When first arraigned in court, Mallory, who is a negro, pleaded not guilty, but yesterday afternoon he changed the plea, and made a confession, involving Duffy, and placing all the responsibility for the fraud on Duffy, a mulatto. Duffy was arrested, and seeing how black the case against him was, confessed.

A BOXING BOUT FOR BOVEY FANS

O'Keefe and Barney Cinnamon Will Go Ten Rounds Saturday.

Saturday evening at Bovey, Barney Cinnamon, who is hailed as the boy champion in the featherweight class of Wisconsin, will stack up against Mike OKeefe of Superior in a ten-round exhibition.

Monday evening just to show the fight fans up on the range just what he could do, Cinnamon took on two unknown men, and put them both away in six rounds. Whoever they were, according to spectators, they were both good men and put up game fights.

Mike O'Keefe, the Superior lad, who will fight with him is not unknown to range people, as he has pulled off some game contests in the little towns.

This is the second meeting between these two men, they having met some time ago before the Eagles' club of Eau Claire, Wis. The result has always been disputed, each man claiming honors, and the contest for Saturday night will shut up one of them.

They will fight at 128 pounds, and it promises to be a real go.

An Initial Showing

WE have set aside this week as an introductory show-time in order that women may familiarize themselves with the style points of Fall Wearables.

Autumnal modes are exceptionally effective, and the colorings delightfully pretty. Cataba, mole, taupe and wisteria are a few of the prominent novelty shades, while blacks, blues, smoke greys and dull greens are well approved. Beside these, there are innumerable handsome mixtures and combinations.

Ottoman silk adds a marked touch to many fashionable coats' suits or dresses, and whole garments or hats of it are often seen.

Heavy trimmings in braid and buttons are pronounced features of the dressier types.

Strictly tailored styles, which of course, form the major portion of the showing are always practical and stylish. The "lines" of these, the "fit" and the "finish" are their chief charm. Some of them are absolutely custom tailored, and all are tailored with a smartness which distinguishes the wearer.

The variety of Handsome Tailored Dresses, Natty Skirts and Dainty Waists are in keeping with the suit and coat showing.

The Juvenile Department

Has received a large share of attention and the points of superiority to its garments rival those of the Grown-Up styles.

SANDALS ON THE DOGS

Hunters Are Equipping Their Dogs With Shoes.

The directoire craze has not exactly come west of Chicago, but the hunters of the festive prairie chicken are employing a modification of the Salome sandal to keep the tootsies of their hunting dogs from irritating contact with the burning soil of desert-like Minnesota and North Dakota.

Yes, the dogs are actually wearing boots, sandals, feet mufflers, or anything you want to call them. The soil is so hot the dogs refuse to work. The only way to make them work is to boot them and place a semi-directoire effect along the shins to prevent the brittle-like stubble from keeping the mind of the canine off the game.

C. R. Rust, manager of the Stone-Ordean-Wells Co., was one of the first hunters to enjoy the Salome sandal for his dog. Mr. Rust has but recently returned from a hunting trip north of Crookston. His dog refused to work properly. Two or three attempts convinced the hunters that the dog was suffering from the reverse of cold feet—namely, hot feet. It was then that Mr. Rust's inventive genius came to the fore, and the canine Salome was invented.

T. E. Blanche is another local hunter who employed the directoire split boot for his dog. The ground was so hot up around Grand Forks way that the dog employed by the party Mr. Blanche was with, refused to work. He flushed two or three coveys, sulked and acted as if he was walking over the scriptural hot coals.

The feet of the dog were examined and it was found that the hide was burned and lacerated. In wrapping up the fricassed feet of the bow-wow, the idea came that it would be a good plan to make some sort of boots—the Salome sandal again.

Mr. Rust and Mr. Blanche says that the long dry spell has rendered the ground so hot, and the stubble of the wheat so brittle, that it is almost impossible for a dog to hunt without some protection to his feet. Therefore, the boot has come into being.

Mr. Blanche says its use will be general unless rain changes the temperature of the soil and renders less brittle the wheast stubble.

MRS. RUSSELL SAGE GIVES AN ISLAND TO UNITED STATES

Oyster Bay, Sept. 9.—Constitution island, in the Hudson river off West Point, has been presented to the United States by Margaret Olivia Sage, widow of the late Russell Sage, and Miss Anna Bartlett Warner, to be added to the United States military reservation of West Point. President Roosevelt has accepted the gift.

MANGLED IN SEPARATOR.

Browerville, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bert Zech fell into the cylinder of a separator at John Czock's farm in Iona township, this, Todd county, and was so badly mangled that he died in a few hours. He climbed on top of the separator to adjust a part of the machinery as the machine started and, breaking through, came in contact with the revolving knives. The lower portions of his body were ground to a pulp, but the unfortunate man lived three hours after being brought here for treatment. A wife and five children survive.

DISCOURAGED; TAKES LIFE.

Sauk Rapids, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Despondent over having poor crops this season, Dan Johnson, a farmer living near Granite Ledge, in this, Benton county, hanged himself in his bedroom. He was 40, and has two brothers living in Minneapolis.

CUMMINS MEN ARE CONFIDENT

Assert They Will Elect Governor in Spite of Standpatters.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 9.—Adherents of Governor Cummins claim that during the night six legislators, who voted against him consented to vote for him, thus giving him seventy votes in the joint session at noon today. Seventy-seven are necessary to elect. "Standpatters" however, claim they have enough votes against him to maintain the deadlock.

If there is a deadlock vote, some standpatter will immediately move to adjourn, if the primary bill shall have been adopted. The Democrats will join in voting for adjournment and leave Iowa without a senator for the short term.

There is also a possibility that a sufficient number of standpatters may not attend the session, and in that event Governor Cummins will be elected. It is understood some of the standpat candidates whose elections are jeopardized by the split have been consulted to this end.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"I am glad to see," said the young man, "that the season for straw hats has moved forward to Sept. 15. In former years it was Sept. 1, but some autocrat of fashion has decreed that one may with perfect propriety be clothed in a straw hat and other essentials until the fifteenth day of this month. Of course, I wouldn't appear after that in anything but felt, but during these hot days I have a sense of being very well dressed and following the latest styles when those not in touch with the latest decrees look with commiseration on my straw lid."

"I think I shall wear mine all winter," said the disconsolate young woman.

"I wouldn't if I were you," advised the man as he eyed with apparent disfavor the bedraggled specimen of headgear with which she was adorned.

"I shouldn't either if I were you. All you have to do is go in and try on hats until you find one that doesn't wiggle too much when you raise your eyebrows and wrinkle your forehead and then pay $3 or $4 or maybe $5 or $6 and walk out. The matter is settled, but woman, poor woman. Woman who has no power of decision, woman who is like clay in the hands of the moulder of opinions, woman who wants a $25 hat when she can't afford to pay more than $7.50, woman who needs several hats, woman who can be induced to purchase atrocities which only by the cold, clear light of her best friends' eyes can she tell are not becoming, but who can be hypnotised into getting anything while at the milliner's, woman—"

"Well, of course," said the man, "it isn't the milliner's fault that woman is woman."

"No, nor is it woman's fault, and I think she deserves all the sympathy that can be doled out to her, and no woman anywhere should be deprived of the price of the hat that she wants. I am not blaming the milliners for realizing that woman is woman, but I wish I could wear my summer hat all winter."

"I'm sure you can't," said the man.

"And I know I can't," said the disconsolate young woman.

"Anyhow," said the man, "I think it is a very unnecessary trouble. You surely know what you want, don't you?"

"I haven't the remotest idea," said the woman. 'Sometimes I think I should like a very big hat with lots of green and blue and orange color on it, just toppling over with trimming, you know, and then again I think I should like a grape skin to fasten right on the crown of my head. Then sometimes I think I should—"

"Of course, if you don't know what you want," began the man with precision.

"I don't," said the woman, "and there isn't a woman in town who does. And when I think that I may live fifty years and have to decide, maybe, a hundred and fifty times more on what kind of hat I shall get, it seems to be that life is too bitter to stand, and that I shall move into the country where they wear nothing but sun bonnets and——"

"You don't think this straw hat looks funny so late in September, do you?" asked the young man who wasn't listening.

"No I don't," said the young woman. "You look so nice in a straw hat," she said with a gently admiring tone, and the young man adjusted his tie and shuffled his coat to a slightly more becoming angle.

SHEATH GOWN?

No—Much Discussed Style Not Fashionable.

New York, Sept. 9.—Corset strings ten yards long and short gloves are the two features of this season's styles that are actually established, according to Miss Elizabeth White, president of the Dressmakers' Protective association, who talked on new fashions to 300 dressmakers from all parts of the country at the opening session of the association's convention in Masonic Temple last night.

Miss White exhibited something like forty Paris gowns, all different, and when any one asked her which was the latest style, her invariable reply was: "They all are.

"There never was a season when the styles were so unsettled and changeable. In fact, a well dressed woman can wear anything this year except a sheath gown.

"The sheath gown is not stylish," she added.

"Only one characteristic prevails in all this season's styles. That is the extremely long sleeves, covering the hand. The short glove is the thing, of course. As to the new corset—well, they are adapted to making the figure resemble a telegraph pole. For that purpose they are extremely long and it takes ten yards of string to lace them properly.

"A slender woman can wear them. Stout women cannot entirely eliminate their curves—they must simply do the best they can."

Many new fabrics were shown on the models. Velvet and silk predominated and Miss White said those would be the principal fabrics used. Among the styles was one that looked like a princess, but really was made in two pieces. That was the kind Miss White herself wore.

ONE LONG SACRIFICE

Is Woman's Culinary Existence Says Writer.

A woman's culinary existence is one long vicarious sacrifice, says an exchange. Very few women care for food as food. When it stop themselves it quite singularly fails to interest them. Their function—I cannot honestly call it their pleasure—is to provide for masculine destination. "Really nice" women never seem to know what they are eating. Single women, living for themselves, so far as I can make out, do not eat at all. Many of next week, of them turn food reformer, so as to be able, if possible, to eat still less. When a married woman turns food reformer, depend upon it her married life is not a happy one.

Housekeeping is by far the most difficult of all the professions; and a woman who is a good housekeeper would, if she were a man, be a Carnegie. The distinctive tragedy of her situation is that while one may assume Mr. Carnegie to be interested in steel, women have no inherent interest in food, which is the pivot of their household work, and only apply themselves to its problems because they are obliged to. The really efficient mistress of a home has thus a moral claim to greatness above and beyond that of any masculine achievement.

SETTLES FOR SMALL SUM.

Suit for $5,000 Dismissed on Payment of $400 by Defendant.

An order was filed in district court this morning settling a personal injury suit brought by Erick Kangas against the Shenango Furnace company. The suit was for $5,000 and it is settled for $400.

Kangas brought the suit on behalf of his son, William Kangas, a boy 8 years of age. The boy had taken a fuse and some caps from an open box, in which the explosives had been allowed to remain by employes of the furnace company. The complaint charged that through the negligence of the employes, the boy was able to take the explosives, which he put into a fire, resulting in an explosion, which blew off his thumb and a part of his second finger.

Grass plums, 50 cents a basket.
Concord grapes, 25 cents a basket.
Yellow tomatoes, 50 cents a peck.
Bacon, 30 cents a pound.
Soup bones, 10 to 35 cents each.
Oysters, 60 cents a quart.
Grapes, and peaches, and squashes, and a few watermelons, onions, lettuce, and cauliflower, cucumbers, yellow tomatoes and plums, egg plant, radishes and bananas, oysters and chickens and hot red peppers are a few of the things which a well supplied market makes available. As everything is about the last to be had, the fruits seem to grow more luscious and desirable, and the gentle melancholy of the time when they are all gone, steals over one, tinging the pleasure of the moment, but making the peach in the hand doubly delightful.

Oysters in cans, reposing on beds of chopped ice, do not receive so very much attention for a crisp cold day only can make cocktails and stews bearable.

the EVENING STORY

A Woman's Way

By Larry Fralick.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

The girl stood on the threshold of life looking forward into its vast vistas through the gold-hued glasses of youth. She was not what would be called a pretty girl, but the gods had endowed her with the divine quality of imagination and ideality. To the unobserving her rather thin, pale and irregular features, surmounted by a wonderful shock of red hair, marked her as distinctly commonplace. The more observing and analytical who took time to look into her bright, restless, sparkling eyes paused and said: "There's something in that Graceland girl."

It remained for Frederic Walling Hapgood, a man of the world, connoisseur and dilettante, to discover the true worth and vital beauty which lay within her.

It happened at the Springs, where she was taken by her grandmother, with whom she lived—being an orphan, and who regarded Marie simply and wholly as one born to minister to her comfort and convenience. For the first time in her lonesome, narrow, provincial life the girl had an opportunity to see life as she had dreamed it. It was not supposed to be a pleasure trip for her—such, not at all. Grandma Graceland had heard that the Springs held wonderful curative properties for her rheumatism and straightway had hied herself hither—taking Marie along as a sort of necessary evil.

But Marie was not a servant in any sense of the word, and nobody would have resented an insinuation to that effect more than her aristocratic old grandmother, who treated her as such in their personal relations, but who would have flayed alive any person without the Graceland family who dared put a slight upon one of "the royal family." And so Marie plunged into the great world and saw it at close range—for the Springs was not exclusively a health resort. More people, perhaps, came for pleasure and recreation than for the curative properties of the waters.

Well, ultimately, Fred Hapgood, tired of all things and at the Springs for a rest and a change, met this curious damsel—and with the true scent of the thoroughbred detected the great things which lay hidden within her. Where others saw her irregular features he saw the essential vitality flashing from her eyes. Where others saw her pallid complexion he saw the seductive lines of her lithesome figure. Where others saw her shock of red hair he saw her ardent, imaginative, girlish soul. Her very ignorance and innocence attracted him and it pleased his humor to pay deft and scientific court to this budding bit of femininity.

To her it was as incense sent by the gods. Never had she had court paid her even by the callow youths of the village—she was not the type to attract the average youth and her nature was such as to repel rather than to gain admirers. But when this polished gentleman bowed over her hand and used all the arts of the man of the world she responded with an ardor which nearly carried him off his feet. It was a new experience to him as well as to her, and it interested him more than he supposed it possible to be interested in any woman affair—at his time of life and his stage of experience.

Being so unique an experience, he pursued it the more industriously, and it was not many days before the most ardent love scenes were being enacted in the quiet groves and dells about the Springs.

It was an epoch in her career when one moonlit evening he threw his arms about her and drew her to him with all his strength while his eyes looked down into hers and spoke volumes. Without hesitation she twined her arms about his neck and raised her scarlet lips to his. In the moment of that passionate kiss all her dreams, all her hopes, all the fancies of her imagination were realized—and she passed from girlhood to womanhood.

There were but a few days of this delirious joy for her, however, and then the old, old story was re-enacted. Hapgood was called back to the city on business. He went away—and faded from her life. There were a few letters, it is true, but of a most non-committal sort and growing more cold and informal on his part as they grew more infrequent.

At last she understood and then she realized that the great passion of her life had come to her and had passed by. She knew that while to her it had been the great thing of all her life, it had been to him but a holiday sport. She knew that she had been to him a mere pastime, and, in the pity of it, she knew that faith in mankind had passed from her life. Now even if the true knight came she could not respond. That which she had all her life wished for the most had eluded her and could never come again. It was a bitter thing, but she fought it out as only great and passionate natures can fight out the tragedies of life.

And so they went their several ways. And the iron entered deeply into her soul and she hungered and thirsted for revenge. For she learned that he had married a woman of great wealth and pursued a life of pleasant and luxurious ease. When the girl learned it she clinched her thin nervous fingers and swore within her soul that some day, somehow, somewhere, she would revenge herself upon him for shattering her ideals and ruining her hopes and her ideality.

For you see it meant more to her than it did to him. He had still his life an ease and pursued the even tenor of his way. The summer idyll, while most delightful was but an incident. To her it was the catastrophe of her life, the burial of her ideals, the end of her hopes. And she swore upon the altar of her ideals that some day she would make him pay the price for his treachery.

Time passed on and one beautiful fall some ten years later the girl came again to the springs. Time does wonderful things. Besides healing the crying hurt of her quivering heart, it had made a very different woman of her. The old grandmother had died a year after her first visit to the springs, and, marvel of marvels, had left her entire fortune to the insignificant girl who had cared for her so patiently for so many weary years. As possessor of this great fortune she had chosen to travel and to mix with the best and greatest of the earth. From a callow girl she became one of the wisest and most attractive women of the earth. Beyond count were the hearts laid at her feet—but she would have none of them. Her romance had had its day and died. And so she came back to the springs a most sought-for and self-poised woman of the world.

Now at this time, strange to say, Frederick Walling Hapgood also appeared at the springs this time, however, drawn there wholly for medicinal reasons. Through a series of reverses the great fortune of his wife had been swallowed up and Hapgood, untrained in any money-getting vocation, had been unable to support his wife in even decent comfort. The shame and humiliation had so preyed upon his mind and spirit that her health sickened and was making a last struggle to regain health sufficient to go in and make a fight to establish himself.

All this and much more did Marie learn during the first few days at the springs. And she laughed in triumph at the spectacle of this man in the very ashes of defeat. At last her revenge was before her and she settled down to enjoy it to the very last sip.

One day she met him, still bravely debonair and handsome, but in his eyes was the mark of the hunted and upon his features was the promise of death. And that night she thought long and prayerfully and her pillow was wet with tears for the first time in many years. On the following day she summoned her lawyer from the city and, despite his protests at her plans, sent him scurrying back with instructions of the most imperative over lawyer had. Presently again appeared Mr. Lawyer with information which disclosed the true inwardness of the Hapgoods' affairs. It then appeared that a sum of money—considerable, it is true, but very small in proportion to the amount involved—would rescue the fortune of Mrs. Hapgood and start them again along the lines of prosperity.

"Go and pay it!" she commanded. "And be certain that no human being except we two knows how it was paid."

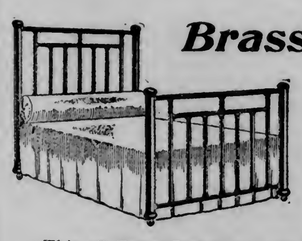

"But it will cost half your fortune," exclaimed the lawyer, aghast.

"You heard my orders," replied the girl wearily. "Good night."

And this finally was her revenge. She had the somber joy of watching the color return to his cheek—which it did when the terrible financial strain was removed, and when he returned to his wife, buoyant and happy, she gave him her hand and wished him Godspeed in all he desired.

She sent him back to the woman he had married never knowing the girl whom he had taught to love him and who loved him still, despite his desertion, had saved him.

This was her revenge.

WANTS COIN FOR JOLTING

Mrs. Bodin Says She Was Injured by Bumping Over Switch.

Case Against Duluth Brewing Company Submitted to Court.

Claiming that the jar of a street car passing a cross-switch, from one track to another on Piedmont avenue, Aug. 20, 1907, injured her so severely that she has been unable to do her housework, and has been under medical treatment since, Mrs. Hilda Bodin is suing the Duluth Street railway company for $6,000 damages, and $260 special damages, in district court.

The case is being heard with a jury, before Judge Dibell, and will probably take up the entire session today. Mrs. Bodin went on the stand this morning and testified that she was so severely jarred in passing over the cross-switch that she was injured internally, and has been under medical treatment since. The Street Railway company was repairing the tracks on Piedmont avenue at the time of the accident, and the Third street cars were forced to use one track on the avenue, crossing over the cross-switch to get on the proper track. One of the physicians, who attended Mrs. Bodin was also on the stand at the morning session.

In Judge Cant's court this morning, all evidence was submitted in the case of Keitel vs. Duluth Brewing & Malting company, which was taken up yesterday before the court. The case grows out of a contract Keitel & Co. made to sell malt for the Duluth concern. Keitel & Co. claim that the contract was repudiated without cause and brought suit for $12,725.35. The Duluth Brewing & Malting company claims underhanded dealings on the part of Keitel & Co. and a counter claim for $10,238.38 was included in the answer.

After all evidence was in, Judge Ensign this morning dismissed the suit of the Grand Marais Mercantile company against John McAlpine, which was being heard before a jury. The suit was on a claim for $517.55, transferred to the Grand Marais company by Clarence H. Taylor. It was claimed that but $153.39 had been paid, and the suit was for $364.15. The defense moved for a dismissal of the case and it was granted, with a stay of thirty days.

DENSE SMOKE ON THE LAKES

Lake Captain Says He Never Saw Conditions So Bad.

"I never saw as much smoke on the Great Lakes as at present," declared a well known lake captain, who arrived in port today. "From Port Huron, Mich., to the Head of the Lakes we were continually sailing in smoke except for a stretch of water off Eagle Harbor, Mich. Along Lake Huron the smoke is especially dense, due, of course, to heavy fires in Michigan, and the same is true of the water between the Copper country and here. No, I don't think I ever saw so much smoke on the lakes before."

KHORASSAN KNIGHTS BUSY

New Comers are Escorted Across the Hot Sands.

Thirty-two Tyros were escorted across the desert last evening by the Knights of Khorassan, a branch of the Knights of Pythias, at a ceremonial session held in the old Masonic Temple.

About 300 knights participated in the exercises, many of the range towns being represented in the caravan which left the Elks' hall at 7 o'clock for the temple.

After the Tyros had been duly initiated, and their feet had been properly burned by the hot sands, an elaborate banquet was served. This came off about midnight.

At the conclusion of the exercises, a collection for the fire sufferers was taken up and $31.75 was turned over to the relief committee today.

Today the Knights of Pythias are enjoying themselves at Lester Park, this being the occasion of the regular annual convention for the district comprising the lodges of Northeastern Minnesota, and this evening they will see drills by the degree team of North Star lodge, Knights of Pythias.

The Dramatic Order of Knights of Khorassan bears the same relation to the Knights of Pythias as the Shrine does to the Masonic order.

JUDGMENT IS SET ASIDE

Higher Court Throws Out Verdict of $8,000 for William Tobin.

The United States circuit court of appeals, at St. Louis, has reversed the judgment of the circuit court of this district in the case of William J. Tobin against the Republic Iron & Steel company. The lower court gave Tobin a judgment of $8,000 for injuries he suffered while in the employ of the Steel company. This judgment is set aside by the higher court.

S. A. Anderson of St. Paul represented Mr. Tobin, and Washburn, Bally & Mitchell of this city represented the company.

HIGH PRICE PAID.

C. C. Cokefair Gets $100 a Front Foot for Property.

Mrs. A. M. Miller paid very nearly $100 per front foot for 200 feet on Second street, and 140 feet on Twenty-third avenue east, in a deal closed yesterday, whereby she takes over C. C. Cokefair's property there for $20,000.

This is said to be the highest price paid yet for East end residence property, the previous high price having been paid by J. B. Cotton for the ground for his new home. He is said to have paid about $80 a front foot.

Mrs. Miller will erect a handsome residence on her new property.

BRYAN IN STATE PLEA

presses the party's position at this time.

"Our Constitution expressly reserves to the states and to the people respectively, all powers not delegated to the Federal government, and only by respecting this division of powers can we hope to keep the government within the reach of the people and responsive to the will of the people. Because in all disputes as to the relative spheres of the nation and the states, the final decision rests with the federal courts, the tendency is naturally toward centralization, and greater care is required to preserve the reserved rights of the states than to maintain the authority of the general government."

Prefer Federal Courts.

"In recent years another force has been exerting an increasing influence in extending the authority of the central government. I refer to the great corporations. They prefer the federal courts to the state courts, and employ every possible device to drag litigants before United States judges. They also prefer congressional regulation to state regulation, and those interested in large corporations have for years been seeking federal incorporation. The Democratic party will resist every attempt to obliterate state lines, whether the attempt is made through legislation or through judicial interpretation. Amendment of the organic law by judicial interpretation would be destructive of Constitutional government; our Constitution can be amended by the people in accordance with the terms of the document itself, and no group of men, however honorable or high-minded, can usurp this power without violating the fundamental principles of our government.

"It has been suggested that the rights of the states can lapse through non-use, and that congress is justified in usurping the authority of the state if the state fails to make proper use of it. While this doctrine has been advanced in the pretended interest of the people, it is as insidious and as dangerous an assault as has ever been made on our Constitutional form of government. The people of the state can act with more promptness than the people of the nation, and if they fail to act, it must be assumed that the people of the state prefer inaction.

Relief of Trusts.

"The real purpose that those have in view who complain of the inaction of the state, is not more strict regulation of corporations, but the relief of corporations from state regulation.

"The Democratic party favors the full exercise of the powers of the government for the protection of the rights of the people—each government to act within its constitutional sphere. Our platform demands that federal legislation be added to, not substituted for, state legislation.

The Democratic party would distinguish between those railroad owners, directors and managers who, recognizing their obligation to the public, earn their salaries by conscientious devotion to the work entrusted to them, and those unscrupulous Napoleons of finance, who used railroads as mere pawns in a great gambling game, without regard to the rights of employes or to the interests of the patrons.

"It is in the interest of honest railroading and legitimate investment that the Democratic party seeks to ascertain the present value of the railroad properties and to prevent for the future the watering of stock and the issue of fictitious capitalization; and it is in the interest of both the railroads and the public that it seeks only such reductions in transportation rates as can be made without wage reduction, without deterioration in the service and without injustice to legitimate investments.

Act Within Powers.

"The Democratic party insists that in the matter of regulation of railroads both the state governments and the Federal government shall act up to, and yet within, their powers; for nothing else will restore the confidence and good will that ought to exist between the railroads and the people. In dealing with manufacturing and trading corporations the Democratic party draws a distinction between these corporations—and they constitute the great majority of all the manufacturing and trading corporations—which are engaged in a legitimate effort to supply what the consumers need, and the very few corporations which are seeking by conscienceless methods to take advantage of the public on the one hand, while on the other hand they bankrupt competitors, oppress the producers of raw materials and deal arbitrarily with their employes. It endeavors to protect the innocent corporations by visiting punishment upon those corporations which are guilty of infractions of the moral and the statute law. Here, too, our platform is specific and no one can use its language to frighten any business man, whose transactions are fair and whose income is honestly earned."

by Mr. Gompers in an editorial published in the Federationist for Febuary, 1908, in which he characterized the injunction as an invasion of the liberty of the press and of the right of free speech and further said it would be impossible to comply with all of its terms. Replying to this charge Mr. Gompers, Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Morrison unite in saying:

Only Fair Criticism.

"Answering the seventeenth paragraph of the petition, this respondent says that the editorial referred to is only to be understood properly by being read in its entirety. He denies that said editorial constituted in any respect contempt of court. On the contrary, he says it contained only such fair and temperate criticism as he had a right to indulge in, as a citizen of the conduct of one of the officers of government, and that the order and decree herein passed, were never properly intended to take away from him his rights as an American citizen, but only intended to prevent the doing of acts styled unlawful and pursuant to a supposed unlawful conspiracy to injure. That there never existed any conspiracy, combination, agreement or understanding which resulted in any degree in bringing about the publication of said editorial, but that the passing of the decree raised a new issue, to-wit, whether the court had acted within or without the limits prescribed by justice; that this issue, which was one only incidentally relating to the pending case, but which might have been raised by a case between entirely different parties quite as well, was the only issue discussed by him.

"From his viewpoint, he believed the action of the court erroneous, not because the Buck Stove and Range company or the American Federation of Labor were the parties involved, but because the underlying principles of the decision were to be found in an erroneous conception of a right, that in said editorial, therefore, the mention of the Buck Stove & Range company's name was merely an incident, and not the object of the debate.

Waxes Sarcastic.

"Further answering said paragraph, this respondent says he admits the publication of the statement referred to as being on pages 114 and 115 of the Federationist, of February; that he believes the statement of law therein contained to be correct; that the same was published in good faith and for the better understanding of the officials of the American Federation of Labor, who were entitled to know as definitely as they might, to what extent they were affected by the order of court, passed in the District of Columbia; that he denies the imputation of motives indulged in by the petitioner with relation thereto."

Mr. Gompers grows facetious in replying to the charge that he favored the boycott ten years ago, saying that not being a clairvoyant he could not then have known of the decision in this case, and arguing that no expression used by him at that time can be construed as in contempt of so recent a decision as the one involved.

Responding to a specific charge against himself, Mr. Mitchell says:

"He admits that, Jan. 15, 1908, he was in the chair as presiding officer of the nineteenth annual convention of the United Mine Workers of America in Minneapolis. By reference to the minutes of the proceedings held at that time, he finds that the resolution referred to in said paragraph was submitted and carried by the convention; that, having no recollection whatever as to the matter, he can neither admit nor deny that he was presiding at the time said resolution was submitted; that he took no active part whatever in causing the matter of the boycott of the petitioner to be submitted to the convention, and, until the matter was brought to his attention by the filing of the petition, did not know the subject had been acted on by the convention." The request for a jury trial is expressed as follows:

Request for Jury.

"Further answering, this respondent says that several issues of fact arise herein as to the doing or not doing of certain acts, as to the motive and intent with which such acts were performed, and as to whether the same were committed, if committed at all, in violation of the order or decree of this court; that such actions are of a nature properly to be inquired into by a jury, involving, as they do, the question of a criminal or quasi-criminal intent, as to which the unwritten law of this country and England recognizes a jury representing the sense of the body of the community as superior to the opinion of a judge selected because of his special qualifications as a lawyer; therefore issues should be framed to be passed upon by a jury.

"Wherefore, this respondent prays that if the judge passing upon the application now pending shall be of the opinion that the charges made in petitioner's petition have not been fully sworn away by this answer, and the respondent therefore discharged, issues may be framed and a jury impanelled to try the same; otherwise that the petitioner be dismissed."

Grand Forkes, Judge Alton B. Parker, who opens the campaign in the East, expressed the hope of coming to North Dakota, although at the time not certain that he would be able to get this far West. He will be among the speakers to visit the Twin Cities, however, and it is thought that at the time he will be able to come to the Flickertail state.

Are Very Hopeful.

The appearance of W. J. Bryan here last week has encouraged the Democrats of the state a great deal, and they will enter into the campaign with enthusiasm. They have hopes of electing their entire state ticket, being confident that Governor Burke will at least be re-elected as chief executive of the state. It is claimed that Bryan succeeded in changing many hundreds of votes by his two addresses, delivered at Fargo and Grand Forks, and with a continuation of addresses by prominent Democrats of the country it is hoped that the state, always Republican, can be switched to the Democratic column this year.

The central committees of both parties have organized, adopting platforms on which the campaign will be made. One feature of the Republican platform which is being attacked heavily by the Democrats is that relating to a guaranty of bank deposits. The plank in question reads that in case a postal savings system that will keep the money at home cannot be devised, the party was in favor of a guaranty law. The Democrats claim this is a refutation of the national platform and will use it during the campaign. In the adoption of this plank by the committee at Bismarck. National Committeeman Kennedy was beaten by the insurgent Republicans, who were in control.

"Harmony Meetings."

The Republican "harmony meetings" are still being held at intervals in different sections of the state, three districts having experienced such sessions up to the present time. Grand Forks, Bismarck and Jamestown have entertained such gatherings, the last two being quite successful, putting more hope into the hearts of the Republican leaders than did the first meeting in Grand Forks, which proved to be a failure. The Jamestown gathering was exceptionally well attended, and considering the fact that this has been a hotbed of insurgentism, the plan of harmony was worked through very peacefully and there is promise of united work there.

One of the rather interesting and important results of the state central committee is the dissolution of the political partnership which has heretofore existed between Congressman A. J. Gronna and Alexander McKenzie. The parting of these two came as a result of Mr. Gronna acting with the insurgents in the drawing up of the platform. The platform committee was composed of Messrs. Kennedy, Packard, Gronna, Hanna and Stockwell, which, according to the old way of feeling, would give the stalwarts control of the committee. When it came to the vote on several planks, Gronna and Hanna acted with the insurgents, thus putting Gronna and McKenzie on the outs. They shortly afterward had a meeting, at which the congressman is said to have given McKenzie to understand that he, Gronna, was paddling his own canoe, and proposed doing so forevermore. Gronna is now with the insurgents, if the conversation between him and McKenzie can be relied upon as being conclusive as to how he feels about party differences.

At Outs With McKenzie.

Just after Gronna and McKenzie had their trouble, C. A. Johnson, the Republican candidate for governor, is said to have given the big Republican boss something to think about. When Johnson came into the field as a candidate for governor, it was claimed that he was a McKenzie man. However, they are now on the outs. It all came as a result of McKenzie forcing James Johnson, of Minot, as chairman of the committee, C. A. Johnson telling McKenzie a little later that with a Johnson running for governor, another Johnson running for United States senator, and a third Johnson as chairman of the state committee, the name Johnson would soon be a joke.

LYCEUM—Chauncey Olcott in "Ragged Robin."

CHAUNCY OLCOTT.

Duluth Favorite Pleases Big Audience in His New Play.

Chauncey Olcott never fails to win the appreciation of Duluth theatergoers and after his appearance last evening in "Ragged Robin" he has become, if possible, more strongly entrenched in their hearts than ever.

The pretty little Irish drama was most favorably received last evening by a large audience, and Mr. Olcott's efforts in the impersonation of the wandering "Ragged Robin," won many rounds of applause and repeated encores, to which, between the second and third acts, he responded with a short speech. His curtain talk did not satisfy, and he was called upon to sing "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Day Dreams."

The play, though filled with beautiful scenic effects, is in itself a simple one, a delightful little love story, interwoven with bits of folk and fairy lore for which the Emerald Isle is noted. It has a touch of Maud Adams' "Do you believe in fairies?" that is most charming. On May 16, if man drinks before a maid from the fairy well they will wed. That is the will of the good little people. Robin drank and so did Margaret, an Irish country beauty. In the closing scene, after traveling the uneven highway of lovers, Margaret, now the widow of a man she had been forced to marry by her ambitious father, and the wanderer, are reunited and the curtain drops while he sings the closing strains of "Sweet Girl of My Dreams."

There is a wealth of picturesque stage setting throughout the play, which makes it most attractive. But most of all are the hearts of the audience reached by many sweet simple songs, songs by Mr. Olcott.

Florence Lester, as Margaret, the Irish sweetheart of the "Robin," acts her role most creditably. Lillian Claire, the wilful and spoiled younger sister, is amusingly realistic. Charles F. McCarthy plays well the role of Lanty Lanigan, and his brogue and bursts of Irish wit cause much laughter. Gerome Edwards, the successful yet unloved suitor, was acceptable. The play will be repeated tonight and tomorrow.

CORRALLED IN A CAVE

Are Two Murderers, According to Amateur Detective's Letter.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 9.—L. Hitt, evidently an amateur detective, in a letter received by Chief of Police Reagan from Rossville, Ga., writes that he has Harold Lamble corralled in a cave near that place. He says that before he turns over the man wanted here for the murder of Stephen A. Driesbach he would like to be advised if there is any possibility of Governor Willson increasing the reward of $500 offered. He says he chased Lamble into the cave with another man, wanted for a murder committed about eight months ago, last week, and that there isn't a possible chance for them to get away.

Driesbach was murdered on the morning of Aug. 16.

One annoying feature of the case is that the police at Macon, Ga., Lamble's home, have disregarded all requests for information concerning the suspect.

WEST END

WEST ENDER SAVES TWO

Conductor O'Brien Rescues Wife and Another Woman From Fire.

Dashes Into Burning Car to Get His Passengers.

Mrs. J. H. O'Brien of Twenty-fifth avenue west, was a passenger in the Northern Pacific sleeping car, which burned at Staples early Tuesday morning, and owes her life to the bravery of her husband, Conductor J. H. O'Brien, who rushed through the smoke and fire to save the lives of his passengers.

Conductor O'Brien rescued his wife and another woman and made a desperate attempt to reach Mrs. Joseph Eitts of Lisbon, N. D., who lost her life from suffocation in the burning car.

Knowing his wife was sleeping in the car, Mr. O'Brien's first thought was of her safety and he carried her from the burning car in her night clothes. She left her clothing and jewelry in her berth.

As soon as he had brought Mrs. O'Brien to fresh air and to safety, the conductor rushed back into the sleeper again to save other occupants.

Grasping a woman who was screaming with fright and beseeching some one to save her, Conductor O'Brien started to grope his way back with her. But the woman in her great fright seemed to have lost her reason and clung desperately to the curtains of her berth.

She held on so tightly that her deliverer was obliged to wrench away the curtains by sheer force before he could carry her out.

The cutain incident delayed Mr. O'Brien and gave the fire a chance to make further progress so that when he sought to re-enter the car to get Mrs. Eitts, he was driven back by the intense smoke. Mrs. Eitts was suffocated in her berth.

It is not known how the fire started, but it is thought to have originated from a defective lamp.

REPUBLICANS HAVE RALLY.

West End Club Hears Candidate Discuss Issues of Campaign.

Members of the West End Republican club gathered in Sloan's hall last evening to hear a number of candidates for nomination at the approaching primaries discuss the different phases of the campaign. The hall was well filled and the talks weer listened to with great interest.

Hugh McClearn discussed national issues and Richard P. Grant spoke of the unequal representation that is given the northern part of the state, and declared the gross earnings tax on railroads unfair to Duluth. A. G. McKnight spoke on "Jacobson."

Other speakers were Anton Borgen, C. R. Hood, J. W. Cummings, Capt. J. R. Randall, O. N. Lundberg, C. E. Adams, J. B. Middlecoff, J. J. Moe, Peter Olson and Alex Kennedy. George M. Ensen, president of the club presided.

READY FOR DEDICATION.

Members of Norwegian-Danish M. E. Church Prepare for Event.

Members of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church are making great preparations for the dedication of the handsome new brick and stone church at Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, next Sunday.

Rev. H. K. Madsen, the pastor is hard at work upon the program for the occasion, which is to be elaborate. If he can be here, Dr. Forbes of Philadelphia, but formerly of Duluth, will deliver the principal sermon.

Prominent clergymen in the Norwegian-Danish M. E. faith in the Northwest will be present, as well as those from the English speaking and Swedish churches.

The church was practically completed several weeks ago, but it was decided to postpone the dedication until the main auditorium was in readiness. Since the building was finished, services have been held in the basement.

West End Shortrails.

Elof Gergholm is recovering from an operation at St. Luke's hospital.

Leo Isrelson and Jens Johnson have gone to Canada on a hunting trip.

Mayme Owen of Underwood, Minn., is the guest of Mrs. H. P. Bjorge.

Miss Delia Duclos of West Fourth street has gone to Chicago to visit her brother.

The Ladies' Aid society of Zion Norwegian Lutheran church is meeting this afternoon with Mrs. H. Stepness of Twenty-third avenue west.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Second Presbyterian church will give a hayrack ride to Smithville Friday evening.

Twenty-five members of the Catholic Order of Foresters gave a pleasant surprise party last evening for Mrs. Mary Laskowski, who is a prominent member of the organization. Games and music furnished entertainment for the evening and dainty refreshments were served.

The monthly congregational meeting at Zion Norwegian Lutheran church will take place tomorrow evening.

Members of the Sunday school of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church pleasantly surprised the superintendent, C. A. Lindau, last evening. He was escorted in triumph to the church parlors, where a pleasant evening was passed. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Le Roy Hood of West First street has returned from a visit on the range.

How to Get Strong.

P. J. Daly of 1247 West Congress street, Chicago, tells of a way to become strong. He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitter, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, Insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50 cents.

PUPILS SMOKE IN DEFIANCE

Greek Letter Fraternity Boys Rebel Against Chicago School Board.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—With the opening of the public schools, the school boards crusade against Greek letter socities in the high schools met with spectacular defiance. Lounging in front of "chapter houses," and smoking pipes in full view of passing teachers, is the method adopted by the students of the Hyde Park school, who belong to secret societies. Others showed their hostility by refusing to register. A protective association, embracing the fraternities and societies in the high and preparatory schools of the city, has been formed, with M. L. Richards of Omicron Kappa Pi, president.

CHASED BY A MOOSE.

Fred Krouse Has Exciting Experience Near Kelsey.

Kelsey, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Krause had an exciting experience Labor day, when he was chased and treed by a big bull moose, while on his way from State ditch No. 53. He regretted he had no weopon, as he believed he would have been breaking no law in defending himself when the huge animal pursued him through the woods, compelling him to seek refuge in a handy tree.

Mr. Krause, after spending about an hour in the tree, descended in safety and regaled his friends with a thrilling account of his adventure.

Mrs. Malek, wife of the general manager of the Cotton Lumber company, left on a trip to Superior, Wis., Tuesday.

J. McKay is getting through with ditching and fixing up in town, and has added new pictures at the postoffice.

Ole Monk was in town Monday, with August Hay. He loaded up with supplies and returned the same day.

W. L. Channer, I. N. Yoakum and George Baker, supervisors, are extending old roads, and making new ones with a force of men.

Miss Elizabeth Kellas opened school No. 1, Miss Mary Bertossa, school No. 2, and Miss Hilma Berg, school No. 3.

Miss Hattie McKay, Mrs. O'Hara, Mrs. Ederstrom and a party of other ladies, were entertained by Mrs. H. Person, at the latter's home, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Filiatrault returned home with her family, after a ten days' outing. They enjoyed themselves immensely.

I. N. Yoakum drove into town over the new road on Monday.

C. J. Keenan, American express agent, is off on a sick leave.

B. W. Forsell was in town Tuesday, on his way home to Duluth.

Introducing the Approved Styles In New Suits and Millinery

Every day sees something new—Something more beautiful added to our already extensive assortments of new Fall Suits and Millinery. The advance guard gives promise of an Autumn display which will be without equal in breadth and beauty.

THE NEW SUITS

are broadly representative of the best ideas of the season. The showing is comprehensive and includes everything from the conservative to the extreme, from the inexpensive to the elaborate.

Count confidently on this store as headquarters for Ladies,' Misses' and Junior Tailored Suits—for Separate Coats, Skirts, Waists, in fact, for everything new in Ladies' Ready-to-wear apparel. You'll be delighted with the new models.

SPECIAL SUIT VALUES FOR THURSDAY

At $17.50 We are showing several very pretty models in Cheviot, Broadcloth and Fancy Woolen Suitings. The Jackets are the new semi-fitting—36 inches in length, lined with satin. The Skirts are full gored, button trimmed, generous in cut, and perfect in fit. We ask you to compare these garments with anything shown in Duluth at similar figures.

At $25.00 New jaunty models in Ladies' Suits, there is a large assortment at this price—not one or two models—but at least 15 to select from, including plain tailored garments in fitted or semi-fitted styles, and a number of braid or satin edged and trimmed garments; others with button trimmings and fancy patch pockets. These garments are well lined and perfectly tailored; made of all-wool Cheviots, Broadcloths and Worsteds, and are positively the best values we have ever shown at this price.

At $37.50 Strictly high grade garments, made of the finest all-wool materials, made up in 36 to 40-inch coat lengths. Some are perfectly plain tailored, having no trimmings and deriving their beauty from the perfection of materials and tailoring alone; while others have slashed coats, satin bands and braid trimmings in all this season's new shades, as well as the staple colors.

JUNIOR AND MISSES' SUITS

We are showing a large, complete stock of Misses' and Junior Suits—not small ladies' size, but suits made especially for the young miss, and suitable for all occasions, street, school or general utility. The jackets are in the semi-fitted style—many of them trimmed with tailored strappings, satin or braid trimmings. The skirts are in the pleated or gored models, many of them having fold trimmings. The same care has been taken in the tailoring, fitting and general make-up of these little suits, as in our ladies' high-grade garments; from—

An Ounce of Gold Given Away

For Every Ounce of Adulteration Found In

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

It has been tested thousands of times by the world's most eminent chemists. The decision has always been the same—"Absolutely pure and unadulterated." For forty-eight years the best known doctors have prescribed it. As a tonic it is better than all the combinations of drugs that could be compounded. It is not only a stimulant—it is a medicinal food, and is recognized as such by physicians. A leading New York doctor said, "Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a form of liquid food already digested." A bottle in the house will save suffering, perhaps life itself.

GUARANTEE.

"We guarantee that the most sensitive stomach will retain Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey when it will retain no other stimulant or nourishment."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is the true elixir of life. It aids digestion, stimulates the blood, invigorates the brain, builds nerve tissue, tones up the heart and prolongs life.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is sold throughout the world by druggists, grocers and dealers, or shipped direct for $1.00 a large bottle.

If in need of advice, write Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Rochester, New York, stating your case fully. Our doctors will send you advice free, together with a handsome illustrated medical booklet, containing some of the many thousands of gratifying letters received from men and women in all walks of life, both old and young, who have been cured and benefited by the use of the world's greatest medicine. Beware of imitations and substitutes offered by unreliable dealers who tell you they are "just as good as" Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Insist on the genuine. It will cure you.

STREET CAR TO PROCTOR

Council Appoints Committee to See About Railway Extension.

Will Act in Conjunction With Committee From Proctor.

At the meeting of the common council last evening, Mayor Haven was authorized to appoint a committee to act with a similar committee from Proctor, in trying to secure an extension of the street railway line to the hilltop.

The two committees will wait upon the management of the traction company, and see what can be done in the way of an extension. The proposed route runs from the Third street line at the intersection of Fifty-seventh avenue west to Bay View Heights and Proctor. City Engineer McGilvray has made a survey of the route, and finds that the grade at its steepest is 8.8 per cent, which is low enough to allow the operation of street cars.

The need of a line such as is proposed is easily evident, especially so in view of the fact that the steel plant will greatly increase the population in that section of the city, and increase the travel between the points named.

It is believed the line would be a paying one almost from the start, for it would quickly result in the whole route being settled up. It is so difficult to get to and from the top of the hill above West Duluth that living at Bay View Heights or Proctor is a serious handicap, if a person has daily business in the city. Every effort will be made to prevail upon the street car company to build the desired extension, and it is hoped work will be started on it next spring. Of course, the improvement would be quite an expense, but it is believed results would fully justify the construction of the line.

President Getchell appointed Aldermen Foubister, Kennedy and Filiatrault as members of the council committee.

They Take the Kinks Out.

"I have used Dr. King's New Life Pills for many years, with increasing satisfaction. They take the kinks out of stomach, liver and bowels, without fuss or friction," says N. H. Brown of Pittsfield, Vt. Guaranteed satisfactory at all drug stores, 25 cents.

PRAISE FOR THE COUNTY

W. E. Culkin Says Exhibit Impressed Minnesota People.

Suggests That Flower Exhibit be Included Next Year.

"The stereotyped bigger and better than ever" describes the St. Louis county exhibit at the Minnesota state fair about as aptly as any phrase that might be applied to it," said W. E. Culkin, who assisted in exploiting the beauties and advantages of St. Louis county through three half-hour speeches every day at the St. Louis county exhibit at Hamline. "St. Louis county outdid itself and the agricultural committee of the Commercial club, which took great pains to gather together an exhibit, which would adequately reflect the agricultural possibilities of St. Louis county, deserves full credit for the success attained.

"The exhibit attracted the attention of people from all over the state. The building, in which we were housed, held about 250 people and it was crowded during every hour of the fair. The descriptive talk was given respectful attention and Southern Minnesota people, who think of Northern Minnesota as impenetrable forest and barren waste were properly impressed. St. Louis county has had exhibits at state fairs before, but never one like this year, and I hope it will be even better at future fairs.

"All of Northeastern Minnesota was well represented. Not only St. Louis county, but Itasca, Aitkin and Pine counties had creditable exhibits, consisting of grains of all kinds, grasses, vegetables and fruits. St. Louis county cauliflower attracted special attention on account of its size and excellence of quality. Secretary Eva of the Commercial club, and Mr. Hostetter were untiring in their efforts to show the visitors everything and their conduct of the exhibit was commendable.

"Mr. Josten's miniature farm, which has been seen at the Commercial club, attracted much attention, especially from the young people. It was a creditable piece of work and farmers saw in it, a miniature reproduction of their homes.

"A number of St. Louis county people assisted those in charge of the exhibit and lightened their burden considerably. C. P. Craig, Mr. Hancke of Eveleth and Mr. Arnold and his assistants from the Iron Range offices rendered invaluable aid. Prof. Dwyer of Grand Rapids also assisted us considerably.

"I would like to see in the exhibit next year a display of flowers from St. Louis county gardens. The women's clubs might take up the proposition and provide the exhibit, which I am sure, would reflect credit on the county. We grow beautiful flowers here and since we let the people and judge of our progress in practical farming and gardening, let us as well show them that the artistic side is not entirely lost in us."

A Paying Investment.

Mr. John White of 38 Highland avenue, Houlton, Me., says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

PACT OF SUICIDE, DECLARES WOMAN

She Tells Coroner Nerve Failed, But Man Killed Himself.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 9.—Dr. Frederick Rustin's death was the result of a suicide compact with Mrs. Rice, who has been held in custody five days. This is the crux of the statement by Mrs. Rice to the Omaha police, and repeated before the coroner's jury. According to it Dr. Rustin and Mrs. Rice agreed to die together. Dr. Rustin went home to carry out his portion of the compact, and did so. Mrs. Rice's nerve failed her, and at the last minute she four times during the night she telephoned Dr. Rustin's home to tell him of her decision, but during those hours the man was sitting outside his home on thet porch and did not receive the message.

Mrs. Rice purchased a bottle of laudanum and one of morphine, with which to carry out her part of the pact.

GREAT WEALTH UNCOVERED.

Strike in Montana Gold Mine Shows Immense Riches.

Helena, Mont., Sept. 9.—After having yielded $4,000,000 in gold only to be tied up for a number of years in litigation, Whitlatch Union mine, four miles south of Helena, is the scene of perhaps the richest strike in the history of Montana, the latest discovery showing ore 80 per cent pure. This is at the rate of more than $333,333 per ton. The paystreak is about six inches thick, but its extent has not been determined. The property is being operated by two Helena miners named Malben and Reading, under a lease from the Spring Hill company, which recently bought it from a group of Milwaukee investors. The strike was made at a depth of 300 feet. The mine has been producing $100 ore for several months, and a fortune for the leasers seems assured, as well as for the owners proper, who get a royalty on the returns.

THROUGH RATES DEMANDED.

Commerce Commission Lays Down Law to Lumbermen.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The interstate commerce commission yesterday further modified a previous order in the case of the Pacific coast lumber manufacturers and other similar organizations against the Northern Pacific and nineteen other railroad companies. The order points out that the defendants have failed and neglected to voluntarily establish a thorough rate for the transportation of forest products between certain points, and directs that the defendants, not later than Oct. 15, establish and maintain, for two years, through rates through Portland, Or., over their roads for the transportation of various lumber products specified from all points in Washington on the line of the Northern Pacific, as far north as Seattle, and not east of Palmer, Wash., excluding, however, points south and east of Seattle having rail connections with Seattle officially by junction points north of that city to Salt Lake City and Ogden, Utah, and to all other points in Utah, taking Salt Lake City rates on shipments of forest products from Portland.

COMMITTED SUICIDE

On Account of Anti-Betting Law in New York.

New York, Sept. 9.—Believed to be a suicide on account of the anti-betting law which went into effect here recently, Robin Goldberg, long a Sheepshead Bay business man, was found dead yesterday. His body was suspended by a clothes line from a beam in the cellar of his house. Goldberg had built up a considerable dry goods business at Sheepshead Bay, enjoying not a little patronage from the racing stables and their contingents, but with the passage of the new race track law, it quickly dwindled away and at length he went to the wall.

Republicans Say Standpatters Are Not Wanted in Illinois.

Only the Progressives Can Prevent a Stampede to Bryan.

Indianapolis, Sept. 9.—James P. Hornady, staff correspondent of the News, sends the following from Chicago: The choice of speakers to open the Republican campaign in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio is attracting attention. It is not satisfactory all around by a good deal. If the murmurings of discontent are not smothered in good time the choice may have to be revised. Leslie M. Shaw of Iowa, former secretary of the treasury, has been selected by the national committee to start things off for the Republicans of Illinois. He is billed to speak at the state convention of the party. The state Republican organization does not want him.

This is how he came to be selected for the first "heavy work." The Illinois state committee informed the chairman of the national committee that it would like to make the state convention a rousing affair, and suggested that the national organization pick a good speaker for the occasion. Mr. Hitchcock in due time announced that Mr. Shaw had been selected. The men at the head of the state organization threw up their hands in disgust. Within the last day or two there have been intimations that they may decide to get along without any man of note at the convention rather than have Shaw sound the "keynote" for them.

Shaw Not a Progressive.

Those party workers who are objecting to Shaw's opening the campaign have high regard for him as a man, but they do not feel that he is the sort of Republican to do the "keynoting" this year—not in the state of Illinois. It is pointed out that he is a standpatter of the old school; that he has consistently opposed the movement for tariff revision; that he was forced to leave the cabinet of President Roosevelt because he was not in harmony with the Roosevelt policies; that he is not representative of progressive Republicanism at all. Illinois has been a great Roosevelt state, and the local leaders can not see the wisdom of bringing in a known anti-Roosevelt man to open their state campaign.

The Republicans of the state, it is asserted, are for tariff reform, and are not in a mood to accept a standpat speech from Mr. Shaw or anybody else. No one seems to know how Hitchcock came to select Shaw for the opening speech of the campaign. "He is the last man we would have picked," said one of the Republican state leaders today. "He will do us more harm than good."

Sherman in Shaw's Class.

To make matters worse, James S. Sherman, the Republican nominee for vice president, is to be brought into Illinois the last of the month. It is pointed out that he is another of the old "standpat" crowd; that he, too, has consistently opposed not only tariff reform, but was of the coterie of Republicans in the national house of representatives that stood in the way of President Roosevelt's reform legislation. As has been announced, Sherman will go from Illinois into Indiana, and from Indiana into Ohio. He is really to start the campaign off in both Indiana and Ohio.

Republicans who do not like the arrangement say that if he follows his speech of acceptance, he will declare for a revision of the tariff upward. He is, of course, going out under the auspices of the national committee.

The third of the company of "standpatters" who is to help "start the ball rolling" is Speaker Cannon. He is to open the campaign in Indianapolis Sept. 24. The national committee did not make the assignment for him. That choice was made direct by the Indiana state committee.

Any sort of inquiry would probably show that the feeling that a mistake has been made in choosing these three distinguished "standpatters"—all men out of sympathy with the progressive Republicanism of Roosevelt—to open the campaign in three states is pretty general.

The Illinois Situation.

There is no question about the situation here in Illinois. The Roosevelt Republicans are almost in open revolt. "The effect of this sort of management will be to drive many of the Roosevelt Republicans to Bryan," said a man high up in the Republican party today. "Shaw is entirely out of sympathy with the progressive spirit of the times, so much so that his own state has laid him on the shelf. Every well-informed man knows that Cannon and Sherman are of the company of Republicans in public life which has in season and out of season stood in the way of reforms. To say the least, somebody has bungled in putting them forward to open the campaign in the close states of Illinois, Ohio and Indiana."

It turns out that New York city, after all, will, after the first of next month, be the chief headquarters of the Republican campaign management. Less than a month ago Mr. Hitchcock announced that three subdivisions had been created. The states west of Ohio were to form one subdivision, the management to be directed from Chicago; Ohio was to be a subdivision of itself with A. I. Vorys in charge, headquarters to be at Cincinnati; while the states east of Ohio were to form a third subdivision, with headquarters at New York.

Must Watch the East.

This arrangement has been abandoned. A. I. Vorys has been made Mr. Taft's chief of staff, whatever that may be, and Ohio has been attached to the New York headquarters. The fact that the original plans had been given up was developed when Henry G. Williams, the Ohio state chairman, came here for a conference with Mr. Hitchcock. Originally Mr. Hitchcock said he (Hitchcock) was to have nothing to do with the Ohio campaign.

The change in plans—the decision to make New York the headquarters in chief—naturally leads to the belief that the national chairman has reached the decision that the Eastern states, after all, need close attention. The campaign was started on the assumption that the fight was all in the West. New York, West Virginia, New Jersey, Deleware and Rhode Island were all regarded as safely for the Republican ticket. But conditions have changed. At least the national chairman and his advisory committee see the situation in a different light.

Too Much Scattering.

As a matter of fact, there have been developments since the original plans were made which put things in a different light. The West Virginia Republicans have split—have nominated two state tickets; the New York Republicans have engaged in a row over whether Governor Hughes shall be renominated, which threatens Republican success in the state; troubles have come up in Rhode Island which make the result there doubtful, and the New Jersey situation has become complicated. So the national chairman expects to spend most of his time in Ne York. The campaign is to be financed from the headquarters there, and this is an important feature of the work.

There are indications, too, that before the campaign is much older there will be a concentration of effort on the part of the Republicans. It is dawning on some of the men connected with the national organization that there is too much scattering in the present effort. The suggestion has already been made that if the Republicans are wise they will concentrate the fight in New York, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and two or three of the transmissouri states.

Here is the way one old Republican wheelhorse put it today: "The candidate that carries New York, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois will be the next president." Two weeks ago there was a great deal of talk around Republican headquarters about carrying Tennessee, Georgia and North Carolina for Taft. One does not hear it now. There is not to be any "rainbow chasing" in the South.

A SQUARE DEAL

The iron ranges ask a square deal from Duluth Republicans. The ranges cast about half the Republican vote of St. Louis county, yet Duluth has eight of a possible nine county offices. That's not good business or good politics for Duluth; and it's not square. Hibbing, metropolis of the ranges, has never had a county office. It asks Duluth Republicans for a square deal and a vote for Judge of Probate for

HOO HOOS MEET IN ANNUAL FETE

Lumbermen's Secret Society Assembles With Strict Regard for Nines.

New York, Sept. 9.—The Concatenated Order of Hoo Hoo, fraternal social lodge of the National Lumbermen's association began its seventeenth annual convention today with impressive ceremonies. The date and the hour for the beginning of the three-day conclave were chosen with an eye to mysticism, the ninth day of the ninth month, at 9:09 a. m.

When the gavel fell, 21,000 members of the order were recorded as being present, though the number actually in attendance was 1,500. The others were regarded as present under the rules of the order which require every member who cannot attend personally to send a letter or telegram stating his whereabouts and his reasons for being absent.

Upon adjournment the delegates embarked on the steamer Theodore Roosevelt for a trip to Michigan City and return. A banquet, to begin also at nine after nine is scheduled for this evening.

The feature of the gathering will be the "embalming" on Friday of Past Supreme Snark John S. Bonner of Houston, Tex., who by virtue of the ceremony will be given the degree of mummy and will become a great deal of talk around Republican headquarters about carrying Tennessee, Georgia and North Carolina for member of the ancient house. The election of officers will be Friday.

The Hoo Hoo organization with its motto: "Health, Happiness and Long Life," was founded by Bolling Arthur Johnson of Chicago, at Gurdon, Ark., in 1892. It has one fixed meeting a year and is governed by a supreme nine, consisting of the snark of the universe and eight other officers.

PLOT TO ROB THE SPALDING CAFE

Robert Mallory, Negro Waiter, Makes Confession in Court.

In municipal court yesterday, Robert Mallory, a negro waiter, employed in the Spalding cafe, confessed to what he said was a plot to rob the owners of the place. He said the scheme had been in operation for a week, and had netted $30.

Mallory implicated another man, whom, he said, started the plan, and Judge Windom is withholding sentence on Mallory until he hears the facts in the other case. The other man involved will also be arrested and brought into court.

A few days ago, Mallory was arraigned on the charge of theft, and pleaded not guilty, but evidence was so strong against him that he evidently thought he might as well plead guilty.

Resinol Soap

Is as efficient a Skin-Healer as it is a Cleanser—perfect in both respects. One of its great advantages is its prompt healing-up of every little sore and break; the way these disappear under RESINOL SOAP treatment is almost miraculous. Ordinary soap doesn't do this, of course, but this isn't ordinary soap. For, besides being made of rare vegetable oils, it is thoroughly medicated with "RESINOL," the greatest remedy for and preventive of skin troubles known. As a mere antiseptic protection against infection RESINOL SOAP is worth its weight in gold; but just try it for a month and see what it does for your comfort, your health and your complexion.

Buy a cake of Resinol Soap today, and ask your druggist for a copy of our booklet on how to care for the skin and complexion, and also ask for a Resinol souvenir pin tray, which he will give you free.

RAISE MORE IN VIRGINIA

Over $2,000 Contributed Toward Relief of Chisholm Sufferers.

Generous Spirit of the People Continues to Manifest Itself.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator P. R. Vail and Mayor Andrew Hawkinson yesterday continued the work of soliciting funds for the Chisholm fire sufferers, and up to last evening had collected $2,013. The city council donated $500 additional. A balance of $213 from the fund raised for the Virginia fire sufferers in 1900 has been deposited ever since in the First National bank, and this will be added to the Chisholm fund, today.

In addition to the list published yesterday, the following Virginia citizens donated $25 each: John Costin, Jr., Virginia Foundry & Machine company, Frank Trampush, Dr. C. M. Miller, Alexander Reid & Co., Virginia Store company, P. A. Coey, Rossom Insurance agency, Dr. C. B. Lenont, Ed Finch and W. B Pratt & Co. The following gave $10 each: E. M. Tredway, H. J. George, D. W. Freeman, Alexander George, Henry Sigel, Landrigan & Parey, A. M. Thompson, Sodergren Drug company, Charles Roberts, Finnish Mercantile company, Harry Salberg, Daniel Coffey, Mark Eddy, A. Pakkala, Robert Garvey, Patrick Sullivan, John Mesberg, E. Matheson and Shanedling Bros. These gave $5 each: J. H. Trethway, A. C. Stevens, W. A. Hall, D. A. McMillan, Joseph Johnson, Dr. M. F. Guldinger, E. E. Bevlly, Jereissati Bros., Nathanson Bros., Steven Kerslake, W. R. Byrne, Olso & Flink, J. A. Kennedy, J. S. Sutherland, Gustave Carlson, P. Saviolaien, G. Cohn, T. W. Lusk, W. E. Hannaford, R. A. McLean, John Horkey, Person & Soode and J. W. Murphy.

The work of raising funds is not yet completed, and some liberal donations are expected today. The money will be turned over to the Chisholm relief committee tomorrow. Both the local banks increased their subscriptions from $50 to $100.

INVITE BIDS FOR THOSE NEW WALKS

The Virginia Council Will Forthwith Lay Walks Around Library.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The plans and specifications for cement sidewalks around the public library building prepared by the city engineer, were accepted by the council at its meeting last evening and the city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for construction of the walks.

The proposition of the Northern Fire Apparatus company to exchange a combination chemical and hose sleigh for the thirty-five gallon chemical enggine now owned by the city was accepted.

The Virginia Light & Water company was instructed to lay one block of water main on Wyoming avenue so that the Bailey Lumber company can make connections and thus secure fire protection for their sawmill.

An improvement warrant in the sum of $1,151.90 was ordered drawn in favor of Joseph Rooney in payment of balance due on the cemetery sidewalk.

The street commissioner was instructed to lay plank between the tracks of the Great Northern railway to close the gap in the cemetery sidewalk.

MONTENEGRENS HEAVILY FINED

Jackals, Charged With Looting at Chisholm, Given Severe Doses.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The world's record for the largest number of criminal cases ever disposed of in one court in a single day, was probably made in municipal court at Chisholm, yesterday, when eighty-one cases were tried. Judge Freeman occupied the bench in the morning and was relieved by Judge Walters in the afternoon. The prosecution was conducted by Assistant County Attorney Poirier of this city, and Sheriff Bates was present to handle the prisoners. The defendants were mainly Montenegrens, some of whom were accused of looting burned buildings, and others of carrying concealed weapons. The cases were brought under the village ordinances so that the village treasury might benefit, and a total of $508 in fines was collected.

FANNING HEADS COMMISSION

That Will Draft New Charter for Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second meeting of the newly-appointed charter commission was held last evening at the municipal courtroom. Organization was effected by the election of M. E. Fanning as president and Otto A. Poirier as secretary. The secretary was instructed to procure copies of several home rule charters and submit them at the next meeting, which is to be held on Sept. 22 at 8 p. m., at which time the commission will probably select an attorney.

EVELETH RIGHT THERE WITH AID

Over $1,000 Raised and Much More to be Contributed.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Relief work for the Chisholm sufferers is going on steadily. The soliciting committee has been at work since Monday getting subscriptions and have been fairly successful. Clothes for the women and children have been sent to the relief headquarters at the fire hall, so that between ten and twelve dry goods boxes full of goods will be sent over to Chisholm today.

Over $1,000 has been subscribed to the fund. The city council met at a special meeting yesterday and donated $500 to the fund. From all sources in town relief is being sent to the headquarters for quick delivery to the stricken people.

This afternoon at the Bijou a special matinee is being given for the fund. Manager Miller has donated the theater for the occasion, the performers will appear in new acts and the Eveleth Electric company supplied the electricity during the afternoon free of cost. The tickets will be sold by various women, so that every cent taken in will be given to the fund. Tonight at the Lyceum theater a benefit performance will be given through the courtesy of Manager Carpenter. All the receipts will go toward the fund.

FIGHTING FIRE AROUND MT. IRON

Oliver Mining Company Employes and Citizens are Beating Brush.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oliver Iron Mining company and the village council of Mountain Iron have a large number of men working around the outskirts of the village, night and day, taking every precaution to prevent the forest fires from running into town. Water pipes have been laid to the edge of the timber in every direction, and the ground is kept thoroughly drenched. There was a report current here yesterday that the town of Costin, adjoining Mountain Iron, had been burned, but the report proved incorrect. It is understood that the authorities have the matter well in hand and that there is now little danger.

A party, consisting of C. S. Carpenter, J. F. Killorin, A. M. Chisholm, D. M. Philbin of Duluth, A. B. Coates of Virginia, Thomas York and P. H. Nelson of Hibbing, arrived here yesterday from Duluth, and all but Mr. Coates proceeded to Chisholm in the afternoon.

LET PLUMBING CONTRACT.

E. Schrimer of Hibbing Will Equip New City Hall.

Hibbing, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night awarded the contract for the plumbing in the new village hall to E. C. Schirmer of this place for $10,000.

The council also discussed the forest fire danger and after a general review of the situation decided the outlook was less dangerous than before.

TWO HARBORS COUNCIL.

Several Estimates Allowed and Other Matters Considered.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night allowed a $1,500 estimate to Pastoret & Lunz for a septic tank and $815 to Haugsten & Johnson for the completion of the Ninth avenue sewer. John Strom also received his final estimate on the sidewalk work.

Bridge improvements on the county roads adjacent to the city were also discussed, it being decided to co-operate with the county in the work.

SOLD STOLEN TEAM.

Serious Charge Preferred Against Robert Kolseth.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Robert Kolseth was arrested on the Soo track north of Thief River Falls yesterday for horse stealing. Kolseth is alleged to have stolen a team from a farmer near Thief River Falls last Friday. He brought the team to Crookston last Saturday, and Monday morning sold the team, harness and wagon to H. McKinney, a ditch contractor, at Bjoin & Carlson's stable, where he had kept the horses, and then decamped.

FEDERAL BUILDING SITE DISCUSSED AT VIRGINIA.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—G. H. Boyd of Washington, D. C., an inspector for the treasury department, arrived in the city Monday evening to look up the matter of a site for the proposed new Federal building and make a report thereon to the department. At his suggestion a meeting of citizens was called for 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the council room. There was so large an attendance that the council chambers could not accommodate all of them, and because no formal notice was given it was finally decided to adjourn the meeting until this evening at 8:30 at the Fay opera house so that all who desire may attend and express their views.

A. C. Osborn was chosen chairman of the meeting and O. H. Griggs secretary. Mayor Andrew Hawkinson was appointed to select a committee to obtain options if possible on other sites than the one opposite the Roosevelt school and report at the meeting tonight.

There was a spirited discussion of the several proposed sites and the sentiment appeared to favor a site nearer the business center than the Roosevelt school.

CHISHOLM REFUGEES TO SOON START BUILDING AGAIN

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Those of the Chisholm sufferers who have arrived here to stay with their friends for a few days will soon go back to build up their homes and business again. Some of the men have already gone back and will put up tents and shacks that will keep them for some time until spring, when they intend to put up substantial buildings. A number of people here have property in Chisholm, and these intend building as soon as conditions permit. They are all thankful that they got out with their lives, and say it is a miracle that no one was killed or injured during or after the fire, as there was so much excitement going on. One of them tried to cross the bridge, but almost fell in the water, having stepped on a board that was burned out. His companion pulled him up just in time.

STEAM SHOVELMAN HURT.

John Wold Sustains Crushed Leg at Britton Gravel Pit.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—While working on the steam shovel at Britton yesterday, John Wold had his right leg badly crushed. He was hurried here to the Budd hospital. His condition is critical, but it is expected he will live.

Carl Youngberg, manager of the Metropolitan opera house, is seriously ill with blood poison.

Miller at Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hon. C. B. Miller of Duluth was here yesterday in the interest of his candidacy for the congressional nomination meeting many of the Republican leaders.

Eveleth Footballists Active.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local high school football players will hold a meeting today to plan for the coming season. Practice will commence at once, and with the splendid material the school has this year they ought to turn out a light but fast team that will take the championship of the range. The boys will have the coaching of John Shoemaker of the faculty, who is an old football player.

Bede at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Congressman J. Adam Bede addressed a large audience last evening at the Fay opera house on the issues of the congressional campaign.

W. H. Cole of the Cole & MacDonald Exploration company came up from Duluth yesterday.

J. G. Ketcham, sales agent for the Virginia Lumber company, arrived in town yesterday.

F. J. Dacey of Duluth is in the city.

M. W. Turner of Duluth arrived in town yesterday.

SMASHES RECORD IN AEROPLANE

Orville Wright Circles in the Air Fifty-Eight Times.

Washington, Sept. 9.—Another record-breaking aeroplane flight was made by Orville Wright at Fort Myer today. At 8:15 he made an ascent, rose easily in the air and traveled with perfect control. He circled above the parade ground fifty-eight times and was in the air 57 minutes and 31 seconds, his speed approximating thirty-eight miles an hour. This smashes all previous aeroplane records.

Wright expressed himself as highly pleased and declared had he known he was so close to being in the air an hour he would have remained that much longer. He said he came down because his motor slipped once or twice and that he thought he had only been in the air for half an hour.

Except for the slipping of the motor no trouble whatever was experienced. Everything worked as smoothly as the most perfectly adjusted clock and the man who essayed to beat all previous records in this branch of aeronautics handled his invention with as perfect ease as a trained engineer would handle the lever of his locomotive. To some of those who had been closely watching the performances of the machine, the new record did not come as a complete surprise.

Wright has all along expressed confidence in his ability to break all records and in his previous flights has pointed out that the practically perfect working if his machine augured the success which he purposed to achieve. He did not even rest content with his performance this morning, for immediately after alighting he sent for more gasoline and prepared for further flights.

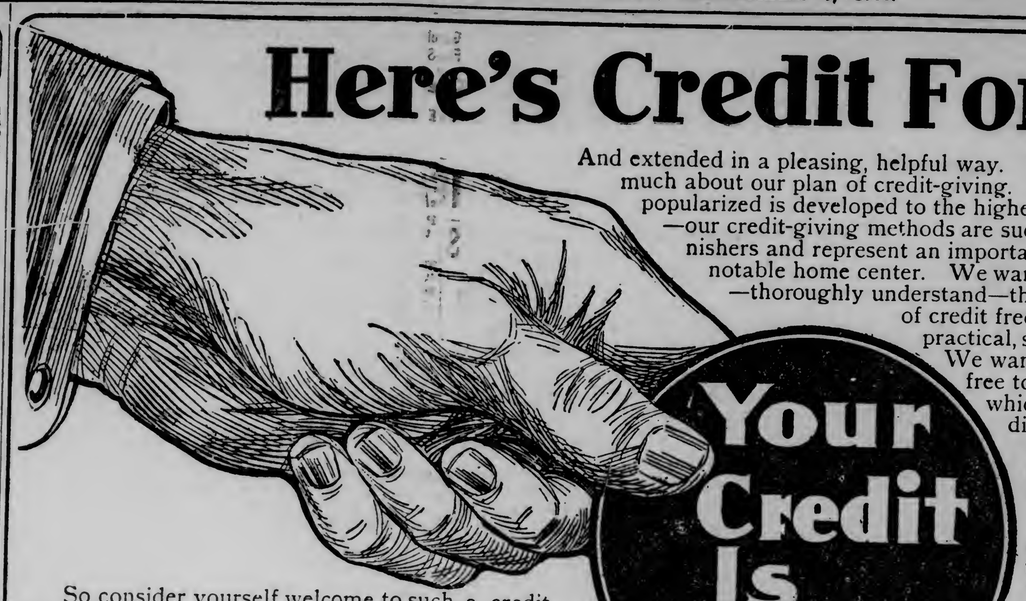

Marquette County Fair Opens.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual fair of the Marquette County Agricultural association opened in an auspicious manner Monday, and promises to be one of the most successful in the long series. The exhibition buildings are well filled with displays in the various departments, and for the entertainment of the crowd Monday was offered excellent racing and Cornish wrestling.

Patents Issued.

Washington, Sept. 9. — (Special to The Herald.)—Patents issued: E. A. Barker, Bemidji, watchmakers' pliers; C. Silger and I. Deatherage, Duluth, cigar binding device; W. J. Wheeler, Duluth, trap gun; C. Winch, Shevlin, guard rail.

THE INCOME TAX.

Not long ago The Herald, in response to an inquiry, gave some of its views upon the income tax. The Detroit Quiver, evidently edited by somebody who has made a study of tax matters, has availed itself of its inalienable right to take exception to our declaration for this system of taxation, and opposes the income tax on the ground that because the people of large incomes are in a position to shoulder the burden off upon the common people, it would turn out to be another tax upon consumers.

The Herald opposed taxation of the means of production because it penalizes those of small means and taxes enterprise, and favored the income tax because it taxes the fruits of production, which mostly get into the hands of others than the producers.

While in many cases payers of income taxes would be able to shift their burden by increasing the charges upon which their incomes are based, such as in the case of rent and interest, on the whole the income tax would afford less chance for this than any other system of taxation. As a matter of fact, practically all taxes are borne now by consumers. The federal taxes, which are all indirect and come through the internal revenue taxes and the custom house tariffs, are paid entirely by the consumers. Real estate taxes, too, are invariably added to rents. Even the small grocer or butcher or dry goods dealer necessarily adds the expense of taxes to the price of his goods, so that the consumers pay it. When the railroads are taxed, the money to pay the taxes comes through freight and passenger charges, and the consumers pay them.

Probably, in many cases, those who paid income taxes would find means to make their patrons stand the burden; but there are many forms of income in which this is impossible. A holder of stock in a railroad, a mine or a factory in an industry where prices are pretty well fixed would hardly be able to evade the tax burden by bringing about an increase in rates or charges. Certainly those whose incomes came from bonds would find it difficult to add their taxes to interest rates. The tax would be relatively so small that it would be almost impossible to figure it out so that borrowers could be made to pay it.

But even though it is true that in many cases drawers of incomes would be able to make consumers pay their taxes, the fact that small consumers would be relieved of paying direct taxes would compensate. The burden would fall heaviest on those most able to pay; while now the heaviest burden is upon those least able to pay; besides which those of large means are able to add their taxes to the prices they charge, and make the small consumer pay not only his own taxes but theirs as well. Under the income tax, even if part of the taxes were shifted upon the small consumer, he would have little or no direct taxes of his own to pay, and he would still be ahead.

THE PRIMARY ELECTION.

Matters of vastly greater weight than the desire of this man to gain a place or the wish of that man to keep the place he has hinge upon the primary election which will take place next Tuesday.

There are matters of public service, matters of satisfactory representation of the people in congress and the legislature, and the latter is the most important of all. It is essential, therefore, that the voters should all attend the primaries and register there their free and ripened choice. By doing so, they will not only give weight to the movement for better public service and for proper representation in the legislative bodies, but they will register for the general election in November. Without registering, they cannot vote; and by voting at the primary election they will kill two birds with one stone.

In Duluth, since the last election, numerous changes have been made in the election precincts and voting places. It is important that the voters in the changed precincts find out what precinct they now live in, and the location of their polling places. The Herald has published a description of the changes, and will publish it again Monday, the day before the primary election. Many will find that their polling places have been changed. In studying the descriptions of the new precincts, it should be remembered that in each case the middle of the boundary street is the dividing line. For instance, when it is stated that the new Fifth precinct of the First ward includes the territory north of Superior street and east of Fifteenth avenue east, that includes the houses on the north side of Superior street and on the east side of Fifteenth avenue.

CANADIAN MARINE BUSINESS.

The belated statistics of Canadian lake commerce, just out, make a remarkable showing of growth in the water transportation business of our fair and prosperous sister of the northern shores of the lake system. The figures are not at all to be compared with those of business done in American bottoms, but they show a very substantial growth, and they are rather more remarkable for their promise of the future than for their accomplishments of the past, great though these are.

The water traffic of the dominion for 1907 was the largest on record. Last year's total volume of traffic was 20,543,639 tons, as against 10,523,185 tons in 1906, a clear jump of nearly 100 per cent. For the 10-year period the improvement was 13,543,164 tons, or 210 per cent. The principal expansion in canal traffic last year was in the business of the Canadian canal at the Sault, which gained 5,601,943 tons over the traffic of 1906. During the decade the Canadian traffic through the Sault Ste. Marie canal increased 467 per cent, while the tonnage of the United States increased only 315 per cent. The Canadians are using much larger vessels than formerly, owing to the improvement in the Welland canal since the days when the dominion's commerce was mainly carried in wooden sailing craft.

The rehabilitation of the dominion's merchant marine on fresh water was due largely to the shifting of the center of grain production through the settlement of the Canadian Northwest, and to the development of iron interests on the north shore of Lake Superior.

Says the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin: "The rapid growth of Canada's marine traffic is coincident with developments which tend toward the St. Lawrence river route as the outlet for the export trade in grain raised in the Northwest, and which caused a corresponding decline in the export trade through the old lake and canal and lake and rail routes to New York and Boston. Montreal has been making special efforts to capture the export trade by reducing port charges as much as possible and thus creating a line of least resistance to which grain for export will move automatically. Recently the harbor commissioners of Montreal announced a new rate for the handling of rail-carried grain that will still further disturb the old shipping ports. The new rate will be 0.9 cents a bushel against a former charge of 1½ cents. The general marine traffic of the lakes has been very light during the present season, but there will undoubtedly be a heavy movement of grain for export before the close of navigation, and Canada is trying to capture the lion's share of this business."

All of which is evidence that unless American seaports wish to let this important business get away from them, they will have to be up and doing. Business like this goes not upon sentiment, but upon economy, and if Montreal can handle grain for Europe cheaper and better than Boston or New York, the grain is going that way. The only means of heading off this diversion is to improve waterways, lower handling charges, and make it cheaper and better to export grain through American ports.

THE FIRE RELIEF MEASURES.

Never in its history did Duluth respond more cheerfully or with greater alacrity to the call of humanity in distress than it has to the cry for help from flame-stricken Chisholm. From the big sums in four figures down to the gifts in one figure from those of lesser means, the giving is free and spontaneous, and no direct appeal to the generosity of Duluthians has been necessary other than the bald relation of the actual conditions. This is good; good for those who benefit from this generosity and good for those who give: for after all, though many find pleasure in getting, there is vast satisfaction in giving when the giver knows that the gift is well bestowed.

From outside, too, responses have been many and generous. A Chicago business house wired The Herald to draw upon it for $1,000, James J. Hill of the Great Northern hastened to send $5,000, the Twin Cities are raising considerable sums, and from the smaller towns of the state are coming contributions from hearts that have been touched by the thought of the devastated community and its homeless and ruined people. Besides those who give money, there have been handsome gifts of food and clothing and supplies, not a whit less welcome nor a jot less appreciated than the cash.

Unless continued dry weather or some sudden burst of most unwelcome gales bring worse disasters, the manner in which contributions are coming in gives hope that there will be enough to relieve the worst necessities of the afflicted people. It should be remembered in this connection, however, that the woods have yet to tell the fate of the isolated settlers whose homes have been destroyed, and whose need will be as great as that of those who lived in the burned communities. Their case will require attention, too, because of the importance of protecting those who are redeeming the wastes and making the wilderness bear fruit for progress. Under no circumstances should the relief committees overlook these unfortunates.

WATER POWER.

The potentialities of the country's water power are just beginning to become evident. In the past only a few great sources of water power have been considered, such as Niagara Falls, and little consideration has been given the thousands of small water powers all over the land that can and will be profitably developed before very long.

Popular Mechanics has made an attempt to estimate the possible amount of water power that may be developed in this country. Of course this is almost entirely guesswork, based upon knowledge of some of the larger known water power possibilities, with estimates of the smaller and less known ones.

It is shown, in this estimate, that the power of Niagara Falls is placed at 7,000,000 horse power. A partial estimate places the available water power of the upper Mississippi and tributaries at 2,000,000 horse power; and the southern Appalachian district at 3,000,000 horse power. Both of these estimates can be greatly increased by including the use of regulation reservoirs and auxiliary steam plants, and this will, of course, be done. In the Rocky mountains and the Far West there are immense water power possibilities. "All included," says Popular Mechanics, "it is probable that the water power of the United States exceeds 30,000,000 horse power. With the construction of proper reservoirs it is believed that this amount can be increased to 150,000,000 horse power."

And that much power will go a long way, when it is properly developed, to take the place of coal and to reduce the expenses of manufacturing and of operating railroads—for ultimately most of the railroads of the country will be operated by electricity, a large share of which will be generated by water power.

As The Herald has shown before, the question of how much the people will benefit from the development of this power, which is really, in many cases, a great natural source of wealth still remaining in the hands of the people, depends upon whether it is given away to private corporations, leased under terms conserving the people's interests, or kept wholly for the people and used for the common benefit.

If the water power is given away, and those who get it are allowed to capitalize as they please, there will be comparatively little benefit to the people; there will be enormous benefits, but they will go largely to the few who control the water powers of the country. If the water powers are given away, the government of nation and state should at least see to it that capitalization is upon a fair basis, and that the people are not called upon to pay dividends upon watered stock as they have been in the case of nearly every other industry approaching in its character a public utility.

It will be better still if, as far as possible, these water powers are kept for the people, developed for the people, and operated for the common good.

Make your plans to vote at the primary election Tuesday.

Fine weather, this, but tough on the dwellers in the burning forests.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Elva J. Eastman, who was at the Lenox hotel last evening, hails from Meadville, Pa., right in the midst of the steel country. According to Mr. Eastman, the steel business of the country has felt a very decided increase within the past month, because of the better feeling in business circles, and this fall Mr. Eastman believes that the orders for steel will be very heavy.

The surplus, according to Mr. Eastman, has been exhausted, and from this time on the interests will depend upon the ore that comes from the mines. The great amount of ore that was left over from last year, largely due to canceled orders and a slump in the market, has been used, and the market is demanding a large amount of ore with which to carry on the business of the country.

That the chances of William Jennings Bryan are believed not only to be the best ever enjoyed by the Commoner, but also the best chance the Democratic party has had for victory since the election of Grover Cleveland, is indicated by straws that show which way the wind of political opinion is blowing.

Last evening a straw vote was taken in the lobby of the St. Louis hotel. There were thirty-eight men in the lobby when the vote was taken, and of these thirty-eight, twenty-three indicated by their vote that they were for Mr. Bryan.

Another straw vote was taken on the Northern Pacific train yesterday. According to the report, the vote on the train stood 64 for Bryan, 52 for Taft and 6 for the Prohibition ticket. The heat may have had something to do with the slim proportions of the Prohibition vote. In fact, some have said that the strength of the anti-liquor vote will depend in a great measure upon the weather conditions upon the day the voting for the president is done.

The editor of one of the leading agricultural papers in the country said the other day that a good frost would elect Mr. Bryan. This man is a Republican and a man who has always voted the Republican ticket. This year he is going to vote for Bryan, and says in his opinion many other Republicans are going to do the same thing.

In the opinion of the people met around the hotels, Bryan has a good fighting chance. Heretofore Bryan was considered a long shot—a plunger's choice. Things seem to be different this fall, however, and the people are conceding Bryan a chance, and a very good chance at that.

Some one asked a commercial man from Indianapolis what were the prospects in Indiana for the Democratic party, now that Mr. Kern was a prominent candidate on the national ticket.

"Bless you," replied the commercial man, "you will have to wait until after the baseball season before you ask me for an opinion on the political complexion of Indiana. You know we have a baseball race on down there—a race in which the Hoosiers are taking a leading part, and we are all 'het' up over it. Most of us love to talk politics. Most of us do, too. We gather on the street corners and discuss the issues and the candidates; but, honestly, in Indianapolis right at the present time there is more baseball talk than there is of politics. We are crazy about winning the pennant in the American association, and until that happy event is consummated we will have but little time to figure out the chances of either party in our state.

Tip-Cat.

New York Press: Our youngsters play in the streets a game they call "catty," or "cattie." This also is an ancient sport and has changed very little. It was originally called "tip-cat." A small piece of wood styled the "cat" answers the purpose of both ball and trap. It is from four to six inches in length and from an inch to two inches in diameter in the middle, whence it tapers off to a point at each end, presenting the appearance of a double cone. When the cat is laid on the ground, a blow of the bat at either side of the center will send it spinning up into the air; it is then struck with the bat, as at trap-ball, and any regulations as to the mode of playing the game may be adopted at pleasure.

THE WEATHER.

And still no sign of the rain that the burning woods need so much. The weather man promises fair weather tonight and tomorrow, but says that there is little prospect of rain in this region during the ensuing thirty-six hours. The winds will be "fresh," which is not a dangerous velocity, and will be mostly southwesterly. This morning it was clear, fine and splendid. Yesterday the thermometer got up to 84 degs., and last night's lowest was 66 degs.

A year ago it was rainy, misty and disagreeable.

The sun rose this morning at 5:38 and sets tonight at 6:33, making 12 hours and 55 minutes of sunlight, but three hours less than the longest day of the year.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The principal result of the easterly movement of the Saskatchewan low pressure was high temperature Tuesday and last night as regards the lake region, but scattered and very light showers fell over portions of the Dakotas, Utah and Idaho. Showery weather continued in the Gulf states, due to the stationary barometric depression over Western Mexico. Another disturbance is developing over Alberta, but an area of high pressure has moved its center from the North Pacific districts to Southeastern Montana, attended by cooler weather over Western Canada, the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado. There is at present very little prospect of rain in St. Louis, Lake, Cook and Douglas counties during the ensuing thirty-six hours.

The Sale of the Journal.

Hutchinson Leader: There seems to no reason why fair-minded people should withhold their good wishes from the new owners of the Minneapolis Journal. Mr. H. V. Jones, especially, is a man who promises well on his record.

But the story has its other side. A quarter of a century ago, the Journal was pretty small potatoes—the tail of the procession, or near it. It was about then that the property was taken over by E. B. Haskell, of the Boston Herald, and a new order of things inaugurated. Haskell had some sound notions, and among them the notion that the staff of a great newspaper, made up as it is of sensitive, high-strung men, isn't to be handled just like a gang of day-laborers. He knew that no journalist does his best work where he is in momentary fear of losing his place, and one of the best effects of his ownership was his making it understood that any man who made good was a permanent fixture with the Journal. Heads of departments and others were given stock in the concern, and a large, perhaps the chief element of the esprit du corps which has built up the paper, proceeded from the sense of security thus engendered and fostered.

Mr. Haskell died several years ago, but not until his wise policies were supposed to be fixed—the sense of security still operated to give the brilliant company of men and women the heart for their work. But all the while it was a mistaken sense, as the sequel shows. Only a few days ago, hardly sooner than the general public, these people were apprised that the Boston interest had negotiated a sale, and they were liable, if not likely to be dismissed.

In a way it was like being turned out of house and home.

Lucien Swift and John S. McLain have ju ged the destinies of the paper ever since the elder Haskell bought in. Both go. No doubt they have been paid a good price for their holdings of stock, but how much compensation is that? Viewing the situation from a distance, it certainly seems to bear rather hard on these men. The Journal has become a great, in some respects, a very great, newspaper under their control. It is too bad that they should have to be let out.

Before the Rain.

Clouds are dusky gray and still,
Nature's waiting for the rain;
Birds have ceased their song until
They can feel the sun again.
Trees are waiting, patient, too,
Hushed and silent as they stand,
Till the breeze comes sailing through
Fresh'ning all the weary land.

Water's rippling like a song
Where the willows bend afore,
Gently coaxing it along
With a tender mother-love.
The long grasses lilt and sway
To the music's mystic flow
In a dance of elfish play
Mirrored in the stream below.

Sentinel poplars, straight and tall,
Upward turn their shining leaves
And the tree-toads scrape and call
In a tune that oddly grieves.
There's a brooding tenderness
That's so sweet it starts a pain
Yearning through and through your breast,
Then—here comes the driving rain.

Woman vs. Man.

Philadelphia Telegraph: With his supremacy on the modern battlefield—business—being challenged—politics is a minor affair—man is getting perilously close to his last ditch. A long time ago he lost the headship of his home—the exceptions only serve as mournful mementos of past mastery—and it was only because business and its consequent control of the purse had not attracted woman that he was able to maintain a seeming authority. When woman enters into full competition with him in the life commercial, then he may as well exclaim, with King Francis, "All is lost but honor." In short, he will become a has-been. In the philosophy of modernity, however, he will be able to console himself with the thought that it is better to be a has-been than a never-was.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Republican leaders are oven now discussing for publication the details of the tariff bill which they are thinking of passing. There is no doubt about their scare now, but a comparison of the bill before and after the election will be very interesting.

Equitable Criminal Procedure.

Law Notes: The following judgment, entered by a Minnesota justice of the peace in a criminal proceeding, indicates that His Honor is stronger on the equity than he is on the law side of his jurisdiction:

"The court renders judgment as follows: The defendant is to pay the justice fees and the plaintiff pays the cost for constable. This ruling of the court is based upon the ground: The evidence shows that both parties are to blame for the trouble; neither party wanted to meet the other party half ways, neither party wanted to listen to reasonable arguments.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

•••Miss Julia Noland, sister of Mrs. J. F. Dacey, is visiting from the East.

•••Miss Maggie Henderson, sister of Mrs. John Mears of Park Point, left for home on the Nyack last evening.

•••Hon. Martin Maginnis, ex-delegate to congress from Montana, is in Duluth today, visiting his brother, Receiver C. P. Maginnis of the land office.

•••Asa Dailey returned yesterday from Hudson, Wis., where he went to attetnd the annual reunion of his old army regiment. He found many comrades there whom he had not seen since the close of the Civil war.

•••Capt. Tim Carbine arrived in port last evening with the steamer Plow Boy from Bay City. The Plow Boy has been purchased by Bishop & Hanson and will ply between Duluth and Superior.

•••The Mesaba club held its regular election last night, and the following officers were chosen: C. O. Baldwin, president; F. J. Ryan, R. N. Marble, T. J. Davis, Dr. James McAuliffe, Dr. Davis and D. S. McKay, vice presidents; C. C. Cochran, secretary; J. J. Costello, treasurer. The following delegates to the state convention of Democratic clubs in St. Paul on Sept. 20, were elected: Messrs. d'Autremont, Zastrow, Tinkham, Cochran, McCahill and Redding.

•••The question of the successor of Mr. Dodge as general freight and ticket agent of the St. Paul & Duluth is settled by the announcement that A. B. Plough, who has been general agent of the Central Iowa, has been appointed to the position.

•••The grand jury has condemned the building that is called "the West end jail," which is a disgrace to the city.

•••H. C. Helm has sold his interest in the Helm & Ball hardware store to his partner.

•••On account of the peculiar makeup of the wheat crop in the Northwest this year, it is thought that it may become expedient to employ what is known as the Stacy filler in testing the wheat. Chief Deputy Inspector Shelly of this city has been in consultation with the governor about the matter.

•••Miss Hattie Lloyd, daughter of Capt. Joseph Lloyd, is expected home tomorrow from a long visit in England.

•••Dr. R. O. Sweeney and wife of St. Paul are in Duluth today. Dr. Sweeney came here to look after the government fish hatchery, in which he takes a great deal of interest, and in the foundation of which he has had great interest.

•••Adam Bede and C. B. King have gone to Fergus Falls to attend the Democratic congressional convention. They are the only delegates from St. Louis county.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Northfield News: People would be a great deal more interested in the proposed extra session of congress to revise the tariff if they could be assured that Cannon wouldn't boss the job.

Winona Independent: The enemies of Governor Hughes are seeking to form a combination against him. Still, we can all imagine what sort of a government New York would have had for the last two years if the enemies of Governor Hughes were now his friends.

Austin Transcript: The influential Republican papers of the First congressional district, almost without exception, are opposed to the renomination of Congressman Tawney. It shows what the real feeling of the district is, no matter how the vote at the primary may be manipulated.

Le Sueur News: Shall the people rule? To we'uns it looks like their chances are slim to do so while Joe Cannon lives.

Lake Crystal Union: No member of congress can in any form be useful to his district who supports Cannon for speaker of the house, we don't care who it is. His actions are diametrically in opposition to the people, and the voter who is foolish enough to vote for such a congressman is an unsafe man.

St. Cloud Times: Stephenson will go back to the senate from Wisconsin. But the best thing that the people of the state did was to defeat Jenkins for re-election to congress. He was a Cannon man, and his defeat shows the trend of sentiment in the country.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: If the Minnesota Democrats had nominated some unknown man without a ghost of a show for election, it is thought Mr. Dunn would have felt amply vindicated.

Perham Enterprise: Jim Sherman, the Republican nominee for vice president, believes in revising the tariff upward. What else could you expect from a bosom friend of Speaker Cannon?

Elk River Star-News (Rep.): That the last legislature was the most extravagant one that has sat in Minnesota for many years is pretty generally conceded, but just how the responsibility therefore can be shouldered on to the administration is beyond the ordinary understanding of fairness. Such effort will doubtless have a reactionary effect, and if it is the plan of the Republican leaders to continue such a course, it would be wise to reconsider without delay. Mr. Jacobson's record for economy is too well authenticated to permit of anything approaching misrepresentation along these lines.

Fairmont Sentinel: Not a Republican in the state has dared deny the charge that Jacobson was nominated by the interests and that a deal was made whereby "Hell Roaring Jake" was to keep quiet in return for the nomination. The charge stands undisputed.

Virginia Enterprise: The Chisholm Herald informs an anxious public that that are many who would be pleased to pay a compliment to P. H. Nelson, Democratic nominee for state treasurer, but contends they "can't do it without voting the whole Democratic ticket." With this same line of reasoning holds good on whether or not a Republican can vote for Governor Johnson, you can safely bank on a Democratic majority in Minnesota in November.

The Candidate.

Albion Journal: Behold the candidate! He cometh up like a flower and retireth from the race busted. His friends fill him with false hopes and atmosphere. He swelleth like a toad and calleth the earth his'n. He smileth upon mankind and sloppeth over with good humor. He kisses the children and scatters the microbes among the innocent babies. He privately cheweth a clove when he meeteth a preacher, and as he converseth with him in pious tones, he standeth to leeward and curbeth his breath with a strong bite. He goeth home late at night to his weary wife with a beery breath and hiketh forth without breakfast, saying, "I go to see a man." The dead beat who lieth around in wait then pulleth his leg. He "nalleth a lie," but before election day comes he runneth out of nails. He giveth liberally to the church; he subscribeth a goodly sum to the blind; he contributeth to the man whose house was burned; he bestoweth alms; he signeth a friend's note; he sendeth a small keg hither and a large keg thither; he yieldeth up his substance with apparent alacrity. After the election he goeth out back of the barn and kicketh himself and teareth his hair and calleth himself a tarnation fool.

Mrs. Newlywed—Porterhouse.

Lumberman—You'll find that in the butcher shop. This is a lumber yard.

New York Evening Post:: She—Taxes wouldn't be so high if we women were in charge of the city's affairs.

He—I'll warrant the poll tax wouldn't. You'd have it marked down from $2 to $1.98.

Lippincott's Magazine: "My hair is falling out," admitted the timid man in a drug store. "Can you recommend something to keep it in?"

"Certainly," replied the obliging clerk. "Get a box."

The Sketch: Captious Customer—I want a piece of meat without any bone, fat or gristle.

Bewildered Butcher—Madam, I think you'd better have an egg.

Home Herald: He—Can you explain to me the difference between "shall" and "will?" For example, if I say, "Will you marry me?" should you reply, 'I shall' or "I will?"

She (coldly)—I should reply, "I wont."

New York Sun: Father—Well?

Tommy—Why isn't there ever a navy of the unemployed?

The Socialist Plan.

Denver Post: It is only the despised and hated Socialists, the "dreamers" who seek vain things, that have organized their political party on a business basis and developed a compact, self-supporting campaign machine. Their party is organized into local branches. Members of the party are elected on the proposal of two existing members. Every member pays a regular monthly contribution. That contribution is divided, part for the local branch expenses, part for the state organization expenses, and part for the expenses of the national campaign. And the party only accepts contributions from regular members. If the Democratic party and the Republican party were organized in the same way, we would hear no more of "bosses" and no more of "corporation influence." And in that case the publication of campaign contributions and expenses would have a practical utility. But until we recognize that the only way to have honest elections is to pay for them ourselves, we are wasting energy in complaining at the "rule" of the corporations who foot the accounts.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Honest men are almost as scarce as silent women.

A man without enemies is apt to be shy of friends.

Be sure you are right, then go ahead and ask your wife.

Few people make a success of being good on the installment plan.

You can always tell a sensible man by the way he always agrees with you.

One-half of the world is only waiting for a chance to do the other half.

Most people shuffle off this mortal coil before they reach the age of discretion.

Asking at Once.

Youth's Companion: "Now, children," said the history teacher in her most impressive manner, "I wish you to remember that the time to ask questions in my class is whenever anything is said which you wish explained. Do not wait until the time comes for recitation and then complain that you 'did not hear' or 'did not understand' when I talked.

"Yes'm," chorused the scholars, cheerfully.

"Very well," said the teacher, "we will begin today with James First, who came after Elizabeth."

The new scholar raised his hand.

"What is it?" asked the teacher, graciously.

"What made him come after her?" asked the new scholar eagerly.

Our Devastating Tariff Tax.

Philadelphia Record: Every man, woman and child in the United States is compelled to walk about on protected leather. But for the tax imposed on hides and leather we should go about better and more cheaply shod than any other people on earth. But we cripple our manufacturers and rob our consumers for the benefit of the beef trust and the leather trust, though—in spite of tariff drawbacks—the shoe industry has been brought to a greater state of perfection in this country than in any other.

WAS WOUNDED WHILE HUNTING

W. T. Bailey Accidentally Shot by Werner Pressentin.

W. T. Bailey was wounded, although not seriously, while hunting ducks on the Mouse river, in North Dakota, Sept. 2, by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of Werner Pressentin. Mr. Bailey is now able to be about, and will return home within a few days.

Mr. Bailey and Mr. Pressentin occupied separate boats, and were concealed in the reeds, about twenty feet apart, waiting for ducks. Suddenly a flock appeared within shooting distance, and Mr. Pressentin, in getting into position, stumbled and fell forward in the boat, his gun accidentally being discharged. The muzzle happened to be pointing in the direction of Mr. Bailey, and the full charge of bird shot struck him a glancing blow in the left breast.

It was only a flesh wound, and a doctor summoned from Newburg, five miles distant soon had it dressed. Other members of the party were John Panton, C. d'Autremont and William White, Jr.

Superior Man's Mother.

Anoka, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.—The funeral was held here yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the Methodist church, of Mrs. Sophronia Hersey, aged 73, widow of Capt. Hersey of the Union army and mother of Melville Hersey of Superior. Mrs. Hersey was a native of Maine and had resided here since 1882.

Besides her two sons, Melville of Superior and Edgar of Moore, Mont., she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. George Lindsay and Mrs. Abbie Boobar, a half sister, Mrs. Charles Vevea, and a half brother, Arthur Woodbury.

CLOTHING IS BADLY NEEDED

Mayor R. D. Haven Finishes His Work on the Range.

Mayor R. D. Haven, who has been investigating conditions on the range, left Hibbing this afternoon for Duluth. Before leaving he told The Herald staff representative that the greatest need at present was for children's clothing. Today a large consignment of women's and children's clothing was sent to Chisholm, so the need is relieved in a measure.

Coffee and sugar are needed by the stricken people of Chisholm. Otherwise, the relief measures of Duluth and the range towns have furnished them with necessities. One whole car of supplies has not yet been touched by the distributing committee. It will be needed, but nothing will be wasted and rations will be distributed as they are needed. Arrangements will be made for shipping provisions gradually, so that there may be no great amount on hand at one time and the work of the distributing committee will be made lighter.

The present wants of the Chisholm sufferers have been cared for. The city of tents and shacks is growing and preparations are rushing forward to transform it into a new and greater Chisholm, substantial and well built.

ciety, and there has been a most genous response from these societies.

Collecting Clothing.

Three wagons are today collecting the clothes that have been secured through the efforts of these societies. Two of the teams will start at Lakeside, while one wagon will go to West Duluth. The clothes will be taken to relief headquarters, at Second avenue west and First street.

Fifty beds have been collected through the efforts of the Salvation Army, and these will be sent to Chisholm.

Through The Herald the Western Union announces that it is ready to accept free, any messages from regularly organized relief committees. The company will also accept free messages from forest fire sufferers. The offer of the Western Union is made through the manager, C. A. Crane.

Great care should be taken by Duluth citizens that their money and supplies reach the proper people. With such a large sum of money being contributed, much of it may go to undeserving persons, and professional beggars will probably take advantage of the catastrophe to reap a harvest.

The committees in Duluth, Hibbing and Chisholm are all composed of reliable men, whose honesty is unquestioned, and money sent to any of them will be properly accounted for. Books are being kept, all contributions are being most carefully kept track of, and disbursements will be made by experienced persons.

Checks sent to the range should be made out to John A. Redfern, treasurer of the relief association. All checks and money sent to The Herald will be acknowledged and turned over to the proper source. An effort is also being made to keep track of other contributions made through the churches, the Y. M. C. A., the Commercial club and the banks.

PALL OF SMOKE STILL HEAVY

visible near to the railroad tracks, and there are no reports of damage or help needed.

Along the line of the Missabe road from Knife river to Baptism river, there have been many fires during the past two weeks, but they have apparently burned out and no damage is reported. There is much smoke, but no fires can be located.

No Damage Reported.

Around Two Harbors many of the farmers have burned the brush about their places during the past few weeks and while there is much smoke there are no fires that can be located, and the Knife river valley west of Tower and the farming districts to the north and northeast are reported clear and no damage done as yet.

Near Waldo there have been some small brush fires, but not dangerous. Between Waldo and Highland a bad fire passed east near York Station, endangering the section house and block office of the Iron Range, but they were saved by the work of the section men and a locomotive sent there equipped for such work.

Many Ties Burned.

Near Britton the worst damage yet reported, occurred Sunday when a pile of about 25,000 ties, belonging partly to the Iron Range and part to Contractor William Cutliffe, caught fire and about half were burned belonging mostly to the latter, entailing a loss of about $4,600. The demainder were saved by the efforts of an extra gang and engines sent there to fight the flames.

There are no fires near Highland station, but near Mile 44, three miles from there, fires have been burning and smoldering for the past several days, requiring the efforts of an extra gang Friday to save the ties piled there. Watchmen are kept there night and day to guard against any damage.

Last evening another large fire blew up a bout a mile west of this place in the woods, between the Iron Rango and main line and the Drummond branch. A light west wind will carry it towards the main line or east. At Brimson, with the exception of the above, there are no fires in sight, but much smoke.

A large fire was burning to the west of Bassett on Saturday. There is plenty of smoke but no fire visible.

Allen Junction reports that several fires appear to be burning in different directions, but they are not bad nor close. One fire is burning near Mile 70, two miles to the south and some distance from the track.

At Mesaba, there are no fires close.

There is no fire very close to Embarrass, but there is a big fire to the southwest, probably the fire near Aurora.

Fire Near Norway.

A brush fire started last evening near Norway station, three miles east of the track. Farmers are endeavoring to keep it under control.

At Tower and Tower Junction there is much smoke, but no fires are known to be near. The same conditions prevail at Ely and Winton.

Big fires are burning near Aurora and close to the mining locations.

Large numbers of men are fighting the flames with Iron Range engines and an extra crew is assisting. If they get any winds the situation will be dangerous for the village, but at present the outlook is encouraging.

At Biwabik, McKinley and Mariska there is much smoke, but no fires are known to be close.

There are no fires close to Sparta, but one is visible five or six miles to the south, apparently near the St. Louis river settlements.

The Duluth & Iron Range officials are sparing no efforts to render all assistance needed to fight the flames. Several engines have been equipped for the work and arrangements made to get them to any points needed on short notice. Men are on duty watching the pile along the line night and day, also all bridges in the danger zone. Last night they held one of their fire engines at Aurora and also a work train with an extra gang and flat car to help the men there and to remove the people from the town if necessary.

Grand Marais and Beaver Bay.

Yesterday a man came in from Grand Marais and reported that several settlers had been burned out near that place and that the village was in danger, but could be saved if no winds arose to keep the fire moving. He could not be located later in the day to learn definite details.

The officials of the Duluth & Northern Minnesota road, which runs near Beaver Bay and to the Baptism river, advise that neither they nor any of their camps have heard anything of Beaver Bay being in danger, nor anything as to the fires near Beaver Bay, which has been reported.

Mayor C. G. Rothfus called a mass meeting of Two Harbors citizens, which was held at the First Presbyterian church, last evening to take steps towards extending relief to the Chisholm fire sufferers. At the meeting $250 was raised in a few minutes, promises of provisions and clothes were extended and arrangements made for a house to house canvas today to swell the amount and secure all possible aid.

DANGER NOT NOW IMMINENT.

only seemed to increase their fury. At noon it looked as though the town must surely go. The fire was approaching the outskirts of the town. Everything possible was done to ward it off, but the heroic efforts appeared feeble and futile.

Then the wind began to shift. From southwest, it slowly swung around to northwest. Nature's forces fought each other and the wind, aided by man, won over the fire and the town was saved.

Though the reports of the danger to Hibbing sent to Duluth yesterday afternoon were exaggerated to a certain extent, the danger was great enough to call out every available man in the town. The efforts of the fire fighters were concentrated at the southern end of the town to keep the flames out of Brooklyn, a suburb, which, if it had once taken fire, would have sent the flames into the heart of the town and accomplished its destruction beyond a doubt.

Brooklyn Defended.

The defense of Brooklyn was the first organized fire fighting effort on the range and it proved successful. The Oliver Iron Mining company furnished thirteen locomotives and every foot of hose that could be gathered. A foreman took charge and the company employes threw themselves into the fight for the metropolis of the range.

On one side of the track, the fire threw out its menacing tongues of flame and on the other the fire fighters held their ground and stubbornly fought them. Dry grass on the side of the track nearest the town would furnish ready footing for the fire and if it once secured good hold there would be little hope, as it would cross the space intervening between the track and the houses through the grass.

The flames crossed the track four times, but were beaten back and their feeble hold unloosed. The fight continued until last night, when all danger passed for the time and the wind died down.

When the fire near Brooklyn threatened the most, the Duluth fire department were asked for aid. An engine was prepared for shipment, but Chief Black was later notified not to send it, as there was only a small creek from which to draw water, and the scant supply would have been exhausted before any results could have been obtained.

This morning when the shift in the wind threatened to send the fires to the northwest down on the town, a portion of the force, which was at Brooklyn yesterday, was shifted to the northwest and every possible point of attack is guarded today. Extreme vigilance is being exercised in every town. The people cannot take chances on surprise. They are ready at a moment's notice to rush en masse to the defense of their homes. Though they may be safe for the minute, the danger will not have entirely disappeared until heavy rains come to drown out every spark, which, with the dry woods and heavy winds of today may Gopher Leaves.

Unless accidents befell the ship, the United States steamer Gopher, manned by members of the Minnesota naval militia under Commander Eaton, reached Grand Marais, county seat of Cook county, at 11 o'clock today, and is administering to the wants of that fire-threatened town in every possible way.

The Gopher was ordered to the north shore yesterday by Governor Johnson, to whom appeal was made by Cook county people, who feared the destruction of their homes and the loss of their lives by forest fires, and wanted the ship sent to carry them away to safety in case the flames swept down upon the town. Grand Marais is without a railroad and depends entirely upon lake steamers for transportation.

Passengers who came down on the Booth boat from Grand Marais yesterday, said the village was in danger of being consumed by fire, and that little avenue of escape was afforded citizens in such an event, so the Gopher was immediately dispatched thither.

Yesterday afternoon, a call was issued to the officers and men of the naval militia, and the Gopher took on coal and provisions enough for a week.

Lieut. Fred Patton, surgeon of the naval militia and the ship's apothecary were on board when the boat left Duluth last night at 11 o'clock.

Adjt. Gen. Wood of St. Paul was in command of the relief expedition. The boat was manned by twenty-five men from each division of the naval militia and a number of others. The militia was under the command of Commander Guy A. Eaton, and other officers on board were Lieuts. S. S. Williamson and Clyde W. Kelly, division commanders, and Ensigns Nelson and Hugo.

Is Knocked Unconscious.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Sept. 9.—While out driving in the town of Tilden, Albert Norman lost his way in a sandstorm. His horse and rig soon landed in a ditch and he, while waiting for the abatement of the storm, was struck unconscious by lightning. He was found in this condition by farmers early in the morning. No permanent injury is anticipated by Mr. Norman because of his experience.

EVELETHIANS TAKE NO CHANCES

Prompt Work in Extinguishing Fires in That Locality.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Brush fires were seen from town here all day yesterday and one was burning on the other side of the Missabe tracks. At once the fire department sent over some firemen and a chemical to put out the fire. Supt. Headding of the Adams-Spruce detailed twenty-five men to put out the fire there. Brush fires were also noticed on the Adams hill, and a number of men were sent out there to watch. The day was very hot, and the ground in many places were so scorched by the heat that in turning over the earth it started to smoke. Everyone is on the lookout to see that no fire gets a chance to come near the town, as there is no telling what way the wind may blow. It was very favorable to the town yesterday, but it may change. About half a baggage car of personal trunks were unloaded from the Hibbing afternoon train belonging to those that had just come over. It is understood that the fire is under control on the outskirts of the town. Eveleth and Virginia are considered the safest towns on the range at present, as all the trees are cleared for some distance out from town.

REPORTS VERY ENCOURAGING

Missabe Officials Learn That Range Conditions are Improved.

Messages received from its employes at the general offices of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern today, confirm the reports from the range that conditions are much improved there.

While the fires are still burning in many places, winds are less threatening than they were yesterday and in many instances the fires seem to have spent themselves.

A message from Hibbing stated that the atmosphere was clearer than it had been and that no alarm for the safety of the city was felt today. No rain has fallen there and it is oppressively hot, but the town people have not the apprehension for their safety and that of their property that they had yesterday.

From Mountain Iron came word that conditions were much improved. A good-sized area about the town has been burned and the danger of the flames being communicated to the buildings of the village greatly lessened. Also, the winds are favorable to the people.

Practically the same information came to the Missabe officials from Coleraine. A message stated that the fire was still burning within a short distance of Bovey, but that the wind was taking it in the opposite direction. Conditions were also favorable in Coleraine and Taconite.

INSANE MAN LOOKED FOR

Threatens to Take the Lives of West Duluth People.

Wife Says He is Not Safe; Wishes Mind Examined.

After an absence of about a year from his home at 6415 Green street, John Walstad, a former inmate of the state insane asylum, returned last evening in the neighborhood of his old home, and terrified the residents with threats of violence and an apparent desire to kill.

Mrs. Walstad, wife of the alleged crazy man, after his demonstrations of last night, this morning visited the probate court with a request that her husband be examined for insanity. Later she called upon the West Duluth police force in search of Walstad, who had disappeared after terrorizing the neighborhood the night before.

She said that ten years ago her husband first showed signs of insanity. The unbalanced state of his mind became apparent in a fanatical belief in spiritualism. His condition became such that he was sent to the asylum from which he escaped three years later and returned to his home. He appeared to be rational then and she allowed him to live with her until a year ago, when the old signs of insanity began to grow upon him again. One day he packed his trunk and went to live with a family on Garfield avenue, and had not been seen or heard of by her until last night. The family on Garfield avenue has moved and a new family, who claims to know nothing about the man, is residing there now.

Mrs. Walstad asks that the police assist her in locating her husband, whom she alleges is not a safe character to be allowed to roam at large. He is supposed to be somewhere in West Duluth. She said they would have called for a policeman to take him in charge last evening, but they had no telephone in the house, and they feared to trust themselves out of doors with a man in his condition nearby.

FALLING CHIMNEY ALARMS.

Occupants of Burning House Awakened by Crash and Escape.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Berger of Seventy-third avenue west and Redruth street were suddenly awakened this morning at about 1:30 o'clock by a loud noise. It proved that the chimney had fallen, and the whole roof of their home was in flames.

A fire alarm was immediately turned in, but as the nearest fire hall, No. 8, was about a mile and a half away, the building was more than half consumed before the department arrived, and was practically destroyed before they got the flames under control.

With the aid of the neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Berger managed to save most of their furniture. Mr. Berger is a musician and composes music. He is said to have lost some pieces that he had been working on for many months, and which he valued at $2,000. The house, which was a large, 10-room building, was owned by Nels Nyhus. It was covered by $500 insurance.

West Duluth Briefs.

Clarence B. Miller, candidate for the Republican nomination for congress, spoke last evening at a festival given at the Great Eastern hall. There was also an excellent program of music. The festival was under the direction of Alex Enna, choir director of the First Swedish Methodist church.

Joseph Prokofsky and Tony Gvaegoewoski, who were arrested at Smithville, suspected of having placed an iron plate on the Northern Pacific tracks, will be taken to their homes in Minneapolis by their parents. Word has been received to this effect by the police force. The parents are expected to arrive today. Neither of the boys is over 15 years old, and had stolen rides on the freight trains all the way from Minneapolis to see an uncle they claim they thought lived in Duluth. No trace could be found of their uncle.

FOUR MORE INDICTED

Charles Hill Held for Attempted Robbery in First Degree.

Fred Ballard Enters Plea of Guilty to Forgery Charge.

Four more indictments were returned this morning by the grand jury for the September term of district court, now in session. The grand jury also reported failure to find true bills in two cases, which were brought before them.

An indictment was returned against Ilizia Zrinic, charging an unmentionable crime committed June 27, 1908, at the town of Costin.

Axel Lind was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. It is charged that July 29 at Iron Junction, he stole a Winchester rifle and a canvas rifle case from James H. Peters.

Frank Reamer was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. It is charged that on Aug. 21, he stole an Irish Setter pup, owned by A. A. Farrington, from Frank Porter, in whose charge the dog had been placed.

Charles Hill was indicted for attempted robbery in the first degree. It is charged that in company with an accomplice he attempted to rob Henry Olin in the city of Duluth. He is charged with holding him up and using violence, although he did not succeed in robbing him.

No true bill was found against George Morgan, a Chisholm brewery wagon driver, who was charged with embezzlement and forgery. Morgan was said to have secured about $600, but the grand jury failed to find the evidence binding. No true bill was also found against John J. Alton.

The men indicted by the grand jury yesterday were arraigned before the court this morning. Counsel was assigned to those having no counsel and they will plead tomorrow morning. Fred Ballard, indicted yesterday for forgery, refused counsel and entered a plea of guilty this morning. He is charged with forging a check for $6 on the Citizens' National bank of Duluth last June.

THE SAVANNA COPPER COMPANY

Copper Gulf and Comanche Mining Companies Consolidate.

The Silver City Independent of Silver City, N. M., in its issue of last Tuesday, has the following to say about the consolidation of the Copper Gulf and Comanche Mining & Smelting companies:

"The Copper Gulf Mining company and the Comanche Mining & Smelting company's extensive mining interests situated in the Burro mountains have been consolidated, and the new merger is known as the Savanna Copper company, with an authorized capital of $2,000,000, divided into 200,000 shares of the par value of $10 each. Of the capital stock, one-half, or 100,000 shares, will be full paid and issued to acquire the stock of the Comanche and Copper Gulf companies. The remaining 100,000 shares will be treasury stock, to be used for working capital. Fifty thousand shares will be held open for immediate subscription on or call of $2 per share, the balance of $5 payable when needed, to be determined by the board of directors of the Savanna Copper company. To provide for the immediate payment of the debts of the Comanche company, stockholders are asked to contribute 10 cents for each shares held by them. Of the 100,000 full paid shares of the Savanna company one-half will be allotted to the Comanche holders who contribute 10 cents a share on their present holdings, which insures the payment of the Comanche indebtedness, and assures a sum of $100,000 for working capital at once. The consolidate stockholders have until Sept. 30, 1908, to join the plan and receive full paid up stock.

"The consolidation of the two great companies, the Copper Gulf and Comanche, into the greater Savanna Copper company, places under one management 6,000 acres of the richest copper bearing land in the world, and with the single exception of Cananea, is the largest holdings owned and controlled by one company in the great Southwestern country, which includes the states of Colorado, Utah, Nevada and California, the territories of New Mexico and Arizona in the United States, and the state of Sonora in the republic of Mexico.

"Within the area of land embraced in the consolidated interests are the exceptionally rich leached porphyrys of the Burro mountains. Outlined on the surface, as indicated by the fissures and fault-planes, there are eight great ore courses which have been practically developed through the medium of exploitations and explorations in the Boone, Virginia, Gettysburg, Mexican, Copper Gulf, Oquawka, Comanche and other mines in the consolidation. That other ore deposits of great extent and value will be discovered, exposed and developed through plans now being formulated ,and which will be inaugurated by the first of October, is a conclusion borne out by surface conditions, explorations and developments now being made in adjacent territory.

"Since the appointment of E. A. Wayne as trustee of the Comanche company he has been largely instrumental in saving the company from bankruptcy sale, and to him is due the hearty co-operation of leading Milwaukee capitalists who have accorded him every aid in his personal endeavor, consistent with business principles, to bring about the great merger which is destined to accomplish so much for the stockholders, large and small, of the old organizations, and of much permanent benefit to the mining industry of Grant county and Southwestern New Mexico.

"The Savanna company's holdings have very close to 1,000,000 tons of ore in sight of an average value of 3 per cent concentrating and smelting ore. The development work which has been accomplished aggregates over 14,000 linear feet with 1,000,000 tons of ore to the credit of the exploration, in addition to the large amount which has been mined and smelted. The neighboring company, the Burro Mountain Copper company, has upwards of 5,000,000 tons blocked out, and the Chemung, belonging to the Cole-Ryan, or United States Steel interests, is close up with nearly or quite 2,000,000 tons now in sight.

"The consideration and negotiations which have led up to the merger and the organization of the Savanna Copper company have been in progress for several months and its success at the very inception of the enterprise is an assured fact, supported by an ample supply of ore to begin operations, exceptionally good smelting facilities and mines to draw from, which cannot be exhausted during the present century.

The Savanna Smelter.

"Formerly the property of the Com-three-fourths of a mile below Silver City. Now that the main issues of the merger have been arranged, the many details incident to and connected with negotiations of this character will be disposed of, and the smelting works, which have added so much to the prosperity of Silver City will again be in operation. The daily capacity in tons with the present furnaces ranges from 250 to 300, and this can be doubled in twenty days by the completion of the new furnace now partially compleed. The furnaces are of the most approved type known to metallurgical science.

"Ore bins of immense tonnage capacity have been constructed, and so conveniently arranged that the removal of ores to the charging floors can be accomplished economically and swiftly, an item in smelting operations which materially lessens the cost of reduction.

The large new concentrator will be run in connection with the smelter, and will be a valuable auxiliary to the new company in the treatment of ores from the Burro mountains and elsewhere. The main ore supply will be drawn from the company's mines, but custom ore will be purchased and fair and square treatment accorded the miner. The fluxes necessary for smelting purposes will be derived from the company's holdings in the near vicinity of Silver City, on the line of their railroad to Pinos Altos.

"The works are conveniently situated on the line of the Silver City branch of the Santa Fe road, are well equipped with machinery and the necessary switches connecting with the main line of railroads with the works, and occupy a commanding position in the smelting world by reason of many conveniences not enjoyed by works of a similar character.

"The management has been confined to E. A. Wayne, who brings to his new field of labor the practical knowledge of many years experience gained in Montana and Arizona in the business of mining and smelting, the management and direction of mining enterprises in other localities. Mr. Wayne will score an unqualified success in the manipulation of the affairs of the Savanna Copper company.

"The future is very bright, and a successful era of unmeasured prosperity in mining and smelting for the new company is a positive certainty.

FRED McGUIRE STILL MISSING

Nothing Learned Concerning Whereabouts of the Duluth Teamster.

No word has yet been received concerning the whereabouts of Fred McGuire, the Duluth teamster who so mysteriously disappeared from home a week ago last Tuesday. His aged mother is daily hoping to learn something of his whereabouts, but as yet no news has been forthcoming.

McGuire, who is 45 years old, was employed by Whitney Bros., contractors, and has been driving teams around Duluth for the last twenty years. His mother came west a year ago, from Massachusetts, to live with her son, and says they had lived together happily. Without a word of his intentions, McGuire left home Tuesday morning of last week, and has not been seen or heard of since.

FRED McGUIRE.

Not content with putting the matter in the hands of the police, Mrs. McGuire is prosecuting the search herself, and has visited all the railroad offices in Duluth and Superior, carrying with her a photograph of the man, and asking the ticket agents if they remember having seen him.

CRUSHED UNDER A LOCOMOTIVE

F. W. Brewer is Seriously Injured in the Local Yards.

F. W. Brewer of 3713 Railroad alley, conductor on the Northern Pacific, fell underneath the wheels of a moving engine at the Union depot at 11:30 o'clock this morning, and suffered a compound fracture of the left leg and a fracture of the right foot. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where it was said this afternoon that he would recover.

The railroad officials have secured no complete report of the accident yet. No one appears to know exactly how it happened, but it is understood that Mr. Brewer was riding on the pilot of the engine, when his foot slipped, and he rolled underneath the engine before it could be brought to a stop.

DECREASE NOT LARGE

Railroad Statistics Show Business Was Better Than Expected.

Passenger Travel Was Heavy During Month of August.

Figures approximately representing the business, both passenger and freight, done by the roads at the Head of the Lakes, during the month of August, show that the aggregate business fell off over 20 per cent from August of last year.

That both passenger and freight business did not suffer a greater decrease, taking into consideration the general business conditions, is considered a good record by railroad men.

The passenger business, which has been uniformly good all summer, showed a falling off of only a trifle over 5 per cent from August of last year. The falling off in the freight business was more pronounced, however. This was largely due to the falling off in coal shipments.

Here is a typical example: Last August Crookston received forty-two carloads of commercial coal. This year that town has received but eight carloads. The decrease in the shipment of coal may be emphasized by the statement that 28,000 tons less coal have been shipped from the Head of the Lakes during the month just past than were shipped in August a year ago.

Duluth alone has shipped over 14,000 less tons than the roads here shipped West a year ago.

The lumber movement at the present time is steady, with fairly heavy shipments to Chicago and the West. The shipment of lumber has shown improvement during August.

Prospects point to a falling off of the passenger business during the present month. The colonist rates are not liable to attract many settlers for the simple reason that the crops in this part of the country have been good and farmers are not seeking new homes. The tourist travel is over. The calamity in the Mesaba range is quite likely to show its effect on travel. It is estimated by passenger officials that many workmen will leave the ranges, just as they did last fall, when the money stringency came on the country. Calamities of this kind invariably increase travel, but its effect would be purely local and would not have a general effect outside of the roads at the Head of the Lakes.

LILLEY NAMED FOR GOVERNOR

Connecticut Republicans Rent by Nomination of the Congressman.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 9.—The Republican convention today nominated for governor, Congressman George L. Lilley, who preferred corruption charges before the naval affairs committee of the house of representatives. He received 402 votes out of 577, the remainder being cast for Lieut. Gov. Lake and Gov. Woodruff.

Added to the list of Republican states which threaten to go Democratic next November, because of factional fights in the ranks of the dominant party, is Connecticut. The attitude of the manufacturers who, at a meeting here yesterday, adopted resolutions protesting against the nomination of Lilley, as "inimicable to the best interests of Connecticut and disastrous to the supremacy of the Republican party in the state," was a matter of grave concern to the party leaders.

GEORGE L. LILLEY.

United States Senator Brandegee called the convention to order and made a brief address, after which the names of candidates for governor was presented. John H. Light of Norwalk, ex-speaker of the state house of representatives, nominated Congressman Lilley. Light said Lilley had shown his courage in rising from a sick bed to refuse to retract anything he had done in the submarine inquiry.

Judge E. J. Garvan of Hartford presented the name of Lieut. Governor Everett J. Lake and Col. J. Moss Ives of Danbury, presented the name of Governor Woodruff. Rev. G. W. Clark of Brooklyn and Frank L. Brown of Norwich, seconded Lilley's nomination.

WHAT HOLDS UP THAT BRIDGE?

Duluth People Are Exasperated Over the Many Delays.

What's the matter with the interstate bridge?

Who is holding up operations? Why doesn't it swing? Why are there not men working there?

These are the questions that are bothering Duluth and Superior people these days. Ever since the steamer Troy bumped it into the water some two years ago, the officials of the bridge company have done little but promise.

Tired now of even promising, these same officials settle comfortably into their chairs and say to wait a while.

There are no men working on the bridge. Everything seems to be in readiness, but the bridge doesn't swing. One lone man was seen yesterday painting the under works, and he was the only one at work. The viaducts on both sides of the bay have been completed for some time. They have swung the bridge at different times, and one whole day about two weeks ago it was open to team traffic.

The officials are indifferent; the Great Northern road "really does not know," and the street car company hasn't heard anything.

YOUNG LIVES ARE TRAGICALLY TAKEN

Five Little Children Are Suffocated Near New Brighton, Minn.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the parents were away from home, the residence of J. C. Burdett, near New Brighton, fifteen miles northwest of here, burned last evening and five small children, ranging from 5 to 10 years of age, met death by suffocation.

Neighbors, seeing the house on fire, rushed to the burning building to save the furniture, not knowing that the children were within. The cause of the fire is unknown.

FIRE TAKES LIFE IN CRICKET CLUB

Man Burned to Death and Two Women Severely Hurt.

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—One man was burned to death, two women were seriously injured and several others more or less badly burned early today in a fire which destroyed the men's and women's buildings of the Philadelphia Cricket club at Chestnut Hill, a suburb.

YOUNG COUPLES FAVORED

By Marrying Justice, Who Gives Them All Good Advice.

Belleville, Ill., Sept. 9.—"Young couples to whom life is just opening up as one long, rosy dream are my favorites, although I marry those as they come, and with the ceremony I give them all a bit of good advice which, if followed, will steer their matrimonial ship into placid waters."

This is the "platform" enunciated by Justice James W. McCullough, Belleville's famous marrying justice, who has married 1,200 couples with more or less happy results. Justice McCullough attained his 65th birthday Sunday.

"While I don't know positively, yet I don't believe many of my couples reach to the other end of the lane—the divorce court," he says.

"HOUSE OF HEAVEN."

Woman Witness Said That It Looked Like a Harem.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 9.—Walter V. Holloway, national lecturer for the Socialist party, his wife, Alice Holloway, and Mrs. Bertha M. Dailey have been expelled from the party on the ground that their conduct has become a menace to its welfare.

Behind the formal announcement is a story of a "spirit marriage." The kernel of Holloway's spiritual propaganda is that marriage is a divinely ordained institution, but that numbers don't count. His fellow-disciples objected to the sort of instruction he gave young married women, and the extra "spook" marriages.

A young unmarried woman Socialist was a witness against Holloway. She said she had been invited to be "sealed" to Holloway by the high priest of spirits. She declined. According to her, the lecturer planned a "house of heaven." This, she said, was only another name for a harem.

Electric Power in Chili.

Many projects are now under way or under consideration, for the utilization of the numerous sources of electric power that are furnished by the streams descending from the Andes in Chili. Many people agree that for a table beverage, nothing is quite so delicious as golden grain belt beer. It pleases the palate and satisfies the thirst. HORSEWHIP USED

By an Enraged Wife on Her Husband's Alleged Affinity.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 9.—Because she suspected Mrs. Annie Russ, a handsome widow, of being her husband's affinity, Mrs. Mary South, accompanied by her daughter, hunted up the widow and gave her a sound thrashing. When mother and daughter met Mrs. Russ on the crowded street, the latter was seized by the daughter while the mother used a whip.

"You will hug my husband, will you," screamed Mrs. South as she brought the whip across the plump shoulders of the widow.

"Take that and that," cried the angry wife, plying the whip until the alleged affinity screamed for mercy. The parties stand well and Mrs. South alleges that her home has been wrecked by Mrs. Russ.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CROOKSTON INTERESTED

One of Heirs of John Rupp Resides in That City.

May Figure in Division of Fortune of Wealthy Shamokin Man.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Much local interest is attached to the recent exhuming of the body of John Rupp at Shamokin, Pa., and recovering his birth certificate, which was the important link lacking in tracing his being a direct descendant of Heinrich Rupp, who died intestate the fore part of the last century, leaving an immense fortune, which the German government assumed charge of, and which now amounts to over $20,000,000, and which will be paid over as soon as the legal heirs can prove their claims, owing to the fact that one of the few heirs is Mrs. William L. Davies of this city. John Rupp left six children when he died, Jesse, John, William Penn, Samuel, Jacob and Sarah, all of whom were married, excepting the last named, and all of whom are dead.

William Penn Rupp, who made his home at Monmouth for half a century, died in 1897 in his 90th year. He was the father of five children, Mrs. Edward Gannon of Oakland, Cal., Mrs. Holol Cole of Los Angeles, Cal., Mrs. William L. Davies of Crookston, Mrs. Anthony Gannon and White Rupp, the two latter being dead.

Able attorneys have been retained and the matter will at once be taken up with the German government and the complete chain of evidence establishing the direct descendancy of John Rupp from Heinrich Rupp submitted.

The heirs have been working on the case for a number of years, but not until recently was any organized effort made, which culminated in the opening of the grave of John Rupp in the presence of nearly a score of relatives Sept. 1.

FARMERS' RACES AT BEMIDJI FAIR

Novel Feature to be Given by Beltrami Fair Association.

Bemidji, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. R. Mackenzie, secretary of the Beltrami County Agricultural association, announces that an innovation in the horse racing at the coming fair, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 24, 25 and 26.

Instead of spending a large sum of money for horses, to be raced for by professional horsemen, Mr. Mackenzie says that the fair management has decided to put on a series of farmers' races, in which only horses that have been used on the farm, will be allowed to participate.

These races will be conducted in such a manner that they cannot prove otherwise than very interesting.

The first race for each day will be a pole team race for farmers, pace or trot, best two heats out of three. First prize, $25; second, $15; third, $7.50.

The second race will be for farmers' single-driving horses. The rules of this race are that all sulkies must be at the starting place 5 minutes before the word "go" is given for the race; all horses that participate in the race must be led on the track by the halter. When "go" is given by the starter; owners of horses must harness and also hitch them to the sulkey and start on the race, without further signal. No horse or vehicle which has ever been previously used in a race will be allowed in these farmers' races. They are gotten up strictly for the farmers of Beltrami county, and no race horse will be allowed to contest for the purses.

In addition to the farmers' races, there will be a pony race on Thursday and Saturday, open to ponies owned in Beltrami county, not over fourteen and a half hands high. This race will be for the best two out of three heats, for the following purses: first, $10; second, $5; third, $2.50.

CLOQUET CELEBRATED IT.

Completion of Water System Occasion for Successful Banquet.

Cloquet, Minn., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The banquet given for the city council on the completion of the city waterworks Monday evening was a great success. About 1,500 took part in the celebration and each who was called upon for a short address or a few words responded with alacrity. The evening was not only featured by the enthusiasm shown, but also by the pleasure of the affair.

The toasts were as follows, the toastmaster being Walter L. Case:

"Our Greatest Need Accomplished," Mayor S. Wilson.

"Business Before Pleasure," Judge W. H. Skemp.

"From an Editors Standpoint," F. D. Vibert.

"H 2 O," Supt. W. C. Cobb.

"Official Responsibility," F. V. Inskeep.

HORSE THIEF SENTENCED.

Antone Langee Sent Up From Rolette County for Year and Half.

Rolla, N. D., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Antoine Langee, the half breed who was recently arrested by Sheriff Belford on the charge of horse stealing in Rolette county, pleaded guilty to the charge in the district court and was sentenced to a year and six months in the penitentiary.

It is said that Langee is wanted by the Montana authorities for a crime committed later, and he will be taken in charge by Montana officials at the expiration of his sentence and stand trial.

HISGEN IN NORTH DAKOTA.

Independence Party Candidate Expected to Visit Neighboring State.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—North Dakota is to have a visit from another presidential candidate.

Thomas Hisgen of Massachusetts, the candidate of the Independence party, has started on his tour of the country, and will make a total of over two hundred addresses before he returns to his home, Oct. 31.

The committee having his route in charge has decided to send Mr. Hisgen to North Dakota, but have not yet decided on his exact route.

Two or three addresses will be delivered in this state, Grand Forks and Fargo being already slated for addresses, and it is likely that one or two other cities will be visited.

Mr. Hisgen is considered one of the best speakers in the country, being considered the equal of Mr. Bryan in many respects, and his addresses have been heard by immense crowds.

NERVY POLICE CHIEF.

Enters Barn Where Murderer is Entrenched and Takes Him.

Bessemer, Mich., Sept. 9.—As a result of a free-for-all fight among Italians at Ramsay, Peter Colombo was killed, being shot, it is alleged, by James Haketto. He was arrested after a desperate battle with the chief of Bessemer police department.

Haketto fled after the shooting and the chief of police, who was notified of the affray by telephone a few minutes after medical help reached her. For some time she had been subject to heart trouble, and it was that which caused her death. She was 40 years old.

Haketto was discovered in a loft of a barn a mile from this city.

Leaving a deputy below to guard against escape, the chief went into the loft and after a desperate fight threw the Italian from the loft to the ground, where the deputy clapped irons on his wrist.

FREIGHT DEPOT CONTRACT AWARDED BY SOO ROAD.

Minot, N. D., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—D. A. Dinnie, a local contractor, has landed the contract for the construction of the mammoth new Soo freight depot, to cost in the neighborhood of $50,000.

The job is one of the biggest let in the Magic City for years. The depot will be 300 by 50 feet, a part of which will be two stories. There will be excellent offices for the officials of the road, and eight large freight doors from which feright will be received and given out.

ENGINEER FATALLY SCALDED.

Elza Smith of Minot Meets Horrible End in Montana.

Minot, N. D., Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pinned under the debris, and overcome with hot water, pouring out of the boiler, Elza Smith, of Minot, engineer on the Havre division of the Great Northern, was scalded to death near Glasgow, Mont., day before yesterday.

The body of Mr. Smith was brought to Minot and buried from here. Mr. Smith had two brothers living in Minot, and one in Montana.

The terrible death of the engineer was caused by spreading of the rails and the consequent derailment of the engine. The train was going at a rapid rate, and on leaving the track the engine plunged down the embankment.

Smith was caught under the debris, and while struggling to get away was scalded to death by the steam and boiling hot water that poured out of the boiler. The other trainmen escaped without serious injury, but were powerless to help Smith.

Williston Woman Burned.

Williston, N. D., Sept. 9.—Mrs. Gust Hval poured keroseno upon fuel, which she thought was unlighted and an explosion followed which enveloped her in flames. She raneup an down an alley fanning the flames until she fell senseless. A little babe sitting near was slightly burned. Mrs. Hval will die.

Hancock—Mrs. Angus F. Macdonald, wife of City Clerk Macdonald of Hancock, suddenly became ill upon her arrival home from a shopping trip Tuesday afternoon and medical help reached her. For some time she had been subject to heart trouble, and it was that which caused her death. She was 40 years old.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Grand Marais.—Rev. Mr. Higgens of the Presbyterian church has left for New York city, where he goes to visit his wife and children, whom he has not seen since coming to Grand Marais nearly a year ago.

Onamia.—An Indian and his squaw had a narrow escape from drowning in Onamia lake Monday. Their canoe filled with water while they were out in the center of the lake, but one end floated sufficiently to help hold them up. Robert Swenson heard their cries for help and secured a boat and rescued them.

Crookston.—Carl Riedosel has returned from a visit to the farm of H. Wieland, which is located near Fisher, and he says that he never saw such fine corn as is growing on the place. The height, the size of the ears and the development, he believes, cannot be excelled any place in the corn belt.

Mankato.—Fire destroyed the R. L. Houk mill and elevator at Good Thunder early Sunday morning, entailing a loss of $40,000 and dealing a bad blow to the village, as the mill was the principal industry there. The insurance amounts to $20,000.

Little Falls.—Another of Morrison county's oldest residents answered the last summons Saturday night when Mrs. Melanie Rivard died at the hospital. Death was due to old age. The deceased was 88 years of age and had been a resident of this city and county for many years.

Carlton.—The high smokestack at the R. Smith & Co. elevator was laid low by the high wind. The smokestack will not be raised, as Mr. Smith has decided to install an eighty-horse power motor in his elevator at once and do away with the use of steam power.

International Falls.—Little Edward S. Stone, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Stone of this place, died on Wednesday, Sept. 2, one month old lacking one day. The funeral took place at the Baptist church on Friday, Rev. H. E. Fuller officiating.

Madison. — Mystery surrounds the death in Chicago of C. Bertrand Walters, formerly of this city. Found missing last Friday, search was instituted and he was found in a hospital—dead. The circumstances of his demise are a complete enigma to his friends.

Osceola.—Thieves stole the Sunday school missionary bank from the M. E. church at Frederic and secured between $20 and $30. The bank, broken to pieces on a stump, was found near the church.

Chippewa Falls.—Burr W. Jones, well known Madison lawyer and politician, was married here Monday to Miss Katherine McDonald. The wedding was celebrated at the home of A. J. McGillivray, uncle of the bride.

Racine.—The Swedish central conference in session here has decided to pension superannuated ministers. Dr. William Henshen of Chicago led the fight for the aged preachers. The conference determined that the church could not demand more than thirty-five years of the preacher's life and then he was free to retire on a pension of $350 a year.

Tony.—Notices have been sent out by the town board to all residents that the practice of burning the stumps and brush must cease unless it rains.

Milwaukee.—Mrs. William Plankinton, widow of William Plankinton, and mother of William Woods Plankinton, died at 9 o'clock Monday night after an illness of several weeks at her home, 505 Terrace place.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Grand Forks, N. D.—George A. Bangs, who has been ill at Chicago the past month, undergoing an operation for appendicitis, states that he expects to arrive home Wednesday. He has almost entirely recovered from the effects of the operation and is feeling splendid.

Bowbells, N. D.—The Northern Construction company of Grand Forks has been awarded the contract for the erection of a new school here. The contract was let at $15,165, exclusive of heating and plumbing. The firm is allowed until January 1 to complete the job, but hopes to be able to finish the contract before that time.

Devils Lake, N. D.—B. J. Ness has been arrested here, on a charge of violating the game laws, it being charged that he shot ducks from a boat between the hours of 5 and 8 o'clock in the morning, which is contrary to the provisions of the game laws.

Fargo, N. D.—Wade Murray, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Murray, was brought to the city Saturday evening, and taken to St. John's hospital, where he was operated on for a gun-shot wound received while hunting near Horace, Saturday afternoon.

Minot, N. D.—The natural gas company has struck a big flow of water in a well near Westhope, which saves the company about $5 a day in operating the drilling machinery.

Dickinson, N. D.—The regular term of the district court opened on Tuesday, Sept. 8, with Judge Winchester, presiding. No jury has been drawn and the session will be a short one.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Secretary Turner, of the North Dakota Field Trials club, has received a $20 bank-note, donated by W. D. Gilchrist, of Courtland, Ontario, who asked that the money be used in the purchase of a cup to be offered for the membership event, at the trial next year.

DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY

The "Coppers," as this property is locally known, are located in the Matzatzall mountains, about 15 miles west of the village of Payson, Tonto Basin, on the southwest side of the East Verde river, in an air line about 60 miles south-of-east of Jerome. The group consists of 44 claims, running north and south, six claims in length, taking in the three big ledges which they were located to cover. Through the east side of the property, and traversing the entire length of the group, is a mammoth iron dyke, which contains shutes of ore that carry 17 per cent copper, as well as 5 ounces of silver and 80 cents in gold. Elsewhere in the southwest where a similar iron has been developed, there has always been a pay mine opened.

Through the six center and west line claims the immense ore outcroppings run in which at intervals there are large and rich deposits of high grade copper ore, and from all of it pay assays have been the result where samples have been taken. Running along the west line of the "Coppers" is an immense slate dyke, and along its east side an immense porphyry dyke. The formations are iron of different character, porphry, a slate-porphry and slate. The ground has every appearance of being in place, and where work has been done it has so proven.

In several places cuts have been made into the out croppings, all of them being in pay rock. There is an abundance of water and timber for all mining and smelting purposes. Power for the mines would be taken from the Fossil creek power proposition, which is now being developed. The claims are only 12 miles from the power plant.

EXTRACTS FROM ENGINEER'S REPORT

Jerome, Aug. 5, 1908.—To the Stockholders of the Mazatzal Copper company: The manager submits the following report of the work on the property to date and a review of our plans and expectations for the future:

In driving the Bullfrog tunnel a body of silicious sulphide ore, apparently of vein formation was encountered and gave assay values of 5½ per cent copper, 5 per cent galena, 2 ounces silver and 40 cents gold.

I decided to explore this ore body and drifted on it for a distance of 170 feet to the south. For the first twenty-two feet we had sulphides ranging in value from 4 to 11 per cent, the higher values being from the floor of the drift and then carbonate ores for nearly 150 feet assaying from 6 to 15 per cent with occasional samples as high as 23 per cent.

At 70 feet from the main tunnel a crosscut was run to the west for thirty feet, showing a width of thirty-five feet with NEITHER WALL exposed and showing carbonate ores of good grade. The face of the main drift has a vertical depth of 140 feet under a splendid surface cropping of carbonate ore.

Another tunnel 400 feet to the south of the Bullfrog shows a width of 25 feet of carbonate ore in the same ore body.

Believing that water level would define the sulphide zone, a shaft was started in the crosscut just mentioned. A station was cut, a hoist purchased and at this date the shaft was down thirty-one feet. For the first sixteen feet good carbonates were found. At the bottom permanency of formation is very evident, there being well defined laminations of carbonates and a rather soft vein filling showing dip and strike conforming to the slate hanging wall. ELIMINATING THE CARBONATES, this vein filling, coated with copper sulphide, assays from 2 to 4 per cent.

Since the commencement of operations I have at no time been so well satisfied with the results and future prospects as at this time. I am confident that depth alone is necessary to disclose sulphide ore bodies of great extent, of good commercial value, and judging from the strike and dip as exposed at a depth of thirty feet, I will not be surprised to find the ore body fully 75 to 100 feet in width at about 100 to 125 feet of depth.

By the first of the year, barring unforseen accidents, I believe that this work will prove that the exceptional surface indications have developed into still larger and better ore bodies at depth and we can with confidence assert that within the next two years the "Mazatzal" will be classed with the Copper Queen of Arizona, the United Verde or the Cananea.

We are now equipped with a boiler, compressor, hoist and pump and our intention is to sink 200 feet and do such crosscutting and drifting as may be deemed advisable in addition to advancing the Bullfrog tunnel a distance of about seventy feet to the next big cropping or ledge. This work will be expedited by the use of larger power drills now on the way to the property.

It should be remembered that we are but twelve miles from the location of the first power station of the Arizona Power company, and that this company expects to deliver 1,500-horse power to the United Verde mine by February next year.

The belief of my associates and myself in the development of one of the notable mines of the West has not only never wavered, but is today stronger, if possible, than ever. I feel safe in saying that the element of uncertainty attending all new mining ventures is eliminated as far as the "Mazatzal Copper company," is concerned and I am satisfied that we will open up ore bodies that will surprise the natives.

JOSEPH J. SHAW.

DEVELOPMENT WORK TO DATE

DEVELOPMENT WORK WAS COMMENCED IN JANUARY, 1907, AND HAS BEEN CONTINUED WITHOUT INTERRUPTION UP TO THE PRESENT TIME, AND THE RESULT IS THAT WE HAVE OVER 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifting, sinking and cross-cutting done to date with most gratifying results to the present stockholders.

Splendid and encouraging reports received weekly and this stock will advance fast, because every foot of sinking or drifting in every direction as it is continued, is in solid and rich ore, and the only dead work done now is in driving and advancing the Bullfrog or main tunnel to the next KNOWN LARGE ORE BODY only 70 feet away, which it is expected will be reached by October 1st or sooner. Our first ore body is fully 60 feet wide and known to be over 400 feet long and the development work shows up more daily, both in drifting on the ore body and sinking on same. Within 90 days the stock will advance to $5 per share and in eight or ten months it will sell for $10 or more, and IN TWO YEARS WILL SELL FOR $50 a share AND IN 4 YEARS FOR $100 OR MORE, AND IN THE MEANTIME PAY HANDSOME DIVIDENDS TO THE FORTUNATE HOLDER OF THE STOCK.

Future Development Work and Plans

decided upon during the next eight or ten months include—

FIRST—1,000 feet of new drifting, cross-cutting and sinking, and continuing the Bullfrog Tunnel to the next big ore body, only 70 feet away now.
SECOND—Of installing a 250-ton smelter and increasing the capacity as fast as possible.
THIRD—Of increasing the force, and push development work vigorously.

REMEMBER IT'S A WINNER

WE OWN FORTY-FOUR MINING CLAIMS—(600x1,500 feet each), embracing 880 acres, in a solid body. Located to cover the three big ledges, two miles long; have absolute and good title and no debts and financially in good shape. Our ore averages 8 per cent copper, and is getting richer as we go deeper, where we have solid and high-grade sulphides below water level and our engineer says, (and he knows what he is talking about, having been, and still is, closely connected with the "United Verde" for the past three years, and prior thereto with the great "Iron Mountain" Copper company of California for a number of years), THAT IN TWO YEARS THE MAZATZAL COPPER COMPANY'S MINE will be classed with such prominent and well known mines as the "United Verde" of Jerome, Copper Queen of Bisbee, Arizona, and the Cananea.

ALSO REMEMBER

That the Company already has many heavy well pleased stockholders in Duluth, and that the subscription books will open Wednesday morning next, September 9th, and the stock will undoubtedly be all subscribed for within two or three days, from assurances already received.

The right is reserved in event of over-subscription, to reject any subscription, either wholly or in part.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

READY FOR BIG FIGHT

Gans and Nelson Meet; Third Time in Two Years.

"If I Lose, I'll Never Fight Again," Says Joe Gans.

San Francisco, Sept. 9.—For the third time within two years Battling Nelson, the lightweight champion and Joe Gans, who held the title for over six years, are to meet this afternoon in the Mission street arena in a contest scheduled to go forty-five rounds. Up to the moment the gong clangs at 2:30 p. m. the odds are expected to remain stationary at the closing quotations of last night, when Nelson ruled a 2 to 1 favorite. Nelson spent the evening at his training quarters, in company with his father, his manager and some of his friends and Gans attended a performance at an Oakland theater. The process of weighing in at 2 o'clock today is expected to be little more than a formality, as both men are said to be within easy striking distance of the 133 pound mark.

Nelson will have as his adviser and chief second Willus Britt and the following as assistants:

Chief Grace, Jeff Perry, Red Cornet and "Mike, the Turk." Benny Selig will advise Gans, who will have as seconds, Frank McDonald, Eddie Hunion and Johnny Murphy.

In a statement given out on the eve of the battle, Battling Nelson asserts his intention of going after Gans as he has previously done and declares it will be simply a question of how long Gans can last. He declares that he is in better shape than ever before and that Gans has been given this opportunity that the public might choose the master.

Gans says his previous defeat to lack of condition and asserts that he has this time trained faithfully. "I will fight as I never fought before," he promises, "and I will come back and win as I did against Mike (Twin) Sullivan, George McFadden and Frank Erne. If I lose this will probably be my last fight."

Giants Welcomed Home.

New York, Sept. 9.—After their successful Western trip, New York was welcomed by over 10,000 fans at the polo grounds yesterday. Brooklyn gave them a hard fight. It was Rucker against Mathewson and the latter won out, but the battle lasted eleven innings. The home team threw away at least two chances by poor base running. The winning run was scored on a base on balls to Seymour. Devlin's sacrifice and hits by McCormick and Gridwell. Doyle was spiked in the fourth inning and Herzog played his position at second base during the remainder of the game. Score: R. H. E.

The Canadian game of lacrosse will form a part of tthe White Sox training program next season, according to an announcement made yesterday by President Charles A. Comiskey of the south side club.

The Old Roman has watched the old Indian game closely for several years and has taken such an interest in it he has presented the three local teams with the Comiskey Cup—emblematic of the local championship.

Comiskey has decided that the game will be an excellent exercise to get the kinks out of his men and put them in shape for playing baseball after their long rest during the winter. Accordingly when the Sox leave on their trip next spring they will be equipped with the paraphernalia used and it is likely one of tho local lacrosse stars will be taken along to coach them.

Manager Fielder Jones also sees the possibilities in the game for developing the speed and endurance of ball players. He is as enthusiastic about the innovation as Comiskey and is eager for the team to have a trial at it.

Football practice will start at the majority of colleges tomorrow. Many of the smaller college teams have been at work for a week or more and will have an advantage over their larger rivals when the early games are played. These college teams do not play the same football at the close of the season as they do in the beginning, for the reason that the players become "stale." The big teams are conditioned gradually, with the result that they are in the best of shape for the final and most important contests.

Yale, champions of the East, and Chicago, the Western champions, are in a plight as to winning elevens. Yale has never been in such hard straits for football material as it is this season. Chicago is in the same predicament, but it is not the first time that Stagg has had to face a similar situation. Heretofore the veteran coach has risen to the occasion and he may rally again.

Little is known of the material which Coach Williams, of Minnesota, will have to deal with when the men turn out for practice. The Gophers always have had big, heavy men and were always a contender for highest honors under the old rules, but from the games played last season, Williams has not diverted enough from the old game to insure a championship for the Northerners. Indications are that he will change his system this fall and the Gopher style of play will be entirely different from any of the plays ever seen on Northrup field.

At present the prospects of Illinois and Indiana loom up as the most promising. Nothing would please followers of the great college pastime better than to see Illinois turn out a team which would win the championship. Illinois has always put teams in the field which were known beforehand to be utterly outclassed by its opponents, but they kept on playing their schedules, without a murmur and there was never a sign of quitting in any of their games.

This year the prospects of the Orange and Blue are probably the most promising of any of the "big eight" teams. When the candidates turn out for practice there will be nine veterans in the squad, besides an entire freshman team which made things interesting for the varsity last season.

Illinois will meet Chicago on Oct. 17, and the downstaters have every reason to look for a victory over the Maroons, and in fact for a season which should be among the best in the history of the institution.

HIBBING VS. IRONWOOD

Will Duluth Fans Have to Settle This Fight Too?

Manager Brady of Hibbing Would Play for $500.

The Hibbing baseball team passed through the city last evening on their way home from Ironwood, where they dropped something like five or six games to the farmer lads, and they struck town with a howl that could be heard a long way on a still night.

The whole team is quite peevish over the way the Ironwood fellows treated them, and quite angry about certain decisions made by the Ironwood umpire. They have grown defiant, helped along by the sympathy of friends, and Manager Brady whispered something about playing Ironwood for the sum of $500.

Like the Eveleth-Virginia contest this game would be played in Duluth—and for blood; then they might journey out to the park and play real baseball—just like two of the Eveleth-Virginia series.

Mr. Brady says he does not want to be thought a bad loser, a kicker and all that, but according to him it was "very raw;" "very raw."

BIG CONTEST AT GOLF GROUNDS

President's and Vice President's Side to Play Annual Match.

Out at the Country club, Friday afternoon, the President's and Vice President's annual match will be played off. This contest is looked forward to each year as the big social event of the summer season at the links, and much interest is displayed on the outcome of the match.

It is, however, more of a good-time day than anything else, and the play is only a side issue, in the host of other amusements that have been provided for the amusement of the members.

After the match is played off, which by the way, begins at 4 o'clock, dinner will be served, and the evening spent enjoying amusements that have been provided by the committee.

THEY LIKE DAN PATCH.

Detroit People Cheer Minnesota Horse as He Nearly Breaks Record.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 9.—Dan Patch paced a mile in 1:56¾ yesterday evening at the state fair; the fastest mile ever driven in Michigan. The famous pacer failed to break his record of 1:55, but would undoubtedly have come much nearer making a new record if the crowd from the field had not swarmed on the track, compelling Driver Hersey to keep far out from the fence. About 30,000 persons cheered the pacer when the fast mile was finished. Dan Patch was paced by two runners and the time by quarters was as follows: 30, 1:00, 1:29½ and 1:56¾. The track was fast and Dan Patch had two workouts on the track before being brought out about 4:30 for the trial against record.

MUCH INTEREST.

Shown in Golf Championship to be Played Off Next Week.

New York, Sept. 9.—Entries for the amateur championship of the United States Golf association, the play for which will occupy the links of the Garden City Golf club from Monday to Saturday of next week, closed last night. Up to a late hour this evening 152 entries had been received.

Secretary Morgan said that the list was a representative one and continued, the names of the recent champion, Jerome D. Travers of Monticello, N. J., as well as those of three former title holders—Walter J. Travis, Garden City; Finley S. Douglass, Nassau, and Eben M. Byers, Pittsburg.

UMPS FOR WORLD SERIES.

Cincinanti, Ohio, Sept. 9.—For the world's championship baseball games, there will hereafter be four umpires, the national baseball commission yesterday announcing a decision to that effect. Two shall be named from the National and two from the American league staff of umpires, and their service is to be subject to the direction of the chairman of the commission. A recommendation to this effect, made some weeks ago by the commission, has ben approved by both leagues, and the rule was thereupon drawn up and announced, being numbered section 14 of the rules and regulations covering such contests.

FIRST GAME SATURDAY

High School Boys Will Line Up Against the Alumni.

The Weather So Far Is Too Warm for Hard Work.

Saturday afternoon at Athletic park the High school football squad will line up against the alumni of the big brownstone building for the annual practice game. In this game almost every candidate for the eleven will be given a chance to show what he can do, and it will be more of a good hard tryout than anything else.

While the weather so far has been extremely warm for football practice, the boys have done well, and are rapidly rounding into condition. More than enough have turned out for two teams and while Coach Colton has allowed no scrimmages as yet he expects to start this line of practice very soon.

The point which bothers the oaches and the captain is the fact that the big men of the freshmen class fail to show up. They seem to be afraid to come on the field, and feel that they are not wanted. The hopes and ambitions of the team this year rest on what the freshman class may bring forth and it is the earnest desires of the school that they turn out.

So far only light practice, such as kicking the ball, falling on it, light tackling, running and so on have been attempted. So far the team has been training out at Hunter's park. Beginning today the practice will be held each afternoon at Athletic park.

Coach Colton is trying to impress on the minds of the men that the second team is just as important as the first team, and that a strong second team is necessary to make the first team a winning one. Each year more than enough for two teams turn out the first few days, become discouraged, fail to show up, and the regulars are left to go through their work alone, and so do not get the experience they should in practice. There is mighty little glory in getting out and letting the first team fellows run all over you, but its the stuff that football coaches like to see in a man.

ROLLIE ZEIDER

Has Been Sold to Manager Comiskey of Chicago Team.

Rollie Zeider, the clever little third baseman of last year's Winnipeg Northern league team, and who has been playing shortstop for Seattle in the Pacific Coast league, will play with the Chicago White Sox next year.

For the rest of this year Manager Comiskey of the Chicago team has loaned him to the San Francisco club.

Since going out to the coast, Zeider has been playing mighty fast ball from all accounts, and the big managers have been trying to capture him for the past four months. The trade as it stands is said to be a good one, three players, and a snug sum of money being given in exchange for Zeider.

While playing with Winnipeg Zeider made many friends among the fans by his clever work on the third bag.

COLLINGS MADE A FLAT DENIAL

Of Statements by Former Employe of the Standard Oil.

New York, Sept. 9.—In the testimony in the government's suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company before Referee Ferriss yesterday, in this city, C. T. Collings, second vice president of the Standard Oil company, denied that he had at any time supplied money to enable Standard Oil employes to get information concerning competitors from railroad men.

Asked about the testimony of a former salesman of the company that he had fooled customers to the Standard's advantage, by trimming lamp wicks unevenly, and other tricks, the witness said it was impossible, and added that the company told in its circulars to customers all that the company had learned through years of experience as to how to get the best results from the kerosene lamps.

Witness said that he had not been in Illinois for at least five years before the date on which Charles Kirscher, a former employe of the Standard, claimed that Collings had bribed him to swear to things not true.

COLLECTION OF GARBAGE

City Has the Right to Do the Work Itself.

Stephenson's Final Proposition on Municipal Court Rooms.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Authorized appointment of committee to work for extension of street railway to Bay View Heights and Proctor.

Decided to include in city hospital pine buildings to care for all sorts of diseases, as well as for contagious cases.

Received city attorney's opinion that city has a right to attend to garbage collection itself, without private contractors, if it so desires.

City engineer gives estimates of lighting aerial bridge, favoring general illumination rather than the word "Duluth."

John A. Stephenson submits further particulars of new building, one floor of which he wishes to lease for municipal court purposes.

Adopted resolutions of regret that city cannot contribute to aid of fire sufferers, and endorsed action of all organizations now raising funds for the stricken people.

The city has a right to do its own collecting of garbage, according to an opinion of Assistant City Attorney Morgan, read at the council meeting last night.

There has been a question as to whether the work of collecting garbage, under the proposed new ordinance would have to be let out by contract, or whether the city could attend to the work itself. At a recent meeting of the council the city attorney was asked for an opinion.

Mr. Morgan says the city can either let the work by contract, or do it itself. He further states that any obligations incurred by the city in making such contracts shall not be deemed a part of the indebtedness. The new ordinance was not considered last night, but definite action in regard to it probably will be taken next week.

John A. Stephenson submitted further particulars in regard to his proposition to provide the city with municipal court rooms in the building he proposes to erect next the police station. He offers to construct the second floor along lines suggested by the city, and to grant a 10-year lease of the floor to Duluth, the rental to be $175 a month for the first five years, and $200 a month for the second five years. He will ling that a provision should be made in the lease whereby the city can vacate the building upon six months' notice, should a new city hall be erected before the expiration of the lease.

Alderman Shartel offered a resolution expressing regret that, under the charter, Duluth cannot extend financial aid to the Chisholm fire sufferers, and indorsing the action of the churches, civic bodies and other organization in extending financial and other assistance to the people in the stricken district. The resolution was adopted.

City Engineer McGilvray reported that the cost of wiring the aerial bridge so as to illuminate it in the form of the word "Duluth," would cost $2,500. A general illumination of the bridge, without any wording, he said, would cost $4,500. The city engineer favors the latter method.

• • •

The American Suspension Bridge company had in a communication, asking the city to consider its suspension railway as a substitute for the aerial single-track road it is proposed to build between Duluth and Fond du Lac. The matter was referred to the proper committee.

• • •

Permission was granted the fire board to sell two old horses and buy three new ones, to replace the two sold and one animal which died recently in making a run to a fire, at Lakeside.

Alderman Olson reported favorably the resolution, which provides that Mayor Haven and Alderman Getchell be paid $90 each, for their expenses to the convention of the League of American Municipalities, which convenes at Omaha, Neb., Sept. 30.

• • •

The $5,000 bond of Charles L. Rakowsky, the new city assessor, was approved, as furnished by the Bankers' Surety company.

DESPONDENT WOMEN

Leap to Death From Windows in Their Homes.

New York, Sept. 9.—Two women, one grieving over the death of her favorite son, the other despondent because of illness, leaped to death yesterday from windows in their homes. Mrs. Mary Ann Reisch, whose son was drowned two weeks ago, jumped from the dining room window of the second floor of her home on Seventh street. The other suicide was Miss Lillian Reynolds, aged 50, for many years assistant matron at the Messiah home in Westchester. She hurled herself from a fourth floor window of an apartment house in East Seventeenth street.

KINGS IS ANTI-HUGHES

County Against Governor in New York Republican Primaries.

Iowa Senate, Voting on Senatorship, Completes Deadlock.

New York, Sept. 9.—A count of the "Hughes' test" ballots cast yesterday in the Republican primary election in the Thirty-fifth assembly district, showed that out of thirty election districts, twenty-eight gave Hughes 528, with 354 votes against him. The Kings county totals showed a net vote of more than two to one against the governor.

By carrying eighteen of the twenty-three assembly districts of Brooklyn, Senator Patrick H. McCarren yesterday maintained his political control of Kings county, only four of the seven revolted districts returning anti-McCarren leaders.

Taft to Tour Country.

Cincinnati, Sept. 9.—That William H. Taft will make a complete tour of the United States before the November election is announced today as the personal determination of the nominee.

Committeemen Hear Bryan.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Twelve hundred precinct committeemen recently elected in the primaries were addressed by William J. Bryan last night. The meeting was an innovation in politics in Chicago, and wasc for the purpose of putting into effect the call of the Democratic national committee for a campaign club in every precinct in the United States.

He told the members of the national committee at their meeting yesterday that with a perfect organization to conduct the presidential fight, the victory for Democracy's cause was assured. Bryan said he and Kern had presented the issues carefully and that he was absolutely confident that he will be elected if there is a strong organization t ohold the ground that has been gained. The outlook for victory, said Bryan, was much brighter than it was a month ago.

Nathan Strauss Accepts.

New York, Sept. 9.—Nathan Strauss, who was yesterday selected by the Democratic national committee in Chicago as president of the Bryan ad Kern Business Mens' association, said that he would accept the office and wage an active campaign in behalf of Bryan. The Eastern headquarters will be in the Hoffman house here.

For Colorado Harmony.

Pueblo, Colo., Sept. 9.—During the hearing of the claims of the two Denver factions yesterday, representatives before the credentials committee freely used the name of Bryan. Edward Keating, who personally represents ex-United States Senator Thomas M. Patterson in the fight, read a telegram addressed to National Committeeman Alva Adams, as follows:

"Chicago, Sept. 8.

Cannon Urges Concord.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 9.—The Republicans of Illinois yesterday nominated four trustees for the University of Illinois, selected presidential electors and adopted a platform. Roy O. West, chairman of the state central committee, called the convention to order and introduced Joseph G. Cannon as chairman.

The convention was not as largely attended as in former years, because there were no contests of any consequence, for the primary election, held Aug. 8, determined the candidates for state offices. The convention was more of a harmony meeting, and efforts were made to harmonize all factions and smooth over all feeling that was engendered during the recent primary election.

Cannon urged that all differences be forgotten and that there be unity and harmony all along the line.

Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Shaw also made an address. His speech dealt mostly with national issues. Senator Hopkins and Governor Deneen spoke.

METHODISTS RISE AGAINST CANNON

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 9.—The recent action of the legislative committee of the temperance society of the Methodist church in advising all Methodist voters who favor the interstate liquor shipment bill to vote for congressional candidates who are opposed to the re-election of Cannon for speaker, has been followed by the decision of the committee, it was announced at the committee headquarters yesterday, to carry the fight into the speaker's district and recommend that he be opposed for re-election to congress. The fight on the speaker will be conducted from Chicago, mainly through the Northwestern Christian Advocate, which is the official Methodist organ in this district.

DR. LAWRENCE SUSTAINED

By Methodist Official Board for Marrying a Divorced Woman.

Richmond Hill, L. I., Sept. 9.—The marriage of the Rev. Dr. William H. Lawrence, pastor of Trinity Methodist church of this place, to a woman who had previously been divorced, was sustained by the official board of Trinity church in resolutions announced yesterday. It also was announced officially that, after due investigation, the board has ascertained that Mrs. Lawrence divorced her former husband before the Rev. Dr. Lawrence ever paid court to her. The resolutions adopted by the board extended churchly love and fellowship to the pastor and his wife, exonerated both from any blame which may have been cast upon them by the publication of false statements, and expressed unshaken confidence in the pastor.

S.S.S. CURES MALARIA

Malaria is due to impurities in the blood which destroy the rich, healthful qualities of the circulation, and reduce it to a weak, watery fluid. The body is then deprived of its necessary nourishment and strength, and is unable to resist the countless disorders that assail it, and the general system suffers in consequence. The appetite fails, digestion is weakened, chills and slight fever are frequent, while the sufferer loses energy and ambition. Boils, skin eruptions, and sometimes sores and ulcers follow when the blood becomes deeply polluted with the malarial germs. Both a tonic and blood purifier are needed to cure Malaria, and S. S. S. is best fitted for this work. It is the most perfect of all blood purifiers and at the same time an invigorating, healthful tonic. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation, and removes every trace of impurity or poison, and gives to the blood the health-sustaining qualities it needs. It cures Malaria thoroughly and permanently, because it removes from the blood the germs and poisons which produce the disease, and while doing this tones up and strengthens every part of the system. Book with information about Malaria and any medical advice furnished free to all who write.

MORE CASH IS NEEDED

Council Is Now Planning on a Complete City Hospital.

May be a Tax Levy to Raise Sufficient Money.

The city is now planning to build a hospital that will care for all sorts of diseases, and not confine itself strictly to contagious cases. All along it has been the ultimate object to do this, but the plan was to build the contagious ward first, and then let the remainder of the improvement come at a latter period, whenever there was enough money on hand to care for it. The council last night, on resolution of Alderman Foubister, asked the city attorney to report as to the power of the council under the charter, or state statutes, to levy taxes for the erection and maintenance of such a building.

The conference committee will meet Thursday, and it is expected it will take up the matter of an additional appropriation for hospital purposes. The original appropriation of $15,000 was intended merely for the purchase of a site. It is not sufficient to provide for a building as well. For a time the city authorities had under consideration, site and building, both of which could be obtained for $15,000, but several reasons the proposition is not looked upon so favorably now as a short while ago, and it is said to be hardly likely that the purchase of the site and structure under consideration will be made.

If the conference committee cannot see its way clear to make an appropriation large enough to provide a suitable building, a special levy for the purpose probably will be arranged for, provided the city attorney finds that such a thing can be legally done. There isn't much chance that the city can afford a building of the kind at present planned, without a tax levy for the purpose, for such a structure would cost a considerable amount of money. The contagious ward alone could be built at a reasonably small cost, but if the plan of building a city hospital for care of all kinds of diseases is carried out, the initial expense will run high above the original estimate.

POLICE SEEKING SLAYER OF TWO

Chicago Murders Traced to "Cabbage" Kapusta Through Confessions.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Did John Kapusta commit two murders within the last eight days?

The police think he did. They are looking for him, and, in his capture, think they will solve the killing of Louis Falardeau, a French candy store owner at 596 Noble street, and the subsequent murder of John Greigel, a grain "trimmer," who lived at 313 Milwaukee avenue.

Falardeau was shot to death on Aug. 31 and Greigel was beaten to death last Wednesday or Thursday with a baseball bat. Greigel's body was found in his room on Friday night.

The apparent solution of the two killings came from the confession of an accomplice and the identification of Kapusta's picture by Mrs. Jennie Halman, Greigel's landlady. She said it was the picture of the man who had been befriended by Greigel.

Monday Police Lieut. Duffy procured the picture of Kapusta, who is also known as "Cabbage," from the latter's mother, who, the police say, admitted belief in her son's guilt of the murders. The police then told Frank Leo Pianowski and Adam Tobias, suspects, regarding the web of evidence they were weaving around Kapusta, and instantly Pianowski made a confession in which he charged Kapusta with planning the murder of Falardeau. Then both the suspects charged Kapusta with firing the shot which ended the life of the candy storekeeper.

ARRESTED AS HE LEAVES STEAMER

Beggs, Just From Nome, Held in Gold Brick Robbery Case.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 9.—Stepping from the steamer Senator, just arrived from Nome, James H. Beggs, was arrested on charge of entering the state with stolen goods. The capture is expected to stand as the final chapter in the sensational gold brick robbery of two years ago on the steamer Tanana, which netted the thieves over $75,000, part of which was afterward returned by "Bobby" Miller. Beggs is believed to be the custodian of over $19,000, which Miller is said to have secreted near Fairbanks, Alaska.

Robert Miller is supposed to be on his way from Skagway to Seattle to meet Beggs and divide the money. Miller completed a two-year term of imprisonment this spring and at once went north. The Firemen's Fund Insurance company of San Francisco, which had paid the full loss on the gold, did not lose track of him and his movements were known to them from the time he left McNeil up to the time he is alleged to have given Beggs the gold. He went direct to Fairbanks. Charles Dreibelbis, chief deputy marshal put a man on Miller's trail and it was due to the deputy's close surveillance that Beggs was accused of carrying out the gold which Miller had left.

OSLER AGAIN BOOSTED.

World-Famed Doctor Made Rector of Ediaburgh University.

Baltimore, Sept. 9.—Dr. William Osler, who attracted worldwide attention by jocularly advocating the chloroforming aged persons, has been made rector of Edinburgh university, Scotland, according to private advices received here. Dr. Osler is regius professor of medicine at Oxford university, to which post he went from John Hopkins university here, where he still holds the title of honorary professor of medicine.

THE MARKET DEPRESSED

Wheat is Sold Off on Bearish Northwestern Situation.

Flax Advances From Weak Opening, But Closes Off.

Duluth Board of Trade, Sept. 9.—There was nothing to support the market today and wheat prices fell off during all of the session in America, closing lower than yesterday. Longs were energetic sellers.

Duluth and Minneapolis reflected the greatest weakness, the large car receipts at these two markets being responsible for some of the depression. Weather in the Northwest for the threshing and movement of the crop is also favorable, which contributed to the weakness.

Liverpool closed ⅛@⅜d lower, Budapest 1⅝c higher.

The September option closed 1c lower in Duluth, ⅞c lower in Chicago, 1⅛-¾c lower for new wheat in Minneapolis, ⅝c lower in St. Louis and ¼c lower in Kansas City. The October option closed ⅛c lower in Winnipeg. The closing prices were not received from the New York market on account of wire trouble, which also prevented the receipt of some other information. The December option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth and Winnipeg, ⅞-¾c lower in Chicago, ⅛-1c lower in Minneapolis, ½-⅝c lower in St. Louis and ½c lower in Kansas City.

September corn closed ⅛c higher in Chicago and unchanged to ⅛d higher in Liverpool. September oats closed ½c lower in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 412 against 93 last year, and at Minneapolis 480 against 124 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 842 against 217 last year. Winnipeg received 171 against 150 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 2,047,000 bus, last year 723,000 bus. Shipments 930,000 bus, last year 414,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 255,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 561,000 bus, last year 350,000 bus. Shipments 400,000 bus, last year 357,000 bus.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market after the first half of the session. September wheat opened ¼c lower at 99¾c, declined to 99½c, rallied to 99½c and declined by the close to 99c, a loss of 1c from yesterday. December wheat opened ¼c lower at 99c, declined to 98⅛c and closed there, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. May wheat was inactive and closed ¼c lower at $1.02¾.

Durum wheat closed ½c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over September for No. 1 northern.

Flax rallied during the latter part of the session but closed weaker than yesterday. September flax opened ¼c lower at $1.23¾, declined to $1.24⅝ and closed at $1.24¾, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. October flax opened ¼c lower at $1.23⅜, declined to $1.23⅛ and closed at $1.23¾, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. November flax opened ½c lower at $1.22½, went to $1.23¾ and closed there, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. December flax opened ⅝c lower at $1.22½, went to $1.22¾ and closed there, a loss of ½c from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Dullness Prevails, With Sentiment Inclining to Bearishness.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dullness prevailed in the wheat market today and sentiment was inclined to be bearish. At the start prices were down to ⅛c to ⅝c, and during the early trading the new crop months declined still further on moderate sales by commission houses. December, which opened at 96⅞c to 97@⅛c, sold off to 96⅝c. Lower cables and weakness of Northwestern markets were the chief influences. Minneapolis ,Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 1,014 cars, against 525 cars last week and 376 cars a year ago.

Additional selling developed as a result of an increase of nearly 6,000,000 bus in the world's visible supply, which carried prices down still further. December declining to 96⅜c. The market closed weak at declines of ½c to ⅝c to ⅞c, with December at 96½@⅝c.

Owing to light offerings trade in corn was quiet. Absence of rain in the corn belt offset the weakness of wheat and held the market steady. Opening quotations were a shade higher to ¼c lower with December at 68c to 68¼c. On a scattered demand December advanced to 68⅝c. Local receipts were 421 cars, with 107 of contract grade.

The corn market showed more firmness the last half despite the weakness of wheat. December sold up to 68½c. The close was firm at net gains of ⅛c to ⅛@⅜c with December at 68⅜c.

Oats were easy because of moderate sales of May by elevator interests. Trade was quiet. December opened unchanged to ¼c higher at 50⅜c to 50½c, and sold at 50¼@⅜c. Local receipts were 309 cars.

Buying of October lard by shorts caused moderate firmness in provisions but trade was not active. Small receipts of live hogs also tended to strengthen the market. Prices at the opening were unchanged to 5@7½c higer, and showed little change early in the session.

Close: Wheat—September 97⅛c; December 96½@⅝c; May, $1.00@1⅛. Corn—September, 70¼c; December, 68⅜c; May, 66½c; July, 65⅞c. Oats—September, 49⅜c; December, 50¼c; May, 52⅜c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Receipts Big, Market Heavy and Inclined to Sag.

Minneapolis, Sept. 9.—Wheat receipts looked big today and with 430 cars against 124 here, 412 and 93 in Duluth, 172 and 159 in Chicago and 1,014 against 376 for the three markets there was much pressure on the market. Liverpool was ⅛d lower to open and ⅛@⅜d lower later. The market was heavy at the rally and inclined to sag. The fact that local stocks with the recent heavy movement have increased only 10,000 bus for four days, made sustaining influence. With flour shipments exceeding 50,000 bus receipts and 186 cars wheat shipped out, there was a complete absorption of receipts and nothing left for accommodation. The market would not rally, however, and kept on declining, closing weak and lower. September opened at 99⅜c; high, 99¾c; low, 98½c; close, 98⅜@98⅝c. Old September opened at $1.00¼; high, $1.00⅜; low, 99¼c; close, 99¼c. December opened at $1.00⅛; high, $1.00¼; low, 99¼c; close, 99⅜@99½c. Old December closed at 99⅝@99½c. May, $1.03⅞.

Cash demand was good. No. 1 northern went at 2½@3c over September and No. 2 at September price to 1c over. Millers bought No. 1 and No. 2 freely and elevator buyers bought a little of the velvet chaff wheat. Close: No. 1 northern, spot $1.00⅞@1.01⅜; to arrive, $1.00⅞; No. northern, spot,98⅜@⅞c; to arrive, 98⅝; No. 3 wheat, 96⅜@97⅝c.

No. 3 yellow corn, 79@79¾c.
No. 3 white oats, 48c.
No. 2 rye, 72¼@72⅞c.

Barley recovered yesterday's decline and sold up 1 cent with some as high as 60 cents. The offerings were cleaned up more promptly. Close, 55½@60c.

Flax was in demand at September price to 1c under, crushers taking it freely. Close $1.24½.

Millstuffs easier and quoted off a little on basis of $18.00@18.50 for bran in bulk.

With wheat selling off flour was close to a reduction, but millers continued to quote unchanged to see whether or not the lower raw material prices are to be permanent. Shipments 50,704 barrels; first patents, 5.65@5.75; second patents, $5.50@5.60; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

Grain Gossip.

Bradstreet's reported an increase of 5,914,000 bus in the world's visible supply of wheat. In the United States and Canada, there was an increase of 3,514,000 bus, and in Europe and afloat, an increase of 2,400,000 bus.

* * *

Weather forecast for the grain belt:

Illinois—Fair tonight and Thursday; warmer in west and south tonight.

Indiana, Missouri and Lower Michigan—Fair tonight and Thursday; no decided change in temperatures.

GOOD IN SPOTS.

"Servility will disappear," said Frederick Van Eeden, the Dutch poet and economist, "with the disappearance of our present unjust social system."

He paused and smiled.

"Servility—what a despicable thing it is. A young Dutch bookkeeper lunched one day in Amsterdam with his employer, a millionaire tulip dealer. Suddenly the millionaire sniffed.

"'But, my hear Hans,' he said to the bookkeeper, 'I am afraid your egg is bad.'

"'Oh, sir,' murmured the servile clerk, flushing deeply, 'really—er—some parts of it are very good indeed.'"

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

At the Close, Speculation in the Afternoon Being Quiet.

Market Started Mixed, But Soon Began Upward Movement.

New York, Sept. 9.—Opening prices of stocks moved but slightly from last night's closing level and the small changes were mixed. The dealings were in only moderate volume. Baltimore & Ohio rose 1 and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie ¾. Amalgamated Copper declined ¾.

Pressure against American Smelting and some realizing in the Harriman Pacifics kept the market in check for a while. Large purchasing orders were executed later and the list moved upwards. The gas stocks, Baltimore & Ohio, Northern Pacific and Erie were especially strong. American Smelting yielded 1 and did not rally effectively with the rest of the market.

A rally in American Smelting to 1⅛ over last night and Reading's 2-point gain were features. The Harrimans also turned strong, Union Pacific rising 1¼; Southern Pacific, 1, and Illinois Central and Pacific Mail, 2. Chesapeake & Ohio and Chicago & Alton also advanced 1¾, Atlantic Coast Line and Delaware & Hudson 1¼ and Louisville & Nashville 1. Bonds were firm.

Speculation was quiet during the afternoon and most stocks were neglected. There appeared to be a scarcity of offerings in spots, which resulted in a higher level for a few issues on light purchases. Erie advanced 2¼ to 30⅛, and Atchison and Missouri Pacific and Western Union 1. Kansas City Southern preferred yielded 1.

The market closed irregular. American Locomotive weakened again and got two points below last night. There was a fresh advance afterwards, when Erie rose 3, Baltimore & Ohio 2¼ and Union Pacific 1½. Realizing, also, at some points caused an irregular movement in the later grading.

PITTSBURG IRON ORE CO. AMENDMENT OF CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION.

THIS IS TO CERTIFY that at a special meeting of the stockholders of PITTSBURG IRON ORE COMPANY, a corporation of Minnesota, called for that expressly stated purpose, and duly and regularly convened at the principal office and place of business of said corporation, in Hibbing, St. Louis County, Minnesota, a lawful quorum of the stockholders of said corporation being present, the following resolutions amending the certificate of Incorporation of said corporation, were regularly and unanimously adopted by a vote of more than a majority of all of the shares of stock of said corporation, namely:

RESOLVED, That the certificate of Incorporation of this Company be and it is hereby amended in the following particulars:

(a) By adding to Article V of said certificate of incorporation, the following:

"At and after the first election of directors, the management of the said corporation shall be vested in a Board of Directors composed of nine persons," so that said Article V, as so amended, shall read as follows:

"V. The management of the said corporation until the first election of directors, shall be vested in a board of directors composed of persons whose names are, Joshua W. Rhodes, residing at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; Samuel W. Croxton, Samuel H. Holding, Pierce H. Lonergan, residing at Cleveland, Ohio; and W. D. McKeefrey, residing at Leetonia, Ohio. At and after the first election of directors, the management of the said corporation shall be vested in a board of directors composed of nine persons."

(b) By amending Article IX of the certificate of incorporation of this Company, by striking out the words "two million dollars" and inserting in lieu thereof the words and figures "seven million, five hundred thousand dollars ($7,500,000)," so that said Article IX of the certificate of incorporation of this Company, as so amended, shall read as follows:

"IX. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which the corporation shall at any time be subject, shall be seven million, five hundred thousand dollars ($7,500,000)."

(c By amending and changing Article II of the certificate of incorporation of this Company, by striking out all of said present Article II and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"II. The purposes of said corporation are:

"First: To mine, reduce and refine iron ore and other minerals.

"Second: To manufacture iron, steel and other metals."

RESOLVED FURTHER, That the President and Secretary of this Company cause these resolutions to be embraced in a certificate, duly executed by the President and Secretary of the Company, and under the corporate seal, and to be filed, recorded and published in the manner prescribed by law for the amendment of certificates of incorporation of corporations organized under the laws of Minnesota.

AND THIS IS TO CERTIFY that, in accordance with said resolutions, the certificate of incorporation of said corporation, PITTSBURG IRON ORE COMPANY, as amended by said resolutions, is as follows:

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION, AS AMENDED.

PITTSBURG IRON ORE COMPANY.

On the 12th day of July, A. D. 1906, Joshua W. Rhodes, Samuel W. Croxton, Samuel H. Holding, Pierce H. Lonergan and W. D. McKeefrey, desiring to form a mining corporation under the laws of the State of Minnesota, thereupon did make and execute the following Articles of Incorporation:

The subscribers hereto, desiring to form a corporation for the purpose of mining, reducing, refining, transporting and marketing iron ore and other minerals, and for manufacturing products from the same, do hereby associate themselves together and execute and severally acknowledge the following Articles of Incorporation:

I. The name of the corporation shall be the PITTSBURG IRON ORE COMPANY.

II. The purposes of said corporation are:

First: To mine, reduce and refine iron ore and other minerals.

Second: To manufacture iron, steel and other metals.

III. The principal office of said corporation shall be Hibbing, St. Louis County, Minnesota.

IV. The persons so desiring to associate themselves together are Joshua W. Rhodes, residing at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; Samuel W. Croxton, Samuel H. Holding, Pierce H. Lonergan, residing at Cleveland, Ohio; and W. D. McKeefrey, residing at Leetonia, Ohio.

V. The management of the said corporation until the first election of directors, shall be vested in a board of directors composed of persons whose names are Joshua W. Rhodes, residing at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; Samuel W. Croxton, Samuel H. Holding, Pierce H. Lonergan, residing at Cleveland, Ohio, and W. D. McKeefrey, residing at Leetonia, Ohio. At and after the first election of directors, the management of the said corporation shall be vested in a board of directors composed of nine persons.

VI. The annual meetings shall be held the third Tuesday of January.

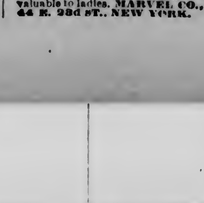

VII. The capital stock of said corporation shall be ten million dollars ($10,000,000) divided into one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each, and payable in money or property or services rendered to the corporation.

VIII. The first meeting of the corporation may be held at any time after its corporate organization shall be complete, upon three days' written notice to the incorporators and subscribers to the capital stock, which notice shall be signed by one or more of the incorporators, and specify therein the time, place and purpose of such meeting.

IX. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which the corporation shall at any time be subject, shall be seven million, five hundred thousand dollars ($7,500,000).

THIS CERTIFICATE is executed in accordance with said resolutions of the stockholders of said corporation, above set forth, by the President and Secretary of said PITTSBURG IRON ORE COMPANY, under its corporate seal, in accordance with the provisions of the Revised laws of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

(Signed.) EDWIN N. OHL,
President of PITTSBURG IRON ORE COMPANY.

From scoop, bag or pan, held two inches from top of kettle, pour into middle of same at a moderate speed until running over, striking off in a zig-zag manner with the edge of beam held horizontally.

NOTE—No grain shall in any case be graded above that of the poorest quality found in that lot when it bears evidence of being plugged or doctored.

NOTE—Wheat scoured or otherwise manipulated, the test weight will not be considered in grading same.

NOTE—The grades of "Purified Oats" or "Purified Barley" shall correspond with the other grades of oats and barley, except that same shall be designated as "Purified."

BURLESQUE ORDINANCE

Joker Takes a Gentle Slam at the Park Commissioners.

Advocates Secret Speed Limit, Bells, Revolvers and Rockets.

Some merry wag last night introduced a burlesque automobile ordinance at the council meeting, under the name of Alderman McKnight, "at the request of the park board." All sorts of freak provisions are made in the measure, which was referred to the committee on ordinances and resolutions.

Several weeks ago the park board introduced an amendment to the automobile ordinance. No action was taken in regard to it, and at the last meeting the board requested the

OIL TRUST MAKES STRONG OBJECTION TO REHEARING BY THE COURT OF APPEALS

Standard Declares That to Grant the Motion Would be Improper.

Says Landis Should Not Have Fined for Each Offense.

Counsel Sets Up Emphatic Demurrer to Government's Request.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10.—Closing with the statement that it would obviously be improper for the United States court of appeals to grant a rehearing, after it had once set aside the famous decision of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, of Chicago, fining the Standard Oil over $29,000,000 for rebating, counsel for the oil monopoly in answer to the application of the government for a rehearing, tells the court in their answer, today, that it was clearly wrong for Standard Oil to have been fined for each offense of rebating, separately, instead of just one fine for the whole offense.

The whole answer is an arraignment of the theories upon which the government's lawyers have proceeded in seeking a rehearing of the decision, setting aside the fine. In fact, the oil trust's reply says:

We may fairly insist that counsel so eminent, indulging in criticisms of the opinion of the court, so searching and so literal as make up the grounds of their petition for a rehearing, be themselves held to a somewhat scrupulous accuracy in their treatment both of the court's rulings and of the record upon which those rulings were made, and as well the rulings of the supreme court, which they invoke and assume to define. We may also require that such criticisms be directed and confined to substantial, if not controlling grounds for a rehearing, and not halt at or haggle over points, which, if well taken, would not affect the correctness of the conclusion reached by the court or constitute grounds for a rehearing; because it is well settled that,

BIRDSEYE VIEW OF OIL TRUST'S REJOINDER TO REHEARING PLEA

The decision of Judges Grosscup, Baker and Seamon of the United States circuit court of appeals, reversing the judgment of Judge Landis and lifting the burden of the $29,240,000 fine, is upheld as good law.

The real point is, says the answer, did the trial court in imposing punishment take into consideration the relation between the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and did it base its fine upon the wealth of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its ability to pay, instead of upon the wealth of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and its ability to pay?

A large part of the petition for rehearing, the answer asserts, is a reiteration of points which no one disputes.

On the question of knowledge of the lawful rate on the part of the defendant shipper, the answer asserts that the exceptions of the government's counsel are based on a misapprehension of the opinion and the record in the case.

On the point of the number of offenses which the petition for rehearing asserted was obscure in the decision of the reviewing court, the answer contends that the government's counsel has raised a cloud where there is none and that the ruling of the court clearly shows that the number of offenses was regulated by the settlements and payments of which there were thirty-six and not by the carloads numbering 1462, on which the fine was imposed.

The oil trust's answer asserts that the suggestion of the government's counsel that a rehearing be granted in order to certify a question to the Federal supreme court is not a proper one, because there was no division of opinion among the judges of the reviewing court.

TAFT IS ASSAILED BY PROHIBITION NOMINEE

San Jose, Cal., Sept. 10.—Eugene Chafin, Prohibition candidate for the presidency, grilled William H. Taft, the Republican nominee, in a speech here, attacking particularly Taft's utterances in a speech delivered two years ago to Yale graduates in which, Mr. Chafin declared, Taft opposed Prohibition.

"Taft is indorsed everywhere by the liquor press," said Mr. Chafin, "so the saloon element must feel that it has nothing to fear at his hands. How then can any Methodist have courage to vote for Taft after the ruling of the last Methodist conference that no Christian could vote for any candidate not opposed to the liquor traffic."

SITUATION ALONG IRON RANGE AND NORTH SHORE

Three Fires Now Visible From Two Harbors---Many Settlers Lose Homes.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—A review of the fire situation locally and along the Iron Range and Alger-Smith lines, last evening and this morning, shows many radical changes and illustrates the extreme dryness and inflammability of the entire northern district. Between Duluth and Two Harbors there is a fire some distance to the west of Lakewood. Near Knife river there were several brush fires, which came near the village only once, and a small fire was burning near to the Iron Range tracks about a mile north of that station. Many men fought the fire there and no damage is reported.

Along the Alger-Smith line where on Tuesday the fires were thought to be burned out, a heavy fire was blown up near Camp No. 5, at Schaul lake, requiring much work to check it, and much property was in danger.

Three Fires Visible.

Near Two Harbors there are three fires now visible—two in the Knife river valley west of town from three to four miles, and one, which is real bad, a little to the north and east of Waldo.

Many settlers' cabins are in danger and all the men available were out fighting fire late into the night. All fires seem to be working eastward and any heavy breeze will soon carry this fire into the Silver creek district, where many farmers are located, and endanger much property. There are no fires close to town, but at the north side of the city, where the woods and brush approach the nearest the fire department was out all yesterday afternoon with two lines of hose wetting down every thing, and all persons have been requested to keep their premises well soaked with water and

GRAND MARAIS ESCAPED BY THE WIND DYING OUT

Town in No Immediate Danger But the People Are Watchful.

The forest fire that has threatened Grand Marais for several days, has been checked, but is ready to be fanned into a fiery furnace, as menacing as it ever was, should a brisk wind spring up.

The town is in no immediate danger now, though its inhabitants are constantly watchful. The forces of the town have been augmented by bands of settlers, who at the first alarm flocked into the town from their homesteads, back from the lake.

No winds have blown since Tuesday night, and the fires have gradually burned down, until now they only form a semi-circle of glowing embers about Grand Marais. From this great bed of coals a thick cloud of smoke is ever rising, shrouding the North shore town in perpetual gloom.

Though the steamer Easton of the Booth line, which arrived in port last evening stopped there on her return trip, only four people left the village. The rest preferred to stay and fight for their homes in case of danger. Cut off from the world, as Grand Marais is, except by water, Capt. E. H. Smith, of the Easton, says, that even if a fire should destroy the place, there is no great danger that lives would be lost, for there is a broad, long and barren point lying out into the lake, on which safety could be found. He also said that the people seemed to be little worried over their town at present.

Two miles to the east on the lake shore, a fire of a more serious nature, partially surrounds Chippewa City, an Indian village. The flames are close to the village, but unless a wind should arise, can be held at bay by the people living there. The only wind that is greatly feared is one from inland.

At Tuffe the Easton sighted the United States training ship Gopher, in command of Adjt. Gen. Wood, on her way to Grand Marais. The Gopher, in answer to orders from Governor Johnson, was on its way to give assistance and relief to Grand Marais, should there be any need.

HEPBURN LAW HIT

Pennsylvania Court Holds Commodities Clause Unconstitutional.

Coal Roads Declared They Would Lose Under Its Provisions.

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—The commodities clause of the Hepburn railroad act was today declared unconstitutional by the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Pennsylvania.

The commodities clause constitutes the fifth paragraph of the first section of the interstate commerce act, it being one of the amendments made by the Hepburn railroad act of June 29, 1906. The clause provides that after May 1, 1908, it shall be unlawful for any railroad company to transport from one state to another, or to any foreign country, any article or commodity, manufactured, mined or produced by it, or under its authority, directly or indirectly, except such articles or commodities as may be necessary for its use in the conduct of its business as a common carrier. The clause exempts timber and its manufactured products, and is aimed particularly at railroads owning coal mines.

Case Argued in June.

The case was argued June 16 and 17, before Judge George M. Dallas, George Gray and Joseph Buffington. The railroad companies involved were the Jersey Central, the Lehigh Valley, the Erie, the Delaware, Lackawanna &

Judge Chetlain thereupon dismissed the case.

ALL TOWNS PREPARED

Everything in Readiness to Successfully Fight the Flames.

Smouldering Wastes Surround Most of the Towns.

Eveleth and Virginia Have Their First Fire Scares.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

The range towns are now ready for whatever may come. Yesterday all available men not actually employed in fighting the fires driven in by the northwest wind, were set to work fortifying the towns against possible attacks on opposite sides. Pipe lines have been laid around Hibbing, Virginia, Eveleth, Buhl, Biwabik, Nashwauk and the mine locations, enabling the great mine pumps to be brought to bear in any threatened district on short notice. Meadows of dry grass, which have constituted a most serious menace so far, were backfired, with the strong wind of yesterday to sweep the fires away from the towns, and everything is now in readiness in all the towns to fight the flames.

The fires in the immediate vicinity of most of the towns now have comparatively little left to live on. Black, smouldering wastes surround most of the towns, and a forest fire of any proportions would have difficulty in finding anything on which to live in their immediate vicinity. In short, everything is now in readiness to fight fire, and the danger is practically past.

A DAY OF ANXIETY.

Yesterday was a day of anxiety, however. A northwest wind, ranging from twenty-five to thirty-five miles an hour, and reaching its greatest velocity about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, bore the fire in the Sturgeon Lake

NOTED DESERTED VILLAGE IN PERIL

Forest Fires Also Threaten Houses on Port Arthur's Outskirts.

Port Arthur, Ont., Sept. 10.—All last night forest fires threatened a number of houses on the outskirts of the city in different directions, which resulted in the calling out of the whole of the fire brigade, which succeeded in blocking the danger. A serious conflagration was threatened within the city when a fire started at the Commercial hotel, but the blaze was extinguished wit hchemical engines.

A big fire could be seen all night burning on Thunder Cape, eighteen miles distant. It threatens the famous deserted village of Siler's Isle, which has been a summer resort since the suspension of mining operations there, a quarter of a century ago. No one is there now to fight the flames except Capt. Cross, the caretaker of the mine, and his family.

All Canadian Pacific railway express trains are again compelled to go around through the United States on their journey from Montreal and Toronto to Winnipeg and the Pacific coast. As soon as one of the big wooden bridges was rebuilt, after being burned down recently, another was found on fire yesterday.

PUTTING RELIEF MONEY INTO THE RIGHT HANDS

Committee Aims to Prevent Undeserving People Securing Any of the Fund.

To prevent undeserving people from securing any part of the immense relief fund that has been raised for the range fire sufferers, to help in the permanent betterment of their condition, and to aid in every possible way the rebuilding of the town of Chisholm, is now the aim of the relief committee appointed by Governor Johnson, and all who are interested in the relief work.

The total amount raised for the relief of the range people will far exceed the $50,000 mark when all the funds are heard from. The immediate needs of the Chisholm people are now provided for and the great danger is that undeserving people will get possession of money and supplies.

That a complete organization will have to be perfected to handle the supplies and the money is the opinion of the members of the committee, and independent gifts to the range people are being discouraged whenever possible.

None in Want.

Mayor Haven returned yesterday afternoon from the range, after studying conditions for two days.

"All the immediate wants of the Chisholm people are provided for," said the mayor yesterday afternoon as he left the train.

"They have provisions enough to last them several days, and if any more are sent right away they will only spoil. There was a great need for women's and children's clothing, as hundreds of families had to flee with nothing but the clothes they wore, and the women and children had no change of clothing. It was easier for the men to get clothes. This made conditions very insanitary, and if new clothing was not provided disease might break out among the poorer families. But the shipment of clothing sent up by the

BAD BOY PROBLEM.

Police Having Their Troubles With West Duluth Youths.

The bad boy problem, and how to deal with it, is a question that is constantly vexing the West Duluth police.

A few days ago Lieut. Wilcox sent two boys before the juvenile court, to be tried for petty larceny. One was Walter Knight, who was out on parole. They entered, on Labor day, the store belonging to Charles Hicks, on Grand avenue west, and stole several packages of tobacco, some pouches, and the pennies out of the cash drawer. The theft was made in broad daylight, while the owner and his family were up town witnessing the parade. The lieutenant caught the boys with the goods on them.

This is but one of the many instances of this sort that have been taking place. The boys are seldom over 13 years old. They are an absolutely lawless crowd, and are the hardest people to handle the police come in contact with.

Not long ago a gang of eight boys, all living in West Duluth, was broken up by the police and most of them punished by terms at the reform school. They had been operating for some time about town, breaking into candy stores and box cars, and making themselves in general a nuisance. The police have shown no leniency towards them.

HORSE BALKED AMID THE FIRE

Mrs. Stumpf and Sister Made Exciting Escape From Chisholm.

Romantic incidents of an unusual nature are connected with the escape from the burning village of Chisholm of Mrs. A. F. Stumpf of Bisbee, Ariz., who, with her three children, is at the Lenox hotel today.

Mrs. Stumpf had not seen her sister, Mrs. Ernest Taylor of Chisholm, since they were children. When Mrs. Stumpf was 2 months old her mother died, and she was taken West to be brought up. Her sistor was older than her and remembers Mrs. Stumpf as a child in long dresses. But Mrs. Stumpf had not the least recollection of her sister.

Mrs. Stumpf had been at Chisholm about five weeks prior to the fire of last Saturday. When the town of Chisholm was threatened Mr. Taylor, who is of the firm of Taylor brothers, was away with many of his townsmen fighting the flames. He left his horse and delivery wagon at the house for the women and children.

When the flames came so close that it was certain that the Taylor home would be destroyed, Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Stumpf placed the children and what household effects they could pile into the wagon, and started for Hibbing.

In two or three places they were obliged to drive through the flames. At one place in the road, where the flames leaped over the wagon, the horse became frightened and balked. The two women took the smallest children in their arms and sought to save them. Two of the other children were asleep and did not awaken until the danger was past.

Mrs. Stumpf says she was stupefied with fright. She says she did not realize the danger that threatened the destruction of the lives of the children. Some men who were fleeing from the burning village happened along at this time and carried the children from the wagon. They then succeeded in half dragging the horse from the place in the road where the flames were scorching the wagon.

It was necessary to lead the horse all the way to Hibbing. Although the flames and sparks from the raging fire were leaping over the wagon, two of the children slept peacefully through the exciting incident, never waking until Hibbing was reached.

The Taylor home was one of the many that were entirely destroyed. Mrs. Stumpf says that if Mr. Taylor had not possessed the foresight to leave the wagon for the women and children, they would have never escaped. As it was, it seemed two or three times as if they would never succeed in eluding the flames that formed almost a solid wall at several places in the road.

Mrs. Stumpf left for Bisbee this afternoon. She says that when she came to visit the sister she had not seen since she was 2 months old, she did not expect to be driven from Chisholm. Mrs. Stumpf describes the incident as the most thrilling event that ever occurred in her life, and says she will have a vivid recollection of the first visit to her sister to take back to Arizona.

FOUR DAYS REMAINING

Primary Race Is Rapidly Drawing To The Close.

Congressman Bede Wil Address Mass Meeting In Duluth.

With but four days remaining before the primaries, which will sound the death of the political hopes of many of the aspirants for office, confidence is expressed by both of the candidates for congress from the Eighth district. Both J. Adam Bede, the present congressman and candidate for re-election, and Clarence B. Miller, his opponent, today expressed the utmost confidence of victory at the polls next Wednesday.

Victory at the primaries means election for either of the two candidates. They have no opposition from the Democrats.

Both candidates are putting in the last efforts of the campaign. It has been a strenuous campaign, clean, despite its intensity.

Congressman Bede will address a meeting at the armory this evening. This will be one of the strong efforts of Mr. Bede to overcome the lead of Mr. Miller in the city. He has not paid very much attention to the city, during the present campaign, confining most of his attention to the smaller towns of the district.

Clarence B. Miller reached the city this morning, after addressing a meeting in Anoka. He reports a most flattering reception and says he had every reason to believe that he will carry Anoka county. Mr. Bede also claims Anoka county.

Right now the odds are in favor of Mr. Miller. The odds are quoted at 12 to 10, with Miller on the long end.

Men who are thoroughly informed upon conditions in the district predict that Miller will carry the city of Duluth by a handsome majority. They also state that Miller will carry St. Louis county.

The Miller-Bede contest is attracting attention from all over the state. Charles B. Cheney, political writer of the Minneapolis Journal, is here today to secure a nearup view of the race.

FIRES ON VERMILION

Fires broke out yesterday for the first time on the Vermilion Iron range and the most careful patrolling of the towns and track is being kept up today. Reports received this afternoon say that there are a number of brush and grass fires in the timber between Tower and Ely, and the Duluth & Iron Range road is keeping two locomotives on the track there constantly, with a fire fighting equipment.

At Skibo yesterday the flames came in very close to town. A crew of thirty men, with a locomotive to furnish the water pressure fought the fire all day. The flames still threaten the town, but it is thought that they can be held in check. The breaking out of the flames on the Vermilion range is a new development, and opens a new and unburned territory to the sweep of the fire. With the example of Chisholm before them, it is unlikely that any of the towns will be caught unprepared.

The report in the morning paper to the effect that the Duluth & Iron Range had lost some ore cars in the fire is denied at the offices. The road did lose about 1,500 ties, however.

PESHTIGO IN RUINS

Menominee, Mich., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—After having destroyed the car shops of the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad at Peshtigo, Wis., yesterday the forest fire crept closer up to the city. Fanned by high south winds the flames destroyed the principal business section of Peshtigo last night.

By almost superhuman efforts the residence section was saved. Several hundred people are homeless.

The property loss is over $100,000. The fire is still threatening the city, as the wind may fan the flames and cause further damage.

FIRE STARTS IN THREE PLACES

Circumstances of Helstein Fire Point to Firebug, Says Manager.

"It is true that the fire in H. Helstein & Co.'s, factory started in three places on the third floor, at the same time," said L. A. Sherwin, manager of the company this morning, "and we are at the present time using every effort to find out the manner in which it started. Helsetin was in New York when the fire occurred and as soon as he returned he began an investigation. The fact that the fire started in three places at the same time looks very suspicious to us, and we are anxious to learn something further regarding the cause of it. It looks as if some one who had a grudge against the firm must have started the blaze. We had only fourteen days ago reduced our insurance."

Mr. Heistein intends as soon as things are cleared up to find out the source, regardless of time and expense. The loss is not great, and they they are cleaning things up to minimize the loss.

Barn Dance a Hit.
More than 200 couples enjoyed another one of the series of "barn dances" at the Lincoln park pavilion last evening. Many of the dancers were in rustic costume, which added picturesqueness to the occasion. There was a keen competition for the prizes awarded the best dancers.

Temple Emanuel.
Regular Sabbath services will be resumed at the Temple Emanuel, Second street and Seventh avenue east, tomorrow night, and will be held henceforth every Friday night at 8 o'clock. The subject of tomorrow night's sermon will be "Coming Home." The Sabbath school will reopen Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Medical Society Meets.
A meeting of the Interurban Academy of Medicine was held at the St. Louis hotel last evening. There were about sixty physicians in attendance. The members of the St. Louis County Medical society and the Douglas County society were the invited guests of the Interurban society. Dr. Walter A. Courtney of Brainerd read a paper upon "Conservatism in Traunatic Surgery." Dinner was served at the hotel before the meeting.

Up For Second Time.
The case of Konstu R. Sarrell vs. the W. T. Bailey Lumber company was taken up this afternoon for the second time before Judge Dibell. The plaintiff is asking for $2,000 for personal injuries. A verdict of $1,500 was granted in the first trial, but the court declared that it was no trial, and ordered a rehearing.

PERSONAL

L. Traubmann of the Silberstein & Bondy company left this morning for New York and other Eastern points on a purchasing trip.

Mrs. B. E. Baker and daughter, Dorothy, left this afternoon for Boston, where Miss Dorothy will take up her studies at Dana Hall.

Duncan McLean, formerly of this city, but now of Toronto, Can., is in the city for a few days.

Charles B. Cheney of the Minneapolis Journal, is in the city.

Edward Dilliway of Virginia, returned yesterday after spending a few days in Duluth.

Maurice d'Autremont left yesterday for Minneapolis, where he will attend the university.

Frank C. Bournier of this city left today for Minneapolis, where he will attend the University of Minnesota. Mr. Bournier is a second year student at the state university.

Verdict for Defendant.

The jury this afternoon returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, in the case of Hilda Bodin against the Duluth Street Railway company. She sued for $6,000 for injuries she alleges she received from riding in a street car over a switch.

WILL PRAY FOR RAIN

Tomorrow at noon, if it does not rain before that time, there will be services at the Trinity PPro-Cathedral at which special prayers will be offered up for rain to quench the threatening fires throughout the North country, Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele, and Rev. Dickerman conducting the service. If it should rain before that time without the prayers of the Episcopal congregation, the service will be held as per schedule, but instead of prayers for a deluge, there will be a Thanksgiving service.

The following prayer has been composed by the dean and is recommended by him to all parishoners:

"O, Eternal God, by whose Word the heavens and earth were made; and the rain and the sunshine come in due seasons, hasten, we beseech thee, the needed showers of rain and quench all threatening fires; and of Thine abundant mercy strengthen all thy servants who are in sore distress this day; and may we ever, in life and death acknowledge Thy supreme power and Thine everlasting love."

MARRY WHILE FIRE THREATENS

There is always something romantic about a marriage, but it remained for John Curran of Hibbing, to make his marriage with Miss Miller of Hibbing, one of unusual romantic nature. Mr. Curran and his bride are at the Lenox hotel today, and according to the story of a friend, Mr. Curran chose a time when the minds of his fellow townsmen were very much distracted to tie the tatal knot and escape from Hibbing unobserved.

The marriage of Mr. Curran and Miss Miller had been expected. The friends of the couple had made elaborate plans for the celebration of the ceremony. Then came the fire and the French leave of Mr. Curran and his bride.

Mr. Curran and Miss Miller were made one at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, a very unromantic hour, to be sure. Just one hour after the performing of the marriage ceremony the couple were on their way to Duluth. Not one of their friends had been let in on the game.

One of the friends of the bridegroom had occasion to go to the store of Mr. Curran to see him. He was told of the early morning marriage. It was too late then, of course, for Mr. and Mrs. Curran had left for Duluth.

Several friends of Mr. Curran have tried to see him since he has been in Duluth, but they have been unsuccessful.

His friends didn't object to his getting married—not in the least. What they did object to, however, was his taking advantage of the excitement caused by the fire to quietly get married and give his friends the slip. They are planning revenge.

WAS ORIGINAL OF CHARACTER

Judge Arthur M. Noyes, of Minneapolis, who is at the Lenox hotel, today, was a member of the court of Alaska, during the time the government investigations were made regarding certain land deals. It was due to his prominence upon the bench, where he was more or less involved in the many controversies over land deals, that Judge Noyes was made one of the central characters in the novel of Alaskan life, "The Spoilers," by Rex Beach.

To those who have read the novel, the character of the judge will be vividly recalled. Mr. Noyes is said to be the man from whom this character was drawn. Alexander McKenzie, the famous political boss of North Dakota, was another man from which a leading character in the Beach novel was drawn.

SUPERIOR NEWS

RELIEF FUND STARTED.

Conditions in Fire Swept District Are Much Improved.

A relief fund for the fire sufferers about Superior is growing rapidly. The committee was a little late in getting started, but now the call is being responded to on all sides. Cash is received by E. L. Cass(treasurer of the fund at the Bank of Commerce. Furniture is to be sent to Chief McKinnon at police headquarters, and clothing to the Commercial club.

The farmers in the region covered by the fire, have suffered severe losses by the flames. John Corin, a farmer, located at the end of Tower avenue, and about a mile south of the Greenwood cemetery, Tuesday night had his home, barn and farming machinery destroyed by the bush fires. Mayor Crumpton, who went over a considerable portion of the burned district yesterday, reports that the conditions are much better. The light rains and heavy dew of last evening helped some in putting a check on the fires. The wind in the vicinity of Superior is also unfavorable for a spreading of a fire in that direction.

Official Count.

The county canvas board has made its report on the number of votes cast in Douglas county at the primaries. It shows that Lenroot won by a majority of 898 in the county, instead of 1,000 as was first estimated.

COUNTY BOARDS MEET IN DULUTH

The members of the county school boards from the various districts of St. Louis county are in Duluth today, holding their annual convention, at the Commercial club. When the meeting was called to order at 11 o'clock this morning, by County Superintendent S. W. Gilpin, there were more than 100 present. Other years the members of the boards had to pay their own railroad fare. This year the county pays the fare, and the increased attendance was noticeable.

The morning session was taken up with the reading of his report, and the suggesting of changes to simplify the work of school boards by Superintendent Gilpin. Mr. Gilpin brought to the notice of his hearers that it is a hard thing to look after the interests of a county as large as two states, and give each school the amount of attention it deserved. A plan to simplify the work was suggested by him.

George L. Ault, of Brimson, Minn., was elected chairman, and Charles Schelin, of Independence, was chosen as secretary.

The delegates met this afternoon and listened to a talk by John G. Williams on "Farming In St. Louis County." He was followed by A. B. Hostetter, of the Commercial club agricultural department, who urged on the minds of the men the necessity of a county agricultural school. No action was taken on this matter.

Tonight, at 8 o'clock, Superintendent Denfeld, of the Duluth public schools, will deliver an address on "Education."

Most of the delegates will leave the city tonight, as the forest fires are still burning in the woods, and they are afraid to be away from home for long.

Savana was $4.50 bid and $5 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $3.12½.

WILL DANCE FOR THE HOMELESS

A number of amusements, the proceeds from which will be sent to the Chisholm fire sufferers, have been arranged for this week's end, and the first of next.

On Friday afternoon the money taken in at the doors of the Bijou theater will be turned over to the relief committee, and on Monday evening a social dance will be held by a number of young men of the West end, for the same purpose.

The hall has been donated by the management of the park, and the music will be furnished free by Blewett's orchestra. One of the local printing companies have agreed to get up dainty programs free of charge, and the affair promises to be successful in every way.

Axel Erickson has the matter in charge.

Former Singer Here.

Chevalier Scoval of Florence, Italy, formerly a well known grand opera singer of his native country, but now interested in mining and mineral property, is at the Saliding today. Signor Scovel came direct frim Florence to the United States and will pay a visit to the Mesaba range, where he has interests. He made many trips to the United States before and speaks the English language fluently.

J. M. Gidding & Co.
Correct Dress for Women.

Distinctive Apparel

To be correctly dressed—to feel that one's clothes can stand the criticism of those who "know" is every woman's desire—yet how often does she pay for something which she "thinks" is all right, only to find out a short time after, that it is all wrong.

This one point alone, brings out the importance of the Gidding establishment to Duluth's particular women, for our phrase, "correct dress for women," tells its own story.

The best dressed people of this vicinity recognize this fact, and glory in their reliance upon this store as an authentic fashion source—hence, the Gidding Label has come to stand as the symbol for all that is fashionable in women's attire. It assures you the very best materials, workmanship and finish. Yet prices are kept within sensible and moderate bounds, for high class does not necessarily mean high priced.

We are showing splendidly Tailored Suits at $25.00 and $29.50, and really exceptional assortments at $32.50, $35.00, $39.50 and $45.00. Beyond these, the prices advance dollar by dollar to the hundred mark or more. We are also showing Tailored Street and Afternoon Dresses, Gowns, Wraps, Separate Coats, Skirts, Waists, and, in fact, Everything That is New and Fashionable in Women's and Misses' Apparel.

These are but hints, and an hour spent seeing the new garments will convince you of the fact that you cannot afford to overlook this establishment in your Fall apparel buying.

The Peruna Medicine Co.,
Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—

It gives me pleasure to say that the persons who have used Peruna for catarrhal affections have found it an efficacious coure, and one worthy of recommendation.

You may use this letter in any way adapted to your interests.

Yours very truly,
Abraham Bandala.

Other distinguished Mexicans have given similar opinions regarding Peruna. Prominent among these men of universal reputation is Doctor Agustin Rivera, who writes as follows:

Mexico City, Mexico.

The Peruna Medicine Co.

Gentlemen: In view of the magnificent results that I have obtained from the use of your excellent remedy "Peruna" in several obstinate cases of nasal catarrh, I take pleasure in writing you a testimonial recommending it as the best medicine discovered for such cases.

I congratulate you on your splendid preparation and hope to be the first to recommend it to my many customers.

Accept this most sincere testimony, and use it as you think best to reach those who suffer from catarrh. I am glad to sign myself as your sincere friend,

Augustin Rivera, M. D.

BODIN CASE SUBMITTED

Jury in District Court Retires to Consider the Evidence.

Civil Suits Occupy Attention of All Three Judges.

The suit of Hilda Bodin against the Duluth Street Railway company for $6,260 damages, alleged to have been sustained by a jolt over a crossover switch at the corner of Piedmont avenue and Third street Aug. 20, 1907, went to the jury about 10:30 o'clock this morning and at noon the jury was still deliberating.

Arguments were made this morning by Thomas Wood for the street railway company and A. G. McKnight for Mrs. Bodin. The company based its defense on the ground that the crossover was necessary to the operation of the cars and the proper maintenance of the system, and the jolt received by Mrs. Bodin was similar to that received by thousands of passengers and was no more severe than would be expected by anybody taking passage on a street car.

The hearing of evidence continued this morning in Judge Cant's court in the case of Amelia Haug against John Kroft. The plaintiff charges that Kroft entered her land, described as the sw¼ Section 35, Township 52 north, Range 12 west, and removed 30,000 feet of white pine, 160 cedar trees and 118 birch trees, valued at $540. She sues for treble damages, or $1,740, in accordance with the Minnesota laws.

* * *

All evidence was submitted and arguments made on a motion by the defense to dismiss before Judge Ensign this morning in the case of E. F. Hoel vs. John Olson et al. Olson entered into a contract with the Martin Logging company for the delivery of a quantity of pulp wood and ties. He afterwards transferred the contract to a brother-in-law, a Mr. Hill. On the completion of the contract, Hoel started garnishment proceedings against money held by the Martin company and the suit will determine whether Olson, Hill or Hoel shall have the money.

IS IT FAIR?

That the ranges should have but one county office when they cast about half of the Republican vote of St. Louis county? Fair play, good politics and the square deal back the ranges in their request that Duluth Republicans vote for a range man this year for Judge of Probate.

TO GET FINNS INTERESTED

Dr. Jackola Has Urged Finnish Papers to Start Fire Funds.

Hoping to reach the Finns of the Northwest, Dr. John Jackola has made a determined effort to get the Finnish papers of this district to start subscription lists among their subscribers. He has written to the Finnish papers at New York Mills, Minn., and at Hancock and Calumet, offering to start the subscription list of each with a gift of $25. As a result two of them have already started appeals for help for the fire sufferers, and the third is going to do so.

The three papers have a combined circulation of about 20,000, and number both the radical and the conservatives among the people they reach. Dr. Jackola says this work is planned not so much to create a separate Finnish fund as to reach a class of people who would be hard to reach otherwise.

MAD BULL KILLS MINNEAPOLIS MAN

Minneapolis, Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Death under the heels of a mad bull, was the fate which befell Pete X. Jensen, 74, 3924 Clinton avenue, last night.

Jensen, who was employed by the husband of his niece, O. E. Holden, to care for the latter's livestock, went to feed the bull. A short time later Mr. Holden, entering the barn, was horrified to find him lying unconscious and badly gored in the animal's stall.

He was hurried to Swedish hospital, where he died.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Duluth society is this week preparing for Tag day on Saturday and no other game, pastime or diversion is receiving any but the most cursory attention. Half the women of the town are muttering in their sleep, "I'm a high and haughty chaperone," and during the daylight hours, while they are frantically trying to discover the district which they are to patrol, they feel quite the gay and giddy chaperone. This morning a meeting of a large number of the chaperones was held at the home of Mrs. A. B. Wolvin, when the boxes and tags were distributed and final instructions were given.

The interest of Red Cross Charity day is widespread and the only citizens of Duluth or the strangers within the city who will not know of what is going on will be the deaf, dumb and blind. From earliest morning until the day is completely past and done will the dispensers of red tags hold sway, and it is expected that a fine sum will be realized for the hospital. The remarkable escape for the range residents from bodily injury during the recent fires but emphasizes the necessity of having at Duluth a hospital, which will be at every call be equipped to render every assistance to the suffering.

The list of chaperones and their aids is as yet incomplete, but in large part it will be as follows:

Sellwood Building—Mrs. A. H. Comstock, Mrs. A. M. Marshall, Mrs. E. P. Towne, Miss Larue Sellwood and Mrs. George C. Stone.

Wolvin building—Mrs. F. E. House and Mrs. W. J. Olcott.

City hall—Mrs. F. W. Paine, Mrs. A. D. Thomson, Miss Helen Ostrom, Miss Mary Paine, Miss Ware.

Palladio building, Manhattan building and Baltimore lunch—Mrs. G. D. Swift, Mrs. Whitney Wall, Miss Julia Morrow, Miss Anna Macfarlane, Miss Helen Congdon and Miss Irma Hartley.

Lyceum—Mrs. G. G. Dickerman, Mrs. C. W. Andrews, Mrs. Victor Stearns, Miss Esther Adams, Miss McNaughton, Miss Rebecca Bailey and Fred Wolvin.

Board of Trade—Mrs. Watson S. Moore, Mrs. G. L. Douglas, Mrs. Fosburg, Mrs. R. M. Sellwood, Mrs. H. W. Fisher, Mrs. Werner Pressentin, Mrs. W. C. Peet, Miss Lou Tyler, Miss Harriet Shannon.

Country club—Mrs. E. P. Alexander, Mrs. Daniel Waite, Mrs. C. B. Miller, Mrs. W. C. Winton.

Huot's—Mrs. G. G. Hartley, Mrs. C. H. Munger, Mrs. J. G. Harrison, Miss Hartley and Miss Dorothy House.

BURNS - HARRIS.

Simple Service at Home of Bride's Parents.

The wedding of Miss Antoinette M. Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Burns, to Glen A. Harris, took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents at 2125 East Superior street. The service was read at 3 o'clock by Rev. John W. Powell of the Endion Methodist church. There were no attendants and only the immediate friends were present for the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Harris left for a wedding trip to Buffalo and after their return they will be at home at Lakeside.

English Visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Ostergren of 5726 Oneida street have as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. John Tod of London, England. Mrs. Ostergreen and Mrs. Tod are cousins and their childhood was spent together. Mr. and Mrs. Ostergren and their guests will leave Saturday for a short visit at St. Paul, and from there the English visitors will go to the East for a tour of the United States and Canada.

Y. W. C. A. Speaker.

Miss Gertrude Williams arrived today from St. Paul to be the guest of Miss Kezia Bennett for a few days. Miss Williams will be the speaker at the Sunday afternoon devotional service at the Young Women's Christian association rooms. Miss Williams was in attendance at the annual Y. W. C. A. conference at Lake Geneva during August and will speak of the meetings there. The Duluth association was not represented at the meeting and many here will be interested in this account of the conference. The soloist for the afternoon will be Miss Florence Hyland.

Bridge Party.

Mrs. R. M. Sellwood entertained at bridge yesterday afternoon at her home, 122 Twenty-first avenue east. The favors were won by Mrs. Werner Pressentin, Mrs. C. E. Lum and Mrs. Fosbur.

The game was played at four tables.

WED IN CANADA.

Miss Edna Boyle to Become Bride of W. O. Wright.

Invitations have been received in this city from Mr. and Mrs. John H. Boyle of Regina, Canada, for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Edna May Boyle, and Walter Oscar Wright of Toronto. The bride is known to many Duluth people, having formerly lived in this city with her parents. The wedding will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boyle at Regina, and after Nov. 1 Mr. Wright and his bride will be at home in Toronto.

Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Powell of Bisbee, Ariz., formerly of this city, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jennie Jewell Powell, to Roger T. Pelton. The wedding will take place early in December. Mr. and Mrs. Powell are well known in Duluth society, where they formerly lived, and are cognizant of; and my wife has fled. So far you are already informed, beyond the shadow of a doubt. I simply wish to add that I knew nothing of the blackmailing—my wife foolishly kept it from me. But, gentlemen, there is one criminal only, myself. I am the father of that child. I did what I could to repair an irreparable injury. I have failed. However, I wish to say over and over again that Mrs. Lismore was faultless—was a cruelly wronged woman." He hesitated an instant. "The greater publicity you give my confession," he added, "the better I shall be satisfied.

"One thing more," Lismore pursued. "I wish you all to add that I intend to close out my business in the city; and as soon as I hear from my wife, we shall leave for a new country. Good-day."

Left alone, Lismore stood, plunged in a vague reverie, but finally he touched a bell on his desk, and the maid entered.

"Reba," he said, "send Henry down town at once. He is to wait until the extra editions come out, buy a copy of each paper, and hurry home with them. And, Reba, see that the hall door is left open all evening. Let the servants remain in the kitchen or their rooms. I will want no dinner. That is all."

Back and forth, back and forth, he paced over the rugs and the polished floor. It seemed to him a very long time before a servant tapped at the door and entered with a bundle of evening papers. The master unfolded them, and in glaring red headlines, saw: "Lismore's Confession." He read everything.

Lismore remained in the black library for hours. It seemed as if days were passing him in the darkness. He was waiting, waiting; and he could almost fancy that the hours were waiting with him, and had refused to move forward in their wonted order until her presence should release the enchantment and bring the night to its normal end.

His sense of hearing became acute; and he listened to the footsteps passing on the sidewauk. Mens steps, for the most part; and he noted them indifferently. But now and again a lighter foot passed, and Lismore's heart leaped into his throat, only to fall again as the person went on, unconscious of the emotion created by her presence. After each of these disappointments, Lismore's nerves twitched spasmodically, but he never gave up hope. Finally the last pedestrian passed, and the silence of the street was as absolute as the silence of the library. One he heard a rustle in the hall, but it was immediately followed by whispering voices. Then some one tapped.

Lismore strode across the room and flung open the door. The maid was there, and, farther back beneath a chandelier, his servants were huddled in a trembling group. His presence was greeted by a general sigh of relief.

"Well?" he harshly demanded, "what does this mean? Why are you up at this hour?" A sudden thought crossed his mind, and he caught the girl's arm. "Have you news?" he gasped. "She's not—she—" He could not articulate the dreadful word, and his vehemence, together with the glare in his eyes, for a moment drove away the last remnant of the maid's self-possession, so that she stared open-mouthed.

A grisly panorama flashed past Lismore's eyes, and he seemed to hear a distant voice chanting:

Take her up tenderly,
Lift her with care;
Fashioned so slenderly—
Young and so fair!

"Oh, not that! not that!" he cried. "God in Heaven, she's not dead!"

The maid recovered herself with a start, and instantly all barriers between master and servant were gone. She was a woman only, and her mission was comfort. She laid a hand on his arm.

"Dead?" she almost whispered. "Oh, no, we have heard nothing. She is not so weak; you know that. She is alive."

Lismore sighed in relief, yet the icy hand that had touched his heart left a ghastly chill behind. "I am glad," he said, simply. "What is it, then?"

"W—we were frightened, sir," the maid stammered, wholly a servant again. "We thought—Henry suggested—maybe—you—you—"

Lismore smiled grimly. "Not I," he rejoined, catching her meaning. "I have no intention of leaving just yet, and never by that route. There, there, I understand. Go to bed, all of you. And, Reba, see that the hall door is left as directed."

He shut himself in the library again. Was she still in town? Would she see the papers, read them, and having read the interview, would she understand?

He unlocked a drawer and took out a letter which he perused over and over again.

"Dear Clifton," it read: "In the morning you will understand. I must go—and it breaks my heart; for I love you. It was because of my love that I married you, notwithstanding the great shadow hanging over me. The shadow has fallen. I have ruined your life, Clifton, and I will have that memory to bear now, as well as the other one. Let this plead for me—and oh, try to think of me, not as I was, but as I seemed to you. And remember always that I loved you from the first. Remembering this, you may some day forgive me.

"I cannot tell you the father's name—he is dead now, thank God; but I cannot tell you. No one knows, not even the persons who have my child. As for them, I gave them every cent of my own money, but when they demanded yours, too, I refused. I could never do that; never steal your money to hide my shame from you—never make you the shield of your own dishonor. Dear, dear Clifton, how terribly it is to leave you in the night; but now my last memory will be a gentle one. The look I will ever see in your eyes will be a love-look. But if I had waited until the last I could carry with me no pleasant remembrance; your dream-face would ever be full of anger and scorn."

The letter ended abruptly, without signature, but the tear-blots half obliterating the last sentence, showed that the writer had been unable to control her grief.

Lismore's fingers drummed the devil's tatoo on his desk. He knew the letter word for word, and as he sat there the manifold lines faded from his face. His eyes still retained the pained, speechless, pleading look that is sometimes seen in the big orbs of suffering animals.

Suddenly the hall door shut with a gentle click, very audible in the absolute silence.

Lismore sprang erect, every trace of color gone from his face. His eyes were fastened on the hangings before the library door, but as the minutes went by and he heard no sound, discerned no movement, his breathing grew more labored, and his hands began to tremble.

This tension of the nerves lasted perhaps ten minutes, and then he suddenly turned and buried his face in his hands. When he looked up again the hangings were brushed aside, and his wife stood there, staring at him with round, frightened eyes.

Neither could for an instant move or speak, but each searched the other's face. Mrs. Lismore slowly held out her hands.

"Grace!" Lismore cried, springing forward; "Grace; I knew you would understand—and come."

the EVENING STORY

LISMORE'S CONFESSION

By R. C. Pitzer.

"Another gentleman in the library, sir," said the maid.

Lismore lifted a death-white face from his hands. "That makes how many?" he asked, in a whisper.

"Five, sir; all newspaper men. I've repeated your instructions. You will wait until all are here, and then you will make a general statement, sir."

"Quite correct, Reba."

"The gentlemen say that the quo—quorum is complete, sir."

"Very well. Tell them I will come soon."

"Left to himself, Lismore sat silently. His expressive face plainly showed that he was in two minds as to what he should do or say.

"The world," he muttered, half speaking his thoughts aloud, "what do I care for the world—now? But, the step is taken, there must be no faltering, no looking backward, no hint that I ever could have done anything else but this. And I couldn't! God knows I couldn't!"

He hesitated at the library door, but in an instant he braced his muscles as if to meet some physical shock, and entered.

"Mr. Lismore," said one of the youths, "I am Develin, of the Messenger. It is very good of you to give us an interview. This gentlemen—"

Lismore stopped him with a gesture, and coldly bowed.

"First of all," he said, "I must request that you ask me as few questions as possible—none at all, if it can be avoided. Of course, you realize that this is all very trying; I wish to get it over with as quickly as possible."

A murmur of polite sympathy responded.

"We understand," Develin bowed. "Your servant has said that you would give us a general statement of the matter."

"Exactly." Lismore stood at his desk and looked down at it. Ah, if they knew of the precious letter it contained, if they could read that, what a terrible difference it would make. He almost held his breath as he surreptitiously satisfied himself that the drawer was locked.

"As you say," he began, "I wish to give you a statement regarding my side of the matter. Part of the story is already known and you need not tell me of it; I have read everything in the morning papers." He unseeingly stared at the window. His face was lined and drawn with sudden age; deep circles were under his eyes; his hands clenched.

"Every word of this scandal regarding my wife is true, but the knowledge is defective. We were married just two years ago. Before that, as this unhappy matter has made public, my wife was—unfortunate. Her child was still an infant when she married me. The persons to whom it was intrusted have turned blackmailers; they have had thousands of dollars from her. At last, they have made known everything they are cognizant of; and my wife has fled. So far you are already informed, beyond the shadow of a doubt. I simply wish to add that I knew nothing of the blackmailing—my wife foolishly kept it from me. But, gentlemen, there is one criminal only, myself. I am the father of that child. I did what I could to repair an irreparable injury. I have failed. However, I wish to say over and over again that Mrs. Lismore was faultless—was a cruelly wronged woman." He hesitated an instant. NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WILL ESSAY NEW METHOD

Canned Oratory and Stereoptican Views in Dakota Campaign.

Up-to-Date Campaign Methods Are Expected to Appeal to Voters.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state Republican central committee may give the voters of the state canned and illustrated oratory and politics during the campaign. There is a proposition to have three shows travel over the state, each giving a short Taft address, a short speech on the North Dakota political conditions, then sketches of the Republican nominees will be given with accompanying stereoptican views of the candidates. There will also be shown a number of humorous political cartoons. The proposition, it is claimed, will appeal to the people as readily as the ordinary spellbinders' efforts and probably be more effective.

That North Dakota is not a poverty stricken state, that Fargo is the financial headquarters of the state is claimed by Fargoans on the showing of one of the local banks one day this week, when the deposits exceeded a half million dollars. For a country over which the buffalo and Indians roamed less than forty years ago, Fargoans feel they are making some advancement.

The effects of bleached flour on digestion will be tested by Pure Food Commissioner Ladd on rabbits. He has secured a number and will feed them on flour of different kinds in an effort to find out whether the bleached process really injures or retards digestion.

TWO ARE GORED BY UGLY BULL

Young Daughter of One Victim Tossed High in the Air.

Jordan, Minn., Sept. 10.—Two men were trampled to death by bulls in this county Tuesday. Ignatz Markot, a land-owner and farmer, and Frank Hleble, a farm hand, only a few years over from Germany, were the victims.

Displaying the most intrepid bravery and rare presence of mind, the 11-year-old daughter of Markot attacked the bull when it was beating the life out of her father with its horns and hoofs. Distracted for a moment from his victim on the ground, the bull charged the girl, and, catching her on his horns threw her a distance of a rod or more. Strange to say, she was not injured, and, rushing a dog, returned to help her father. The dog drove the bull away and Markot was picked up in a dying condition. He was 63 years of age and left a wife and thirteen children.

No one saw the attack on Hleble. He had been sent to drive in the cows for his employer, Matt Voelker of Marystown, and being missed, was found dead with all his ribs crushed. He was a single man and had no relatives in this country.

LUCE COUNTY REPUBLICANS.

Convention Held at Newberry Decides Upon a Ticket.

Newberry, Mich., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Luce county Republican convention held here nominated the following ticket: H. L. Haines, judge of probate; John Turnbull, sheriff; John C. Stephens, treasurer; John Tait, clerk and register of deeds; L. H. Fead, prosecuting attorney; L. H. Fead, county court commissioner; coroner, Dr. Prentice; coroner, H. E. Perry; county surveyor, D. K. Smith.

The following county committe was selected: F. P. Bohn, J. L. Richardson, E. L. Munson, John Smather, John Patrick, William C. Kelly.

The chief interest was centered in the race for sheriff between W. C. Jenkins and John Turnbull. Mr. Jenkins withdrew in favor of Mr. Turnbull. Dr. Bohn presided and W. G. Frey was secretary. There has been no opposition ticket for the past two elections and it is not expected that there will be one this year.

EDWARD RYAN IS SANGUINE.

Copper Country Democratic Leader Predicts Bryan's Election.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Ryan, one of the leading Democrats of the Copper country, is predicting a landslide for the Michigan Democracy. This, he says, will be brought about because Governor Warner was renominated. He also predicts that Bryan will be elected.

INJURED IN RUNAWAY.

Young Man Breaks Limb and Nearly Loses His Life.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special The Herald.)—Jens Erickson, a young man, while driving a dray yesterday on his father's farm, west of the city, came near losing his life in a runaway. His team started to run, and young Erickson, who was standing on the drag, fell, one of his legs dropping between two slats on the frame, and in that position he was dragged half a mile, breaking the limb at the ankle and terribly bruising him. He was brought to the Bethesda hospital here.

WILL WED IN ST. PAUL.

Crookston Man to Take Bride in Saintly City.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator and Mrs. A. D. Stephens left last evening for St. Paul, accompanied by their son, Marcus, manager of the Crookston Milling company, in this city, who will be married to Miss Ethel Mudgett this afternoon. Miss Mudgett was formerly a teacher in the Crookston high school and was very popular and active in social circles here.

THOMAS BROWN SECRETARY.

Crookston Twenty-Five Thousand Club Elects New Officer.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Twenty-five Thousand Commercial club, Thomas R. Brown, Jr., formerly of Minneapolis, was elected secretary. Mr. Brown came here two years ago last spring as the first secretary of Crookston's Commercial club, and after serving eighteen months, resigned and was succeeded by J. R. Moore, who, after serving six months, resigned the middle of August, and Mr. Brown was unanimously re-elected. The club plans more aggressive work than ever before.

RABIT LAKE IRON ORE STEADILY IMPROVING.

Aitkin, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the work progresses at the Rabbit Lake iron shaft the quality of ore taken out is proving to be better than was generally expected. In fact, it is of very good grade and this is looked upon by iron men as being encouraging for greater development in the near future than has been planned up to this time. The Rogers-Brown people now have four properties, at least, that they are under contract to mine.

AITKIN COUNTY DID WELL.

Carried Off Worthy Prizes at the Big State Fair.

Aitkin, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aitkin county has made good again at the state fair.

Local people were given first prize for the best farm exhibit and first prize for best grains in sheaf and threshed. In this twenty-eight varieties were shown. Four other firsts were taken. Eight seconds were captured and three thirds in addition to the Aitkin county exhibit as a whole which took third place.

As an evidence of the splendid value of Aitkin county exhibit, it may be said that all of these first premiums taken were on products that were a part of the county exhibit.

DEAD BESIDE POISON BOTTLE.

Beardsley Woman Supposed to Have Killed Self in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lifeless body of a woman, who is supposed to have been Mrs. Ella Daly, about 45, of Beardsley, Minn., was found yesterday in a room in a lodging house kept by Mrs. C. Peterson, 627 Washington avenue south. On a bureau near the bed on which the body was lying was an empty bottle, which had contained laudanum, and Coroner Kistler believes that the woman committed suicide.

Late Tuesday afternoon the woman applied to Mrs. Peterson for a room, and was assigned to one on the third story. Today the woman did not arise, and Mrs. Peterson found that the door was bolted from the inside. The door was broken in and the body of the woman was found lying on the bed.

NORTH DAKOTAN CREMATED.

J. D. Perkins of Oakes Perishes in Destruction of Home.

Oakes, N. D., Sept. 10.—J. D. Perkins of this city met a tragic death Tuesday night. His house caught fire and before he was taken from the building he was so severely burned that he lived but seven hours.

He had been in bed only a few minutes when neighbors noticed the house was on fire and gave the alarm. He was awakened, but instead of getting out through the window or door close by he ran into the flames and was only extricated with the greatest difficulty.

He was taken to the hospital nearby where his injuries were attended to. Mr. Perkins was a widower and had several grown-up children. He came here from Wisconsin in the early '80s.

VISIT PORT ARTHUR LATER.

Revenue Cutter Has Not Yet Looked Into Isle Royale Affair.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 10.—Orders for the revenue cutter Tuscarora, which expected to sail for Port Arthur to investigate the international complications regarding Isle Royale, were changed. The boat went to Boise Blanc island to stand by the barge Clint until the Tampa arrives to tow her below. It will go to Port Arthur later.

The alleged trouble has resulted from a dispute between American and Canadian fishermen. Several Canadians are said to have invaded the island to have taken possession of part of it.

TRAIN STRIKES WOMAN.

Stillwater, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Lasever, aged 70 years, was struck by the Omaha Twilight limited at the crossing east of Stillwater Junction, and was thrown about fifteen feet upon a pile of stone, and received injuries that will probably prove fatal. She was returning home from Stillwater when the train struck her.

KILLED BY GRIEF.

Chippewa, Falls, Wis., Sept. 10.—Dr. Willis J. Vaupel was found dead of heart failure in his office. He had not been well since his wife died a year ago and had been constantly grieving. He was 45 years of age and came here from Waterloo, Iowa, two years ago.

NEW IOWA RAILROAD HAS BEEN INCORPORATED.

Pierre, S. D., Sept. 10.—Articles of incorporation have been filed here for the Des Moines, Council Bluffs & Western railroad with terminal headquarters at Pierre and a business office in Des Moines. The company is capitalized at $100,000 and is to build a road from Council Bluffs to Des Moines, Iowa, with an eastern extension to Muscatine. The directors of the new line are Robert Pilmory, Norwalk, Iowa; N. W. Hansen, Des Moines, R. G. Wallace, G. S. Galbraith and R. S. Banister, Des Moines, and A. P. Sawyer of Pierre, who is the state agent for the company.

TWO ADDITIONAL POLISH BISHOPS ARE PROMISED.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 10.—The Rev. W. Kruzka of Ripon, Wis., according to a Milwaukee Polish daily paper has received word from Rome that two additional Polish bishops will be appointed in the United States, making three in all. One of them will be in Milwaukee and the other in Buffalo, N. Y. The present one is at Chicago.

The Rev. Mr. Kruzka, a year ago visited Rome as a representative of the Polish clergy of the United States, pleading this cause.

Duluth Minister Preached.

Brainerd, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. J. W. Lowrie of Duluth occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening, leaving a favorable impression, and left for Duluth on the afternoon train Monday. Other candidates are to be heard before a call will be extended.

Bitten By Rattler.

Rhinelander, Wis., Sept. 10.—Reports from the Flambeau Indian reservation give account of the death of Frank Big Wolf, an Indian who was struck by a rattlesnake while hunting. His is the first death in years to be reported from snake bite in this section.

Presented Raised Check.

Glyndon, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—A man entered the Bank of Glyndon Tuesday and presented a check for $8.10, which had been raised to 80.10. The assistant cashier saw something was wrong and reported to the cashier, who had the man arrested. He was sent to Moorhead, where he awaits the action of the grand jury. He gave his name as S. L. Johnson.

Still After Pullman Company.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 10.—George S. Loftus has received notice from Secretary E. A. Mosley of the interstate commerce commission that his complaint against the Pullman company will be taken up for hearing by the commission Sept. 17 at 10 a. m., in the United States court rooms in Chicago.

This is the amended Loftus complaint which raises tthe question of the reasonableness of Pullman charges all over the United States. The original complaint by the busy St. Paul man was only against charges from the Twin Cities to Duluth and Chicago.

Superior Man Seeks Niece.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minneapolis police are looking for Minnie Williams of Superior, who is four feet four inches tall and weighs 180 pounds. Ernest Starka of Superior wrote the police Tuesday inquiring for Miss Williams, who is his niece. He says she came to Minneapolis a year ago.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows:

"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."

Another from Newark, N. J.

"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Chippewa Falls—Mrs. Charles F. Nelson, wife of the postmaster of Delmar junction, who mysteriously disappeared from his home several weeks ago, has been appointed postmistress of that village. Post-office Inspector Ormsby has investigated the affairs of the office and found everything in good condition.

Oshkosh—W. R. Tidsout, who for many years was president of the National Union bank, has retired from the presidency of that institution and will devote his whole time to his interests in this state and in the South. Thomas Day, vice president of the Commercial bank, has been chosen to fill Mr. Tidsout's place.

Manitowoc—Temporarily insane from worry over attacks upon his character, George Hiser, a young farmer of Mishicott, committed suicide by blowing out his brains with a double barreled shotgun. His bride of less than a year is almost crazed by grief.

Monroe—Playmates came near causing the death of the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Art Wagner by placing a chain tightly around his neck. When rescued by a neighbor, the boy had turned black in the face.

Madison—The Wisconsin supreme court Tuesday resumed work after two months' vacation. Associate Justice John Barnes of Rhinelander, who was elected last April to fill the unexpired term of the late Justice J. B. Cassoday, sat as a member of the court for the first time. The court took up the first assignment of cases of the August calendar for argument.

Ashland—The Ashland public schools opened Tuesday with a complete corps of teachers in all of the schools. Supt. Hooper was called away, but Principal Crothers met the teachers Monday and assigned them their places, and school opened Tuesday without a hitch.

Eau Claire—Mrs. Eliza Wells, aged 87, who, with her husband, was a resident of Eau Claire from 1862 to 1878, passed away last week at her home in Breckenridge, Minn. A number of relatives still live here, and both Mr. and Mrs. Wells will be remembered by our older residents.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Grand Forks, N. D.—Important repairs have been made on the Central school heating plant as a result of the boilers becoming burned during the year. The total cost of the improvements made necessary was in the neighborhood of $1,200.

Kenmare, N. D.—Three brothers named Harding, residing west of here, have been arrested on a complaint sworn out by S. S. Thompson, a well-known farmer of that vicinity, on the charg of assault committed on the person of his daughter, who is under age. It developed that the boys and girls are first cousins, which prevents the matter being settled by marriage.

Bismarck, N. D.—Dr. H. C. Frankenfield of Washington, D. C., was an arrival Wednesday noon. He has charge of the flood and storm work of the weather bureau, and will make a trip through Yellowstone park with O. W. Roberts on official business.

Ambrose, N. D.—Sunday evening Marshals Johnson and Bakken discovered a "rough house" in the upper story of the Red Front Pool hall, owned by Gust Restevad o fthe Ambrose Mercantile company and being run by William and Tom Caldwell. The officers immediately placed all of the occupants under arrest, among them a 9-year-old son of Peter Bord, a farmer living near this place, was drowned. The little fellow wandered from the yard and fell into a small pool of water. Face downward.

Sheldon, N. D.—The farm residence of I. E. Arntson, about ten miles southeast of Sheldon, was burned. The origin of the fire is not known. The loss was about $1,200; insurance, $00. Threshing in this locality has been practically completed. The crop was fully up to the average and, with prices higher than a year ago, returns are realizing more than has been the case for several years.

Yankton, S. D.—Tuesday was the warmest of the year, the government thermometer reaching the 100 degree mark at 3 in the afternoon.

Westhope, N. D.—Thieves who broke into the Hilltop store at Westhope, N. D., last week and made away with property to the value of over $500, have been placed under arrest.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The educational work in the Grand Forks Y. M. C. A. will be enhanced of a number of courses of study, according to the present plans which have not been entirely completed.

Park Rapids, N. D.—The Walsh County Republican, which has been published here the past eight years, will be discontinued as a result of the sale of the plant to the original owner, Elmer Berge. It is understood that the plant will be removed to Grafton and a third paper started in that city.

arrest.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. H. Gill, 1352 Vine place, received a telegram yesterday telling of the death of his mother, Mrs. J. H. Gill, in Bijnor, India, on Aug. 29. Mrs. Gill was 64 years old, and she has been a missionary in India for thirty-seven years, more than half her life. Sh ewas arranging to come to the United States on a furlough this fall, and expected to spend some time with her son in Minneapolis.

Diamonds of Various Colors.

The mention of the word "diamond" immediately brings to mind the picture of a translucent, white gem. Not all diamonds, however, are white. The most beautiful of all precious stones is said to be the red diamond. This surpasses the ruby in beauty, and is exceedingly rare. Unsurpassed also, in healthfulness, purity and quality, is golden grain belt beer. Serve this delicious beverage at meal time and you put health and strength into your system. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing company.

MRS. MACKAY WANTS VOTE.

Offers Prizes for Compositions by Pupils on Woman Suffrage.

New York, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay is a suffragette. She would not say so outright, but it is as true as trite that "actions speak louder than words," and it is certain that the brainy and beautiful woman who was born in Duer, considers the movement for woman suffrage "full of promise for the future of the United States." The school at Roslyn, L. I., where Clarence H. Mackay has a fine country residence, opened for the autumn term yesterday. The principal, George F. Dann, received a letter from Mrs. Mackay, in which she offered two prizes of $25 each for the best compositions by pupils on "The Need and Right of Woman Suffrage."

This woman says that sick women should not fail to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she did.

Mrs. A. Gregory, of 2355 Lawrence St., Denver, Col., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was practically an invalid for six years, on account of female troubles. I underwent an operation by the doctor's advice, but in a few months I was worse than before. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to perfect health, such as I have not enjoyed in many years. Any woman suffering as I did with backache, bearing-down pains, and periodic pains, should not fail to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The New Steinway
Five-Foot-Ten-Inch
Miniature Grand Piano
(Trade Marked)

is proving a constant and increasing source of wonderment and delight to all musicians and music-lovers. Scientific experiments and acoustical researches have determined the exact size, namely, five feet ten inches, necessary to reproduce the remarkable attributes and qualities of our larger Grand Pianos. Any Grand under this size crosses the danger line, as it cannot yield a tonal result superior to that of the discarded Square or the present Upright Piano. The full, rich and sweet tone of the Steinway Miniature Grand and its dainty appearance are already giving the utmost satisfaction to thousands of purchasers, and we recommend a thorough examination and trial of this unique instrument to anybody desirous of possessing a Grand Piano, but who does not wish to exceed the investment of $800 in a Piano Purchase.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MUCH TALK IS RESULT

Nothing Accomplished at Meeting on Public Building Site.

Virginians Seem to Be Unable to Agree on Location.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The meeting at the Fay opera house last evening, called for the purpose of discussing proposed sites for the federal building, resulted in no definite understanding.

The hall was filled and great interest was manifested, but a motion that the matetr be put to a vote was defeated on call of the ayes and nays. Those who voted in the negative on this motion were evidently fearful that if the matter was put to a vote of those present that there would be a big majority in favor of the site opposite the Roosevelt school. G. H. Boyd, the government inspector, at whose request the meeting was called, afterward stated that neither he nor the government would be downed by the result of any vote that might be taken at the meeting, that he simply desired expressions of opinion on the matter, so the meeting degenerated into a free-for-all talkfest, with the great preponderance of talk and applause in favor of the Roosevelt site.

Among those who spoke against the Roosevelt location and in favor of some site in the neighborhood of the Central school were: Mayor Hawkinson, ex-Mayor Eaton, Alderman Trezona, E. E. Beverley, Alderman Elmquist, R. E. Bailey, E. F. Britto, Frank Hughes and Dr. C. B. Lenont. Among those who favored the Roosevelt site were ex-Mayor A. N. Thompson, Former Alderman Edward Johnson, Supt. Mark Elliott of the Interstate Iron company, Supt. E. D. McNeil of the Commodore Mining company, Supt. J. H. Polglase of the Larkin mine, Former Alderman J. L. Kimball, Alexander Reid, Ira Eatinger, A. C. Osborn and L. M. Osborn. B. F. Smith, proprietor of the Fay hotel, first favored a central location on either of the main business thoroughfares, and was strongly opposed to having the building "hidden among the back alleys in the neighborhood of the Central school." R. E. Bailey made a hit when called upon by saying: "I'm for the Jefford corner, it's closest to me."

Committee Obtained Prices.

A committee had been appointed by the mayor at the request of the meeting held in the icty hall Tuesday afternoon, to obtain prices on different sites. The committee consisted of Messrs. D. W. Elmquist, Alexander Reid and Frank Hughes. They obtained approximate figures on six different sites, and all were higher priced than the Roosevelt site, if the same amount of ground should be secured.

Every test of public sentiment that has so far been made in the matter of a location for the federal building has been in favor of block 43, opposite the Roosevelt school. The matter first came up in a letter from Congressman Bede written to A. E. Bickford, former secretary of the Commercial club. This letter was read at the meeting of the club, and the sentiment at that meeting was rather favorable to the Freeman corner opposite the Fay hotel. A committee was appointed to endeavor to obtain prices on the required amount of ground on that corner. At the next meeting of the club A. E. Bickford, a member of that committee, reported that D. W. Freeman, who owned the two corner lots, refused to make a price thereon. At a later meeting of the club, about thirty members being present, it was moved and carried without a dissenting voice that the Roosevelt site be purchased, and a committee was appointed to request the council to procure options on that particular site, so that it could be offered to the government. At a later meeting of citizens called at the request of Congressman Bede, a vote was taken which showed 28 in favor of the Roosevelt site, 25 in favor of the Central school site and 3 in favor of the Freeman corner. At a later council meeting, when there were many citizens present, a committee of nine was appointed, three from the council, three from the Commercial club and three citizens, with instructions to obtain options if possible, on different sites and submit them to the government. A majority of this committee favored the Roosevelt site, and a report, signed by all the members, was sent to the government, making a definite proposal for lots in this site, and probable prices on the Freeman corner and the Central school site. A canvass of the business men of the city at that time by Attorney L. M. Osborn showed a large majority in favor of the Roosevelt site, and the meeting last evening again beyond doubt indicated a preponderance of sentiment in favor of that location.

At the close of the meeting Inspector Boyd thanked those who had given expression to their opinions, and said the location would probably be decided upon in about thirty days.

DIPHTHERIA CLOSES SCHOOL.

Aurora, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—On account of diphtheria the school at the Mohawk-Miller location has been closed, over half a dozen cases developing. The disease is mild in form and no general epidemic is anticipated. The location is three-quarters of a mile from town.

EVELETH HELPS FIRE SUFFERERS

Not Only Money, But Clothing Provided by Charitable Ones.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The people are contributing as much as possible to the aid of the sufferers at Chisholm. Not only is money being donated, but a large amount of clothing have been forwarded to Chisholm. The Missabe road is transporting the goods free of charge. The amount of money raised is about $1,500, while clothing has been received from John Luto, Mr. Mattino, D. P. McIntyre, R. O. Greening, Eveleth fire department, W. E. Harwood, J. H. Hearding, W. J. Nettle, Shanedling Bros., C. W. Morril, Neil McInnis, Abe Levant, M. L. Wilk, F. R. Campbell, J. J. Gleason, W. J. Smith, A. N. Peterson, John Glode, Mrs. L. Emery, J. V. Johnson, George Mulligan, S. A. Prince, August Johnson, Charles Penrod, Miss King, Morris Nathanson, M. E. Nichols, George A. Perham, J. P. Campbell, S. E. Helps, W. J. Matters, Charles Wahlmah, Mrs. Kingston, Mrs. Corbett, John Goard, Mrs. Sharpe, Mr. Sisson, Joe Bartel, Swan Anderson, G. A. Whitman, C. E. Bailey, Mrs. Feldman, Mr. Matterson, Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. Taylor, Rev. Wargelin, Albert Rohrer, Mrs. Mary Parks, Mrs. P. E. Peterson, Mr. Ollila, J. E. Rankin, Matt Anderson, Charles Jesmore, Mrs. Kimberley, Mrs. Rabinowitz, Robert Mantel. The balance of $36.73, left over from the Fourth of July celebration, has been given to the Chisholm fund. At the Bijou and Orpheum theaters yesterday special benefit performances were given, the first in the afternoon and the second in the evening. All the receipts from both theaters has been given to the fund which will raise it quite a good deal, as good crowds were present at both theaters.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY FAIR POSTPONED

To be Held When Weather Conditions Are More Favorable.

Hibbing, Minn. Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Louis county fair that was to have commenced here Friday has been postponed, according to an announcement made today by Secretary Guthrie of the St. Louis County Agricultural association.

This action was deemed expedient in view of the uncertain condition existing in this section on account of the fire scare and the nervous state of the public mind. Public interest is centered at present more upon caring for the unfortunates who suffered loss by the ravages of the fire and in fighting further conflagrations than in making an exhibit of the resources of this county or in giving horse races. Some splendid exhibits have been gathered and there is no reason why the fair, held at a later date, that will be announced, will not prove to be as successful as ever. Secretary Guthrie expects to announce the date for the fair as soon as needed rains extinguish the fires, lay the dust and render conditions generally more auspicious for the undertaking.

SMALL FIRE CAUSES ALARM.

Wild Report Mountain Iron Was Burning Soon Disproved.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fire which started in the large dry goods and clothing store of Sam Lippman at Mountain Iron about 6 o'clock last evening led to the circulation of a report here that the town was in flames. The fire department soon had the blaze under control and the damage was slight.

DULUTH MAN GETS CONTRACT.

C. W. Fields to Furnish Jail Fixtures for Biwabik.

Biwabik, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contract for the construction of the new village jail has been awarded to J. A. Roberts of Superior for $8,948. Joseph Polack of Biwabik was awarded the contract for the plumbing for the building for $1,268. The same contract will put in a heating plant for $1,215. The contract for putting in jail cells and fixtures was let to C. W. Fields of Duluth for $1,095. Work will begin in a few days.

STEEL MAN VISITS RANGE.

Hibbing, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—President E. W. Guthrie of the Republic Iron & Steel company, which rumor says is to be amalgamated with the Steel corporation, is in this section looking over his company's properties, presumably preparatory to turning them over to the big corporation.

BEARS INVADE TWO HARBORS

Ole Hanson Shoots One of Brutes in City Limits.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bear hunting in the city limits has been helped a lot by the forest fires. Driven by the fire and resulting heat from their haunts in the timber undergrowth, bears are coming into the open and several have been seen close to town in the past few days. Ole Hanson won distinction yesterday by killing a good sized one in the afternoon on Burlington bay, within the limits of the city.

WEDS COLERAINE MAN.

Daughter of Eveleth's Former Mayor is Married.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Marietta Murray Jesmore, daughter of ex-Mayor and Mrs. Charles Jesmore, was married yesterday at the bride's home to Alex King, who is connected with the Oliver Mining company, at Coleraine, Rev. Mr. Rankin officiating. The couple left for the Twin Cities on their honeymoon.

BAZAAR AT HIBBING.

Ladies' Aid of Swedish Lutheran Church Behind Movement.

Hibbing, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—A grand bazaar will be given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Swedish Lutheran church at Taplo hall, Sept. 17, 18 and 19. Martin Hughes, Prof. Todd E. Paulus, Dr. G. Andrew, president of Augustaus college, Rock Island, Ill., will be the speakers. Prof. Olaf Olson will render violin solos, Miss Emily Peterson will sing and the church choir, under the leadership of A. E. Lyman, will render several numbers. A great number of fire articles will be on display and sold. A splendid graphophone will be sold; numbers are being sold on a fine silk piece quilt. There will be several booths. A fish pond and a floral booth will be one of the attractions. Several contests will be going on during the bazaar.

BUILD BETTER THAN EVER.

Eveleth People Who Lost by Chisholm Fire to Rebuild.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of local people have lost by the Chisholm fire. Matt Anderson lost a building that carried no insurance. A. N. Peterson is also a heavy loser. The Johnson Supply company lost a stock of $800, while Alderman C. R. Johnson lost a building valued at $3,200, with $2,000 insurance. P. E. Dowling lost about $1,000, and Frank Rabinowitz a building valued at $3,000, with no insurance. Joseph Baldi lost about $14,000, while G. A. Whitman also lost a little.

A number of the refugees from Chisholm are visiting with friends. Some of the men here who lost in the fire intend to put up brick buildings as soon as possible, and temporarily will put up shacks. None of those that were in business in Chisholm at the time of the fire seem to wish to stay away. They will all open up again.

The local fire department and the mining company have men watching for fire. Of all towns on the range, Eveleth has been the one least threatened by the forest fires.

Robert Stevens Captain.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meetfng of the football players of the high school, Robert Stevens was elected captain and Dale Cerveny manager.

Coming To Hear Debs.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Socialists have chartered a special train to be run to Duluth Monday evening the 21st, to take down all wishing to hear Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist candidate for the presidency.

Laying Water Mains.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work is progressing on the laying of the eight inch water main on Grant avenue from Monroe to Jackson street, under the supervision of W. F. Lawrence. The intersection at Monroe street has already been replaced. About 1,250 feet of pipe will be laid according to the contract.

Unlucky Number Born.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the month of August, thirteen births were reported, six boys, two of which were twins, the rest girls.

DANGER FROM FIRES NOW PRACTICALLY OVER

district down upon Hibbing and the adjoining towns and locations, and swept the fire fiet as far as Virginia, Eveleth and Biwabik. All of the villages employed large numbers of men on the fighting front, and put every man they could find to laying pipe lines from the hydrants and mine pumps. At the mine locations temporary engines were rigged up with nearby streams and creeks as water sources, and every possible means was used to beat back the hungry tongues of flame that were swept on by the wind.

Last evening light showers fell in some places, but the sky soon cleared again, and the rain was not sufficient to do any good. The danger will not be over until a drenching rain falls, but with the protection of the pipe lines the larger towns are now safe from the flames for the present. The fires are still raging with all their old vigor, however.

There was a hard fight at the Mahoning mine yesterday. The strong northwest wind swept the fire down on the mine location, and for several hours it was seriously threatened. Four locomotives were kept busy pumping water, and several hundred men were employed fighting the flames, under the direction of President T. F. Cole of the Oliver Mining company. They were finally successful in beating back the fires, and the location and the valuable mining property is safe.

At the Glen and Clark Mines.

There was another fierce battle at the Glen and Clark mines at Chisholm. These ocations were reported burned in the first report of the fire sent out, but were later reported safe. They were seriously threatened again last evening, but about 500 men employed in the mines fought back the flames. Mr. Cole was also on the scene of this fire for a time, directing the work.

Eveleth also had a scare last evening. The fire came to within a mile of the town, but 100 men were sent out to beat it back, and there is little danger that it will reach the town.

Sawmill in Danger.

Fire encroached on the Sliver mine near Virginia last evening also, and this was the scene of another hard battle. A crew of 135 men was successful in fighting back the flames and saving the buildings about the mine. The Virginia Lumber company's mill was threatened for a time.

Lipton's clothing store at Mountain Iron burned yesterday, but the fire was not a result of the forest fires. It created great excitement in the little village, but there is no danger of the town being destroyed.

An engine has been sent from St. Paul to Virginia and it will remain there until all danger is passed.

The sudden appearance of fires in the Biwabik district has caused some of the citizens to believe that the fires are of an incendiary nature, but a motive for such a cowardly act can hardly be imagined, and the theory is discredited. An investigation is being planned however.

Rebuilding Chisholm.

At Chisholm, the work of reconstruction is going on rapidly. The vaults of the First National and the Miners' State bank were opened Tuesday and money, books and stationary were found to have withstood the intense heat of the flames without damage. The loss to the two concerns is chiefly confined to office fixtures, and to the buildings, which were quite heavily insured. A temporary structure has already been built around the Miners' State bank vault, and the name of the institution appears over the door, together with the legend, "Cheer, cheer, the gang's all here!" Work on the temporary structure around the First National bank is also begun. A crew of men are at work constructing a temporary "city hall," and little pine shacks are springing up like mushrooms over night. The militia is still in charge of the town, and have established headquarters in the one surviving business place, a saloon. They are keeping the lid on tight, not only in Chisholm, but in the nearby locations, and several wagon loads of beer appearing in the vicinity have been confiscated and the drivers arrested.

Prisoners Fight Fire.

The seventy-nine montenegrins who were arrested for plundering, were nearly all of them found guilty by Judge Freeman and received sentences ranging from thirty to ninety days apiece, with the alternative of heavy fines. As a result most of them are doing time, and are fighting fire under guard.

The homeless at Chisholm are for the present well cared for. Tents are being erected rapidly, about twenty being set already, and the pitching of a big cook tent being in progress. They have been placed in the school house, and everything is progressing fairly well on the site of the burned town.

On Tuesday afternoon the DuPont powder house between Hibbing and Chisholm was threatened by the flames. It contained three carloads of dynamite as well as some blasting powder. The fire fighters stayed bravely near the dangerous store house however, and though the flames approached within twenty feet of the building, they were finally beaten back. It is not likely that the explosion would have resulted in much serious damage, as the powder house is isolated.

A hard fight was waged yesterday to save a large quantity of wood belonging to Peter McHardy, to the northwest of Hibbing. While the wood itself was of considerable value, the fight was waged with greater earnestness because the burning of the cord wood would have brought the fire into dangerous proximity to Hibbing. A force employed by the village, and Mr. McHardy fought the flames desperately all the afternoon.

The large quantities of dry grass which surround the range towns, have been their greatest menace so far. It was through the dry grass, running under the alder bushes, that the fire swept into Chisholm and destroyed it. The alder bushes are still green, where the ground underneath them is clean and black, swept bare by the progress of the fire. It is these small prairie fires which have rendered clearings useless and have been the terror of the range fire fighters. Usually some road or other break has formed a bulwark which the fire fighters seized and endeavored to hold in spite of flames and smoke. Most of the towns have by this time learned of the danger of these dry grass meadows, and those to the south and east of town were burned yesterday. As soon as the wind favors, the meadows to the northwest will be back fired in the same manner.

Western, the Delaware & Hudson, the Pennsylvania and the Philadelphia & Reading. Ninety per cent of all the unmined anthracite coal in Pennsylvania belongs to these corporations, or to coal companies, whose shares are held by them. The Philadelphia & Reading's case was not argued along with the others, because of certain questions of law involved in its ownership.

The commodities clause was considered so important that Attorney General Bonaparte came to this city and personally made the principal argument in behalf of the government, other addresses for the government being made by L. Allison Wilmer and E. C. Spelling, special assistants to the attorney general. The general counsel for the railroads weer John G. Johnson of this city and R. W. Deforest of New York, who were assisted by the legal staffs of the railroads interested.

Pinlat of Anthracite Roads.

Prior to the clause going into effect, the anthracite coal carrying roads went before the interstate commerce commission and declared that they could not comply with the clause without making great sacrifices. It was pointed out that because of the then existing financial stringency, the companies could not dispose of their coal properties except at tremendous loss, and they further declared their conviction that the clause was unconstitutional. Thereupon, the government agreed not to enforce the clause until a decision was had upon the law points involved in its constitutionality.

The department of justice then filed a bill in equity upholding the government's contention that the clause was constitutional. The railroads, in their answers to the government's complaint, gave seven chief reasons why the clause was unlawful, among them being that it was confiscatory, discriminating and a prohibition and not a regulation; that it deprived the railroads of liberty and property, and violated a right reserved to the states.

The interstate commerce law provides a penalty not to exceed $5,000 for each violation of the clause. During the argument it was contended by the defendants that each car of coal shipped in violation of the clause could be construed under the act as an offense, and as the Lehigh Valley railroad ships daily 200 cars of anthracite in interstate commerce, that railroad, under such an interpretation, would be liable to a fine of $6,000,000 each day.

Judges Gray and Dallas agreed in an opinion covering seventy-five typewritten pages that the clause is unconstitutional. Judge Buffington dissented but did not file an opinion.

Republicans Inaugurate Innovation; Start Speaking Tour on "Cruiser."

Taft Writes That Bryan's Election Would Destroy Business Confidence.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—With the rival political forces engaged all along the line on land, naval warfare began today when the "cruiser" Theodore Roosevelt, which in times of peace is a huge excursion steamer, left the Chicago river manned by Republican speakers and 400 members of the Marquette club.

Four states will be touched. Today's program called for a meeting at Michigan City, Ind., this afternoon, and at Waukegan, Ill., this evening when a torchlight meeting will be held in the public square. The remainder of the program calls for meetings as follows:

Friday, Manitowoc, Wis., and Muskegon, Mich.; Saturday, Traverse City, Mich.

Among the speakers who will address the various meetings are United States Senator William Alden Smith and Congressman Edward L. Hamilton of Michigan; James E. Watson of Indiana, Republican candidate for governor of that state; J. K. Cubbison of Kansas; Congressman Boutell and Foss of Illinois, and ex-Attorney General Taylor of Indiana. Governor Deneen of Illinois will speak at Waukegan and Vice President Fairbanks is expected to address a big gathering at Manitowoc.

WILLIAM ALDEN SMITH.

The club members carried with them a congratulatory telegram from William H. Taft in which he says:

"I sincerely hope the steamer Roosevelt on which you embark will take you safely and that you will carry good Republican doctrine to the 100,000 people whom you will meet on the trip, and that you will convince them that it is the height of folly for the American electorate, just as we are regaining the confidence of capital, which is necessary to the resumption of prosperity, to put in power the Democratic party under its present leader, whose political history cannot but make Democratic success under his leadership a menace to prosperity and means the destruction of business confidence."

Passed Examination Successfully.

James Donahue, New Britain, Conn., writes: "I tried several kidney remedies, and was treated by our best physicians for diabetes, but did not improve until I took Foley's Kidney Remedy. After the second bottle I showed improvement, and five bottles cured me completely. I have since passed a rigid examination for life insurance." Foley's Kidney Remedy cures backache and all forms of kidney and bladder trouble. Sold by all druggists.

WORKMEN HALT BRYAN AT MEAL

Nominee Leaves Breakfast to Address Them From Car Platform.

Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 10.—Refreshed by nine hours' sleep, William J. Bryan, awoke this morning to find his car on a sidetrack here. He was not expected here and his presence was not generally known. He left at 7:40 for Olney, Ill., where he spoke, then going to Posegville, Ind., and winding up the day at Evansville.

Just before the train pulled out of Mattoon, several hundred workingmen, on their way to their places of employment surrounded it. Bryan was at breakfast, but he appeared on the rear platform and spoke for several minutes, principally on monopolies and injunctions in labor disputes, comparing the platforms of the two parties and urging his hearers to vote the Democratic ticket.

ROOSEVELT IS HOST TO SIX NOTABLES.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Sept. 10.—President Roosevelt's visitors today included Attorney General Bonaparte, Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society; Medill McCormick of the Chicago Tribune, Lawrence F. Abbott of the Outlook, John Ridgeley Carter, secretary of the American embassy at London; Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, and Herbert Parsons, president of the New York county Republican committee. All were guests at luncheon.

LYCEUM—Chauncey Olcott in "Ragged Robin."

"Ragged Robin."

"Ragged Robin," the new piece in which Chauncey Olcott is appearing at the Lyceum this week, giving the last performance tonight is the most characteristic Irish play that has been given in this country in years. The Celtic element is strong in the incidental folk lore abounding in the piece and Irish life during the early part of the last century is depicted with great fidelity. Augustus Pitou personally superintended every detail of the production of "Ragged Robin," and has spared neither money nor pains to make it noteworthy in the annals of his many successes. It is given a cast of great excellence.

WEST END

NEIGHBORS SUSPECTED

West Enders Who Have Been Robbed Suspect Fellow Citizens.

Are Keeping Eyes on Those Suspected of Thefts.

Several exasperating robberies have taken place in the neighborhood of Twenty-first avenue west and First street during the last two or three weeks and the residents of the locality, who have suffered losses at the hands of the burglars, have the idea that the deeds were done by individuals residing not a great distance away.

The robbed ones are shaking their heads wisely and declare that the suspects in the West end are being watched and intimate that depevelonments may be expected in a short time. Only those who have been robbed know the identity of the West enders who are under suspicion.

One day this week a West ender locked his front door and went uptown to meet his family, which had been out of the city. When he returned he found that his residence had been entered evidently by some one tolerably familiar with the situation, and that all the money he had left in the house had been appropriated. Naturally, it made him very wrathy and he is playing the amateur detective. No arrests have been made yet.

West End Shortrails.

George M. Jensen's printing offices are now occupying the building at Twenty-first avenue west and First street, formerly used as the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church.

Miss Christine Hill has gone to Minneapolis to resume her studies at the University of Minnesota.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church is meeting this afternoon with Mrs. E. O Reppe, at her residence on Park Point.

The fire department was called to Twentieth avenue west and the railroad tracks this morning, to quench a blaze which threatened a small barn there.

Dr. Olson has returned from Minneapolis, where he has been spending the last week.

After spending the summer in the West end, Carl Anderson of Hutchinson, Minn., has gone to Minneapolis to attend the state university.

Ladies of the West end churches have been busy during the last two days, collecting clothing to be sent to the fire sufferers at Chisholm and other places.

Rev. A. Edstam, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church, is in St. Paul attending the conference of the Swedish Baptist church. He will deliver a sermon before the conference.

Charles Ulmen of Bayfield, Wis., is in the West end. He says there are forest fires all the way along between that place and Duluth.

Frank Schaeffer has gone to Ashland to play ball.

Alfred Moe has gone back to Minneapolis to complete his studies at the University of Minnesota.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Borgstrom of Twenty-fifth avenue west.

Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Hjortholm have returned to their home at Ellsworth, Iowa, after a visit with friends in the West end.

The boys of the Second Presbyterian church will furnish the rigs and the girls the lunch for a hayrack ride to Smithville tomorrow evening.

The stewards of the First Swedish Methodist church met in the church parlors last evening for their regular business meeting, when the financial affairs of the church were considered.

Miss Anna Dougherty of Twenty-fifth avenue west has gone to Minneapolis for a visit.

Hjalmar Eureen of Moorhead, who has been the guest this week of Charles Erickson of 1928 West Second street, returned to his home this morning.

if there were in the opinion any inaccuracy of statement which does not affect the grounds upon which the court reached its conclusion, it would not afford any ground for a rehearing.

We may also properly suggest that the repetition in the petition for rehearing of arguments, authorities and considerations which were previously fully presented in briefs and arguments, upon the hearing of the case, and fairly considered and disposed of in the opinion, is not within the rule governing such applications, which requires that the petition for rehearing be confined to pointing out some mistake or inadvertence into which the court is deemed to have fallen, with respect to some matter, consideration or authority of so controlling or substantial a nature as to call for a rehearing of the case.

Purpose of Congress.

It is urged by counsel that the court should give consideration again to the purpose which congress had in the passage of the act making it criminal for shippers in interstate commerce to accept or receive concessions from the lawful, published transportation rates, viz.: to strengthen and make more effective the provisions and great purpose of the interstate commerce act, which was (as counsel quote from the rulings of the supreme court of the United States), "whilst seeking to prevent unjust and unreasonable rates, to secure equality of rates as to all and destroy favoritism, these last being accomplished by requiring the publication of tariffs and by prohibiting secret departures from such tariffs and forbidding rebates, preferences and all other forms of undue discrimination; * * * to compel the carrier as a public agent, to give equal treatment to all."

All of this was elaborately presented by counsel to this court in former arguments, and full and fair consideration was given to it by the court, as is expressly shown in the opinion. Counsel, with solemnity, reiterate what no one disputes.

"Thou say'st an undisputed thing
In such a solemn way."

For so rearguing, with wealth of authority, settled principles which no one controverts, counsel do not have the motive that they have shown that these principles have been violated or disregarded by carrier or shipper in this case.

The record does not sustain but disproves any such contention. There is nothing of inequality of rates as between different shippers, or of favoritism or preference to this defendant or discrimination in its favor in the matter of rates, either averred or proved in this record.

If the issue of discrimination or favoritism to defendant, or inequality of rates as between defendant and other shippers over the Alton, were an issue in the case, it is plain that any evidence offered on behalf of defendant which tended to disprove that contention and to show that the 6-cent rate given to defendant was open to all, was admissible, and could not properly be objected to by the government or excluded by the court.

But such evidence presented by defendant to the court and sought to have admitted to the jury was objected to by the government and excluded, and the door to such proof was kept tightly closed from the jury.

Knowledge of the Shipper.

But it is not, after all, for the securing of equality of rates as to all, or preventing discriminations and preferences as between shippers that the learned counsel ask the court to reconsider the purpose of the Elkins act. This is confirmed by their petition for rehearing, as well as by the record of the case. They say that it is particularly in that portion of the opinion here which deals with and decides the question of the necessity of some showing by the government of knowledge on the part of the accused shipper of the lawful rate, in order to justify his conviction of crime because of his shipping at another and lower rate, that the court has failed to give due weight to the great purpose which congress had in mind in the passage of this law.

The court is invited by counsel to find in that act a purpose on the part of congress to impose upon shippers in interstate commerce the duty of ascertaining and knowing that the rate which they pay for transportation is the lawful rate, at the peril of committing a crime if it turns out otherwise.

Counsel for the government not only find in the passage of the Elkins act a purpose to put shipper and carrier on the same footing with respect to adherence to published and filed schedules, but they find it necessary to their case to discover in that act a purpose on the part of congress to impose upon shippers the duty "to ascertain the published rate," and in doing so they are led into a misconception of decisions of the supreme court in the Abilene Cotton Oil company case and in the Armour Packing company case.

They maintain that, with respect to the duty of shipper and carrier respectively to ascertain and know the rate, they (the shipper and carrier) "were placed upon the like footing by the act," and in this court in its ruling that in order to convict a shipper of crime for not paying the "lawful rate," there must be some proof to bring home to him a knowledge of that rate, rejects the rule so laid down by the supreme court in that case.

Nothing is farther from the fact.

"Based on Misapprehension."

The exceptions which counsel take to the statement of the opinion of this court with respect to the position and rulings of the trial court upon the question of knowledge on the part of the accused shipper of the lawful rate, are based upon a misapprehension of the opinion and of the record.

Did the court in its opinion, with accuracy and fairness, state and give full consideration to the rulings of the trial court upon the question here decided.

If so, then counsel have no ground for criticism upon this score. We submit that upon examination of the record their exceptions here become captious and groundless.

The trial court nowhere in its charge left to the jury, as a question to be determined by them from the evidence, this question of knowledge or want of knowledge; but having so taken that question from the jury in its charge as we have shown, it refused to give to the jury an instruction upon that question requested by the defendant, as follows:

"The jury are instructed that in order to constitute the offense of accepting and receiving a concession, with which the respective counts of the indictment charge the defendant, the unlawful acceptance and receipt of the concession must have been willfully, knowingly or intentionally done; and unless the jury believes from the evidence, beyond a reasonable doubt, that in accepting and receiving from the Chicago and Alton Railway company the rate of 6 cents per 100 pounds as the rate for the transportation of petroleum and products of petroleum in carload lots from Whiting to East St. Louis, or in shipping at that rate petroleum or its products referred to in the indictment herein, the defendant, or some agent or representative of the defendant having to do with the matter of the acceptance or receipt of such rate or with the said shipments or transportation of said property at that rate, either actually knew and intended that in accepting or shipping at said rate the defendant was accepting and receiving such an unlawful concession with respect to said transportation contrary to the act of congress here in question or willfully and intentionally ignored facts and circumstances known to it or them which would have led to such knowledge; then the jury must find the defendant not guilty."

It is obvious from all this (and the record otherwise bears out the statement) that there was no evidence before the jury which they would have been justified in finding actual knowledge on the part of the defendant of the 18-cent rate. The government had introduced none such, although it would not alter the case or question here if it had introduced such proof, as the question was by the charge in effect withdrawn from and not submitted to the jury by the trial court.

As To Bogardus.

The fact that during the course of the six weeks' trial, Witness Bogardus had been permitted to testify that he did not know of the 18-cent rate, does not, in view of the subsequent and final rulings of the court in the charge that proof of such knowledge was not required for a conviction, justify the contention of the learned counsel for the government that the conclusion of this court, that the ruling of the judge upon the question of knowledge which is embodied in the charge is erroneous, "proceeds upon the misapprehension of what evidence was in fact submitted to the jury, as shown by the record. So far as the question under consideration by this court was concerned, the record showing that testimony first received was afterwards by the charge made immaterial and excluded from the consideration of the jury, was as to all intents and purposes, precisely the same as if that testimony had not been permitted to be given at all, or Bogardus permitted to make those answers.

As we understand the opinion, it holds that the government must prove, as a part of its case, that the shipper knew what the alleged lawful rate was, and so knowing accepted a lower rate.

Upon this issue, as the opinion clearly points out, the lower court erred: First: In not permitting Hollands to testify that he was of the opinion that six cents per 100 pounds was the oil rate between Whiting and East St. Louis; that he regarded the application sheet, together with the six cents commodity tariff, as making the rate from Whiting to East St. Louis; that whenever he spoke of a rate on petroleum between Whiting and East St. Louis he had in mind the application sheet and the tariffs; and that had he been asked by Borgardus, or anyone else, whether there was a rate between Whiting and East St. Louis he would have answered that there was, that is was filed, and that such rate was 6 cents. Secondly: In refusing to permit Bogardus to testify that a tariff prescribing a 6¼-cent rate per 100 pounds from Whiting and East St. Louis was issued by the Chicago & Eastern Illinois, a competing line, Oct. 9, 1895, and filed with the interstate commerce commission Oct. 11, 1895; that such a tariff sheet was among the tariff files in the possession of the Standard Oil company; that the Standard Oil company, during the period covered by the indictment, shipped under such tariff a large number of cars of petroleum from Whiting to East St. Louis over the Eastern Illinois at said rate of 6¼ cents; and that said 6¼-cent rate was equivalent, to the shipper, to the rate of 6 cents over the Alton, owing to ¼-cent terminal charges. And, Thirdly: That the lower court erred in charging that to sustain the averment of knowledge on the part of the defendant "the proof need not establish that the defendant had actual knowledge of the lawful rate," and that "The defendant must be held to have known that which diligent endeavor would have enabled it to find out."

Captious and Unsubstantial.

The criticism by counsel of the opinion upon this question we submit is itself incorrect, captious and unsubstantial. Not alone is the claim of inaccuracy of statement in the opinion of this court as to what evidence was submitted to the jury for their consideration unfounded, but if the contention had any fair basis in fact, it does not in any degree affect the grounds upon which the court reached its conclusion, and so could not afford any ground for a rehearing.

The idea which has been given circulation and publicity that this court had fallen into a grave misconception as to the attitude and ruling of the district court with respect to this testimony of Bogardus, by reason of which misconception the decision of this court has or might have been influenced, is without foundation.

The argument of the learned counsel for the government in their petition does not define nor disclose what they contend the rule of law to be upon the question of knowledge or intent, as applied to this case, although they maintain that this is the most important question as to which they ask a reargument and appeal for "a final and definite construction" of the law involved in this case upon that question, and ask if this court is willing "to permit the rule as stated in the opinion to remain as its last word on this far-reaching proposition?" They speak of the question as "a proposition of vital importance in the application and enforcement of the interstate commerce act," and ask numerous abstract questions, to which they do not themselves undertake to give any clear or definite answer.

There is no evidence in this record that tends to prove actual knowledge of the alleged lawful rate by the defendant—the contrary is the case; there is no evidence that tends to prove negligence on the part of the defendant; the proof made and the proffered proof of the defense conclusively show a want of actual knowledge and the exercise of the highest degree of care in an effort to ascertain the real rate. It, therefore, appears that the whole argument of the government in this behalf is unwarranted by the record; the petitioners have very cunningly sought to get this court to announce a rule that has no application to the facts proved in the case.

Number of Offenses.

The court holds that the trial court erred in sustaining the conviction for as many distinct offenses as there were carloads of merchandise transported, and in imposing the maximum penalty for each single carload as a separate offense; and that as the evidence showed that the transportation charges were settled for and paid by the shipper every half month for all of the transportation carried on during the half month covered by the settlement, there were no more offenses of accepting and receiving a concession than there were settlements and payments, which the proofs showed to be thirty-six in number.

The indictment charged the defendant with having knowingly accepted and received a concession whereby its property was transported in interstate commerce at a less rate than that named in the tariffs published and filed by the carrier as was required by the interatate commerce act; and so separately averred and charged, in separate counts, with respect to each carload. There was no evidence tending to show any agreement whatever between the shipper and carrier, or any transactions or dealings between them, with respect to the separate carloads.

The statement of counsel for the government that "in the dealings between carrier and shipper relating to the transportation of the property, the shipment of each carload was treated as a distinct transaction," is not sustained by the record, but is erroneous.

Of course, this question as to number of offenses assumes that the carrier should have exacted and that the defendant should have paid at the rate of 18 cents per 100 pounds as the only lawful rate and not 6 cents. If any agreement between the carrier and shipper for the payment and acceptance of any rate less than the lawful rate had ben previously made, it was of no validity or force. But nothing had taken place between carrier and shipper here with respect to the rate, prior to the rendering of the bills for freight charges except the carrier's furnishing the 6-cent tariffs to the shipper as naming the lawful rate, upon the application of shipper for such lawful rate.

Counsel for the government complain that the ruling of this court limiting the number of offenses to the number of settlements for freight, would be "leaving it to the shipper and carrier to elect for how many offenses they may be prosecuted and thus fix the amount of their own fines." However unreasonable the proposition may appear to a zealous prosecuting attorney, that an offender against the law should be permitted to know and to elect as to when he shall commit the offense and how many offenses he shall commit, counsel have referred to no authority which supports their view, that the number of offenses which have been committed are to be determined not by the settled principles of the criminal law, but by the caprice or election of the prosecutor or grand jury.

church people of Duluth will doubtless be ample to take care of these needs.

"What we must do now is to go slowly, and avoid any carelessness in disposing of these funds which have been placed in our hands. There should be no indiscriminate giving. The money should be used for the permanent betterment of conditions. Lumber and building materials are what the people need. They just need a little lift, and they will be back in business again. The wholesale merchants will be generous with their credit to men whom they know are reputable business men, and if we can give these men a start toward rebuilding their stores and houses, it will be the best thing we can do for the people there.

Rebuilding Chisholm.

"They are already starting this work, and many loads of lumber have been sent into Chisholm, and some buildings are already going up.

"We have several days in which to lay our plans, and we should act carefully and thoughtfully, and handle this relief work as it should be handled. The people of the state at large have responded most generously, and we cannot afford to allow any aspersions to be cast on the way the funds are handled. It is a big task and it must be gone at in a businesslike manner.

Proud of Hibbing.

"The people of Hibbing have proved themselves not only heroes, but Good Samaritans. They simply threw their town wide open to the refugees, with no thought of the inconvenience or the expense. I tell you those people have something to be proud of, and the whole state should be proud that it has such citizens as those people at Hibbing.

"The fund subscribed is not too large. There is no danger of that. The great problem now is its disbursement, and it should be spent only after careful consultation with the relief committees at Hibbing and Chisholm. They are on the ground and know the situation better than we do. I want to get at the work of organizing this permanent relief committee as soon as possible. That is the big problem on our hands now, to do the most good that we can with the money, and not allow a single dollar of it to go into the wrong hands."

J. L. Washburn, another member of the relief committee, concurred in the sentiments of Mayor Ilaven, after they had been outlined to him. He was in receipt of a telephone communication from Mayor Lawler, of St. Paul, asking what should be done with the money collected there, and he wrote Mayor Lawler that it should be sent to the relief committee at Duluth and that independent donations should be discouraged, unless the cases were carefully investigated first.

their roofs wetted down to avoid danger.

Most Persistent Fire.

The fire near York station, eight miles north, seems the most persistent and has been burning strong on both sides of the Iron Range road, for several days. This fire is also burning towards the Silver Creek settlements.

The Drummond branch, between Rollins and Waldo, appears clear of fire, and between Highland and Brimson the fires that were large on Tuesday evening appear to be nearly burned out. At the latter place yesterday afternoon, fires threatened property near the Oliver Iron company's tie mill, and the Nolan Bros. & Laird mill, and one of the Iron Range fire-equipped locomotives was sent from Biwabik, to assist the fire fighters.

At Allen Junction, fires are still burning in the vicinity, but not close. At Mesaba, there are none close. Embarrass reports that brush fires started Tuesday evening and were burning strong and dangerously all day. Many settlers were fighting the fires, which appear to have died down with the wind.

There are no fires close to Tower, Ely, and Winton, but there is one visible about five miles to the north of Ely.

Big fires are still smoldering near the village of Aurora and the mining locations, but the danger is thought to be past.

At Biwabik there are fourteen different fires visible, where twenty-four hours previously none were in sight. There are no fires near McKinley or Mariska.

Fires At Sparta.

The fires around the village of Sparta were very bad yesterday afternoon. Fire-equipped engines were sent from Biwabik and Eveleth to assist in the fight. The village was in danger at times, but about 6 p. m. the wind died down and the danger is thought to be over.

Eveleth reports fires in the vicinity but none near the city. Plenty of men are watching, and fighting the flames, and no danger is anticipated.

Last evening some showers fell in the district between Biwabik and Bassett, a stretch of perhaps thirty miles, Aurora reporting a small shower, Allen Junction, just a sprinkle, and Bassett a heavy downpour, for a short time. While the rain was not enough to extinguish any of the big fires, probably many of the smaller ones just starting, have been checked, and encouragement is drawn from most anything in that line. Copious rains are still wished for, while winds are dreaded.

How Fires Start.

How many of the fires started probably is given in the story of a settler in the Split Rock district, about twenty-five miles down the lake shore, who nearly lost his home by fire about two weeks ago. A short time previous, noticing how dry the woods and vegetation were becoming, and no rain in prospect, as a matter of precaution, he decided to burn some brush piles near his cabin. His work was successful, but one of the piles being near an old dead pine, the tree took fire, and being hollow, carried the flames up like a chimney, scattering fire brands in every direction, soon setting the woods ablaze, and beyond his control. While the fire was not extended, a few days later the wind swept it back towards his cabin. His father resided with him, and while the outlook was bad, they decided to make a fight for their home. The women were hurried away to Split Rock, on the lake shore, for safety, and the men collected and filled with water all the tubs, barrels, etc., they could find, and prepared for the fray. Their trunks, bedding and valuables were put down an old well that something might be saved should they lose the fight. The fire came onto them about 3 o'clock p. m. and for seven hours, or until near 10 p. m., they fought the flames, which finally passed, leaving them the winners. Most of the time the smoke was so dense and suffocating they could not see ten feet, and the flames seemed everywhere. The son watched the cabin and the father a pile of old ties, near by, which, if they had caught, would have burned the cabin. They remained in the cabin to avoid the cinders, and every few minutes would dash out to their task, many times finding patches of fire four or five feet square to extinguish before returning to shelter. During any lull they would dash to another well nearby and carry water to replenish their supply. They are among the Iowa people who settled in the Split Rock district about a year ago, and when they return to their native state this fall for a visit they will carry with them an entertaining story of the strenuous life in the "northern wilds."

The relief work in Two Harbors for the range fire sufferers has already far exceeded the expectations of the committee in charge and things are "still coming." When the work closed last evening $1,500 in cash had been collected for the day's work and a carload of merchandise had been donated, loaded and ready to go forward on the midnight freight.

Systematic work is in progress to keep under control the fires in the districts adjacent to the city, and any one knowing of danger or requiring assistance should advise the authorities promptly.

Many Settlers Burned Out.

Straggling reports from the country to the northeast confirm the rumors that many settlers living near Grand Marais have been burned out, losing every thing they had, but the village of Grand Marais is not now in serious danger. The settlers, who were burned out are in a more destitute condition than many of the range sufferers and being so isolated any relief should be extended as promptly as possible.

Some logging contractor or company in the Grand Marais district lost a large amount of timber, which had been cut and skidded. His name could not be learned.

Fires some ten days ago burned through the Split Rock district burning one settler's buildings. Many others only saved their property by a desperate fight.

An unconfirmed report also says a big fire had burned into a part of the big body of standing pine near the mouth of the Gooseberry river, one of the largest and finest bodies of pine left in the state. The damage in general to stumpage will be immense, with the end not yet in sight. Many of the settlers have sent their families to places of safety.

shore between there and Grand Marais. There are no fires to amount to anything between there and Knife River. But at Knife River, as far as could be judged last night from the ship, a fierce fire was raging right close to the lake.

Beyond Grand Marais there are fires at Grand Portage and all along Chicago bay. The smoke hangs thick for miles over the lake, and it is as difficult to navigate in as a dense fog.

Everywhere on the north shore the flames are slowly crawling through the forests, eating up miles of timber lands and making life a terror for the scattered settlers.

According to Albert and Henry Ribenak of the Lenox hotel, and J. W. Gilboy, who returned in a launch from Isle Royale, Grand Marais is now quite safe. They left there Tuesday morning at about 7:30 o'clock, and state that at that time there seemed to be no danger of the town's burning, unless, of course, a strong wind should spring up from off shore. They say that there are several big fires in the forests near Knife River. One especially bad fire lies between Devil Track and Grand Marais. There is also a big fire at Big Bay.

Last year's fire, just east of Susie Island, the Detroit Tie company has suffered considerable loss by the burning of 150,000 ties belonging to them.

HOLD AMERICAN SHOW IN BRITAIN

Yankee Industries Exhibition at London; Six Months Next Year.

New York, Sept. 10.—For the first time in more than twenty years, a purely American exposition will be held in England next year. It is to be known as the Golden West and American Industries exhibition, and will be held in the buildings and grounds of Earl's court, London, from May to October. All the exhibits will be taken to London from this country.

Representatives have been appointed to visit the leading cities and all manufacturing districts of this country, the commissioner in charge of the work being John W. Rickman. Temporary headquarters of the commission have been established at the Ansonia, Broadway and Seventy-third street, New York.

The exhibition will typify the great development of the states of the Golden West since the discovery of gold in California in 1849. It will also commemorate the bi-centennial of the completion of the first Atlantic cable. Elaborate preparations have ben made for the exhibition and an ample fund.

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Duluth Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home indorsement, the public expression of Duluth people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Duluth reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

Capt. M. McLean, marine captain, living at 4324 Gilliat street, Duluth, Minn., says: "Lapse of time has only strengthened my appreciation of Doan's Kidney Pills. I gave this remedy my hearty indorsement in the summer of 1896, because of the good results I obtained from the use of it. It promptly and effectually rid me of a dull, heavy aching just over the kidneys, banished the restlessness that broke my sleep at night, and brought about a healthy and natural action of the kidneys. Since that time there has been no return of the trouble, which fact convinces me that Doan's Kidney Pills cured me permanently."

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

NELSON WINS FROM GANS

Clean Knockout Came in the Twenty-First Round.

"I Was Fairly Beaten, I'm Through," Says Joe Gans.

Colma Arena, San Francisco, Sept. 10.—Battling Nelson clinched his claim to the lightweight pugilistic championship by defeating Joe Gans for the second time at Colma Arena yesterday afternoon. The fight ended in the twenty-first round, when Gans, beaten down by a succession of blows from his sturdy conqueror, failed to get upon his feet within the count of ten. The veteran colored fighter was severely punished, but the champion, too, bore the marks of battle. From the first clang of the gong to the last moment Nelson forced the fighting, never giving ground, and gradually battered down his older and less vigorous opponent.

Gans succumbed in the twenty-first round after being unmercifully trounced. Nelson in this round rained right and left blows to jaw and body; and Gans sank to the floor. Mechanically the now defeated fighter watched Referee Eddie Smith wave his hands, apparently too far gone to hear him count. Not until the count of ten was finished did Gans, ashen pale, his face terribly cut and his eyes glassy, attempt to rise. He realized, however, that it was too late, and feebly declared: "I have positively fought my last battle."

The fight was spectacular, and at no time did it appear that Gans had a chance to win. Time and again he would shoot wicked punches to Nelson's face and body, but the latter never for an instant wavered. Failing to arrest the rushing champion at any stage, Gans seemed to lose heart and gradually weakened, though he often rallied and fought back fiercely.

Referee Smith, after the fight, gave out the following statement:

"Gans was all in after the ninth round. In the twenty-first both the timekeeper and myself counted ten, therefore making Nelson the winner. Gans, I believe, did not know he was counted out, but it is just as well that he was, as Nelson had him completely at his mercy and it was useless for the game colored man to take a further beating."

When Gans was seen in his dressing room his face presented a terrible picture. His right eye was closed, his left partially so; his lips and nose were badly lacerated and his face was puffed out like an inflated balloon.

He gave the following statement:

"I made one fight too many. Nelson is a tough boy and beat me fairly. I will never fight again. This is not a Patti farewell, but in dead earnest."

Willie Keefe, one of Gans' principals, said after the fight:

"Gans was in after the ninth round. In the eleventh I begged him to allow me to toss the sponge into the ring. This he would not allow me to do, saying he preferred to be knocked out, and would fight as long as he had the strength to stand up. For eleven rounds Gans fought on his courage alone, as he could not land a damaging punch."

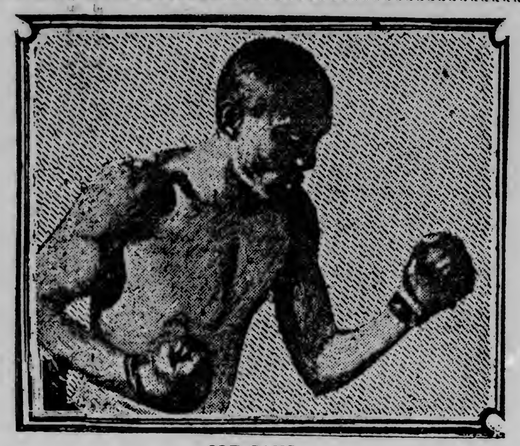

Nelson said: "Gans was tougher than before. He was in good shape and he fought me a different kind of a fight. From now on I will never fight a colored man again. I shook hands with Billy Papke today and we both made this compact.

"I hurt my right hand in the second round but kept on going it, regardless of the pain."

Detroit, 7; Chicago, 6.

Detroit, Sept. 10.—For seven innings yesterday's game was the weirdest seen on the local field this year. Chicago piled up a lead at the start, on wild and ineffective work by Detroit's pitchers. In the seventh Detroit drove Altrock from the box, and with the aid of three wild throws on one batted ball, was enabled to tie the score. Second game—	R.	H.	E.
Indianapolis	5	8	0
Toledo	3	6	2

Batteries—Durham and Livingstone; Nagle and Abbott. Umpire— Owen.

St. Paul, 11; Milwaukee, 6.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 10.—With both teams playing high school ball, the Saints defeated Milwaukee 11 to 6. Manske was wild in the opening rounds. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Milkaukee	6	13	4
St. Paul	11	14	4

Batteries—Manske and Beville; Le Roy and J. Meyers. Umpires—Laughlin and Bateman.

Louisville, 6; Columbus, 2.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 10.—Louisville started to win the last game of the Columbus season in the sixth inning, when Umpire Kane ruled that Woodruff was not hit by Burke's batted ball. It rolled to the left bleachers and went for a two-base hit. After this play Columbus went to pieces. Third Baseman Friel is under suspension for going into the bleachers Tuesday and drawing out an annoying spectator. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Columbus	2	6	0
Louisville	6	6	0

Batteries—Geyer and James; Puttmann and Peltz. Umpire—Kane.

Fighters Get Their Money.

San Francisco, Sept. 10.—The receipts of the Gans-Nelson fight were slightly in excess of $18,000, of which Nelson received $7,500 and Gans, $5,054. The gate money was not up to expectations and it is believed that the Moran-Attell contest, two days before had some thing to do with the falling off.

Christy Mathewson's offer to Manager McGraw to go in the box every other day from now until the close of the season, Oct. 7, in order to help the Giants win the pennant, is characteristic of this great twirler, by many regarded as the greatest pitcher of this or any other day.

There is, indeed, in baseball history but one or two instances of like loyalty and devotion on the part of a pitcher.

Many years ago, when Radbourne and Whitney were the pitchers for Providence, the latter deserted the team just as the eight clubs in the National league turned into the stretch.

The fans of Providence were panic-stricken. So, too, was Manager Bancroft.

"Never mind, Bannie," said the mighty Rad, "I'll pitch 'em all." And so he did and won the pennant for Providence.

Now comes this modern Radbourne—the great Mathewson—and says:

"Never mind, Muggsy. I am willing to pitch every other day if you need me to win the flag."

And Mathewson's offer is as great today as Radbourne's was twenty-five years ago, for the pitchers were then but forty-five feet from the plate, and twirling a nine-inning game was a much less wearying task than it is now.

Mathewson had been a famous pitcher for years before he made his wonderful record against the Philadelphia Athletics in the world's series of games in 1905.

The season of 1908 will go down in the history of the American league as the year in which the left-handed pitchers met with misfortune. Killian of Detroit is the only one in the entire league that has been a consistent winner, he having won thirteen out of nineteen games. "Rube" Waddell has done as well as usual and comes next with fifteen victories and nine defeats. "Doc" White, the headiest southpaw in the league, has won sixteen and lost seven, not nearly as good a record as he generally gets.

Eddie Plank has also had an off year, having just done a little better than break even. Burchell of Boston leads the southpaw recruits with seven victories and six defeats. Nick Altrock has just broken even and he has worked only fourteen times all season, most of the games being against Washington, Boston and St. Louis.

Graham of St. Louis is another recruit that looked fair, and in another year he may be a very reliable pitcher. Lack of control has been his greatest fault. Burns of Washington looked like a wonder at the start, but although he pitched many good games, he did not seem to be able to go the limit in a close struggle.

Two veterans, Jesse Tannehill and Case Patton, went to the bad entirely, and Otto Hess had to be farmed out to Columbus.

Connie Mack banked on Krause, the California southpaw taking Waddell's place, but after two or three trials the youngster was shipped to the Tristate league. Ed Siever could not win for Detroit and he went to the same company that Hess did. Cleveland was also disappointed in Bill Lattimore and Gladstone Graney. The latter, however, will get another trial next spring, as will Hess.

LATE START THIS YEAR

Football Practice Will Not Begin Before Sept. 21.

Chicago Has the Hardest Schedule in Many Years.

Sept. 21 will open football practice for the "big eight" colleges. This date comes much later than the opening day of the other colleges throughout the country, owing to the conference ruling. In the East the first games will be played Sept. 19.

As yet it is too early to form an idea of the comparative strength of the Western teams.

The West presents the best schedule this season since the adoption of the new rules. The only regrettable feature in the listing of games is that the Chicago-Cornell and the Michigan-Pennsylvania games come on the same date, thus depriving devotees of the pastime an opportunity of witnessing both contests. Of course, Michigan will not play any of the "big eight" colleges, its big game being with Pennsylvania on Nov. 14 at Ann Arbor.

Chicago has the best and hardest schedule of any of the conference teams, but is restricted by the faculty from playing seven games.

The Western champions will play but one game off their own grounds, and that with Wisconsin at Madison, on Nov. 21.

Northwestern again will enter the field after an absence of two years and will play three games.

Chicago will open the season on Saturday, Oct. 3, with Purdue. The Maroons' big game will be with Cornell on Nov. 14, at Marshall field.

There will be many intersectional contests this season, Chicago, Michigan and Minnesota meeting Cornell, Pennsylvania and the Carlisle Indians respectively, while Michigan will go East to meet Syracuse. The Wolverines also will meet Vanderbilt, the champions of the South.

Speaking of the Maroons' football chances, Coach Stagg says: "The outlook this year is undoubtedly the worst since 1891. We have not as much material as we have had in all the years since then and what we have is not as good. We have lost seriously by graduation and ineligibilities."

EX-SENATOR LED LYNCHING MOB

W. V. Sullivan Says He is Proud of His Part in Killing.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 10.—A special from Oxford, Miss., quotes United States Senator W. V. Sullivan as follows, with reference to the lynching of Tuesday night:

"I led the mob which lynched Nelse Patton, and I'm proud of it. I directed every movement of the mob, and I did everything I could to see that he was lynched.

"Cut a white woman's throat! And a negro! Of course I wanted him lynched.

"I saw his body dangling from a tree, and I'm glad of it.

"When I heard of the horrible crime, I started to work immediately to get a mob. I did all I could to raise one. I was at the jail Tuesday night, and I heard Judge Roane advise against lynching. I got up immediately after and urged the mob to lynch Patton.

I aroused the mob and directed them to storm the jail.

"I had my revolver, but did not use it. I gave it to a deputy sheriff and told him: 'Shoot Patton and shoot to Kill.'

"He used the revolver and shot. I suppose the bullets from my gun were some of those that killed the negro.

"I don't care what investigation is made, or what are the consequences. I am willing to stand them.

"I wouldn't mind standing the consequences any time for lynching a man who cut a white woman's throat. I will lead a mob in such a case any time."

Houghton County Candidates.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Houghton county Republican convention made the following nominations: Probate judge, J. C. Bently; sheriff, Capt. Richard Edwards; treasurer, Edgar J. Rashleigh; clerk, L. H. Richardson; recorder, C. S. Mackenzie; prosecuting attorney, William J. MacDonald; circuit court commissioners, Louis N. Legris and Anthony Lucas; coroners, Casper Brand and William Fisher; surveyor, Charles Chynoweth.

DULL TIME FOR SPORTS

Nothing Doing Until the Opening of Football Season.

Much Interest Was Displayed in the Gans-Nelson Contest.

Just now Duluth is experiencing a lull in the line of sporting events. Baseball is over, football not yet here, and the only thing doing now in the sporting world is happening outside the city.

The Nelson-Gans fight of yesterday created much interest among followers of the fight game in Duluth, and the result was watched with interest. There was very little betting, and what there was was mostly at the odds of 7 to 10, favoring Nelson. While the majority of Duluth men thought Nelson would put the colored boy away, still Gans has been such a man in his time, and done so many wonderful things, that most people kept their money in their pockets.

The eyes of all are on the big fight for the pennant in the National league. New York is only eight points ahead in the percentage column, and Chicago is still within striking distance, being but thirteen points in the rear of Pittsburg.

There is a good deal of interest among fight fans in both Duluth and the range, in the outcome of the Cinnamon-O'Keefe scrap, which comes off at Bovey, Saturday night. The fight is listed to go ten rounds, and as both men are being tooted as wonders, the mix should be a real go. A number are planning to go up to the range town Saturday afternoon, especially for this event.

Saturday afternoon the first tryout of the high school football squad this year will be held, when they line up against the alumni team. The graduates are big, husky fellows, that have played on championship teams, and will no doubt give the students a good stiff struggle. The followers of the game will be out in full force to see just where the high school boys are at this year.

The Duluth Yacht club will wind up a successful season Saturday by running off the last race for the consolation prize. Frank Farrel's boat, the North Wind, and Freckles, are tied and the race promises to be an exciting one. They will get away at 4 o'clock, and the course will be the triangular one to the elevators, twice around as in the race of last Saturday.

The usual hockey rink talk is again going the rounds, and while the boys don't know just who is going to build the rink they have three or four men on the string, one of whom may be induced to risk his money in this line of sport. It is now believed that the members of the Duluth hockey club will remain in this city during the winter.

Winters, Steinback and Deetz were the only ones to receive offers from the Cleveland, and the only one who has the matter under serious consideration is Winters, who may go. The homes of all the boys are in Duluth, and they have decided that the Zenith City is not such a bad place after all.

ONLY FIVE DAYS MORE TO WAIT

Weary Land Seekers Will Soon File on Their Claims.

"Just five days more" is the cheery greeting with which the would be settlers waiting in the halls of the Federal building for the opening of the Fond du Lac lands, hailed one another this morning.

It's been a long hot wait, and everybody is glad it will soon be over. Cards, books, pipes and everything else have lost all their former attraction, and every one is anxious for the opening of the land office doors.

"I have always been a hard working man said one of the would-bes this morning, and when I made up my mind to wait here for some land I thought what a snap I would have. Well to tell the truth I have not rested a bit, I have grown thinner, and I feel as though I would relish a good workout in the hot sun."

There are more than thirty in line.

CHRISTENED BY COUNTESS.

The St. Vincent, Heaviest British Battleship, is Launched.

Portsmouth, Sept. 10.—The St. Vincent, the largest and heaviest battleship ever built for the British navy, was launched today. She was christened by the Countess Beauchamp.

Counting the three cruising battleships of the Invincible class, the St. Vincent is the eighth vessel of the Dreadnought type to be launched in this country. The admirality has observed the usual reticence with regard to the details of the design and construction of the St. Vincent, but from figures given out it is manifest the experience gained from the construction of the Dreadnought has been utilized in this vessel.

NO HARD TIMES SEEN IN TOURIST TRAVEL.

New York, Sept. 10.—There was no reflection of hard times in the tourist travel from this port this summer. Figures compiled up to Saturday show nearly 77,000 persons went out in the first cabins of the liners for England and the continent. All the steamships now departing have larger lists than at the same time last year, which will swell the total so that it will fall but little behind last season, which was a top notch year in passenger traffic.

GOULD SELLS RAIL SHARES.

One-Half of Holdings in Wheeling Road Bought by Rockefeller.

Cleveland, Sept. 10.—John D. Rockefeller has acquired an interest in the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, according to information received here. It is stated on good authority that Rockefeller's representatives have secured one-half the holdings of George Gould. This would give Rockefeller one-eighth and leave Gould one-eighth.

Last month's division gave Gould one-fourth, Harriman one-fourth, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. one-fourth, and Blair & Co. one-fourth. Releasing part of his ownership to Rockefeller may mean the practical passing of the Wheeling from the Gould family, so far as having much to say is concerned. It may mean as well the complete divorcing of the Wheeling from the Wabash system.

BUTTE GIRL STRANGLED TO DEATH WITH A RIBBON.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 10.—Gabriel Murler, a girl of the under world, was found murdered on the floor of her place with a ribbon knotted tightly about her throat yesterday. The money which she was known to have had, was gone. The room showed no sign of a struggle and the woman lay beneath some of the furniture, as if she had fallen from her bed. No arrests have yet been made. The detectives are looking for a man who was often with her.

CONTEMPTIBLE TACTICS.

That amusing old lady, the St. Paul Pioneer-Press, is fussing and fuming and scolding over the Chisholm fire, apparently with some vague idea in its muddled head that Governor Johnson, whose candidacy for governor has set its addled wits afloat in a sea of perplexity, is responsible for the fire. It does not quite charge that he slipped up into the north woods and touched a torch to the dry timber, but it does say that if he had made the legislature adopt proper forestry measures it wouldn't have happened.

This shows that the Pioneer-Press, as the leading Republican newspaper of the state and therefore the incumbent of the herculean office of chief apologist for the Jacobson candidacy, is at its wits' end for arguments. It looks very much as though that newspaper, impelled to such dishonorable strategy by its poverty of sound argument, is seeking to manufacture out of the raw material of state-wide sympathy for the fire sufferers an antagonism to Governor Johnson that does not exist.

The Pioneer-Press, like its candidate, Mr. Jacobson, seems to have fallen into the child-like error of assuming that Governor Johnson combines the legislative and executive functions of government in his one office. Mr. Jacobson attacks the Johnson administration for extravagance because the Republican legislature appropriated a good deal of money, and the Pioneer-Press attacks Governor Johnson because he did not enact a proper law for the protection of the forests. Really, however, it amounts only to the fact that the Pioneer-Press has been driven distracted by its forestry mania and by its impossible task of proving that Jacobson ought to be elected governor.

It is true, perhaps, that the legislature ought to have been more strict about requiring the burning of tops and cuttings left after lumbering operations, but it wasn't; and Governor Johnson could not himself enact such laws, and could not enforce them when they did not exist.

However, if Governor Johnson or the Minnesota legislature are directly at fault for the disastrous fires that have been sweeping the north woods, it is because they did not, by executive decree through the governor, or by the enactment of a law by the legislature, cause drenching rains to dampen the tinder-dry woods of the north. That would have been the only measure that would have prevented these fires. There has been an unusually long dry spell, much lik; that which preceded the destruction of Hinckley and Sandstone fourteen years ago. The woods, the brush, the layer of vegetable deposits covering the ground for a depth of a foot or more throughout the forests, are all as dry as they could possibly be. Through day after day of cloudless skies the woods grew dry and still more dry, until at last they were so inflammable that the fires always burning in dry seasons spread afar, fanned by breezes over which Governor Johnson had no control, and the flames brushed away in the twinkling of an eye the result of years of work.

It is true that Governor Johnson did not cause copious rains to dampen the woods and thus avert destruction; but it is to be hoped that the Pioneer-Press will not be able to induce the voters to hold it up against him.

WHERE THE FIRES COME FROM.

Back of every forest fire that has obliterated a thriving village, wiped out the fruits of years of toil in a settler's clearing, or threatened the lives and property of the people of a forest community, somewhere there is a piece of carelessness.

It has been dry indeed throughout the north woods in recent weeks, but it has not been so dry that fires would start themselves. In every case—and thousands of fires have spread through the woods in the past few weeks—somebody started the trail of fire that helped make up the terrible tale of losses.

How many campers, woodsmen, explorers or hunters ever think to take particular pains about putting out their camp fires when they leave their camps? Very few. In ordinary weather, their omission is not important, perhaps, though it always contains the potentialities of mischief. In rainy seasons the chances are good that the fires will be drenched before they get a start. But this is a poor thing to depend upon. In dry weather they spread to the surrounding leaves and twigs, then to the dry trees, and a sudden burst of wind carries the flames upon a career of disaster.

There are laws against such carelessness, but many of these camps are so far in the woods and so secluded from public gaze that the matter rests very largely upon the conscience of the camper. If he thinks to put out his fire, all is well; if he forgets, or disregards his duty, a forest fire is started, and perhaps, as in the case of Chisholm, enormous damage will result. It was only by the greatest good fortune that no human lives were destroyed as a result of this criminal negligence.

WALL STREET REFORM.

Usually the cracksman, finding that the police are upon his trail, does not wait for them to interrupt his criminal operations, but flees at once.

Often, too, larger offenders against the common good, upon becoming convinced of the existence of a public determination to correct their ways, make their own corrections before the law comes down upon them; thus saving trouble for the officers of the law and grief for themselves.

For instance, let this from the New York World be cited "Wall street is beginning to realize that it must reform the stock exchange or that the legislature will. The Wall Street Journal, Charles A. Conant in the Atlantic Monthly and other thoughtful Wall street writers are advising voluntary self-regulation. Their remedies are that the stock exchange should supervise the transactions of its members and prevent bucketing and matched orders; that quotations should be permitted only in the securities of such proved corporations as made honest public sentiments; that brokers shall be required to demand larger margins; that no speculative accounts shall be taken from clerks or other people who cannot afford to lose, and that measures shall be taken to assure absolute solvency on the part of brokers."

These reforms are clearly so necessary that if Wall street does not make them the state must; and it will be very much pleasanter all around if Wall street makes them itself. At the same time, the voluntary adoption of such measures should not prevent the enactment of proper supervisory laws. In the cases of the offenders cited in the beginning of this article, the cracksman flees to escape imprisonment, so that he may resume his occupation when he is out of sight of the police; and the larger offenders, conceding things to avert a storm of public indignation, often do it in the hope that that indignation will presently subside, after which they can go back to their old methods. Therefore, even if Wall street should adopt the wise and salutary measures that are proposed, the permanence of these reforms should be insured by crystalizing them into law.

Nobody wishes the stock exchange abolished. There must be some place to buy and sell securities. Without it a stock or bond might be worth par in one community, 10 per cent above par in another, and 10 per cent below par in a third. There would be no steady and reliable market anywhere. There is no steady and reliable market anywhere now, thanks to the abuses that have grown up in Wall street and to the system of big gambling that has grown up upon and obscured the really valuable functions of the exchange. So long as men can sell that which they do not possess and buy that which they do not desire and do not expect to get, so that a day's trading will involve more shares than there are in existence, the condition is an evil one, and blighting to the nation's prosperity and integrity.

If Wall street can be made a legitimate exchange for the purchase and sale of actual securities, it will be a blessing and not a curse. If it continues to be a legitimatized Monte Carlo, as it is today, little but harm can come from it.

THE CITY TAX LEVY.

The city conference committee, which has in charge the making of the annual tax levy for the city of Duluth subject to the confirmation of the city council, which can lower but cannot raise the total, is beginning its work, and before the month is over will finally agree upon the amount of money the taxpayers of Duluth will be asked to pay for the support of the city.

It seems hardly necessary to repeat the caution that The Herald has already urged upon the city authorities, to keep in mind the need of a growing city, with hopes for a great future, of a tax rate as low as it can be made consistently with real economy.

A sharp and definite line must be drawn between what the city cannot do without and what it would like to have. First, the conference committee should assemble the items that are absolutely necessary. If they foot up a greater amount than can be levied without increasing the tax rate, the list should be gone over again, and a reduction made somewhere. The rate should not be increased, and if possible it should be reduced.

The estimates of the city's running expenses next year that have been made by City Comptroller McCormick show that it is possible to reduce the rate. Some of the heads of departments do not agree with the comptroller's figures; but it must be remembered that these department chiefs are interested first in having their departments make a good showing, which costs money.

The thing to be desired is a tax rate as low as it can be made without resorting to that false economy which is extravagance in the long run; and The Herald believes that last year's city rate can be reduced without the use of any such false economy.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

The awakening of the American people to the fact that their long-admired systems of public education are radically and fundamentally wrong has been slow but there is no lack of signs that it is becoming a fact.

The Housekeeper Magazine of Minneapolis, under the head of "The Truth About the Public Schools," gives in a recent issue some statements by leading educators of the nation. Here are a few of them:

Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university: "The children of the last few decades have not been educated. With all our educating we have instructed nobody, and with all our instructing we have educated nobody. We have been trying a series of reckless experiments upon the youths and maidens of this country, instead of educating them."

Andrew S. Draper, commissioner of education of the state of New York: "Where but one-third of the children remain to the end of the elementary course in a country where education is a passion, something is the matter with the schools."

Elmer E. Brown, United States commissioner of education: "The present trend of educational discussion is clearly in the direction of vocational training. This is remarkable when one recalls the reticence of school men as regards such training, down to very recent years, and even the insistence by advocates of manual training that their special subject had no more connection with the trades than any other subject in the curriculum."

The failing is lack of practicality. Students that come out of school with nerve systems over-taxed by overwork still lack the essentials that should give their education a practical use. The schools are designed, from the bottom up, not to produce well-rounded and practically equipped workers and business men and housekeepers, but applicants for admission to the university. Less than 1 per cent, the country over, can hope to enter college. Clearly, the needs of the vast majority are sacrificed for the benefit of the few. This system of conducting public affairs, which has been carried out in political and industrial lines as well as in education, is unspeakably wrong and most abhorrent to the fundamental principle of democracy—the greatest good to the greatest number.

Europe, with which this country must compete in the sale of its manufactured products, has schools to train the workers. This country has almost none, and the public schools do little or nothing along this line. The occasional industrial school, like Duluth's new one in West Duluth, is a start in the right direction. It cannot be expected that a change so revolutionary can be brought about in a day or a decade, but the existence of a manifest need for change should call greater attention to the subject than the people are in the habit of giving it.

Congressman Tawney is being advertised as "the father of tariff revision." Where in the name of justice is his progeny?

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I know that there is a mighty strong prejudice against Uncle Joe Cannon," said J. M. Presby of Springfield, Ill., yesterday at the Spalding hotel, "but let me tell you the prejudice will have to be mighty strong before it results in the object of its attack—the defeat of the present speaker of the house.

"I don't think that you people here in Minnesota, or people in other states for that matter, realize what a following Uncle Joe has in Danville, Ill., the heart of his congressional district. The people in Danville don't understand it, either, for that matter; they just go on every time he comes up for re-election and put him back in the house.

"I have been over Uncle Joe's district many times. Business often takes me to Danville. If you were to go there the first thing you would say would be that Mr. Cannon is a defeated man. Often his opponents have said the same thing. But when election returns were counted, they found that Uncle Joe was returned a winner. In Uncle Joe's district it is a case of the man, not his policies of his actions while in congress.

"Mr. Cannon doesn't get out and ask the people of his district to send him back to congress. Not by any means. He is just as cnarlike in his campaigns as he is upon the floor of congress. This is the only reason why he has been in congress for the past decades. "Believe me, when I say that Uncle Joe is one of the shrewdest judges of men that ever entered the complicated game of politics. He has sized up the sturdy, independent men of his district; the farmers, not very many of them, but some, the mechanics, which compose most of the voters of his district, and he has gone about electioneering in about the only way that would bring about the desired results. He has told them what to do, and the very audacity and fearless independence of the man has won, despite the fact that there exists a prejudice against him among the voters of his own district.

"I have heard of cases, and I know that the information is true, where Mr. Cannon has gone to crowds of workmen, men who were opposed to him, and in the end completely won them over. He has not asked them for their votes and pointed out why they should return him to congress. He has told them what to do, told them what they must do, and his record of long tenure of political office shows that they have invariably taken the injunction of Uncle Joe to heart.

"Once, you probably remember, Uncle Joe was defeated. That was due to the fact that he used a most profane utterance on the floor of congress. It was even too much for the voters of Uncle Joe's district. They refused to send him back to Washington. Was Uncle Joe discouraged? Not in the least. His record will show that after the brief enforced rest he came back stronger than ever and was elected.

"There are many elements opposed to him, right in his own town. The people in favor of prohibition are opposed to him. Many of the men in favor of labor interests are opposed to him. There are other elements that desire to see Mr. Cannon defeated. Yet despite these forces that are working for his defeat, Mr. Cannon goes serenely ahead.

"Mind you, I am not speaking for the record of Mr. Cannon. I am simply telling you of things that I happen to know are true. I admire Mr. Cannon in many ways. He is the kind of a man who will compel your admiration and liking despite yourself. That is the greatest political asset he has. But I think that he is a remarkable man—one of the most remarkable of the present generation, and one of the most remarkable men of American politics. I don't approve of his hold-up and obstructive methods. I am not talking of his political record—but I think that history will provide a niche in political fame for Uncle Joe, and will say that he is one of the most finished politicians, one of the most compelling figures of the day."

A careless chambermaid, a sleepy man and a missed breakfast. This three-cornered combination happened at the Lenox hotel yesterday morning. The man's name is S. J. Foster, and he hails from Wausau, Wis., where they never call you until it is late. The name of the maid is unknown and the breakfast is non est. The maid locked Mr. Foster in his room, took away the key, and, as the telephone was not working regularly, it was far beyond breakfast time when he finally emerged from his room. He says that in Wausau they always hold breakfast until after 11 o'clock.

Caesar came and saw and conquered. But the keen-edged blade of one Brutus, a Roman gent with a high batting average, cut short Caesar's enjoyment of the conquering part of the first-year Latin book sentence. Not so with John Thill, the hero of Somerset, Wis. He lives and thrives and enjoys the renown his fellow townsmen have heaped upon him.

Not so very long ago, so hotel gossip says, John returned from a trip to Europe. His entry into Somerset made even the sweet-faced bovines cease browsing on yon hill and turn a placid countenance to watch the welcome that was accorded John Thill.

John Thill has done much for Somerset. He has brought a trail of golden sheckels Somersetwards. He has attracted patients for miles and these patients have in turn enriched the villagers. They felt lonely without John, and they also felt less opulent; so when news of John's imitation of the prodigal son reached the village, the fatted calf was swatted a farewell swat, and al made merry. They say that the village historian stopped talking about "It was in 1862" the day after the village did homage to John's return.

THE WEATHER.

A few faint, scattered showers, amounting in Duluth to about four drops in the square yard, happened last night, but the weather man expects continued dry weather tonight and tomorrow. This morning, though it was partly cloudy, it looked dry enough. Last night's lowest temperature was 60 degs., and yesterday it got up to 81 degs. again. A year ago it was cloudy and damp. The sun rose this morning at 5:39 and sets tonight at 6:31, making 12 hours and 52 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Showery weather continued in the Gulf states as a result of the stationary disturbance over Western Mexico. Jacksonville, Fla., reports the very heavy rainfall of 5.28 inches for the past twenty-four hours. The slight barometric depression over Western Canada caused light showers over scattered places throughout Hennepin, Ramsey and Chippewa counties, Minnesota, Wednesday or last night. High temperatures continue in the lake region and central valleys. The barometer remains high over the Eastern states and Colorado, Wyoming and Idaho. Continued dry weather is indicated generally for the region near the Head of the Lakes tonight and Friday."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Sept. 10.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m., Friday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges—Fair weather tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature; fresh easterly to southerly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON, Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Forecasts until 7 p. m., Friday: Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy with probably showers tonight or Friday; warmer tonight.

Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Friday; continued warm.

Minnesota and North Dakota—Fair tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature.

Upper Lakes—Light variable winds, mostly southerly tonight and Friday; generally fair weather.

A Tory's Defeat.

Philadelphia Times: The Republicans of the Eleventh district of Wisconsin have defeated one John J. Jenkins for congressional renomination. In doing so they have well served themselves, their state, the country and their party.

Jenkins has been one of the devoted Tories of the house, one of the reliable supporters of reaction, one of the "standpat" who always read out of the Constitution proof that any proposal in progress is contrary to the fundamental law of the land. He has been one of the powerful managers of legislation whose antagonism to anything they could call radical resulted in a record which is now the heaviest burden the dominant party has to carry.

Mr. Bryan claims leadership to the Roosevelt policies. There wouldn't have been any legacy but for such men as Jenkins. The Roosevelt policies would have been Roosevelt accomplishments — Republican accomplishments—but for their blocking of legislative wheels.

Every one of these obstructionists nominated by the Republicans increases the effectiveness of the Democratic argument that the country can't get progress without turning political control over to the Democratic party. Every one of them defeated gives support to the argument that the party is able to purge itself and so forward its work of effective legislation.

The Democrats have little to gain by urging that the country wants a rest, and that with the senate safely Republican a period of quiet would be assured by entrusting the other branches of the government to the Democrats and letting legislation fall between the two partisan stools. The country isn't anxious for that sort of a rest, and it will doubt Democratic sincerity as long as such reasoning is advanced in behalf of the Bryan pretensions.

Debs.

Robert Hunter in the Review of Reviews: Like all crusaders, Debs is misunderstood, maligned, and feared by those who do not know him; but if any one will go to Terre Haute, where Debs has lived his life, he will find few men who do not love him. Some believe his doctrines dangerous; others believe them impractical. Some say Debs is too good for this world. But no one doubts his sincerity, his unselfishness, his great gifts, or the purity and nobleness of his character.

Some very practical men cannot understand one who knows no compromise and never thinks of expediency. When Debs gave up politics to go into the trade union movement, and then a well-paid position in the trade union movement to go into a new organization that seemed doomed to failure, and then even from that poor organization into an even poorer thing, the Socialist movement, the practical people of Terre Haute felt that Debs was a failure.

As a matter of fact, Debs was blundering about trying to find his metier. As an executive, as an organizer, or as a politician he was not exceptionally gifted. But as a speaker he has few, if any, equals. Not only his friends, but Debs himself, realized this great power, and he became a wandering agitator who for ten years has gone up and down the land carrying the message of socialism. He is known in every part of the country.

The other day over 20,000 people came to hear him in Oklahoma, and a day or so later in Milwaukee 25,000 stood in a blistering heat listening to his speech. Whatever the practical people of Terre Haute, who have never understood him, may think, the poets and the plain people understand Debs, and multitudes who will not vote for him agree heartily with James Whitcomb Riley and Eugene Field, who have so often given him their tribute in prose and verse. Preaching his "inspired evangel of fraternity," he has gone from good positions to nothing, from the promise of ease and quiet and comfort to the life of a wandering tramp preacher.

The Happiest Heart.

Who drives the horses of the sun
Shall lord it but a day;
Better the lowly deed were done,
And kept the humble way.

The rust will find the sword of fame,
The dust will hide the crown;
Ay, none shall nail so high his name
Time will not tear it down.

The happiest heart that ever beat
Was in some quiet breast
That found the common daylight sweet,
And left to Heaven the rest.

•••John Herrick, a St. Paul & Duluth brakeman, had a leg cut off yesterday near Cloquet by being thrown from the train and falling beneath the cars.

•••The Duluth contingent to the annual session of the grand lodge of Knights of Pythias at Minneapolis goes tolght. The delegates are J. K. Shaw, George Hathaway and John Miening from Agate lodge; C. T. Cash, W. W. McMillan and T. T. Hudson from Gate City; Charles Nichols and W. F. Davey from Diamond, and W. A. Hicken and and J. F. McDonald from Syracuse.

•••W. H. Hopper, manager of the Michigan Central freight depots at Detroit, is in the city visiting old friends and getting rid of hay fever. Mr. Hopper was for several years manager of the Northern Pacific's freight business here.

•••The Polanders of Duluth are going to have a grand celebration on Sept. 12, it being the anniversary of the great battle under the walls of the present Austrian capital against the Turks, on Sept. 12, 1683, under the leadership of the Polish king, Jan Sobieski. On that day the Polish Sveety Progress will also dedicate its handsome new banner.

•••At the Democratic primaries last evening the following delegates were elected to the county convention: First ward, Fred L. Ryan, Theodore Jostin and Martin Sorenson; Second ward, R. N. Marble and C. d'Autremont, Jr.; Third ward, Eric L. Winje, J. J. Durage, Ed Fiebizer, A. E. Townsend, George Spangler and Theodore Helinski; Fourth ward, James McCahill, Simon Clark, O. C. King, E. B. Paxson, P. Langlois and Andrew Marshall; Fifth ward, J. Ryan, E. Main, H. C. Nelson and J. Pierson; Sixth ward, O. Devaney, C. Munroe and E. Bushell.

•••President Harris of the Northern Pacific Railway says he will resign the presidency of the road in favor of T. F. Oakes, but will remain as chairman of the board of directors. The endent strength in stock ownership by Henry Villard and his friends have, it is claimed in Wall street, made this step necessary. Mr. Villard is apparently regaining control of the road.

•••A. R. Walker left today for Granite Falls, Minn., en route to Dakota to establish a stock farm. He will be gone about a month.

MILLER AND BEDE.

Hinckley Eenterprise: The first Cannon congressman to receive the ax got his Tuesday, when Jenkins was defeated in Wisconsin for the nomination. Mr. Jenkins is serving his eighth term and had "got wise" to the fish posts of the Cannon followers, but the voters of his district "got wise" to Mr. Jenkins and Cannon loses one follower. He will lose another one week from Tuesday, when our J. Adam will receive notice that the reactionary methods of the man he worships are not wanted in the progressive Eighth district of Minnesota.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: The nomination of Clarence B. Miller for congerss, over J. Adam Bede, in the Eighth district, will be Minnesota's slap at Cannonism. Too bad the first district can't add another blast by retiring Jim Tawney. Anyhow, the Third and Sixth districts will show their viewpoint by practically unanimously re-electing Congressmen Davis and Lindbergh.

Biwabik Times: New, red blood in congress will not do a bit of harm and may do a lot of good. Give J. Adam Bede an opportunity to reflect upon his policy of supporting Speaker Cannon in opposition to President Roosevelt. No other issue should be needed in the congressional campaign.

Virginia Enterprise: Another fortnight, and the Duluth News Tribune may look back upon its record of villification of J. Adam Bede and figure out what percentage of his popularity it was indirectly responsible for.

Two Harbors Iron Trade Journal: Two years ago Lake county was not favorable to Congressman Bede, and although his opponent was a man practically unknown, he received a majority of the Republican votes cast. Mr. Miller, who this year is Bede's only opponent, has made many warm friends by reason of his record in the last legislature, and he will receive a large majority in this county. This is not a personal opinion nor a political guess, but a statement of facts that will be borne out at the primaries.

Cambridge Independent-Press: Lenroot wins over Jenkins in the Wisconsin primaries and thus another Cannon congressman goes to grass for a term or two. Mr. Bede relies much on the friendship of Speaker Cannon for the success of his fight for renomination in this congressional district, and the fate of Jenkins must be disquieting, to say the least. The voters on this side of the St. Croix are about of the same way of thinking as their friends on the Wisconsin side.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Mr. Bede's wit was a fine thing when the Duluth gang wanted him to stump the district in threatening elections, but when Mr. Bede wants anything for himself his wit is assailed as something a little short of a disgrace in a congressman. It was J. Adam Bede's wit that defeated Charles A. Towne and sent Page Morris to congress. Mr. Bede has always willingly and cheerfully given his services to the Republicans of the country, but the greater profit has always been to the Duluth gang that is trying to turn him out and get in a congressman of its own. The Duluth brand of gratitude is peculiar.

Pine City Pine Poker: It is pretty hard to please all the people—an official cannot do that and still adhere to his principles and duties of office—and a congressman cannot fail to disappoint a few, so the friends of Bede do not concede a victory by unanimous vote. But Mr. Bede will have a snug majority after the count, on the 15th inst., because the people are with him and he is stronger today than he has ever been before.

The Issue Of Cannonism.

Crookston Times: The country will watch with lively interest the campaign in Speaker Cannon's district in Illinois. Cannon received a plurality of 10,000 over his opponent in 1906, but that was before the issue of Cannonism was made acute by the high-handed methods of the speaker. It was before Cannon openly, contemptuously and effectively blocked the policies of the people, as represented by President Roosevelt, in favor of the policies of the "Interests."

The Democrats have nominated a good man to oppose Cannon this year, and right thinking Republicans, as well as Socialists, Independence leaguers and Prohibitionists in the Eighteenth Illinois district could well afford to unite on the Democratic candidate in order to defeat Cannon. Such a defeat would render a service to the nation that no other district in the United States has the power to render.

Speaker Cannon's defeat would, of course, come too late to help other Republican candidates for congress. While the effort is being made to prevent Cannon's re-election in his district, the voters at large will be governed, in considerable numbers, by a desire to prevent re-election by the house, in case his district returns him. Those candidates who are avowed supporters of Cannon, or who refuse to declare against his re-election as speaker, will lose many votes this year—in some instances enough to encompass their defeat.

This issue is a live factor in the congressional elections, and it will become more and more assertive as the campaign progresses. There is only one thing that could eliminate it, and that would be the elimination of Cannon as a possibility for re-election. And it is not probable that Cannon will resign his seat or his ambition to be re-elected speaker.

Agreed With Both Parties.

Law Notes: A new kind of damages has been discovered by a justice of the peace out in California. A correspondent writes us that in an action for damages, recently tried before this justice, the defendant's counsel made a strong plea for the awarding of nominal damages. On the conclusion of the argument, His Honor announced that he accepted the defendant's theory, and would award nominal damages only. At this the plaintiff's counsel protested vehemently that the proof showed clearly that substantial and not nominal damages should be allowed; whereupon the court said: "Take your seat, Mr. Blank, and don't get excited. I'm a-goin' to grant this here plaintiff jest nominal damages—but plenty of 'em, plenty of 'em."

And he did.

In consequence, conversation was found to be somewhat difficult. In a burst of enthusiasm the young lady inquired: "Bishop, do you like bananas?" At first the prelate did not reply, but upon the question being repeated, he admitted confidentially, "I must say I still prefer the old-fashioned nightgowns."

Yonkers Statesman: Patience—Is that dentist's methods painless?

Patrice—Not all of them. He has a phonograph in his office.

Chisholm No Political Argument.

Minneapolis Journal (Rep.): The Pioneer Press accuses Governor Johnson of woful lack of initiative, because he didn't dragoon the legislature into passing effective laws for the protection and preservation of the forests. There are legitimate arguments to be made against the re-election of Governor Johnson. It's a pity the Pioneer Press could not make them, without resorting to such an absurd declaration as this.

The attempt to torture the Chisholm calamity into a campaign argument is one that will strike most people as unworthy of a great newspaper. The responsibility for failure to provide adequate means to prevent forest fires rest upon the legislature—which, unfortunately for the argument, was Republican. Mr. Jacobson has already attacked the governor for permitting the legislature to be so extravagant. Now, his principal newspaper supporter attacks the governor for not inciting the legislature to spend more money.

Whatever else may be said against Governor Johnson, it is certain that he has taken an advanced position in favor of the conservation of our natural resources. And we take leave to doubt whether Mr. Jacobson, with his bent for rigid economy, would, as governor, have badgered the legislature into appropriating liberally for the prevention and fighting of forest fires.

BRIDGEWORKERS ARE ON THE JOB

Boilermakers Quit Work on the Aerial Bridge.

Bridgeworkers in the employ of J. F. Dacey are now carrying on the repair work at the aerial bridge. They replaced the boilermakers employed there yesterday.

Mr. Dacey originally agreed to do the work, but owing to a misunderstanding with the board of public works, he failed to reach an agreement, and yesterday morning a crew of men from the Northwestern Boiler Works was put on the job. Members of the Bridgeworkers' union objected vigorously, saying the work should be done by bridgeworkers.

At noon yesterday members of the union had an argument with the boilermakers, which resulted in the latter quitting their job. Thomas Dillon of the board of public works stepped in as peace maker, adjusted the difficulty existing with Mr. Dacey, and the bridgeworkers went to work, and are still employed. The repairs will not be complete before the end of the week, and with poor luck it may be longer than that before the structure is in operation again. Meantime a ferry is running from the Booth dock to the point.

PROPERTY A WINNER

A. H. W. Eckstein Confirms Good Reports of Mazatzal Mine.

Personal Investigation Bears Out Claims of Engineers.

"After a careful investigation of the property of the Mazatzal Copper company, I am satisfied that Mr. Shaw, the engineer, and the other officers, have not said or represented one thing about it that is not borne out in every particular by actual conditions," says A. H. W. Eckstein of the Richardson-Eckstein-Millen Grain Commission firm, who has just returned from a personal inspection of the big copper proposition referred to, near Jerome, Ariz.

Mr. Eckstein says that his investigations confirmed the good reports made of the property by experienced mining engineers, and that he, as well as others who are interested in the copper mine, are satisfied that by the first of the year that the splendid surface showings will develop into larger and better ore bodies, and that within the next two years the "Mazatzal" mine will be classed with the Copper Queen of Arizona, the United Verde or the Caneas.

The company, as Mr. Eckstein found, has excellent equipment for its work, and has larger power drills on the way to the mine now to expedite matters. The crosscutting, drifting and tunneling is being pushed with all vigor.

"I found, relative to the development work," says Mr. Eckstein, "that it has been going on without interruption since January, 1907, and that there is over 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifting, sinking and crosscutting accomplished with the most gratifying results to stockholders. Every foot of progress is in solid and rich ore. The only dead work now being done is in the drifting and advancing the bullfrog, or main tunnel to the next known large ore body, which is only seventy feet away. The first ore body is fully sixty feet wide, and known to be over 400 feet wide, and the development work is showing up more ore every day. The company plans to do 1,000 feet of new drifting and crosscutting and sinking, and push the Bullfrog tunnel to the next ore body, seventy feet away, within the next eight or ten months, besides installing a 250-ton smelter, thereby increasing the capacity and increasing the force to push the work to greater advantage.

"As a result of my investigations, I am confident that the proposition is a winner. The company owns forty-four mining claims, each 600 by 1,500 feet, embracing 885 acres in a solid body. The group consists of sixteen claims, running in an air line north and south, six claims in length, taking in three big ledges, which they were located to cover. Through the east side of the property, and traversing the entire length of the group, is a mammoth iron dyke, which contains shutes of ore that carry 17 per cent copper, giving that return from fire assays, as well as five ounces of silver and 80 cents in gold. Elsewhere in the southwest, where a similar iron has been developed, there has always been a pay mine opened.

"Another important feature that is favorable to the proposition is that the United States government will build an immense dam on the East Verde river, about half way between the Mazatzal property and Globe. This dam will be 212 feet high, and will result in a lake or big reservoir that will be twenty-five miles long. Theer is an easy grade all the way between Globe and the Mazatzal property.

"Railway facilities are assured. Both Senator Clark and the Southern Pacific Railway company have surveyed lines, and both interests have petitioned the government for permission to cross the big dam. The surveys follow the East Verde river, which passes around the Mazatzal property.

"The Mazatzal property, or the 'Coppers,' as it is locally known, is located in the Mazatzal Mountains, about fifteen miles west of the village of Payson, Tonto Basin, on the southwest side of the East Verde river. It is in an air line about sixty miles southeast of Jerome."

The reports of Joseph J. Shaw, the consulting engineer for the United Verde mine, about the Mazatzal mine, and confirmed by Mr. Eckstein, have caused much satisfaction among the many Duluth men, as well as Arizona men, who are interested in the big property. Mr. Shaw is not unknown here, as he is a nephew of D. W. Scott, and has the confidence of men widely known in mining circles.

Yesterday morning 25,000 shares of the capital stock of the Mazatzal Copper company were placed on sale at Mr. Eckstein's office, 301 Burrows building, and the lively demand for the stock is a good indication of the interest the mine has attracted.

17 TO 0.

Every newspaper on the ranges is demanding the nomination of A. E. Pfremmer of Hibbing for Probate Judge—17 of them—not a single exception. Duluth has eight out of a possible nine county offices—the ranges have one. Is not the demand of the ranges reasonable? Is it not good politics for Duluth to recognize that demand. For Judge of Probate give the ranges a square deal by voting for

MAIL CLERK IS UNDER ARREST

T. W. Scott Charged With Stealing Letters From the Mails.

T. W. Scott, mail clerk on the Omaha, between Duluth and the Twin Cities, has been arrested in St. Paul, charged with stealing special delivery letters from the mails. He will be tried in the federal court at St. Paul.

A number of special delivery letters have been missed from the mails during the last few weeks, and inspectors and detectives have been carrying on an invstigation, in an attempt to find where to place the responsibility.

It did not take them long to learn that some one on the run between Duluth and St. Paul was to blame, and they confined their energies to finding out who the offender was. By means of decoy special delivery letters, whose course was carefully watched, Scott was detected, and his arrest followed.

CONTRIBUTIONS REACH TOTAL OF $35,143.40

Gifts for Range Sufferers Are Still Pouring in to Committee.

With a $300 donation by Morton Miller, and a $250 gift from the Val. Blatz Brewing company, as headliners, and three $100 contributions from Williamson & Mendenhall, Schulz Brothers and C. C. Cokefair, as substantial aids, Duluth's splendid contribution to the fire stricken is continuing its march toward the $50,000 mark today. Never before has Duluth had disaster brought so near her door, and she is responding to the call most nobly. The list is swelling by leaps and bounds and each donor is giving all he thinks he can afford. Tonight the total has reached $35,143.40.

BAD AT ISLE ROYALE.

Reported Fires at Resort Confirmed From Copper Country.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Isle Royale, the Lake Superior summer resort is in great danger of being ravaged by forest fires, which are raging about Tobin's harbor, Washington harbor and Rock harbor, according to Houghton people who returned from there this morning. The clearings about the settlements are small and the few people at the resorts have only limited means for fighting the fires and the resorts will likely be destroyed.

HERE ON HONEYMOON.

Hancock, Mich., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Warrington of Dollar Bay and Miss Edith May Trowbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Trowbridge, were married at the home of the bride here yesterday at 3:30 p. m., Rev. J. S. Gould, pastor of the Congregational church officiating. The couple left in the evening on the Juniata for Duluth and the Twin Cities. Mr. Warrington is completing his studies, at the Michigan College of Mines, and yellow and white, the college colors figured prominently in the decorations of the Trowbridge home for the wedding.

DANGEROUS CHARACTER

Mike Nissila Sentenced to Thirty Days in the County Jail.

With an old country revolver that looks as if it were a relic of 1800 in one hand and a slungshot of particularly dangerous character in the other, Mike Nissila, proprietor of a boarding house on St. Croix avenue, ran amuck in a crowd about 12 o'clock last night, and was arrested by Officers Link and Hannot. In police court this morning Judge Windom fined him $25 or thirty days in jail for carrying concealed weapons.

Nissila became involved in a controversy with two of his boarders. He is said to have been under the influence of liquor at the time. He got to wrangling with them in such loud tones that a crowd soon gathered around the house, and with his two weapons he made a dash at the bunch.

"I didn't want to hurt any one," he said in court this morning. "I only wanted to drive the crowd away from the house. I was afraid they meant me harm. I was looking for a policeman to break up the crowd, when I found two and they arrested me. The revolver isn't any good. I use it to shoot cats and it only goes off once in a while. The slungshot I found on the dump yesterday, and forgot to take it out of my pocket."

Judge Windom asked to see the weapons and they were produced. The revolver was still loaded. It was old and rusty, and a nail was tied to it to be used in pounding out the cartridges after they had been discharged. The slungshot was a heavy ball of lead encased in rawhide, with a long rawhide handle. Judge Windom said it looked as if it had reposed in Nissula's pocket for some time, and that it bore no marks of having been found on the dump.

Fred Johnson, common drunk, was given five days straight, without the alternative of a fine. He was still very shaky from the effects of his jag, and the judge thought he would be better off if out of reach of drink for a time.

• • •

Judge Windom sighed in a weary and discouraged way when he came across the name of Andrew Anderson, in for drunkenness. This was about the one hundredth offense. With a voice hoarse from asking for drinks he pleaded for mercy. The judge said he had been given about every sentence possible, and that he might as well start at the bottom of the list again and work up. Twenty days or $15 was the sentence handed out.

GREAT NORTHERN TOWNS ON EDGE

"Floodwood and Brookston have been having their troubles too," said Leon J. Selig, of L. S. Loeb & Co., who returned from those neighboring towns late yesterday afternoon.

"When I left Floodwood yesterday afternoon," said Mr. Selig, today, "almost every citizen of the place was out fighting forest fires, which beset the town from several sides. The weapons they had to fight the blaze were not particularly effective, but the wind and conditions in general were in favor of the people, so I guess there is little danger that the towns will be burned. The same may be said of Brookston.

"However, if the wind should fan the flames into greater activity, and should carry them toward the towns, the situation would be pretty serious, as both settlements are in the heart of the forest.

"It was a pretty smoky trip down to Duluth, from there, yesterday afternoon. Trees and brush on both sides of the track were burning, and it seemed mighty good to get into Duluth again and breathe some fresh, unadulterated air."

Hear Congressman J. Adam Bede discuss the issues of the campaign at the armory tonight. Bring the ladies.

GRAND JURY STILL BUSY

The grand jury is still conducting its investigations and bids fair to be at it for a few days more. No report was made to the court this morning, and no echoes have come from the grand jury room to give an inkling of what is going on. It is said that the case of Kalman Light, the West Duluth man, who is charged with setting fire to his store, has been taken up, but the disposition of it has not been reported.

This afternoon, it is said, the grand jury will get at the case of Chief of Police Walsh of Virginia, who is charged with killing a man named Perkkio, last July. The coroner's jury exonerated the chief, but the case will come before the grand jury for further investigation.

Walsh shot and killed Perkkio while in discharge of his duties. He had arrested the man and was taking him to jail, when the man turned on him with a bottle and struck at the chief's head, according to the story told at the coroner's inquest. Walsh caught the man's arm and the bottle fell to the pavement. Perkkio then broke away and ran. He disregarded commands to stop and Walsh drew his gun and fired three or four shots, ostensibly at the ground. One of the bullets penetrated Perkkio's left side and he died a half hour afterward. The case is of considerable interest on the range, and the findings of the grand jury are anxiously awaited.

The men, who were indicted by the grand jury this week, were arraigned this morning and entered pleas of not guilty. Attorneys have been assigned to those, who were unable to employ them. Just when the criminal calendar will be taken up is problematical, but it will probably not be until the grand jury has finished its deliberations. A. G. McKnight of Ross & McKnight, has been assigned to defend William Schrieber, charged with murder in the first degree. Friends of Leonard Korti, the man who is charged with stabbing the marshal of Aurora, are said to have employed Oscar J. Larson to conduct Korti's defense.

BASEBALL PAYS.

The New York Team is Reaping a Golden Harvest.

New York, Sept. 10.—Baseball is a paying institution with a winning team, both for the menegement and players. The splendid fight now being made by the Giants for the National league championship has attracted the attention of thousands of persons who otherwise would have only a passing interest in the sport, and as a result the treasury of the New York club is reaping the benefit.

Although it is impossible accurately to estimate the exact amount of the profits of the season to the New York club, a conservative estimate of the money made by the club as a direct result of winning the championship places the sum at $240,000. The amount represents the difference in receipts between the leaders and the tailenders.

ARE AFTER THE MILK DEALERS

Eugene Slater, state dairy inspector, yesterday swore out warrants for the arrest of two driver for Bridgeman & Russell, milk dealers, and Tellef Olson, charging the three with selling milk that was not up to the butter fat test. The city health department has nothing to do with these arrests, made under direction of the state authorities.

The case against C. A. Johnson, arrested upon a warrant sworn out by the city upon the charge of selling milk falling under the butter fat test, was dismissed in municipal court this morning. The warrant was made out for C. A. Johnson, owner of a dairy on the Hermantown road, instead of for John Johnson, his son, who was driving the rig. The son gave the name of his father, which explains how the mistake happened to be made. There will be a new complaint prepared and John Johnson will be brought into court.

stock of one corporation by another, this provision to extend to foreign corporations, charges Senator Guggenheim with buying his seat in the United States senate, and urges the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

Forest reserves on real forest areas are commended, but the present administration of them is condemned. Reduction of the tariff schedules in conformity with the national Democratic platform is favored. The policy of William H. Taft is declared to be against the sugar beet industry and in the interest of Asiatic labor.

Other planks favor good roads legislation, a direct primary law, a constitutional amendment establishing initiative and referendum on the Oregon plan of municipal ownership of public utilities, and the Australian ballot. The platform concludes:

"With abiding faith in the statesmanship, the patriotism, and the capacity of William J. Bryan, and in the right of the people to rule, and with a firm belief in the success of our cause as exemplified in this declaration of principles, we appeal with confidence to the wisdom and enlightened judgment of the people of our beloved commonwealth and bespeak their suffrages in our behalf."

West Virginia Contest Decided.

New York, Sept. 10.—The involved political situation in West Virginia, where the factions led by Arnold Scherr, and Charles R. Swisher, have been claiming recognition as the regular representative of the regular Republican organization, was settled yesterday by the recognition as regular of the convention presided over by Congressman Joseph H. Gaines, leader of the Swisher forces. The fight was carried up to Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock of the national Republican committee, who appointed National Committeemen W. L. Ward, T. C. Dupont and Charles F. Brooker, a sub-committee to hear both sides and to pass on the respective merits of the claims advanced. Hitchcock has approved the findings of the sub-committee.

Senator Stephen B. Elkins will not say what effect the recognition of the Swisher faction by the national committee will have on the future attitude of the Scherr party.

"As far as the rank and file of the party is concerned," he said, "the action of the national committee in recognizing the convention presided over by Congressman Gaines as regular, removes whatever doubts may have existed as to the legitimacy of the ticket nominated by that convention. It clears the committee headed by Mr. Mathews of the fraud accusations brought by the other side and establishes Charles L. Swisher as the official gubernatorial nominee of the Republican party in West Virginia."

Taft in Chicago, Oct. 7.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 10.—Pending the arrangement by the Republican national committee, of the details of Taft's intended trip through the country, the plans for the Cincinnati campaign are being held in abeyance. But two appointments for delegations to visit the candidate here have been made, Sept. 17 and 22. The one thing settled about the traveling campaign is that the nominee will be in Chicago, Oct. 7.

Booms Mack For Governor.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—With the object of perfecting an organization and developing plans for an agressive campaign in the Pacific coast states, a meeting of the national Democratic committeemen and chairmen of California and Oregon have been called by Chairman Mack, who is convinced from reports at the national committee meeting Tuesday, that there is an excellent chance of bringing the Pacific coast states into the Democratic column.

Vice presidential candidate John W. Kern is expected to make several speeches west of the Rocky mountains, and Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, and Theodore A. Bell, temporary chairman, at the Denver convention will also make speeches in the Far Western territory.

State Senator Grady, of New York city, was a visitor at headquarters, and told the national committeemen that Mr. Mack is the strongest man the Democrats can nominate for governor in the Empire state.

FORTUNE FOR IOWAN

Will Share in $300,000 Estate Left by His Father.

Waterloo, Iowa, Sept. 10.—To have lived the better part of 50 years in a struggle with the world, and then to see suddenly before him the sight of a fortune of perhaps thousands of dollars, assuring comfort, even luxury, for the remainder of his days, is the experience that has come to Henry Wilts, of Waterloo. His father, John Wilts, died a day or two ago near Steamboat Rock, leaving a large fortune, probably of the value of $300,000. The elder Wilts, who was 83 years old, was a pioneer of Hardin county, and invested in real estate at an early day.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

THEY FEAR THE EFFECT

Many Republicans Opposed to Cannon Visiting Their Districts.

House "Czar" Has Become National Issue East and West.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—A new complication has arisen to perplex the Republicans. Numerous Republican nominees for congress in close districts are quietly letting it be known that they do not want Speaker Cannon sent into their districts during the campaign, says James P. Hornaday in a special to the Indianapolis News. One Republican congressman from a state west of the Missouri—a candidate for re-election—came here this week and laid the situation before Chairman Hitchcock. He pointed out that if Mr. Cannon came into his district to speak the chances for carrying the district for the Republicans would be materially reduced. Other members of congress who are up for re-election have communicated information of the same import by letter.

It is a delicate situation. Mr. Cannon is to work under the auspices of the congressional campaign committee, but at the conference between Chairman Hitchcock, of the national committee and Chairman McKinley, of the congressional committee, the other day, it was agreed that the speakers' bureaus of the two committees should work in harmony. It is pretty well understood that if the national committee management can have its way there are certain sections of the country to which Mr. Cannon will not be sent. There is an insistant demand, for instance, that he shall be kept out of Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Anti-Cannon Movement.

There is another feature of the situation that promises developments. In some Republican districts in the West the constituents of Republican nominees for congress are talking seriously of asking the candidates to pledge themselves to vote against the re-election of Mr. Cannon as speaker in case the Republicans hold control of the house of representatives. The same sort of movement is contemplated in some of the New England states.

The politicians hereabouts have not failed to take notice of the following editorial utterance from that sturdy Republican paper, the Boston Transcript: "Even in New England candidates for the house are already talking of what they would do in case their constituents required a pledge for or against the speaker's re-election. The situation has thus become one of the highly serious aspects of the campaign."

It will thus be seen that Mr. Cannon, at the outset of the campaign, is between two fires. The Democrats are attacking the "Cannon oligarchy" in the house, and insisting that the only way to get rid of it is to elect a Democratic house, while the Republicans in many localities are leading encouragement to a movement within their own party to bring about the defeat of Mr. Cannon for re-election of speaker in case their party wins.

Cannon a National Issue.

Observers of the trend of things are pointing out that before election day the speaker of the house of representatives may be virtually running for his office before the people. To quote from the Republican Boston Transcript again: "No other plank in the Democratic platform is winning so much approval in independent quarters as that which criticises Mr. Cannon. Vice Presidential Candidate Kern shrewdly sensed public opinion in making it the main topic of his speech of acceptance." As things are shaping up Mr. Cannon, as the real director of the campaign for the re-election of a Republican house, has two fights in one. He must win the house if there is to be a Republican speaker, and in getting the house he is compelled to let his fitness for continuance in the speaker's chair become an issue.

Master of Legislation.

The people, generally, seem suddenly to have awakened to the fact that the speaker of the national house of representatives has about as much influence and power as the president. Indeed, there are persons who hold that he has more power over legislation. Certain it is that under the existing method of legislating in the house, nothing can be done without his consent. It is almost equally true that his entrenched power enables him to put through any legislation he may desire, even though a majority of the members of his own party in the body be, at heart, opposed to the legislation. He is enabled to do this because the members realize that to cross him—to attempt to interfere with his sway—means that they are to be practically blacklisted from that time on. So it seems that the people—the Republicans—in a large number of congressional districts here suddenly discovered that there is a way for them to reach a speaker of the house who displeased them—they can get action by refusing to vote for a nominee for congress who will not pledge himself to vote against the re-election of a certain man for speaker.

Kept Tab on the Speaker.

The charge made by Republicans who are enlisting in this movement to obtain pledges from Republican nominees is that Cannon is an obstructionist. It seems that a lot of Republican voters out through this Middle West country "kept cases" on the speaker and his committee on rules last winter. They are recalling now, as they enlist in this movement to get pledges from candidates, and as they enter protests against Cannon coming among them to tell them how to vote—that on May 5 President Roosevelt invited the speaker to the White House and, according to the information given out at the time, bluntly told him that unless he allowed the house to do something for the public interest he would be responsible for a Republican defeat this year.

The speaker did partly raise the embargo against legislation, but he did not satisfy the people who were looking on. Users of print paper were not pleased because he refused to permit the house to pass a bill taking the duty off paper and wood pulp.

Temperance People Remember.

The temperance forces of the country, it is asserted, have not forgotten the rebuff he gave them when a delegation from the conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Baltimore waited on him and asked him to let the bill for the control of interstate shipments of intoxicating liquors go through. New England's grudge against him is the outcome of his persistent refusal to permit the Appalachian forest reserve bill to become a law.

Representative John J. Jenkins of the Eleventh Wisconsin district, as chairman of the judiciary committee, is the man who assisted the speaker in blocking the passage of the forestry bill. Mr. Jenkins was defeated for renomination last week, after having served twelve years in the house. Some people look upon this defeat as a fair indication as to how the "wind is blowing." Orgnaized labor's grievance against the speaker is well known.

This campaign could produce nothing more interesting—one might well say praiseworthy—than a well-directed movement among the people to name the speaker of the next house of representatives. Such a movement, even though it failed this time, would have a salutary effect for years to come. It seems strange that the people should not have long ago asked: "Why should not the speaker of the national house of representatives—an official who, under the existing legislative system, controls legislation—be unanswerable to the people of the whole country?"

May Find a Way.

The Washington Herald remarks significantly: "The political instinct of the American people has selected a way to get at the speaker. Constitutions may provide that the house shall choose its own presiding officer, but constitutions can not prevent the people from making the speakership an issue and virtually compelling Mr. Cannon to go before the electorate on the question of his re-election."

In this connection it may be said that many persons who hope for reform in the house of representatives insist that it is not necessary for the house to choose one of its own members speaker, and that the election of a man not a member of the body to the office would solve the present problem. It is pointed out that an outsider could not be a member of the committee on rules or of any other committee; that his only duty would be to preside over the body and that the one-man power would thus be broken.

It's a Strange Game.

Those persons who hold that the speakor need not be a member of the house point out that Section 2 of Article 1 of the Constitution simply says that: "The house of representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers." The other officers of the house, it is pointed out, are not members of the body. Outsiders have always been chosen as doorkeeper, secretary, sergeant-at-arms, etc. But this is aside from the interesting movement to make Mr. Cannon an issue in this campaign, a movement that seems to be full of possibilities because Republicans are responsible for what might be called the "back door fire."

Along with the news of this manifestation of opposition to Cannon among Republicans comes the information, apparently reliable, that President Roosevelt intends to write a letter praising the work of the last session of congress. Persons who have been behind the scenes at Washington are wondering if he will say anything in the letter that will be helpful to the speaker. You never can tell. Politics is a strange game.

A Traveling Man's Experience.

"I must tell you my experience on an East bound O. R. & N. R. R. train from Pendleton to Le Grande, Oo.," writes Sam A. Garber, a well known traveling man. "I was in the smoking department with some other traveling men when one of them went out into the coach and came back and said, 'There is a woman sick unto death in the car.' I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with cramp colic, her hands and arms were drawn up so you could not straighten them, and with a deathlike look on her face. Two or three ladies were working with her and giving her whisky. I went to my suit case and got my bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (I never travel without it), ran to the water tank, put a double dose of the medicine in the glass, poured some water into it and stirred it with a pencil; then I had quite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her, but I succeeded. I could at once see the effect and I worked with her, rubbing her hands, and in twenty minutes I gave her another dose. By this time we were almost into Le Grande, where I was to leave the train. I gave the bottle to the husband to be used in case another dose should be needed, but by the time the train ran into Le Grande she was all right, and I received the thanks of every passenger in the car." INDIANS ATTEND BIG CONFERENCE

About Three Thousand at Church Meeting at Fort Yates.

Fort Yates, N. D., Sept. 10.—A notable gathering of North Dakota Indians, making up a conference of seventeen Congregational and thirty Presbyterian churches, has closed here. These gatherings have been going on since 1872, and this one was by far the largest on record. They are held for the discussion of the doctrines, morals and the business end of the churches.

Although these discussions were in the Dakota tongue, they were full of thought for the onlooker. The meetings of the men and the women and the mixed meetings were led by the Indian workers, and all the proceedings were carried on under parliamentary rules. It was surprising to see the ability and energy displayed at these gatherings.

The 8,000 Indians were camped out one mile south of Fort Yates and the 510 tents were arranged in a vast circle some two miles in circumference. The large audience tent was on the western part of the field.

Attend Vesper Service.

Just after the sun set, as the twilight was giving way to the darkness, the different churches had their vesper services in front of their tents. From here and there over the field the old-fashioned songs could be heard, and if one was near enough the Dakota words could be recognized. After a couple of quiet songs and a short prayer in their tongue, they slowly went to their tents and teepee and made ready for the evening services.

The feeding of this crowd was a big undertaking. Twenty-three beeves were killed and ten more were waiting if needed. Then, too, $700 was spent on flour, bacon, rice and other raw food materials.

There were at this conference many noted Indian ministers. They preached with force and vigor, using many gestures in giving illustrations. John Eastman, the elder brother of Charles Eastman, the writer and doctor, was conspicuously in the lead as a forceful speaker. The choir of sixteen mixed voices were as adept with the Dakota as our English songs.

The teachers, who have given their life work to save these Dakotas, were there. Mr. Williamson, Mr. Riggs, Mr. and Mrs. Reed, Miss Collins, and others who have started in the work. The conference was an inspiration to the Indians and the whites, and both were wonderfully helped.

SUCCEEDS WILLIAM F. VILAS.

Gov. Davidson Names Magnus Swenson on Capitol Commission.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 10.—Governor Davidson has appointed Magnus Swenson of Madison as a member of the capitol buildign commission, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Col. W. F. Vilas. Mr. Swenson is president of the Southern Wisconsin Power company, which is constructing an immense power plant in the Wisconsin river, at Kilbourn. He was graduated from the college of engineering of the State university in 1880 and is an inventor of a cotton press which revolutionized the cotton packing business and a nnumber of other important mechanical devices. He is a native of Norway and was born April 12, 1854, and came to this country in 1868. The capitol commission yesterday opened bids for the interior work of the east wing of the new capitol.

MUSICIANS PLAN BENEFIT.

Mammoth Band Concert for Benefit of Forest Fire Sufferers.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 10.—A mammoth band concert for the benefit of the fire sufferers in the northern part of the state was set under way at a meeting of the Auditorium board yesterday.

George W. Peters appeared before the board and asked that permission be given him to use the Auditorium for a band concert which is to be given by a band of 150 pieces, composed of musicians selected from the Musicians' union. The board heartily approved of the scheme and tendered the use of the building to Mr. Peters, providing that he can assemble his band and that the building is not engaged for one week from Sunday, when the proposed concert is to be given.

The musicians are to donate their services entirely.

SWEDISH BAPTISTS MEET.

Annual Conference is Being Held in St. Paul.

ITALIAN CITIZENS' LEAGUE.

New Organization Has Been Formed by Hancock People.

Hancock, Mich., Sept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Italian Citizens' league is the name of a new organization that has been formed here for the purpose of mutually benefitting the members and assisting those who come here from sunny Italy.

The meeting, held at the Scott hall, was attended by over 100 representative Italian citizens of Hancock and vicinity, and all were enthusiastic over the project. Messrs. Castagliani and Torreano of Calumet addressed the gathering, which was presided over by Louis Pucci and Ralph Citbattari. Another meeting is to be held at 2 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, when the organization will be completed by the election of officers.

Candidates to be eligible must be American citizens or profess their intention of taking out naturalization papers. The purpose of the organization is to impart to the members a better understanding of American government and institutions and to fit them to become true American citizens in every sense of the word. In politics, if it may be said to be political in any sense, the league is Republican. Leonard Meola, was the originator and promoter of the idea in Hancock. The organization is much similar to one instituted recently at Laurium. The movement is spreading, and it is predicted a growth of national scope.

AN INFANTILE DRIVER.

Six-Year-Old North Dakotan Brings Wheat to Town.

Medford, N. D., Sept. 10.—The smallest boy, and the youngest to be hauling wheat to the markets was seen on the streets yesterday with a double box full of No. 1 hard, driving into the elevator. The little shaver was 6 years old and not tall enough to look over the wagon box when standing in the bottom of the wagon after his load was off. He was the smallest teamster to be unaccompanied by an older person that there is any record of, yet he handled his team with all the precision of a much older person. He is the son of Mark Tewksberry, two miles from town. At the time we saw him, which was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, that was the fourth load he had hauled in for that day.

Eat What You Want

And let Kodol digest it.

There can then be no fermentation, no pain, no distress—no indigestion.

Eat a sufficient amount of good, wholesome food every day. Eat what the appetite calls for, because that is what the health and strength of the body require.

Then don't worry about indigestion or dyspepsia; but take Kodol occasionally—at the times when you need it, and your food will be digested completely; but don't diet and don't deny yourself the food you like, for dieting is unnecessary; it is wrong to be hungry.

Food is fuel for the body. It furnishes blood, bone, health and strength; but it must be digested first, and you are not going to be healthy or strong as long as your stomach fails to do its work.

Don't fear to eat the food you like for as you know the body requires a variety of it and that which you don't eat may be the very thing you need to supply the necessary strength for your body.

We say eat what you want and let Kodol digest it. Nor do you have to take Kodol all the time; you wouldn't want to have to take it all the time. Take it just when you need it, and in that way allow it to help the stomach to get strong and well.

But when you do eat what you want and what you like best, be sure that all the food is digested; you must be sure that the stomach is able to digest it.

Else that portion of the food, which remains in the stomach undigested, irritates the stomach lining, and that is what causes pain. Then again undigested food ferments in the stomach and that is what causes sour risings, gas and belching.

These are the things you have to get rid of but you can't do it by starving yourself. Weakening the body is not strengthening the stomach. Yet you do weaken the body when you deny yourself some article of food you find does not agree with you.

And here is where Kodol is so effective. It digests what you eat and does it completely. It enables you to eat just what you like and just what your appetite demands.

Kodol doesn't simply digest certain kinds of food—it digests every kind of food. It acts as Nature acts and it assists Nature in assimilating the food—it helps Nature get out of the food what there is in it—strength, blood, bone, muscle and life.

Kodol is for you. Kodol is for anyone and everyone who needs it and we want you to try it now and be convinced that you can eat just what you like if you will only let Kodol digest for a time that which you do eat.

Market Advances and Closes at Higher Prices Here.

Flax Shows Gain at End of Session In Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Sept. 10.—The strength in the Chicago corn market, due to continued dry weather, had considerable to do with the strength in wheat in the American markets today, prices everywhere showing an increase over yesterday's close.

Also the feeling that the Northwest oversold during the last two days seemed to prevail and helped the bulls. Despite liberal receipts, offerings were not overly liberal during the session, all of which had a tendency to make higher prices. The bulls argued that once the durum cars were eliminated from the Northwestern receipts, they were not alarmingly large.

Argentine shipments of wheat this week are estimated at 1,200,000 bus, against 1,616,000 bus last week and 424,000 bus a year ago.

Liverpool closed ⅛d higher and Berlin, ¼c lower.

The September option closed 1c higher in Duluth, 1¼c higher in Chicago and St. Louis, 1⅛-¼c higher in Minneapolis for new wheat, 1⅝c higher in Kansas City. Wire trouble interfered considerably with the receipt of quotations on the local floor today and prevented entirely a comparison on the New York close at the time of going to press. The October option closed ⅝c higher in Winnipeg. The December option closed 1¼c higher in Duluth, Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City, 1¼-⅜c higher in St. Louis, and ⅝c higher in Chicago, and unchanged to ½d higher in Liverpool. September oats closed ⅜c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat—As a result of the lower American cables yesterday and the heavy receipts at American primary points, the market here was quiet at the opening and ½d lower. During the morning, offerings were larger and support feeble and values showed further decline of ¼d. The large American receipts and the favorable ripening weather in the United Kingdom, together with continued liberal Danubian offerings and larger cargo arrivals prompted selling for profits during the later trading. At midday the market was dull but easy and values ¾d lower than Wednesday.

"Corn was quiet at the start and unchanged to ½d lower. The undertone was steady and during the morning October advanced ¼d, due to an improved demand for distant La Plata cargoes, nearby months was neglected and extremely dull."

Car receipts of wheat were 412 against 115 last year, and at Minneapolis 392 against 188 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 804 against 303 last year. Chicago received 59 against 140 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,865,000 bus, last year 841,000 bus. Shipments 533,000 bus, last year 663,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 457,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 694,000 bus, last year 644,000 bus. Shipments 139,000 bus, last year 394,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 67,407 bus.

Wheat trading was light in the Duluth market but prices went higher and closed at the top level. September wheat opened unchanged at 99c, advanced to $1 an dclosed there, a gain of 1c over yesterday. December wheat opened unchanged at 98½c, advanced to 99¾c and closed there, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. May wheat was inactive and closed at $1.03¾, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed 1c higher and cash spring wheat selling on a basis of 1c over September for No. 1 northern.

Flax was only fairly active here, but the prices were firmer. September flax opened ¼c higher, at $1.25, advanced to $1.26, declined to $1.25¾ and closed there, a gain of 1c over yesterday. October flax opened ¼c higher, at $1.24, advanced to $1.25 and closed at $1.24¾, a gain of 1c over yesterday. November flax opened ¼c higher, at $1.24, advanced to $1.25 and closed at $1.24¾, a gain of 1c over yesterday. December flax opened late at $1.23¼ and closed at that price, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Barley was 1½c to 2c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Conditions Firm, With Early Prices Showing Advances.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—The wheat market here was firm today, owing to considerable covering by shorts, prices advancing about ½c during the early trading. Delay to plowing in the Southwest due to continued dry weather had some effect on the market. Receipts in the Northwest were again liberal, but the markets at Duluth and Minneapolis were firm, despite the large arrivals. At the opening prices were a shade lower to ¼c higher, with December at 96½c to 96⅝c. Later December sold at 97⅛c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 863 cars against 616 cars last week and 443 cars a year ago.

The market continued to gain in strength all day on active demand by shorts and commission houses. December advanced to 97⅞. The market closed strong at the top, with all deliveries showing a net gain of 1¼ compared with the previous close. Final quotations on December were at 97⅞@97⅞c.

The market was bullishly aected by the strength of wheat. The high point for December was reached at 69¾c. The close was strong at net gains of 1⅛@1¼c, with December at 69⅝@69¾c.

Pit traders were inclined to favor the buying side in the corn market, owing to the drought in the corn belt, and demand from that source caused a strong tone early in the day. The market opened unchanged to ¼c righer, with December at 68½c. Later December advanced to 69c. Local receipts were 243 cars, with 73 of contract grade.

Oats were firm on buying of May by cash interests. Offerings in the pit were light. December opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 50⅜@¼c to 50¼c and sold at 50⅝c. Local receipts were 201 cars.

Provisions were quiet and firm. A strong market for hogs due to decreased receipts, was a strengthening influence. Prices at the opening were 2½c lower to 5c higher.

Cash wheat: No. 2 red, 97¾@99c; No. 3 red, 97¼@98½c; No. 2 hard, 97@98c; No. 3 hard, 96@97½c; No. 3 springs 97¾@$.07. Corn—No. 2, 68½@69c; No. 2 white, 81¼; No. 2 yellow 81¾@½c; No. 3, 80¼@ ½c: No. 3 white, 80½@81c; No. 3 yellow, 80½@81. Oats—No. 2, 49c; No. 3 white, 49@51; No. 4 white, 48¼@50¼.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

To operate thirty-three elevators in Minnesota and forty-seven in North Dakota, formerly owned and operated by the defunct Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills company, under the name of the Minneapolis & Northern Elevator company, a new corporation, called the Minneapolis-Northern Elevator company, has been formed, and A. D. Thomson of Duluth is a member of the first board or directors. The other incorporators are Charles M. Amsden of Minneapolis and Edgar A. Higgins of Minneapolis.

The new corporation has a capital stock of $200,000, and the limit of indebtedness is $2,000,000. The principal office will be in Minneapolis, and it is the intention of the stockholders merely to operate the Minneapolis & Northern elevators, and not to enlarge the plant, at present anyway.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, Sept. 10.—That the heavy movement of Canadian wheat will be concurrent with the heaviest runs on our side, became evident today. Winnipeg got 284 cars against 33 last year, Duluth 412 against 115, Minneapolis 392 against 188. The three markets had 1,088 against 336 last year, or more than 3 for 1. Millers want the Minneapolis wheat, the East is buying in Duluth, where durum wheat is selling freely, and Montreal exporters and Toronto firms are buying in Winnipeg. Whether the movement can get heavy enough to overcome this demand is the question. Minneapolis stocks gained only 16,000 bushels for five days. The primary receipts, though heavy, had little effect. Prices hardened and moved up, and then the market closed strong at a good gain for the day. September opened 98⅝c; high, 99⅞c; low, 98⅝c; close, 99⅝c. Old September, 99½c; high, $1.00¼; low, 99½c; close, $1.00⅝. December opened at 99½c; high, $1.00¾; low, 99⅝@½c; close, $1.00⅝@¾. Old December closed at $1.00⅞. May wheat closed at $1.04⅞@½.

Excellent cash demand ruled at 2@2½c over September for No. 1 Northern at first and 2½@3c over later. No. 2 Northern brought September price to 1c over. Velvet chaff sold at about 95c for No. 1. Local and outside millers were good buyers. Close: No. 1 Northern spot, $1.02@½; to arrive, $1.02; No. 2 Northern spot, 99½@$1; to arrive, 99½c; No. 3 wheat, 97@99c. No. 3 yellow corn, 79¼c. No. 3 white oats, 48@48½c. No. 2 rye, 71¾@72¾c. Barley—Receipts, 116 cars; demand good and all business was in the remarkably narrow range of 57@60c. Price average, ½c higher. Feedmen and malsters bought. Close: 56½@60c.

Flax—Receipts, 41 cars. Crushers bought it at Duluth September price for spot and 1c under to arrive. Close, $1.24½.

Millstuffs unchanged and quiet, millers quoting bran in bulk at $18.50@19.

Flour sales for future delivery are being made and good demand rules for domestic and foreign accounts, the foreign business running to clears, but with a little also in patents. Shipments, 47,560 barrels. First patents, $5.65@5.75; second patents, $5.50@5.60; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

At the Close All the Early Gains Being Lost.

Flurry in Call Money Rates Caused Lively Selling.

New York, Sept. 10.—Prices of stocks moved in contrary directions in the opening dealings, which were on a large scale. The market had an irregular and unsettled appearance in consequence. Lackawanna sold at an advance of 4¼, Canadian Pacic 1⅜, New York Central 1⅛, Baltimore & Ohio 1¼, Denver & Rio Grande preferred 1½, and the common and the Southern Railway stocks, large fractions. American Smelting declined 1 and Union Pacific, Amalgamated Copper, and Consolidated Gas, large fractions.

A steadier tone developed when buying orders for the Harriman stocks made their appearance, and the list in general stiffened. A resumption of the recent liquidation in American Locomotive and American Smelting, and heavier realizing in Reading and the Harriman, caused prices to run off rapidly afterwards, and the tone became heavy. Earlier advances reached a ¼ in Western Union, 2 in Kansas City Southern, 1½ in Rock Island preferred and 1 in Illinois Central and Colorado & Southern, 1⅛ in Rock Island preferred and 1 in Illinois Central and Colorado & Southern first preferred. One the decline, Union Pacific, the Erles, American Locomotive and American Smelting preferred sold 1 below yesterday's closing, and American Smelting 1 to Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis preferred brought 91½, compared with 98, its previous tone.

When pressure of realizing sales subsided there was a spotted advance, embracing stocks not prominent lately, notably New York Central, whise rose 2⅝. American Locomotive rallied to 2⅛ over last night. Illinois Central, Atlantic Coast Line, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Southern Railway, Canadian Pacific and Westinghouse Electric gained 2 to 2⅜, and Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, Wabash preferred, Pennsylvania and Tennessee Copper, 1 to 1¼. Bonds were firm.

American Locomotive dropped abruptly to 48, its high price of the morning being 57. Supporting orders then appeared which drove the shorts to cover and pulled up the general list. The recovery was assisted by the buoyancy of Reading, which sold at 133⅛ or 2½ above yesterday's final prices. American Can Locomotive rallied 2 points. The rest of the list returned to near the early high figures.

The announcement that the commodity clause of the Hepburn law had been declared unconstitutional in Pennsylvania, started lively dealings in Reading, huge blocks were transferred up to 132, an overnight rise of 1⅜. The improvement in Baltimore & Ohio reached 2, Central of New Jersey 1½, and Delaware & Hudson and Wisconsin Central 1. Erie made up its early loss. The rest of the list stiffened in sympathy. Near 1 o'clock the Harriman Pacifics became weak again and the general market commenced to give way sharply. American Locomotive reacted to below 50 on the passing of the dividend.

The market closed weak. A flurry in call money rates precipitated a lively selling movement. Strong stocks lost their gains and many losses reaching to a point were established. That in St. Paul ran to 2⅝, and Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Erie and Amalgamated Copper 1⅝ to 1¾. No rallies of importance followed the drop.

Again and again and again we urge you all to buy Butte-Ballaklava, for this mine is showing up so rich that there is absolutely no question but that it will be one of the biggest and richest producers in this country. It is, and you now must agree with me, already a big and proven property. Have they not all kinds of rich ore on the 700. I have personally seen it. Therefore, you can not argue with me on that point. The shaft struck very rich ore on the 800, also again on the 870, and is not the shaft at this minute in rich ore and only a few days from the 1,000-foot level, with a three-compartment such as the North Butte has. Why, when there is no limit to its ore reserves can not this great mine take out 1,600 tons a day the same as the bigger property, the price of which is now governed by the limited amount that must now come from the one shaft. And remember the North Butte is now selling at the rate of $33,000,000 for property.

Ballaklava has 3,600 feet of vein, 1,600 feet of the Bell Speculator alone. Stock closed $9.50 bid and should sell at $30 on the showing of the 1,000 alone, say nothing of the lower level.

Carman is acting fine and sales made to $4.37 to $4.50.

Red Warrior is very active. Mowitza also very strong.

Butte & Superior should do much better. One thing is certain that this mine will make good; better than you think. Buy it right along.

Our service in this office is now the best. Give us your business.

EXTRACTS FROM ENGINEER'S REPORT

Jerome, Aug. 5, 1908.—To the Stockholders of the Mazatzal Copper company: The manager submits the following report of the work on the property to date and a review of our plans and expectations for the future:

In driving the Bullfrog tunnel a body of silicious sulphide ore, apparently of vein formation was encountered and gave assay values of 5½ per cent copper, 5 per cent kalem, 2 ounces silver and 40 cents gold.

I decided to explore this ore body and drifted on it for a distance of 170 feet to the south. For the first twenty-two feet we had sulphides ranging in value from 4 to 11 per cent, the higher values being from the floor of the drift and then carbonate ores for nearly 150 feet assaying from 6 to 15 per cent with occasional samples as high as 23 per cent.

At 70 feet from the main tunnel a crosscut was run to the west for thirty feet, showing a width of thirty-five feet with NEITHER WALL exposed and showing carbonate ores of good grade. The face of the main drift has a vertical depth of 140 feet under a splendid surface cropping of carbonate ore.

Another tunnel 400 feet to the south of the Bullfrog shows a width of 25 feet of carbonate ore in the same ore body.

Believing that water level would define the sulphide zone, a shaft was started in the crosscut just mentioned. A station was cut, a hoist purchased and at this date the shaft was down thirty-one feet. For the first sixteen feet good carbonates were found. At the bottom permanency of formation is very evident, there being well defined limestones of carbonates and a rather soft vein filling showing dip and strike conforming to the slate hanging wall. ELIMINATING THE CARBONATES, this vein filling, coated with copper sulphide, assays from 2 to 4 per cent.

Since the commencement of operations I have at no time been so well satisfied with the results and future prospects as at this time. I am confident that depth alone is necessary to disclose sulphide ore bodies of great extent, of good commercial value, and judging from the strike and dip as exposed at a depth of thirty feet, I will not be surprised to find the ore body fully 75 to 100 feet in width at about 100 to 125 feet of depth.

By the first of the year, barring unforseen accidents, I believe that this work will prove that the exceptional surface indications have developed into still larger and better ore bodies at depth and we can with confidence assert that within the next two years the "Mazatzal" will be classed with the Copper Queen of Arizona, the United Verde or the Cananea.

We are now equipped with a boiler, compressor, hoist and pump and our intention is to sink 200 feet and do such crosscutting and drifting as may be deemed advisable in addition to advancing the Bullfrog tunnel a distance of about seventy feet to the next big cropping or ledge. This work will be expedited by the use of larger power drills now on the way to the property.

It should be remembered that we are but twelve miles from the location of the first power station of the Arizona Power company, and that this company expects to deliver 1,500-horse power to the United Verde alone by February next year.

The belief of my associates and myself in the development of one of the notable mines of the West has not only never wavered, but is today stronger, if possible, than ever.

I feel safe in saying that the element of uncertainty attending all new mining ventures is eliminated as far as the "Mazatzal Copper company," is concerned and I am satisfied that we will open up ore bodies that will surprise the natives.

JOSEPH J. SHAW.

Development Work to Date and in Big High Grade Ore Body

DEVELOPMENT WORK WAS COMMENCED IN JANUARY, 1907, AND HAS BEEN CONTINUED WITHOUT INTERRUPTION UP TO THE PRESENT TIME, AND THE RESULT IS THAT WE HAVE OVER 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifting, sinking and cross-cutting done to date with most gratifying results to the present stockholders.

Splendid and encouraging reports received weekly and this stock will advance fast, because every foot of sinking or drifting in every direction as it is continued, is in solid and rich ore, and the only dead BODY only 70 feet away, which it is expected will be reached by October 1st or sooner. Our first ore body is both in drifting on the ore body and sinking on same. Within 90 days the stock will advance to $5 per share AND IN 4 YEARS FOR $100 OR MORE. AND IN TWO YEARS WILL SELL FOR $50 a THE FORTUNATE HOLDER OF THE STOCK.

Future Development Work and Plans

decided upon during the next eight or ten months include—
FIRST—1,000 feet of new drifting, cross-cutting and sinking, and continuing the Bullfrog Tunnel to the next big ore body, only 70 feet away now.
SECOND—Of installing a 250-ton smelter and increasing the capacity as fast as possible.
THIRD—Of increasing the force, and push development work vigorously.

REMEMBER IT'S A WINNER

WE OWN FORTY-FOUR MINING CLAIMS—(600x1,500 feet each), embracing 880 acres, in a solid body. Located to cover the three big ledges, two miles long; have absolute and good title and no debts and financially in good shape. OUR ORE AVERAGES 8 PER CENT COPPER, 5 oz. silver and 80c gold, and is getting richer as we go deeper, where we have solid and high-grade sulphides below water level and our engineer says (and he knows what he is talking about, having been, and still is, closely connected with the "United Verde" for the past three years, and prior thereto with the great "Iron Mountain" Copper company of California for a number of years), THAT IN TWO YEARS THE MAZATZAL COPPER COMPANY'S MINE will be classed with such prominent and well known mines as the "United Verde" of Jerome, Copper Queen of Bisbee, Arizona, and the Cananea.

PRICE, TERMS AND ILLUSTRATION:

The stock is offered at $3.50 per share; one-seventh cash, and balance in six equal payments, payable monthly on or before the 5th of each month, until all the payments are made, when a certificate will be issued.

$175 Buys 50 Shares; $25 Cash, and $25 Monthly for 6 Months.
$350 Buys 100 Shares; $50 Cash, and $50 Monthly for 6 Months.
$525 Buys 150 Shares; $75 Cash, and $75 Monthly for 6 Months.
$700 Buys 200 Shares; $100 Cash, and $100 Monthly for 6 Months.
$1,400 Buys 200 Shares; $200 Cash, and $200 Monthly for 6 Months.
$2,800 Buys 800 Shares; $400 Cash, and $400 Monthly for 6 Months.

The stock is being rapidly subscribed for and never before was there such a safe and meritorious copper stock offered the public. We have rich ore and abundance of it.

For further information, write, wire, 'phone or apply at 301 Burrows Building, where Maps, Samples, of Ore, and further particulars will be cheerfully shown. 'Phone Zenith No. 338.

DULUTH MAN IS DROWNED

Edward Vail Meets Death at Cedar Lake, Minn.

Falls From Canoe and Drowns Before Brothers' Eyes.

Edward Vail, 25 years of age, a Duluth cigarmaker, was drowned in Cedar lake, near Aitkin, Minn., yesterday. His two brothers, Ben and William, witnessed the accident from shore, but were unable to save him. Up to this noon the body had not been recovered, although the lake is now being dragged.

The drowned man had been away from Duluth on a trip, and returned only about a week ago. He has been living with his brother Ben, at 413½ East First street. The three men owned a camp at Cedar lake, and word came the other day that forest fires were raging in that vicinity. Fearing their house might be destroyed, all three went to the lake to remain until all danger was past, and incidentally to do some fishing, and otherwise enjoy their outing.

The accident was rather a peculiar one, in that Edward fell from the canoe into the water without any apparent cause. He was paddling about in the lake, two or three hundred yards from shore, where his two brothers stood watching him. Suddenly he half turned in his seat and plunged forward into the water, as if suddenly stricken with heart failure. He floundered about on the surface a moment, calling out that he was unable to swim, and then sank from view. There was no other boat handy, and Ben and William were too far away to render any assistance. Unable to help, they could do nothing but stand there and watch their brother drown.

Assistance was secured and an attempt was made to recover the body. Up to today the searchers had been unsuccessful, but it is believed that it will be only a matter of time before the remains are found. Ben Vail came to Duluth this morning to get an undertaker, and went back to Cedar lake this afternoon in company of one. He hopes to find that the body has been recovered by the time he arrives there.

DENIES HE WILL AID REBELLION

Bannerman Says Weapons Are Not for Venezuelan Insurgents.

New York, Sept. 10.—If the $81,000 worth of Hotchkiss cannon and Gatling guns purchased for the war department Tuesday by Francis Bannerman are destined for an active part in a revolutionary attempt to oust President Castro of Venezuela, Mr. Bannerman says he has no knowledge of the fact.

"I bought the guns as a speculation," said Mr. Bannerman, "just as I have frequently before made such purchases from the government of superfluous weapons and munitions of war. I have in mind no prospective purchaser whatever for the stuff as yet, nor have I been approached by Gen. Velerla or any other person reputed to represent revolutionary interests in Venezuela or anywhere else. I shall probably store the material on Bannerman island, near West Point, where we have facilities for keeping it, until opportunity arises to dispose of it profitably."

TONIGHT AT 8
AT THE ARMORY
CONGRESSMAN
J. ADAM BEDE,
will discuss the issues of the campaign. Come and bring the ladies.

NAVY STRAGGLERS NOT YET LOCATED.

Melbourne, Sept. 10.—The battleship Kansas and the supply ship Culgoa sailed this afternoon to join the rest of the American fleet at Albany, having been left behind to await the American mail and pick up such sailors as were left behind when the fleet sailed. A number of men who missed their ships reported to the Kansas and patrols searched the city, but there are still 115 stragglers unaccounted for.

Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge—A splendid tonic for adults and a safe worm-cure for children.

HOLD DISPATCHER IN WRECK PROBE

Several Attempts Made to Lynch Operator After Montana Disaster.

Plains, Mont., Sept. 10.—The coroner's investigation into the cause of the Northern Pacific wreck, which occurred near Parma, last Saturday, when nine men were killed, adjourned after a prolonged session behind closed doors.

Awaiting the result of the inquiry Operator Mitchell of Parma and Dispatcher Keeley are being held.

It has just been learned that soon after the wreck occurred several attempts were made by enraged foreigners in the employ of the railroad to lynch Mitchell.

WILL DIE FROM FALL FROM BALLOON; BABY LION UNHURT

New York, Sept. 10.—In view of 7,000 persons at the Richmond county fair held at Dongan Hills, Staten Island, William Coby, a youthful balloonist of Milwaukee, Wis., fell from an exploded balloon and was probably mortally injured. A baby lion, which Coby had taken up with him, also fell but landed on the prostrate form of the aeronaut and escaped unhurt.

UPPER MICHIGAN TOWNS IN DANGER

Norway, Vulcan and Loretto Hard Pressed by Threatening Fire.

Norway, Mich., ept. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The towns of Norway, Vulcan, Loretto, Mich., and Niagara, Wis., are all in great danger from forest fires that are raging in every direction.

Fire engines were shipped in from outside, and men are kept working on both shifts, night and day. Farmers' homes have been entirely swept away by fire. Thousands of cords of wood have been destroyed.

The electric plant recently built by the Penn Iron Mining company is also in great danger.

There has been no rain here for two months, and the wind being so strong, gives the fire a great headway.

WATCH FOR THE "MARKET BASKET"

Tomorrow's Herald Will Show You How to Save Money.

When you do your shopping Saturday for the Sunday dinner, you will want to do your trading where your money will go the farthest and, at the same time, secure the best quality of eatables. If you are looking for a place where you can buy economically and well, don't fail to read The Herald's Market Basket. It will be full of splendid suggestions from the city's most reliable grocers, in the way of staple goods, and get in the habit of buying your stock of eatables where your money will do the most for you.

The Market Basket tomorrow will be an exceptionally good one and, if you are dissatisfied with your high-priced grocer or butcher, you cannot do better than trade with those dealers who are not afraid to quote their prices.

GUESTS AT BANQUET.

Sergeants Wood and Swan of Company C, Are Honored.

Sergeants Fred H. Wood and George H. Swan were the guests of Company C, Minnesota National Guard, at a banquet in the armory last evening. Sergeant Wood has just returned from three months absence abroad and Sergeant Swan is leaving the company, after five years service, because of his removal to another city.

The armory was prettily decorated with national colors, palms and ferns. Covers were laid for 110.

Among the out of town guests were: Capt. Bresnahan of Company I Second Wisconsin; Former Lieut. Gears of the same company; Lieut. R. M. Weaver of the Third Infantry, Minnesota National Guards; Sergeant Spender and Musician Brown of Company D, Second Infantry, Minnesota National Guards; and Sergeant Sorenson of Company A, First Battalion, Wisconsin National Guards.

Capt. Bresnahan was an interested spectator at the company drill and complimented the officers and men afterward on their work.

When Trifles Become Troubles.

If any person suspects that their kidneys are deranged, they should take Foley's Kidney Remedy at once and not risk having Bright's disease or diabetes. Delay gives the disease a stronger foothold, and you should not delay taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

Hear Congressman J. Adam Bede discuss the Issues of the campaign at the armory tonight. Bring the ladies.

THEY BREAK THE WORLD'S RECORD

Los Angeles, Sept. 10.—At the race meet of the Los Angeles Motor Cycle club yesterday something unparalleled in the history of racing occurred, the breaking of thirty-one world's records and the establishment of eight new records. In the last event a one hour race, two local amateurs between them accomplished the feat. Raymond Seymour broke the ten, twenty, twenty-one and twenty-two mile records in the same race. J. Howard Shafrer passed him at this point and broke every world's record from twenty-three miles to forty-eight miles, established new records from forty-nine miles to fifty-six miles, and broke the world's one hour record by nearly eight miles. In addition to this Paul J. G. Derkum rode a quarter of a mile in 13 seconds, a feat never before accomplished, but one which has no place in the record books.

While Derkum was riding this race, his brother, who was thrown from his machine earlier in the day, was dying in a hospital.

BARN SLUMBERER BURNS TO DEATH

St. Paul, Sept. 10.—Michael Needham, aged 40, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed a barn belonging to John Marty, at 486 East Seventh street. Nedham was formerly a brakeman of the Northern Pacific, but of late had ben out of employment and slept in the barn. Four horses were also burned to death.

FIRE SCARE AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Department Called to Extinguish Flames in the Brush.

The fire department was given a run last night to the normal school to extinguish a blaze that had started in the brush. Residents of the neighborhood were very much alarmed, and about twenty calls were received within the space of a very few minutes. The alarm was also turned into police headquarters, and a squad of police was all ready to start for the scene, when word came that the flames had been extinguished. No damage was done.

The fire is said to have been caused by the carelessness of three laborers in the employ of Contractor Gorge R. King, working in clearing a new street in the rear of the normal school building. It is claimed the men left a fire burning, which spread to the brush. Fire engines were rushed to the spot and the situation was soon under control.

NORTH SHORE SETTLERS FALL ON THEIR KNEES AND THANK GOD FOR ARRIVAL OF THE GOPHER

RESIGNS AS PIUS LAUDS

Bishop Spalding Quits Amid Praise From the Holy Father.

Ill-Health Causes Retirement of Ex-Mine Strike Arbitrator.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 11.—Bishop John Lancaster Spalding has resigned from the diocese of Peoria, due to poor health. He has had a notable career in the Catholic ministry and was one of the arbitrators appointed by President Roosevelt to settle the great coal miners' strike in Pennsylvania, a few years ago. He is 69 years old.

"Impossible to Replace."

Rome, Sept. 11.—The resignation of Bishop Spalding does not cause surprise at the vatican, as the effect of age and sickness in the bishop has been noticed. Nevertheless, the pope expresses deep regret at losing the active co-operation of such a member of the American episcopacy.

"Few bishops," said his holiness, "had so great an influence on the life of the people, even outside of religion, and outside of the Catholic denomination as had Bishop Spalding."

Further commenting on the resignation, the pope is reported as saying that it was impossible to replace such men as Bishop Spalding.

BISHOP J. L. SPALDING.

COMMANDER NEVIUS IS WELCOMED HOME.

Red Bank, N. J., Sept. 11.—Enthusiastic greeting was given last night to Judge Henry M. Nevius of this city, to celebrate his election as national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, at the encampment in Toledo, last week. A procession marched through the principal streets, burning red lights and exploding fireworks. A meeting was held in the city hall, where addresses were made. The hall was decorated with flags.

FIGHTING THE FLAMES AT BROOKLYN.

SANITY TO BE PROBED

Commission Will Again Investigate E. W. Vanderbilt's Mind.

New York, Sept. 11.—The sanity of Edward Ward Vanderbilt, the Brooklyn lumber merchant, whose mental condition was the subject of judicial investigation after his marriage to Mrs. Mary Ann Scannell-Pepper, spiritualist medium, two years ago, is to be again inquired into.

Counsel for Miss Minerva Vanderbilt, daughter of the merchant, has applied to Justice Blackmar of the supreme court, Brooklyn, for an order appointing a commission to again pass upon his sanity. Blackmar will appoint the commission in a few days.

MARY PEPPER VANDERBILT.

EX-SULTAN SAYS HE IS RESIGNED

But One of His Leaders May Continue the Struggle.

Casablanca, Sept. 11.—Abd-El-Aziz, ex-sultan of Morocco, has written a letter to Mtougi, one of the leaders, thanking him for his support, but saying that he had decided to abandon the struggle. Mtougi replied that he would never submit to Mulai Hafid, and it is believed he intends to enter the field against the new ruler of the empire.

Steamer Floats Again.

Broadstairs, Eng., Sept. 11.—The British steamer Lake Michigan, from Montreal Aug. 29, with passengers for London, which stranded yesterday near Margate, was floated today. Tugs will dock her at Millwall.

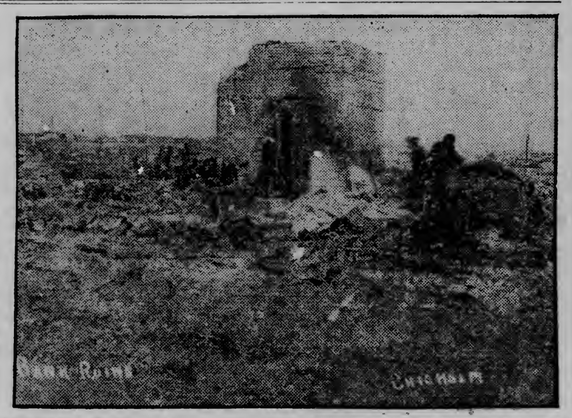

LEWIS STUYVESANT CHANLER

CHANLER WOULD OPPOSE HUGHES

Announces He is Candidate for Democratic Nomination.

New York, Sept. 11.—Lieutenant Gov. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler was in the city for a short time yesterday, en route to his home. In an interview with the Associated Press, he declared himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, and said he was surprised at a widely circulated report that he would not consent to run against Gov. Hughes, in the event of the latter being the Republican nominee.

OPENING THE VAULT OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK AT CHISHOLM.

WRIGHT HAS DARIUS GREEN OF FLYING MACHINE FAME BEATEN

Paris, Sept. 11.—Expert writers on aviation this morning devote columns in the newspapers to the importance of Orville Wright's flying feats at Fort Myer and liken the effect produced throughout the world by this masterful demonstration to the circling of the Eiffel ower by Santos-Dumont in 1900.

With unanimity, they hail the Fort Myer performance as marking the definite conquest of the air by man. A majority of the writers think that it is now only a question of a short time before the Wright's or some other aeroplanists will win the London Daily Mail's prize fof $50,000 for a flight from London to Manchester, and M. Michelin's prize of $20,000 for a flight from Paris to the dome of the cathedral at Clermont-Forrand.

This latter competition is open until 1918.

NASHWAUK IS NOW SAFE AND AURORA ALL RIGHT

Shifting of the Wind Saved the Adriatic Location.

Little Danger at Aurora and People Well Prepared.

All reports received this morning from the ranges are optimistic.

The wind seems to have died down in most of the threatened districts, and all the news received this morning is most favorable.

Reports received from the points along the line of the Great Northern road, at the superintendent's office in Superior, are to the effect that the danger is past. Nashwauk is said to be safe from any immediate danger, and the conditions along the line ar apparently improving.

At the offices of the Missabe road everything was reported quiet. Reports were received this morning from all the principal points along the road, and there were no fires of any consequence any place.

No reports of serious fires were received at the Iron Range office, and COUNT TOLSTOI.

TOLSTOI IN QUIET FETE

Novelist Bars Demonstration on Anniversary of His Birthday.

Americans Join in Greetings That Flood Yasnaya Poliana.

Orthodoxy, shrewd and foxy,
Mocks the trend of Tolstoi's thought;
'Twould have been odd if the Synod
Hadn't banned the things he taught.

Altruism is a schism
Little liked by settled creeds;
Tolstoi's mission and ambition
Are to meet the common needs.

Tithes and Titles are the vitals
Of the system orthodox;
Elevated your theme to Nature
And they'll put you in the stocks.

From the chief heights, Priests and Levites
Launched a curse that once sufficed
For inviting and inciting
Crucifixion of the Christ!

Yasnaya Poliana, Sept. 11.—Surrounded by a chosen loyal few, Count Leo Tolstoi yesterday passed his birthday anniversary in quietude, working a bit at his literary labors, exchanging greetings with a few who called to pay respects, and taking a long walk toward sundown. Thus passed the day over the approach of which there has been so much of turmoil and apprehension in his native country.

While Russian towns and villages were agog with attempts to celebrate the anniversary of Tolstoi's birth—attempts that in some cases were merely frowned upon by the Russian authorities, and in others were absolutely for-

SEWAGE CONTAMINATION OF WATER DISCUSSED

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 11.—The contamination of lake water by sewage was the subject of discussion at the conference of twelve delegates to the Lake Michigan water conference here today. Maj. W. V. Hudson, United States engineer declared sewage will contaminate lake water as far as thirty miles from shore. The varying currents, he declared, make it difficult to tell at what points there is least danger of contamination.

DANGER YET VERY GREAT

Grand Marais is Practically Surrounded by Forest Fires.

Fears That Many Settlers Have Perished in the Flames.

Several Towns Burned and Chicago Bay is Probably Destroyed.

THE SITUATION BRIEFLY.

Grand Marais is safe for the time being only.

Fires are raging in the forest all around Grand Marais, and every settler in the district is completely burned out.

The Pigeon River settlement is wiped out, and the camps and buildings of the Lumber company are a total loss.

Fire was close to Chicago Bay, and the inhabitants were taken aboard the Gopher. It is expected that this place is by this time burned.

The fire has burned the towns of Tofte, Lutson and Cascade. Conditions about these places are improving.

There is much wind, but it is variable.

Smoke along the shore is so thick that the steamer American was unable to land at a number of her regular stopping points yesterday afternoon, and last night.

Frantic with fear at the vast seething furnace of flame that leaped about their little clearings in the forest, eating up their homes as if they were bits of tissue paper, north shore settlers wept with joy when the steamship Gopher, in command of Adjt. Gen. Wood, sent boats ashore and picked up the stricken people. The vessel arrived in the nick of time to save many lives. Some of the rescued were actually picked out of the cold waters of Lake Superior.

"Thank God you've come," was the universal cry of the terros-stricken settlers. "We looked to the Gopher as

FIGHT TO KEEP THAW A CAPTIVE

Stated He Will Never Return if He Gets Out of State.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Any attempt to take Harry K. Thaw from the Duchess county jail at Poughkeepsie to Pittsburg or any point outside the state will be opposed by the state commission in lunacy. Dr. Albert W. Ferris, president of the commission has returned from a long European trip and announced the position the commission will take in the matter.

It is stated that if ever Thaw gets out of this state—to face creditors or any other pretext—he will never return.

HARRY K. THAW.

Evelyn In Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw arrived from Mackinac, and is at the Meden Hotel, Mount Clemens, with a maid. The young woman took two rooms and has been maintaining the strictest seclusion. At the hotel office, the manager was absent and the clerk would say nothing in regard to the arrival of Evelyn.

WORSE THAN THE FOREST FIRES.

UNCLE SAM WILL NOW FIGHT TO RETAIN THE COMMODITIES CLAUSE

Appeal From Pennsylvania Jurist's Decision is to be Taken to Federal Supreme Court Within Sixty Days.

ROOSEVELT HEARS NEWS; BONAPARTE SAYS APPEAL

Oyster Bay, Sept. 11.—While Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte was in conference with President Roosevelt the report of the decision by the United States circuit court in Philadelphia that the commodities clause of the Hepburn railroad act is unconstitutional was conveyed to the president. After a discussion, he and Bonaparte came to the conclusion that the United States department of justice should take an appeal. Mr. Bonaparte was asked regarding the decision, and replied that he would take steps to appeal.

Washington, Sept. 11.—That an appeal will be taken within sixty days to the supreme court of the United States from yesterday's decision of the United States circuit court at Philadelphia declaring unconstitutional the commodities clause of the Hepburn act, was the statement of Acting Attorney General Russel today. The action of the Philadelphia court created wide interest at the interstate commerce commission and the department of justice. Interstate Commerce Commissioner Judson Clements expressed the hope that the decision rests upon a defect in the language of the clause. "I do not know the grounds upon which the clause in question is held by the court to be unconstitutional," he said. "I cannot therefore discuss the decision except to say that I trust it is not on the broad ground that congress has not the power to prohibit carriers engaged in interstate commerce from carrying their own products in competition with their patrons. So long as this practice is permitted, the temptation to discriminate is ever present and too strong for resistance. The indirect methods of discrimination are numerous and past finding out in many instances until they have done their deadly work. It has been overwhelmingly shown that the practice has resulted in intolerable consequences.

"The spirit of the decision of the supreme court of the United States, in the Chesapeake & Ohio, New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad cases does not seem to be antagonistic to the idea that congress has the power to prevent wrongs of this character by removing their cause. I trust it will be found that the decision rests upon some curable defect in the language of the clause and not upon the ground that congress has not the power by proper legislation to destroy a practice which has resulted, and which must continue to result in such gross wrongs."

In ordinary cases, an appeal would lie to the United States court of appeals, but section 2 of the act of Feb. 11, 1903, provides that in ever suit in equity pending, or hereafter brought in any circuit of the United States under any of the acts regulating commerce, wherein the United States is complainant, an appeal from the final decree of the circuit court will lie only to the supreme court.

WEATHER—Fair tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature; light to fresh variable winds.

SMART CLOTHES
FOR THE COLLEGE FELLOW!

Nobody better knows what's what in clothes than the college and high school fellows. The new fall models in Oak Hall Bench-made Smart Clothes were designed with such fellows in view. The styles have plenty of snap, cleverness and individuality. Gaiety is shown in the striking patterns and roaring colors. But there is dignity in the complete harmony produced by the artistic designing combined with skillful tailoring.

It's a marvelous show of fine Suits and Overcoats fit for wear among well dressed people anywhere—and the marvel is, especially with those who usually patronize good merchant tailors, how we give such values

$15 to $30

The little fellows in knee pants have learned to be particular as well as their older brothers. There will be a lot of them here tomorrow and they'll see smart clothes for boys as never before—and values at $3.95 to $12.50 that will please their mothers almost as much as the beautiful styles.

WOMEN ARE NEEDED AT THE RELIEF STATION

Not Enough at Headquarters to Handle Contributions.

Some Fearful and Wonderful Things Are Coming In.

The crying need of the local fire relief committee today was not clothing, or other articles, for the burned out folk of Chisholm, but more women to handle the contributions, at the relief headquarters, at Second avenue west and First street.

That's what the lone lady, working at the headquarters this noon, had to say about the situation.

"I guess everyone is so wrapt up in 'tag day' preparations that they have forgotten about the relief headquarters, and the need of some one here to handle all the things that are coming in," said the lone lady, as she deftly licked six suits of men's underwear into a box.

She was very busy sorting all kinds of garments and things, but the work piled around her was more than enough for one person. The men at headquarters were busy nailing and loading boxes and handling the heavier things, like cook stoves.

The lone lady was certainly on to her job, though. She can do about as much work as three ordinary people.

"We are sorting everything out as it comes in and repacking it, you see," she explained, drawing garments from one box and packing them where they belonged.

Women's outer and under garments are being placed in separate boxes, children's wear in other boxes, and men and boys' in others. The boxes are labeled, showing what they contain. Underwear and outer garments are placed in separate boxes and shoes and hats are in bundles by themselves.

Several barrels of shoes, men's, women's and children's, were awaiting shipment at the headquarters this morning. The lone lady can stand twenty feet away and toss a pair of shoes into a barrel, with ease.

Good Practice.

"I'm thinking of signing on the Duluth ball team for next season," she observed merrily," and I think I could do better than some of the players they had this year."

Some fearful and wonderful things are coming into the relief station. Most of the articles are in good condition and reasonably clean, but there are some persons who are sending veritable rubbish into the committee's hands. Hopelessly undesirable articles are cast into a heap in a corner to be destroyed.

There are some good shoes in the collection. Some of the good miners' wives of Chisholm may be adorned in the near future with more stylish footgear than they have ever worn. There is one pair of lady's Jersey colored Oxfords that are bound to create a sensation at the stricken town. It will take a diplomatic committee at Chisholm to give out those shoes to one woman without incurring the enmity of all the rest in the village. The heels are two inches and the style is there, so what does it matter if travel in them will be a little hard over the ruins.

And there is sure to be a big scramble for a "Merry Widow" hat that came into headquarters this morning. The Chisholm woman who draws it will be the envy of all the rest of the feminine population. It is a creation and about the only one in the motley collection always gets a square deal from the plain, straightforward business man. The law recognizes this fact and does not require that the Judge of Probate be a lawyer, and he usually isn't. The Judge of Probate is not a lawyer in fifty-six counties in Minnesota; he is a lawyer in only twenty-eight. Give the orphans a square deal and nominate a successful business man for Probate Judge.

THE WIDOW AND ORPHAN

of headgear that has found its way into headquarters. There is one other, a "Soul Kiss" lid, that is going to make a hit.

The "millinery department" at headquarters is very interesting.

Fat Men's Collars.

The fat men of Chisholm are to be supplied with collars. Some corpulent gentleman of Duluth has sent in what is evidently the collection of years. All of the collars are of the same size, about two feet long and half an inch high.

A pair of pajamas, that looks like a circus clown's costume, is another article that loomed up at headquarters. It boasts a blue check, that is so loud it is bound to keep the wearer awake at night.

Although there are many freaks of clothing, from disorderly neckties to old suspenders in the contributions, nearly every thing is serviceable and likely to be needed at Chisholm. An important contribution of this morning was a box of men's and boys' suits, from the Columbia Clothing company.

There was most generous responses of clothing and provisions and money to the call sent out by the Episcopalian churches of the city for the relief of the fire sufferers. The offerings from the various churches of the denomination through out the city were sent to St. Paul's church, and a large amount of clothing was today turned over to the relief committee, with nearly $250 in cash.

EATING OUR OWN CELERY

Local Stocks Are Now Offered on Michigan Street.

Fine Crop is Raised at Duluth's Very Doors.

Everyone may not be aware of it, but the finest celery Duluth has had this year is on the local market at the present time, and it was all grown in the immediate neighborhood of Duluth.

Who says things don't grow in St. Louis county? Those who have a poor opinion of the soil hereabouts should take a little jaunt down into busy Michigan street and see the stocks of celery which the commission merchants there are offering to the trade.

It is a safe bet that no better celery was ever seen there. At this time of the year, for the past three seasons, local gardeners have been furnishing the Duluth market with celery, and this year's crop eclipses anything of the like ever grown here in the past.

"We have been getting celery from Michigan, but as soon as this Duluth celery was offered, we cut Michigan off the list and will not go back there again until the local supply has been exhausted," said a local commission merchant today.

Thus far enough celery has not been grown here to supply any outside markets, but there is ample offered now for present local needs. The commission merchants do not allow any of the Duluth celery to go outside.

The Duluth celery is selling at 30 to 35 cents a bunch, according to size.

The past week has not brought many changes in prices on the local produce markets, although the dealers say that the spell of dry weather which has been sweeping the country is going to curtail the season for green vegetables, like tomatoes and cucumbers. The effect of the heat has not been felt in the market yet, but it is bound to be later.

Reports received from the growers are to the effect that the heat and lack of moisture have been drying out the vines and are causing considerable damage to them.

However, prices are not expected to show a great increase; rather, it will be a case of the "cukes" and the tomatoes dropping out of the market sooner than they would have had weather conditions been more favorable for the vines. Save for the last few weeks, the season has been a very good one, indeed.

The local market is well supplied with everything in the line of fruits, the western states shipping them in great quantities.

"Michigan is only a side show now, so far as fruit is concerned," remarked a commission merchant.

Washington, California, Idaho and Oregon are sending most of the fruit that is on sale here now. Peaches, pears, grapes, plums and so forth are still coming in large quantities from those states and are selling at prices which show practically no variation from a week ago.

Tokay grapes from California are a delicacy in the fruit line, which Michigan street is now offering. They are said to be very nice and are selling for $1.75 a box. Most of the Concord grapes are coming from Michigan.

* * *

Apples are selling at $2.75 to $3 a barrel.

* * *

Bananas are steady at 4 cents a pound. It is not often that the banana market shows any lively fluctuations. Whenever they are in the market, which is about all the year, they may be relied upon to remain unchanged in price, unless the fruit trust should decided they were becoming too plentiful and curtail importations for a time.

* * *

The harvesting of grain has made the receipts of potatoes smaller than they would ordinarily be but the market is fairly well supplied with them now. They are selling at 75 cents a bushel.

Jersey sweet potatoes are in good demand around $1.50 a bushel.

Butter is firm at 24 to 26 cents a pound, for creamery prints. Prices for other grades are unchanged from a week ago.

* * *

The egg market remains just about where it was last week. Eggs are 21 to 22 cents a dozen.

* * *

Lard is a little stronger, but the meat, fish and poultry prices are steady and unchanged.

The Great Pyramid.

The greatest of all pyramids is Khufu Khut, as the Egyptians call it, or the glorious throne of Khufu. All its four sides measure 755 feet and the original height was 481 feet. The great staple beverage of the Northwest is golden grain belt beer. It is the most nourishing of all beers because it contains every particle of the healthful, wholesome nutriment of the malt and all the tonic properties of the hops from which it is made. POLITICIAN HELD ON FIGHT CHARGE

Ex-City Collector Martin of Chicago is Placed Under Arrest.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Ex-City Collector Joseph S. Martin, for many years a leading Democratic politician and adviser to the late Governor Altgeld, was arrested last night after a desperate encounter with Peter McLeod, a contractor, in which McLeod was stabbed twice and Martin was severely injured. The fight took place before the Martin and McLeod homes, 190 and 192 North State street.

McLeod was removed to the Passavant hospital suffering from a wound in his right breast and one in the right arm.

Martin was taken to the Alexian Brothers' hospital. His nose was broken and he was otherwise badly hurt. The men had quarreled over money alleged to be due Martin, for whom McLeod had acted as real estate agent.

NEW SERMON TOPICS.

Rev. Campbell Coyle Prepares Attractive List for Sunday Evenings.

Rev. Campbell Coyle has prepared an attractive list of Sunday evening sermons for the near future, the topics of which he has announced and are given herewith. The Sunday evening services will begin at 7:45 until October, when the hour will be changed to 7:30. Special music will be given. Paul Gilbert is now a regular member of the quartet, and has been chosen as assistant to the pastor.

Rev. Mr. Coyle's topics follow:

Sept. 13—"A Personal God; Can We Be Sure that One Exists, and How?"

Sept. 20—"The Protoplasm of Revelation; or the First Verse of the First Chapter of Genesis Shown to be the Germ of all Fundamental Religious Truth."

Sept. 27—"Adam, the Hero of the Romance of Creation; or a Discussion of the Creation of the Man as Distinct from the Making of the Woman."

Oct. 4—"Eve, the Heroine of the Romance of Creation; or a Discussion of the Making of the Woman as Distinct from the Creation of the Man."

Oct. 11—"The Origin of the Human Soul; or a Discussion of the Various Views that Have Played Their Part in the Christian Church."

Oct. 18.—"The Coats of Skins Our First Parents Wore; or, Is Blood Atonement a Necessity, and Can It be Rationally Explained?"

SMOKE BLANKET OVER THE RIVER

Heavy Cloud Makes Navigation on St. Louis Almost Impossible.

Smoke from the forest fires is hanging so thickly over the St. Louis river and bay that navigation is made exceedingly difficult for launch owners, and people in other small craft, particularly in the night time.

A heavy blanket of smoke closely hugs the river and bay every night, and it is almost as bad in the day time. Amateur pilots have a hard time steering their way through it. It is even worse than a fog, and in places a man's vision, even with the assistance of a light, extends only a few yards after nightfall.

Operation of the boats is not so difficult on the upper river. In the vicinity of the boat club branch, as lower down, where it broadens out into the bay. There are places in the neighborhood of West Duluth, where the river or bay is a mile or more across, but where the channel is only a few yards across, and unless landmarks on the shore can be seen, it is very hard to steer a boat without running aground.

ON THE IRON RANGES

BEAR EAT FISH; ONE IS KILLED

Burlington Bay Fisherman Has Exciting Experience With Bears.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ole Hanson, a fisherman, who resides on the east side of Burlington bay, shot a small cub bear yesterday morning and saw two more. In his morning catch of fish a number of suckers were netted, and being of no use, were thrown aside upon the shore. On Hanson's return from town, where he had been selling his morning's catch of herring, he was startled to fine a she-bear and two cubs busily engaged in eating the suckers he had left on the shore. He maue a rush for his cabin and got his gun, but the old bear and one cub had seen him and fled. The other cub decided to take chances and one more fish and lost it life. It weighed about fifty pounds.

PUMP STATION NOT IN DANGER

Eveleth Water Supply is Not Liable to be Damaged.

Eveleth, Minn., sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report in a Duluth morning paper that the Eveleth pumping station was in danger and the town thereby threatened is false. Mayor Smith and Fire Warden Charles Johnson made a horseback trip yesterday all around the town, going out from one-half to four miles, and found no fires nor smoke in that vicinity, except a small one near the Missabe tracks, which was being watched carefully and is well under control.

VIRGINIA HAS MANY ENROLLED

Nearly 100 More Than Last Year at Beginning of School.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The enrollment in the public schools at the beginning of the present year was about 100 greater than last year.

An additional room has been opened at the Johnson building and another at the Central building. The enrollment in the high school is about 25 per cent higher than that of last year, the number being an even 100. The number of pupils assigned to each teacher is given below:

Central building—Annie McGillis, 38; Helen Freyberger, 40; Grace L. Thompson, 27; Emma J. Duffala, 28; Edna Richards, 39; Helen Houk, 32; Florence D. Garlock, 44.

Primary building—Leta F. Winter, 36; Helen Purvis, 30; Clara Waddick, 39; Julia F. Mahoney, 37; Loutie Goodnough, 37; Helen Karon, 38; Merlie I. Dennis, 44; Rose D. Ryan, 37; Mabelle C. Reid, 40.

Franklin building—Llanda E. Beach, 36; Bertha Hendy, 34; Helen Hartley, 47.

Homestead building—James G. Baille, 22.

Farmstead building—Edward Berg, 26. Total, 1,433.

There are 28 pupils to attend the Higgins building as soon as it is ready for use, which will be in a week or two.

GOES TO IRONWOOD.

Virginia Theatrical Man to Try Another Venture—Personals.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Aveldson, who has been associated with the management of the Orpheum theater for a year past, will depart today for Ironwood, Mich., where he will open a moving picture show.

Tom Baille, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Baille, will depart soon for Milwaukee, where he will attend St. John's academy, a military school for boys.

H. S. Gillispie has returned from a visit to the Twin Cities.

Mrs. David Callins of East Grand Forks is a guest at the home of her father, J. A. Myers.

Mrs. Paul Chamberlain of Soudan was a guest of Mrs. A. C. Osborn this week.

Mrs. John Schultz has gone to Duluth for an operation on her throat.

Miss Jennie Morrell has returned from an extended outing at Isle Royale.

Mrs. C. L. Lindsay and daughter of Alpena, Mich., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fritchlee returned last evening after two weeks visit with relativesh in St. Paul.

The wedding of Miss Emma Koschman and John Stack, both of this city, will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. August Loschman next Sunday.

Mrs. F. A. Rolfe and son have returned from a visit with relatives at Green Bay, Wis.

HIBBING AGAINST VIRGINIA.

What May be Last Series of Games Begins at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hibbing and Virginia ball teams begin a series of four games at Roosevelt park this afternoon, and since the St. Louis county fair at Hibbing has been postponed on account of the fires raging on the range it is expected that there will be a large attendance of Hibbing fans.

These may be the last games of the season on the local grounds and if the weather is favorable large turnouts are expected as it is understood that the Hibbing management has signed several new players and Virginians will be anxious to see what they can do. Unless the team has been materially strengthened, it is confidently expected that Virginia will take at least three of the four games.

TACONITE HAS EXCITING TIME

Western Mesaba Range Town Menaced But is Finally Saved.

Coleraine, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire situation on the Western Mesaba is still very threatening. Coleraine is safe. Bovey keeps a large patrol of fighting firemen. The big powderhouse outside of the village has been in great danger. As two carloads of powder have just been placed in it, the explosion would be terrific if the fire ever reached the powder. Barrels of water are placed at intervals on the borders of the town. The fire whistle signals every day for some more threatening outbreak.

Taconite camo near burning yesterday afternoon. Men from Coleraine and Bovey joined the entire mining force there and fought the fire, which was rapidly approaching from the west.

Mount Griffith was all aflame, making a spectacular sight. The town was filled with choking smoke. General Supt. Greenway was in personal charge of the fire fighters, and T. F. Cole of Duluth was also present in the evening.

KINNEY LOCATION MA. BE BURNING

Fires Are Reported Raging in Forests in That Direction.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 8 o'clock last night a large fire was reported southwest of Mountain Iron and it is believed that the Kinney mine location was on fire. The flames could easily be distinguished from Mountain Iron and were visible for some time. The small brush fires on the other side of the Missabe tracks here are being carefully watched by men night and day to see that nothing comes near to the town. The smoke and heat yesterday were almost as bad as on Saturday when Chisholm was burning. Many different reports have been received by the people about the surrounding towns so that no one really knows what is going on except by driving around and seeing the towns personally.

REJECT ALL BIDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Eveleth School Board Considers Tenders Are Too High.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to Supt. B. O. Greening of the local schools the opening this year of the classes was accomplished more easily and quietly than ever before taking into consideration the fact that the arrangements for placing the various pupils in the schools and the securing of new text books and other matters necessary before school could open, were accomplished in two months, or since the high school for several reasons, one of the registration in the local schools this term has been 1,110.

The school board has decided to reject all the bids that were received by them for the construction of a new high school fir several reasons, one of the chief being that they are too high, being considerable over the amount the school board had figured on. The school board will therefore re-advertise for bids for a new high school. Mayor Smith of the school board visited Duluth recently to see the architect of the high school.

The Fayal school has been repainted on the outside and the interior has been fixed up considerable making a decided improvement in the appearance of the school.

HORSE FALLS IN DITCH.

Driver Did Not See It, But Animal is Rescued.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—While turning the corner at Grant avenue and Monroe street a horse belonging to some out of town man fell square into a ditch that was being dug for the placing of the water mains. The driver did not see the ditch as he turned the corner, and as one of the horses shied at the hole that was near him he pushed the other horse into the other ditch. Luckily the horse was standing up. After a short wait dirt was put down in front of the horse and he was then able to walk out of his prison.

MOTHER AND CHILD.

Both Fully Nourished on Grape-Nuts.

The value of this famous food is shown in many ways, in addition to what might be expected from its chemical analysis.

Grape-Nuts food is made of whole wheat and barley, is thoroughly baked for many hours and contains all the wholesome ingredients in these cereals.

It contains also the phosphate of potash grown in the grains, which Nature uses to build up brain and nerve cells.

Young children require proportionately more of this element because the brain and nervous system of the child grows so rapidly.

A Virginia mother found the value of Grape-Nuts in not only building up her own strength but in nourishing her baby at the same time. She writes:

"After my baby came I did not recover health and strength, and the doctor said I could not nurse the baby as I did not have nourishment for her, besides I was too weak.

"He said I might try a change of diet and see what that would do, and recommended Grape-Nuts food. I bought a package and used it regularly. A marked change came over both baby and I.

"My baby is now four months old, is in fine condition, I am nursing her and doing all my work and never felt better in my life." "There's a Reason."

ACCUSE STEVE DAVICH OF ATTEMPTING MURDER.

Eveleth, Minn., sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Steve Davich of Missabe Mountain township has been arrested on the charge of attempting to murder Nick Tavidic of the same place Wednesday night. Davich attempted to hit Tavidic with a beer bottle and an officer interfered and Davich was arrested. He was fined $25, which he paid.

No sooner had Steve Davich paid his fine than Peter Davich, a brother, charged Tavidic with being the accessory in a murder that occurred some time ago. Tavidic was arrested and will be given a hearing later.

Eveleth Against Fitwells.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The baseball season is almost over in this town. Beginning tomorrow afternoon, the local team will play a series of two games, Saturday and Sunday, with the Fitwell team of Duluth. These two games will be the last played here this season.

Itasca County Fair.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Sept. 11.—The Itasca county fair will be held here the last three days of next week. The fair grounds are nearing completion. The grounds have improved and are in first-class shape. About $800 will be given in premiums. There will be horse races and other sports. The indications point to the best fair ever held in Itasca county.

QUITS BED TO PHONE

Bryan Reaches Taft's State After Being Nearly Left Behind.

Republican Nominee Puts in Day on "Underground" Work.

St. Paris, Ohio, Sept. 11.—William J. Bryan entered the native state of his chief opponent shortly after 5 this morning. He was well on his way to Columbus, however, before he awoke, and was told that he was in the camp of the enemy.

The soundness of Bryan's sleep was due to the fact that after 1 this morning political development necessitated his getting up, dressing, and holding a long distance telephone conversation with Chairman Mack, who was in Chicago.

Bryan was in the station at Terre Haute and was able to get back on the train only by good luck, as his car had been shifted while he was talking. Had his train not been a trifle late in departing he would have been left.

Back on his car again, the nominee once more undressed, and the soundness with which he slept was interpreted as indicating the news he had received from his political manager was pleasant.

With County Organizations.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 11.—The "underground" work of the campaign, such as communication with various county organizations, suggestions to and from the national committee which is arranging the itinerary of Judge Taft and calls from Cincinnati politicians and friends constituted the program of the Republican candidate today.

LODGE CARD PARTIES.

Knights of the Maccabees Will Play Every Week.

At its last meeting, Duluth tent, No. 1, Knights of the Maccabees, began a series of card parties which promises to be a great success. The attendance at the first part ywas large, and much friendly rivalry was shown.

The parties are to be given every Wednesday evening, immediately after the regular review. Prizes will be awarded the winner of each evening's game, and a gold watch to the winner of the most games in the series.

WILL PLAY FOR THE FIRE FUND

Proceeds of Ball Game Will Go to Sufferers.

Next Sunday afternoon, at Athletic Park, the Fitwells and the Oak Halls will play an exhibition game, for the benefit of the range sufferers. These two teams are composed of the strongest semi-professional and amateur players at the Head of the Lakes, and they will no doubt pull off a good contest.

As the proceeds taken in at the gate will go to the people who lost their homes in the recent fires around Chisholm, there should be a large crowd turn out. This will probably be the last baseball game to be played at Athletic Park this year, and the affair is of much interest to local followers of the game.

The Fitwell bunch some time ago took two games from the Oak Halls. Ever since that time the other clothing store boys have been aching for a chance to get even, which the Fitwell people were unable to give them, on account of a full schedule.

WASTE WAS VERY GREAT

In Woods In Former Years, But Conditions Have Changed.

Lumbermen Alive to Necessity of Conserving Forest Resources.

Washington, Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—"All lumbermen are not wasteful, far from it," says R. S. Kellogg, assistant forester in the United States forest service, in speaking about the progress of forestry in this country. "Just the contrary is true in many cases, and the number of men in the lumber industry awakening to the necessity of conserving the country's forest resources is increasing each day. Progressive lumbermen realize that they must adopt conservative methods, or live to watch the slow death of their great industry.

"Vast stretches of territory have been made barren through, as we think now, the careless and almost criminal methods of the old-time lumberman. Practically every section of the country bears scars left after he had skinned the land and left what remained open to the ravages of fire. The waste in the woods was terrific; the mill waste was almost as serious. In many cases the percentage of the tree that was sent to the market in the form of lumber was so small that I would be ashamed to mention the figure. It was considerably less than half.

"All this, however, was more the fault of conditions than of the individual lumbermen. While some of them were without doubt unnecessarily wasteful, the majority operated as economically as they were able to and still make a profit. Lumber was cheap, and many times only the best grades could be sold. Things have been changing during the last few years, however, for the timber supply is dwindling and prices of forest products are rising to a point that permits a fuller utilization of timber.

"Waste has been reduced because conditions now make it profitable to use much of the stuff that was formerly left in the woods. Improved sawmill machinery is also playing an important part in the matter of the closer utilization of the tree. Better work in the woods, reduction of mill waste and protection of timber holdings from fire are going a long way towards conserving our forest resources.

"Do not think from this that all the old-time practices have ceased, or that all who are cutting our forests are practicing forestry—not all, nor maybe the majority, but the number is increasing, for the wideawake men are learning that conservative lumbering pays. A progressive Pennsylvania firm manufacturing lumber, lath and shingles outlines its policy as follows:

"'We have always pursued a conservative course in lumbering, taking care of our timber and striving to keep out the fire. Any timber that blows down or should be burned we gather up at once, and always, so far as possible, all trees struck by lightning.

"'We manufacture with thin saws, band and gangs. We strive to do our work as well as anybody can, and take pride in the fact that we can furnish anything in white oak, white pine or hemlock that any firm can cast of the Rocky mountains, and at any time. We make all our lath from the slabs and edgings, making about 6,500,000 a year. The balance of the hemlock slabs and edgings, after taking out the lath, we load up and send to the pulpwood mill, about 5,000 cords per year. Our shingles are made from broken pieces, forks and hollow butts, about 6,000,000 per year. We also gather up the tops and breaks and limbs of the hemlock and hardwood timber left in the slashings, using all but the oak, hickory and chestnut, and send that to the pulp mills, about 5,000 cords, or 150 cubic feet each, per year. This gathers up the refuse in the forest so well that there is little fuel to make a destructive forest fire.

"'Every man in our employ for the past thirty years has had positive orders, when he sees a smoke start on our land or anyone else's, to drop his work at once and put that fire out. If he hasn't help sufficient to do it, to send to the office and we will give him men enough to put it out. In this way we have saved nearly all our land from devastation by fire. It is coming up well in second growth, of which we do not cut any.

"'A question of taxation is a very serious one. Timber land has been assessed and taxed so high that the owners have been compelled to cut it off and could not hold it. Our recent law permits some concession on thirty acres of land only to one owner where kept in growing timber. If taxation of growing timber were lower, owners would not be compelled to cut it so rapidly. So far we have not succeeded in any legislation for the prevention of forest fires that amounts to anything. If the fire can be kept out and taxation reduced, with judicious cutting there is no reason why Pennsylvania should not have timber sufficient for all time.'

"Statements like these," continued the forester, "show that practical men of the lumber industry at present are different from the old-timers who went into the forest, slashed away to their heart's content, and told the world that the timber resources of the United States were inexhaustible. Although a considerable portion of our future supply will come from national and state forests, the great bulk of our timber land is in provate hands, and much of the lumber used by the next generation will come from it. While there are unquestionably short years ahead for us, we can eventually produce all the timber we really need if we go at it in the right fashion. This Pennsylvania firm is on the right track, and many other timber land owners will introduce similar methods of conservation and wise utilization as soon as conditions become such that they can afford to do so."

STRAW VOTE SHOWS HOW JOHNSON IS IN LEAD.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 11.—Governor Johnson has given out a straw vote taken on a Minneapolis & St. Louis passenger train, and which he says is vouched for by a Republican member of the legislature. The vote as taken was enclosed in a letter to the executive, and was as follows: Taft, 67; Bryan, 48; Johnson, 113; Jacobson, 61.

FINDS BIG IRON RANGE

Clarke, New York Geologist, Turns in Glowing Report.

Says State Has one of the Largest Preserves There is.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 11.—One of the largest iron ore reserves in the present fields of iron mining is located in New York state, according to a report submitted today to Andrew S. Draper, state commissioner of education, by Dr. John M. Clarke, the state geologist. Dr. Clarke has just completed an investigation into the iron mining fields in this state, and reports that a field is presented for exploitation in the so-called Clinton formation, situated in the central and western sections of the state, which, acording to conservative estimate, carries a volume of mineable ore of not less than 6000,000,000 tons.

Dr. Clarke's report is chiefly based upon a series of diamond drilling across an extensive belt of territory, lying along trunk railroad lines, which have been carried out in pursuance of a special appropriation made for that purpose by the legislature of 1907.

"The deposits, with which the report is concerned, are hematites of good to excellent iron percentages, and are deposited in beds in the Clinton formation. The succession of rock strata takes its name from Clinton, Oneida county, but is represented by a continuous belt that stretches across the central and wesetrn parts of the state, from Otsego county to the Niagara river. The formation, with its characteristic ore beds, occurs as well in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Wisconsin and in many of the Southern states, attaining special prominence in Tennessee and Alabama, w here the deposits are the main support of the iron manufacturing industry of that section.

OUTLAW FOREIGNERS.

Forty-Three Montenegrins Arrested for Dynamiting of Fish.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 11.—Forty-three Montenegrins, employed in railroad construction camps in Northern Idaho, were arrested for fishing with dynamite in the lower north fork of the Coeur d'Alene river, and marched to Wallace, east of Spokane, a distance of twenty-five miles, by the sheriff and his deputies. While all the prisoners carried a stiletto or gun, only one offered resistance, and after he was quieted, the long hike was made without trouble. The penalty for dynamiting fish ranges from $10 to $300 in fines, and imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both. It is alleged that these men killed thousandsof fish,which were not taken from the stream, as they secured no more than needed for a meal. The men were rounded up while at breakfast, the raid being a surprise even to the cook, who did picket duty at the camp. Coupnty Attorney Hanson will push the case to discourage others from angling with high explosives.

NEW DULUTH WEDDING.

Charles G. Strand and Miss Carlson Are Made One.

New Duluth, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A very pretty wedding occurred in New Duluth Thursday evening at the home of the bride's father, when Miss Marie Carlson and Charles G. Strand were married by Rev. P. Knudson.

Miss Carlson wore white and carried bride's roses. She was attended by Miss Gladys Goldsmith of Duluth. Charles Carlson, a brother of the bride, acted as best man. The rooms were prettily decorated with sweet peas and ground pine.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served, at which twenty-five guests were present.

Miss Carlson is one of New Duluth's most popular young ladies, and Mr. Strand is a young business man here. They will be at home in the Brigham flats on Commonwealth street.

RANCHMAN SHOT DEAD.

Amos Carroll's Body Found in Pasture by His Wife.

Glasgow, Mont., Sept. 11.—The murder of Amos Carroll, a rancher living about six miles northeast of Malta, in this county, is apparently the result of a feud between neighbors.

Carroll had gone down near the "Circle Diamond" ranch to drive home some milch cows, and during his absence his wife and her sister heard a gun report and immediately afterwards about a dozen other shots in rapid succession. They did not pay much attention to it at the time, but as the evening wore on and Mr. Carroll did not return, they began to worry about him and continued uneasy until morning dawned, when they started out to look for him. They soon discovered the body of Carroll near the old abandoned "Circle Diamond" buildings, lying on his face, where he had fallen from his horse, and the horse grazing near by.

Mrs. Carroll immediately started her sister off to summon the nearest neighbors while she tried to carry the body home. She was still endeavoring to do so when the neighbors arrived, and they then covered the body to protect it from the sun, and at once summoned the coroner from this city.

The sheriff and county attorney also went up to the scene of the murder and began working on the case. As a result they arrested Ralph Briggs, a neighbor, with whom Carroll had been known to have had trouble.

Briggs was found hiding in a well at the Stevens ranch, and although by advice of his counsel, C. H. Stevens, he would answer no questions, the coroner's jury brought in a verdict charging him with the murder, and also included C. H. Stevens as an accessory to the crime.

Excellent Grain Yields.

Bismarck, N. D., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Victor Anderson, of Ecklund township, threshed out his wheat and secured a yield of 1,200 bushels from eighty acres.

James McDonald, of Lincoln township, secured 3,000 bushels of wheat from 278 acres. These are excellent yields, when the season is considered.

KERN WILL MAKE TOUR

Democratic Vice Presidential Nominee to "Swing Round Circle."

Foraker and Taft Have Another Conference in Cincinnati.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—John W. Kern, Democratic vice presidential candidate, will make a speaking trip in the South in October and the national committee is now arranging the itinerary. He will deliver one or two speeches in Maryland and will speak in all probability in West Virginia and Delaware the first week in October.

Mr. Kern will speak in Winston-Salem, N. C., Oct. 7, when the state fair will be in progress. The nominee has also been urged to make speeches in Georgia and Tennessee. Senator Gore of Oklahoma and George Fred Williams of Massachusetts are to stump the Northwestern states.

Col. Moses C. Wetmore of the finance bureau announces that 15,000 Democratic newspapers have joined the movement to raise a popular subscription fund with which to run the campaign.

"The Democratic press is doing a great work," he said, "and if all the papers that favor the election of Bryan and Kern would go to work in earnest in this matter of collecting funds, I believe we would get the biggest part of the money necessary to successfully conduct our fight. This is a real contest and all our resources will be taxed to combat the Republican party, which will secure the money through its rich agencies that have derived legislative protection from it."

Foraker Calls on Taft.

Cincinnati, Ohio., Sept. 11.—A call by Senator Foraker in at the offices of W. H. Taft in the Sinton hotel, a half hour conference which followed and statements of cordiality by each party to the conference, constituted the interesting feature of yesterday at the Taft headquarters.

"We had a very pleasing personal talk," said Senator Foraker. "Yes, we talked about politics about nothing but politics you might say."

"There is nothing to say except that we repeated what we said at Toledo," was Taft's comment. He added:

"We discussed the general aspects of the campaign. Senator Foraker said he wanted to do all he could to bring about Republican success, and that when I needed him I should call upon him. The senator is to take an active part in the campaign."

Shafroth For Governor.

Pueblo, Colo., Sept. 11.—The Democratic state convention did not finish the work of selecting a state ticket until early today. The ticket follows:

Congressman-at-large, Edward T. Taylor; governor, John F. Shafroth; lieutenant governor, S. R. Fitzgerald; secretary of state, B. Pearce; treasurer, W. J. Gallligan; auditor, Rhoady Kennehan; attorney general, John T. Barnett; superintendent of schools, Mrs. Catherine M. Cook; supreme court judges, S. H. White, W. A. Hill, Morton H. Bailey, George Musser.

SYSTEM OF EDUCATION

Of London Man Proven Superior to That of Authorities.

Says His Oldest Boy Learned to Read in a Week.

London, Sept. 11.—There is a man in London who has beaten the London county council education committee after a fight lasting several years. He has compelled the courts to admit that his system of education, which the education authorities say is all wrong, is all right, and in a few weeks he is going to open a school within thirty miles of London, where his theories will be put into practice. The man is Edwin Collins, a university man, a writer and a teacher who does not believe in teaching at all—that is, in the ordinary acceptation of the term "teaching." His motto is that "children should be taught little and should learn much." His theory and practice are that no child should be asked to undertake formal lessons until it is 9 or 10 years old, and that until it reaches that age it should be allowed to run practically wild and assimilate knowledge as a flower gathers its sweetness from the sunshine.

Mr. Collins has been at war with the education authorities over the education of his own eight children. The law of England says that every child must go to school. If a child does not attend the public schools the school attendance officer calls to find out why, and if the parent can satisfy him that the child is being efficiently educated elsewhere all is well. If not, the parent is summoned to appear before the magistrate, and if he cannot satisfy the magistrate he is fined, and if the offense continues he is fined again as often as the attendance officer finds time to summon him.

Collins has been fined many times for not sending his four elder children to school. The British magistrate is impatient of new ideas, and when he learned that Mr. Collins's idea of education was to allow his children to grow up as plants and flowers grow he became impatient and refused to listen to more. Collins insisted, however, and he has just succeeded in forcing the unwilling admission from the magistrate that his children were far in advance of the public school children of the same age. The sequel to this decision is the opening of Collins' school, where he will teach other children on the same lines that he has taught his own.

Is University Graduate.

Collins is a graduate of the University of London, of the Sorbonne in Paris and of Heidelberg university in Germany. He has been a tutor in high-class educational institutions for years and he has prepared students for university examinations. From this it will be seen that he has no prejudice against the ordinary learning. All that he contends is that the average child is stunted and weakened by being compelled to tax its brain and body by beginning its formal education too early.

"I do not believe in beginning to learn the formal things too early," said Mr. Collins to me today. "Children should be encouraged to ask questions, to learn rather than to be taught. My oldest boy could not read a line until he was 9 years old. Then he learned the alphabet in a week, and he learned it without any difficulty. He just asked his mother or me what the letters were, and in a week he was reading for his own pleasure. Before that, of course, we had read to him poetry. Shakespeare's plays and many other things which were suitable to his understanding. Since then he has read all of Shakespeare, several of the English poets and a great deal of the finest English literature."

This boy, Ivan Julius Collins, was examined by the magistrate and it was his proficiency that forced the London magistrate to decide in favor of Collins' system. He is now 14 years old, and his upbringing is evident both in his physical and mental equipment. He is as tall and sturdy as an ordinary English lad of 17, and he can converse intelligently on most subjects in a way that would do credit to many grown men. He has written articles on the current political and educational problems, which have been accepted on their merits by leading English newspapers and magazines, and he has also written verses which display considerable merit.

Will Open a School.

Collins explained to me that he had been asked to open a school in the country by persons who wished him to undertake the education of their children, and he will start with enough pupils to insure the financial success of the undertaking.

"We will have children from 5 to 15 years old," he said, "and practically all our teaching will be done out of doors and by the peripatetic method. No class will have more than ten children, for no teacher can give individual attention to more. We will have our classes in the gardens and fields which surround the fine old country house that I have taken, and we will adopt the kindergarten method as much as possible. I do not mean by this, the formal kindergarten school, which would shock Froebel almost as much as the old system did, but we will adapt his principles to our surroundings. Our class gardens and fields will be well supplied with large blackboards, at which the teacher can stop in his walk to illustrate his talk.

"The children will be encouraged to ask questions. I want to encourage the natural development of ideas. For instance, if we are having a history lesson, and someone suggests a geographical question growing naturally out of the history, there is no reason why we should not drop the history and follow that line of thought. Geography may lead into mathematics, and so on. The reason for this is that the children should realize the essential relation of all branches of knowledge to real life. In the old-fashioned school each subject is taught by rote, and the children seldom realize that one has anyrelation to another.

"For the same reason I have always taught my children both arithmetic and geometry by means of matches or little sticks. They learn by laying two sticks beside two other sticks that two and two make four, and that simple addition and multiplication have some reference to real things. The geometrical forms and their relation to realities can be taught in the same way. After they have mastered the principles in this way, the formal learning comes easily to them. It is simply teaching them to express in words what they already fully understand.

"The religious teaching in my school will be very broad. I believe in giving each child the essentials of religion and letting the parents themselves fill in the details of whatever creed they believe in. My principal assistant will be a clergyman in holy orders, but I will not object to Nonconformist or Roman Catholic clergymen visiting the children of their faith under my charge.

REMARKABLE VALUES IN MANY LINES FOR SPECIAL SATURDAY SELLING

If your appreciation of remarkable values is as keen as we have always found it to be, there'll be record selling at this Store tomorrow. Some of the most sterling offerings it has ever been our pleasure to present are on the bargain menu for tomorrow.

Particularly opportune are the buying chances in Men's Furnishings, Boys' Clothing and Furnishings, Gloves, Women's Fall Suits, Skirts, Waists, Shoes.

Brief details follow: Read them carefully.

Special Offerings in Women's Fall Suits, Waists and Skirts.

Our fixed policy of charging modest profit margins on new goods—a policy at variance with the rule of most stores to put up prices at the first of the season—is responsible for the extraordinary values the ready-to-wear section features for tomorrow. This is the best opportunity you'll have to save on a new suit, skirt or waist. Don't miss it.

Suit Specials—We are showing a number of very pretty new fall models of Ladies' Tailored Suits—in the popular 36-inch length, semi-fitted coats, button trimmed, satin lined. Skirts are full gored or pleated models. Materials are cheviots, serges and striped worsteds, in blues, browns, blacks and fancies. These Suits are equal to many garments shown elsewhere at $25.00. Our price $19.50

Our $27.50 Suits—This line includes many of the "Ultra New" styles—long 36 to 38-inch coats—some in the "slashed" style, others edged with satin and braid trimmings. These suits are made of all wool worsteds, broadcloths, cheviots, in either solid colors or in striped worsteds—tailoring materials, linings and trimmings in these garments are of the best, and altogether you will find them to be the suits for which you would expect to pay considerably more than $27.50

Misses and Junior Suits—Our showing of these little suits is a special pride to us—great care has been exercised in their selection, styles, although a great deal similar to those of the better ladies' suits, are distinctly for the young miss. These are not small sizes of ladies' suits, but suits made expressly for the young ladies between the girlhood and womanhood stages. Tailoring, trimmings and general make up are as carefully gone into—and are as perfect as in the adult suits. The coats are mostly in the semi-fitted styles, lined with silk or satin, while the skirts are in the pleated or gored models—full in cut and finely fashioned. These little suits are trimmed with tailored strappings, braid and satin edgings and trimmings—and will be found to be excellent values at $12.50 to $25.00.

New Tailored Waists—A fine assortment of patterns—in these new heavy Linen Waists are being shown here—with laundered collars, pleated fronts, long sleeves, in button front styles—Waists that look twice the money—but which will be sold on Saturday at $1.49

Skirt Specials—For Saturday's selling, we are specializing Black Voile Skirts—made of good quality French voile, pleated or gored models—either perfectly plain tailored or trimmed with silk bands and folds—specially priced at $9.98

And at $6.75—We are showing a fine lot of 15-gored Skirts, with panel front—button trimmed and tailor finished. They are made up of all wool herringbone cheviots, and come in shades of blue, brown, wine and black. You would naturally expect to pay $8, but our Saturday price is..... $6.75

Specials in Corsets—One table of Corset Bargains. Bargains which should be of interest to every woman! Corsets of batistes and coutils—girdles—medium and long styles, with hose supporters attached—they are regular 75c values—for Saturday, each 49c

PALACE OF GEMS LIKE TIFFANY'S

Day Jewelry Store to Be a Center of Art When Mr. Bagley Gets Through.

Cassius Bagley of the F. D. Day Jewelry house is a busy man these days.

Ever since Mr. Bagley has had a controlling interest in the firm of F. D Day & Co., it has been his ambition to build up in Duluth what Tiffany's is in New York—on just as large and handsome a scale as this great commercial center would permit. And when the new Day store is again unveiled to the public, Duluth, as well as Mr. Bagley, will have just cause to feel proud.

Mr. Bagley's name will be prominently associated with the name of Day & Co., when the new store is opened—a just tribute to ambition and forcefulness.

This will in no way change the personnel of the house, as Mr. Bagley has for the past nine years been the guiding hand of this popular store.

Within the next ten days he will leave for New York to gather up his magnificent collection of artistic gold and silver pieces.

Among other features this store has been appointed the exclusive sales agents in Duluth of the celebrated Cross Leather goods—the richest leather creations made up in England.

When Mr Bagley is in the East he will select the English china exhibit, which will be one of the features of Day's Palace of Art and Jewels.

KAISER TO VISIT FRENCH TERRITORY

Government Suddenly Appraised of Intention of Wilheim.

Paris, Sept. 11.—The government today received official information that Emperor William, the army maneuvers at Alsace-Lorraine being at an end, would cross the French frontier in an automobile as a "simple tourist" and enjoy the magnificent view from the top of the Schlucht mountains.

Although considerably astonished at Emperor William should choose the present moment for the first visit to French territory made by a German emperor since the king of Prussia was proclaimed emperor at Versailles in 1871, the government at once dispatched instructions to the customs officials to allow the imperial automobile to pass the frontier without examination, and for the proper guarding of the route by gendarmes.

According to the official advices the emperor will have to traverse only about 100 yards of French soil in order to reach a point whence he can view the splendid panorama. The view includes the valleys of the Cologne and Moselotte rivers, which flow through pine forests into the Moselle.

Incendiary Finally Succeeds.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Sept. 11.—The mysterious incendiary, who recently burned the barn on the Fisher farm, occupied by Mr. Luedke and family, in Lawrence township, has again made his appearance, and a report from there states that he has succeeded in setting fire to the henhouse and a shed, both of which were destroyed.

CAN'T EMPTY THE OCEAN

Andrew Larsen of Sorenson & Larsen, merchant tailors of Salt Lake City, was so low with kidney disease that he was in bed and death was looked for almost daily.

The treatment was changed. He began to mend. His partner 'phoned the doctor he was slightly better. The doctor replied, "It makes no difference. It is as impossible for him to recover as it is to empty the ocean."

The progress was so slow that the patient would get discouraged and read our book for a bracer. He says he thinks he read it a hundred times. But the day he finished the third dozen he was back to business. Wonder what his physician thinks about emptying the ocean.

Physicians call kidney trouble Nephritis. This means inflammation of the kidneys.

The old diuretics (kidney medicines) are kidney excitants. No wonder the kidney deaths have doubled.

Fulton's Renal Compound is the first successful kidney emollient thus reducing kidney inflammation and controlling kidney troubles that have resisted all known treatment, as in the above Salt Lake case. Literature mailed free.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

FIRST FAIR IS SUCCESS

Northern Beltrami County Does Very Well in the Baudette Display.

Exhibits of Farm Products Are Declared to be Very Fine.

Baudette, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Northern Beltrami country's first annual fair at Baudette ended yesterday. This was the first exhibit of the products of the Rainy River valley. Some of the exhibits, especially of grains, grasses and vegetables, would compare favorably with the exhibit at the state fair from other portions of the state.

A complete program of ball games, launch races and land and water sports was given during the three days of the fair. A large number of people from the Canadian and American settlements was present. The success of the fair is due to the efforts of the Baudette Commercial club.

The last ball game of the season was played yesterday at the Spooner ball park. The game was between the two winning teams of the two previous games, held on Monday and Tuesday of the fair. Rainy River defeated Spooner to the tune of 11 to 4. Baudette played Warroad on Tuesday, winning out, 6 to 0. Yesterday's game was between Rainy River and Baudette. The two successful teams during the fair. Baudette was beaten, 8 to 0.

THREE ACCUSED ARE IN CUSTODY

Men Alleged to Have Robbed Mannhaven, N. D. Postoffice, Taken.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Postoffice Inspector Lacey and Deputy United States Marshall stout have returned from Mannhaven, where they succeeded in placing under arrest all three of the men engaged in the Mannhaven robbery.

Those men were employed on the steamer running from Bismarck to Mannhaven and did the job one night when the boat was tied up at the latter place. The efforts of one of the trio to conceal the loot on the ship attracted the attention of the cook and lead to the incriminationg evidence, the cook's life having been threatened if he "tipped" the men off to the officials.

WISCONSIN MEN LOSE FINE MILL

Lumber Yards Also Destroyed by Big Fire in Idaho.

Chippewa Falls, Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has been received from Lane, Idaho, of a heavy loss that befell P. H. and M. K. Wall by fire. Their sawmill, planing mill and lumber yard was consumed, causing a loss of $140,000 total, $90,000 of which was on the lumber yard, the entire summer's cut. Insurance amounting to $80,000 was carried on the plant.

The fire started in the dry kiln and spread with such rapidity that it was impossible to check it and only the barn and blacksmith shop were saved.

The property is that of the Lane Lumber company, capitalized at $300,000; P. H. Wall, president; M. K. Wall, secretary, and B. F. O'Neill, treasurer. Mike and Pat Wall, the officers, were born and raised in the town of Eagle Point and went West a few years ago. Joseph Brown, their brother-in-law, also a former resident of Eagle Point, is a stockholder in the company.

As the mill was located in the heart of rich timber it will likely be rebuilt.

NORTH DAKOTA FARMERS ARE AHEAD WITH WORK.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The progress of harvest and threshing in North Dakota this year has been so rapid that the work is easily a month earlier than the average time. The weather has been ideal in every respect. Labor has been more plentiful than for some years and the favorable conditions have resulted in a great boost in farm work. Many farmers have completed all forms of harvest and threshing and are well along with their fall plowing, a condition unprecedented at this date.

CHECK FORGERS BUSY.

Forgers Are Impersonating Men Working on Farms.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Check forgeries are numerous in this section now because the country is overrun with transient farm laborers who are usually paid in checks. The forgers impersonate these men and claimed to have been employed on a nearby farm or for some contractor in the city and work merchants after banking hours by making small purchases and presenting checks ranging from $20 to $50. The police authorities issued a warning to dealers.

AGITATE ELECTRIC LINE.

Fargoans Anxious for Better Service to Dilworth, Minn.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of the announcement that the Northern Pacific is likely to take off its "shop" train between Fargo and Dilworth, Minn., the new Northern Pacific town, three miles east of here, the business men of Fargo are more anxious than ever to have the electric line between this city and Dilworth constructed. If the "shop" train is abandoned and there is no electric line, the employes who reside in Fargo will be compelled to move there to be convenient to their work.

RAILROAD MEN HUNTING.

President Fitch and Mart Adson of South Shore in Party.

Lancaster, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. F. Fitch, president; Mart Adson, general passenger agent of the South Shore; J. R. Michaels, superintendent; W. A. Wyman, chief clerk of the Winnipeg division of the Soo line, and G. H. Ferguson, agent at Lancaster, composed a chicken hunting party in the northeastern corner of Kittson county. Hunting was good and the party came back with many chickens. The officials left on Wednesday evenings train in their private car, for Thief River Falls, intending to go over the wheat line from Thief River Falls to Kenmare.

MINNESOTA BAPTISTS MEET.

It Will be Held in Minneapolis October 12.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota Baptist state convention will be held at the Trinity Baptist church, Minneapolis, Oct. 12. Delegates from the different Baptist communities in the state of Minnesota will attend, and prominent members of that church from other parts of the country will also be present. The speakers will include Dr. L. C. Barnes, secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission society; Dr. A. K. Dubois, First Baptist church, Chicago; Prof. Shaller Mathews of the Chicago university, and Rev. J. M. Moore, Boston, secretary of the Young People's Forward movement. The convention will last four days.

SLEEPING CAR VICTIM WAS BOUND FOR BRAINERD

Brainerd, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. D. K. Gibbs of Hespeler, N. D., was the name of the woman who lost her life by the burning of the sleeping car at Staples Tuesday morning. She was on her way to this city to visit Mrs. W. H. Bolton, a life long friend. The visit was to be a surprise to Mrs. Bolton and family. Mrs. Gibbs was rather an elderly lady, and had formerly been a school teacher. Mrs. Bolton went to Staples to care for the remains.

IMMIGRANT INSPECTOR BUSY.

Many Foreigners Are Arriving at International Falls.

International Falls, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Immigrant Inspector Swenson has been a very busy man for many weeks. Since the advent of the two railways to the South, a great number of immigrants are entering the republic at this point. Twenty-two Austrians were examined and passed on Monday. This bunch had been employed on the Grand Trunk Pacific and were going to Duluth.

MANY GIVEN DEGREES.

Board of Control of College of Mines Holds Meeting.

Houghton, Mich. Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of control of the College of Mines held its annual meeting at the college Wednesday, for the purpose of awarding degrees to the students who graduate this year. Thirty-four bachelor of science degrees and forty-two mining engineering degrees were given.

The board inspected the library building, which is in course of construction.

SWEDISH OATS YIELD WELL.

Grand Forks Man Meets With Success in Experiments.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—B. S. Brynjolfson, of Grand Forks, experimented this year on his farm near Rugby, with a new kind of oats, called Swedish oats, the seed having been imported by an Eastern grower, several years ago. Mr. Brynjolfson had a field of twenty-one acres of this oats this year, from which he threshed last week an average yield of a little over seventy bushels per acre, the oats weighing forty-one pounds to the bushel. He will sell a part of the oats to those wishing the seed, but will keep 500 or 600 bushels for his own seeding next season.

JACOB WEIS BURIED.

Funeral of Well-Known Copper Country Man Held.

Lake Linden, Mich., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral was held from Holy Rosary church at 9 o'clock this morning of Jacob Weis, the pioneer of the Lake Superior region, who died at his home here Wednesday morning. As Mr. Weis had for years been identified with church work, being treasurer of the Holy Rosary and French churches, his funeral was largely attended. A native of Bavaria, Germany, where he was born in 1835, Mr. Weis came to America in 1858, locating first at Dayton, Ohio and then coming to Upper Michigan in 1860, being engineer at the Cliff mine for eleven years. He then moved to Copper Falls and there was the first mill runner for the Calumet & Hecla company until four years ago, when ill health compelled him to hand in his resignation to the company.

He is survived by his widow, five sons, Peter, John and Cassie, of Lake Linden, Jacob of Houghton, and William of Butte, and one daughter, Mrs. A. B. Holtenhoff, of Wolverine.

BRYAN AT CORN PALACE.

He Will Speak at Mitchell, S. D. Sept. 28.

Mitchell, S. D., Sept. 11.—Arrangements have been completed for the presence of William Jennings Bryan at the corn palace on Sept. 28. Mr. Bryan will be at Milwaukee on Saturday, the 26th, and he will leave there at midnight for Minneapolis, where he will spend Sunday. He will leave the Twin Cities on Sunday evening and reach Mitchell Monday morning. The corn palace entertainment will be opened at 12 o'clock, and at the end of the first concert Mr. Bryan will speak at the Omaha station grounds, where there is room for at least 15,000 persons. The city council has arranged to light the city at night with 5,000 electric lights, which will be strung for five blocks on both sides of Main street.

WASHBURN'S CLOSE CALL.

Shifting of Wind Saves the Wisconsin City.

Washburn, Wis., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—About $50,000 in property was destroyed by a fire early yesterday morning that is believed to have been of incendiary origin. The fire started in the Nelson hotel on lower Bayfield street, and before it was finally under control had swept through almost an entire block of business houses.

The fact that there was little wind blowing at the time perhaps saved the city from total destruction, for from the time the fire first started it spread rapidly until six buildings were totally destroyed and a number of others were damaged. The buildings destroyed were the Nelson hotel, barber shop, Bumble Bee saloon, Nelson saloon, Palace saloon and icehouse. Four or five other places were slightly damaged. Many firemen received burns about the face and hands during the battle, but none are serious. The fire appears to have been of an incendiary nature, for the building where it started was unoccupied.

YOUNG HUNTER KILLED.

Manistique, Mich., Sept. 11.—Patrick Poupor, aged 18, son of Dominic Poupor, an old resident of Cook, accidentally shot himself in the left arm while duck hunting. He was pulling a gun from his boat when the hammer caught and the load shattered the bones of his arm. A surgeon amputated and dressed his arm, but the young man died from loss of blood and shock.

Mankato City Engineer Ousted.

Mankato, Minn., Sept. 11.—After a trial lasting a day and into last night on charges of alleged incompetence, filed by Mayor Andrews in impeachment proceedings, the city council found the allegations against City Engineer Haynes true and adopted resolutions declaring his office vacant. Haynes' attorneys will petition the supreme court for a writ of certiorari setting aside last night's action on the ground that the charges were wholly unproved.

MINNEAPOLIS SHOWING A VERY LIBERAL SPIRIT.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 11.—Minneapolis citizens have contributed over $20,000 towards the proposed fund of $50,000 for the iron range fire sufferers, and Perry Harrison, treasurer of the relief committee, anticipates that the entire amount will be available immediately. A plan is on foot for a benefit performance at one of the Minneapolis theaters, and people in every walk of life are making plans for swelling the benefit fund.

Candidates in Keweenaw.

Eagle River, Mich., Sept. 11—(Special to The Herald)—The Keweenaw county Republican convention, held here, made the following nominations:

Judge of probate, William E. Smith, Eagle River; sheriff, Josiah Hebard, Mohawk; clerk, P. X. Kaiser, Eagle River, by acclamation; treasurer, Fred Bond, Phoenix, by acclamation; prosecuting attorney, A. E. Petermann, Calumet, by acclamation; coroners, Mike Day and W. J. Barkla; surveyor, J. Ralph Abramson.

Pickle Output Lighter.

Menominee, Mich., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Approximately 6,000 barrels of pickles will be put up at the plant of the Michigan Pickle company here, this season. Large as this production is, it is materially less than would have been the case had normal meteorological conditions prevailed during the summer. Dry weather has materially restricted the crop of cucumbers.

Princeton Livery Burns.

Princeton, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire which started at about 9:45 o'clock Thursday morning destroyed the frame part of the Kallher livery stable, but owing to the persistent efforts of the fire department the brick structure connected with the barn and facing on Main street was saved.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—The material for the new horticultural greenhouses which will be erected at the agricultural college has arrived and these structures will be erected at once.

Forman, N. D.—Jacob Hanson was arrested here and held under $1,000 bonds on a charge of intent to kill. The warrant was issued on the complaint of the state's attorney. A few weeks ago Hansen shot a young Swedish brick mason, named Blexrud, claiming that Blexrud had broken up the Hanson home.

Jamestown, N. D.—George Webster of Valley City has secured control of the Hilton and the house will be closed the remainder of the week pending repairs and a general overhauling.

Fargo, N. D.—Returning duck shooters say the sport is just splendid this season and for this time o fthe year and the birds are exceptionally large and plump. Six men who came in Thursday morning had bags aggregating 219 birds.

Bismarck, N. D.—The synod of North Dakota will convene in the Presbyterian church of this city on Oct. 6. This is the annual meeting and comprises all of the ministers of the denomination in the state and a considerable number of laymen.

Devils Lake, N. D.—The Modern Brotherhood of America, held its state convention in Devils Lake Tuesday fo rthe purpose of naming delegates to the national convention at Davenport, Iowa.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The funeral of Attorney Guy L. Whittemore of Rugby, who died Monday evening, was held in that city Wednesday afternoon. The deceased was very well known throughout the state and the announcement of his death caused much regret.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Hancock—A dispatch has been received from Rhyolite, Nev., announcing the death at that place yesterday of Albert Vaisanc, a former resident of the Franklin location. He was a single man and aged 34 years. The remains will be brought to Franklin for interment.

Calumet—Word has been received in Calumet of the death in Butte, Mont., yesterday of Harry E. Perunka, 30, a Finnish miner, who was accidentally killed in one of the Butte mines. Particulars of the accident are lacking. It is expected that interment will take place in Butte.

Hancock—The flooring in the lobby of the Hancock postoffice, which had become badly worn near the entrance, is being repaired.

Houghton—Hugo Cormagnani of Painesdale, charged with the murder on the night of Aug. 1, last, of William Roskelly of the Isle Royale mine location at Painesdale, following an altercation between the two and a friend of Cormagnani, was bound over to the September term of circuit court by Justice Casper Brand.

Hancock—James Shea, a well known young man of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Shea of White street, died Wednesday morning after an illness of about seven months. The deceased was a native of Hancock and was 29 years of age.

Calumet—Albon MacMoran, an old Scotchman, who has been spending the past week at the Danielson home on School street, left Tuesday on his return journey to Scotland. On arrival home he will have journeyed 9,000 miles within a period of three weeks for the purpose of visiting an aged relative whom he had not seen previously for half a century.

Houghton—Thomas Hazel, the veteran Barnes trapper, has brought another wolf pelt to County Clerk Richardson for bounty. The wolf was shot in Houghton county.

Calumet—A barn full of hay at Bear Lake, the property of a farmer named Daniel Leivaka, has been burned to the ground with its contents. The loss to the farmer is considerable. Forest fires was the cause.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

St. Cloud—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Mrs. Bertha Fahrentholz on the charge of receiving stolen property. It is specifically charged that she purchased $2 worth of wheat from Ray and Ralph Dickinson and Leo Ambrositch when she knew that the grain had been stolen.

Cambridge—Peter Svenson, the great Norwegian orator and member of his country's storthing, will deliver a temperance lecture in Courthouse hall, Cambridge, Sunday afternoon, Sept. 13, at 3 o'clock.

Isanti—An addition, 12 by 48, will be built at once to the warehouse of J. H. Beggs & Co., to be used as a bean picking station. Machinery will be used for the rapid sorting of beans, which will now be purchased in the condition in which they come from the threshing machines.

Moorhead—The old ten-inch pipe marking the spot where thousands of dollars were spent in the early days in an effort to strike a good flow of water was finally covered from sight Wednesday.

New York Mills—The public school has opened with the following teachers: Principal, O. W. Bergan, of Perth, N. D., eighth and ninth grades; Harriet Male of Moorhead, Minn., sixth and seventh; Iva Butler of Hector, Minn., fourth and fifth; Clara Thompson of Moorhead, Minn., second and third grades; Katie Lobben of Fargo, N. D., first grade.

Perham—The new potatoe warehouse is nearly completed and will be ready to commence business next week and will handle all stock that is brought in.

Little Falls—The attendance of the publi cschools has passed the marks established last year, and the total is over fifty more than that of the 1907-08 year.

Brainerd—Stephen Holmes, father of J. W. Holmes, of Gilbert Lake, died at the home of his son Wednesday morning. The deceased was over 84 years of age. He passed away suddenly with a stroke of paralysis. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon.

International Falls—A new wheel is being put on the Moose, and the steamer and crew will leave in a few days for Kettls Falls to bring down a tow of logs belonging to the Cook-O'Brien company. The logs will be shipped over the Rainy Lake road to Virginia, a spur track having been built to the lake above Ranier.

Moorhead—Two boarders at a hotel here were robbed of their valuables on Tuesday by a roommate. They lost two checks, a watch and $20 in cash.

Winona—A notable society wedding took place here on Wednesday evening, when Miss Florence D. Stott of this city became the bride of Arthur G. Sullivan of New York. Other weddings celebrated here include the following: John F. Schneider and Miss Marie E. Theis, August Scharf and Miss Anna Hemberg, Leo Edwin Rockwell and Miss Alice Belle Williams.

Canon Falls—Phillip Lewis, a 16-year-old boy, was shot and seriously wounded by a hunter while in the field near his home on the Canon Falls road, below Inver Grove. Lewis was starting on a hunting trip with several companions, and was crawling under a wire fence, when someone fired a gunshot, which entered Lewis' shoulder.

St. Paul—Charles Chillin, extradited from New York to answer to the charge of stealing $220 in St. Paul during Shriners' week from Frank Suchards, a farmer, was in police court late Wednesday and obtained his release. Suchards said Chillin was not one of the three men who had robbed him.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

La Crosse—Farmers report that all grain in this vicinity has been cut and most of it threshed, and in about a week only the corn will be on the fields. The barley, which is the grain most grown around here, grades a great deal better this year than last on account of the long period of dry weather, and yields about thirty bushels to the acre. The average yield of oats is about twenty-five bushels.

Kaukauna—Mrs. Johanna Rondow of Green Bay disappeared from here last Tuesday and has not been seen nor heard of since. Grave fears are felt by her family for her safety.

Grand Rapids—Robert Farrish, one of the oldest residents of this city, died at his home on Third street after an illness of over a year. Mr. Farrish was one of the best known business men in this section. He was born in Richebucto, New Brunswick, June 29, 1834, and came here in 1856.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

A Disorder That, If Not Corrected, Speedily Wrecks the General Health.

Another Example of the Close Dependence of the Nerves Upon the Blood and an Indorsement of the Tonic Treatment.

Nervous exhaustion early shows itself in the decreased activity of the organs that normally cast out the waste products of the body. The kidneys, skin and bowels are deprived of some of their energy and a part of the poisonous waste materials, which they readily pass off during health, are turned back into the blood.

The result is plain. The blood filled with impurities is unable to give even its usual amount of nourishment to the nerves and a general breakdown follows. This is the explanation of the depressed and irritable feeling, pallor, loss of spirits, headaches, shortness of breath and poor digestion of the nervous sufferer.

The tonic treatment for nervous troubles, by building up the blood and supplying it with added oxygen, burns up and casts off the impurities and gives to the nerves the elements they need. And in no other way can these elements be conveyed to the nerves except through the blood.

Mrs. Emma Howe of 531 South Ionia street, Grand Rapids, Mich., says:

"Six years ago I was nearly a nervous wreck from overwork while teaching schol. My appetite was variable and the food I ate did me no good. There were such pains in my legs that I could not stand. My eyes ached and were sore and I had severe pains in the back of my head. I did not know what a night's rest was and grew pale and thin. I lost in weight, was weak and discouraged. The doctors said if I kept on teaching school I would have nervous prostration.

"Off and on for seven years I was under doctors' care, but grew weaker and weaker. A friend told me of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I am glad to say that they helped me in a short time. I continued the treatment and was entirely cured."

Every sufferer from nervous troubles should send today for our free pamphlet, "Nervous Disorders, Their Nature, Symptoms and Treatment."

Dr Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

LAUDS WORK OF GILPIN

Convention of School Boards Praises County Superintendent.

The members of the school boards of St. Louis county, in annual session at the Commercial club, yesterday afternoon, heard addresses by John G. Williams, Superintendent R. E. Denfeld, of the Duluth public schools, and L. A. Marvin, deputy county auditor, and then passed resolutions touching on the subjects before them.

The board paid a strong worded tribute to S. W. Gilpin, county superintendent of schools, commended his work during the four years he has been in charge, and recommended him to the voters of the county as well equipped for the office which he holds.

By resolution also, the convention expressed itself as believing the work of the county superintendent had grown so heavy that more assistance is necessary.

The convention also declared for the proposed St. Louis county agricultural school, for the advancement of scientific farming, and urged the voters to deal intelligently with the question at the next general election. The convention, by resolution, instructed the county superintendent to prepare a bill for introduction at the next session of the legislature, providing for the revision of the methods of keeping school accounts, which are now antiquated.

The convention also declared for a law providing that the local mill tax be levied on the taxable property of the county, instead of upon the property situated in the various districts, and that the proceeds of the local mill tax be distributed as an emergency fund to such districts as are unable to meet the expenses of the district.

The convention adjourned with an expression of gratitude to the Commercial club for the hospitality extended to the visitors.

As to Cannonism.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In the primary fight, Mr. Bede is opposed by a number of Republicans because of his defense of Speaker Cannon and adherence to that statesman's standpat fortune and program. Please inform your readers, if you can, what Mr. Miller's position is on Cannonism and house rules. There may be others who would like to know, as I would, though

The Cheapest Fat Reducer Is the Best

The attention of all who are half choked and generally bedeviled by an excess of fat which, by the way, always seems more excessively excessive during the sultry season than any other, is called to the Marmola Prescription Tablets.

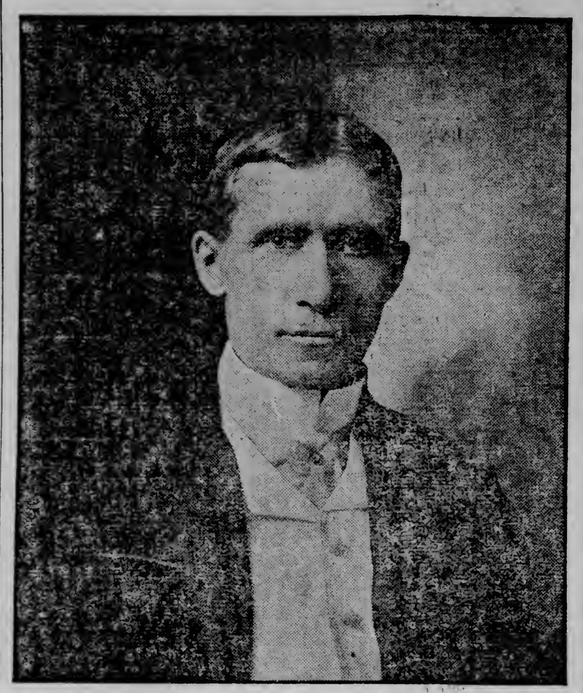

Seventy-five cents secures enough of these remarkable fat reducers from any druggist to last you a good while, in fact, it buys an extra large case. This is enough to make a very desirable change in almost anyone's weight. Taken one after each meal and at bedtime the loss of as much as a pound of fat a day has been attained innumerable times.

This is a royal result that seems all the more remarkable when one realizes these tablets are cheaper by a half than anything else your druggist has. But the net loss they bring about is not the only good feature of these tablets. They are pleasant to take; don't disturb the stomach; don't require one to exercise a particle or diet a mouthful, and last, but not least, do not cause wrinkles. They reduce one quickly but evenly—naturally. They produce, in short, the identical results of the famous Marmola Prescription, with which they are identical in composition. Try a case. If your druggist is sold out then write the makers, the Marmola Company of Detroit, to send you one by mail.

BEDE MAKES A PERSONAL ATTACK UPON OPPONENT

"Speaks Right Out in Meeting" at the Armory.

Attacks Miller's Public Record and Defends His Own.

CONGRESSMAN J. ADAM BEDE.

In a most sensational climax to a strenuous political campaign, Congressman J. Adam Bede last night, in a speech at the Armory, delivered an attack upon the private record of his opponent, Clarence B. Miller, and flayed the policy and motives of the News Tribune for the methods it has adopted to cause the defeat of the Pine City statesman.

There was an audience of about 800 people at the hall when the speaker began. They had evidently come expecting some excitement, and they were not in the least disappointed. Congressman Bede didn't mince words. He "spoke right out in meeting." He charged Clarence B. Miller with deserting his wife and own flesh and blood. He charged the News Tribune with being an organ that was dominated by a money policy. He stated that "the voice of the people should be heard"—that the record of each candidate should be scrutinized, and that in answer to the challenge of the opposition he had scrutinized the record of his opponent and found it bad.

Oppressive Silence.

There was an oppressive silence over the audience when Mr. Bede reached the climax of his denunciation. Slowly he turned toward the table that was on the platform. Taking a document in his hand, he raised it before the audience. "They have challenged me," he said, "to show what I have done. They have said, 'Let the voice of the people be heard.' You all know my record. I have been here twenty-two years. I have been clean and on the square. My opponent has not. A man who will desert his own flesh and blood will betray your interests. They have demanded that the voice of the people be heard. Here it is, being heard through the court of Olmstead county—there is nothing private about it; it is a public record, and it is the voice of the people being heard."

Mr. Bede was introduced by William I. Prince. He was hoarse from strenuous speaking during the past few days. He began his speech by stating that the country was engaged in performing the greatest function permitted by the Constitution—that of chosing a president and congressmen, legislative and county officers. An allusion to Roosevelt as the greatest of Americans brought a storm of applause from the audience. Then Mr. Bede referred to Taft as the man ably fitted to take up the work that had been carried forward by President Roosevelt.

He stated that Roosevelt was a moral reformer; a man who had made no deep study of economic questions or the problems of currency, but a leader who had quickened the American conscience, a man who had pointed out a moral right to the American people. Mr. Bede characterized Taft as the great lawgiver, and stated that his election was unquestioned.

"John and Jake."

Then Mr. Bede referred to "John and Jake," the candidates for governor. He stated that they were both good men, both honest and clean, and that the voters of the state need have no shame for either man.

Mr. Bede stated he was there to give an account of his stewardship—to answer some of the lies that had been printed about him. "Was raised upon a farm, among the cornfields," said the speaker, "and I don't know much about derivitives, but I know what plain l-i-e means, and I know that a lie has been used by the News Tribune. It has been used to misrepresent me and to mislead you. The lie has been used with malicious intent to mislead the voters of this district.

"If I inadvertently refer to the News Tribune, you must not think that I have any resentment against the boys and girls that work upon it. The News Tribune is like an insurance company; it has a paid-up policy, and its employes are obliged to live up to that money policy.

"I was much amused the other day in reading a report that had been sent from International Falls. It was published in the News Tribune, and stated that I would get but a few votes up there. The report stated that the people up there wanted the tariff taken off lumber coming from Canada and an export duty put on lumber going to Canada. They were reported as being dissatisfied because I had not secured this export duty. Now, Mary McFadden is a very good girl. But she ought to know that the laws of the United States forbid the imposition of an export duty. Yet they are reported as being dissatisfied because I did not secure something that the laws of this country forbid. That is the kind of misrepresentation you have been treated to."

Mr. Bede then stated that the morning paper knocked him when it said that he didn't get the $125,000 for the public building fund. Mr. Bede stated that the News Tribune had said that Congressman Stevens was the man who got the money appropriated. Mr. Bede stated that Mr. Stevens had done good work on the appropriation committee in securing the money, but that he was the man who had secured it, after hard and earnest efforts.

The Steel Plant Bridge.

Then Mr. Bede took up the matter of the bridge for the steel plant. "They said that Mr. Cotton and Mr. McGonagle went down to Washington and couldn't find me," said the speaker. "The morning paper said that Congressman Jenkins of Wisconsin had finally to introduce the bridge bill. That's another lie. I met Mr. Cotton and Mr. McGonagle and the other gentlemen at the New Willard hotel. We went to see the great white chief, Roosevelt, a friend of mine. We went to see the secretary of war, Taft, another friend of mine. We went before the interstate commerce committee, and we went to see the various government engineers. Finally it was decided, because we didn't want to incur the opposition of Wisconsin, that it would be the wiser plan to have Congressman Jenkins introduce the bill. That's another misrepresentation answered."

Then Mr. Bede took up the matter of securing $95,000 for the Duluth postoffice. He said that in this matter he was charged with neglect. "Congress convened in December," stated Mr. Bede, "and it was some time in April when this request came to me. Congress was about ready to adjourn. I had already asked for $60,000 for a public building for Virginia and there was little time left to work in. I put the request in, however. Conditions were imposed that would make it difficult to carry through, and I decided that the Virginia appropriation should be the one secured. It meant labor for men who were sadly in need of work, while the Duluth appropriation did not.

Sherman and Congress.

"Why are the papers abusing congress?"

Mr. Bede paused after this question. "If congress is wrong," he stated, "then Jim Sherman, who is on the national ticket, is wrong also. He comes from the state of Theodore Roosevelt, and if he was wrong he would not receive the support of both Roosevelt and Taft. If congress is wrong, so is Jim Sherman, and you ought to vote for Bryan.

"It's not because congress is wrong—it's because strong protectionist papers, 1,000 strong, came down to Washington and demanded that congress remove the duty on print paper.

"Is it fair that poor old 'Gill' Hartley, who owns the News Tribune, hould have the tariff taken of print paper before the settler and farmer of northern Minnesota should have tariff removed from things that are vitally important to him?

"These papers told congress that if the duty was not removed they would banish congress through the papers. Congress told the papers to go to and they have ever since then. That's the reason for abuse. You mustn't believe everything you hear. Some of these magazine writers are boys with no practical experience. Just because an article is in a magazine don't believe it.

"Congress couldn't have taken this 15 per cent off pulpwood without removing duty from lumber, coal, wool, hides and beef. Talk about congress sitting on the lid—it was the New England delegation. They wouldn't listen to any talk about removing the tariff from pulpwood unless they were given a tariff reduction.

"You don't want the tariff taken off steel, with a huge steel plant coming here. You don't want tariff taken off print paper with a new paper mill coming to International Falls.

Mr. Bede explained that if the duty was removed from lumber the lumber capital would go to Canada. He stated that he had advocated reciprocity for twenty-five years and that if his advice had been followed the immense business that was being done at Port Arthur and Fort William would be here at the port of Duluth.

The speaker explained that he had stood pat upon these principles. He said that he had once voted with the Democrats, but that when that party went with the free silver question he had stuck to the gold standard. He stated that he had stood pat on the religious question, though some years ago the country was somewhat shaken by religious fanaticism. He stated that he had raised a family of seven children and helped raise some of his relatives. Here again he declared he had stoow pat.

"I had hoped to raise ten or fifteen children," said he, "but you know sometimes you fall short of ambitions in this life.

"The News Tribune six years ago stated that I was a free trader and would ruin the interests of Northern Minnesota. Now they say I am a standpatter. They lied then and they lie now. They say that I have neglected my duty. Show me any place where I have neglected my duty. I am on the rivers and harbors committee and in five years I have worked half way to the chairmanship. I have been over this country studying its conditions and I am working in the interests of the American people. In five years I have brought the rivers and harbors committee here three times and by resolution have brought two engineering boards to see what improvement could be made in the Duluth harbor.

His "Neglect of Duty."

"I have accepted three invitations to speak outside of Washington. Then the News Tribune says I have neglected my duty. I spoke once at Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. Taft and myself were the only speakers on the program. I improved this opportunity to increase my acquaintance with the next president. This is an asset for the Eighth district. I returned to Washington, because I had a great deal of work to do. 'Bill' went on to New York, where he used part of my Bridgeport speech in an address he made. Do you think making an acquaintance with the next president, and occasionally helping him with a speech, is hurting the interests of the Eighth district?

"Then I spoke at Kalamazoo, Mich., at the invitation of Senator Julius Caesar Burrows. Senator Knox and myself were the only speakers on the program. Senator Burrows presided. It was the occasion of Lincoln's birthday. I improved my friendship with both Senator Knox and Senator Burrows and I don't think I neglected my duty to the Eighth district.

"The third time I spoke outside of Washington, was at the Lee anniversary. It was at Atlanta, Ga. It was given by the Virginia Society of Georgia. Speaking there helped me to gain the friendship of some of the Democratic members of the house, and again, I don't think that I neglected my duty to the Eighth district."

Mr. Bede here enumerated some of the appropriations he had secured for the district. He named the $95,000 public building appropriation; the $60,000 for a public building at Virginia; the $9,000 appropriation for a superintendent's home; the $250,000 appropriation for a revenue cutter for this harbor, which will come out of the funds for the next fiscal year; the ceding of the Indian lands to the Episcopal diocese; bill for a bridge over the St. Louis; a bill for a bridge over the Mississippi river; bridge over Rainy river, and a bill for extending the time for completing the work on the dam at International Falls.

At this point Mr. Bede explained the reason the bill given an extension of time for the completing of the dam was passed over the president's veto. He stated that President Roosevelt was of the opinion that the contractors at Rainy River were doing nothing but simply holding their water rights. When it was explained to him that they could not possibly complete the work in the allotted three years, and that the work had been carried on with all dispatch, the president withdrew his objection and the bill was passed. Mr. Bede stated that the paper had charged him with being against the president, because of this incident, but that he had had the consent of the president to proceed with the bill.

Mr. Bede stated that he had voted upon all questions at Washington as he believevd the combined voters of the Eighth district would vote on these questions had these voters one combined vote. He stated that he had not been against the president.

"I have generally been with the president," Mr. Bede stated. "B comes before C in any alphabet, you know; my name comes before the name of Cannon in the roll call of the house, but if the speaker votes the same way that I do, I can't kick on the support I am getting.

"Think in Continents."

"I have striven to do what you would have done could you have voted on the question. If you are going to think in districts you are going to have a narrow government. You will have lobbies and congressmen who are trying to graft all that is possible for their districts. But when you think in continents, you are buildign a nation, and you will have statesmen in congress."

At this point Mr. Bede designated Clarence B. Miller as the candidate of the News Tribune. "They want me defeated because they have a candidate of their own," he stated.

Mr. Bede asked why the News Tribune candidate, when he was in the state legislature didn't vote for the anti-pass bill, a Roosevelt measure. He asked why he didn't vote for reciprocal demurrage, since he was a Roosevelt man and this was one of the measures advocated by the president. He asked why Clarence B. Miller didn't vote for the bill requiring that all people killed in wrecks should be reported. He asked why he didn't vote for the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors and preventing certain adulterations. He asked why he didn't vote for the bill prohibiting railway discrimination, for the bill to protect the homesteads, and for the bill preventing officials accepting bribes.

Mr. Bede stated that he had secured more money for the head of navigation during his term of office than had been secured during the history of navigation at the Head of the Lakes previously. He said that he was instrumental in organizing the rivers and harbors congress, which had moulded sentiment of the country toward river and harbor improvement and enabled congress to appropriate $87,000,000 for waterways. Out of this appropriation Mr. Bede stated that he had helped secure a $6,500,000 appropriation for the Soo and another $6,500,000 for the Detroit harbor, both of which would have been impossible were it not for the iron interests at the Head of the Lakes.

Mr. Bede stated that he had secured for the Eighth district an average of $6,000 a day for every day he had been in Washington. He mentioned the Rock of Ages lighthouse, the harbor of refuge at Grand Marais, the lighthouse at Split Rock and a project for signal lights for the Duluth harbor, upon which he was working. He offered to give $100 to any man that would show him wherein he had neglected his record.

"The West must keep its members in congress, if it wishes to get things," said the speaker. "It is not necessary to keep me there, but you should keep some congressman there. The Eighth district has never had a congressman who has worked up to the chairman of a committee. Why? Because you don't keep them in congress long enough. Just as long as the West keeps changing its congressmen just so long will the East continue to get the plums. The only trouble with Joe Cannon is that has been in congress so long that he knows all the details. He knows how to get things.

"I know the men that do business at Washington. I can do business with them. If you send me back to congress I will work in the interests of the Eighth district.

"My old friend Eb Hawkins is spending money here to beat me. Perhaps it is good that Eb invests some of his money in Duluth. He has a house in Florida and one on the St. Lawrence and a hole in the ground up on the ranges. He is like the circus—he comes to town occasionally and takes away a lot of money. Other people are managing the campaign of my opponent, but the News Tribune is running it. I can't compete with this financial strength; I can just tell my simple story to the people. I have done all you have asked of me; if you wanted more you should have asked for it.

The Voice of the People.

"Let the voice of the people be heard," cried Congressman Bede. "I have noticed this on many pictures that are to be seen. The opposition paper says to scrutinize carefully the records of your congressmen. You have scrutinized my record carefully. I have lived among you for twenty-two years. I have raised seven children and one grandchild. They have looked at my record; it is only fair that they scrutinize the record of the other man."

At this point Congressman Bede was interrupted with a loud burst of applause.

Continuing: "I will give $100 to the News Tribune if it will publish the record of its candidate for the past six years. Six years ago he was digging up dirt, to be used against me in my campaign, for the same paper that is running his campaign at the present time.

"When I was campaigning down in Olmsted county a brother-in-law of the News Tribune candidate came up to me and told me that Clarence B. Miller had deserted his wife and child. He said that he refused to pay any alimony.

"'Let the voice of the people be heard.' The voice of the people is speaking through the court of Olmsted county. It is speaking through the decision of the court of the people; it is speaking about the facts in a man's life that belong to the people. I have answered the challenge of the opposition and have scrutinized the record of its candidate and I have found that it is not clean.

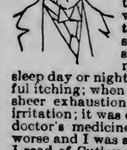

"Here is a young man who has had the advantage of an university education. He has had lofty ideals of the classics set before him. He has had every incentive to do right, yet he deserted his own flesh and blood. A man who will desert his own flesh and blood will betray your interests if you elect him to congress. It is not so hard for a man to desert his wife—but a man who will desert his own flesh and blood will not serve the interests of the people.

"I hate to say these things. I have been challenged to show my record. It is clean. I have scrutinized the record of the other candidate. I can only regret that any American should act as he has."

ECZEMA FROM HEAD TO FOOT

For Six Months his Suffering was Beyond Words—One Mass of Irritation and Itching was Dreadful—Slept Only from Sheer Exhaustion—Almost Out of His Mind—After 24 Hours' Use of Cuticura Slept Like an Infant and Then was

CURED IN ONE MONTH BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I am seventy-seven years old and one day, some years ago, I fell from a step-ladder, bruising my heel. In a few days I could not walk. I called in a doctor and inside of a week erysipelas set in. The doctor had not cured me of that when I was taken with eczema from head to foot. I was sick for six months and what I suffered tongue could not tell. I could not sleep day or night because of that dreadful itching; when I did sleep it was from sheer exhaustion. I was one mass of irritation; it was even in my scalp. The doctor's medicine seemed to make me worse and I was almost out of my mind. I read of Cuticura and sent my wife to the druggist, who was a member of my lodge of Odd Fellows, for a set of the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent. I used them persistently for twenty-four hours. That night I slept like an infant, the first solid night's sleep I had had for six months. I was not afraid to use plenty of Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap with hot water and in a week's time I was able to put on my clothes again. In a month I was cured. From that day to this I cannot praise the Cuticura Remedies too highly. I may add that I have a very heavy head of hair which I owe to Cuticura. W. Harrison Smith, R.F.D. 2, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., Feb. 3, '08."

A single set of the Cuticura Remedies is often sufficient for the treatment of the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning and scaly humors, eczemas, rashes and irritations, with loss of hair, from infancy to age, when all other remedies fail. Guaranteed absolutely pure and may be used from the hour of birth.

Cuticura Soap (25c.), Ointment (50c.), Resolvent (50c.), and Chocolate Coated Pills (25c.), are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem Corp., Sole Props., 137 Columbus Ave., Boston.

LAKE COUNTY GIVEN RAISE

Of 120 Per Cent by the State Board of Equalization.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state board of equalization yesterday ordered a 120 per cent increase for Lake county, after finding that the returns only showed thirteen horses for the entire district. Quite a few raises of 5 and 10 per cent were ordered on livestock, but this was the largest.

In fixing a basis for livestock the board ordered an average valuation of $11 for horses 1 year old, $18 for 2-year-olds and $33 for 3 years and over. For cattle the figure was fixed at $5 for yearlings, $8 for 2-year-olds, $12 for cows, $20 for oxen and $15 for all other cattle. Sheep were fixed at $1.50 a head and hogs at $3. These are the same values as last year.

In the organization of the board the following officers and committees were agreed upon:

E. T. Chaplain, chairman; John Heinen, reading clerk; T. J. Meighen, vice chairman; W. R. Hodges, recording clerk; E. H. Walden, general clerk.

RECEIVER FOR A. BOOTH & CO.

Due to Refusal of Banks to Give Further Loans.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—A Booth & Co., the $5,000,000 fish and oyster firm, went into the hands of a receiver yesterday afternoon. This action was taken after a long drawn out conference between the Booth officials, bank officers and attorneys held during the day. The banks are said to have about $1,750,000 of the firm's obligations and other creditors are said to have swelled this amount to close to $3,000,000.

The refusal of the banks to loan further amounts to the corporation and the lack of working capital is said to be responsible for the failure of the concern.

W. J. Chalmers, president of Chalmers & Williams, mining machinery, was appointed receiver by United States Judge Bethea.

The petition asking for a receiver was presented by Attorney Henry S. Robbins, who, with William F. Cochran races for the legal business of the firm.

The attachment which caused the hurried action of the firm's officers and creditors was issued in the United States district court upon an affidavit submitted by Attorney William P. Sidney, Chicago agent for the Girard Trust company of Philadelphia, which claims $35,000 is due from the fish company. There is a statement contained in the affidavit setting out that the money was obtained by A. Booth & Co. fraudulently and upon a fraudulent statement.

In a statement made by W. V. Booth, president of the company, the receivership is declared to have been rendered necessary because, instead of mortgaging the property the company has relied for funds upon the sale of its short time commercial paper, some of which it has been unable to renew. "The management," he said, "is confident that the embarrassment will be but temporary."

FIRES ARE NEAR CITY

Duluth is Surrounded by Circle of Burning Brush.

The Woods Are Burning From New Duluth to Lakeside.

The fire department was kept busy yesterday and today making runs to brush fires in the city limits. Several of these fires are burning, but up to the present time none of them have done serious damage.

Duluth is hedged in by forest fires, raging within sight of the tall buildings in the business district. One of the worst of these is on the hillside back of New Duluth.

Last night the horizon north of the city reflected a dull red glow from the flames, and during the day pillars of smoke could be seen rising on every hand.

The fire department has been able to keep the situation well in hand in the city limits, and while frequent runs are made, the blazes which cause them are soon extinguished. Some people thought the department should try to put out the flames in the brush between West Duluth and Smithville, but investigation showed no danger from that source, and it was thought just as well to let the ground be burned over as long as a vigilant watch is kept so that proper steps may be taken if the blaze assumes serious proportions.

Brush fires are burning at Lakeside, in the West end, in West Duluth and in the normal school district, although in the latter the flames have been fought back from the danger zone. The fires are particularly troublesome north of Lakeside and Lester park, and the smoke there last night overhung the district like a heavy fog.

Visitors to the branch house of the Duluth Boat club on the St. Louis river are made aware of the extent of the fires. From the branch house last night flames could be seen all along the hillside and the horizon was aglow in all directions. It is said this condition will continue until there is a heavy rain, or until the country has been thoroughly burned over.

The department anticipates no serious damage in the city limits, but is keeping a watchful eye open, standing ready to fight the brush fires at a moment's notice. At New Duluth there is an engine and paid engineer. The rest of the department there is made up of volunteers. It is expected they will be able to cope with the situation at New Duluth, but should further assistance be needed, it will be rushed forward from the city proper.

as the agents of the road have been instructed to immediately notify the office in case fire threatens. no news may be considered good news.

On the whole the situation is the best that it has been since the fires first started last Saturday afternoon, and apparently the danger is now pas.t

The fires are still raging in the woods, but back fires around the towns have done their work, and the citizens are prepared for any emergency.

The Adriatic Saved.

Aurora, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fortunate shifting of the wind late yesterday afternoon saved the Adriatic location, five miles north of here, that was reported afire about 3 o'clock. Two buildings had caught when the wind providentially changed, blowing the fire away from the other buildings in the location and the force of fire fighters was able to soon extinguish the flames that had caught. In the meantime many of the women and children had been moved to Mesaba, where they are being cared for. The women and children from the Spring mine location, which was also endangered, have been removed to Mesaba.

The situation today is more hopeful, there being no immediate danger unless the wind begins blowing.

Aurora is well prepared to fight off the flames, and there appears to be little danger here. The air is, of course, surcharged with smoke, but extensive preparations have been made to battle with the flames in case a strong wind drives them towards town.

The boilers at the St. James mine have been fired up, a string of pipe has been laid on the east, and as there are several powerful pumps at the St. James and plenty of men ready to man the hose, strong streams of water can be thrown upon the fire if it approaches too close to Aurora.

Torturing eczema spreads its burning area every day. Doan's Ointment quickly stops its spreading, instantly relieves the itching, cures it permanently. At any drug store.

THREE LOSE THEIR LIVES

Two Sons Perish Before Father Who Jumps Into Well.

Triple Tragedy Resulting From the Fires in Upper Peninsula.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The forest fires that have been raging in the vicinity of the Otter river country claimed their first victims yesterday.

Three are dead as a result of the fire:

JACOB HERNESNIEMI, aged 50, employed by the Franklin Mining company at Hancock.

JOHN HERNESNIEMI, aged 14.

JACOB HERNESNIEMI, Jr., aged 12.

The two boys were burned to death and their agonized father, driven crazy by the double affliction and the nervous strain to which he had been subjected because of long fire-fighting in desperation leaped into a well rather than meet the horrible death of his two sons.

The story of the tragedies of the Hernesniemi family is one of the most sensational dealing with conflagrations of this character. Early yesterday morning the forest fires which had been raging around the Hernesniemi homestead for two or three days became so dangerous that Mrs. Hernesniemi and two small children went to a neighbor's home a few miles distant. The father and two sons then made a supreme effort to try and save their property from the hungry flames.

Driven by a gale, the flames swept down upon the barns and house, which the three defenders were vainly trying to save. With gunnysacks and blankets and finally with their bare hands they tried to keep their possessions from the flames that closed about them.

Hernesniemi and his two boys bravely made their last stand near the little log cabin which represented years of savings. They turned their faces towards the searing blast, which licked up several hay stacks, laid in ashes the out buildings, swept over the burnt yard and cremated several horses and cows and then rolled swiftly and inevitably toward the cabin and the three staunch defenders.

Two Boys Cremated.

The two boys ran toward the fire with blankets. The father beat at the roaring flames with a flimsy gunny-sack. Their last stand was unavailing and they turned to flee. Before the lads had run a dozen yards a whirling pillar of flame swept up behind them, reached them, set their clothing afire, then enveloped and consumed them.

Terror stricken the father watched the awful spectacle.

Hernesniemi was undoubtedly crazed by the fearful tragedy enacted before him. B. F. Hellsiup, a neighbor, who had tried to get through the flames to aid him, and who partially witnessed the triple deaths, said that Hernesneimi shrieked like a mad man and beat at the flames with his bare hands.

Closing in the fire left him but a small breathing spot in the center of which was an abandoned well. Running toward it Hernesneimi leaped into the deep hole as the flames rolled over it. Burning hay and firebrands fell into the well and the body of the unfortunate man was burned almost beyond recognition.

As soon as the fire had sufficiently burned itself out to admit of passage, Hellslup fought his way through the suffocating smoke to the scene of the tragedy. There was not a trace of the bodies of the two boys. Hellslup found the charred body of Hernesniemi in the well, but was unable to remove it owing to the heat of the stone walls, which glowed red as they were swept by the fire from the burning debris which had fallen into the well.

Witness of Struggle.

Hellslup said that he drove toward the Hernesniemi homestead in a buggy drawn by two horses. He witnessed the struggle against the flames as best he could from a hillock back of the house, which was barren and on which he took refuge from the heat. The smoke interfered with his vision, but the fleeting glances of the scene that came to his view were sufficient to enable him to discern the nature of the tragedy.

He was forced to abandon his horses and buggy and the horses ran into a muskeg where they were burned. He returned to the Otter river settlement and gave the first news of the horrifying scene that he had witnessed.

Mrs. Hernesniemi and her two small children are destitute and neighbors are caring for them. The woman is prostrated from the shock of the terrible event and her life is in serious danger.

TOLSTOI IN QUIET FETE

bidden—the greatest literary genius of the age waved aside all attempts at a demonstration in his honor here, and insisted on quiet and partial solitude. His convalescence is progressing favorably, but he is still weak. Letters, addresses and telegrams poured in from all parts of the world, and innumerable gifts were received.

America Sends Greetings.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 11.—The little flag station of Zaselka, which is the telegraph station for Yasnaya Poliana, was utterly swamped yesterday by the inrush of congratulatory messages to Tolstoi, sent from all parts of the world. Hundreds were received from Berlin, London and other European centers. There also were many such communications from New York and other American cities, as well as several from New Zealand. Over 2,000 dispatches of this kind were received Wednesday.

DANGER YET VERY GREAT

our only salvation. Without your help we should have perished."

After More Supplies.

Paymaster E. Engels of the Gopher arrived in the city this morning, on the steamer America, in company with scores of refugees from the north shore. He is after supplies to send back to the ship, which will remain in the vicinity of Grand Marais another week. Mr. Engels says the town is still in imminent danger of being wiped off the map by the forest fires, which practically surround it. A slight shift in the wind and every building in Grand Marais will turn to ashes as quickly as did those in the unfortunate village of Chisholm.

Many May Have Perished.

Fear is expressed for settlers living a few miles back from the shore. There is said to be good ground for belief that many of them have perished in the flames. Refugees claim that many were cut off, with absolutely no avenue of escape left open to them.

"The situation looked very bad when I left Grand Marais last night," said Mr. Engels this morning. "If the wind changes and blows from the land, nothing in the world can save the village. Even if the wind keeps up in the same direction as at present, there is a strong chance that the flames will work down the hillside against it and destroy the town. Flames were shooting heavenward as high or higher than the Torrey building, just to the north of Grand Marais, when the America steamed out of the harbor. The spectacle was an appalling one.

Roar Of the Flames.

"Much of the country up there has never been burned over, making the danger doubly serious. The fires rush forward with a roar that can be heard for miles. Smoke obscures the heavens, and the heat at times is something terrible. The terror and grief of the women and children is pitiful to behold. Like the heroes they are, the men of the little settlements remain behind to the last moment, fighting back the flames in what is too pathetically often, a vain attempt to save their little homes. They refuse to give up until all hope is gone. Their bravery, fortitude and endurance are splendid to behold.

"The boys from the Gopher are also doing splendid work. Some of them have worked thirty-six hours at a stretch, side by side, with these men of the woods, who are so bravely trying to defnd their homes from the encroachments of the fiery fiend. There are stories of heroism and hairbreath escapes without number. A book could be written about them, and every page would contain a dozen thrills.

Gopher Saved Many Lives.

"Without the Gopher I do not see what the north shore settlers would have done. Many of them undoubtedly would have been burned. Their joy at the sight of the boat was enough to bring tears to a man's eyes. They flocked around the officers, shook their hands, wept over them and knelt in prayer and thanksgiving. Some of them seemed frantic with fear. At times we had as high as 125 refugees on board, picked from the very teeth of the flames. There is much sickness among the people, particularly among the babies, and Dr. Patton is working day and night to alleviate their sufferings.

Cruising Along Shore.

"The Gopher is constantly cruising up and down the shore, lending assistance wherever possible. We stopped at all small settlements, picking up people in each case. The bigest bunch was taken on board at Chicago bay. Here we picked up forty-three men, women and children. We also got a good many at Carlson's place, near Reservation River. This is as far as the Gopher went.

"The whole shore is a-fire from a short distance beyond Two Harbors to a point many miles past Grand Marais, with the exception of a space of a mile or two here and there. The fire which most seriously threatens Grand Marais it presents is on the hill, immediately back of the town, just as if it were on the hilltop back of Duluth.

An Awful Spectacle.

"The crackle and roar of the flames can be heard far out into the lake, and at night the flames leaping skyward present an awe-inspiring spectacle. Last night the wind was blowing away from town, but even at that the flames, with such a quantity of tinder-dry material to feed upon, were gradually creeping towards the fighters on the edge of town. When we left the Indian village immediately north of the tiny village was in the clutch of the flames, although there was hope of saving some of the Indian homes. If the wind should shift to the land and blow towards the lake, I believe Grand Marais would be wiped out of existence in half an hour's time. Nothing could stop the wall of flame. If the wind dies down, and does not switch to the land, there is a chance that the town will be saved, but unless a heavy rain comes immediately, the whole country along the shore will be laid a barren waste.

"There is another roaring furnace of flame about five miles west of Grand Marais, which is also working towards the town, although held back somewhat by the wind. A wind from the west would drive this with racehorse speed directly at the village, and in a very short space of time the second fire would be of vastly more danger than the one burning directly behind the town. In addition to these two conflagrations, there are big forest fires at intermitten stages east of town, and they are also scattered about in all directions to the north. Frequently two or three small fires melt into one big conflagration, and the result, to any one near by, is terrible to see.

The Fate of The Settlers.

"It is hard to guess the fate of the poor settlers entrapped by the flames a few miles back from the shore. All through that country there are families, some of them miles from their nearest neighbor. The fires have blocked all the roads leading to Grand Marais from the north, and the flames are so general through all the district north of the village, extending for miles on either side, that it now seems an utter impossibility for people to break through the blazing wall. Whether their escape to the north is also cut off in a similar manner can only be conjectured. If they can get through to Gun Flint lake, they can get through t oPort Arthur on the branch of the Canadian Northern road leading to the lake, provided the fires have not destroyed it, too.

Face Starvation.

"Of course, there are nnumerous lakes and streams through the burning district, and it may be possible that practically all the settlers, entrapped by the flames, have been able to seek shelter in the friendly water until the fierce heat has passed. Even this being true, starvation faces them unless they can reach the settlements, for the country would be laid barren by the flames.

"One woman with a pack on her back and a sick baby in her arms fled three miles from her homestead to the lake, and was picked up by the boat. Three men had actually been driven to take refuge in the waters of the lake when picked up by a boat from the Gopher. The shore is alive with wild animals of all kinds, driven out of the woods by the flames. Deer, bears, rabbits, moose, wolves and all kinds of wild creatures of the forest are seen in great numbers. They have apparently lost all fear of man in their greater fear of the fire.

Many Lost Destitute.

"Scores of families are left destitute by the conflagration, and if Grand Marais goes, the number will mount into hundreds. There is no actual want for the lack of food or clothing at present, but supplies are badly needed, and that is why I have come to Duluth. With all the extra people to feed, the supplies of the Gopher are being quickly exhausted, and we are sending up a large amount today on the Booth boat. Most of the people picked up had most of their clothing done up in bundles, with other belongings of value, and we took these on board with the people.

"The America was loaded to capacity with refugees last night. The Gopher is the only means of salvation the residents of Grand Marais will have should the winds shift and the flames sweep down upon the town. It will remain upon the ground until all danger is past. The people cannot find words to express their appreciation of the Gopher's being there. The men on board are pitching in with a will, and working like slaves to fight back the flames and to help the brave settlers. The pluck of men and women alike in the big fight is almost beyond belief."

VERY GROUND IS REPORTED AFIRE

Settlers in Knife River Valley Report Very Serious Conditions.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The big forest fire, which raged in the Knife River valley west of the city yesterday, nearly burned all the buildings on the farm of L. V. Beckman, who resides about three miles from town. Only the strenuous work of Mr. Beckman and his two daughters saved the property from destruction.

The settlers report that from four to six inches of the ground itself, or the mold on the top, is burning, making it almost impossible to extinguish the fire without a flood of water. It is said such material will hold the smoldering fires for weeks, and any heavy wind is sure to start up extensive and dangerous fires.

Becoming More Serious.

Conductors of incoming trains report the smoke is becoming more dense and conditions are seemingly worse along the line each day.

Yesterday and today the smoke and cinders in the city have been the worst at any time so far, the smoke affecting the eyes and being so dense nothing is visible more than a half mile distant.

The fire department is on the alert and all citizens are watching their property carefully, and any one caught setting fires any where will be severely dealt with.

The smoke appears to be coming mostly from the west and northwest, and is so bad on the lake that the fog horn is kept blowing steadily.

Drink Kills South Dakotan.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 11.—Robert Redtezke, a retail liquor dealer, who had been boarding in the city at the Hotel Jewell, 15 East Fifth street, died of acute alcoholism at St. Joseph's hospital. Redtezke had been ill only four days. He was 29 years old and had been divorced. The body has been shipped for interment to Webster, S. D., his former home.

Next Meeting At Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The biennial convention of the district meeting of the Modern Brotherhood of America for this district, for 1910, will be held here, this city having been selected at the meeting of a large number of delegates, held at Brookston, yesterday. The meeting at Brookston was one of the most successful in the history of the Modern Brotherhood order. There was a large attendance and great Brotherhood enthusiasm.

Suit Styles Are Settled!

The Modified Directoire AND The Semi-Fitted Mannish "ARE IT"

THESE two general ideas run through the entire showing of this season's elegant suits, and some one of the many variations will certainly take your fancy. They are made in any number of different materials, and trimmings used are elegant.

It's not too early to consider the suit proposition, either. Far better to buy early and be well and stylishly dressed all season, than to wait until styles are picked over and get the use of your garments only a part of the time. Remember, too, that it is our special business to sell you your suit now at a fair price. No such thing as "paying two prices" here.

You are invited to inspect our line of suits any time at your convenience.

REPLY BY THE "CZAR"

Speaker Cannon Answers Attack on Him by President Gompers.

Also Pays His Respects to Bryan and Democratic Platform.

Danville, Ill., Sept. 11.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon of the national house of representatives, opening his campaign for re-election to congress from the Eighteenth district of Illinois, last night delivered a speech dealing with the leading issues of the national campaign, devoting considerable attention to William J. Bryan and to Samuel Gompers. The speech in part took the form of a reply to Mr. Gompers' attack on Speaker Cannon, made in a speech in Danville on Labor day.

In leading up to a reply to Mr. Gompers, Mr. Cannon said that there were two paramount issues in this campaign. One was the tariff and the other was the integrity and independence of the judiciary. After devoting considerable attention to the position of the two leading parties on the tariff question, and discussing prosperity, the recent financial depression and the prime place held by the United States in commercial affairs, Mr. Cannon concluded that the depression of last October did not affect the farmers, who constitute one-third of the population, and that the people in the aggregate were never in so good a condition to withstand a depression, and that the country was fast recovering from its effect. He believed that prosperous times, equalling those of the last few years, had already returned. Taking up the judiciary, Mr. Cannon said that the Democratic platform this year declared that the "courts of justice are the bulwarks of our liberties, and we yield to none in our purpose to maintain their dignity." He said that Mr. Bryan's platform then renewed the pledge in the platform of 1896 to compel the federal courts to grant jury trials in contempt cases. "This attitude of Mr. Bryan," said the speaker, "and his party may be illustrated by the story of Joab and Amasa, which we find in the Old Testament: 'And Joab said to Amasa, "Art thou in health, my brother," and Joab took Amasa by the beard with the right hand to kiss him. But Amasa took no heed to the sword that was in Joab's hand; so he smote him therewith in the fifth rib, and shed out his bowels to the ground.' So Mr. Bryan would follow the example of Joab with the supreme court.

Older Than Constitution.

"The federal judiciary is a co-ordinate department of the government, so declared by the Constitution. The writ of injunction, and the power to punish for contempt, are older than our Constitution; and the Constitution recognizes the independence of the judiciary, and especially declares: 'The judicial powers shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this Constitution.'

"The difference between the Democratic declaration of 1896 and that of 1908 is only in words; the meaning is the same. In 1896 Mr. Bryan said in his platform just what he meant. This year he seeks softer phraseology and employs the diplomacy of Joab, giving the kiss while he wields the sword. We might appropriately change the name of the Democratic candidate to William Joab Bryan."

Mr. Cannon then took up the history of the demand for anti-injunction legislation, and pointed out that the demand for a jury trial in contempt proceedings came first after the punishment of Eugene V. Debs, now candidate for president on the Socialist ticket, but in 1894 the leader of the railroad strike. He referred to the calling of federal troops to Chicago by President Cleveland, and recited the history of the attempt by various congressmen to pass a law in 1896 to take from the courts the power to grant injunctions in labor disputes and their power to punish contempt. He said that while the bill was passed by a Democratic senate on June 10, 1896, the day the Fifty-fourth congress adjourned, and although the Democrats indorsed such legislation in the platform of 1896, both actions were accepted by the people as an attack on the judiciary, and aided materially in the overwhelming defeat of Mr. Bryan. The Republican house stood against such legislation in 1896, and the people sustained its action. Mr. Cannon pointed out that in 1893 the Democrats might have passed such anti-injunction laws, that they controlled both houses and had a Democratic president; that Mr. Bryan was a member of that congress, but he was silent regarding injunctions by a federal court, although a court in Louisiana had at that time decided that labor organizations were amenable to the Sherman anti-trust law.

Gompers Mistaken.

"Mr. Gompers complains," said Speaker Cannon, "that the supreme court of the United States has placed a new interpretation on the Sherman anti-trust law, in the decision of the Danbury Hatters case. Mr. Gompers is mistaken. Like other special pleaders, he puts into that decision things that were not written, or decided or considered. The Hatters case was a complaint against an interstate boycott. The American Federation of Labor had ordered a boycott throughout the United States against the Danbury hat manufacturing concerns because of a failure to unionize their shops. The complaint was against the boycott as a restraint of interstate commerce and in defiance of the Sherman law. The case was decided on that ground, and the opinion of the supreme court sustained the decision of the lower court on that ground. Mr. Gompers says that this decision for the first time brings the labor unions under the restrictions of the Sherman law. He is mistaken. The United States court, district and circuit, have in numerous cases held that the law applied to labor organizations. In the opinion of the supreme court, Chief Justice Fuller, a Democrat, cited several of these decisions."

Mr. Cannon referred again to the case in which the United States circuit court of Louisiana, in March, 1893, issued an injunction against striking members of the Workingmen's Amalgamated Council of Louisiana, and held that the Sherman law applied to combinations of workers, as well as to combinations of capital.

"That decision," said Speaker Cannon, "was rendered fifteen years ago, before the Pullman strike in Chicago, and it has been the interpretation of the law ever since. Mr. Bryan was in congress for two years after that decision and, although the Democrats controlled the government, we fail to find anything in the records to show that he or his party tried to amend the Sherman law or make any protests against the action of the court. The decision of the Danbury Hatters case was that the boycott was in restraint of trade, and that the American Federation of Labor was not exempt from the law made for all. It is an unwarranted assumption that this decision in any way affects agreements between employes and employers, or that it even touches the right of employes to quit work or strike."

Speaker Cannon then told of the appearance of Mr. Gompers before the house committee on judiciary, while it was considering the Hepburn bill, to ask for an amendment that would authorize the boycott. He said Mr. Gompers was asked whether an amendment suggested by him was meant to relieve labor unions from the operation of the Sherman anti-trust law, as construed in the Danbury Hatters case. Upon Mr. Gompers replying, 'Yes,' the chairman had asked him, 'Do you, the representative of organized labor, favor the boycott, both as an interstate and a local proposition?'

The Right to Boycott.

Mr. Cannon said that Mr. Gompers replied, "I do, sir."

"It will be seen," said Mr. Cannon, "that Mr. Gompers' complaint was direct as to the decision of the court on the boycott, not as to what it might lead to in interference with agreements between employers and employes, or as to the right of employes to strike. His contention is for the right to boycott, to use the influence he has with a great organization, which he says has a membership of more than two million men, to boycott the product of any man or any firm for any cause whatever, and to use the publication under his control to injure any man's business for any cause or whim that pleased him. That would be illegal in any publication by any man, and it is difficult to see how it can be made above the law, or how Mr. Gompers can be exempted from the operation of the law that applies to all men.

"The federal courts have not laid any bar in legal decisions against agreements between employers and employes, or against peaceable strikes to procure an increase in wages. I do not believe that the supreme court ever will decide against such agreements and strikes. When it does, I shall go hot-foot to the said in changing the law, for I believe in organized efforts, in combination of interests, especially of men employed in labor as wage-earners to better their condition. I have never opposed such combination and organization.

"Mr. Gompers has served a useful purpose in acting as the head of the American Federation of Labor and representing that organization in conferences with employers of labor. The heads of the various railway organizations and their committees have served a more beneficial purpose in representing the workers, in agreeing with employers as to wage scales, hours and conditions of labor. The very condition of our industries today make these organizations necessary, and, without regard to political affiliation, I have always conferred with the organizers of labor movements as to what should be done, and what could be done in legislation to correct abuses and better the condition of the wage-earner. I have personally known the men who have headed the labor organizations for many years past. Arthur, Sargent, Clark and others, and on all real effective labor legislation I have never known politics to have any effect. It is only in extreme measures that the demagogue has come to the front to pose as a friend of labor, when he could do so without responsibility for action. I have no sympathy with such efforts and I do not believe that the men who compose the great army of union labor are to be fooled by any such efforts.

On Labor day, Mr. Gompers addressed the citizens of Danville. I am informed that he paid his respects to me. That was his privilege as an American citizen. The offense that brings me under his condemnation is that, as a representative in congress and speaker of the house, I have refused to take orders from him and to agree to a scheme of legislation which would make one law for one set of American citizens and another law for all other citizens.

Appeals to the People.

"I appeal from Mr. Gompers' attempted domination of myself and other members of congress to the citizenship of the republic. I especially appeal to that great body of fair-minded men, unionized for the purpose of bettering their condition, who would scorn to ask legislation for themselves different from that which applies to all other citizens.

"Mr. Gompers has heretofore waged his war against individuals, but now he seeks by virtue of his great power over the non-partisan organization of which he is the head, to place its membership in the attitude of voting for, and supporting Mr. Bryan and the whole Democratic ticket, as against Mr. Taft and the whole Republican ticket, and, in the event of Mr. Gompers' success, the republic is to be brought under the domination of Mr. Bryan's policy, which I believe to be destructive to the best interests of the American people."

Mr. Cannon then referred to his opponent for election to congress, Mr. Bell, and noticed that Mr. Bell approved Mr. Gompers' denunciation of the speaker in order to gain that labor leader's support. Mr. Cannon then turned his attention to the profession of Democratic leaders that they are the especial friends of labor. He pointed out that John Sharp Williams had said that a party's record consisted not alone of its platform declarations but of its actions. Mr. Cannon asked what the Democratic party had done for labor. He said that of the many statutes for the benefit of labor, the great majority of them had been passed when the Republicans were in control. He cited many labor laws passed by the Republicans, including the eight-hour law, the anti-immigration law against Chinese, the prohibition of convict labor, the safety appliance laws, the employers' liability law and many others.

Controlled by the South.

"If the working man wants a further illustration," said Mr. Cannon, "as to where labor laws have been enacted, let him go over labor legislation of the various states. He will find that they are most efficient in the states of the North and the West where Republicans have been in control, and least effective in the South, where the Democrats have had control for many years. It is from the South that comes the complaint of convict labor competing with free labor, of violation of peonage laws, of lack of laws for the protection of workers in mines and factories and of long hours of labor without regulation and also of child labor. If the Democratic party should come into control of the federal government, it would be the members from the South who would control the Democratic caucus in the house of representatives and the organization of committees in the senate, just as they have controlled in every Democratic administration since the Civil war. There has not been in the last fifty years a Democratic speaker who did not come from the South, and there will not be a Democratic speaker in the near future whose election will not be dictated by the South. This is not said for the purpose of drawing sectional lines, but simply to show that a Democratic congress will legislate in harmony with the views of the majority in the Democratic caucus, and, that majority coming from the South, the legislation on labor questions will be in harmony with their views on the labor question.

"Organized labor has its strength in the North and West, and it has secured such legislation as has already been enacted from the Republican party, both in national and in state legislation. If organized labor accepts the professed friendship of the Democratic party as genuine, it will need to appeal to Democrats in congress who have given much heed to the appeals of labor at home in the South, where organized labor has never been influential enough to procure satisfactory labor laws from Democratic legislatures."

Mr. Cannon then took up the claim of Mr. Bryan to the heirship of the present Republican administration. He was amazed that Mr. Bryan could find any similarity between himself and President Roosevelt. He went on to point out the various great and good things that President Roosevelt had started, engineered or finished during his administration and pointed out that Mr. Bryan had been diametrically opposed to President Roosevelt on every important issue that had arisen in this country to divide parties and voters. He said that Mr. Roosevelt had ever been distinguished by his nervous energy in doing things, while Mr. Bryan had belonged to that class distinguished for seeing things. Mr. Bryan had fought the dragons of his own hallucination as valiantly as any knight of old and had been as devoted a crusader as Don Quixote; but he had never shown any inherited qualities that would justify his claim to be the heir of the direct and indomitable Theodore Roosevelt or to the practical business administration of the Republican party.

McINTYRE EXPELLED.

New York, Sept. 11.—The expulsion of John G. McIntyre from membership in the New York stock exchange, was announced on the exchange yesterday, and his seat on the exchange was ordered to be sold. President Thomas, of the exchange, in announcing the decision, said that it had been discovered that the failure, in April last, of the firm of T. A. McIntyre & Co., of which John G. McIntyre was a member, was due to reckless and unbusiness-like dealings. Its liabilities were $1,550,000.

COATS OF MANY HUES

All Shades Shown in the Fall Styles for Men.

Simplicity in Cut and Variety in Color the Keynote.

Simplicity in cut and variety in color strikes fashion's keynote in the dress of man for the incoming winter season, say Duluth tailors.

Never before in the history of modern tailoring has there been a time when men gave such freedom to their taste in the matter of the color. It may be as varied as Jacob's coat of many colors and still not create any great surprise or comment.

The colors range all the way from the many different browns, which will undoubtedly predominate, to a forest shade of green. There will be few solid colors. The stripes, as in the preceding summer season, will still reign, and they will be as variable in shade as the rainbow's spectrum. Threads of orange, purple, cerise, bronze, hunter's green, even red, will be interwoven in the fabrics. Grays and the soberer colors will be at a premium, and hence will be much sought after by the more exclusive dressers.

In form and cut there will be nothing revolutionary. No innovation or oddity will mark this season. Clothes will be made to suit the man. This will be the aim of the followers of the sartorial art. Aside from this, everything fashionable during the last three or even four seasons, will continue this fall and winter. But there must be simplicity, except, maybe, among the younger set. There will be less wadding in the shoulders, the real line of the shoulder will be followed more closely. But this is not essential, for if a man's shoulder's require padding, there shall be padding. If not, there will be none. Such is the elasticity of the incoming season's fashions.

In the overcoat, the Chesterfield, the standby for years, will answer the demands of style with straight lines, throughout, except, perhaps, for a slight flare to the bottom.

But it is more to color than cut that fashion will run this year. There will be plenty of it, with the browns, of a mocha, nut, havana, fawn and mauve nature, as favorites, and the greens, bottle and hunters, a close second.

UNITED TYPOTHETAE

To Carry Suit With Pressmen to the Appellate Court.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 11.—At the business session yesterday of the United Typothetae of America, E. Lawrence Fells, of Philadelphia, was elected president. A committee of three was appointed to act with the National Paper Trade association, and the National Editorial association, in an effort to induce the government to go out of the business of printing stamped envelopes. It was decided to continue the case of the alleged violation of the national agreement between the United Typothetae and the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, through the appellate court of the United States.

HILL BOOMS CROPS IN EASTERN TALK

Says "Nothing New" Referring to Harriman's Peace Statement.

New York, Sept. 11.—James J. Hill has returned from St. Paul, where he had been for several weeks. Asked about a remark by E. H. Harriman, in Portland, Or., that complete harmony had been re-established between the Harriman and Hill interests in the Pacific Northwestern territory, Mr. Hill replied:

"That's nothing new, is it?"

He said he knew nothing about Harriman's reported prediction of extensive railroad building in that region. In answer to a question concerning the crops, he said:

"We are furnishing the crops. We have harvested a good, fair crop, and are getting good prices for it."

BANK GUARANTY LAW OF OKLAHOMA IS UPHELD.

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 10.—In a unanimous opinion, the supreme court yesterday upheld the validity of the depositors' guaranty law, denying an injunction asked by the Noble State bank to restrain the state from levying a 1 per cent assessment upon the deposits of the bank.

OCEAN LANE MAPPED OUT.

Steamship Companies Agree on a Marine Safety Track.

London, Sept. 11.—An ocean "lane" around the world, which will serve as a marine safety track, has been mapped out by three of the leading steamship companies. The chief steamships leaving London for Teneriffe, Capetown and New Zealand, returning home by way of Cape Horn, will in the future a carefully defined waterway. This safety track will remove the last great risk of ocean travel. In the event of any steamship breaking down or meeting with any mishap the vessel following her along the ocean "lane" will be able to render prompt assistance.

Until now the different lines have followed routes that were at certain points widely divergent, and a vessel might be quite out of the track of all other steamships. The three companies that have agreed to use the safety track are: The New Zealand Shipping company, White Star ("Round the World' route), Messrs. Shaw, Savill & Co.

Among the chief mail and passenger liners using the ocean "lane" will be: Paparoa, Turakina, Ionic, Rimutaka, Papanui, Arawa, Ruapehu, Athenic, Mamari, Tongariro, Corinthic, Tainui.

In addition to these three large fleets of swift cargo steamers will be constantly following the track. The ocean "lane" will lessen the danger of collision, for all vessels will be encircling the globe in the same direction, and will not, as hitherto, cut across each other's tracks. All necessary details of the innovation were settled at a conference of the companies concerned, which between them carry the entire passenger and cargo traffic, as well as the mails over the route.

Steamer Launched.

Belfast, Sept. 11.—The steamer Laurentic, the new White Star Dominion liner for the British-Canadian service, was successfully launched here yesterday. This vessel is the first liner to be fitted with a combination of high pressure piston and low pressure turban machinery.

NEWSPAPERS AND THE PEOPLE.

Robert Baker of Brooklyn, a former congressman, has published an article on Bryan's chance for election—which he finds to be good—in which he says some things about newspapers that are often said by the more radical and erratic reformers, and that no doubt find many ready to accept them.

Says Mr. Baker: "A multiplicity of causes, a succession of events, have shown the people how the press is prostituted to the service of privilege. The most flagrant examples of this debauchery of intellect are being compelled (to retain their readers and so continue to serve their financial masters) to publish facts drawn from unwilling witnesses, which shows what William Marion Reedy, the brilliant editor and publisher of the St. Louis Mirror, in his recent address to the Missouri Press association, aptly terms 'The Myth of a Free Press.' In Mr. Reedy's judgment, 90 per cent of the editorial writers of today are in intellectual and sympathetic revolt against present day conditions; yet they prostitute their talents to perpetuate and extend industrial slavery." Mr. Baker then quotes Mr. Reedy as saying: "If it were not for the capitalists at the head of the great daily newspapers, if the men who write the news and the editorials of all the newspapers in the United States were to print the news exactly as they see it, and write their views exactly as they feel them for the space of three days, there would be such a revolution in America as would put that of France to shame."

Now it is quite clear from these quotations that both Mr. Baker and Mr. Reedy are very greatly excited individuals who feel very strongly and express themselves at least as strongly as they feel. But they are both wrong. Conditions are by no means as bad as they paint them. It is true that there are some newspapers in this country devoted wholly to the interests of special privilege; but there isn't one such newspaper that the public has not "spotted" long ago, and no such newspaper wields any important influence upon the minds of free-thinking citizens. The proper function of a newspaper is to serve the people; and that means all of the people and not a few of the people who live in a certain section of their city and are quoted in more than seven figures by Bradstreet and Dun. It is not only the duty of a newspaper to serve the people fairly and honestly, but it is "good business" as well, for the people are quick to reject a newspaper which they suspect of toryism, and loss of subscribers and influence means loss of advertising and earnings. Tory newspapers may be subsidized by plutocracy, but plutocracy cannot force the people to buy and read them, or to be guided by their advice when they do read them.

If all the city press were prostituted to the service of the interests, there would still be the country press, which is free and unhampered. But more and more are the great dailies of the country speaking their minds and telling exactly what happens, no matter where the blows may fall. The progress in newspaper spirit has been at least as great as that in public spirit; and as a matter of fact, the free newspapers have led this new public spirit and are leading it today.

More mischief has been done in this country by hidebound partisan newspapers than by all the subsidized organs of special privilege, great and small.

THE COAL TRUST.

The coal trust is the most greedy, most merciless and most oppressive of all the trusts, since it controls the output and price of a vital necessity of all of the people.

The coal trust's strength lies in the fact that the coal-carrying railroads of Pennsylvania own the greater portion of the producing mines. When the owners of a commodity control the railroads that carry it, they have outsiders at their mercy, and can dictate whatever terms they wish. These terms have stifled competition and squeezed inordinate profits out of the necessities of the people.

Since the chief factor in this monopoly is the joint ownership of mines and railroads, it seems desirable, in the interests of the common good, to separate that ownership and to restore competition. So congress passed a law forbidding coal-carrying railroads to own the product that constitutes the bulk of their traffic.

The railroads contested the law, of course, and carried it into the federal courts. Yesterday the United States circuit court decided that the measure is harsh and unreasonable and an invasion of the rights of the state, and therefore repugnant to the Constitution.

This seems to leave it up to the states, providing this decision is ratified by the United States supreme court. Now the constitution of Pennsylvania specifically prohibits this very thing. That prohibition is not enforced because Pennsylvania is one of those "sure" states where a party machine runs things to suit its members and their allies, the corporations. And if an attempt to enforce it were made, it would probably be defeated on the ground that the railroads affected are doing an interstate business, beyond the jurisdiction of the states. Meanwhile, the coal trust continues to squeeze the people.

TAMING A BUGBEAR.

The Memphis Commercial-Appeal pauses in the midst of an active campaign to inquire "are we drifting into Socialism?" This inquiry it answers at length and strongly in the negative.

Altogether aside from the question whether Socialism, as mapped out by Marx, is our next step in political and economic evolution, it is clear enough that we are drifting very rapidly into the adoption of many things which are condemned by their opponents as "Socialistic," and some of these things are so eminently desirable that those who make habitual use of the adjective "Socialistic" in their arguments against them had better look out or they will make Socialism itself attractive to the masses of the voters.

If a thinking citizen, upon taking up for consideration a project like the regulation of railroads, the securing to workmen of something more than a miserable living, the prevention of panics by giving bank depositors security for their money, the promotion of real democracy by the adoption of direct nominations and direct legislation, is told that these projects are Socialistic, he will pause in terror, because he has been taught that Socialism is something damnable and demoralizing, something akin to anarchism. If he then, recovering his courage, investigates the proposal and finds that it is good, what is he to think of Socialism? Isn't he likely to be attracted to the investigation of that philosophy? And since a great many who do investigate it become its admirers if not its adherents, isn't this a result far outside the expectations of those who use the adjective Socialism in a spirit of condemnation?

As a matter of fact, the adjective has been greatly overworked. The municipal ownership of public utilities was condemned as Socialistic, yet it has been adopted to a considerable extent in this country by communities in which few Socialists live, and to a far greater extent in the monarchical countries of Europe. Every move toward the regulation of larger public utilities in the interests of the people has been branded as Socialistic, yet wise men who are not Socialists continue to advocate such operations of government, and nobody can doubt that they will be enlarged rather than restricted.

As The Herald has often pointed out, such things as the government postoffice are quite as Socialistic as government ownership of railroads would be; yet they interfere with no vested interest, and the wider adoption of government ownership would interfere not only with private property in railroads, but with the business of those large financiers who profit by exploiting the railroads for their own benefit, as in the case of rebates and stock market manipulations of railroad securities.

The exertion of government functions in the interests of the people, therefore, is approved when it jostles no greedy snout in the common trough, and "Socialistic" when it does.

Those who thus condemn every move in the interests of the people had better have a care. They are making Socialism respectable; they are attracting public interest to it; they are inducing people who have found that some things branded as Socialistic are good to investigate it further: and as it is an attractive and richly promising panacea, if Socialism is a bad and dangerous thing they are inviting disaster by branding wholesome measures as "Socialistic."

WHERE DID HE GET IT?

Mr. Bryan has given Mr. Cannon of Danville, Ill., a splendid chance to explain how he saved his millions out of his salary, but we are not hopeful that the autocrat of the house will avail himself of the opportunity.

Mr. Cannon, speaker of the house and arbiter of the destinies of 80,000,000 people, said that Mr. Bryan had made himself a millionaire. He said it just as positively as though he had looked over Mr. Bryan's bank account, and others have said it, too, though no man ever dared to say that a dollar of it was acquired dishonestly.

Being in Mr. Cannon's district, Mr. Bryan showed that he had saved $3,000 when he went to congress, that he added $3,000 or $4,000 more in four years of congressional service, that he had made some money by lecturing and writing, and that today his worldly possessions amount, at a liberal estimate, to $150,000. This is, of course, placing no money value on the matchless oratory, the keen, discerning mind, the courage to speak his convictions, and the confidence of the people in his integrity that constitute Mr. Bryan's stock in trade. Having thus fairly met the challenge of Speaker Cannon, Mr. Bryan invited that gentleman to be equally frank in a statement of his own wealth and how he got it.

Mr. Cannon cannot refuse to meet this invitation without subjecting himself to the worst suspicions. For years he has been a tory congressman, elected by the people but acting invariably for special interests. Elevated to the speakership, he has wielded his power, thanks to a shamefully supine Republican majority, in ruthless opposition to progress and in shameless defiance to the people's needs and aspirations. During the years thus spent, he has become very wealthy. A frank statement of how he did it is called for by Mr. Bryan's clean-cut response to his own demand of similar import.

THE HORSELESS AGE.

Are we approaching the time when horses will no longer be used, and when their work will be done by motor vehicles or perhaps airships? Not very closely.

The government has been taking a census of the horses of the country, and it finds no signs of it yet. Neither do the prices of horses register any falling off in the demand. Yet the automobile, both for pleasure and for business, is largely taking the place of the horse in the cities. Motor vehicles carry goods as well as people, and while they have not yet been devised to pull plows or reapers, there is no reason why such uses should not be developed.

Yet the government finds that there are over 20,000,000 horses and nearly 4,000,000 mules in the United States, and this is a greater number of horses by several hundred thousand than was ever reported before; which would indicate that if a horseless age is coming, it has not yet arrived.

Electricity long ago drove the horse-drawn street car off the city thoroughfares. This was a good thing for the horses, for no service in which they were ever used was more cruel and more fatal to equine spirits than this. The advent of the trolley car released many horses for use in other less arduous service.

More slowly, the coming of the automobile began to take away many other uses for horses. The use of motor vehicles, while very large, is probably as yet merely on the threshold of development, and it is not at all difficult to picture a time when horses will be used only by those old-fashioned folks who have an affection for a noble animal which no thing of gasoline can supplant. Automobiles are used for pleasure and for business alike, and will no doubt ultimately be used for most kinds of transportation, both of goods and of humanity.

Yet in the face of the growth of the automobile's uses, the number of horses has increased very largely, and the price of horse flesh has not decreased any more than last fall's depression would have caused anyway. Automobiles have by no means taken the place of draft horses, and in lumbering operations, for instance, it will be a long time before they make an automobile that will get over a corduroy road and climb windfalls like a team of horses.

The increase in the number of horses, coincident with the increased use of motor vehicles, proves that the country has grown in its needs and activities, and it will be some time before the supply of horse flesh gets noticeably ahead of the demand, and a longer time still before the horseless age arrives.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Love's young dream interrupted.

Sometimes the liberties one dares take with a friend are measured by the strength of the friendship. Yesterday at one of the local hotels there was a newly married couple. In fact, there were two married couples, so that makes the identity of the newly married man even harder to guess.

A friend of one of the bridegrooms wished to play a very practical joke upon him. So he informed a third young man that he wished him to impersonate a plain clothes man. The third young man consented and going up to the newly married man and touching him upon the shoulder, informed him that he was under arrest. That simple word arrest has an ugly meaning at times. The newly married man turned white, clear to the roots of his top hair. He gave an imitation of a home laundered sheet. He stuttered and stammered and demanded, in a weak voice, to know why he was placed under arrest.

"You are suspected of being one of the men, who robbed the bank at Biwabik," came the reply of the imitation sleuth.

At the startling accusation the newly married man looked desperate. No doubt he thought of the little woman he had just married figured that his life was blighted, and saw the little dark cell in his mind's eye. He glanced wildly around the hotel. Everything worked fine. Of course he saw the author of the practical joke and yelled for him.

That person, assuming a pose of dignity, ambled over to the place where the imitation detective held the newly married man and inquired the cause of the impetuous outburst. The story of the mistaken identity was hurriedly told to him, but the author of the joke failed to come to his newly married friend's rescue with any degree of alacrity. He asked what he was expected to do. With an expletive that sounded strangely like an oath, the newly married man informed him that he was expected to tell the detective who he was, and that—pardon the expression—"damn quick."

The friend of the newly married man informed the newly married man, that not knowing whether he was the man who robbed the Biwabik bank or not, he was in no position to interfere with the course of the law.

But why go on with the agony. It was truly tearful to behold. The inevitable "what will my wife think" was brought into play. The newly married man was truly desperate. He offered spending money to the imitation detective, hoping thereby to make that person change his suspicions. The bribe was unavailing, however, and the imitation detective was on the point of starting on the march to the police station when the friend of the newly married man stated that he did not believe that his friend was mixed up in the robbery of the Biwabik bank, as he only tackled the biggest jobs. With this assurance the imitation detective dropped his hold upon the newly married man, stating at the same time that he had the most profound admiration for a really successful thief.

The newly married man was so thoroughly scared that he did not for the moment suspect the joke that had been played upon him. When he tumbled, he was on the point of imitating the actions of young Mr. Papke, when that strenuous Illinois product faced Stanley Ketchel in the roped arena of Los Angeles.

It was here that the true test of tried friendship came to the fore, for the man who had taken liberties with the newly married man explained that the imitation was a thing that all married men had to go through with, and that he was very fortunate that he was in the hands of such a good friend when it came off. They are now the best of friends.

At last the Chicago crowd is ready to admit that the Cubs are beaten for the pennant in the National league. N. Ducheim, one of the enthusiastic fans of the Windy City, who is at the Hotel McKay, admits that Charlie Murphy's pets are beaten, but says that it was because the Chicago bunch waited for the other teams in the early part of the race.

Other of the men who come from Chicago have a lengthening of the countenance when you ask them what the chances of the Cubs are for the hunting. It's a shame. Earlier in the season there was nothing to it but Chicago. Now the Windy City fans are forced to admit that hope is hanging on a thread that has several strands frayed. They are game, though, which is more than can be said of the majority of the fans of Gotham.

Such is fame. One traveling man asked another what he thought of the spread of La Folletteism in Wisconsin. The other commercial man looked puzzled and asked him if paris green wouldn't be good for it. He thought the senator was a bacterium. Not so very long after the above question had been asked of the commercial man, he was giving a detailed list of the weak points of Joe Gans. Uncle Joe Cannon says the people are not interested in congressional records. Who knows?

Minneapolis newspaper men were numerous in Duluth yestrday. Charles Cheney, political writer for the Minneapolis Journal, came up to inspect the Miller-Bede race. Ray Marshall, who records the sordid doings of the Minneapolis police department, and consequently doesn't have much to do, was up in Hibbing to see that no big news features escaped. Harry Luxton, staff photographer for the same paper, was also at Hibbing. Frank E. Force, "Sunny Jim," sporting editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, and Fred Wathey, a reporter on the same paper, were also here, having been up to inspect the fire. The newspaper men used very much hotel stationery, but otherwise behaved as if they were used to the comforts of first-class hotels, and life in a large city.

THE WEATHER.

The worst alarms from the forest fires being apparently over, it is possible to give some attention to the beauties of the weather that has prevailed for several weeks. It is not often that this season retains so much of summer's genial glow, and if it had not been for the need of rain nature's generosity in the way of weather would have received more admiration.

Yesterday's highest temperature was 84 degs., and last night's lowest was 52 degs. The weather man expects a continuance of fair weather, without much change in temperature, tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today it was clear, mellow and genial. The sun rose this morning at 5:40 and sets tonight at 6:29, making 12 hours and 49 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Barometric depressions of slight intensity are central this morning over Saskatchewan and Western Mexico. Light rains have resulted in Nevada, Utah and Northeastrstus have resulted in Nevada, Utah and Northeastern Wisconsin and heavy rains over the Gulf of Mexico. At Jacksonville, Fla., the unusual amount of 11.86 inches of rain has occurred during the past forty-eight hours. Dry and rather warm weather continues the rule in the Central, Northern and Eastern districts, and this condition is likely to continue at the Head of the Lakes until Saturday night at least, perhaps longer. The barometer remains high in Central and Eastern states."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

Treason.

Lincoln State Journal: "Let no man denounce Mr. Bryan. Such men are nececessary to human progress."—Senator Beveridge, at the Youngstown opening of the Ohio Republican campaign, on Sept. 5.

"Let us go into the campaign as neighbors and friends; let us be friends all through the campaign and come out of the campaign the same old friends."—John W. Kern, Democratic candidate for vice president, in a speech at Milwaukee, Aug. 19.

What have we come to? Among the questions prodding the voter in every campaign are these: "Am I required by party loyalty to hate my neighbor who disagrees with me? Is it treason to admit that the opposing candidate is not a moral and intellectual pervert and that my candidate is not a genius and a saint? Does duty require me to lie as well as die for my principles?"

Among the gentlemen whose livings are staked on the success of the party ticket there has always been a strong disposition to answer very loudly, yes, to all these questions. The plain voter, to whom the result means something but not everything, has sometimes recoiled slightly from this view. In this case he is commonly put under a suspicion as to his party loyalty that will rise to endanger him if he ever tries to get an office for himself.

We await with hated breath to know whether the brilliant Beveridge and the kindly Kern will be court-martialed and drummed out of their respective parties.

The Maine Campaign.

New York Sun: We believe that representatives in congress are to be elected in Maine this year, and that presidential electors are to be chosen there, but the Maine folks seem to care for none of these things at present. If we look into a Maine paper we are sure to find Rum and Prohibition springing and hissing at one another. What does Obadiah Gardner say about prohibition now and what is he said to have said two years ago? Has such and such a sheriff enforced the prohibitory law or been easy with the liquor keepers? How much rum are the city and town agencies selling? Has the prohibitory law ever been really enforced in the fifty odd years of its life? The same old fight, and Maine seems never to lose her interest. As for Taft and Sherman and Bryan, and even Roosevelt, they look about as far away as anti-masonry or Hell Benl Kent.

Doubtless the heat will be turned on next week, but at present Maine is as "apathetic" on national issues as a deaf mute at a Bourke Cockran explosion.

An Honest Man's Word.

Harper's Weekly: "Now, look here, Thompson," remarked Bloom, "it is six months since you borrowed that ten-dollar bill from me."

"Seven," corrected Thompson, gravely.

"Well, then, seven months," snorted Bloom; "and you promised to give it back to me in a week—promised faithfully to return it to me in seven days instead of months."

"I know it," answered Thompson, sadly, drawing a memorandum book from his pocket. "That bill was marked No. 672,929. I made this memo, and then I spent the money. Since then I've been trying to recover it."

"But," shouted Bloom, "any other would do as well."

"No," responded Thompson, shaking his head, "I'm a man of my word. When you gave me the bill I said, 'I will return this to you,' and I meant it. Bloom, old man, just as soon as I come across No. 672,929 I'll see that you get it, for I am not the one to go back on my promise."

Another Revolutionary Idea.

Baltimore American: Mr. Kern thinks that the vice president should not be a nonentity in the government. Here is a bold attack on all precedents.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

The meeting of the chamber of commerce this morning, which was largely attended was chiefly taken up with the report of the committee on gas and water supply. The committee found that there is unnecessary obstruction of the streets by the gas and water company and that they are not restored to their former condition after being torn up; that there is not sufficient pressure to throw water for fire protection; that the company does not supply an adequate amount of gas of good quality; that there is no water above Fourth street and the company does not extend its pipes as ordered by the council; that there is now considerable sewage into Chester brook, as well as a large amount of surface water, and this brook empties about 700 feet from the mouth of the intake pipe; washings of Superior and other streets empty into the lake only a few feet from the pumphouse; the adopted plan of sewage of the East end of the city provides for an outlet 520 feet from the intake pipe and will be used in a few months; the entire sewage of the main part of the city empties into the lake at Second avenue east. The committee urges that no time be lost in procuring high sanitary authority on the contamination of the water supply from sewerage and as to the necessity of at once moving the pumphouse a considerable distance easterly. The committee was composed of Messrs. Wadhams, Myers, Rose and Billson. Speeches were delivered by Messrs. Spencer, Myers, Phelps, Edwards, Mitchell, A. M. Miller and others. Mr. Miller believed the water plant should belong to the city, and that the present outfit should be bought for what it is worth and not what the mistakes of its builders had made it cost.

A. F. Ray of Chicago, brother of Mrs. James M. Smith, is visiting Duluth.

The little tug Tourist of Bayfield has been brought here to run in opposition to the Odd Fellow on the Rice's and Connor's Point route.

The New York Clothing company of Tower has been incorporated with a capital stock of $14,000.

J. H. Gardner, a laborer working on the foundation of the new Rice's Point hosehouse, had several bones broken by falling earth and rock, besides being horribly bruised by a runaway team. His jaw and an arm were broken and a thigh bone stuck through his trousers fully an inch. It is not known whether his injuries are fatal. Word was sent to his parents at Sandusky, Ohio.

The grocery firm of Carroll Bros., doing business at 524 West Superior street, has failed. Their liabilities are $4,700 and the nominal assets are $6,500. A. L. Ordean has been made trustee for their settlement with creditors.

MILLER AND BEDE.

Biwabik Times: The fate of Bede was forecasted in the result, Tuesday, of the primaries in the Superior, Wis., district. Congressman Jenkins, a very influential member of congress, and a favorite of Speaker Cannon, of Dalzell and Payne, was defeated overwhelmingly by Lenroot, a man who had never held any other public office than membership in the Wisconsin legislature. This proves that the people are tired of the rule of Cannon and others who control legislation in the interest of a special few. Miller will almost, without doubt, prove to be Bede's nemesis in this instance.

Floodwood Broadax: It's a landslide for C. B .Miller, see if it isn't.

Hibbing Tribune: Congressman Jenkins on a Cannon platform, is beaten by 6,000 in Wisconsin. This is not regarded as an augury of success for Congressman J. Adam Bede.

Buffalo Journal: J. Adam Bede is having troubles in his campaign for renomination for congress in the Eighth district. C. B. Miller of Duluth is his opponent and appears to be having the best of it. Bede was a supporter of the Cannon policies, which are not popular among the voters.

Walker Pilot: Now, if Congressman Bede only loved Cannon less, he would probably get more votes.

Foley Independent: It looks as though the Eighth district were beginning to get tired of furnishing amusements for the national house of representatives. They are going to give the nation a dose of solid stuff.

Cambridge Independent-Press: Do you want to be represented in congress by a man who will use his influence and vote against the tyrannical rule of a speaker who has used his every influence in favor of great corporations against the interests of the public at large? Vote for Clarence B. Miller.

Aitkin Age: Congressman Jenkins of Wisconsin, who represented the Superior district, was defeated in the primaries last week by Lenroot, because he had became "Cannonized." Jenkins was a good man, but he got in bad company when he stacked up against the people with Uncle Joe, and is only one of the string that will drop by the wayside this fall on the same issue. Bede is another.

Onamia Pioneer: A vote for Clarence B. Miller for congress is a vote for President Roosevelt's policies, while a vote for J. Adam Bede is a vote for Czar Cannon's policies. It is now up to the voters of the Eighth district to make a choice.

Ely Miner: The most disreputable, prevaricating, low-lived journalism practised in the United States at the present time is being indulged in by the Duluth News Tribune in its dirty efforts to defeat Congressman J. Adam Bede.

Eveleth Star: The fight here on the range has developed not so much for Bede and against Miller as it has against the attitude of the News Tribune. Republicans feel that they have a right to get the news, and to get it as it is, not after it has passed through the News Tribune stockyard vat, but as it comes from the people true and undefiled. They do not want an unscrupulous, unsavory newspaper to represent them at Washington.

Duty.

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed,
Whose deeds, both great and small,
Are close knit strands of an unbroken thread,
Where love ennobles all.
The world may sound no trumpet, ring no bells;
The book of life the shining record tells.

Thy love shall chant its own beautitudes
After its own life-working. A child's kiss
Set on thy sighing lips shall make thee glad;
A poor man served by thee shall make thee rich;
A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong;
Thou shalt be served thyself by every sense
Of service which thou renderest.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Did you write to papa, George?"

"Asking for your hand?"

"Of course."

"Yes, I wrote."

"That's strange. I supposed papa would be terribly angry. You know he doesn't like you."

"Yes, I know. But I fixed it all right. I—I didn't sign the letter."

Philadelphia Record: Sillicus—Do you believe he has had a university education? He doesn't look like a college man.

Philadelphia Ledger: Senator Crane came smiling from the White House.

"You must have hit it off pretty well with the president," remarked a friend.

"Hit it off! I should say so," answered the senator. "Why, he was so good-natured that he unconsciously called me Mr. Stork."

Campaign Fund Rumors.

New York Press (Rep.): If William Nelson Cromwell has contributed $50,000 to the Republican national committee, and Treasurer Sheldon will not deny the report, it is due to Mr. Taft and to the public that the national committee make a complete explanation of the matter.

Mr. Cromwell is known as a corporation lawyer, and if he is acting in his professional capacity when he sends in a check for such a large sum, it is easy to see how simply the law forbidding corporations to finance campaign funds may be violated. If Mr. Harriman's lawyer is acting for individuals, and they are not ashamed to be known, there is no reason why the national committee should not let the public have all the facts. Such a statement would at least serve the purpose of freeing Mr. Taft from the harm that would come through the suspicion that Edward H. Harriman was raising another boodle fund to be spent in behalf of the national ticket.

This incident further shows that it would be better policy for the Republican national committee to publish all its contributions. If it can not succeed in keeping them altogether secret, partial publicity may give the voters a false impression of the motives in giving and taking the money, and this is an injustice to Mr. Taft.

The Gifts of God to Man.

When God at first to man,
Having a glass of blessing standing by,
Let us (said He) pour on him all we can;
Let the world's riches, which dispersed lie,
Contract into a span.

So strength first made a way;
Then beauty flowed, then wisdom, honor, pleasure;
When almost all was out, God made a stay,
Perceiving that alone of all His treasure
Rest in the bottom lay.

For if I should (said He)
Bestow this jewel also on my creature,
He would adore my gifts instead of me,
And rest in nature, not the God of nature;
So both should losers be.

Yet let him keep the rest,
But keep them with repining restlessness;
Let him be rich and weary, that at least,
If goodness lead him not, yet weariness
May toss him to my breast.

—GEORGE HERBERT.

At the Dangerous Age.

Youth's Companion: He was a nervous, fidgety young man, and he looked with considerable apprehension at the woman next him, who held a baby, its face covered with a thick veil. The baby gave now and then a sharp cry, which the woman evidently tried to suppress.

At last, after many anxious glances, the young man spoke.

"Has—has that baby any—anything contagious?" he asked.

The woman looked at him with a mixture of scorn and pity.

"Twouldn't be for most folks," she said, in a clear, carrying tone, "but maybe 'twould for you. He's teething."

Way to International Peace.

Colonists, Victoria, B. C.: The nations can have perpetual peace if they will, and without the cost of eternally preparing for war. They can arrange for it by binding international agreements, and that would be the common-sense way to proceed and the eminently practical way.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

FIRST GAME SATURDAY

High School Lads Will Stack Up Against Alumni.

Work With New Dummy Helps the Boys to Tackle.

The first tackling dummy to be used in football in Duluth, was set up in Athletic Park this afternoon, and the boys are having good sport mauling the wooden man around in the dust. These dummies have been used in the East for some years, but this is the first one to be pressed into service here. The dummy is made of wood, and is as heavy as an ordinary man; it is suspended from a crossbar and is a slippery animal when it comes to finding the hands of the men as they throw themselves upon it.

Practice is going along nicely with more than enough for two teams out, each evening. The boys are heavy and fast. The second team is showing wonderful form for so early in the season, and if the members realize how important they are to the welfare and success of the first team, they will get out as regularly all year.

George Nightengale, a youth who played with the Sault Ste. Marie team, is showing up in great shape. He has the weight and is fast.

Quimbey, another new man, is doing well as are Donovan, Boyle and a number of others.

The first scrimmage was held yesterday afternoon, and although the day was too warm for hard football, they dug right in like veterans, and surprised both coaches. The second team at times tore big holes through the lines of the first team, and the first team ripped up the second team in great shape, when they got the ball. There has been only three or four regular practices, and the boys show remarkable form for so early in the year.

On Saturday afternoon they will line up against some of the fastest players that ever attended the school on the hill. The event is the annual alumni game, and a large crowd will turn out to get a line on the boys. The lineup of the alumni is indeed a strong one, including as it does, a number of men that played on the great teams turned out by Dr. Park, Frank Church, and others. Among the men that will try to down the high school bunch are: Olson, Furni, McKenzie, Crassweller, Duer, Ogle, Michand, Gallagher, Mallet and Nelson. The substitutes are: Carl, Lonegren, Raymond Nelson, and Clark.

From accounts of the fight a few evenings ago between Papke and Ketchel, one James J. Jeffries, former champion fighter of the world, now owner of a fight club in Los Angeles, should have his license taken away from him by the authorities in California for his management of the fight.

According to all reports, the fight got away beyond a fight, and Ketchel was simply a punching bag for Papke. In spite of fact that Ketchel knew he was beaten from the first round, and the cries of "stop it, stop it," Mr. Jeffries not only allowed the mix to go on, but sicked Papke on, and in other ways encouraged him.

The lad from Michigan had a terrible looking face. It was pounded beyond recognition; both his eyes were closed, and he staggered around the arena like a blind man. The crowd called to Jeffries to stop the affair, but he seemed to take a huge delight in seeing a man nearly killed, and only answered the yells of the crowd with a huge and expansive smile.

Evidently Jeffries wanted to give the crowd its money's worth, whether they wanted to take it or not.

Just such cases as this put a black eye on the boxing game. The papers are full of the talk, and those who can see no good in the fight game anyway point at instances of this kind and say "I told you so."

Jeffries has been in this walloping business long enough to know better.

KETCHELL AND PAPKE SIGN

Middleweights Will Fight Again for Title Thanksgiving Day.

San Francisco, Sept. 11.—Despite recent predictions to the effect that Stanley Ketchel would not soon obtain another match with Billy Papke, who defeated him at Los Angeles last Monday, the men agreed last night to meet under the former conditions in this city, on the night of Nov. 26, Thanksgiving. Promoter John J. Gleason made the match and half of the receipts will be divided between the fighters on a basis of 60 and 40 per cent.

NEW RECORD FOR WISCONSIN

Minor Heir Steps Fastest Mile Ever Made in the State.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 11.—Minor Heir at Law, dam Kitty Clover, driven by Charles Dean of Libertyville, Ill., paced an exhibition mile on the state fair mile track yesterday afternoon in 1:59½—the fastest mile ever stepped on a Wisconsin track. The performance was made without a wind shield, but the pacer was aided by a prompter who most of the time was behind the pacer rather than at his side or in front. The time taken by quarters was :29¾, :59, 1:29 and 1:59½. The conditions were ideal for the race, the track being fast with little wind stirring. Both horse and driver were given a grand ovation at the conclusion of the race. Minor Heir's previous record was 2:00¼. The judges announced that yesterday's performance was a new record for similar conditions.

Fleming Boy captured the 2:20 trot; Citation the 2:04 pace and Hazel Simmons the 2:19 pace.

THIS IS A BIG DAY AT COUNTRY CLUB

Annual Match Between President and the Vice President.

Today is the big day of the year for the men at the Northland Country club. The annual games between the presidents and vice presidents will be played off, starting at 4 o'clock. After play dinner will be served to the 200 men who have signified their intention of being present.

E. P. Alexander, secretary of the club, and G. G. Hartley, president, and W. W. Walker, the vice president, have been busy for some weeks making the arrangements for this day's events, and it promises to be successful in every way.

After a big dinner there will be a smoker and vaudeville entertainment in the evening.

MARINES HANDY WITH GUN.

They Capture All Prizes in the Big Shooting Contest.

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 11.—The United States marine corps continues to gather in its full share of prizes in connection with the big shooting tournament here. The marines maintained their winning streak yesterday by carrying off many honors in the two events in which they competed, taking first, third and fourth prizes in one-team competition and first and second prizes in the other. The Manhattan Rifle and Revolver association smashed the record in the revolver team match.

Running Races Popular.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 11.—That running races will hereafter be appointed a permanent place at the Grand Circuit meet at Charter Oak park was settled yesterday when approximately 25,000 people attended the Connecticut fair there. The sport was greatly enjoyed.

Trotter Sold.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 11.—The gray gelding trotter Dr. Harvey was sold at Charter Oak park yesterday to C. E. Eastbrook of Denver for $8,000.

ESTIMATES ARE ALL CUT

Committee Considers Appropriations for City Departments.

Work Will Not be Completed Until Next Week.

Estimates covering the cost of operating the various departments next year, as prepared by the heads of the different departments, were cut down in every instance by the conference committee yesterday, at a meeting held in the city hall. The work of the committee has not yet been completed, and until it is completed the figures in detail will not be given out.

It was decided that while the money asked for might be used to advantage, the city treasury was not in a position to stand the heavy drain that would result if the original estimates were allowed to stand. In some instances it is understood the reductions were quite pronounced.

The matter of a permanent improvement fund was not touched upon and any additional money that may be needed for the committee, to be held a week from tomorrow. There is at present an appropriation of $15,000 for a city hospital, but this will have to be increased if present plans for the institution are carried out.

Some consideration was given yesterday to salaries of city employes, and it was decided that there should be no increases. The entire appropriation for the year will be only slightly in excess of that made for 1908, it is understood.

FROM FEEBLE INFANT

The Creamery Business Has Grown to Huge Proportions.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—George Crosby, traffic manager of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, testified before Insterstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty yesterday that the low rate on butterfat had been established to encourage the creamery business. At that time the industry, he said, was a very feeble infant. At present, he declared, it had reached huge proportions and along such lines that a raise in rates is necessary for the best interests not only of the small producers, but of the farmers and the public, to say nothing of the railroads.

Frank P. Eyman, general freight agent of the Chicago & Northwestern, testified in a similar strain.

Confessed To Being Spy.

Orleans, France, Sept. 11.—The German who was arrested here a few days ago, on the charge of being a spy, confessed yesterday that he had been acting in this capacity for several years past, under the direction of the German military authorities of Alsace-Lorraine. The man was taken into custody while attempting to bribe a French soldier, to abstract important parts of a field gun.

ELECTION RESULTS

All Figured Out by the Political Experts at Chicago.

Tables Prove That Both Taft and Bryan Will Win.

Indianapolis, Sept. 11.—James P. Fornaday, staff correspondent of the News, wires from Chicago: Maps of the United States are in demand around both the national political headquarters. The experts are using them these days in checking off the states that are "sure Republican," "sure Democratic," "probably Republican," "probably Democratic," "offer an even chance," "good fighting ground," etc. The industry of carrying the coming election with lead pencil and paper is thriving. At Republican headquarters are plenty of men who have "figured it out" that Taft cannot lose, and they prove it by exhibiting a pad of paper on which are set down the states he will carry.

Assuming that Bryan will carry all the Southern states and the border states of Missouri, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Maryland, say the Republicans, he will have as the result of doing that only 166 electoral votes out of a total of 483, leaving 317 electoral votes, all in the North, to be accounted for. It is a sure thing, one is told, that Taft will get 242 of these 317 votes that are left after giving Bryan the 166.

How They Do It.

Here is the way the Republicans "figure it out:"

New York	39
New Jersey	12
Delaware	3
Pennsylvania	34
Ohio	23
Vermont	4
Rhode Island	4
New Hampshire	4
Massachusetts	16
Maine	6
Connecticut	7
West Virginia	7
Illinois	27
Michigan	14
Indiana	15
Wisconsin	13
Minnesota	11
Iowa	13
Total	243

Only the Sure Winners.

Of course, the Republicans "figure out" that Mr. Taft will carry a good many other states, but the above combination is set down by them as a "sure winner." They are not willing to concede Kansas or Nebraska to the Democrats, and they point out that, if perchance they should lose some of the states included in the "sure winner" list, the loss would be more than made up by carrying most of the states in the Northwest, the Mountain states and the Pacific coast states.

About Democratic headquarters one gets the other side of the story. "Yes," say the Democratic experts, "we set down 166 votes in the Southern and border states as a starter. With these votes in hand we have got to get seventy-six of the 317 votes remaining to win." Then the experts, with pencil and paper, proceed to show how it can be done.

Combination No. 1 and No. 2.

Combination No. 1 eliminates everything east of Ohio. Here it is:

Ohio	23
Indiana	15
Illinois	27
Kansas	10
Nebraska	8
Total	83
Excess of votes over number required to elect	7

Combination No. 2 also ignores the East and concedes Ohio and Illinois to the Republicans. It is as follows:

Indiana	15
Kansas	10
Nebraska	8
Wisconsin	13
Wyoming	3
Idaho	3
Oregon	5
Colorado	5
Minnesota	11
California	10
Total	83
Excess over number required to elect	7

New York Will Settle It.

A third combination assumes that Bryan will carry New York, and it is pointed out that if he should do this, and should have the 166 Southern and border state votes safely within his net, he would be within thirty-seven votes of the 242 required to elect. In forming this combination state which would bring the candidate's vote to about 325 are set down. "Of course, there would be no doubt about the election of Mr. Bryan if he should carry New York," say the Democratic experts. "It is inconceivable that New York should go for him and the West go against him."

To be sure, these paper elections do not count for anything, and yet they are interesting, if not instructive. With a contest presenting so many peculiarities as this one, it is worth while for the managers to keep before them the possibilities of various state combinations, and they realize this fact. The Republicans foresee that it is possible for Bryan to be elected without getting a single electoral vote east of Ohio and north of Maryland. They do not think it is at all probable, but they admit it would be foolish for them to say it is impossible.

Four Important States.

It is the fixed conviction of the best politicians in each camp that the candidate that gest the votes of New York, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, will be the next president. These four states furnish a little over 21 per cent of the votes in the electoral college. So it is pretty well understood that the last month of the campaign will be devoted largely to those states. As has been remarked heretofore, the probability is that Indiana and New York will, as usual, decide the issue.

Now, when it comes to the actual outlook—not the paper outlook—both parties are still puzzled. The Republican managers are not at all sure of their ground. They have had a trying time getting the campaign under way. Two adverse situations have confronted them: The candidacy of Mr. Taft has failed to create party enthusiasm, and there have been numerous state factional quarrels to deal with. There is a distinctly better party feeling toward Mr. Taft the last week or ten days; the leading men of the party have consented to take the stump for him, but there is the general lack of interest among the rank and file of Republican voters yet to be overcome. Mr. Hitchcock believes this will disappear when the speakers all get to work.

Will National Ticket Suffer?

The state troubles have not disappeared. There is friction in Iowa, Kansas, Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia, New Jersey and New York. One hears a good deal of discussion about Republican headquarters these days as to whether the national ticket is likely to suffer if these state quarrels are not patched up before election, and the general feeling is that in some of the states mentioned the quarrels will go right on until the election, and after.

It is dawning on a good many persons that Roosevelt is the real manager of the campaign. Everybody about the two headquarters is now convinced that he will be openly in the fight before the middle of October. On the 20th of this month the national committee will circulate an interview with him, telling him why he is for Taft. The Democrats do not seem to be alarmed over his threatened activity. They seem to think that if he gets too busy New York will surely go Democratic.

The general roundup of the men connected with the management of the Democratic campaign here were looked upon as a gathering of great importance. At the meeting were the members of the national committee, the members of all the sub-committees for both the Chicago and New York headquarters, as well as Messrs. Bryan and Kern.

That Cleveland Letter.

Henry Watterson, who was here from New York, said that he had reason to believe that the Grover Cleveland letter on national politics, printed in two newspapers last week, is a fake. "I am now having an investigation made to determine its authenticity," said he. He added that close friends of the Cleveland family, who believe as he does, that the letter was not written by Mr. Cleveland, are assisting in the investigation.

Herman Ridder, the New York German editor, gave it as his opinion, on his arrival here, that Bryan is likely to carry New York. Mr. Ridder is talked of as the Democratic candidate for governor of New York. He is in charge of the German press bureau of the national committee.

How to Get Strong.

P. J. Daly of 1247 West Congress street, Chicago, tells of a way to become strong. He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitter, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50 cents.

GOLD PURSE STOLEN.

Thieves Entered House in England by a Rope Ladder.

Guildford, Eng., Sept. 11.—A daring attempt was made last night to steal a number of valuable jewels belonging to Mrs. John Ward, daughter of Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador in London.

Mrs. Ward was visiting at Worplesdon, a place near here. Upon going to her room to retire she found her door locked on the inside. She summoned help and the door was forced. Her jewels were found laid out all ready to be taken away. The only piece missing was a gold purse valued at $500. The thieves had entered the house by a rope ladder, and when they were disturbed they fled so hurriedly that they had only time to take the purse with them.

They Take the Kinks Out.

"I have used Dr. King's New Life Pills for many years with increasing satisfaction. They take the kinks out of stomach, liver and bowels, without fuss or friction," says N. H. Brown of Pittsfield, Vt. Guaranteed satisfactory at all drug stores, 25 cents.

S.S.S. HEALS SORES AND ULCERS

Sores and Ulcers are indications of impure blood. They show that the circulation has become infected with germs and poisons, which are being constantly discharged into the open place to irritate the delicate nerves, tissues and surrounding flesh and keep the sore in a state of inflammation and disease. Whether these impurities in the blood are the result of some debilitating sickness, an old taint from a former disease, or whether it is hereditary bad blood, there is but one way to cure sores and ulcers, and that is to purify the blood. Washes, salves, lotions, etc., are often beneficial because of their cleansing, antiseptic effects, but nothing applied to the surface can reach the blood, where the real cause is, and therefore cannot cure. S. S. S. is the remedy for sores and ulcers of every kind. It gets down to the very bottom of the trouble and removes every trace of impurity or poison, and makes a lasting cure. S. S. S. changes the quality of the circulation, so that instead of feeding the diseased parts with impurities, it nourishes and heals the irritated, inflamed flesh and causes the ulcer to fill in with healthy tissue by supplying it with pure, rich blood. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

DAVIS HELD FOR RUSTIN MURDER

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 11.—"That looks like the man I met coming from the Rustin home the night of the murder," said Dr. J. P. Lord to the chief of police when Charles E. Davis, under arrest, charged with the murder of Dr. Frederick Rustin, was brought before the court this morning for arraignment.

This is the first time Dr. Lord has been confronted with Davis, and his identification of him as the man he saw staggering down Farnam street, coming from the direction of the Rustin home, and only four blocks from that point, within a quarter of an hour of the time the shooting was heard, is one of the strongest links connecting Davis with the murder.

Davis came to the police station, accompanied by his millionaire brothers, to plead to the charge of being a suspicious character, which was filed against him some days ago. As soon as he entered the building he was rearrested on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Davis was pale but self-possessed. As the reading progressed a red hue overspread his face, and at the words, "charge the said Davis with wilful and deliberate murder," he swallowed convulsively and wetted his lips.

Immediately after the reading and the answer of "not guilty" entered by Davis' attorney, application was made for bail. County Attorney English advised the court that under the Nebraska law a charge of murder in the first degree is bailable in cases where the evidence is not conclusive ,and recommended that a sufficient amount to insure Davis' attendance in court when wanted be named.

"Make it as large as you please. We will give it," answered Latham Davis.

Seven thousand dollars was fixed as the bail, and immediately arranged by the Davis brothers. The hearing was set for Sept. 24, after which Davis was released and left the jail accompanied by his two brothers and his attorney.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

One of the most important events of the school year to the children of the Webster school is the annual flower show, which is held each year soon after the opening of school. For many years the women of the Twentieth Century club have distributed seeds among the children attending this school, and in the autumn the flower show is held. The efforts at the most primitive attempts at gardening are disheartening in the district of lower Lake and St. Croix aveneus, but the children each year enter with youthful zest into the joys and pleasures and disappointments of amateur gardening. At the close of the summer the blossoms are gathered from the cigar boxes and tin cans, or other disadvantageous places where the seeds have been planted, and a committee from the club visits the shows, and distributes prizes. Each year the prize list has become larger, and many are the blue ribbons awarded.

The exhibit will this year be held Monday afternoon of next week, at 4 o'clock, at the school. The commitee from the Twentieth Century club in charge of the work is composed of Mrs. J. H. Crowley, chairman, and Mrs. Z. D. Scott and Mrs. A. M. Gow.

Any one interested in the efforts of the children is invited to be present at the show Monday afternoon.

TO STUDY AT BERLIN.

Rena Vivienne at the German Capital.

Many Duluthians will be interested in the plans for the year of Rena Vivienne who, with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, has been spending the summer in Italy. Miss Vivienne left a month ago for Berlin, and is now established at the German capital where she will remain for the winter to study German opera. At the close of the last theatrical season Miss Vivienne concluded two successful seasons in singing the role of "Mme. Butterfly," in the Savage production of the Puccinni opera. In her former study abroad Miss Vivienne studied with Victor Maurel in Milan, London and Paris, and this year will be her first at the German musical center.

TO ISSUE TICKETS

Of Club Membership Before Formal Opening.

Tomorrow morning, from 10:30 o'clock to 11:30 o'clock, and tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock, and each succeeding Saturday during September, members of the Twentieth Century club will be at the library, to issue membership tickets for the ensuing club year. The members of the excutive board are most anxious to dispose of as much as possible of the routine business of issuing the membership tickets before the opening of the club year, as during October a series of lectures will be given before the club by Dr. Rubinkam, of Chicago.

A special meeting of the executive board of the club will be held Monday morning, at 10 o'clock, at the home of the president, Mrs. F. L. Barrows, of 12 Nineteenth avenue east.

Annual Reception.

The annual autumn reception at which the members of the Ladies' Union of Pilgrim Congregational church will be hostesses, will be held this evening, at the church parlors. The affair is always one of the most largely attended of the social affairs of the church, being a reunion of the church members and congregation and a time of welcoming any strangers in the city, who attend the reception. The new teachers who have come to Duluth will be especially honored at this evening's reception. Rev. and Mrs. Alexander Milne will receive, assisted by members of the committee and an informal program will be given. Miss Florence Hyland will sing, and there will be a reading by Dr. L. W. Kline.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob R. Myers of Philadelphia, formerly of this city, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Myers of 1034 East First street.

Mrs. Fred Reynolds of 220 East Third street is visiting at St. Cloud, Minn.

Miss Bradshaw has returned from a several weeks' visit at Deerwood.

Mrs. Whisler and Miss Whisler of Calumet, who were the guests of Mrs. John Panton during the summer have returned to their home at Calumet.

Mrs. Sterling Smith and Miss Effie Smith will leave Duluth next week. Mrs. Smith will go to Winnipeg for a visit and will then return to Duluth and later will leave with Miss Smith to spend the winter in the South. They have not decided where they will make their home.

Miss Irene McLaughlin of Port Arthur, formerly of this city is a guest in the city for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Fryberger and family have returned from their summer home at Solon Springs and are at their home at Hunter's Park.

Miss Ellrose Taylor, Miss Elsie Prudden and Miss Pansy Wirth, chaperoned by Mrs. A. C. Taylor are at the Spirit Lake branch of the Boat club for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Loeb and little daughter and Miss Ely will leave tomorrow for several weeks in the East.

Donald Holmes returned today to Minneapolis to continue his studies at the university.

Philip Poirier left today for Silver City, N. Mex., to study mining engineering.

RED CROSS DAY.

Final Preparations Are Made for Charity Work.

Tomorrow for the first time in Duluth, apportunity, instead of coyly waiting to be seized, will stalk forth and insistently confront every man, woman and child in the city. The opportunity will be to contribute to Red Cross Charity day, and the only person safe from solicitation will be he who sulks in the house all day.

Plans are being made to start with the first trip of the cars in the early morning and during the entire day the busy marts of trade will not be free of those burdened with red cross tags to be disposed of at a price.

The recent fires and disaster

through which Minnesota has just passed will be felt by the hospital long after the fires have been forgotten. for much illness will no doubt be caused from exposure and the many hardships inflicted on women and children from the changed conditions in the burned district.

These will not be charity patients. There are few such cases, but they are self-respecting people, who desire to pay their way as far as their means will permit, and who do pay, but the balance of the money needed must be met by the hospital itself.

The amount of money lost by the hospital every year would be ample to keep it in full running order, could it be collected. There are many who after they have been nursed back to health never again think it necessary to pay those who provided a place and made it possible to helf them to health.

Many instances of this kind will be found on the hospital books.

Among the records of St. Luke's may be found, by any one wishing to investigate, records of charity done daily for those who are unable to help themselves, but who receive the same treatment and consideration accorded the more fortunate. This kind of charity cannot in justice to the sufferers, be published to the world, and rarely is known by others than the board members themselves. The nurses know no difference as to the amount paid by a patient.

It is for this purpose charity is asked and every cent contributed tomorrow will go to the upbuilding and maintenance of this worthy Duluth institution.

Mrs. R. D. Haven, the chaperone for the West end and West Duluth district, will be assisted by Misses Mammie Kennedy, Ada Gorman, Gertrude Wellington, Lucille Gilbert, Martha Perry, Edna Dice, Nettie Lutes, Ruby Gorman, Ruth Glover and Irene Pritchard.

At Lakeside the chaperones will be Mesdames A. E. Forsythe, E. H. Church and C. S. Wilson, assisted by Misses Halling, Holmes, Irma Richards, Fannie Magner, Clare Church, Edna Parks, Elsie Crasswelter, Evelyn Emmons, Ella Gamble, Geneveva West, Belle Pepper, Hazel Owens, Frances Mooney, Marion Mooney, Irene Loranger, Madge Norton, Ruth Catherall, Beaulah Magner, Elsie Overman, Hazel Britts, Helen Clothier and Neil Loranger.

Luncheon at Club.

Mrs. A. D. Thomson was hostess at luncheon yesterday at the Kitchi Gammi club. The centerpiece was of pink asters and twenty-two guests were entertained.

To Discuss Work.

The officers and teachers of the Sunday school of Pilgrim Congregational church will meet Mondady evening at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Alexander Milne on East Third street. The plan of work for the year will be discussed.

Smooth Coiffure.

There is an attempt to bring back the smooth coiffure and the results so far are beautiful. The hair is artistically arranged over foundations, to be sure, though it is brushed back as evenly as ever hair was brushed into straight orderliness on the head of a Japanese belle. Nor is the cushioned portion severely round and plain, but often the hair shows a roll over the forehead, possibly two, and the side parting is noticed.

The coils are arranged high and the smooth braid, little rolls or straight switches encircles the knot of hair. The wisps of hair, either a blessing or a great nuisance to many, will be touched with brilliantine, brushed back and pinned to the hair. The very short fringe is trained to "go back" and is often slipped underneath and pinned with a tiny invisible hairpin. If this is impossible, the hair is curled backward by being rolled all in one direction over the curler and when so surved it fits naturally over the pompadour or clings better to the rest of the hair. The style is particularly good for the tailor-dressed girl who wears the large sailor hat.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Green tomatoes, $1.10 a bushel.
Western blackberries, 15 cents a pint box.
Concord grapes, 22 cents a basket.
Tokay grapes, 60 cents a basket.
Malaga grapes, 50 cents a basket.
Parsnips, three bunches for 10 cents.
Red apples, 40 cents a peck.
Sweet potatoes.
Veribest beef roast, 25 cents a pound.
Fish.

Now is the time to make the kind of pickles which are made out of green tomatoes and other things. The green tomatoes and the other things, whatever they may happen to be, are in the market and the sauces and pickles, sweet, sour or mustard, which are evolved from this vegetable must be made now or not at all this year. The market is so full of good things that to choose is harder than making up one's mind what to have different when there is only one thing in the market.

Apple pie is in its prime. The apples which are shown are fine, and green apple pie is one of the really intense delights of the season.

Everything is new and made expressly for us—for this season's selling.

It has often been said that Duluth needed just such a store as we will open tomorrow, and these expressions have aided greatly in planning a store that we believe we will all be proud of. No expense has been spared to make it a modern store in every sense of the word.

Again we say come and see us tomorrow.

A Commonplace Man

By Asa Pratt.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

Homer Dent was a very plain sort of a person. He had been a very plain sort of a boy and an exceedingly plain sort of a youth and now he was a most conspicuously plain young man.

He had always worked hard and received the minimum compensation therefor. As a boy he did the heavy end of the chores and his brother got the holidays and the praise. As a youth he did the hard studying and always remained at the foot of the classes while other fellows walked away with the prizes. As a young man he was always given the hard and disagreeable tasks at the store and when there was a promotion in sight somebody else got it.

Homer did not complain, however but plodded on, living out the law of his being. He never was jealous of those who were advanced over him. In fact, he rejoiced in their good fortune. To be sure, he grieved at times that none of the gifts of the gods were his, but he laid it all to some defect in his character. To be sure, he was a trifle slow and not at all brilliant, but he was as steady and reliable as a plow-horse, and his employers knew, even as his parents and teachers had known, that when he was given a task it was sure to be done no matter how long it took. But the high places were for those with more spectacular qualities and nobody ever really thought of Homer when they were to be filled. Truth be told, Homer never thought of going after them himself. In fact, Homer never pushed himself. Folks said he was not ambitious.

But the years with all their toil and hardships and disappointment brought one great joy and light to Homer's life. t was a woman, of course, and her dainty, feminine ways gave the love-starved lad a glimpse into a new and marvelous world. He never ceased to wonder that she crowned him with her favors—he who ever had been a bystander in all the joys and softer side of life.

The result is easy to guess. He became her abject and devoted slave. Her lightest wish was law and there was no sacrifice too great, no endeavor too strenuous for him to make at her most simple suggestion. Because she loved society he plunged into the gayeties of the town, where he cut a most sorry figure, as he was only too painfully conscious and where he became the butt of the clever ones, as he was in all the walks of life he essayed. Because she approved of religion he smothered his convictions and haunted the church of her denomination, studying its creed with desperate earnestness and blindly accepting its code. He even attempted golf, and as a last sacrifice joined a home study circle, where after a hard day's work he sternly kept himself awake.

And the woman. Well, she was a daughter of Eve, and having failed to attract any very big fish and having arrived at the period of a maiden's life when she begins to realize that it is time to cast anchor to the windward, she turned to Homer. Not that she was old or devoid of charms, but she had set her standard rather high and the knight of her dreams had not appeared. Besides she was a young woman of discrimination and she saw below the commonplace exterior of this simple hearted man, the true gold of his unselfish character. She appreciated this and she would be absolutely queen.

But, ah, ye daughters of Eve, whenever did reason govern your hearts and your desires? Whenever did not—and when does not and will not—the gay cavalier fire your hearts and imaginations and make the plain sturdy plowboy seem commonplace and impossible? And who shall say that the fair Agnes did not accept Homer with a mental reservation? And who shall say that the vision of the gay cavalier did not still abide in her imagination?

Be all that as it may, the fact remains that one glorious evening she plighted her troth to Homer with a dainty grasp of surrender, which so filled him with joy and reverence that it must abide with him forever. It was many weeks before he could thoroughly believe that this splendid creature, this wonderful being had selected him of all the world for a mate, and he bowed in reverence and thanksgiving every time he thought of it, which was some thousand times a day.

Always frugal and saving, he now began to lay aside money with more than a miser's avarice against the blissful day when Agnes should come to his arms. He was not impatient, as most lovers are. It was enough for him to know that she was his. He could wait. He had been compelled to wait for everything ever since he was born and he had learned the lesson of patience. Probably this was a mistake, because women like to be sought ardently and impatiently—but how was he to know that this being the only woman he had ever known?

Well, it was the same old story. While he waited and toiled patiently, secure in his happiness, the cavalier came along, smiled upon his mistress and poor plodding Homer was forgotten. Just how it all happened has been forgotten in the chronicles of the town.

However, one T. Seymour Esterly appeared on the social horizon of the town with more fine clothes than the Johnnies ever had seen and with an automobile and a debonair air and much supercilliousness. He was there, he announced, for rest and recreation after a strenuous season on the stock market in Wall street. Need it be recorded how he swept everything before him? How mammas courted him and papas gave him little dinners at the club, how clubs and societies strove for the privilege of entertaining him as an honored guest—and how the maidens, betrothed and unbetrothed, smiled upon him? Nay, the dullest imagination can see all that.

Then one day the town was startled with an elopement. Yes, sad as it was, Agnes had eloped with T. Seymour Esterly in most spectacular manner, leaving a dramatic note to Homer that she had made a great mistake, but had saved both him and herself by recognizing the fact that they were not mates before it was too late—thanks to the fact that her true affinity had appeared. And she begged him to forget her unworthy self and to find some maiden who could appreciate his good and true qualities. As though she did not well know that there never would be any other woman in his simple honest life.

The months sped and strange reports came regarding the eloping couple. The final one was that the Mr. T. Seymour Esterly was a common adventurer—in fact valet of a distinguished member of the stock exchange, who while taking a trip abroad had left his establishment in the hands of his valet. And the valet with the cash and what started out in search of adventure with his employer's automobile and clothes and had succeeded in inflaming the imagination of the ambitious country belle and induding her to elope with him. And sadder than all it was whispered that he had not married her at all and that she was living in miserable quarters the very creature of his whims.

Homer eDnt had survived the blow with the stoicism which ever had been his saving grace. God alone knows what it meant to him and the hours of mortal agony he suffered, but he made no sign and plodded on as he ever had.

And one day many, many months after the catastrophe there came to him a letter—oh such a pathetic and hopeless and tear-stained letter from the lady of his dreams. The end had come. She was deserted, alone and without friends, money or hope. Her own people had cast her off—and she did not blame them. Her board was paid for the balance of the week. Then she had resolved to end the whole miserable business and let the silent river tell the story if it would. Only she could not go out of the world without lting Homer know how keenly she appreciated her mistake and how much better she knew than he, his nobility of character.

"I am saying these things, not to justify myself nor with any hope of the future," she wrote. "But I want you to know your own worth which you always have underestimatod and discredited. People in this world are taken on their own valuation. Since I went away from the truest lover ever maiden had, I have seen many men of all degrees, and I want to tell you for your own good that you are better and stronger and braver than any of them. When I am gone I wish you might forgive me for my disloyalty to you—God knows I have suffered enough for it. And I wish I might awaken in you some conception of your own power. If you could appreciate it all success and all happiness would be yours. All business success would open to you if only you would demand it—and all women would lie at your feet if you would command instead of beg. This is the only reparation I can make—to awaken you to your own possibilities. it is a poor one, but believe me it is attempted in all sincerity and with all the love which woman can feel toward man—a love intensified a thousand times because she has sacrificed it. And it should have all the weight of a voice from the grave—because next Monday I will be numbered with the dead."

Long and prayerfully did Homer Dent struggle with this letter. It rekindled all the passion of his first and only love and he realized all the terrible consequences of her fall. Finally in the cold gray dawn he threw his meager wardrobe into a trunk and wrote a letter to his employer resigning his position and stating he was going away to be married and would not return.

Later he drew his money from the savings bank and boarded a train for the city praying he would arrive in time.

FIGHTING THE FIRES

Which Destroyed Thousands of Dollars Worth of Idaho Timber.

Graphic Story Told by One Who Was in the Fight.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Up, boys, up! Roll out! Get up, every last one of you! Quick, into your shoes, and hit the fire line!"

This hurry call was sounded at Placer Creek Summit in northern Idaho early one morning in the middle of August and before the echoes lost themselves in the hills the United States ranger and his men on the big forest reserve, east of Spokane, were pushing armed with shovel and mattox to fight the flames, which destroyed thousands of dollars worth of timber and at one time threatened to raze the camp in which the smoke-eaters were quartered.

Clamboring up the steep hillside through the dense tangle of underbrush, over burning logs, beds of hot ashes and into volumes of thick smoke, the men lost no time to reach the fire line. Charles Hardee, who was in the thick of the fight, tells this story in describing the attack and the methods used to check the flames:

"Majestic old monarchs of the forest, whose swaying limbs seem to protest against their domain being intruded upon by the mortal enemy—fire, are one by one caught at the base, or by their over-reaching limbs, and, like immense torches flare up into a high sheet of flame, lighting up the heavens, sending columns of smoke sky-ward to hide the moon and stars from mortal's view.

"And later, as the sap and life has been eaten from them by the fire, come crashing down the hillside, the echoes reverberating across the mountains, and lay there, to ignite more brush and more timber, a gruesome witness to the destructiveness of an uncontrolled fire, consuming scores of sections of the finest timber, and of the criminal carelessness of campers of whatever occupation, leaving their camp fire unextinguished.

"It was to remedy, or at least check by every means possible, the result of some one's carelessness with campfire, cigarette or pipe, that the forest fire crews at Placer Creek, State Creek and Terry Gulch, where we were, and many other localities under the cool leadership of Uncle Sam's forest rangers, faced the fierce flames as far as was safe, inhaled the smoke until temporary retreat was compulsory, working with shovel and mattox to smother and check the advancing tongue of fire, or by building fire trails through the unburned brush prevent its further spreading.

"Long distance 'copies' fail to fully portray the grandeur or dangers of forest fires witnessed or fought at night, and abler pencils than ours, present upon the spot, are necessary to do justice to so awe-inspiring a scene.

"As a crew of men move camp, their blankets, tools and food stuffs upon their backs, from one scene of dying out conflagration to another still burning uncontrolled, can the reader imagine the confidence required to follow the leader, who is always a United States ranger, as he leads the way up or down the steepest kind of hillsides, through the thickest kind of jungle, the fire chasing, crowding, urging them on, jealous of the breathing spell the hard climb makes necessary?

"How his call of 'Follow me, boys, I know this timber well,' or 'down below is water, boys,' inspires the man with renewed courage and strength to continue the toilsome climb or descent!

"Finally a spot suitable for camp is reached near a mountain spring. We drop our burdens and rest a little. If it happens to be near meal time, the inner man must at once be attended to, or the outer man is of no use; then we sally forth to execute the well laid plan of the leader.

"Crossing from Moon Creek gulch over the divide to Terry gulch, the sharp eyes of Ranger Poluski traced and found the spot from which the unextinguished camp fire had eaten its way up a little ravine, spread to both hillsides, then over the entire divide to Terry gulch, Two Mile and Capitol Hill, an estimated acreage of about sixteen sections of valuable cedar, fir, pine and tamarack timber.

So one does not wonder at the United States forestry department straining every nerve to check so destructive an enemy to fine lumber as forest fires are.

"The humorous and enlivening vein of forest fire fighting was enjoyed by witnessing tenderfeet falling into creeks while skinning a log; by sharp mountaineer eyes finding the trails of all sorts of wild animals, such as bear, cougar, deer and bobcat, how, being fire-driven from one section to another they had crossed the 'burned over,' sometimes with enormous bounds, their paws, not being leather shod, feeling the hot ashes; how Mr. and Mrs. Bruin, uncomfortably overheated, had dug a hole in a mountain spring, wallowed in the water and soft mud to cool off, shook himself or herself upon the bank and left a long trail of yellow-mudded paws on fallen timber.

"Oh, for a gun or two to follow the trail of Mr. and Mrs. Bruin! But our task was not that of bagging wild animals, and, though we got occasional glimpses of bear—our mouths watering for a juicy bear steak—we were there for the appetite-giving exercise of climbing or descending enormously high hills to reach the fires, and then fight them, during the day, with chances for the night crew calling for help as well.

"That no man was lost, crippled or killed by falling timber, or burned to death, the men owe to the cool, level-headed leadership of Uncle Sam's forest rangers.

"The prayer for rain at last came. It was welcome, for it saved to the country no doubt scores of sections of valuable timber, and not a man in our crew but heartily welcomed it for that reason."

CANNON WILL BE DEFEATED

For Re-Election to the House, Says President Gompers.

Washington, Sept. 11.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, in his report yesterday to the executive council if that organization, declared that Speaker Cannon will be defeated for re-election to the house. He made a statement regarding his recent visit to Danville, the home of the speaker, and said that the reports received during that visit, and before and since, led him to believe that the prospect for Mr. Cannon's retirement is "very encouraging." Not only, he said, is the labor element opposed to him, but the reform element in general was actively antagonizing the return of Mr. Cannon to the house. The statement was part of a report on the general political situation and labor's participation. Mr. Gompers also discussed other congressional districts and made a general statement regarding the national situation. This subject will be covered in greater detail in an official report.

JUDGE DECLINES

To be Assessed for Campaign Purposes by Republican Committee.

Indianapolis, Sept. 11.—Judge Frank A. Roby of the appellate court, has refused to be assessed for campaign purposes by the Republican state committee and a letter that he wrote to George C. Dinwiddy, vice chairman of the committee, containing his refusal has been made public.

A short time ago when it was decided to make the assessments on Republican state officeholders as well as on candidates the matter was placed in the hands of Mr. Dinwiddy. He sent letters to the officials, among them being judges of the high courts. A letter was written to Judge Roby, informing him that his assessment had been fixed at $200 and requesting him to make the remittance promptly.

BRYAN IS HARD AFTER INDIANA

Hoosier State Made Pivotal One in Middle West Campaign.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Indiana is to be the pivotal state around which the Democratic campaign in the Middle West is to swing, and from now until election all the forces the national committee can summon will be brought into play to carry the Hoosier state for the Democrats.

After the speeches today in Poseyville and Evansville, William J. Bryan will return to Indiana, Sept. 25, and speak in Terre Haute.

John F. Lamb of Indiana, vice chairman of the advisory committee, who has secured Mr. Bryan's promise to speak twice in Indiana in October, says:

"There is no question about Indiana going for the Democratic ticket. If we can't carry Indiana, we can't carry any state in this part of the country. Bryan will speak twice in my state during October, but the dates and places have not been determined."

Bryan has informed the national committee that he desires that traveling men's bureaus be established in state headquartors in all debatable states.

A Paying Investment.

Mr. John White of 38 Highland avenue, Houlton, Me., says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

AGED MAIL CARRIER DEAD.

In Twenty-Five Years of Service He Walked 75,000 Miles.

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 11.—Charles Pittsmeier, who, as a carrier of the United States mail between Richmond and the village of Chester, scarcely lost a day from service during more than twenty-five years, and who during that time walked an aggregate distance of more than 75,000 miles, is dead, at his home in Chester. He was nearly 80 years of age.

Pittsmeir contracted year after year to carry the mail between Richmond and Chester, the distance between the towns being four miles. His small salary precluded the possibility of maintaining a horse, so Pittsmeier went afoot, trudging up and down hill for the round trip of eight miles six days in a week, and carrying two mail sacks over his shoulder. Fifty miles a week were covered in this manner, a total mileage for a year of more than 2,500 miles. In twenty years he had covered 50,000, and at that time said he was as fresh as a daisy, and thought he could cover 50,000 more.

He trudged back and forth seven years more, and his grand total would not be far from 75,000 miles. Pittsmeier probably would have continued in the service much longer than he did had it not been for the rural routes. When he heard that the postoffice at Chester was likely to be abolished and that his job of more than a quarter of a century would be taken away from him, he had no complaint to make, but he did not forsake Uncle Sam until the very last day that the old system was in vogue. Then Pittsmeier went to Chester to take a much-needed rest, and he was seen in Richmond few times thereafter.

KILLS GIRL AND HUSBAND.

Rejected Suitor Hopes He Will be Put to Death.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 11.—A terrible tragedy occurred at Volsk during a performance at a circus there. Some months ago Ivan Kuznetsoff, a young man of independent means, fell madly in love with Nadine Rostoff, a circus rider, aged 18. They became engaged to be married, bue the other day the girl told her fiance that they were not suited to each other and that each should marry in his or her own station. She hed decided, she said, to wed the juggler of the show.

Kuznetsoff disappeared soon after and the girl married the man of her choice. While she and her husband were performing together Kuznetsoff rushed into the arena, and, before any one could prevent him, he shot the bride and bridegroom dead. He then cheerfully surrendered himself to the police, declaring that he hoped his penalty would be death; otherwise he should have to commit suicide.

CATHOLIC FETE IN WESTMINSTER

Great Crowd Attends the High Mass Celebrated by Monsignor Amiette.

London, Sept. 10—Another great congregation, including dignitaries of the Catholic church, assembled in Westminster cathedral this morning, when pontifical high mass was celebrated by Monsignor Amiette, archbishop of Paris, assisted by several archbishops, bishops and canons, a full choir and soloists.

At the conclusion of the mass there were three sectional meetings in connection with the international eucharistic congress, which was opened last night. Two of them were conducted in English and the third in the French language. Cardinal Vincent Vanutfelli, the papal legatee, presided over the larger of the two English meetings. All the papers read dealt with the eucharist, and the contributors included Right Rev. Abbot Gasquet, who spoke on "The Holy Eucharist in Pre-Reformation Times;" Right Rev. Monsignor Canon Moyes, bishop of Northamtpon, whose subject was "The Reformation and the Mass," and Prince Max of Saxony, whose paper was entitled "The Teaching of St. John Chrysostom On the Blessed Eucharist."

Several other sectional meetings were held this afternoon and this evening at 8 there will be a great meeting in Albert hall.

NO PEACE IN SIGHT.

Decision of National Committee Repudiated by Scherr Faction.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Sept. 11.—Peace among the Republicans of West Virginia is not to follow the decision announced by the national officials, that decision being repudiated by the chairman of the Lincoln Republican party in a formal statement. It is in part, as follows:

"The decision, therefore, does not in the least affect the situation. The fight for clean candidates and purrer politics will go on without abatement, and there need be no uneasiness on the part of the friends of good government that Arnold C. Scherr, or any of the candidates on the Lincoln Republican state ticket, will retire from the field as long as Charles W. Swisher is a candidate for governor."

FIRE AS SEEN THROUGH EYES OF REV. G. L. MORRILL

Picturesque Minneapolis Pastor Tells of Trip to Range.

Says Hibbing is in Great Danger From Incendiaries.

Rev. G. L. Morrill, pastor of the Peoples' church, of Minneapolis, returned today from Hibbing and Chisholm, where he has been making investigations and securing views to be used in the monster mass meeting, to be held in Minneapolis, Sunday. At this meeting subscriptions will be taken for the relief of the fire sufferers.

"I smell like a smoked ham, and look like a broiled lobster," said Mr. Morrill, when asked of his impression of Hibbing and Chisholm. "I saw sights up there at Chisholm that would make a man sick. I saw one woman dying, while I held her almost dead baby in my arms. I prayed to God that the baby would die, also.

"I have seen many cases that would make a man revolt against fate, and I have seen things that makes a man proud of the fact that he is an American. The people are brave in the face of adversity. One young man, who is married, has lost his home and everything. He says that he is young and can endure any hardship. He is thankful that he is young enough to stand the hradship.

Predicts a Lynching.

"The danger at Hibbing is not over—not by any means. The danger is from within, rather than from the outside. Incendaries are about the town. There is going to be a lynching or a shooting at Hibbing before the danger is averted. Yesterday, an alarm of fire rang out. In a minute it seemed to me as if a thousand people were collected upon the street. They seemed to come from everywhere. Women were packing their valuables in trunks, ready to leave the town, and everyone is on the alert to prevent any fire within the limits of the city.

"Should a fire break out within the limits of the city, a catastrophe might happen. The town is so dark, from the smoke, that we could not see the train, within half a block. Should a fire break out within the city it might prove fatal.

"The danger lies now from some fire within the city. There is no doubt but that Montenegrins are trying to set the town on fire. They have sworn that they will burn Hibbing, and several attempts to burn the town have been made. Traces of attempts to set fire to buildings have been discovered.

"In Chisholm the Montenegrins are looting wherever they can find an opportunity. It would be a good example to shoot one of these men. A riot might be started by such an action and the guards have not sufficient arms or strength to take chances, just now.

"Lumber must be rushed to Chisholm and lumber and tar paper houses constructed. Clothing is needed very badly. Minneapolis is going to raise over $50,000 for the relief of the sufferers, besides the clothes and provisions we are going to send up there.

"It was an act of providence that the schoolhouse at Chisholm was saved. It has been turned into a hospital and a dispensary. Checks are kept upon everything and everything is honest and businesslike. I admire the courage and tenacity of the business men of Chisholm.

Mr. Morrill has secured pictures that will be used in the mass meeting at Minneapolis. They were taken by Mr. Morrill and a photographer at Chisholm. Today Mr. Morrill took some of the pictures to a local photographer and told him to have them ready in a short time. The photographer demurred.

"Do you know who I am?" asked the minister. The photographer replied that he did not. Mr. Morrill informed him who he was and told him he would have the mayor down there in ten minutes if he didn't finish the pictures. "This is a time of martial law," said Mr. Morrill. "There is no time to fuss."

Mr. Morrill will use all the facts he has collected and all his energies toward raising money, clothes and provisions for the fire sufferers. He has advertised the meeting in every street car in Minneapolis and says it will be a huge success.

HENNEPIN'S DONATION

County Will Raise $50,000 For Range Fire Funds.

Relief Committee Holds Meeting and Lays Plan of Action.

According to word received from Minneapolis, this afternoon, Hennepin county will raise a fund of $50,000 for the Chisholm fire sufferers. B. F. Nelson, one of the Flour City's most prominent business men, will arrive in the city tomorrow morning, on his way to the range, accompanied by a man who has had considerable experience in relief measures of the kind, and the man probably will be left on the ground to see that the Hennepin county fund is given its proper distribution.

At a meeting of the relief committee appointed by Gov. Johnson, held in Mayor Haven's office today, it was decided that Mayor Haven should visit the stricken district again tomorrow. He will meet Mr. Nelson at the Union depot, and the two will carry on their work of investigation together. The mayor, who is chairman of the committee, is already pretty well posted as to conditions on the range, but he will keep in the closest possible touch with matters, so as to be thoroughly posted at all times on just what is being done and just what should be done.

At the meeting this morning the situation was carefully gone over, and it was decided that it would be a wise move to appoint a local advisory committe of five at Chisholm, to act in conjunction with the relief committee, and lend assistance, especially in the way of information and advice, wherever possible.

It was also decided that it would be advisable to employ a man experienced in handling lumber and supplies, and in affairs connected with building, to remain on the ground at Chisholm and see that lumber and similar materials are given their proper distribution. N. J. Miller will also accompany Mayor Haven and B. F. Nelson to the range, and will assist them in their work of investigation into the needs of the fire sufferers.

OPENING DAY OF LADIES' STORE

Barre and Scott's Splendid New Establishment Open Tomorrow.

Tomorrow will be the opening day of Barre & Scott's new store at 18 West Superior street—a store particularly for the ladies of Duluth and vicinity. These will be welcomed tomorrow to see the magnificent display of exclusive wearables, including fine millinery, veilings, corsets, underwear, ribbons, walsts, jewelry, fancy goods, etc.

James W. Scott, who for eight years was at the head of an important department at Panton & White's, has associated in business with Mrs. L. M. Barre, and brings into the firm years of experience in the wants and the needs of the ladies of this city in the line of fine wearables. Mrs. Barre has for a long time been a recognized authority on fashionable millinery, and will contribute her wide experience in building up a business that is starting under so auspicious circumstances.

COPPER STOCKS LOWER AT CLOSE

Copper stocks gave promise of going higher at the opening today, but experienced a relapse later in the session and the close was rather soft. North Butte opened ex-dividend at $84.50, advanced to $84.87½, declined to $83.75 and closed at $83.50 bid and $85 asked. Amalgamated opened at $77.87½, declined to $77.75, rallied to $78, declined to $76.87½ and closed at $76.87½ bid.

Greene-Cananea went off from $11.12½ to $11 and closed at $11 bid and $11.12½ asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $119 and closed at $118.50 bid and $119 asked. Butte Coalition opened at $25.50, advanced to $25.75 and closed at $25.25 bid and $25.50 asked. Anaconda opened at $46.75, advanced to $47.25, declined to $46.25 and closed at $46 bid and $46.12½ asked.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $14.12½ and $14, and closed at $13.87½ bid and $14 asked. Globe sold at $4.75 and closed at $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked; Butte & Superior at $1.12½ and closed at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked; Mowitza at $3.75 and closed at $3.62½ bid and $3.87½ asked; Red Warrior at $5.50 and $5.62½ and closed at $5.50 bid and $5.75 asked; Copper Gulf at $7.25 and closed at $7 bid and $7.25 asked; Carman at $4.25 and closed at $4.12½ bid and $4.37½ asked. Copper Queen of Idaho at $1.37½ and closed at $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked.

Savana was inactive and closed at $4.50 bid and $5 asked; Calumet & Sonora at $10 bid and $10.25 asked, and Denn-Arizona at $8.50 bid and $8.62½ asked. Butte-Ballaklava sold at $9.87½ and closed at $9.25 bid and $9.50 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $3 and closed at $2.87½ bid and $3 asked.

* * *

Good news continues to come in the Jasper Copper Company's claims in the big dyke on the north shore. The ore find there is thought to be a continuation of the Calumet & Hecla lode and considerable interest in the proposition is being taken by a number of Duluth people, who are prominently interested in the company.

BANK SUES FOR AMOUNT OF NOTE

Almost simultaneously with the passing of the affairs of A. Booth & Co. into the hands of a receiver in Chicago, the American Exchange Bank filed suit against the company in the district court here for $25,000, claimed to be due on a promissory note.

The complaint, which was filed yesterday afternoon, sets forth that the company executed a promissory note in this city March 5, last, for $25,000, due Sept. 8. The note became due Wednesday, but was not met and the suit was immediately filed.

The company is said to be involved to the extent of about $3,000,000, of which amount banks in different parts of the country are said to hold $1,750,000. The refusal of the banks to advance any more money is given as the cause of the failure.

SUES ON MINING DEAL.

Lydia G. Becker this morning filed suit through H. B. Fryberger, her attorney, against I. Freimuth for $5,225, claimed to be due as the result of a stock deal. She claims that she agreed in July, 1907, to sell 2,000 shares of Butte-Ballaklava at $5 a share, for which she was to receive from the defendant 1,000 shares. She claims that she sold the 2,000 shares, but received only 450 of the promised 1,000 shares. She asks for damages on the basis of the market price of the stock at the time of bringing the suit, $8.50 a share.

MARINE NEWS

NOT ON FRIDAY, SAYS ENGINEER

The Gilchrist Fleet Delayed Because an Engineer is Superstitious.

The whole Gilchrist fleet of boats at anchor in the bay is being held up because a man is superstitious. In spite of the fact that the man in charge of the fleet first coaxed, teased and then got mad and said things and made the ozone blue all around him, this man, for he is an engineer, still refused to budge.

It happened in this way. The owners of the fleet wished to send the boats to anchor over in one of the slips at Superior on account of the current in the channel, which makes the boats rub against one another and at times does quiet a little damage.

They informed the captain, who is in charge, and he in turn asked the engineer to get a crew of men and start work this morning connecting up the pipes in the different boats. Here is where the rub came. Anyone who woke up this morning knows it is Friday. This day of all days is the day that boat men are more superstitious of and this man is no exception to the rule. "No sir. Not on Friday," and that settled it so far as he was concerned.

No amount of persuasion could make him change his mind and the work will not be begin until tomorrow morning.

Sunday morning the work of moving the boats to their winter quarters will be started, if the boats are in shape for moving by that time. The owners have decided not to send out any more boats this year, so that they will not again be under steam until next spring.

IS WIDELY DISCUSSED

Bede's Speech is Almost Sole Topic of Political Gossip.

Mr. Miller's Reply to Attack on His Personal Character.

Today, the topic, under discussion, upon the street, in the lobbies of the hotels, and in all the places where men usually discuss politics, is the Bede speech of last night and the possible effect it will have upon the primaries, next Tuesday.

It may, or may not have been a result of the speech of Congressman Bede, but this morning the long end of the betting on Miller took a sudden jump, going from 12 to 10, which were the quoted odds yesterday, to 15 to 10 this morning. Many believe that this skyward jump to be the result of the Bede utterances last night.

The Bede speech is the one choice bit of gossip of the day. "What do you think will be the effect of the Bede speech?" is the question that is asked upon all sides. It is asked by men who have not been heard to express a political opinion or ask a political question this campaign.

The general belief seems to be that Congressman Bede hurt his chances of nomination by the speech. There are some who believe that the speech will gain Mr. Bede votes, but those who hold this opinion, apparently represent the minority.

One thing is certain—the speech last night stimulated interest in a very interesting campaign and the last few days of the campaign will be of a more strenuous nature.

Mr. Miller has not yet replied to Congressman Bede's attack upon his public record. When informed of Mr. Bede's personal attack last evening, Mr. Miller made the following written statement:

"While it is most painful to me to learn that he is disposed to resort to personal insinuations and misrepresentations, it is not entirely a surprise. For some time I have known that he has been stealthily circulating this story in many and various forms, but never before in such a way that it could be met and refuted. At last he has resorted to a public utterance, and this calls for a brief statement of the facts. They are as follows:

"Fifteen years ago, when I had just attained the age of 21, and was then a student, I was married to a most estimable young woman, with the understanding that I should continue with my education. I was earning the funds with which to secure my education, and did earn them entirely myself by working nights, Sundays and on holidays. I was occupied many years in this way, contributing as liberally as I could at the same time to the support of my family. During these years my wife remained at home, living with her people, as had been agreed. We gradually drifted apart, until it seemed that the interests of both would best be served by a legal separation. This took place many years ago, and at my own request the decree of separation provided for the payment of a stated sum in the way of alimony. I paid every dollar of this up until my former wife remarried, and ever since have, now do, and always will contribute for the support of our child. She married again many years ago, most happily, and is now living in peace and happiness. She is a neighbor of my mother at the present time; they are on the most friendly terms and visit each other constantly. I, too, have remarried most happily, and this action on the part of my opponent serves but to bring pain to two families, and is a method of campaigning I do not believe the people will indorse. As further evidence of the friendly relations that exist among us primarily interested, I may be allowed to state that my former brother-in-law was recently in Duluth and occupied some time working to advance my interests.

"It is most painful to me and to other innocent parties to have t matter of this kind dragged into public view, but such conduct as my opponent has seen fit to resort to requires a statement of the facts."

WARSHIPS COAL UP AT ALBANY

Complete 13,000 Mile Voyage From Melbourne in Six Days.

Albany, West Australia, Sept. 11.—The American battleships arrived here after a 1,300 mile voyage from Melbourne, at 7 this morning.

Half a mile off King Point they formed a square and exchanged salutes with the fort, the British cruiser Gibraltar and the Chilean training ship, General Baquedano.

At 10 a section headed by the Connecticut, weighed anchor and proceeded to Princess Royal harbor, where the coaling and shipping piers are, and decks were cleared for taking in fuel.

The harbor is brilliant with flags of various nations, and the American colors predominate.

On the run from Melbourne the ships engaged in battle maneuvers day and night and are making preparations for the target shooting and maneuvers in Manila bay, in November. These operations are to be the most important ever carried on by the American navy.

Fine weather was experienced during the trip from Melbourne, from which port the fleet sailed last Saturday morning. The ships encountered smooth seas and fair winds.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 11.—H. B. Johnson company's tannery with all its contents was destroyed by fire today with a loss of $002000; insurance, $150,000. Matthews McCartney, a fireman was badly hurt.

Worst of Flood Over.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 11.—No lives lost, no one injured, $6,000 property loss and the streets practically clear of water, summarizes the situation so far as the flood is concerned today. The rain stopped last night and by morning practically all the waters had drained off the flooded district and Jacksonville citizens looked with relief on the situation.

FLAMES MENACE MORE VILLAGES

Raging Bush Fires Surround Port Arthur and Fort Williams.

Port Arthur, Ont., Sept. 11.—Bush fires surround Port Arthur and Fort Williams, and all day yesterday firemen and citizens fought the flames.

The whole country east and west is ablaze and the fire is gaining great headway. On Thunder Cape the whole section is lighted up with flames from forest fires. East of here, along the Canadian Pacific railway, it is reported that the worst fires in the history of the country are raging, and that thousands of dollars' worth of timber is ablaze.

Along the Duluth extension several villages are threatened. According to a report received, the fire is only a short distance from the village of Hymers. From the international boundary to Hymers, a distance of thirty miles, the whole country is ablaze.

Forest fires destroyed the camp of George Mooring on Pigeon river, yesterday, with the complete outfit. One camp owned by the Pigeon River company and located on Arrow river, was totally destroyed today, while another, owned by the same company, was partially destroyed. The fire at Thunder Cap is still burning, and Silver Islet buildings are believed to be in great danger.

UNION LABOR AS LIFE PROTECTOR

Workmen's Committee Reports on Fatalities Among Employes.

New York, Sept. 11.—Fifty-five men have bee nkilled in building the new Blackwells' Island bridge over East river, according to the report of a committee of the central federation union appointed to ascertain the fatalities in that work. The committee also found that fifteen workmen have suffered death in the Chelsea dock improvements. The workmen, who investigated said the city inspectors tried to conceal the loss of life, which the union men attribute to the employment of non-union men inexperienced at work at lofty heights. The investigators declared that no life has been lost in building the new Manhattan bridge where union labor is employed.

COURTS ON HEAVY GRIND

All three judges in district court were occupied this morning with cases that were held over from yesterday. In Judge Cant's court, the taking of testimony in the case of Amelia Haug vs. John Kroft continued. Before Judge Ensign the hearing of the case of Anton Hovland against the city of Duluth continued, before Judge Dibell, the damage suit of Konstu R. Serrell against the W. T. Bailey Lumber company was up. Serrell was on the stand nearly all morning in the last named case. He exhibited his scars to the judge and jury, and under direct and cross-examination told the story of the accident, which injured his leg, so that he has been unable to work since, he says. He is suing for $2,000 for injuries sustained while employed in the sawmill of the company at Virginia. The case was tried once before and a verdict of $1,500 in Serrell's favor returned. The defendants obtained a new trial.

The jury in the case of E. P. Hoel against John Olson returned a verdict in favor of Hoel yesterday for $282.05. Hoel alleged that Olson owed him the money and made Martin & Co. and J. O. Hill defendants in garnishment proceedings. Olson had a contract to furnish pulpwood and ties to Martin & Co. and assigned it to Hill. Hoel attached the money due Hill and the jury decided that it should go to Hoel.

The grand jury made no report yesterday afternoon or this morning, and is still busy in considering cases. Fifteen indictments have been returned thus far, and there are more than that many cases still to be considered.

FIRE LINES ARE DRAWING CLOSER

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Locally the fire lines are drawing closer in, blown by the winds, the woods at the north side of town near Eleventh avenue being afire and also the brush a short distance to the northwest and between the Duluth & Iron Range tracks. Luckily the wind being from the southwest carries the flames away from the town. The fire northeast of Waldo Wednesday and yesterday is reported to have destroyed a farmhouse belonging to Anderson & Tinan of this place. The Knife River valley, which three days ago appeared to be free from fire is now heavy with smoke and fires are smoldering in every direction. The big fire of Wednesday is threatening many of the settlers located there. There are many new settlers in the outlying districts who may have suffered loss, but nothing will be heard until the danger is over, as no one can be spared to leave their property.

The fire zones yesterday afternoon were near Skibo, where the two mills and some piles of ties were in danger. On account of the heavy winds many men were engaged protecting the property and an engine was sent from here to assist in the work. The Iron Range has also moved ona of its extra gangs to Skibo to work and watch property in that vicinity.

The worst fire was near the Adriatic mine about two miles east of Mesaba station, where about 100 men are employed, and only a desperate fight, assisted by two Duluth & Iron Range engines and crews saved the mining location and buildings. The people are moving out of their homes for a time, and are ready to abandon the place. The place is still in danger, for near midnight many people still had their goods loaded into some boxcars ready to be taken out by the train crew there should things become worse. Near Palmers a big fire was raging and burning towards the village of Knife River.

BITTEN BY SAVAGE DOG

Two Older Boys Set Ugly Animal on Ralph McIntosh.

Angered Because He Refused Them a Ride in His Cart.

Ralph McIntosh, the 8-year-old son of Mrs. Myrtle McIntosh, 6120 Cody street, is suffering from a severe bite inflicted yesterday afternoon by a dog, which is alleged to have been set upon him by two older playmates.

Mrs. McIntosh this morning visited the West Duluth police station and entered a complaint against John Washey, age 14, owner of the dog, and Arnold Erickson, whom she claims deliberately "sicked" an ugly dog upon her little son. She states that her son was playing with a toy cart on the street, when the other two boys came up and asked for a ride, which was refused them. This provoked the two youngsters and they called their dog, and induced him to attack young McIntosh. The dog, which is said to be of an ugly disposition at the best, set his teeth in the calf of the little lad's leg, badly lacerating it.

The wound, which was dressed this morning by a physician, had to be cauterized, making an ugly sore. How dangerous the bite is, cannot be determined for two or three days. Hydrophobia or blood-poisoning may result.

SUIT AGAINST CITY.

Anton Hovland Claims He Was Injured on Duluth Bridge.

For injuries Anton Hovland alleges he received owing to the unsafe condition of the bridge on Seventy-first avenue west, he is suing the city for $2,118.

The case was started yesterday in the Hovland claims that on April 13 last, while he was driving across the bridge, the front wheels of his wagon broke through the rotten planks, and he was thrown off the seat and in striking, he sustained injuries to his head, dislocated his shoulder and was hurt about the chest.

For the injuries he is asking $2,000 and $35 for damages to the wagon, and $8 for medical attendance. John Jenswold is the attorney for the plaintiff, and E. H. Morgan is defending the city.

A SAD CASE.

J. C. Ellingson, Asthma Victim, May Have to Appeal to Charity.

After three years of suffering from asthma, J. C. Ellingson of Sixty-eighth avenue west, has at last about given up the struggle for a livelihood for his wife and two little children.

The disease has a strong hold upon him, and he has little hope of ever being cured permanently. He has fought along as best he could to provide for his family, all the time physically unfitted for work, but he claims he is no longer able to continue the fight.

Poverty has overtaken him, and he is in despair. He now fears that he will have to call upon charity to take charge of himself and family, as he is unable to provide for them any longer.

"THE SILENCE OF GOD."

Evangelist Gives Stirring Talk to West Duluth Audience.

"The Silence of God," was the subject of a very interesting address by Rev. E. H. Rasmussen, evangelist, last evening, at the West Duluth Baptist church.

From the text, "All of these things hast thou done, yet have I kept silent," the evangelist showed how the silence of God is often a marvel to thinking people.

"Though men break His laws, He is silent," he said. "Though they blaspheme His name, misrepresent His truth, oppose His work, He is silent. This silence of God leads the thoughtless to infer that God is helpless, or that He does not care, two most dangerous mistakes." The evangelist made a most impressive appeal for better Christian living.

The meetings will continue through next week. Tonight Mr. Rasmussen will preach on the topic, "The Supreme Question." A male chorus has been organized and will assist in the singing.

Celebrate Anniversary.

West Duluth tent, No. 2, K. O. T. M., will celebrate the silver anniversary of the order, Monday evening, at the Great Eastern hall. The members of the tent are making an effort to get Edward H. Haas of St. Paul, grand commander of the state, to come to West Duluth for that evening and make an address. An elaborate program has been planned for the entertainment. It will consist of literary, musical and oratorical numbers. The best local talent will take part in the celebration.

"BILL" MISSING.

West Duluth Police Cannot Locate Notorious Pair of Thieves.

The West Duluth police after three days' search have been unable to locate "Single-eye" Bill, a thief and a general bad character of the range, and his alleged partner, Abel Pullekman, who are suspected of practicing their handiwork in a West Duluth boarding house.

The range man last Friday was released from the county jail after serving sixty days on the rock pile for a larceny committed at Tower. He is a brother of the man who stole a horse and buggy not long ago at one of the range towns, and is said to be an all around bad character. He, with Pullekman, put up at a boarding house at 6 South Sixtieth avenue west, from which place they suddenly departed Tuesday morning, and nothing has been seen of them since.

Tuesday morning at the boarding house Henry Hill missed a gold watch with "H. H." engraved on its lid, valued at $40, and a gold watch chain. Bjnimar Oksonen was out a brand new black suit of clothes and Theodore Haski is lacking a pair of shoes.

"Single-eye" is described as a man of medium height, dark hair, and is minus his left eye. He is about 19 years old, but appears to be much older. Pullekman has light hair, is about five feet eight inches and is 24 years old.

The police are of the opinion that they have returned to the range. No trace can be found of them in West Duluth.

Football Challenge.

The Longfellow school football team of West Duluth challenges any team in the city, averaging from 135 to 150 pounds. Games are preferred with the Irving Tigers and out of town teams. Address Manager, 524 Fifty-seventh avenue west, West Duluth, old telephone 3173-M, or new 3262-D.

Cummings Improving.

Robert Cummings, who was yesterday overcome by heat at the Zenith Furnace company, is today reported as being much better. He was taken to the St. Mary's hospital, where for a time his condition was very serious. He was delirious and developed symptoms similar to those of a severe case of sunstroke. Cummings is a resident of West Duluth.

G. L. Shoub Injured.

While working on a transformer yesterday afternoon at the American Carbolite plant, G. L. Shoub, superintendent, fell, sustaining injuries to his back and cuts about his head. His fall was due to a shock he received from a wire, while connecting meters. He was slightly burned and the shock, which stunned him for the moment, caused him to lose his balance. He was taken to the Duluth hospital. His injuries are not of a serious nature.

CAUGHT BY THE FIRES

A. E. Zimmerman and R. E. Carey North of Grand Marais.

Axel E. Zimmerman of 2003 West Fourth street, deputy city clerk, and Richard E. Carey of 806 East Twelfth street, a timber cruiser, are in the burning forests north of Gran Marais. They were due home last Sunday, but not a word has been received from them. It was hoped they would arrive on the Booth boat this morning, but they failed to put in an appearance.

Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Carey left Duluth about two weeks ago to visit some stone and timber claims in the district north of Grand Marais. They took along provisions sufficient to last them until last Sunday, and said they would be home on the Sunday boat. Their absence does not necessarily mean that they have lost their lives in the fires, but it is assumed they have been cut off by the flames and are unable to get to the lake shore.

They did not take along enough provisions to last as long as this, but it is believed that they would be able to replenish their supply at the homes of some of the settlers in the district. The chances are thought to be that, when the fires became dangerous, they cast their lot with some of the settlers in the interior, and remained to fight the flames, until all danger was passed, or until an opening offered whereby they could make their way to the lake shore.

It is thought possible that the two men, finding they could not get back to Grand Marais, worked their way northwards towards Gun Flint lake, intending to board a Canadian Northern train there and go to Port Arthur, where they could board a boat for Duluth. Trains run only once or twice a week over this road, so there might be considerable delay in getting back to civilization.

Even though they ran out of eatables, and were unable to make connections with the settlers, Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Carey would not be in danger of starvation, for besides their guns they were well equipped with fishing tackle, and there is plenty of fish in the streams and lakes in the country north of Grand Marais.

RECORD OF THE DULUTH NEWS TRIBUNE'S CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

What He Says:

MILLER REPLIES TO ADAM BEDE'S ATTACK.

When informed of Mr. Bede's attack upon him in his Armory speech, last night, Mr. Miller said:

"While it is most painful to me to learn that he is disposed to resort to personal insinuations and misrepresentations, it is not entirely a surprise. For some time I have known that he has been stealthily circulating this story in many and various forms, but never before in such a way that it could be met and refuted. At last he has resorted to a public utterance, and this calls for a brief statement of the facts. They are as follows:

"Fifteen years ago, when I had just attained the age of 21, and was then a student, I was married to a most estimable young woman, with the understanding that I should continue with my education. I was earning the funds with which to secure my education, and did earn them entirely myself by working nights, Sundays and on holidays. I was occupied many years in this way, contributing as liberally as I could at the same time to the support of my family. During these years my wife remained at home, living with her people, as had been agreed. We gradually drifted apart, until it seemed that the interests of both would best be served by a legal separation. This took place many years ago, and at my own request the decree of separation provided for the payment of a stated sum in the way of alimony. I paid every dollar of this up until my former wife remarried, and ever since have, now do, and always will contribute for the support of our child. She married again many years ago, most happily, and is now living in peace and happiness. She is a neighbor of my mother's at the present time; they are on the most friendly terms and visit each other constantly. I, too, have remarried most happily, and this action on the part of my opponent serves but to bring pain to two families and is a method of campaigning I do not believe the people will indorse. As further evidence of the friendly relations that exist among us primarily interested, I may be allowed to state that my former brother-in-law was recently in Duluth and occupied some time working to advance my interests.

"It is most painful to me and to other innocent parties to have a matter of this kind dragged into public view, but such conduct as my opponent has seen fit to resort to, requires a statement of the facts.

"CLARENCE B. MILLER."

What His Wife Said:

State of Minnesota, County of Olmsted. —ss.

District Court, Third Judicial District.

Clarence B. Miller, Plaintiff.

vs.

Minnie Miller, Defendant.

Defendant, answering the complaint of the plaintiff herein, denies that she deserted plaintiff as alleged in said complaint, or that she ever deserted him, or that she has ever refused to live with him as his wife. She admits all the other allegations of the complaint.

For further answer and cross-bill, the defendant alleges that on August 7, 1893, at Ellsworth, Wisconsin, the defendant, Minnie Miller, was married to the plaintiff Clarence B. Miller. They were then both residents of this State, and defendant has ever since resided therein. She now resides in Olmsted County, and the plaintiff resides in St. Louis County, Minnesota. She is now thirty years of age, and plaintiff is twenty-eight years of age. One child was born of said union. He is named Maurice L. Miller, and was born September 19, 1894, and is and always has been in the custody and care of defendant.

After their said marriage, plaintiff and defendant lived and cohabited together in Minneapolis, Minnesota, where plaintiff was attending the State University as a student, until October or November, 1893, when he told her to go to her parents' home at Oronoco, that he could not further support her until he finished his education. She thereupon came to Oronoco, Minnesota, and has resided there and thereabouts ever since. His visits to her were very infrequent thereafter, and he contributed but very lightly to the support of her and said child until after he graduated from the University in the year 1895. He then taught school at Rushford, Minnesota, during the years 1896, 1897 and 1898. During the first year that he taught at Rushford he sent her on an average of $20 per month, but seldom came to see her. His remittances of money then dwindled down gradually until they finally failed altogether and he very seldom came to see her;

In February, 1899, plaintiff came to live with her at Pine Island, Minnesota, but he only stayed a few days. He then wilfully and without cause deserted defendant altogether, and has ever since continued and still does continue to live separate and apart from defendant, without any sufficient cause or reason, and against her will and without her consent.

Defendant has always been to plaintiff a true and faithful wife, and has kept her marriage vows, and conducted herself as a faithful and obedient wife; but he, disregarding his duty to her, and in violation of his marriage vows, has been wilfully absent from her for more than one year last past, without any cause or justification therefor so far as defendant is concerned.

Defendant has no property, but is supporting herself and her said child at Oronoco, Minnesota, working as a dressmaker. Plaintiff has no property to defendant's knowledge, except his office library and fixtures. He is a lawyer by profession, now practising at Duluth, Minnesota. Defendant is informed and believes that he has been enjoying a reasonable living income of at least $100 per month, and that he is rising in his profession.

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays judgment that she be granted a divorce from plaintiff, that said bonds of matrimony be dissolved, that she be awarded the custody and care of said child, that she recover costs and disbursements, fifty dollars ($50) attorney fees, and a permanent alimony of twenty-five dollars ($25) per month, and she prays such other and further judgment and relief as to the court shall seem proper.

Dated, Rochester, Minnesota, January, 19th, A. D. 1901.

GEO. J. ALLEN,
Defendant's Attorney.

State of Minnesota, County of Olmsted. —ss.

Minnie Miller of said County, being duly sworn, says she is the defendant named in the foregoing answer, that she has heard the same read, and knows the contents thereof, and that it is true of her own knowledge, except as to those matters therein stated on her information and belief, and as to those matters that she believes it to be true.

MINNIE MILLER.

Sworn to before me this January 21, 1901.

WM. M. PHELPS,
Nortary Public.

(Notarial Seal.)

What the Court Said:

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF Olmsted.—ss.

District Court, Third Judicial District.

Clarence B. Miller, Plainiff, vs.

Minnie Miller, Defendant.

This cause, being at issue, came on to be heard before the Court without a jury, on February 19, 1901, at the Court House in Rochester in said County, pursuant to stipulation on file, the plaintff appearing by his attorney, Harold J. Richardson, Esq., and the defendant appearing with her attorney, George J. Allen, Esq. The plaintiff produced no evidence. The defendant submitted proofs of the allegations of her answer and cross-bill, and the Court having heard the evidence and duly considered the same, finds the facts as follows:

That on August 7, 1893, at Ellsworth, Wisconsin, the defendant Minnie Miller, was married to the plaintiff, Clarence B. Miller. They were then both residents of the State of Minnesota, and defendant has ever since resided therein. She now resides in Olmsted County, and plaintiff resides in St. Louis County, Minnesota. She is now thirty years of age, and plaintiff is twenty-eight years of age. One child was born of said union. He is named Maurice L. Miller, and was born September 19, 1894, and is and always has been in the custody and care of defendant.

In February, 1899, plaintiff and without cause deserted defendant, and has ever since continued, and still does continue, to live separate and apart from defendant, without any sufficient cause or reason, and against her will and without her consent.

Defendant has no property, but is supporting herself and her said child at Oronoco, Minnesota, working as a dressmaker. Plaintiff is a lawyer by profession, now practicing at Duluth, Minnesota.

The plaintiff, by his attorney, consented in open court that the defendant herein be allowed fifty dollars for attorney fees, ten dollars for suit money, and twenty-five dollars per month as alimony, until further ordered by the Court, to be paid monthly on the first week of each and every calendar month hereafter, the same to be made a part of the findings and decree herein.

As conclusions of law the Court finds:

1st. That the defendant Minnie Miller, is entitled to judgement that the marriage contract heretofore existing between her and the plaintiff, Clarence B. Miller, be dissolved forever, and each of the parties hereto forever divorced.

2nd. That the defendant, Minnie Miller is entitled to have the complete custody, care and control of said child, Maurice L. Miller.

3rd. That the defendant, Minnie Miller, is entitled to an alimony from plaintiff of twenty-five dollars per month, until further ordered, to be paid monthly on the first week of each and every calendar month hereafter, by said Clarence B. Miller to said Minnie Miller, for the use and support of said Minnie Miller and her said child, Maurice L. Miller.

4th. That defendant, Minnie Miller, is entitled to recover of said Clarence B. Miller, the sum of fifty dollars for attorney's fees in this action and ten dollars for suit money herein.

Let judgement be entered accordingly.

Dated February 19th, A. D. 1901.

ARTHUR H. SNOW,
Judge of said Court.

WEST END

PROGRAM IS COMPLETED

Exercises at Dedication of New Church Are Elaborate.

The Norwegian-Danish Methodists Will Hold Special Services.

Arrangements for the dedication of the handsome new First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church at Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, Sunday, have practically been completed and the program for the day has been announced.

It is not thought now that Rev. Dr. Forbes, formerly of Duluth but now of Philadelphia, will be able to be present to deliver the principal sermon. However, if he should arrive, he will be given an important part in the program.

While the dedication proper will not take place until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the morning services and exercises will take on a special dedicatory significance, as will the meeting of the Epworth league and the regular service in the evening.

Tuesday evening the Ladies' Aid society of the church will give a dedication festival, when a number of prominent clergymen will be present and speak.

Following is the complete program for Sunday:

LOOKING FOR FORGER.

Several West end business houses are anxious to see the police get their clutches on a forger, who succeeded in working them for different amounts during the past week.

He passed a number of bogus checks made out to Knute P. Hagland and signed by the National Biscuit company. West enders were victimized by the forgeries out of amounts ranging from $10 to $25. The checks were drawn on the American Exchange bank.

West End Shortrails.

Miss Dagne Olson of Christiania, Norway, delivered a missionary address last evening at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church.

The Epworth League of the First Swedish M. E. church met last evening with Mr. and Mrs. John Sundeen of 2113 West Second street.

Members of Beta Council, Modern Samaritans, are making great preparations for their exercises Monday evening, when a class of nearly half a hundred will be initiated. Delegations from Alpha Council and the Imperial council will be present and an elaborate program is being arranged.

Mrs. L. R. Cox entertained Wednesday evening at a bundle shower for Miss Maud Folger, whose marriage takes place soon.

Miss Louise Linstin and Swan P. Eckenberg were married this week by Rev. Carl G. Olson, pastor of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church. Another ceremony performed by Rev. Mr. Olson was that which joined Miss Cora Alberg and Joseph Peterson. Both couples will make their homes in the West end.

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the First Swedish Baptist church will meet Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, with Mrs. Johnson of 2727 West Eleventh street.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Swedish Baptist church is planning a festival for Sept. 29, when Rev. K. A. Sundeen, a former pastor will be the guest of honor.

Rev. J. E Klingberg of New Briton, Conn., will be in Duluth for a few days next week, after the Swedish Baptist conference at St. Paul.

N. E. Ericson and Theodore Gustafson are in St. Paul, attending the national conference of the Swedish Baptist churches in America.

Victor Juten and H. M. Falk have gone to Ironwood on a hunting trip.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dietrich have returned from the Twin Cities.

A marshmallow roast will be a feature of the hayrack ride to Smithville, the young people of the Second Presbyterian church will enjoy this evening.

WHEAT HAS EASY TONE

Drops Off After Bulge in Sympathy With Corn.

Flax Is Little Lower at the End of Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, Sept. 11.—Wheat gathered some strength during the day, out of sympathy with the strong coarse grain market in Chicago, but a reaction followed, which took prices down, the close showing a loss from yesterday in all the American markets. The early weakness was largely on the liberal Northwestern movement.

The movement from Argentina was fairly liberal and the cables had a weaker tone. The Modern Miller is rather bullish this week. It says:

"Drought conditions prevent plowing in the winter wheat belt, except the few sections that have had rain recently. Farmers refrain from seeding, where the ground is prepared, fearing to sow in the dust, and will wait for rain. If dry weather is prolonged, much further, a reduced acreage in winter wheat is expected."

Liverpool closed ⅛d lower, Budapest 1⅜c lower and Berlin ¼c higher.

The September option closed ¼c lower in Duluth, ⅞-¾c lower in Chicago, unchanged for new wheat in Minneapolis, and ⅛c lower in St. Louis and Kansas City. The October option closed ⅛c lower in Winnipeg. Comparison on New York was not obtainable. The December option closed ¼c lower in Duluth and Winnipeg, ⅝c lower in Chicago and New York, ½c lower for new wheat in Minneapolis, ¼-⅜c lower in St. Louis and ⅜-½c lower in Kansas City.

September corn closed ⅜c higher in Chicago and ¾@⅞d higher in Liverpool. September oats closed ⅜c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The wheat market was apathetic at the opening. The undertone showed firmness and values were ¼@⅜d higher and further gained ⅛d during the early trading. Strength was the result of the firmer American cables yesterday, lighter American Northwest movement and fears of manipulation at Chicago. Later, there was some pressure to sell, and the early advance was lost and more too, as offerings became larger and some profit-taking. This selling was attributed to the free offerings of new Argentine and Austrian wheat, and the continued liberal Argentine shipments for the week, and excellent crop prospects in both of those countries. At mid-day, the market was easy and ⅛d lower than Thursday.

"Corn was firm, ⅛@⅜d higher at the opening, and further advanced ¾d during the early trading. Support was the result of the unfavorable American crop advices, small Argentine shipments for the week, and the decrease in the visible supply there. At mid-day, the market was firm and ½@⅝d higher than Thursday."

Car receipts at Duluth were 503 against 89 last year, and at Minneapolis 491 against 154 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 994 against 243 last year. Chicago received 93 against 164 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were: 1,551,000 bushels, last year, 695,000 bushels. Shipments, 775,000, last year 585,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated, 211,000 bushels.

Argentine shipment of wheat were: 1,256,000 bushels, against 1,616,000 bushels last week and 424,000 bushels a year ago.

Primary receipts of corn were: 411,000 bushels, last year, 716,000 bushels. Shipments 272,000 bushels, last year, 699,000 bushels.

Argentine shipments of corn were: 1,230,000 bushels against 2,705,000 bushels a year ago.

Wheat was fairly active in Duluth, September wheat opened ¾c higher at $1.00⅝, declined to 99¾c and closed there, a loss of ¾c from yesterday. December wheat opened unchanged at 99¾c, advanced to $1.00⅛, declined to $1, rallied to $1.00⅛ and declined by the close to 90½c, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. May wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.03⅞, went to $1.04¼ and declined by the close to $1.03½, a loss of ¼c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed unchanged and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1c over September for No. 1 northern.

Flax was fairly active and closed a little easier. September flax opened unchanged at $1.25¾, advanced to $1.26, declined to $1.25¼ and closed there, a loss of ½c from yesterday. October flax opened unchanged at $1.24⅜, advanced to $1.25, declined to $1.24¼ and closed at $1.24½, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. November flax opened unchanged at $1.24⅜, advanced to $1.25, declined to $1.24¼ and closed at $1.24½, a loss of ½c from yesterday. December flax opened unchanged at $1.25¼ and declined by the close to $1.22¼, a loss of 1c from yesterday.

Cheaper grades of barley were marked up 1c and other coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on the track, $1.01¾. To arrive: No. 1 northern, $1.00¾. No. 2 northern 98¾c. On track: No. 1 northern $1.00¾. No. 2 northern 98¾c September, 99¾c; December, 99½; May $1.03½. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Again Given Good Support by Bull Leaders.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—The wheat market was again given good support by bull leaders today, and, as a result, a firm tone prevailed during early trading. Receipts in the Northwest were again liberal, but the heavy movement was offset by a continued urgent demand for cash wheat by millers. Weather throughout the wheat growing sections of the United States and Canada was still clear. December opened a shade lower to ⅜@½c higher at 97¾c to 98¼c, and for a time held within that range. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 1,087 cars, against 5966 cars last week and 407 cars a year ago.

Bullish sentiment was very strong the first hour and prices steadily advanced, the high point for December being reached at 98¾c. During the last half of the day the market was subjected to heavy realizing sales which resulted in a loss of all the earlier gains. December declining to 97⅜@½c. The market closed weak at net losses of ¼@⅜c to ⅝@¾c with December at 97½c.

Corn touched new high record marks for the season on an active general demand, September selling at 81c, December at 70⅜c and May at 65⅜c. Offerings were light. The absence of rain in the corn belt was the main reason for the bullish enthusiasm displayed early in the session. Prices at the start were ½c to ¾c higher, with December at 70c to 70⅜c. For a time the market held steady at the advance December selling within the opening range. Local receipts were 267 cars, with 35 of contract grade.

The September delivery later touched 81¾c. The market weakened during the last part of the session on profit-taking. The new crop months showed the greatest weakness and December sold to 69⅜c. The market closed weak and near the lowest point, with December ⅛@¼c lower at 69½@⅝c.

Trade in oats was fairly active and the market was firm, owing to the strength of wheat and corn. December opened ½c to ¼c higher at 50⅜c to 50⅞c, and sold at 50⅝@⅞c. Local receipts were 185 cars.

Provisions were firm owing to the strength of live hogs and corn. Trade was quiet. At the opening prices were 2½c to 7½c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, Sept. 11.—Against approximately 1,000 cars of wheat in Minneapolis and Duluth, prices advanced sharply early in the day. Minneapolis got 491 cars, Duluth 503 and Winnipeg 232. These three markets with 1,226 against 297 last year showed four cars for one while yesterday it was 3 for 1. But Chicago got only 93 against 164 and was a strong market for coarse grains because of dry weather Southwest. This had a stimulating effect here, Minneapolis, despite the big wheat receipts promises an increase of only 50,000 bushels in stocks for the week.

Later on free selling, the market eased off, the early gain was lost and the close was easy. September opened 99¾c; high, $1.01⅛; low, 99¾c; close, 99¾c; old September opened $1.00¼; high, $1.02; low, $1.00¾; close, $1.00¼. December opened $1.00½; high, $1.01⅞; low, $1.00¼@¼; close, $1.00⅛@¼. Old December closed $1.00⅜. May wheat closed $1.04.

Cash tables were cleaned up and the wheat sold readily from the start. Local and outside millers bought in. No. 1 Northern sold at 2½c over September and No. 2 went at about September prices.

Close: No. 1 northern, spot $1.02@1.02½; to arrive, $1.02; No. 2 northern spot, 99¾c@$1.00½; to arrive, 99½c.

No. 3 wheat, 97½@99½c.

No. 3 yellow corn, 79½@79¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 47⅞c.

No. 2 rye, 71¾@72¾c.

Barley—Receipts, 208 cars. The edge was off. Demand continued good, but the continued heavy receipts had effect. Prices were ½c off generally and 1c lower in a few cases. Close, 56@60c.

Flax—Receipts, 32 cars. Duluth September price paid for No. 1 and crushed all in the market. Close $1.24.

Flour business good and demand increasing, both domestic and foreign buyers showing more interest. Foreign sales of clears reported and an occasional export sale of patents. Shipments 31,651 barrels. First patents, $5.65@5.75; second patents, $5.50@5.60; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

Grain Gossip.

Weather forecast for the grain belt: Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Lower and Upper Michigan and Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer tonight.

Iowa—Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer in west tonight.

Dakotas and Nebraska—Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer tonight.

Kansas and Montana—Fair tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperatures.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

The stock of wheat in store at Duluth is expected to increase 1,267,000 bushels this week.

The movement in the Northwest has been large during this week, as the daily receipts at the Duluth market have clearly shown and as the predictions of the increase in stocks in bushels, given above, indicates.

Stocks of flax in store in Duluth are expected to decrease 65,000 bushels.

Employes of board of trade firms, not regular traders on the floor, are obliged to display buttons, issued by the secretary, now when they enter the trading room. The firms holding membership purchase these badges for those of its workers who are obliged to visit the floor for brief intervals during the sessions.

The badges are of metal and have numbers stamped on them. Some of the workers do not like the idea of wearing them and pin them inside their vest pockets and under their lapels and only flip them in sight at the demand of the door probe.

The elevator operaters aver that the badges give the wearers the semblance of hotel "bell hops" and jocularly request them to "take a pitcher of ice water to 708," and the like.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Early Advances Wiped Out by Extensive Selling.

Market Became Intensely Dull and Closed at Lowest Figures.

New York, Sept. 11.—Opening prices of stocks showed some recoveries from yesterday's closing depression, but declines at other points made the tone irregular. The dealings were only moderately active. American Locomotive declined 1¼ and then recovered, and Canadian Pacific, Southern Railway and Western Union were down ¾. Colorado & Southern Consolidated Gas rose ¾.

When the selling orders had been executed, the market showed some inclination to advance, and the professionals promptly bid up several of the important railroads and specialities. The advance brought out extensive realizations after a while, and there was a sharp reaction, which wiped out most of the advance and drove some stocks below yesterday's final price.

The show of firmness in the call money market induced further selling, which caused declines in St. Paul of 1⅝, Railway Steel Spring 2¼, Southern Railway preferred 1¼ and Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Southern Railway, New York Central, Westinghouse Electric and International Pump, 1. St. Louis & San Francisco first preferred sold at a decline of 8, Distillers Securities ½ and Baltimore & Ohio preferred at an advance of 2½. Bonds weer firm.

Slight recoveries were made, but the market became intensely dull on the rise. Renewed selling of some of the specialties weakened the list for a while, but the railroad stocks were soon extended support and the market became steady.

The recovery made slow progress, but Reading, Union Pacific and New York Central managed to recover fully and rallies of a point were made in some other stocks. Heavy selling then commenced of the railway equipment stocks, notably Railway Steel Spring, and the entire market receded quickly again.

The market closed weak. Prices ran off to the lowest of the day in the final hour, with a general fractional extension of previous losses. Brokers voiced apprehension over the outcome of the Maine election on Monday as motive for their selling.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Sept. 11.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 5 to 7 points, and during the first few minutes sold 8 to 10 points net lower on the active months under liquidation and local bear pressure, encouraged by disappointing cables and talk of freer spot offerings from the Atlantic state sections. Selling was restricted by a reduction in the crop estimate of a prominent Georgia authority, and during the middle of the morning the market was steady and 2 to 4 points up from the lowest, on covering.

Spot closed quiet, 10 points decline; middling uplands, $9.40; middling gulf, $9.66. Sales, none.

Cotton futures closed steady; closing bids: September, 8.73; October, 8.77; November, 8.60; December, 8.63; January, 8.63; February, 8.54; March, 8.59; May, 8.65.

Butte-Ballaklava is to our local curb market what North Butte is to the Boston market, and one thing is certain, and that is that this great mine will add a few millions of wealth to this part of the country. About next Tuesday no man can come to me and say he lost one cent on this stock, for it should by that time have passed its highest mark, which was $10.50, before the panic.

You will notice if you read articles received here from Butte papers and published in our dailies that they do not say much about this mine on Butte Hill, which is fast opening up some of the richest deposits of the camp. There is a reason for this, and we can tell you any time you call at our office. You read about a certain mine out there and they say it is the only one out of a certain number that has made good. Ballaklava has a rival in the Shattuck mine and the others are not in the race at all. Remember, I am now calling your attention to mines opened up in the last three years. From Butte, information is steadily creeping in on us that we here at Duluth have no idea of how big a showing this mine has made in the last few weeks.

I earnestly advise my best friends to buy this stock. We have seen North Butte and Calumet & Arizona get away from us and here is another chance as big as you had on either of those two for making a big pile of money. Every share of Ballaklava listed for sale under $10 has been sold today. Call and get your money. Calumet & Sonora, located alongside of the Greene-Cananea, is another that you will remember I have continually advised you to buy. The stock is $10 bid and is going much higher. You have all made money since we started to advise its purchase. I have one customer who must have made $20,000 on this stock alone.

We advised the purchase of Shattuck because we know it is a mine worth millions, but what is the matter with the management? Why do they not get busy and contract for a smelter and give some of the people who paid $40 or $50 for the stock a chance? Personally I do not think they are treating the stockholders right by simply standing idle. Look at the Butte & Superior. Is not Mr. A. B. Wolvin doing his best to bring this big mine to the front. One of these fine days you will hear of big deposits of high-grade ore being opened up at this property and then in a day many of you will forget the troubles that you have gone through and the worries you have had about this property. It takes time and money to open up a big copper mine.

We are doing our best to see that our customers make the right kind of investments. We try to advise you correctly. Our business is growing bigger and bigger every day. We will give you service. Give us your business.

SUPERIOR NEWS

LITTLE DANGER FROM FIRES

Flames Are No Longer Threatening In Douglas County.

The fires about Superior seem to be dying out, as there have been no reports of any serious conflagrations in that vicinity today.

The fire fighters who have been sent out from the city to assist the farmers in fighting the flames, should any dangerous situations arise, report that there is no great danger in any of the localities where the flames have threatened. They are watching them closely, however.

There was a call from South Range last evening, which was responded to, the authorities sending out four men. It was found, however, that there were no great need for their services. From the Rockmount section, Prof. Young reports that there is little danger. The rumor that the poor farm was 25,000 SHARES OF THE CAPITAL STOCK OF THE MAZATZAL COPPER CO. OF JEROME, ARIZONA.

Is offered for sale at 301 Burrows Building, Duluth, Minn.

CAPITALIZATION:

The Company has a capital of $1,500,000, divided into 300,000 shares, (par value $5.00 each), of which 157,000 shares is treasury stock, of which 37,500 shares have already been sold and issued. This stock is non-assessable and fully paid.

Development Work to Date and in Big High Grade Ore Body

DEVELOPMENT WORK WAS COMMENCED IN JANUARY, 1907, AND HAS BEEN CONTINUED WITHOUT INTERRUPTION UP TO THE PRESENT TIME, AND THE RESULT IS THAT WE HAVE OVER 1,600 feet of tunnelling, drifting, sinking and cross-cutting done to date with most gratifying results to the present stockholders.

Splendid and encouraging reports received weekly and this stock will advance fast, because every foot of sinking or drifting in every direction as it is continued, is in solid and rich ore, and the only dead work done now is in driving and advancing the Bullfrog or main tunnel to the next KNOWN LARGE ORE BODY only 70 feet away, which it is expected will be reached by October 1st or sooner.. Our first ore body is fully 60 feet wide and known to be over 400 feet long and the development work shows up more daily, both in drifting on the ore body and sinking on same. Within 90 days the stock will advance to $5 per share and in eight or ten months it will sell for $10 or more, and IN TWO YEARS WILL SELL FOR $50 a share AND IN 4 YEARS FOR $100 OR MORE, AND IN THE MEANTIME PAY HANDSOME DIVIDENDS TO THE FORTUNATE HOLDER OF THE STOCK.

Future Development Work and Plans

decided upon during the next eight or ten months include—

FIRST—1,000 feet of new drifting, cross-cutting and sinking, and continuing the Bullfrog Tunnel to the next big ore body, only 70 feet away now.
SECOND—Of installing a 250-ton smelter and increasing the capacity as fast as possible.
THIRD—Of increasing the force, and push development work vigorously.

REMEMBER IT'S A WINNER

WE OWN FORTY-FOUR MINING CLAIMS—(600x1,500 feet each), embracing 880 acres, in a solid body, located to cover the three big ledges, two miles long; have absolute and good title and no debts and financially in good shape. OUR ORE AVERAGES 8 PER CENT COPPER, 5 oz. silver and 80c gold, and is getting richer as we go deeper, where we have solid and high-grade sulphides below water level and our engineer says (and he knows what he is talking about, having been, and still is, closely connected with the "United Verde" for the past three years, and prior thereto with the great "Iron Mountain" Copper company of California for a number of years), THAT IN TWO YEARS THE MAZATZAL COPPER COMPANY'S MINE will be classed with such prominent and well known mines as the "United Verde" of Jerome, Copper Queen of Bisbee, Arizona, and the Cananea.

PRICE, TERMS AND ILLUSTRATION:

The stock is offered at $3.50 per share; one-seventh cash, and balance in six equal payments, payable monthly on or before the 5th of each month, until all the payments are made, when a certificate will be issued.

$175 Buys 50 Shares; $25 Cash, and $25 Monthly for 6 Months.
$350 Buys 100 Shares; $50 Cash, and $50 Monthly for 6 Months.
$525 Buys 150 Shares; $75 Cash, and $75 Monthly for 6 Months.
$700 Buys 200 Shares; $100 Cash, and $100 Monthly for 6 Months.
$1,400 Buys 200 Shares; $200 Cash, and $200 Monthly for 6 Months.
$2,800 Buys 800 Shares; $400 Cash, and $400 Monthly for 6 Months.

The stock is being rapidly subscribed for and never before was there such a safe and meritorious copper stock offered the public. We have rich ore and abundance of it.

For further information, write, wire, 'phone, or apply at 301 Burrows Building, where Engineer's Report, Maps, Samples of Ore, and further particulars will be cheerfully shown or furnished. 'Phone Zenith No. 338.

"THREE TIMES AND OUT," SAY "COPS"

Never Again Will Policemen be Seen in Dainty Red Suits.

After a vain attempt this morning at Athletic park to wrest the coveted city amateur championship from the Bijou theater ball team the policemen, tired, sore, disgusted and dirty after nine innings of what they were pleased to call ball, rode back to the city vowing "never again." The pretty red uniforms, with socks and caps to match, that made such a hit the first part of the year, will be put away.

Yes, the actors trimmed 'em again to the tune of 14 to 6, and even at that, they admit they gave the cops several runs in the hope that they might show a streak of ball playing, and give them some kind of a game. But it was of no use.

The members of the Bijou team have been good sports as well as good players for they have given the policemen three chances to clean them up, and of course, it isn't the fault of the actors if the policemen fail to do it.

CATHOLICS OPPOSED

Protestant Alliance Appeals to the British Home Secretary.

London, Sept. 11.—The Protestant Alliance, containing its opposition to the procession to be held in this city next Sunday in connection with the Eucharistic congress, today telegraphed an appeal to the home secretary to prevent the carrying of the host and the wearing of vestments on this occasion. The appeal says:

"The Protestant feeling in London and the provinces, as you doubtless are aware, has increased enormously since Tuesday, and the country is now looking to you to prevent the law of the land being broken.

"Any other course will involve grave danger to the public safety. If riot and disorder should result, the responsibility will rest with the home office, which has had ample warning of the state of feeling in London."

A sensation has been caused by the publication of a letter received by the secretary of the alliance and signed by a man claiming to be secretary of "Catholic Anti-Bigotry Society," in which the leading members of the alliance are threatened with death if the procession is interfered with.

Peculiar State of Things in the Second Minnesota District.

Prospect of Large Majority for Governor Johnson is Bright.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A peculiar political condition which exists in many places in this state, but in most marked degree in the Second congressional district, is indicative of the opinion that the voters have regarding the Democratic policies and the issues of the present campaign. In the Second congressional district, where there are three candidates for the Republican nomination for congress, two of them are stumping the district, making two speeches a day, standing squarely on the Demo-

WRIGHT IN BEST SOAR

Plucky Ohio Aeroplanist Flies Hour, 10 Minutes, 26 Seconds.

Surpasses All Records for Heavier-Than-Air Machines.

Washington, Sept. 12.—In a flight lasting an hour, ten minutes and twenty-six seconds, Orville Wright has surpassed all previous exploits for time and distance flights in a heavier-than-air machine.

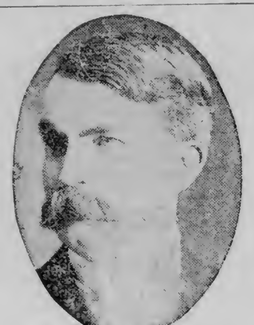

Two flights were made at Fort Meyer, the first being of ten minutes and twenty-six seconds' duration, for the purpose of showing what rate of speed Wright had been traveling during his long flights of the last three days.

Yesterday's test demonstrated, according to the aviator's calculation, that the speed of the aeroplane during the record-breaking flights of Wednesday and Thursday was 39.5 miles an hour.

FATE OF THE NORTH SHORE TOWNS CANNOT BE KNOWN UNTIL AMERICA RETURNS

Boat Due to be Back at Midnight From Beaver Bay, Grand Marais and Other Points.

Pathetic Tales Related by Homeless Settlers Who Have Sought Refuge in Duluth.

The fate of Grand Marais, Beaver Bay and two or three other north shore town will not be known in Duluth until 12 o'clock tonight, when the steamer America is due to arrive from her trip down the shore.

Theer is no way of knowing how much ruin the fiercely blazing fires may have accomplished in the district east of Duluth since Thursday night, when the last boat to arrive in Duluth left Grand Marais.

At that time the town was practically surrounded by the flames, and it was momentarily expected that a change in the wind would occur, driving the wall of fire upon the helpless village. Even if the wind did not change, and blow towards the town, there was thought to be a strong chance of the flames working into the settlement, in spite of the back firing that had been done. Conditions at Beaver Bay were very similar.

The fact that these towns are situated directly on the shore of the lake, where they may be easily reached by boat, makes it seem hardly likely that their burning would entail a loss of life. The steamship Gopher and the Booth boat America are both at the scene of the conflagration, and by cruising up and down the shore, are able to pick up all the refugees. Both Beaver Bay and Grand Marais may be wiped out by this time, and both the Gopher and America may be headed for Duluth with loads of refugees.

Mrs. Peterson's Tale.

Many pathetic tales are told by refugees who arrived on the America from the north shore district yesterday. Mrs. Jacob Peterson, taken on at Big Bay, with eight children, told a pitiable story. She and her husband took up a homestead in the woods back of Big Bay about six years ago. Last winter they built camps and cut the timber from the land, paying out $2,700 in doing so, and this fall were going to sell the logs worth about $6,000, and come to Duluth and make their future home. All of these logs were destroyed Wednesday, and it was only by a narrow margin that the woman and children were able to reach a point of safety.

On the way from the homestead to the shore the team was at various places forced to run through fire and smoke. The children were frightened and crying, and there were times when their mother could scarcely cling to her seat.

Mrs. Nora Hogeboom, who lived on a homestead four miles back of Chicago bay, also had a harrowing story to tell. Fires had been burning in the vicinity of her homestead for two weeks past, and during all of that time her 2-year-old daughter, Frances, had been hovering between life and death with a high fever. The woman's brother, a 13-year-old boy, who lived with her on the homestead, was away most of the time fighting fire, and the poor woman, on account of the constant attention that her little daughter required, could not even lie down to rest.

Wednesday night, with fire raging all around and thoughts of being burned out at any time filling her aching head, the situation of Mrs. Hogeboom was made all the worse by the fact that wolves, bears and other wild animals of the forest, driven frantic by fear of the fire, crowded about her house, howling dismally. Several times they tried to get into the building.

Thursday morning the woman and her brother decided they must get to the shore, and accordingly packed up what stuff they could carry and struck

WORLD STEEL INTERESTS GATHERED INTO ONE ROOM

London, Sept. 12.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, eulogized President Roosevelt and spoke with favor of co-operation and a better understanding among the steel manufacturers of the world, at a dinner given in his honor, at the Reform club, by Sir Hugh Bell, president of the Iron and Steel institute, and the members of the council of the institute.

The dinner was a tribute to Mr. Gary's efforts to bring together the steel operators of the world. Men prominent in the industry in England, Germany and France, participated. Thirty persons sat down to the dinner, among them being Lord Airedale, Lord Glantowe, Sir Weetman Pearson, Sir Robert Hadeneld and other well known English steel men; Baron Von Bodenhausen of the Krupp company, and Sir Chaltenbrand of the German steel works, representing Germany, and M. Schneider, of the Creosote company and M. De LaBraille of the Comptoir d'Exportation, representing France. Among other Americans present were Consul General Wynne, C. G. McMurty, of the United States Steel corporation, and Vivian H. Smith, of J. P. Morgan & company.

Mr. Gary came from Paris. He told the Associated Press that his visit to London was solely for this purpose and that no meeting with the British steel interests was contemplated. He said that he would return to Paris Saturday and sail for New York next Wednesday.

He said that the report in circulation to the effect that the new patent act would compel the United States Steel corporation to build works in England, was without foundation.

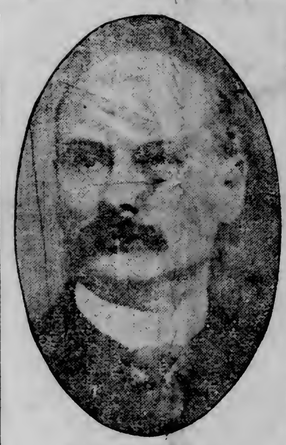

In his speech Mr. Gary, after paying a tribute to the British government and King Edward, said:

"Other nations are today equally fortunate . . . May I beg for a moment to speak of a president who has been sometimes misunderstood, if not misrepresented.

"He is not an enemy of capital nor of business prosperity. He believes that right conduct is the first essential of national health, but he also believes that material success and growth are necessary. He does not attack individuals as such, be they rich or poor, but opposes what he conceives to be wrong, whoever perpetrates it."

Speaking on the recent financial crisis in the United States, he said that in such times previously everyone sold his products wherever they might be and for whatever price he could obtain. An immediate and radical reaction in prices would have meant bankruptcy to a multitude of concerns, he declared, and the iron and steel business would have suffered most. The business in the United States, he added, was in the hands of men who could not be surpassed—intelligent, broad-minded, honest and sincere.

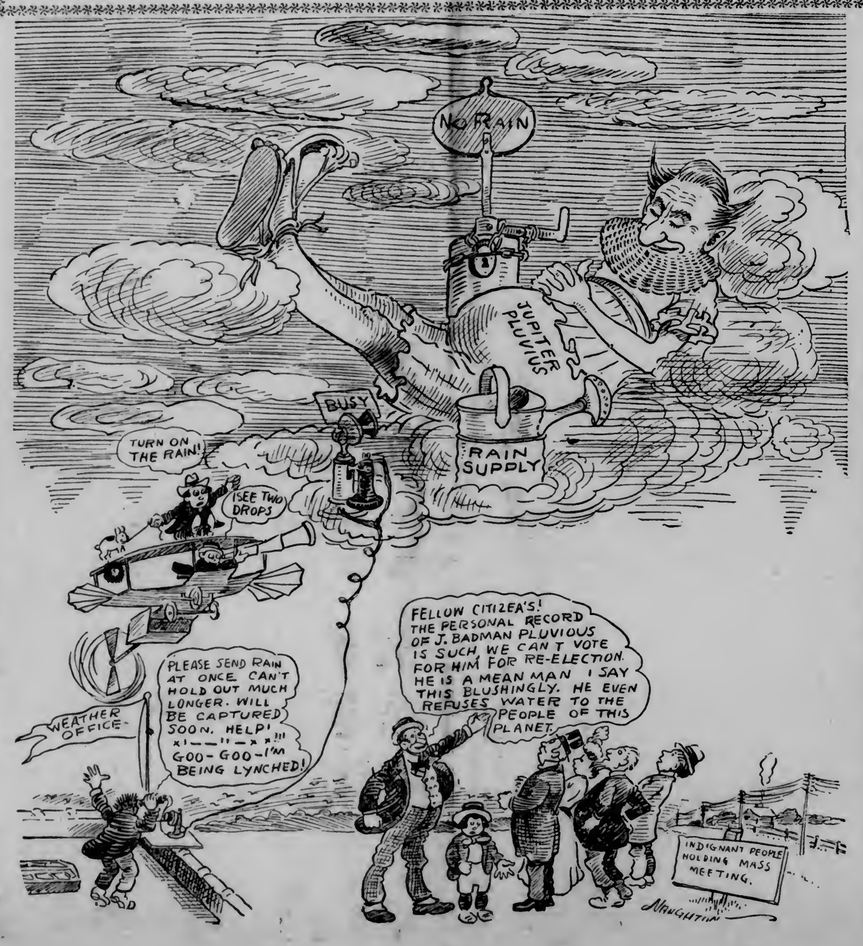

In relating the plans made last No-

HANLY'S BOMB IN INDIANA INCREASES THE PROSPECT OF DEMOCRATIC VICTORY

Republican Machine is Given Very Bitter Dose by Governor.

Forcing Hand of the Leaders on County Local Option.

Splendid Candidate at Head of the Democratic Ticket.

(By F. R. Millar.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Republican organization in the pivotal state of Indiana, laboring in an uphill race to carry the state for Taft with the handicap of a gubernatorial candidate, who is a nauseating pill to a large part of the rank and file, as well as recent startling exposures of graft in the city and county, has been still further demoralized by a bomb exploded in camp by Governor Hanly, in the shape of a call for a special session of the legislature, ostensibly to remedy some short-sighted legislation on appropriations, which threatens to hold up important public works for a year. This is bad enough in itself, this calling together of a Republican legislature to patch up its own mistakes right at the time when the presidential campaign is warming up good. But, horror of horrors, it means forcing the hands of the machine leaders on the very questions on which they are striving to carry the state for Watson and Taft. Once convened, the legislature can take up the question of county local option. The Republicans' main reliance—really the main issue in the state campaign; also the questions of insurance reform and the $100,000 "grab" of Vincennes university. The governor may be depended on to see that the legislature does take up these questions. The Republican majority will be led

GOVERNOR J. F. HANLY.

JOHN FRANKLIN FORT.

Town of Grand Turk Destroyed by the Terrific Storm.

Haytien Sloop Foundered and All on Board Were Lost.

Another Boat Broke From Anchorage and is Still Missing.

The Turks and Caicos Islands lie between 21 degs. and 22 degs. north latitude and 71 degs. and 72 degs. 37 min. west longitude. Their area is 169 square miles. The most important island, Grand Turk, is six and one-half miles long and two miles broad. According to the census of 1901, Grand Turk contains 1,171 inhabitants, being one-third of the total population. Cockburn harbor is in South Caicos, immediately opposite Grand Turk, and is the principal settlement in the Caicos group. Grand Turk is the capital of the group and the residence of the commissioner.

Grand Turk, Turks Islands, B. W. I., Sept. 12.—The hurricane which swept over Turks islands took a number of lives. Anxiety is felt for the safety of Dr. T. R. Robertson, district commissioner of Caicos, who was making a tour of the islands when the storm broke. Grand Turk is in ruins.

The hurricane reached here at 9 o'clock p. m., and at 4 a. m. the wind had reached 100 miles an hour.

The Haytien sloop Telegraph, which had taken shelter at Hawks Nest, foundered with all hands. The Dan Leon, owned by the Caicos Fiber company, broke away from her anchorage and has not been seen since.

GOV. FORT MENACED

Attempt to Kill New Jersey Executive is Thwarted.

Infernal Machine Sent Through the Mail Held Up.

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 12.—An attempt to assissinate Governor Fort of New Jersey has been thwarted by the carefulness of postoffice employes who discovered in the mails an infernal machine addressed to the governor.

The package was a cleverly contrived combination of powder, bullets and matches, which had been so arranged that had the governor opened it in the ordinary way there is little doubt it would have killed him.

The attitude taken by the governor when he directed that the excise and other similar laws at the great seaside resort be strictly enforced and even threatened to order out the militia if necessary to that end, aroused great resentment in some quarters.

It was to guard the governor as much as possible from any annoyance arising from the affair that an unusual watch was put on his mail. Several days ago an inspector wrote Governor Fort informing him that a package of supicious appearance addressed to him was being held at the office. The inspector asked for and received permission to open the package, the result being that the infernal machine was exposed.

That the sender of the machine had a grim sense of humor became apparent on an examination of the contents of the package. On a bit of paper he had written a message to the governor which read:

"Please notify us promptly of any change in your postoffice address."

Another read:

"You will know me better after we are acquainted."

RUSTIN POLICIES WERE LET LAPSE

Doctor's Family is Not Likely to Benefit Largely by Them.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 12.—If Dr. Frederick T. Rustin, whose mysterious murder is holding all Omaha spellbound with interest, persuaded someone to murder him in the belief that his family would be benefited largely by insurance policies he held, his death was almost vain. An investigation of his affairs shows he had allowed a number of large policies to lapse and the others were ineffective in the event that he was murdered. Only one policy, that for $27,000, appears to be collectable under the circumstances, and that may be contested if it is not definitely proved that Mr. Rustin was murdered and did not take his own life.

CAVALRY FIGHT DAKOTA FLAMES

Forest Fire Breaks Out Anew, Attacking Military Reserve.

Sturgis, S. D., Sept. 12.—The forest fire which started early in the week near the Mumford mines, near Galena, and was at one time under control, has broken out anew and is burning worse than ever. Four troops of cavalry are out combatting the flames. The fire is now in the military wood reserve, destroying timber and cordwood.

PATTISON FOR GOVERNOR.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 12.—Returns on the Democratic vote from throughout the state are meagre, but based on figures received the nominations are: United States senator, G. F. Cotterill; governor, John Pattison; lieutenant governor, A. C. Edwards; congressman, First district, C. H. Miller of Seattle; Second district, B. D. Brown of Tacoma; Third district, William Goodyear of Colfax.

EMPLOYES RAISE FUND

Omaha Men Will Provide Pension for Fellow Workmen.

Action of Road in Providing Fund is Met by Employes.

An organization that has never been attempted in railway circles has been formed among the employes of the Omaha railroad system. Every one of the employes of the road, from the president down to the lowest paid employe, has voted to deduct 1 per cent of his salary per month, the money to go into a fund for the pensioning of employes who reach the age of 60 years, after twenty-five years' service with the road. Employes who are permanently injured in the service of the road are also eligible to the benefits of the fund. A hospital will be built from the proceeds of the fund, and funeral expenses of needy families will also be paid.

A. M. Fenton, agent of the road here, is a member of the committee of employes, which will meet at St. Paul, Sept. 20, to perfect the organization and appoint a board of directors.

For some time there has been a pension fund maintained by the Omaha road for its employes. After a man has been in the employ of the road for twenty-five years and reaches the age of 60, he is eligible to the pension fund. For every year of service with the road he receives 1 per cent of his average salary for the last ten years of his employment with the road. For instance, if he has been with the road for thirty years, he will receive each 30 per cent of his average salary for his last ten years of employment, after he has retired from active work. This came from the side of the railroad company.

At a recent meeting of the employes it was decided to meet the offer of the road, each employe deducting 1 per cent per month from his salary to increase the pension fund. This money, aside from what is used for hospital and other expenses, will be added to the pension fund created by the road. In this way the pension that a retired employe receives from the road will be materially increased by the pension fund coming from the employes of the road.

TOWN BOARD IS DEFIED

Clerk of Carlton County Town Refuses to Sign Orders.

Board Petitions District Court for a Writ of Mandamus.

The little town of Lakeview in Carlton county, is torn by internal strife and the district court of St. Louis county may finally be called upon to settle the difficulties. On one side is the town auditing board and on the other side Deidrich C. Behrens, a strong-minded settler, who claims he does the right as he sees it. Judge Dibell this morning sent both parties home to think it over a week and try to reach an agreement. If they fail to do so, they will fight it out in the courts.

The town board met Aug. 31, and allowed the following bills, ordering the town clerk to pay them: Thomas Erikson, road work, $38.15; Thomas Erikson, ditch work, $12; N. A. Wicklund, labor and materials, $69.36; John Skandera, ditch work, $19.57.

The town clerk claims he wasn't given due notice of the meeting. The board had reckoned without him, for he refuses to sign the orders and without his signature, the orders aren't worth the paper they are written upon. The board accordingly petitioned the court for a writ of mandamus to compel Behrens to sign and issue the orders, claiming that his excuse that he hadn't been given a day's notice didn't justify his refusing to carry out the board's orders.

Behrens appeared in court this morning in his own behalf and declared that, though the amounts may be due and should be paid, he wasn't taking any chances of getting mixed up with the law. He said the county attorney had told him that he should have one day's notice of a board meeting and he was only standing by the county attorney's opinion. Judge Dibell told him to see the county attorney again, explain the situation and adjust the matter if possible. If not, another hearing would be given next Saturday.

"If the county attorney says to pay the orders, I'll pay them," said Behrens. "It's only a piece of spitework, anyway. Peter Johnson thinks he ought to run that town. He poses as chairman of the board and thinks I ought to sign orders before the meeting and let him fill them out for any amount he pleases. I don't do business that way. That bill of Wicklund's ought to be verified by individual accounts, anyway. If the county attorney says I'm right, I'll fight it out to the finish. While I'm town clerk, I'm going to stand by the law, even if Johnson thinks the law ought to be fitted to suit his convenience."

TAFT INVITED BY BISHOP TO SPEAK.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 12.—Secretary of Commerce and Labor Strauss accompanied by T. V. Powderly of the immigration service were callers on Mr. Taft this morning and remained closeted with him for some time. Both came from Washington to discuss the campaign.

Taft was today invited to address while in Chicago, the Douglass neighborhood club made up of men representing different churches, political parties and business interests. The invitation was extended by Bishop J. C. Hartzell of the Episcopal church, who came here from Chicago for that purpose.

SMALL BOY SAVES DOG

Brings Pet From Grand Marais on Steamer America.

Many people at the St. Louis hotel have noticed a small child, a boy about 4 years of age, leading a dog around the lobby of the hotel. The boy and the dog seemed to be very affectionate. Sometimes the dog didn't want to go every place the boy did, but the little chap generally managed to persuade the dog to come along.

The little boy is the son of Mrs. C. H. Carhart of Grand Marais, and it was owing to his infantile persistence and his affection for his pet that the dog was brought down on the steamer from Grand Marais.

When Mrs. Carhart and her little boy left the village, because it was believed that it would be destroyed, the dog was the last thing that the older members of the Carhart family thought of. They had reckoned without Master Carhart, however.

That young man screamed and cried until it was decided that his dog would be taken on the boat to Duluth. When it was decided that his dog would be allowed to accompany him, he seemed perfectly satisfied. He didn't express any regret at leaving Grand Marais and seems perfectly happy when he is hauling the small dog around by its leash.

If it wasn't for young Master Carhart the dog would probably be a very badly scared canine at this time.

FALSE, SAYS BRYAN, OF HEARST'S CHARGE.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 12.—Continuing his campaign eastward, William J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for president, arrived here today. "Absolutely false," was the only comment the Democratic candidate made.

HAPPENINGS AT THE DULUTH BUSINESS UNIVERSITY

Located at 105-107 W. Superior St.

The college has opened for its fall term with the largest enrollment of new members at any time in its history; over 150 having joined day and evening classes. Among the students enrolled are twenty-five from outside the city. Six of these are from Superior, two from Manitoba, and the others from the Dakotas, Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois.

New day and night classes will be organized on Monday, Sept. 14th, to accommodate a large number who could not enroll at the opening.

The Bliss System of Actual Business was introduced at this opening and will prove one of the strong features of the school this year, as it is the ideal business system and is used by all the large business colleges of the country.

The demand for office assistants has been good during the past week. Several young people have gone into excellent positions and many applications are on file at the office for young men competent to do both shorthand and bookkeeping, with no graduates in evidence to recommend.

NEW MAP IS COMPLETED

First in 17 Years Showing Duluth-Superior in Detail.

What is without doubt the best map of the Head of the Lakes ever published has just appeared.

This is the only authentic, complete map which has been issued during the past seventeen years, and is the only absolutely correct detailed one ever published.

It covers the full limits of both cities and clearly shows all the new roads, and highways as well as the proposed railroads and steel plant site. It gives all subdivisions of both cities even to the block numbers.

It is especially valuable to all marine interests and users of any kind of boats, as it gives complete and accurate soundings of navigable waters, and shore lines.

All data is from recent government and municipal surveys.

This map is issued by the real estate firm of Wahl & Messer and can be obtained at all book stores.

It should be in the hands of every business man at the Head of the Lakes because it is the only correct map in existence.

FOUR RESCUED FROM FIRE BY LIVERYMAN.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Nellie Thompson and three children were rescued from death in thick smoke this morning by Louis Klein, a liveryman. Fire started in the home of Mrs. Dora Klein, upstairs in an unknown manner. Mrs. Klein is in Minneapolis, but Mrs. Thompson and her three children were asleep downstairs.

Klein's livery is just across the street. He saw flames emerging from the upstairs windows and rushed over. The Thompson room had already been filled with smoke and all four were in imminent danger of suffocation.

DREYFUS IS NO ISSUE

Acquittal of Gregori Buries Great Case for Good.

Thrill in Courtroom When Attack on Major Seemed Near.

Paris, Sept. 12.—With the acquittal by a jury in the assize court of Louis A. Gregori, who fired upon Maj. Dreyfus during the ceremonies last June incident to the placing of the body of Emile Zola in the Pantheon, the Dreyfus affair which had divided France into two camps for the last twelve years, may be said to have been buried beyond all possibility of resurrection.

The government, it was evident from the remarks of the advocate general in the summing up, did not want a severe sentence which would make a martyr of M. Gregori, but merely a correctional sentence which would allow the matter to die out. It was generally anticipated that the court would condemn Gregori to six months in prison, and his complete acquittal partook of the nature of an anti-climax.

MAJ. ALFRED DREYFUS.

Those present in the courtroom gave vent to their feelings according to their political views and the courtroom resounded with mingled hoots and cheers. The president of the court, however, soon quelled the disturbance by ordering the courtroom cleared.

An attempt was made to start a manifestation outside, but this also was frustrated by the police.

The day's proceedings in the court were uneventful and only once was there a possibility of a sensational incident. This was when Col. Du Paty de Clam passed Dreyfus on his way from the witness stand to his seat in the body of the house. As he reached Dreyfus, the colonel paused perciptibly. A thrill ran through the court and there was an audible muttering of "He's going to strike him," but the colonel suddenly drew himself to his full height, shrugged his shoulders contemptuously and passed on to his chair.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Y. M. C. A. BUILDING.

Superior Has Raised $50,000 of $75,000 Needed for Fund.

It is said that approximately $50,000 has been raised toward a building fund for a new Y. M. C. A. building. According to the project on foot, Superior will have a $75,000 Y. M. C. A. building on the corner of Ogden avenue and Fourteenth street, before another year.

The movement for a Y. M. C. A. building was started by the Christian Young People's union, though it has been under the consideration of the Young Men's Christian association for several years.

The project has not yet reached such a stage that plans and specifications have been arranged for, but it is the general idea of the promoters to have a building three or four stories high, and about 100 feet by 100 feet. The building will be complete and up to date in every way, containing a gymnasium, swimming pool, baths and dormitories.

Relief Fund Started.

A relief fund will be started by the Swedish residents of Superior. Last night at a meeting of the Swedish American league at the Pilgrim Swedish Lutheran church, there was a large attendance. Nels Lang, Peter Bergman and Perry J. Ekstrand were appointed to a committee for the collection of funds.

Douglas County Rye.

The first carload of Douglas county rye, shipped to an outside point, was sold yesterday to W. H. Crumpton at top market price, 74 cents.

Reception to Students.

A reception was given last evening at the Pilgrim Congregational church, to welcome the students of the normal school and the business colleges of the city.

New Elks' Home.

The Elks have practically completed plans for their lodge home, which is to be erected on the southwest corner of Ogden and Eleventh street. The building as planned is to cost $80,000 and work may be begun on it before the end of this season, though the indications are that it will not start until next spring. It is the idea of the lodge to build a three story building, the top floor to be used for the lodge rooms and the lower for a theater and store.

Imposters Abroad.

Chief of Police McKinnon has warned the people of the city to beware of relief fund imposters, who are reported to be soliciting subscriptions under the pretense that the money is to go to the fire sufferers. The chief announces that all money for this purpose should be given to President Cass, chairman of the relief committee, at the Bank of Commerce.

Monument to Hammond.

A movement is on foot in Superor to erect a monument in honor of the late Gen. Hammond, founder of the city of Superior. The monument, according to the petition which is being circulated about the city, will be situated on Hammond avenue, which derived its name from the general. It will be in the form of a fountain.

The petiton was started by Alderman Shafer, Gen. Hammond left his heirs in Superior a very extensive estate, which is now very valuable. He was the first man to start the settlement where Superior now stands, crossing the bay in a canoe from Duluth.

SAYS FATHER HAS EVIL EYE

Matt Jakkila Makes Complaint to the Duluth Police.

Matt Jakkila, thought to be insane, appeared at the police station yesterday afternoon and said he wanted to start a suit for damages against his father, a farmer in Wadena county, claiming that the parent had an evil eye, and exerted an influence for bad on the people around him.

Matt says Jakkila, Sr., possesses a strange, hypnotic power, which he can exert to such good effect as to make people with whom he comes in contact do as he wills. Matt also says his father can foretell events, and that recently he willed him to go to Montana, and he, Matt, went, for no reason in the world other than that he was hypnotized. He gave accounts of other alleged incidents in proof of his statement that the parent has an evil eye.

Matt was not at all violent, and was allowed to go on his way, after it was explained to him that the local police could do nothing in regard to the case.

WEST END

MANY OUTSIDE PASTORS HERE

Will Take Part in Dedication of New Church.

Many out of town clergymen are in the West end to attend the dedication exercises at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, tomorrow.

Dr. N. E. Simonson, who has the chair of literature at Northwestern university and is in charge of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. theological seminary at Evanston, Ill., is here and will deliver the principal sermon at tomorrow's services. Dr. Forbes of Philadelphia was invited, but he cannot come.

Rev. J. C. Tollefson of Chicago is also here and will preach in the Norwegian-Danish M. E. church tomorrow evening.

Rev. Edward Erickson of Chicago and Rev. C. W. Schevenius of Virginia will be here for the exercises.

Rev. N. C. Hanson of Hayward, Wis., and Rev. J. C. Beckstrom of Rugby, N. D., are among the visiting ministers.

West End Shortrails.

Rev. J. Wilfrid Loughride, pastor of the Central Baptist church, has returned from Toronto, where he has been visiting for the past month. He will conduct services in his church tomorrow.

Miss Agnes Moe will leave the first of next week for New York, where she will attend school this winter.

A new confirmation class was organized this morning by Rev. Carl G. Olson at Bethany Swedish Lutheran church.

Beta Council of the Modern Samaritans is making elaborate plans for its meeting Monday evening, when about half a hundred new members will be admitted.

The funeral of Evelyn Frances, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carlson of Eighteenth avenue west, was held this afternoon at the residence. Interment takes place at Park Hill cemetery.

Robert Carroll has gone to La Crosse for a visit.

Miss Frances Underwood of St. Paul is visiting friends in Duluth this week.

A dancing party will be given at Lincoln park Monday evening by a number of young men of the West end. The proceeds will be turned over to the Chisholm fire relief committee.

Rudolph Erickson of Chicago, who has been acting as assistant to Rev. J. A. Anderson of the First Swedish M. E. church this summer, will return to his studies at Chicago the first of the week.

Miss Theresa Ostrand will leave tomorrow for one of the towns in the Western part of the state, where she will teach school.

Dr. A. Olson is reported to be ill in Minneapolis. He was expected home this week, but will not be able to get here until Monday. His condition is not serious.

Herman Magnussen has gone to Lake Nebagamon, Wis., to visit his parents.

TO VOTERS OF THE 51ST LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT

Reasons Why N. F. Hugo Is Deserving of Your Support at the Primaries.

His legislative record proves that he has been as faithful to your interests as the needle to the pole.

Here are a few words:

1. After every one else failed in the attempt, he succeeded in securing an annual appropriation for the Duluth naval reserve, also an extra appropriation to pay up their old indebtedness and start the boys with a clean slate.

2. He secured an extra appropriation to pay off debts incurred in building the Duluth Normal school and owing to Duluth men.

3. He killed the tonnage tax with the aid of his personal friends from other parts of the state, not, however, until the Steel corporation had agreed to build a steel plant at West Duluth. This involves an initial expenditure of at least fifteen million dollars, and is the most gigantic enterprise ever brought to the Head of the Lakes.

4. His opposition killed the proposed change in the taxing of vessel property, which change contemplated the entire supplanting of the present system. It goes without saying that the present system is the greatest advertisement Duluth has in other commercial centers of our nation and the world.

5. By his untiring efforts he secured a reduction of electric light rates of over 20 per cent.

6. He was instrumental in securing the passage of what is known as the Mueller bill, which allows Duluth to buy, operate or build all public utilities.

7. The free labor bureau for Duluth is also one of the measures for which he is entitled to full credit.

8. The bill extending the hours for voting at school elections in the city of Duluth was engineered in the house by Mr. Hugo.

9. In the matter of roads and bridges he always kept a vigilant eye to see that the committee on appropriations had accorded to Lake, Cook and St. Louis counties the full maximum amount allowed by law.

10. A college of engineering for our boys at the state university is another of the bills for which Mr. Hugo secured an appropriation.

11. The legislation which permits the Zenith Furnace company to furnish the city of Duluth with gas for heating and lighting purposes at the cheapest prices in America was passed through Mr. Hugo's efforts.

12. No measure directly or indirectly affecting the people's interest in general and the Fifty-first district in particular ever escaped his attention, and his faithfulness to duty and loyalty to constituency certainly merit consideration at your hands on Primary Election Day.

What is without doubt the best map of the Head of the Lakes ever published has just appeared.

This is the only authentic, complete map which has been issued during the past seventeen years, and is the only absolutely correct detailed one ever published.

It covers the full limits of both cities and clearly shows all the new roads, and highways as well as the proposed railroads and steel plant site. It gives all subdivisions of both cities even to the block numbers.

It is especially valuable to all marine interests and users of any kind of boats, as it gives complete and accurate soundings of navigable waters, and shore lines.

All data is from recent government and municipal surveys.

This map is issued by the real estate firm of Wahl & Messer and can be obtained at all book stores.

It should be in the hands of every business man at the Head of the Lakes because it is the only correct map in existence.

FOUR RESCUED FROM FIRE BY LIVERYMAN.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Nellie Thompson and three children were rescued from death in thick smoke this morning by Louis Klein, a liveryman. Fire started in the home of Mrs. Dora Klein, upstairs in an unknown manner. Mrs. Klein is in Minneapolis, but Mrs. Thompson and her three children were asleep downstairs.

Klein's livery is just across the street. He saw flames emerging from the upstairs windows and rushed over. The Thompson room had already been filled with smoke and all four were in imminent danger of suffocation.

DREYFUS IS NO ISSUE

Acquittal of Gregori Buries Great Case for Good.

Thrill in Courtroom When Attack on Major Seemed Near.

Paris, Sept. 12.—With the acquittal by a jury in the assize court of Louis A. Gregori, who fired upon Maj. Dreyfus during the ceremonies last June incident to the placing of the body of Emile Zola in the Pantheon, the Dreyfus affair which had divided France into two camps for the last twelve years, may be said to have been buried beyond all possibility of resurrection.

The government, it was evident from the remarks of the advocate general in the summing up, did not want a severe sentence which would make a martyr of M. Gregori, but merely a correctional sentence which would allow the matter to die out. It was generally anticipated that the court would condemn Gregori to six months in prison, and his complete acquittal partook of the nature of an anti-climax.

MAJ. ALFRED DREYFUS.

Those present in the courtroom gave vent to their feelings according to their political views and the courtroom resounded with mingled hoots and cheers. The president of the court, however, soon quelled the disturbance by ordering the courtroom cleared.

An attempt was made to start a manifestation outside, but this also was frustrated by the police.

The day's proceedings in the court were uneventful and only once was there a possibility of a sensational incident. This was when Col. Du Paty de Clam passed Dreyfus on his way from the witness stand to his seat in the body of the house. As he reached Dreyfus, the colonel paused perceptibly. A thrill ran through the court and there was an audible muttering of "He's going to strike him," but the colonel suddenly drew himself to his full height, shrugged his shoulders contemptuously and passed on to his chair.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Y. M. C. A. BUILDING.

Superior Has Raised $50,000 of $75,000 Needed for Fund.

It is said that approximately $50,000 has been raised toward a building fund for a new Y. M. C. A. building. According to the project on foot, Superior will have a $75,000 Y. M. C. A. building on the corner of Ogden avenue and Fourteenth street, before another year.

The movement for a Y. M. C. A. building was started by the Christian Young People's union, though it has been under the consideration of the Young Men's Christian association for several years.

The project has not yet reached such a stage that plans and specifications have been arranged for, but it is the general idea of the promoters to have a building three or four stories high, and about 100 feet by 100 feet. The building will be complete and up to date in every way, containing a gymnasium, swimming pool, baths and dormitories.

Relief Fund Started.

A relief fund will be started by the Swedish residents of Superior. Last night at a meeting of the Swedish American league at the Pilgrim Swedish Lutheran church, there was a large attendance. Nels Lang, Peter Bergman and Perry J. Ekstrand were appointed to a committee for the collection of funds.

Douglas County Rye.

The first carload of Douglas county rye, shipped to an outside point, was sold yesterday to W. H. Crumpton at top market price, 74 cents.

Reception to Students.

A reception was given last evening at the Pilgrim Congregational church, to welcome the students of the normal school and the business colleges of the city.

New Elks' Home.

The Elks have practically completed plans for their lodge home, which is to be erected on the southwest corner of Ogden and Eleventh street. The building as planned is to cost $80,000 and work may be begun on it before the end of this season, though the indications are that it will not start until next spring. It is the idea of the lodge to build a three story building, the top floor to be used for the lodge rooms and the lower for a theater and store.

Imposters Abroad.

Chief of Police McKinnon has warned the people of the city to beware of relief fund imposters, who are reported to be soliciting subscriptions under the pretense that the money is to go to the fire sufferers. The chief announces that all money for this purpose should be given to President Cass, chairman of the relief committee, at the Bank of Commerce.

Monument to Hammond.

A movement is on foot in Superor to erect a monument in honor of the late Gen. Hammond, founder of the city of Superior. The monument, according to the petition which is being circulated about the city, will be situated on Hammond avenue, which derived its name from the general. It will be in the form of a fountain.

The petiton was started by Alderman Shafer, Gen. Hammond left his heirs in Superior a very extensive estate, which is now very valuable. He was the first man to start the settlement where Superior now stands, crossing the bay in a canoe from Duluth.

SAYS FATHER HAS EVIL EYE

Matt Jakkila Makes Complaint to the Duluth Police.

Matt Jakkila, thought to be insane, appeared at the police station yesterday afternoon and said he wanted to start a suit for damages against his father, a farmer in Wadena county, claiming that the parent had an evil eye, and exerted an influence for bad on the people around him.

Matt says Jakkila, Sr., possesses a strange, hypnotic power, which he can exert to such good effect as to make people with whom he comes in contact do as he wills. Matt also says his father can foretell events, and that recently he willed him to go to Montana, and he, Matt, went, for no reason in the world other than that he was hypnotized. He gave accounts of other alleged incidents in proof of his statement that the parent has an evil eye.

Matt was not at all violent, and was allowed to go on his way, after it was explained to him that the local police could do nothing in regard to the case.

WEST END

MANY OUTSIDE PASTORS HERE

Will Take Part in Dedication of New Church.

Many out of town clergymen are in the West end to attend the dedication exercises at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, tomorrow.

Dr. N. E. Simonson, who has the chair of literature at Northwestern university and is in charge of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. theological seminary at Evanston, Ill., is here and will deliver the principal sermon at tomorrow's services. Dr. Forbes of Philadelphia was invited, but he cannot come.

Rev. J. C. Tollefson of Chicago is also here and will preach in the Norwegian-Danish M. E. church tomorrow evening.

Rev. Edward Erickson of Chicago and Rev. C. W. Schevenius of Virginia will be here for the exercises.

Rev. N. O. Hanson of Hayward, Wis., and Rev. J. C. Beckstrom of Rugby, N. D., are among the visiting ministers.

West End Shortrails.

Rev. J. Wilfrid Loughride, pastor of the Central Baptist church, has returned from Toronto, where he has been visiting for the past month. He will conduct services in his church tomorrow.

Miss Agnes Moe will leave the first of next week for New York, where she will attend school this winter.

A new confirmation class was organized this morning by Rev. Carl G. Olson at Bethany Swedish Lutheran church.

Beta Council of the Modern Samaritans is making elaborate plans for its meeting Monday evening, when about half a hundred new members will be admitted.

The funeral of Evelyn Frances, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carlson of Eighteenth avenue west, was held this afternoon at the residence. Interment takes place at Park Hill cemetery.

Robert Carroll has gone to La Crosse for a visit.

Miss Frances Underwood of St. Paul is visiting friends in Duluth this week.

A dancing party will be given at Lincoln park Monday evening by a number of young men of the West end. The proceeds will be turned over to the Chisholm fire relief committee.

Rudolph Erickson of Chicago, who has been acting as assistant to Rev. J. A. Anderson of the First Swedish M. E. church this summer, will return to his studies at Chicago the first of the week.

Miss Theresa Ostrand will leave tomorrow for one of the towns in the Western part of the state, where she will teach school.

Dr. A. Olson is reported to be ill in Minneapolis. He was expected home this week, but will not be able to get here until Monday. His condition is not serious.

Herman Magnussen has gone to Lake Nebagamon, Wis., to visit his parents.

TO VOTERS OF THE 51ST LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT

Reasons Why N. F. Hugo Is Deserving of Your Support at the Primaries.

His legislative record proves that he has been as faithful to your interests as the needle to the pole.

Here are a few words:

1. After every one else failed in the attempt, he succeeded in securing an annual appropriation for the Duluth naval reserve, also an extra appropriation to pay up heir old indebtedness and start the boys with a clean slate.

2. He secured an extra appropriation to pay off debts incurred in building the Duluth Normal school and owing to Duluth men.

3. He killed the tonnage tax with the aid of his personal friends from other parts of the state, not, however, until the Steel corporation had agreed to build a steel plant at West Duluth. This involves an initial expenditure of at least fifteen million dollars, and is the most gigantic enterprise ever brought to the Head of the Lakes.

4. His opposition killed the proposed change in the taxing of vessel property, which change contemplated the entire supplanting of the present system. It goes without saying that the present system is the greatest advertisement Duluth has in other commercial centers of our nation and the world.

5. By his untiring efforts he secured a reduction of electric light rates of over 20 per cent.

6. He was instrumental in securing the passage of what is known as the Mueller bill, which allows Duluth to buy, operate or build all public utilities.

7. The free labor bureau for Duluth is also one of the measures for which he is entitled to full credit.

8. The bill extending the hours for voting at school elections in the city of Duluth was engineered in the house by Mr. Hugo.

9. In the matter of roads and bridges he always kept a vigilant eye to see that the committee on appropriations had accorded to Lake, Cook and St. Louis counties the full maximum amount allowed by law.

10. A college of engineering for our boys at the state university is another of the bills for which Mr. Hugo secured an appropriation.

11. The legislation which permits the Zenith Furnace company to furnish the city of Duluth with gas for heating and lighting purposes at the cheapest prices in America was passed through Mr. Hugo's efforts.

12. No measure directly or indirectly affecting the people's interest in general and the Fifty-first district in particular ever escaped his attention, and his faithfulness to duty and loyalty to constituency certainly merit consideration at your hands on Primary Election Day.

SAYS WIFE IS INSANE.

Candidate for the Legislature Files Information in Probate Court.

E. L. Raab, candidate for the legislature from the Forty-ninth district, has filed information of insanity against his wife, Manette Raab. A warrant was issued in probate court today, and she will be brought from her home in Sparta Monday for a hearing.

Jealousy of her husband and the death of her mother some time ago are given as the causes of Mrs. Raab's insanity. She has the hallucination that her husband is unfaithful, and threatens to kill actresses of her imagination and him. She is 38 years of age.

A Regretful Fact.

The traveler mourns the disappearance of the picturesque costumes of the European peasantry. One has to go far away from the cities nowadays to know that such a thing exists. The clatter of the wooden shoe is a lost joy of Holland towns of any size. The Welch women have given up the stove pipe hats and quilted kerties and gay cotton bodices of their mothers. The up-to-date American woman, however, keeps the family table supplied with golden grain belt beer. You will find it a delightful drink for the whole family at all times and on all occasions. REPORT OF GRAND JURY

Fifty-Nine Indictments Found by County Investigating Body.

Recommends Use of Present County Jail as Detention Home.

The grand jury completed its labors yesterday afternoon, made its final report and was discharged. The only recommendation made by the grand jury was that the present county jail be retained by the county for a detention home for women, children and other prisoners not classed as hardened criminals, when the new county jail is constructed on the courthouse site.

In all fifty-nine indictments were returned, eighteen of them against thirteen persons.

The grand jury failed to find an indictment against Ellis Walsh, chief of police of Virginia, who shot and killed a man named Perkkio. Perkkio had been arrested for some petty offense and broke away from the officer. Walsh fired several shots at the ground and one of them struck Perkkio. He died half an hour later. The grand jury failed to find grounds for holding Walsh, who was also exonerated by the coroner's jury.

Four indictments were returned against George Hamilton on a charge of forgery. He is charged with passing the checks at Chisholm, each of them for $74.50. Hamilton is the man suspected of sending the infernal machine to Sheriff Beck of Houghton, Mich., and the Michigan authorities are now seeking to secure his extradition.

William Niemi was indicted for forgery, charged with forging the name of John Mattson to a check for $43 at Hibbing. Forgery is also charged against Fred Meyer in forging the name of N. H. Witt to a check for $46.

Charles Wiano was indicted on two counts, one for selling indecent pictures and the other charging him with indecent conduct.

Grand larceny in the second degree is charged against John Ensign, who is said to have stolen some sugar from the city dock July 27.

Charles M. Olin is charged with abusing Louise F. Franlund, a 6-year-old girl.

Robert Prindle was indicted on a charge of kidnapping Willie Peterson, a little boy at Fall Lake, in July.

Robert Patterson was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree on a charge of appropriating to his own use $490, alleged to belong to the Federated Trade sassembly. Patterson solicited advertising for the Labor day program in 1907 and is alleged to have left the city with that amount of money. He was located at Buffalo, N. Y., last spring and brought back to Duluth to answer to the charge.

Patrick Collins was indicted for attempted robbery in the first degree. He is charged with holding up James McFarlane, who had but 10 cents in pocket. Collins didn't even get that.

Albert Duval, "King of Forgers" was indicted on three counts. He is the man, who is charged with passing big checks for supposed purchases and then, having gained the confidence of his victims, securing smaller amounts in cash.

Grand larceny in the second degree is charged against Charles Makkala, who is accused of stealing $60 and a gold watch at Chisholm.

John W. Wilson was again indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. He is charged with securing $50 from T. P. Brnicy under false pretenses.

The text of the final report of the grand jury is as follows:

"To the Honorable Judges of the District Court of the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota:

"The grand jury, drawn to serve at the September, 1908, term of court, would respectfully report that it has concluded its labors. The results of its deliberations have been returned to the court in the form of indictments.

"No complaints as to the management or conditions existing at any of the county, city or village institutions have been made to this grand jury, and none of its members know of anything in connection with their operation or management that calls for special inquiry. It has, therefore, not seemed to this grand jury that any investigation of the various public institutions in the county is required at this time.

"The grand jury is informed that the conversion of the present county jail building, when it shall be vacated by reason of the erection of a new jail upon the site of the new county courthouse, into a place of detention for minors, juveniles and female offenders, and, in general, for such persons as cannot be classed as hardened criminals, is being urged upon the county authorities, and it seems to this grand jury that to do this would be to make this building serve an excellent purpose. The present condition which compels the confinement of such persons with hardened criminals and subjects them to their vicious influence and contamination, is deplorable, and should be corrected at once, and this grand jury feels that the object to be attained would warrant the county authorities in incurring the expense necessary to obtain an immediate correction of this condition and in ultimately converting the building to this use.

"The jury would respectfully ask for a discharge by the court.

"E. D. FIELD, Foreman.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—"Lena Rivers."

"Lena Rivers."

"Lena Rivers" as put on by Burton Dixon made a distinct hit at the Lyceum last evening before one of the largest audiences since the beginning of the theatrical season.

The play deals with Southern life, and the scenes and manners of the southern people while not carried to extremes are vividly portrayed. The production is a strictly wholesome one, and the plot is so vastly different from all other dramas of Southern life that it is a pleasure to witness the play.

Miss Bessie Dainty plays the leading role, that of Lena Rivers. She is both winsome and sweet, and takes her place in the play with an easiness of manner that at once earns for her the sympathy of her audience.

The play appeals strongly with all theater-goers, for it has a strain of humor which brings the smiles, and a vein of the other side of life which is not so happy. It will be repeated tonight.

ASKS RELIEF FROM COURT

Wife of Duluth Lumberman Makes Sensational Charges Against Him.

Infidelity and Non-Support Alleged Against John S. Smith.

Sensational charges are made in a complaint filed by Ella C. Smith of Eau Claire against her husband, John S. Smith, a Duluth lumberman, in an action for separate maintenance in the district court of St. Louis county. For the purpose of securing an injunction to prevent Smith from disposing of his property or concealing it, William O'Brien, another Duluth lumberman, and Cora Warren, are made co-defendants with Smith. The complaint charges that Smith claims that property his wife believes is owned by him, really belongs to O'Brien or is mortgaged. The plaintiff also claims that jewelry and other valuables owned by Smith are in the possession of Cora Warren.

The complaint sets forth that the plaintiff is 53 years of age and the defendant 64, and they were married at Eau Claire, Wis., July 21, 1884. Smith had at that time had three children by a former marriage, all of whom grew up under the plaintiff's care and attained their majority. Three children were born of the latter marriage, two of whom died. The third, Evelyn, has been an invalid since birth, and Mrs. Smith alleges that on account of the poor support given her by her husband, she has been forced to work to support herself and the invalid daughter, who will never be able to care for herself.

Mrs. Smith charges that for more than ten years, Smith and Cora Warren have cohabited in apartments on West Superior street in Duluth, and that Smith also maintained apartments at Eau Claire, Wis., for the purpose of associating with women of the under world. Numerous other charges of infidelity are made and names are omitted, the complaint says, so that unnecessary scandal may be avoided.

Mrs. Smith claims that for years, she has secured money from the defendant only with the greatest difficulty. She said that she was forced to make seven trips to Duluth at different times to ask Smith for money, and each time the amounts were small and given grudgingly. She says he went to Eau Claire only infrequently to see her and then treated her without consideration.

She also charges that a wedding gift of $2,000 from Smith was invested in good property, but that he fraudulently induced her to mortgage it for his benefit and it was then lost.

She also asks for separate residence and maintenance with such relief as the court may see fit to give. Davis & Hollister, with V. W. James of Eau Claire of counsel, appear for Mrs. Smith.

WANTS DIVORCE FROM HUSBAND

Infidelity Charged in Complaint Filed Against Andrew La Breck.

When her husband told her that he had been intimate with women of the Superior "red light" district and would continue to visit them, Mrs. Angeline Goethier La Breck immediately left his home, according to a complaint in an action for divorce against Andrew La Breck, filed with the clerk of the district court this morning. La Breck is a laborer at the Alger-Smith saw mill at the foot of Garfield avenue.

Mrs. La Breck alleges in her complaint that they were married at Leland, Leelanau county, Michigan, April 26, 1904, and lived together up to the first of the month when, she says, she left his home. Two children were born of the marriage, George, aged 4 years, and Clifford, aged 2 years. Mrs. La Breck is now 23 years of age and her husband is 28 years.

The woman charges that on June 21, 1907, her husband went to the Superior "red light" district and was intimate with other women and has repeated the act at intervals since. She says Sept. 1, he told her of it with jibes, and said he would continue to frequent those places. She immediately left him, she says. She asks for absolute divorce, the custody of the children and suitable allmony.

Smoke Haze Over Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—A haze like that of Indian summer, but due to the forest fires of Northern Minnesota and the burning of peat beds at Norway, Wis., spread over Chicago today. The smoke hung all along the lake shore to the north, according to reports from Milwaukee and intermediate towns.

ONE-ARMED MAN

Kept Four Husky Policemen Hustling to Handle Him.

No end of trouble was encountered this morning by the West Duluth police when they attempted to arrest and lock up a one-armed man, who was in the fighting stage of intoxication. The man refused to give his name at the station.

He was arrested on Raleigh street, and it took the united efforts of four husky policemen to get him into the patrol wagon, and out again, and into a cell at the station house. Even when he was well behind the cell doors they could not close them for some time on account of the desperate manner in which the fellow clung to the legs of the blue coats and would not permit them to leave him. Half the force was puffing and out of breath when at last they had the man of one arm behind the bars. He made up for the lack of an arm in size and weight.

CAME TOO LATE.

Child Brought to Duluth, for Medical Attention, Passes Away.

William, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Keeler, died yesterday morning of cholera infantum, shortly after he was brought from Cass Lake to West Duluth to receive medical attention. At Cass Lake the physicians said that the child was in no danger. Mrs. Keeler, however, was not satisfied, and decided to bring her baby to the home of Mr. Keeler's parents in the Woodward block, where he died within half an hour after their arrival. Mr. Keeler arrived in West Duluth last evening. There will be no funeral services here. The body was taken to Oshkosh, Wis., for interment this afternoon

Hovland Gets Verdict.

A verdict of $200 was awarded yesterday afternoon by the grand jury to Anton Hovland in his suit against the city. Hovland claimed that he had sustained injuries by falling from his wagon on the bridge at Seventy-first avenue west below the Northern Pacific tracks. He alleges that while he was driving across the bridge, the front wheels of the wagon broke through some rotten planks and that he was thrown head foremost out of the rig, sustaining injuries to his head, chest and a dislocated shoulder. He was suing for $2,118.

Benefit Dance.

To raise money to help pay the hospital and medical expenses of Prof. James Le Roy, the aeronaut and high diver, who was injured on Aug. 21, at the West Duluth street carnival while performing the high dive, the Degree team of Old Hickory camp, No. 1555, M. W. A., will give a dance at the Great Eastern hall on Tuesday evening, Sept 15. Le Roy underwent an operation on his back at the St. Luke's hospital last Thursday, and is said to be improving.

Watch repairing. Hurst, West Duluth.

IS IT FAIR?

That the ranges should have but one county office when they cast about half of the Republican vote of St. Louis county? Fair play, good politics and the square deal back the ranges in their request that Duluth Republicans vote for a range man this year for Judge of Probate.

NO REDRESS FOR PROPERTY OWNER

City Appraisers on Building Line Easement Upheld by Court.

A. J. Warner, R. C. McKinley and Robert H. Doran, appraisers appointed by the district court in the appeal of Willis J. Holmes from the estimate of the board of appraisers of the city of Duluth, have decided that Mr. Holmes should not receive any redress on account of encroachments on his property by a building line easement established by the city on East Third street, between Twenty-third and Twenty-seventh avenues east. The report of the appraisers was filed with the clerk of the district court this morning.

Mr. Holmes is the owner of lots 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10, Endion Park division, being on the southeast corner of Twenty-third avenue east and Third street. The city appraisers reported no damages or benefits assessed, and the report of the appraisers appointed by the district court confirms their findings.

Mr. Holmes first appealed from the establishment of the easement, and asked the court to set it aside as far as his property was concerned, but he later agreed to appeal only from the estimate of the appraisers. He claimed that his property was worth $11,500 and it was damaged fully $2,500 by the new easement.

BRIDGE IS TO RUN ON SUNDAY

Temporary Repairs Are Now Complete at Aerial Ferry.

Although repair work on the aerial bridge will not be completed before the end of next week, at least, the car will be running tomorrow for the accommodation of people desiring to travel between Park Point and the city proper.

The ferry boat will not operate Sunday. The bridge workers refused to work on the Sabbath unless paid double wages, and as long as the car can be run without damaging the structure any, the board of public works thought it would be just as well to put it in commission for the one day, especially in view of the fact that travel on Sundays is too heavy for one boat to handle. This action will also save $60 boat rental charges.

The bridge is undergoing a thorough overhauling, and numerous bolts, nuts, etc., are being replaced and strengthened. It would have been possible to put the bridge in fair running shape by today, but the city thought it would be the best plan to make repairs and improvements of a permanent nature, thus guaranteeing against any trouble from the same cause within the next year or two.

ARE TEARING OUT SWITCH

No More Extra Cars for the Theater Patrons.

The Duluth Street Railway company this morning began the work of taking out the railway switch in front of the Lyceum theater, placed there for the convenience of theater patrons. In response to a request of some of the business interests in the block, made on the ground that the switch was too noisy, the council ordered the removal of the steel, and hereafter there will be no extra car service after the shows at the Lyceum.

Only two cars can be kept at Eighth avenue west. Three would block the street. It will be five or ten minutes before these cars can get around the switch and to the Lyceum after the show lets out, and two cars will be insufficient upon the regular service. Before the switch was put in, kicks on the poor car service after shows were so numerous that the traction company was ordered to go ahead and install the switch.

Prompt compliance on the part of the company in following out the council's order is taken to mean that it is perfectly willing to do away with the switch. It is claimed the thing has been a source of annoyance and expense to the street car people. Before the council's order was issued, the company had ordered new switch parts to replace the old.

COPPER STOCKS HAVE A RALLY

The Share Market Gains Strength Toward Latter Part of Session.

The copper stock market advanced during the short session today and closed at better prices than yesterday. During the early part of the day, the shares were indifferent, but a reaction followed, which sent them up.

North Butte opened at $83.50, advanced to $85.62½ and closed at $85.25 bid and $85.50 asked. Amalgamated opened at $76.62½, advanced to $78.62½ and closed at $78.50 bid and $78.62½ asked.

Greene-Cananea opened at $11, advanced to $11.25 and closed at $11.12½ bid and $11.37½ asked. Butte Coalition opened at $25.25, advanced to $25.50 and closed at $25.75 bid and $26 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $118.25, advanced to $121.50 and closed at $120.50 bid and $122 asked. Anaconda opened at $46.62½, advanced to $47.25 and closed at $47.12½ bid and $47.37½ asked.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $14 and closed at $14 bid and $14.12½ asked. Black Mountain sold at $2.37½ and closed at $2.75 bid, and $3 asked.

Will Carr, formerly engaged in the brokerage business here with his brother, Walter, arrived in the city today from Chicago. Walter Carr is expected some time next week.

Mr. Carr says he has been resting since he left Duluth. He is here for a visit and to attend to some business matters. Walter Carr has a suit for several thousand dollars against Holman Brothers & company, which is to come up soon.

RECEIVERSHIP HAS NO EFFECT

Booth Line Boats Will Continue to Operate This Fall.

"Go ahead and do business," is the order received by local agents of A. Booth & Co., the Chicago firm, which went into the hands of a receiver this week, with close to $3,000,000 liabilities.

It was thought here that possibly the receivership would mean the suspension of the line of boats running between Duluth and north and south shore points, but W. H. Northmore, the local agent, said today that he has been told to continue doing business and the boats will continue to run.

The schedule for the remainder of the season will remain the same as during the summer. The south shore boats will be pulled off before those running on the north shore, on account of ice conditions, but as far as is known now, the receivership will not have any effect here this year, at least.

If seven-tenths of the people who are looking for a place to live should read your ad. in The Herald would it not "help some?"

LIST STILL GROWING

Contributions Have Now Passed the $37,000 Mark.

Total of $50,000 Will Probably be Raised Here.

Contributions are coming steadily in for the fire sufferers of the range, and it now looks as though Duluth people will open their pocketbooks to the extent of $50,000. The amount has now passed the $37,000 mark.

Merchants and business men of nearby towns are taking an active interest in the fire fund and are watching it grow as anxiously as are Duluth people. The following is a letter from one of them, such as The Herald has been receiving every day since the starting of the fund:

"Sturgeon Lake, Minn., Sept. 11, 1908.

"Duluth Evening Herald, Duluth, Minn.

"Gentlemen—Enclosed please find $20, aid for the fire sufferers. My sympathies, and the sympathies of our people are wholly with your cartoon of 'Don't forget the settlers, for they are without insurance, and have lost all.'

"Yours truly,

JOHN J. MOE DENIES

Signing Petition Favoring O. N. Lundberg for Register of Deeds

In a petition appearing in the Duluth Posten, of the issue of Friday, Sept. 11, indorsing the candidacy of O. N. Lundberg for the office of register of deeds, appears the name of John J. Moe, a member of the city council, member of the school board and proprietor of the John J. Moe & Sons' department store of West end.

In a statement Mr. Moe denies that his name was used with his authority, denies that he voiced the sentiment attributed to him in the petition, and further states that he was not asked regarding the use of his name. Other names appear in the petition. In what manner these names were secured is not known by Mr. Moe. But he wishes to deny that his name was used with his authority, and also wishes to deny that he has indorsed the candidacy of Mr. Lundberg.

The Posten issue of last Friday was the last issue of that paper before the primaries of next Tuesday. That permitted Mr. Moe no opportunity to state that his name was used without his sanction through the columns of that paper. He takes this opportunity to make public his denial of the sentiments attributed to him.

MUST BATTLE FOR RIGHTS

Leading Negro Says the Blacks Will Throw Votes to Bryan.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Walter Wellman, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says:

"'We colored Republicans are not so much anti-Taft as we are pro-negro.'" So said one of the most intelligent and best informed of the negro leaders of the country when he was asked the question: "What is the matter with the negro voters this year?"

Rev. J. Milton Waldron is pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church in this city, and his congregation includes many of the best colored families of the national capital.

"When I say we are not so much anti-Taft as we are pro-negro," he added, "I think that tells the whole story in a nutshell. We are not violently opposed to Mr. Taft. We recognize his high character and his distinguished services. He did offend our people by his action in the Brownsville affair, but it is a mistake to assume that the present revolt among the negroes of the United States is entirely due to the Brownsville case. In point of fact, that is merely the sign, the outward indication. Deeper down is a strong feeling, one of the strongest of which the human heart is capable—that of self-preservation. Yes, we negroes of America have reached the point where we must battle for our very existence.

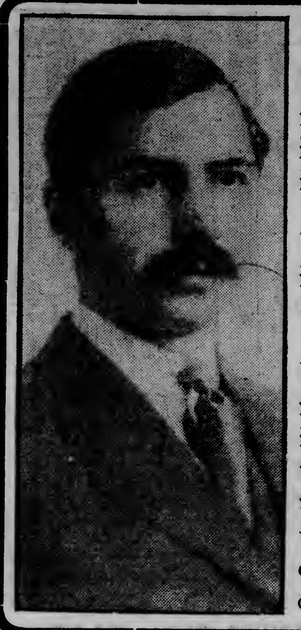

"If we go on supinely following Republican leadership we remain zero. But if we throw our weight to the Democratic ticket and elect it, or carry some of the doubtful states, we shall accomplish our purpose. We are now a people in protest. It is only by political action we can gain power and respect. We are simply pursuing the same method used by classes of people in all constitutional governments. We are forced to do the same thing, and we are going to do it by throwing our balance of power to Bryan in every Northern state where it is possible to do so."

Walter B. Butchart

Is a candidate for the republican nomination for the office of REGISTER OF DEEDS. He is the youngest man in the field today seeking political honors.

Mr. Butchart has for several years been connected with the sheriff's office and is a son of the late Ex-Sheriff, W. W. Butchart.

An active and energetic campaign in his behalf is being conducted by his many friends, and Mr. Butchart himself is exerting every effort to ensure his nomination at the coming primaries. He urges his friends to remember him on that day with their vote, assuring them that if nominated and elected he will administer the duties of the office he seeks to the best of his ability.

August Freeman Arrested.
August Freeman, former king of the Bowery, who, in the old days, would rather fight than drink, was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of drunkenness. He was fined $10 or ten days. This is the third or fourth time he has been arrested in the last two or three months.

Amended Articles Filed.
Amended articles of incorporation of the Pittsburg Iron company were filed this morning with the register of deeds. The principal place of business is at Hibbing, Minn., and the company is incorporated to carry on general mining. The capital stock is $10,000,000 and the incorporators are Samuel W. Rhodes of Pittsburg, Samuel W. Croxton, Samuel H. Holding, Pierce H. Lonergan of Cleveland and W. C. McKeefrey of Latonia, Ohio.

George Dahoff Disappears.
Mrs. George Dahoff of 1812 West Second street has asked the police to assist her in finding her husband, who mysteriously disappeared from home last Wednesday. She cannot imagine what has become of him. He said nothing about leaving town, but has not been seen since starting out from home Wednesday morning.

Assignee May Pay Himself.
Judge Dibell in district court this morning granted the petition of W. W. McMillan, assignee of the American Carbolite company, for the right to pay himself $250 and Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, his attorneys in the assignment, $500 for services rendered.

Verdict for Defendant.
A jury in district court yesterday afternoon returned a verdict for the defendant in the case of Amelia Haug vs. John Croft, which occupied the attention of Judge Cant's court for two days. Mrs. Haug claimed $1,740 damages for a trespass upon her timber lands. The jury decided there had been no trespass.

Company Owes $15,497.35.
The Stewart Transfer company, which recently made an assignment to Moses Stewart for the benefit of its creditors, this morning filed with the clerk of the district court a statement of its assets and liabilities. Its assets in the shape of property are estimated at $10,630 and the face value of the book accounts is $5,350.28. The liabilities are $15,497.35.

Hit With Billiard Cue.
In an argument over a "smear" game in the Astoria hotel pool rooms, Axel Sundberg was laid out cold with a rap over the head with a billiard cue, in the hands of James Singer. The men accused each other of cheating, and the quarrel ended in blows. Both appeared in municipal court this morning, and each was fined $5 and costs, or five days in jail.

Mrs. Phoebe Dean Dead.
Mrs. Phoebe Dean of Elkhart, Ind., mother of N. D. Dean of Lakeside, died this week at her home, at the age of 78 years. She has often visited in Duluth, and was well known here.

Return From Hunting Trip.
William Morin, Al Kern, Oliver Quick, John McLennan and George McLennan of the North Star Gun club, returned Thursday from the clubhouse near McGregor. They brought back a good bag of ducks, but claim the weather is yet too warm to bring the ducks from the North.

Take Charge of Relief Money.
Mayor Haven has appointed Reuben Johnson, secretary of the civil service commission, and John Connelly of the city clerk's office, to take charge of all the money taken in at the benefit dance to be given at Lincoln park, Monday evening. All the money will go to the fire sufferers' relief fund.

De Lacey Wood Here.
A. De Lacey Wood, editor of the Beaver Bay Advocate, who was in the city today, says that there is no danger from the forest fires along the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railroad, though for a while the fires were very bad, and at one time threatened his printing establishment.

Prisoners Are Released.
Peter Lapointe, Benjamin J. McClavish and George Morgan, three men who were held at the county jail, having been bound over to the grand jury, were released today, no true bills having been found against them. McClavish was charged with assault, Lapointe with grand larceny and Morgan with grand larceny.

Dies in Jacksonville.
Thomas Hines, aged 24, a contractor formerly of Duluth, died yesterday at Jacksonville. He is survived by a widowed mother. The body will be shipped to Duluth for burial. The funeral will be announced later.

Junk Men Prifit.
The junk men of Hibbing and surrounding towns will reap a rich harvest from the disaster that destroyed the little village. About the only thing that was left was iron bedsteads, steel and iron girders and the printing presses of the two daily papers. This will all go for junk.

AUTOMOBILE OVERTURNS

Touring Car is Wrecked on the Hermantown Road.

Brake Failed to Work on a Steep Hill.

A big touring car, driven by Harry Bell, a chauffeur for the Duluth Motor & Vehicle company, and owned by that concern, overturned at the bottom of a hill on the Hermantown road this morning about 10:30 o'clock and the four Duluth people, two men and two women, who occupied the machine with the chauffeur, were thrown out and quite seriously injured. The party had not returned to the city at 2:30 this afternoon, and it was impossible to ascertain the names of its members.

The party rented the machine from the company early this morning and, with Bell driving, went for a ride. While on a hill on the Hermantown road, the brake failed and the big car shot down the hill at a terrific rate of speed. The chauffeur tried to swing it around a curve at the bottom of the hill and on to the level road, but failed and it overturned.

The extent of the injuries received by the members of the party could not be learned. The machine was badly damaged, but it is believed it can be put into serviceable shape again. Aid was sent to the wrecked party by the garage, and the broken machine and its injured occupants will be brought to the city some time this afternoon.

Value of Old Pewter.
The value of old pewter must be relative, as no fixed standard can be set. One authority tells us that the medium sized plate bring from $1.25 to $2.50, the larger sizes from $3 to $10 and the large trenchers, from fifteen to twenty inches, are worth from $10 to $12.

In one collection, says Harper's Bazar, a large straight pot is valued at $16, two smaller ones at $12. Whale oil lamps are valued at from $5 to $10, porringers at from $2.50 to $5.

Among the collections of old pewter one finds more of the porringers than of any other one style of piece. For some unknown reason they have survived the destruction that came to other larger pieces of pewter.

ONE WEEK—MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 14th UNTIL SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th—ONE WEEK

FREE!
$7.50
SET OF WARE

With every Majestic Range sold during this Cooking Exhibition, we will give absolutely FREE one handsome set of ware as shown. This ware is worth $7.50 if it is worth a cent. It is the best that can be bought. We don't add $7.50 to the price of the range and tell you you are getting the ware free, but sell all Majestic Ranges at the regular price. You get the ware free. Remember this is for exhibition week only. Ware will not be given after this week. This ware is on exhibition at our store, and must be seen to be appreciated.

Come in any day during the week. Make our store your headquarters. Have coffee and biscuits with us.

Come, if you intend to buy or not; the information gained will serve you in the future.

FACTS ABOUT THE GREAT MAJESTIC RANGE

It is the only range in the world made of Malleable and Charcoal Iron.

It has, beyond any question of a doubt, the largest and best reservoir.

It uses about half the fuel used on other ranges, and does better work by far.

The Majestic All Copper Nickeled Reservoir heats the water quicker and hotter than any other. It is the only reservoir with a removable frame.

The Charcoal Iron Body of the Great Majestic Range lasts three times as long as a steel body.

Being made of non-breakable material, there is practically no expense for repairing the Majestic.

As for baking, it is perfection; not only for a few months, but for all time to come.

A Great Majestic Range lasts three times as long as a cheap range, but it don't cost three times as much.

PROOF—We don't ask you to take our word for any of the above statements, but if you will call at our store, a man from the factory, where Majestic Ranges are made, will prove to your satisfaction that these are absolute facts, and will show you many more reasons why the Great Majestic Range is absolutely the best that money can buy.

Attorney General Rules on Independence Organization in State.

Hearst People Must Hold Convention, Else Ticket is Void.

St. Paul, Sept. 12.—The Independence party is not a political party under the law of Minnesota, according to the interpretation of the attorney general's office in an opinion rendered yesterday noon. State officers of the party cannot be put on the ballot without a convention of the party. Until passed upon by the supreme court, this decision must govern the actions of the party.

The opinion further states that as it is not a political party, petitions must be used for presidential electors. Petitions bearing more than one name are void, and separate petitions must be secured for each elector. These petitions cannot be circulated until after the primary election.

The opinion is addressed to Julius A. Schmahl, secretary of state, in response to a query following the receipt of a letter from W. W. Allen, candidate for governor on the Independence party ticket in this state. The members of the state Independence party have been endeavoring for several days to get the names of their national electors and state candidates on the general ballot this fall.

The opinion says:

"As it is not a political party it cannot qualify to nominate candidates without a convention."

up to them by Hanly's firm hand and given a chance to either jump or lie down—and all before election.

Not only are Watson and his friends quaking in their shoes, but there are pathetic, despairing howls and cries from the southern part of the state, where Senator Hemenway's friends are lamenting that this demnition business may rob him of his senatorial shirt. These things be of general interest because the present painful situation—from a Republican viewpoint—carries the possibility of putting Indiana in the Democratic column on the presidential contest beyond a peradventure.

The Democratic Candidate.

Never, possibly, have the Democrats had at the head of their state ticket a better man, personally; a cleaner man in all his relations; a sounder man politically, as an exponent of the good, old Jeffersonian principles, than Thomas R. Marshall. Never has the party had a better platform. Not in many years has it had a better prospect of success.

Opposed to Marshall is James E. ("Jim") Watson. He is smirched with the slime of "practical" politics, in the most offensive sense of the term. As whip of the house, he was a zealous servitor of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, "Jim" Sherman and the "standpat" crowd they led. Time was, when Watson would have been the ideal candidate in Indiana, but that time has passed. The public conscience has awakened here, as it has everywhere. "Jim" Watson is repugnant to a public moral sense, grown more discriminating of yore. The good old days when the glad hand, the glittering generality and the hollow promise were the political coin that passed as good for public favors in the shape of office and spoils are no more. The Republican leaders saw that the fight was to be on a moral issue, and strictly on the merits of platform and candidates. They saw that Watson would not be able to "get by" solely on the ground that "Uncle Joe" was his good friend and that he stood well, generally, with the "standpatter" crowd in Washington; that he had worked hard for the "machine" in the state, and that he was a good fellow and ought to have it, anyhow. The people at first did not seem to care a cent whether "Uncle Joe" liked "Jim" or not; latterly, "Uncle Joe's" favor seemed to be distinctly a handicap. Marshall's keynote speech, a clear, succinct presentation of the abuses of long-continued Republican rule, cleared the air like a thunderstorm, and the Republican machine realized that it would have to do some real explaining and lug out some real arguments. The applause evoked by Marshall's utterance, coming from all sections, and echoed in a rather considerable contingent of the Republican press, showed the G. O. P. ring that it had a real fight on its hands.

The Republican platform has a plank for local option, with the county as the unit. Every Republican platform since 1888 has contained a similar plank. The party has been in almost constant power since then, but nary a local option law has it passed. The Democratic platform this year declares for local option by city wards or townships.

The Republican Plan.

Looking over the field, the Republican leaders decided their safest play—their one best bet—was on their local option plank as against the Democratic city, ward or township planks. So to work they went to play up the enormous (sic.) difference between county local option and local option by city ward or township. They pulled out all the stops and hammered away on the theme with hands and feet, trying desperately to get the State Anti-Saloon league and the miscellaneous body of temperance advocates to join in the refrain. Meanwhile they winked the other eye at the brewers, as in the past, and the brewers "slipped them over a few" to help along the machine brand of reform, as in the past.

And Hanly was in the tall grass, watching and waiting. Hanly is of the Simon-pure reform type—of the school of Folk, Lafollette, et al. When he "took" his reform, he had it bad—it was not a mere surface eruption that breaks out just before election and disappears immediately after. The "practical" leaders sneer at him as "goody-goody," in their more complaisant moments. When they are as mad—as they are now—and that's some—what they call him couldn't be telephoned—it would burn out all the connections and melt the wires.

So the leaders played to the cold-water galleries, while ex-Governor Durbin slipped around on the quiet and conveyed to the brewers the assurance that "Jim" didn't mean it. The steerers of the machine succeeded in convincing themselves that they had things going about right. And with Beveridge and the other spell-binders to come in later on the anvil chorus of the great paean of reform, prospects began to look pretty good to them.

But there was Hanly in the tall grass, watching and waiting. These very leaders had laughed him and his reforms down the wind. At their behest, the Republican legislature, two years ago, grabbed his insurance reform legislation and threw it out of the window without even turning their heads to see where it landed. As for his recommendations for progressive temperance measures, they simply ignored them. Vincennes university came in with an old $100,000 claim—repeatedly vetoed and turned down by former legislatures as without merit—and it was promptly handed an allowance in full. (That would help Hemenway's chances for re-election some). Hanly vetoed it; it was promptly passed over his veto. He rushed to sign the bonds, however, and there the matter stands, in such shape that the legislature can be called on to tackle it again.

Hanly Turned Down.

Hanly went into the convention to see if he couldn't get a little reform there, and to punish some of the legislative opposition leaders, chief among them being Hon. Fremont Goodwine. He got the merry ha, ha. The convention nominated Fremont Goodwine for lieutenant governor, and did about everything else that Hanly didn't want it to do. Hanly threatened to take the stump against Goodwine. The convention said, "Go to. Tell your troubles to the Chautauquas." Then it dispersed and went home, satisfied that Hanly and his reform foolishness was done for. But—note its cynical confidence in the ability of the electorate to be fooled—it put the very things the machine had denied Hanly in the legislature into its platform, to snare votes—local option, insurance reform, retrenchment.

Hanly, whom we have observed in the tall grass, now emerges. Under his arm, his deadly bomb, in the shape of the call for a special session. Planting it squarely in the midst of the Republican camp, he touches it off, with a smile of ineffable joy on his face, and then settles back to watch the pieces come down.

The party has been given by its dear governor the last thing it wanted—the opportunity to act on the reforms its platform calls for before election—reforms it was forced to put into its platform by Hanly. Many Republican members of the legislature are running for re-election. Some are controlled by interests which make it impossible for them to vote for insurance reform, local option, or any other Hanly reforms. Over fifty members of the lower house are against any sort of local option.

It's a stiff and bitter dose Hanly has fixed up for the machine. The leaders are wailing that it will rend the party in Indiana and ruin the national ticket's chances. They called on National Chairman Hitchcock and he came down and tried to stop Hanly. It was no use; the governor had the bit in his teeth. The Watson-Goodwine-Durbin crowd must take their medicine.

Since the call was issued, the odds have gone from 4 to 3 on Watson to even money that Marshall will be elected.

A Dredge will do the work of more than 1000 men operating by the old hand system

We own 460 acres of placer ground that expert engineers say contain $23,000,000. We also have practically the exclusive right to dredge about 20 miles of the bed of the Colorado River, which they say contains at least $180,000,000 more of free gold. We also have the right to dredge other parts of this river bed which are also very rich in free gold. We believe that for the next 50 years we can pay a yearly dividend of 400 per cent on an investment at 25 cents a share; the very low price at which we are now selling a limited amount of stock to raise the additional amount necessary to buy our dredges. The price will be advanced after October 15, 1908 to 35 cents a share and after January 1, 1909 to 50 cents a share. After our first dredge begins work, the price will be advanced to $1.00 a share. If you want any stock at this bottom price, order now; it will all soon be gone.

We have ordered our first dredge which will be put at work as soon as completed and expect to put three others at work as soon as they can be built.

ALEXANDER FRASER

Candidate For Republican Nomination County Commissioner First District.

Alexander Fraser hardly needs any introduction to the voters of the First commissioner district. For over 30 years he has been a resident of the city and the county and there are few men, probably, in this part of the state any more widely and favorably known. For years Mr. Fraser has watched the upbuilding of the city and county and has contributed no small share in that growth. Having been in the lumber and timber business, he has explored the county thoroughly and knows every foot of it. For this reason he is well equipped to understand the needs of any part of the county. Although he is without an abundance of this world's goods, Mr Fraser has a reputation for integrity in private and business life that is without a flaw. His friends say that his worst fault is "that he is strictly on the square." Mr. Fraser has not had much time in his busy life to devote to social affairs, but he is a member of the Elks, and several other prominent fraternal organizations. Although fortune has not dealt liberally with him, Mr. Fraser has the satisfaction of knowing that there are successful men in Duluth today who owe more or less of their financial success to him. His word was good with them and they never had cause to regret it.

ANDREW MILLER

Who is a Candidate for Renomination as Representative from the Fiftieth District,

Has earned an enviable reputation by the way he has represented his district during the last three terms. His long service has eminently fitted him for the position, and his grasp of legislative work makes him a valuable member of the delegation. Although he is not an orator or debater on the floor, by his quiet work among the members he accomplishes more than many who have the gift of gab and whose names get into the newspapers His work for good roads and state drainage during last session assisted materially in getting a good sized appropriation for St. Louis county.

Being a man of the plain people, he naturally associated himself with the class which came nearest to his station in life, and was thereby able to secure valuable support for St. Louis county measures from the farmer element in the legislature. His canvass of the district has been thorough, and his renomination seems a foregone conclusion His popularity is best shown by the vote received at previous primaries, when he has invariably received the highest number of votes cast for any candidate in the district for similar office.

DRIVEN TO DRINK.

Frank Prosnic, in municipal court yesterday, said he was driven to drink by the forest fires. When arraigned in the morning, he pleaded not guilty, and the case was set over to afternoon for further investigation.

Officers Bentson and Dickman, who were responsible for the arrest of the man, were summoned, and in court in the afternoon they stated positively that Prosnic was stupidly drunk. On the witness stand he testified that he had not touched a drop of intoxicants in eight years.

"Do you mean to say that you have not taken a drink in eight years up to the present minute?" asked the judge.

"No, I mean that I did not drink up to Thursday afternoon. Then I got to thinking about the forest fires, and to prevent the horrible picture the thought presented I took to drink," said the prisoner. He was allowed to go under suspended sentence.

Passed Examination Successfully.

James Donahue, New Britain, Conn., writes: "I tried several kidney remedies, and was treated by our best physicians for diabetes, but did not improve until I took Foley's Kidney Remedy. After the second bottle I showed improvement, and five bottles cured me completely. I have since passed a rigid examination for life insurance." Foley's Kidney Remedy cures backache and all forms of kidney and bladder trouble. Sold by all druggists.

NOTARIES PUBLIC

ATTENTION

The Independence party wishes to employ at once notaries to secure two thousand signatures to each of its twenty petitions for placing on the official ballot its nominees, and will pay out of its campaign fund 10 cents for each duly qualified petitioner who signs all of said petitions.

Good, noble, public-spirited notaries, who will help us in this cause, please write me immediately.

And to the public in general, who believe in country and American independence, we now appeal for financial support. Send in something for the good of the cause, even if it be not more than 25 cents. It takes money to carry on the great work we have set out to do, and while we have some money, we need much more, and the more we have the greater will be our accomplishment for humanity at this time and the noble cause we espouse.

PRIMARY CAMPAIGN IS DRAWING TO A CLOSE

Bede Attack Was Sensation of Week in Political Circles.

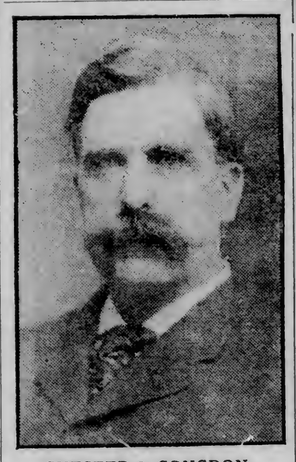

"Strong Men for Legislature," Cry at Last Heeded.

The campaign for nominations to congress from this district, to the legislative offices from the Forty-ninth, Fiftieth and Fifty-first districts, and for the county offices, is all but over.

The primaries are to be held Tuesday. This will give the candidates but one more day before the nomination day to pass out cigars and make their final arguments. The race is practically over now, and right up to the last moment there will be a good many

GEORGE W. BUCK,
Candidate for the Republican Nomination in the Fifty-first.

CHESTER A. CONGDON,
Candidate for Republican Nomination in the Fifty-first District.

places on the ticket that will be in doubt.

The sensation of the week in political circles was, of course, the Bede speech at the Armory Thursday night, when he assailed the personal record of Clarence B. Miller, his opponent.

The Bede speech was the most widely discussed political item in the state yesterday. Many were the opinions expressed regarding it. The general opinion in Duluth appears to be that it hurt Mr. Bede's chances of securing the nomination. It was argued that Mr. Bede had every right to attack the public record of Miller as an officeholder as much as he saw fit, but that the digging up of the private history of his opponent, which was well known to Mr. Miller's friends, was not only uncalled for, but unfair.

There were some who argued, on the other side, and who declared that the attack would get Mr. Bede more votes.

Whatever the result was, the odds on Mr. Miller were immediately increased from 12 to 10 to 15 to 10, and he is now a strong favorite in the betting.

Whether Mr. Miller will come back at his opponent Monday night remains to be seen. A big Miller mass meeting has been advertised to take place in the Armory Monday night, and Mr. Miller will wind up his campaign with the first speech he has made before a large public gathering in Duluth during the campaign. The Bede meeting packed the hall, and judging from the interest the attack has aroused in the campaign, standing room will probably be at a premium at the Miller meeting.

People who come there from some of the outside counties say Bede will win. But reports from the rang, and from many of the outside counties of the district indicate that Miller is as strong a favorite as he is in Duluth. Mr. Bede's attack may act as a boomerang and go wide of the effect Mr. Bede desired. Narrowed down to the last stage, it looks like Miller next Tuesday.

Never before have Duluth citizens and residents of the county as a whole had such an array of strong men to honor with their votes for the legislature. Such men as Chester A. Congdon, George W. Buck, Dr. O. A. Credson, J. W. Reynolds, Dr. David Graham, Joseph Austin, Andrew Borgen and Richard F. Grant, are not induced to enter the political field in every campaign. They are making the race at a personal sacrifice, for the benefit of the county.

"Make up in quality what we lack in numbers," must be the slogan of the northern part of the state when considering legislators this year. Owing to the unjust apportionment, St. Louis county and the other northern counties of the state have not their fair proportion of members and it is up to the voters to place men in the legislature, who by the sheer force of their personality, and their ability to make their wants known, will make up for their lack of numbers.

Political considerations have been largely laid aside this year, and the cry is "get the best men, and the men who can wield the greatest influence."

The legislative field looks very favorable for Dr. David Graham and Joseph Austin in the Forty-ninth legislative district. Both are able men. E. L. Raab of Sparta has been putting up a good fight, but sentiment seems to favor Dr. Graham and Joseph Austin.

In the Fiftieth district, the prospects look bright for Richard F. Grant and Anton Borgen. They have been putting up an aggressive campaign. John R. Randall and Andrew Miller and J. F. McGillivray, however, have some following in the district.

In the Fifty-first district it looks like Chester A. Congdon and George W. Buck. Both of these candidates have gone throughly over the district, have devoted considerable time to their campaigns and seem to have the lead. Apropos of their campaigns, the Ely Miner says:

"In sizing up the legislative sentiment in Ely it is found that Messrs. Congdon and Buck, the two Duluth candidates are in the lead and will probably poll the majority of votes of the city. The entire Fifty-first district seems to be afflicted this way and without a doubt the gentlemen will be nominated. Both are strong men and will keep the district in the front rank of the legislative body, a distinction we have enjoyed for many years."

N. E. Hugo has been making a hard fight for re-election, but the nomination of Mr. Congdon and Mr. Buck is predicted.

* * *

For county attorney Charles E. Adams and John H. Norton are having a very close fight. Both have put up strong campaigns, both have been over the county; and each believes that he will be the victor Tuesday. This promises to be one of the closest fights on the county ticket—one place where it will be hard to pick a winner.

* * *

W. A. Holgate has no opposition for county treasurer. Odin Halden likewise has no opposition for county auditor.

* * *

For nomination for the register of deeds there is a hot fight on with M. C. Palmer seeming to have a slight lead for the nomination. O. N. Lundberg and Walter Butchard have been putting up a very strong campaign, but it looks as if Mr. Palmer would receive the nomination.

* * *

For county coroner, Dr. J. A. McCuen and Dr. J. H. Egan will be nominated without opposition and for county surveyor Lyonel Ayres will have no opposition.

There is a hot race on for the office of sheriff. William J. Bates, the present sheriff, who is a candidate for re-election, has the lead apparently. Mr. Bates has neglected nothing in his campaign and from all appearances will be nominated.

* * *

The fight over the office of judge of probate has been very interesting, and the outlook is rather in doubt, with the odds rather favoring Judge Middlecoff, as the incumbent. Yet A. E. Pfremmer has made the best campaign of any of the range candidates for office, and if he gets the solid backing of the range voters, added to the votes of those who are willing to concede the range another office, he will probably run Judge Middlecoff a tight race. However, the latter has the reputation of being a hard and successful campaigner, and he does not appear to have been neglecting his fences.

* * *

For clerk of the district court, J. P. Johnson, the present incumbent will win easily. He is opposed by John M. Martin. Mr. Johnson claims that his term has two years yet to run, and that he filed rather than take chances on a court decision regarding the legality of his claim. Anton W. Thompson, Democratic candidate for the office, has been making a good campaign and has shown strength in the past two weeks.

* * *

For county commissioners there is a good field out and it is hard to pick a winner. A county commissioner has the handling and disposition of a goodly share of the county funds, but it is safe to say that from the list of candidates, St. Louis county voters will have no trouble in choosing a representative lot of county officials.

* * *

P. H. Nelson, Democratic candidate for state treasurer, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Nelson says things are looking very bright throughout the state for a Democratic victory, not only for governor, but also for many of the other state offices.

"The election of a Democratic treasurer has been a good thing for Pennsylvania," said Mr. Nelson, "and it might likewise be a good thing in Minnesota."

Mr. Nelson is a young man, who has made his own way in life. He was born in Kandiyohi, Kandiyohi county, thirty-five years ago. He has been on the Mesaba range for fifteen years. For five years he was a telegraph operator, working in different parts of the range. Ten years ago he engaged in the lumber and mining business at Hibbing. By hard work he has built his business into a very profitable one. Mr. Nelson has never held office, or in fact, has never been actively in politics before. He says that he can work for the other fellow better than he can for himself, but believes that the voters of the state will find him faithful to all their interests, should they elect him to office. His record is a clean one, and St. Louis county will doubtless stand behind him.

P. H. NELSON OF HIBBING.

Don't Miss This

Clarence B. Miller, Republican Candidate for Nomination as Congressman Will Talk on National Issues at the Armory, Monday Evening, 8 o'Clock

AN OPEN LETTER

To the Editor of the Sandstone Courier, Sandstone, Minn.—Dear Sir: Reading your editorial of the 3rd, relating to Speaker Cannon reminds me of the fickleness of the Jade Fame.

Less than a year ago, Cannon posed with Roosevelt as one of the idols of the Republican party. Alas, how the mighty have fallen. None now are so poor among the Republican newspapers as to do him honor, and why this shattering of this at one time mighty idol? Because there must be a victim sacrificed to appease the wrath of the people on account of the troublous times that have fallen upon them. It would not do to sacrifice the idol Roosevelt, the real cause of the evils, because his mantle has fallen upon the shoulders of Taft, and to sacrifice Roosevelt would mean to sacrifice Taft and all the fishpots of Egypt.

This, of course, is not to be thought of, and so they marked the next greatest for slaughter.

Poor old Joe Cannon. To prepare the victim, they had introduced in congress a pulp wood bill, a bill to admit pulp wood free from Canada. A bill, that if enacted, would lower the price of pulp wood that the settlers have to sell $2 per cord. A direct loss to the people of this Eighth district, of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and the gainers, a few newspapers, who would get cohaper print paper at the expense of the settlers of this Eighth district, who have a large amount of this wood to sell.

I also say think of these things. Joe Cannon stood by his faith. That bill was an attack upon the Republican doctrine of protection, the doctrine he has been champion of for twenty years in the halls of congress. He pigeonholed the bill and saved to the settlers of this district $2 per cord on their pulp wood, and by so doing brought down upon his head, and upon the heads of those that stood with him, the wrath of the great newspaper trust, and the cry went forth to kill them.

Think these things over, Voters, they ask you to kill Congressman Bede because he does not repudiate Cannon; this man who saved this $2 per cord to the needy settlers of this district.

A little less Rooseveltism and a little more conservative Cannonism is what the people and the business of this country needs at this time, is my humble opinion. Yours truly,

G. H. CUNNINGHAM.
Sturgeon Lake, Minn., Sept. 5.

JOHN CASHIN

Notice to His Range and City Friends and Voters of St. Louis County:

John Cashin, the Democratic candidate for Register of Deeds wishes to announce that, although he will have no opposition at the primaries, Sept. 15, he wishes his friends to know that he will have opposition at the general election, and solicits their votes for the office. He cannot know yet who his opponent will be, as there are three candidates for the Republican nomination, but he has filed to win and is making all the preparations he possibly can with that end in view. If elected, Mr. Cashin will perform the duties of the office with promptness and will give his whole attention to the work. He has resided 38 years in the county, is 44 years of age and a graduate of Montreal academies. Mr. Cashin is well known in the city and on the ranges. Besides his experience in the log scaling and lumber business, he has had three years' experience in the real estate business. He is fully qualified for the position and is generally recognized as a worker. He feels worthy of your vote and earnestly seeks your support. He stands on his record as a citizen and depends on his energy and hustle to make his campaign the success that he expects it will be.

JOHN SUNDEEN

Although he has held the office of County Commissioner of the Third district, comprising the Sixth and Seventh wards of the City of Duluth but one term, John Sundeen, the well known West End business man, has made a record that fully justifies the voters of that district in returning him to the office. He is seeking renomination on the Republican ticket, and his record on the county board is one that he feels will be indorsed by the voters at the coming primaries.

Mr. Sundeen took with him into public office the long experience of a successful business man. He has given careful and considerate attention to every detail for the benefit of his district and the county at large and has secured more money from the county road funds for the improvement of roads within the city limits than any or all of his predecessors. Each year that he has been in office the amount thus appropriated has been larger. Mr. Sundeen is an ardent believer in the good roads movement and has always advocated the expenditure of road funds to the very best advantage. On every occasion his vote has been on the right side of all moral and business questions. Mr. Sundeen's qualities as a business man were recognized by the district court in appointing him on the courthouse commission, which has the superintendence of the building of the new $1,000,000 courthouse. Mr. Sundeen has given a great deal of attention to the matter, is thoroughly familiar with the mass of details in connection with the project, and it is believed that he should be renominated and re-elected to the board in order that he may continue this important work.

NOW LINE UP ALL TOGETHER

To the Voters of St. Louis County: I have been making a campaign for the Republican nomination for Sheriff for several months, and now that it is about closing, I take this occasion to thank my friends throughout the county for their assistance rendered thus far, and hope they will continue faithful until the Primary Polls close next Tuesday.

I have made the campaign clean, fair and square, and it may please my friends to say that from pledges made, assurances given and reports heard from every quarter of St. Louis County, I AM GOING TO WIN.

And why not? A public office is not created for one person to hold forever and always. It is contrary to the teachings and purposes of the founders of a Republican form of government to perpetuate persons in office indefinitely. It is monarchical and despotic to create a privileged office-holding class.

To all voters who believe that it is nothing more than right, fair and square to have a change, I want to say this:

THE ONLY WAY TO SECURE THAT CHANGE IS TO VOTE FOR ME.

I say this without boasting or vanity. It is merely a plain statement of facts as they appear to any student of the political sheriff situation. I had the highest number of votes next to the nominee two years ago. I have made a longer and stronger campaign this time than I did then. I have had much more encouragement. I am therefore justified in saying the only way to secure a change in the office of sheriff is to unite cordially, earnestly and enthusiastically in my support.

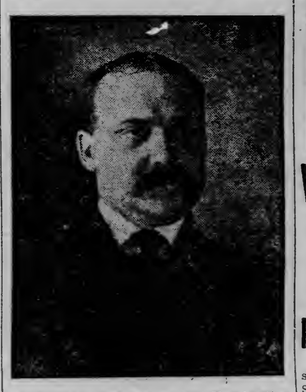

You may say that it is but natural that I should be biased in my views. Well look at it for yourself. Ask old campaigners. Think it over. DON'T DIVIDE THE VOTE—Don't scatter the fire. Vote for the one who has a chance of winning. Vote for me. Again thanking you, I am respectfully,

JOHN R. MEINING.

J.H. MacGillivray

Republican Candidate for Nomination for Representative from the Fiftieth District.

With a thorough knowledge of what the position requires, born on the shore of Lake Superior, has lived in the district for eighteen years, has had experience in the state capitol for the past four sessions, as assistant sergeant-at-arms; is well acquainted with a large number of leading men, all over the state, and familiar with the work of the law-making bodies, he respectfully asks your support at the primaries Sept. 15, 1908.

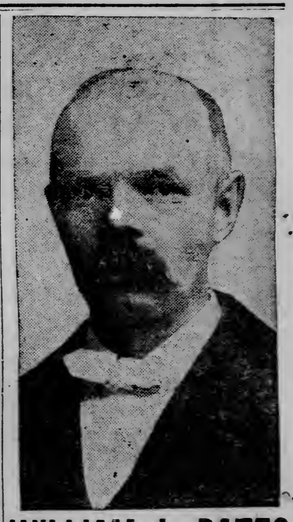

Capt. John R. Randall

To the Voters of St. Louis County, Fiftieth Legislative District:

I feel fully justified in placing my name upon the list for renomination on the Republican ticket. Having retired from active business some years ago, on account of a disability incurred in three years' service in the Civil war, I am prepared to devote my whole attention to the duties of the office. I served in two Michigan regiments; was made Fourth Sergeant in the Seventh; was transferred and promoted to First Lieutenant in the Eighteenth Michigan Infantry, Army of the Cumberland, was again promoted and transferred to command of F Company at the age of 22 years. The promotion was made over eight first lieutenants that outranked me in that regiment. I was the youngest captain and the first promoted. I have always been a successful business man. I have been superintendent and head miller of some of the best flouring mills in the United States, at San Francisco, Cal., Terre Haute, Ind., and at St. Louis, Mo., for the Chauteau-Edwards company. The exports of this company amounted to over $1,000,000 annually. I have built two mills for myself and feel fully able to cope with any business interests of my constituents. I was successful in securing the passage of the state swamp drainage land bill and several other bills of importance to my district and the county at the last session. If elected, I shall work hard for good roads. I respectfully solicit your votes at the primaries, Sept. 15, Tuesday next.

JOHN R. RANDALL.

WILLIAM J. BATES

Candidate for Republican Nomination for Sheriff.

PLATFORM—HIS RECORD

Some of the important requisites of a sheriff of a county with the big area of St. Louis County are familiarity with the ground, judgment and tact in the discharge of duties, a thorough knowledge of the legal processes placed in his hands for service, and the faithful and impartial execution of the orders of the court and of the county attorney.

Nobody can lay stronger claim to the qualifications than Sheriff W. J. Bates, who is asking the indorsement of the voters, by his nomination on the Republican Ticket to the office he now occupies. For this reason, if there were no others, a strong argument is presented against a change in the office at this time.

Sheriff Bates stands squarely on his record as a public officer. He has conducted the affairs of his office in a thorough, economical manner. He has surrounded himself with a force of deputies who are efficient and painstaking in their work, and no service that has passed through his office has ever been neglected.

Whether engaged in criminal or civil processes, Sheriff Bates has the record of doing his work faithfully and impartially.

He has conducted the county jail in a way that has been commended by every grand jury during his administration.

Believing that the efficient service he has rendered the public, warrants his continuance in office, Mr. Bates asks for nomination and election on the Republican Ticket.

He has made an efficient, fair and courteous judge, and asks your support at the primaries on Sept. 15, 1908.

ON THE IRON RANGES

LOGGERS HAVE STARTED WORK

Resumption of Old Sawmill at Virginia Gives Many Work.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Only one side of the Virginia Lumber company's big mill was running for two days this week on account of breaking of the band saw pulleys. Repairs were made and operations resumed yesterday noon. The repair work on the old mill is progressing rapidly.

The logs placed in the lake during last winter are nearly all sawed and another week or ten days will finish them.

Logging has already commenced in some of the camps and the new stock will begin to arrive within a few days. The resumption of sawing at the old mill will add about 250 men to the company's payroll in this city and it will not be many weeks before fully 1,000 more men find employment in the company's camps.

EVELETH FEELS TOLERABLY SAFE

Little Likelihood of Town Catching Fire Owing to Precautions.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—While there is little danger from the forest fires here, people are cleaning their yards and alleys of paper and wood. Hose is being used to a great extent in wetting down all dry wood, as the heat is very great in the day time and a good wetting is necessary daily with this kind of weather. The mayor has issued orders for all property owners to clean up and take care of their premises under penalty of being arrested. The orders are being strictly carried out by Fire Warden Charles Johnson. Little to warrant fear of fire has been noticed either along the road to Sparta and Gilbert or around both of the towns. At the present time the towns are very safe and besides all are on the watch for any sign of fire that might spring up. Eveleth seems to have been the most fortunate on the whole range in the way of surrounding forest fires, and the people have not been called out to fight any kind of fire during the past week.

ABSENCE OF WIND IS HELPING OUT

Fire-Fighters Get Breathing Spell Around Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are fires smoldering in many directions and the smoke is becoming more dense and oppressive as each day passes. The absence of wind during the past twenty-four hours has given the big fires a chance to burn down and the wearied fighters a rest. Any winds, however, will mean a rapid change to the previous conditions during the week.

ITASCA COUNTY FAIR.

Grand Rapids Preparing for Annual Show Next Week.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Itasca county fair will be held the last three days of next week, Sept. 17, 18 and 19. The fair grounds are nearing completion, and the fair will be held on what will be one of the prettiest and neatest county fair grounds in the state.

About $800 will be given in premiums, the farmers and others will have an incentive and will be materially repaid for bringing in their stock.

J. O. Myers proprietor of the Boston Grand restaurant left Thursday for McKinley, where he will start the Oliver Iron mining company's boarding camps, of which he will have charge.

Mrs. A. A. Knox and daughter, Miss Julia left Tuesday for Minneapolis, where they will make their future home. Fay Knox, who will attend the university the coming year, left Wednesday.

Ray Fenton of Duluth, was a guest of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Smith the last of last week and the first of this. Mr. Fenton played short stop for the Fitwell ball team on Monday.

William Campbell, who has had charge of the dry goods department of H. Hughes & Co.'s big store for the past several years, left Sunday with his family for Park Rapids, where he will have the management of the Albert Mercantile company's store.

RIVER DAMMED AS PRECAUTION

People of Tower Want Plenty of Water to Fight Fire.

Tower, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—While forest fires in this locality have been burning for several days, there has been no danger. The people are well prepared to fight the flames if they should come too close to town.

As a precaution, the river was dammed Thursday, just below the rapids, near the electric light plant, insuring a good supply of water in case of need.

Dense smoke has enveloped the city for several days, but the nearest fire is supposed to be on the other side of Pike river and in the Embarrass valley. There is no dense forest in the immediate vicinity, but should a fire come through the cuttings, with a good breeze blowing, the burning brands might be blown here. Every precaution is being taken to protect property in the vicinity. The Iron Range road has several crews of men along the road, and they have found it necessary to extinguish several small fires, seemingly left by hunters or campers or started from sparks from the engines.

INSPECTOR IS FOXY.

Not Telling Virginians Which Site He is in Favor of.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is much speculation since the public meeting of Wednesday evening as to the probable location of the new federal building and if the government inspector has fixed upon a location he has guarded the secret so well that each partisan of either of the proposed sites has an idea that this particular site is to be favored. There has been much dissatisfaction expressed that after calling a public meeting the inspector discouraged the taking of a vote on the proposition. Many of the people feel that if he only wanted to hear expressions of opinion from prominent citizens he could have attained those sentiments without putting the city to the expense of hiring the opera house and advertising a meeting.

A majority of those who "belong" now entertain the notion that Inspector Boyd will recommend the purchase of the Freeman corner opposite the Fay hotel and if he does he will recommend the second choice of a large majority of the people of Virginia.

They are considerably divided in their opinion as to their first choice, but nearly all united on the Freeman corner for second choice, so if Inspector Boyd is only as wise as he appears to be foxy he will probably obtain options on the Freeman corner.

BEAR GORED BY BULL.

Latest Nature-Faking Story Comes From Waldao.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—An incident of much interest to nature fakers occurred at the farm of William Cable about two miles east of Waldo Thursday night when a bear weighing about 100 pounds attacked a bull owned by Mr. Cable. While the evidence is purely circumstantial, a commotion was heard among the cattle during the night, and when Mr. Cable went to the field in the morning he found the carcass of a bear, badly gored, and the bull was found to be considerably scratched about the head and nose.

TO FIGHT MEAT COMBINE.

Co-operative Meat Company Formed at Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a second meeting of citizens last evening a co-operative meat and provision company was organized with $50,000 capital, a large part of which has already been subscribed. Steps will be at once taken to equip and open a meat market in a convenient location.

The local meat trust has been operating three markets the past three or four years without competition, and the new company will be welcomed by the consumers.

The farmers in the Embarrass river settlements near Tower, many of whom fought hard to save their homes from the fires and are yet in danger, did not forget the Chisholm fire sufferers and forwarded seventy-five bushels of potatoes, their donation, to that place Thursday.

The steamer Kalkaska is due for a cargo of lumber.

Captains of the incoming boats report fires all along the shores of Lake Superior, the south shore and in Canada and also for considerable distance down the west shore of Lake Michigan.

HAVE LAND PATENTS AFTER MANY CONTESTS.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. James Shea of Ely lake now have the patents for the land, which they have held so long against many contestants. The land is well worth the fight as it is near the great Fayal mine and is supposed to contain a large amount of ore. They have been offered large sums for the land, but they intend to hold on to it for some time.

Footballists Getting Ready.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high school boys were out last night for the first time engaged in preliminary football practice. Next week real practice will begin on the high school field.

Time to Gather Exhibits.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The postponing of the fair at Hibbing will give the gardners at the Adams location more time in which to raise their products which they intend sending to the fair. A large number of exhibits had already been collected through the efforts of Justice Moylan, who has been taking an active part in developing the Adams location, so that it now raises many kinds of garden stuff.

Brief Eveleth Items.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alderman Tim Shea has returned from St. Paul, where he went with Alderman Hatch and Fire Chief Neilson, to look at some hook and ladder trucks, as the city is intending to buy one. They also looked around for a team of fire horses.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Marco are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter at Sparta, yesterday morning.

Ben Skramstad returned early in the week from a long trip to Minneapolis and Lake Minnetonka. He also attended the state fair.

Pauline Rabinowitz left on Monday for Duluth, where she will attend the normal school this fall and winter.

Judge Vivian Prince left Tuesday for Springfield, Mass., where he is attending the great council of Red men as great representative from Minnesota. He will visit large Eastern towns before returning.

Cancel Games at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The series of games advertised to be played here between the Hibbing and Virginia ball clubs, beginning yesterday, were cancelled at request of Manager Brady of the Hibbing team. On accouna of postponement of the St. Louis county fair, Mr. Brady desired to have th eteams play in Hibbing today, Sunday and Monday, and to play return games here whenever the fair may be held. This was agreeable to the local management, and so this arrangement was made.

Virginia Club Dance.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Invitations are out for a dancing party to be given by the Virginia club, at the Fay opera house, Friday evening, Sept. 18. The La Brosse orchestra will play.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will give a social dance at the Fay opera house on Friday evening, Sept. 25. The following committee has the arrangements in charge: Bert Krumney, Jack Barrager, Mike Murphy, Eddie White and Richard Moore.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES STANDING SQUARELY ON DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

cratic platform. They have out-Bryaned Bryan in their advocacy of policies which are popular these days, policies, however, which the Republican party and its national leaders have ignored and tried to pass over. Their attitude is significant because it indicates that the people are strongly in favor of the policies which the Democratic party favors and which the Republican party has declared itself as opposed to. It indicates that the Second district, which is always supposed to be strongly Republican, is so strongly in favor of the Democratic policies this year that the Republican candidates are falling over themselves to stand for these policies.

For Bank Deposit Guaranty.

Both of the two candidates have been on the stump advocating Bryan's plan of insuring bank deposits. Both of them are in favor of the physical valuation of railroads, the La Follette idea which was almost unanimously turned down at the Chicago convention. They are for the election of senators by the people, an idea which the Republican convention would have nothing of, but which the Democrats and independent voters all strongly favor. But they are especially emphatic in their declaration for the removal of the tariff on all trust made goods, McCleary stands on the Republican platform favoring a revision without specifying details. That the other two candidates have come out squarely for the removal of the tariff on all trust made goods is a sign that this is the thing the people want. Both of these candidates are denouncing Boss Cannon and promising to vote against him if they are elected.

With the field against him divided and with a splendid organization, it is probable that McCleary will be nominated. But in November all those who favor these Democratic ideas will unite to elect Congressman Hammond for another term.

But the condition is significant, because it indicates that the people are tired of Republican inactivity and boss rule and evasion of issues and they are going to vote for Democrats all along the line.

Tawney on the Defensive.

In the First district Tawney is having the preliminary race all to himself. But it is easy to see that the people there are of the same opinion as the people in the Second. T. Y. Knatvold, the Democratic candidate, is speaking for these same principles and is putting Tawney on the defensive. Tawney, like McCleary, has a great organization and the argument that he is an old and able member has some effect. But the hearty response that Knatvold is meeting everywhere in the district indicates that the people want some one who will vote as they want him to vote, and work as they want him to work, when these great questions are up for consideration.

A little later Judge Pond in Minneapolis will get into the fray and other make Frank Nye renounce Cannon and pledge himself to some of the reforms which the Democrats demand, or else Judge Pond will sweep that tariff revising city and succeed this Republican in congress.

Johnson Men Cheerful.

There is an air of cheerfulness and confidence around the Democratic headquarters which were opened here yesterday. They know the conditions throughout the state very well and they cannot possibly see how Johnson can get a majority less than 50,000. While the large number of Republicans who did not vote at all two years ago may come out this year and cut down Johnson's majority of two years ago, it cannot be to any perceptible degree. In order to win, the Republicans would have to increase their majority almost 1,000 in every county in the state. But the Democratic campaign managers can hardly see one county where they will see a loss of 800 votes. In some of the counties in the Seventh district, where Jacobson lives, they expect to lose some. But they can point to a dozen counties right now where the majority will be increased.

Committees Are Busy.

Both campaign committees are busy, but most of the work is in the nature of getting ready for the coming fray, and the real work will be done in the last month of the compaign. At present the Democrats are looking up some things in Jacobsen's record which will interest a number of people. They find that he opposed almost every state improvement that was asked at the time he was in the legislature. He opposed appropriations for drainage. He oppose appropriations for improvements at the normal schools. He labored against appropriations for the university. He opposed expenditures for the new capitol. And they are finding that he was antagonistic to union labor. Republicans admit that if the election were held today they would be beaten by a small majority. But when more data is given to the voters it will not be "small" but an "overwhelming" majority for the Democratic governor.

Advertising the State.

To show to what lengths the opposition will go, may be mentioned the criticism which has been heaped upon the governor for spending some time giving lectures at Chautauquas. It is customary for all employes of the state, whatever their party, to take some time for a summer vacation. But the governor improved his time by talking to audiences of 5,000 or 10,000 people each day on "The Majesty of the Law" and "Landmarks of Liberty." Incidentally in his addresses he would allude to the matchless resources of his home state, and the citizens of that state are proud to have such a representative upon the platform, and believe that this is a good advertisement for the state. Besides, he was doing the same thing as La Follette, Cummings, Deneen, Hoch, Hanley and others have done. And while he was giving patriotic and inspiring lectures to interested thousands, Judge Taft was at a famous watering place playing golf and President Roosevelt was at Oyster Bay playing lawn tennis.

WORLD STEEL INTERESTS

vember for co-operation in the industries. Mr. Gary said there was no agreement to maintain prices, restrict output or divide territory. The committee kept one another fully informed, each recognizing the rights and interests of all the others. The effort was a successful one, he declared, and prices were maintained, demoralization and insolvency prevented, and greater profits realized. The benefit resulting to general business was testified to by financiers and the press. The most prominent good done, Mr. Gary added, was the creation of the friendship now existing among the members of the steel industry. In conclusion, Mr. Gary said: "The manufacturers of iron and steel of all countries should be working together, and for one another. I do not advocate anything antagonistic to the laws or public welfare. What I propose is the utilization of all of our opportunities for the advancement of all of our interests—a close connection and a better understanding, full and free interchange of ideas and information by one to another concerning all business in question, and an organized committee of men whose advice should always be followed."

FATE OF THE NORTH SHORE TOWNS CANNOT BE KNOWN UNTIL AMERICA RETURNS

out. Mrs. Hogeboom carried her sick baby and a 35-pound pack sack. Fires were all around and the two were forced to pass through rolling clouds of choking smoke. Dr. Patton, ship physician, took charge of the child on the Gopher, and expects to be able to save its life.

AMERICA GOES TO BEAVER BAY

Governor Johnson Orders Boat to Act as Relief Ship.

Ordered by Gov. John A. Johnson to proceed to the scene of disaster, the Booth line steamer America last night steamed out of the local harbor, headed for Beaver Bay, about forty-five miles down the North shore, to give what assistance it could to the settlers there, who stand in danger of their lives from the forest fires. There are about 300 settlers in the town, and there is said to be a possibility that the place would be burned before the boat reached it, although it is believed the people would be able to make their escape in small boats.

The governor was appealed to for assistance through Mayor Haven yesterday, by means of a letter received from Beaver Bay, written two days ago. Governor Johnson was immediately apprised of the situation, and telegraphed Capt. Jacob Hector of the America to proceed at once to the scene of the disaster. The communication received from the endangered town reads as follows:

"Beaver Bay, Minn., Sept. 9.

"Mayor R. D. Haven, Duluth, Minn.:

"This place is in great danger from forest fires. We are surrounded on three sides. Much depends on the direction of the wind. Should we have southwest, west, north or northeast winds we would be in imminent danger. The distance from the lake to the farthest building is about 300 yards. Kindly communicate with Gov. Johnson and ask for help.

"CITIZENS OF BEAVER BAY."

The wind changed yesterday, and there is a strong possibility that the town was swept out by fire before the America reached the scene. No further news of the situation will be received until the return of the America. She is due to arrive in Duluth at midnight, tonight.

Fires last night threatened the destruction of Little Marais, sixty miles northeast of Duluth, in Lake county, and other fires were raging fiercely near Split Rock and Schauff Lake. Lumbermen and settlers put up a hard but successful fight yesterday, in saving the settlement of Schauff Lake, but the danger is not yet entirely past.

17 TO 0.

Every newspaper on the ranges is demanding the nomination of A. E. Pfremmer of Hibbing for Probate Judge—17 of them—not a single exception. Duluth has eight out of a possible nine county offices—the ranges have one. Is not the demand of the ranges reasonable? Is it not good politics for Duluth to recognize that demand. For Judge of Probate give the ranges a square deal by voting for

SCANLON GIVEN BIG FIRE SCARE

Fire Near Village Arouses People and It is Extinguished.

Cloquet, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Friday morning, about 11 o'clock, a fire alarm was sounded for the purpose of calling for volunteers to fight a forest fire which had started near the farm of Joseph Caza, about two or three miles south of here. The land had been cleared this spring, and large piles of brush had been left, which in some way caught fire and threatened the neighborhood. Scanlon lies about half a mile west of Caza's place, and as a west wind was blowing, the citizens of that village became alarmed and sent out about twenty-five men to fight the fire. The chemical wagon was sent out from here, and after a few hours of steady fighting the fire was extinguished.

For the last few days a heavy pall of smoke has overhung the territory north of here. Friday morning the smoke was beginning to thicken in the city, and hair-raising stories were circulated about disasters on the Fond du Lac reservation, near here, but the smoke cleared away later in the morning and the stories were found to be nothing but wild rumors.

The lumber companies of this city have sent several cars of lumber to the relief of the Chisholm sufferers.

CHISHOLM RISING AMID THE RUINS

Wonderful Courage is Shown by the People, Says Duluth Pastor.

In the midst of ruin and desolation, there is a cheerfulness born of hope and a wonderful display of the American spirit of "do or die," at Chisholm, according to Rev. James A. Geer, pastor of the Lester Park M. E. church, who returned yesterday afternoon from the fire swept city on the range. Everywhere, men are building temporary shelters until they can be replaced by more permanent buildings, the ruins are being cleared away and soon a bigger and better Chisholm will rise out of the blackened ground.

Though the majority of the people have turned in with a will to relieve their own condition, the usual difficulties, which are found in every calamity stricken community, are encountered at Chisholm. The militia is in complete charge of the town and under the prod of the bayonet, everybody is made to work. The bayonet is not used sparingly where it will do good. Idlers are driven out to fight the fires and assist the willing workers to clean up the ruins. Help in the relief stations is sometimes influenced in the same way. Two girls, who had been living on the bounty of the relief committee for several days needed the attentions of the soldiers' bayonets before they would consent to wash dishes.

Mr. Geer says he saw many pitiful sights at the ruined town. Women and children are sick, on account of the fire and smoke, and the relief committee is doing all it can to relieve their sufferings. The committee is doing grand work, according to Mr. Geer, distributing its bounty systematically and judiciously. The people are fed at regular hours, just as at a big boarding house, and there is plenty for everybody.

Few people are leaving town for good. Men, who lost their all in the fire, are turning in with hope and preparing to rebuild their homes and business places and stand by the city in its time of need. The two banks, which are doing business under sheds, where their vaults stand, display signs enjoining the people to "Cheer Up and Work for a Bigger and Better Chisholm." The water supply of the town will soon be restored and the electric light system will be repaired as soon as possible. In the meantime, lamps are much in demand and stoves and clothing have not been sent in sufficient quantities yet.

ASHAWA SCARED; TOWN MENACED

Fires Said to be Pressing Closer on the Town.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Startling reports come from Ashawa, or Cook, as it is now called, the first settlement of any importance about twenty-five miles north of here on the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad. The village is surrounded by forest fires and it is doubtful if the place can be saved. The terror stricken inhabitants are making a determined fight to save their homes and property, but with fires all around them they are almost hemmed in and unless help soon reaches them may have to abandon the fight with the fire to save their lives.

Dense timber surrounds the village and an effort is being made by backfiring to clear a space sufficiently wide to prevent the flames leaping across to the buildings.

WILD ANIMALS LEAVE WOODS

Flee From Fire and Mingle With People in Villages.

Never since the days of the great Hinckley fire have such stories been told of animals coming out of the burning woods, and living close to man in their fear of being caught by the flames. Thousands of deer, moose, bears and smaller animals of the north woods are being driven into the villages by the heat from the fierce forest fires that are quickly destroying their old haunts in the thick timber.

Wild animals and domestic animals mingle with each other with the greatest freedom, and many unusual sights are witnessed by those in the woods at this time. At Nashwauk yesterday a number of horses were seen in company with two bears, a deer, and a number of porcupines, walking along the track toward the village. There is no one to harm them as the settlers haven't time and wouldn't if they had, take advantage of the beasts that are driven out of their homes by the same cause that in many instances destroyed their own.

On the north shore this is more noticeable than on the range as there the animals are driven out of the forest to the shores of the lake, and many are the queer sights seen by the passengers of the Booth boats.

As the fire bore down on Grand Marais Wednesday evening, the beach was alive with wild animals of every kind. They fled before the flames in many instances in company with human beings, who at any other time would have been afraid to be in the woods without a gun.

All these things are taken in the most matter of fact way by the settlers, and it will not be until the fire is held quietly discussed some time from now, that they will realize what strange happenings the blaze brought about.

PROCTOR GIVES FOR SUFFERERS

Carload of Clothing and Bedding Collected, Also Some Money.

Proctor, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Proctor is not to be outdone by other places in the matter of helping the needy fire victims.

E. S. Davis and Rev. C. W. Ramshaw were appointed on the Proctor relief committee to collect money and clothing. They met with great success and collected a carload of bedding, furniture and clothing, which was shipped Wednesday night. The cash donation amounted to nearly $40.

Mr. and Mrs. Waters of Negaunee, Mich., arrived here Thursday to visit with their sons, Charles and Will Ellis.

Misses Blanche Dailey and Irene Finlan spent Thursday in Selica.

Miss Minnie L. Green, state secretary and organizer of the Y. W. C. T. U., will speak at the M. E. church next Sunday evening.

A number of Proctorites went to Duluth Thursday evening on the special train to see Chauncey Olcott and company.

The Oh, My! club is making preparations for the fall dance, which will be given at the village hall Friday evening, Sept. 18.

Agate council, No. 14, Modern Samaritans, are to give a dance Oct. 15, at the village hall.

Edward Archambeau of Marquette, Mich., is spending the week with his cousin, Leo Taillon.

Dr. Carson and his wife returned Sunday from an extended visit.

George Murphy, who is a conductor on the C. & N. W. railway out of Ashland, Wis., has been visiting at the home of W. W. Brayden.

Roy Rehbein and Albert Temple spent Sunday and Monday last at Grand lake, fishing and hunting.

Mrs. E. G. Moody spent a few days at Virginia this week visiting.

E. W. Peck, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A., spent a day last week with E. S. Davis.

J. C. Van der Vor left Wednesday evening for Billings, Mont., where he has a position.

Joseph Tryder and Miss Bertha La Bean were married Friday, Aug. 28, in St. Paul. Mr. Tryder is a well known engineer on the Missabe range. They will make Proctor their home.

The gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. is being redressed and put in shape for the winter work. Classes will be formed about the middle of October or first of November.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Christianson spent the fore part of the week at McKinley, with friends.

Miss Bernice Irvine, of Minneapolis, arrived with her sister, Mrs. R. H. Welch, last Tuesday, to make a visit.

Miss Tressa Brennan left Monday for Duluth, to attend the Sacred Heart institute.

Frank Dallowitz, who has been on the sick list the past two weeks, is convalescing.

Thomas Holden was removed to St. Mary's hospital Wednesday, after suffering for some time with a complication of diseases.

Miss Kate McBeth returned last Friday from a months' visit with friends in St. Paul.

Mrs. McMann was suddenly stricken with an attack of appendicitis last Friday, and Friday night was taken to St. Mary's hospital on a special. The case is most pathetic, as a day or two before Mr. McMann returned from the hospital, after having been laid up for six weeks with typhoid fever.

Mrs. Charles L. Peterson of West Duluth spent a few days this week in the village.

Mrs. Stevens and two children of Hibbing are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Stevens.

Mrs. John Phoenix spent a few days in Duluth this week with Mrs. Meehan of Duluth Heights.

Jerome Kelly of Chcago, Ill., who has been visiting his uncle, Frank P. Kelly for the past month, left Monday for his home.

Mrs. Ella Snell and two children, Dorothy and Margarette, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Paul Quick for the past six weeks, left Tuesday for their home in Harrisburg, Va.

Misses Lou and Anna Stillard returned Friday morning from a week's visit at International Falls.

Born, Thursday, Sept. 4, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Booton, a son.

Five Hurt By Explosion.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Five employes of the Wahl Adding Machine company were injured today by an explosion of illuminating gas in a wall safe in the plant of the company.

Praise the Great Body, Brain and Nerve Builder

MRS. D WHITE.

MR. D. WHITE.

Thousands of unsolicited letters of gratitude like this of Mr. and Mrs. White are received from grateful patients who are anxious to extol the merits of this great life saver and renewer of youth—Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Mr. and Mrs. White of Bloomington Ill., praise Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for curing Mrs. White of Grippe and restoring her to health and vigor. They recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to those who are in need of a tonic stimulant to build up body, brain and nerves.

Recently they wrote: "You will be glad to hear that Mrs. White and myself have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey with the very best results. Mrs. White had a bad attack of the Grippe; I myself gave her Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey according to directions, and she very soon felt the benefit of your medicine. She is getting stronger and healthier every day. We surely will recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and we thank you for such a great medicine. —Mr. and Mrs. D. White, 709 East Buchanan Street, Bloomington, Ill."

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from foreign substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old young and keeps the young strong.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in large sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Write Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for free illustrated medical booklet and free advice.

DESERTED BY HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Ida Salo Appeals to the Police for Assistance.

Deserted by her husband, Mrs. Ida Salo, 24 years of age, yesterday appealed to the local police for assistance. Two babies, aged 3 years and 5 months, respectively, accompanied her to the station. The three arrived in Duluth from the West yesterday morning, and, after waiting vainly for word from her husband, Mrs. Salo appealed to the police for assistance.

Crying pitifully, the woman told Chief Troyer that her husband, Henry Salo, deserted her and the children Wednesday, after he had bought tickets for them at Lakota, N. D. He asked to leave the train for a minute, and never came back. His wife says he was not much good anyway, being too lazy to work, and all she wanted was a chance to get a place where she could work for the board of herself and children.

The matter was brought to the attention of the Humane society, and late in the evening a woman was found who agreed to give Mrs. Salo and her children a home for the present.

WISCONSIN PEET BEDS BURNING

Farmers Fight Conflagration That Threatens Their Homes.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 12.—One hundred acres of peat beds in the town of Norway are on fire and there is danger of barns and farm houses burning. Farmers are fighting the flames. At the farm of Luke Place west of this city six acres of marsh lands are burning and a large number of farmers are engaged in combating the fire. Near Franksville, many acres of marsh lands are on fire and grass fires are prevalent along the lines of the Northwestern and St. Paul roads.

SHOOTS SELF AFTER QUARREL WITH GIRL.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 12.—John A. Batti, a bartender, shot himself today, after a wrestle with his employer for possession of the gun.

ANOTHER COFFEE WRECK.

What's the Use When There's an Easy Way Out.

Along with the coffee habit has grown the prevalent "American Disease"—nervous prostration.

The following letter shows the way out of the trouble:

"Five years ago I was a great coffee drinker and from its use I became so nervous I could scarcely sleep at all nights. My condition grew worse and worse until finally the physician I consulted declared my troubles were all due to coffee.

"But being so wedded to the beverage I did not see how I could do without it, especially at breakfast, as that meal seemed wholly incomplete without coffee.

"On a visit some friends deprived me of coffee to prove that it was harmful. At the end of about eight days I was less nervous, but the craving for coffee was intense, so I went back to the old habit as soon as I got home and the old sleepless nights came near making a wreck of me.

"I heard of Postum and decided to try it. I did not like it at first, because, as I afterwards discovered, it was not made properly. I found, however, that when made after directions on the package, it was delicious.

"It had a soothing effect on my nerves and none of the bad effects that coffee had, so I bade farewell to coffee and have used only Postum since. The most wonderful account of the benefit to be derived from Postum could not exceed my own experience."

"There's a Reason."

OAK HALLS VS. FITWELLS

Clothing Houses Will Clash for Final Baseball Honors.

Proceeds of the Game Will Go to Fire Victims.

Sunday afternon at Athletic park the last baseball game of the season will be played between the Oak Halls and Dick Jacobs' Fitwell crew. Both these teams have been playing a high grade of ball all season, and as the Oak Hall bunch never quite got over their stinging defeat of a few weeks ago at the hands of the Fitwell tribe, the game will undoubtedly be a fast one.

The Fitwell organization has enjoyed a most successful year, being defeated but once, and that by the professional team of Superior. They have played every team in the North country that was strong enough to lay claim to the championship, and have gotten safely away with the majority of their games.

The oak Hall team has been strengthened by the addition of several of the fastest players at the Head of the Lakes, and they hope to make things interesting for the Fitwell bunch tomorrow.

The money taken in at the gate will be turned over to the relief committee for the Chisholm fire sufferers.

The lineup:

Fitwells.	Position.	Oak Halls.
Hoyt	c	Nelson
Cook and Cummings	p	Larson
Sturm	1b	Nellis
Al Olson	2b	Doyle
Fenton	ss	Frendahl
A. Olson	3b	Williams

New York Takes Four Straight.

New York, Sept. 12.—The leaders in the pennant race took the fourth straight game from Brooklyn 6 to 1. The visitors made their only run in the seventh inning. Herzog, at second for New York, made a grand showing, while Young McMillan, the new short-stop for Brooklyn, made a host of friends by his brilliant playing. The teams will meet again tomorrow and wind up the inter-city series at the same place next Monday. Score:

"The feeling in New York is that either St. Louis or Chicago will be one of the cities where the games for the world's championship will be contested. This feeling may be the result of the fact that Tyrus Cobb & Co. are mighty unpopular in New York. The safe and sane opine that things will count against the Tigers repeating are Cobb's marriage, George Mullin's lack of effectiveness, the slowing up of Bill Coughlin and the slight let-up in the effectiveness of Wild Bill Donovan.

The Tigers, with many left-handed batters in their line-up, are compelled often to face southpaws, of which every club in the American league, barring the Highlanders and the Naps, possess at least one good man. St. Louis can shove in Waddell, Graham and Bailey against the Jungleites. Chicago has White and Altrock; Boston, Burchell; Philadelphia, Plank and Bender; Washington, Burns and Tannehill. The Tigers are weak behind the bat, and if anything should happen to Schmidt, the Willing Worker, Jennings would be in a bad way for receivers.

St. Louis seems admirably fitted to make a strong finish. On the McAleer team are many men who have been on pennant winners and who have the necessary nerve when a championship is in sight. Three of Sunny Jim's infielders are wonders, and Tom Jones is not the worst first baseman in the American league by a long shot. Ferris is a steady performer on third, and Wallace and Williams, around the midway, cannot be beaten. This pair has pulled off more double plays this year than any other duo working around the as at present arranged, is a sweet one. G. Allright Stone can't throw, but he can bingle, and Emmet Heldrick can both line them from the plate and line them to the platter. Al Schweltzer is the best young outfielder developed in the Johnson organization this year, and for substitutes for the meadows McAleer has Charley Jones and Roy Hartzell, both of them. Al. Joe Yeager is all right as an emergency infielder and Dode Criss is the best emergency hitter in captivity.

The baseball season is practically over and the football season is here. The high school boys have a wealth of material, and the coaches think they have the makings of the greatest team that ever supported the red and white.

From reports from all over the Northwest, it now looks as though this were going to be the banner year for football in the northern states. The range towns have already organized their teams and are practicing every day. They have a lot of good husky material up on the range, and they are, most of them, taking a stride forward this year in the matter of engaging college coaches. This is something they have never done to any extent before.

St. Cloud, an old rival of the Duluth boys, is going to have a fast, heavy team, and likewise Ironwood, Ishpeming, Eau Claire, Superior and a number of other teams that the Duluth boys hope to stack up against.

Down in the Twin Cities the outlook is generally good. Minneapolis Central, Duluth's greatest rival for football honors for the past ten years, is said to weak in material, and weak in the number of old players back to school. Another thing that will weaken the Minneapolis school this year is the fact that the institution has been divided and a new school made. This will leave only about half the number to pick from, and the team may suffer as the result.

"If we can only beat Minneapolis" is the cry of the Duluth students, and chances look rosy this year. It is a fact however that at the beginning of each year there comes up a great roar from the Minneapolis school about having no men, and no prospects. Still they always seem to be able to muster up enough material to get a winning team in the field.

Among the other schools located in the cities, prospects are fair, and each school is tooting its team as a comer. Just now according to Minneapolis papers, Northside High looks good.

WHO WILL BE THE NEXT?

Battling Nelson May Take On Packey McFarlane.

Old Master is Broken Up Over His Last Defeat.

The fight-loving public can now lift up its voice and clamor for a battle between Battling Nelson and Packey McFarland, for such seems to be the one best chance in the lightweight grab bag. While the Bat, proud as a peacock in his laurels, says that McFarland "must show some class," and that he, the new champion, will go on the thespic road, it is hard to see where, how, or why Nelson can excuse himself from meeting the curly-cocoed one as soon as a time, a place, and a purse are forthcoming.

Packey, so far as "class" goes, is now put in the position of having made the one fat mistake of a lifetime when he delayed a battle with Joe Gans. He could have had that fight two or three times over, but cautiously decided to let the Old Master roast till age had done its work. This was apparently good judgment, for how was Packey to know that Gans had suddenly gone back, and was no longer the demon of the past? In the light of present events the joke is on McFarland.

But, again, as to the "class" of McFarland and Nelson: The Bat, through superior business acumen, or luck, was able to catch Gans when he was all in, and thus pluck the plum McFarland could have had. Still, Packey showed indefinitely better against Britt than Nelson did. On relative showings, up to date of the second Gans-Nelson match, McFarland looked far the more promising. Nelson got in right while Packey waited at the church, and now Nelson has the nerve to tell McFarland to "get some class."

Nevertheless, the Bat will hardly turn down a fat money offer, and it looks safe for Packey and Nelson to mingle Thanksgiving day.

Bat's Victory Clean Cut.

Battling Nelson, the pride of Hegewisch, has forced the subjects of Fisiana to bend the knee of submission. He has twice whipped Joe Gans, the greatest lightweight champion of the age, and the Dane is now undisputed champion of 133-pounders.

By knocking out Joe Gans Monday afternoon in twenty-one rounds Nelson proved his superiority over the colored man. There was never a moment in the battle when the conqueror appeared in trouble. He was battered and bruised by the terrific blows of the black man, but there was no jolt too severe nor no blow too stinging to check the determined rushes of the Dane.

Nelson never lost heart nor gave ground. Taking a blow that he might drive home a cruel blow to his adversary's body, he gradually wore the colored man down to the verge of exhaustion. When the ex-champion could bear the terrible punishment no longer, when his limit of endurance had been reached in the final period he sank slowly to the floor before a fusilado of vicious short-arm chops to the jaw. Unable to hold his hands before him, his head wobbling dizzily, his exhausted limbs refused longer to hold up the battered hulk. The black Adonis trembled, they wavered and the beaten fighter sank slowly to the mat. While he vainly struggled to resume a fighting position the fatal count of ten was tolled. His eyes rolled wildly and even when carried from the ring by his heart-broken seconds he had not awakened to a realization of his crushing defeat. Responding to the attention of his handlers in the dressing room Gans recovered his senses. Then he knew that he had been beaten. Been defeated for the second time in a period of six months by Nelson.

"I'm through," moaned Gans. "He sure did beat me up. I've fought just once too often. But I'm through now for keeps. Nelson is the best man. I though I could beat him. But I know better now. He is champion and I am through with this game."

While Gans was delivering his retiring declaration Nelson was receiving the plaudits and congratulations of the thousands who, two hours before, had hoped the negro would beat him to a pulp. The Dane had forced the recognition which he long has sought. He had proved conclusively that he was master of the Baltimore man and he was satisfied. Split lips and blackened eyes were unheeded in his hour of triumph. He had gone through fiercer battles than that without a whimper, and now that he had proved that his independence day victory over Gans was no fluke he would have smiled on his death bed.

NEW PLACE FOR SKATES.

New York Sun: "I thought I had already seen skates put to every possible use," said a woman who had been visiting in Washington, "but the other day I came across them serving in an entirely new capacity.

"I went into a department store and made my way to a certain counter, where I inquired for a particular kind of lace. Before I got the words out of my mouth the salesgirl had glided about ten feet down the counter, picked up a piece of lace and swooped back into position opposite me.

"Well, the lace was what I wanted, but you can believe I didn't say so. I asked for something else and to my intense joy it proved to be something else at the other end of the counter. Off glided the girl and I tagged excitedly along in the aisle.

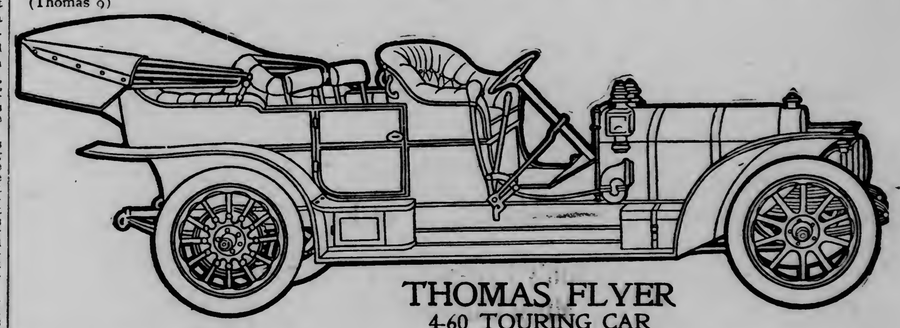

"Of course that gave me a chance to see how she did it. She didn't strike out boldly, as if she had a whole rink to swing in. But with almost no effort at all she could roll along for eight or ten feet at a roll. Apparently her skates had rubber wheels, for she made no noise at all.

"When we got to the end of the counter of course I said that what she had first showed me would do after all, and we skated back to our first stop. At least she did, and when I saw how easy it was I more than half decided to do my shopping on skates the next time.

"I didn't, though; and that is the only example I have ever run across of skates on either side of the counter."

LAST RACES BEING HELD

Final Events of the Year Being Run Off Today.

End of a Most Successful Season for Duluth Tars.

The last three races of the season are being run off under the auspices of the Duluth Yacht club today. This is, of course, if some one wins each race. Up to this time it has seemed as though the boats have been very evenly matched, and a number of the races have been the result.

What is hoped will be the final race for the consolation prize will take place with the following boats, sailed by the following captains: North Wind, sailed by Frank Farrell; Peter Pan, sailed by Arthur Krieger. Each of these boats has won one race and each owner is anxious to beat the other out today for the prize.

In the race for the Commodore's cup, the Viking, Scud and Freckles will fight it out for first place, while for the vice commodore's cup, the Frolic, sailed by E. A. Pierce, and Florence, sailed by Bob Fisk, who are tied for first place, will sail off the deciding race for the cup. For several weeks something has happened to delay this race, and as it is one of the important events of the year, the officers are anxious to get it over.

The races will be the end of the best sailing season ever experienced on the bay. The events have all been closely contested, and a number of pretty races have been run off. The interest in yachting is greater than ever before, and the members of the Duluth Yacht club look for an even more successful season next year.

A CLOSE CONTEST; A PLEASANT TIME

"Men only" was the order of the day at the Northland Country club yesterday and, of course, it was successful in every way. But when it got along towards evening, and the lights were lighted, and the fire in the fireplace was kindled, they forgot about it being "for men only," and it wasn't long before the telephone began to get busy. Mrs. Clarence B. Miller was the first to arrive, and she played the accompaniments to the musical numbers rendered during the evening, which had been arranged before hand.

In the contest between the president's and vice president's side, there was a tie, and it was decided to toss up to see who would pay for the supper. The president's side won.

The smoker and vaudeville entertainment was greatly enjoyed. G. L. Suffell, John Konecny, Alice Soeslin and J. O. Applehagen rendered solos and H. Hall of Superior entertained with a monologue. Speeches were made by President Hartley, Vice President Walker, and Messrs. Soeysmith, Stone, Barnum, Towne and others. La Brosse's orchestra was present and rendered some pleasing sclections.

THE HUSKY CANDIDATES FOR THE DULUTH CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM

This afternoon at Athletic Park, the first football game of the season is being played, between the High school boys and the Alumni of the school. The High school boys have had as yet, very little practice, the weather being by far too warm for football, while the alumni have not been together at all. However, the men on the older team are old time high school stars, and with very little practice will be able to give the school boys a hard rub.

The play, as it is being taught by Coach Colton, will be very loose and open, made possible by the new football rules, which encourag a loose open game. The boys have plenty of weight, and the only thing they need is speed, which will undoubtedly come before the first regular game of the season. Even the suits and shoes this year worn by the boys are made very light, in one piece, and with very little padding. This goes to show how very much the game has changed in the last few years. A few years ago, the heavier the suit, the better the players liked it, because a heavy suit meant more weight on the team. Those days, gains were chiefly made through the line, nowadays, the long end run and the forward pass make the wearing of heavy suits impossible.

After the game this afternoon Duluth people will know what to expect from the football team this year. While the game itself is nothing more than a try out, still it will give those interested a good chance to see what is in them. The boys are larger than for some years, and will average above last year's team.

Both Mr. Colton and Assistant Coach Furni, are much pleased with the turnout this year, and they are both of the opinion that the fastest team in the history of the school will be the result.

From now on, there will be a game every Saturday. A week from today the boys will probably line up against Cloquet, and from then on the teams to be played will be among the strongest in Upper Michigan, Northern Wisconsin, and Minnesota.

Faculty Manager Phillips is arranging the games as fast as possible, but on account of friction on dates with several schools, he is unable at this time to give out the schedule.

The lineup follows:

POLICE AID W. J. BRYAN

Southern Crowd Terrific as He Steps From Wheeling Car.

Taft's First Speech-Making Trip Will be Through West.

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 12.—William J. Bryan, last night was West Virginia's guest.

A royal welcome was accorded him as his private car "Olivette" containing himself and party and a big reception committee, crossed the Ohio river and entered this city. The river front was a mass of humanity and as Democracy's leader stepped foot on West Virginia soil, he was cheered to the sche.

His car was stopped directly in front of the hotel, but so great was the crowd that even the combined efforts of the police could not prevent him from being forced to struggle his way through.

In his address here Bryan referred to the fact that his third nomination for the presidency had a significance that could not be overlooked, either by Republicans or Democrats.

"In former campaigns I suffered defeat," he said, "and those defeats would have been sufficient to have eliminated me from politics if my claim to public attention was based upon personal merit. But, my friends, I have not been vain enough to believe any large part of the interest felt in me, of the confidence expressed in me, of the affection felt toward me, is due to personal qualities.

"I have believed, I do believe that the fact that I maintain place in politics is due to the strength of the things for which I stand."

Through Six States.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 12.—W. H. Taft's speech-making trip will be through the West.

A. Vorys left here for New York yesterday to represent Taft before the national committee in arranging this trip, which will take in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Indiana.

Two other trips are being planned, one through the Eastern states and another through a number of Southern states. These, however, will not be worked out until the Western journey has been arranged.

Judge Taft and National Chairman Hitchcock had an extended conference yesterday over the dong distance telephone, the result of which was the hurried departure of Mr. Vorys for New York.

"Mr. Vorys, having been with me for some time, knows exactly my ideas concerning this trip," Judge Taft explained, "and it was regarded as more satisfactory that he should go to New York. He will bring back with him, probably Sunday, the result of the committee's decision.

It was stated that Mr. Vorys took with him no specific recommendations from the candidate. Mr. Taft gave it as his opinion that his Western trip would not extend as far west as the coast, although he was not certain about it. Mr. Vorys will also confer while in New York with John Hays Hammond regarding the work of the National League of Republican clubs, of which Mr. Hammond is prominent.

Straus and Powderly.

Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor, and T. V. Powderly of the immigration service will be here tomorrow.

This characteristic letter from ex-Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw was received today by Judge Taft:

"The committee in charge of the Republican state convention of Illinois, being in extremis, asked Shaw to make a few remarks. Of course, he consented, and while you will have neither the time nor the appetite therefor, he is going to stick into the envelope that bears the message of love and good will, a transcript of some of his mental gyrations preliminary to the task assigned.

"I wish I could run down to see you, but there is nothing I can say except to express my abiding good wishes and a large measure of confidence in final results.

"If you should meet Mrs. Taft during the progress of the campaign give her my kindest regards, and say to her that Shaw thinks that in less than twelve months from this day and date she will be the best beloved woman in the land."

IOWA JOBBERS DEMUR AT CHANGE IN RATES.

Burlington, Iowa, Sept. 12.—The shippers and jobbers of Burlington have held a large meeting to protest against change in the freight rates now existing. A committee was appointed t opresent the views to the interstate commerce commission and to demand that if lower rates are granted es Moines the same shall be given Burlington in proportion.

A Traveling Man's Experience.

"I must tell you my experience on an East bound O. R. & N. R. R. train from Pendleton to Le Grande, Ore," writes Sam A. Garber, a well known traveling man. "I was in the smoking department with some other traveling men when one of them went out into the coach and came back and said, 'There is a woman sick unto death in the car.' I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with cramp colic, her hands and arms were drawn up so you could not straighten them, and with a deathlike look on her face. Two or three ladies were working with her and giving her whisky. I went to my suit case and got my bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (I never travel without it), ran to the water tank, put a double dose of the medicine in the glass, poured some water into it and stirred it with a pencil; then I had quite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her, but I succeeded. I could at once see the effect and I worked with her, rubbing her hands, and in twenty minutes I gave her another dose. By this time we were almost into Le Grande, where I was to leave the train. I gave the bottle to the husband to be used in case another dose should be needed, but by the time the train ran into Le Grande she was all right, and I received the thanks of every passenger in the car." REV. MORRILL VISITS SLUMS

Says Duluth is "Camp Meeting" Compared to Minneapolis.

Rev. G. L. Merrill of Minneapolis last night visited the red light district of Duluth. He was accompanied by Chief Troyer and made a thorough investigation of the conditions of vice in this city. The trip was made with the object of studying the conditions of the under world.

The minister stated after the trip that the social evil was controlled here much better than it was controlled in Minneapolis. In fact, he stated that Duluth was a Methodist camp meeting compared with the city where he labors.

Visiting tenderloin districts is no new experience to Rev. "Go Lightly" Morrill. He has made a study of vice in many parts of this country and in some parts of Europe. He believes that a man must know vice to know its evils and to know how to combat it. He uses much of the information he gathers in his preaching and charitable work.

Rev. Morrill says he has never refused to attend the needs of any one in need of consolation, and that many conversions have been made from the slums and disorderly districts.

SMALL GAINS IN TRADE REPORTS

Dun's Review Notes Only Minor Changes During Last Week.

New York, Sept. 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says:

Small gains are seen in trade reports, although changes are often insignificant and it is only in the aggregate that any tangible progress can be discerned. Interruption of a holiday made comparisons with last year unusually adverse, but industrial reports indicate that such machinery that had been idle for many months resumed after Labor day. Production of pig iron is now at a higher rate than at any previous time this year, and many hands have returned to work at textile mills, while shipping departments in all wearing apparel houses are beginning to feel the pressure of demand for fall and winter trade. Depleted stocks in the hands of country merchants and confidence in steady improvement in business encourage producers, although actual contracts come forward conservately.

Again the cotton goods industry reports a better sentiment and more inquiries that are expected to culminate in actual business, but the volume of trade is not perceptibly altered. While buyers in the primary market are no more inclined to operate beyond immediate needs than they were earlier in the season, it is evident that supplies are getting low and current business is more urgent. Theee points suggest that the market is getting in better condition and when raw material becomes less erratic there is reason to hope for a better distribution of goods.

Local jobbers report a fair business and Western houses note a slight improvement. Demand seldom covers deliveries of cotton goods beyond November and most trade is quick shipment. Conflicting conditions still exist in different sections of the wool industry. Some worsteds are in good position, but others cannot keep machinery employed much longer. Cancellations are less numerous than usual, partly owing to small original orders.

Little change appears in the foot wear situation, demand continuing in active and some shops have stopped cutting, while other manufacturers have moderate reserve orders on hand, but are not hurrying. There is still much conflict regarding quotations for shoes, buyers asking concessions while producers insist on advances in keeping with the rise in leather. Heavy sole leather continues strong and active, but light stock is neglected. Belting butts are unchanged and some quotations for belting are below current prices for materials.

Trade in domestic hides is light.

DR. O. T. MITCHELL

THE GREAT SPECIALIST

Mr. Andrew Henderson of Two Harbors, Minn., came to Dr. Mitchell crippled with rheumatism, could not walk without a cane. Cured in a few treatments.

Mrs. E. T. Lorning, 517 Twenty-third avenue west, Duluth, was a cripple, in bed, with rheumatism, cured by Dr. Mitchell.

Mrs. Halquist, 2628 Huron street, Duluth, was so deaf in one ear that she could not hear a watch tick, cured by Dr. Mitchell.

Mrs. J. Marris, Wagner, S. D., had a fistula of many years' standing, cured in a short time by Dr. Mitchell.

If you are sick and looking for a treatment that will cure you, be sure and consult Dr. Mitchell. The great specialist has cured hundreds given up to die, and his treatment has stood the test of time. He is glad to see all those suffering and not getting well under present treatment. He will give them his valuable advice free of charge.

A SECRET OF MONTE CARLO

Englishman Had a System That Really Did Beat the Game.

It amuses the management of Monte Carlo to read the stories that get into circulation about the success of certain schemes to beat the game, says the Philadelphia North American. Half the stories involve the supposition that it would be possible for a stranger in the course of a stroll through the Casino to pick out weak spots which had escaped the attention of the management for years.

A man who has long been associated with the control of the Casino once told the writer that he did not believe there was a single thing connected with gambling systems that had not been thoroughly discussed by the directors and if in the slightest degree dangerous provided against, regardless of trouble and expense. There certainly was no system with which they were not familiar and of only one system were they at all afraid. Even that danger they had reduced to a minimum.

The system player is always welcome at the tables. He is there to stay with his limited capital and he is not going to quite until he has lost all he has. Even then he will not acknowledge his system at fault. He blames it all to want of capital.

The man mostly to be feared at the tables is the one that slaps his money down anywhere and everywhere, regardless of the odds against him or the previous results of coups. Every now and then one of these men comes along with a lucky streak and all the management can do is to use his success as an advertisement.

As a concrete example of the way that apparently insignificant details are attended to the man already referred to told the writer the following story:

Many years ago a rather attractive looking Englishman was spending a few weeks at Nice and frequently ran over to the Casino at Monte Carlo. At first he seemed to have no inclination to play, although he watched the fortunes of the others with apparent interest.

He was a well set up fellow, probably over 30, with the typical English blue eyes, a blond mustache and the healthy tan of the skin which betrays a life spent chiefly out of doors. He was always dressed in a blue serge suit with a sack coat and an Alpine hat, and had the air of an officer on leave or a yachtsman ashore.

No one escapes attention at Monte Carlo, and the nglishman's continued presence at the tables without playing, combined with the fact that he remained sometimes in the same spot for hours, led to his being carefully watched.

After the first week he seemed to have developed some theory or other which he was apparently testing by making notes, but so far from being as serious about it as most inventors of systems are, it seemed rather to amuse him or to strike him as a passing coincidence.

After watching the wheel for an hour or so he would take his notes to some quiet place in the grounds and study them over at his leisure. Any attempt to approach him or to get into conversation with him on the subject led to the notes being hastily thrust into his pocket, as if he were ashamed of them. All attempts to get any of these memoranda failed.

Apparently satisfied that there was something in his theory, the Englishman eventually began to play, but it was observed that he did not make a bet until he had been at the table making notes for several coups. In two respects his method was peculiar. He always bet on single numbers and always exactly the same amount, 1,000 francs, or about $200.

Another peculiarity about his method was that the moment the croupier who ran the wheel was relieved he would stop playing and would not settle down again until the new man had made several rolls. He would play for about four hours every day, but absolutely without excitement or even exhilaration.

The gamble seemed to have about as much interest for him as a game of billiards. He was always smiling and pleasant, very polite to every one that spoke to him but absolutely mum as to his system and apparently absorbed in the memoranda he was continually making in a little pocketbook that he held in his hand.

What these little memoranda might mean no one was able even to guess. By loking over his shoulder it could be seen that they were not figures but were some sort of signs arranged in eight vertical columns. Close observation revealed the fact that after the ball fell and he made his note he never entered the hieroglyphic twice in the same column.

That is all that could be learned of his system. When asked about it he simply smiled good-naturedly and turned the matter off.

As to results, he seemed to win steadily about one bet out of every twenty-six he put down. As there are thirty-six numbers on the wheel, including the zero, this gave him a very handsome percentage of profit. Any player who could win one bet out of every thirty-five would keep even, but he was a long way ahead of that.

After playing for about a wek he increased his stake to the maximum; on every bet he made. Now the sight of a maximum player on single numbers is sufficient of itself to attract the attention of the whole table, if it is only for a few coups, but for a player to bet maximums steadily hour after hour is enough to place him in the limelight for the whole Casino and to bring down upon him the most careful scrutiny of the agents of the management.

By making careful notes of the numbers that came out and those that he bet upon, the first thing discovered was that he persistently followed numbers that had already appeared, so that his system was exactly contrary to those that believe in betting on numbers which have not shown at all, the "maturity of the chances."

Two theories were advanced to account for his system, one being that he noted some peculiarity or irregularity in the wheel itself which would tend to make certain numbers come oftener than others. But this is practically impossible, although the idea has furnished more than one imaginative story teller with a plot.

A well known English writer has a Monte Carlo story based on the theory that a wheel at one of the tables was badly constructed and had a tendency to stop the ball on certain numbers. The gang that had noted this peculiarity went to the same table day after day and bet in those numbers until the management bought the secret for a fabulous sum.

"Now," said the Sun's informant, "such a story is simply absurd and shows the ignorance of things behind the scenes at the Casino. Not only is every wheel absolutely perfect, being carefully tested by the most delicate instruments, but the same wheel is never used twice.

"If you were to lift one of the wheels at Monte Carlo off its spindle you would see that it is made of a number of interchangeable pieces or segments, held in place by machine screws. After each day's play every wheel in the rooms is carried to the workshops in the basement and taken apart and every wheel is reassembled in a different manner, so that you never see the same wheel two days in succession at Monte Carlo."

The other theory to account for the Englishman's success was that he was in collusion with certain croupiers, but the impossibility of such a thing is evident, unless the wheel itself is crooked. In roulette the croupier is powerless. In games like baccarat, it is true, collusion with the dealer may be the rule rather than the exception, but a roulette wheel cannot be handled like a pack of cards.

The men that roll the balls in the wheels at Monte Carlo are carefully trained in a room set apart for that purpose in the basement of the building. They are taught the proper speed to spin the wheel and how to throw the ball. It is an invariable rule that the wheel shall never be allowed to come completely to rest, and that, having been spun in one direction, it shall always be spun in the other direction for the next coup, the ball being always thrown in a direction contrary to that taken by the wheel.

When these men are sufficiently expert to manage the ball and wheel with precision they are tried at the playing tables to see if they have the requisite steadiness of nerve. The management went over this system of training the men with a view of discovering if possible whether it offered any clew to the Englishman's successful methods.

It took some time to find out what his system was and ever since then it has been a rule that each man who rolls shall stay on duty for a very limited time, usually forty minutes. At the end of that time he is promptly relieved. It is probable that not one person in a million that goes to Monte Carlo knows the Englishman's system or has the nerve to play it; but there is no relaxation of the precautionary methods adopted by the management to protect the game against the only thing that ever really beat it.

The immediate result of the change was that the Englishman's winnings were reduced very considerably, and that he soon tired of the game, probably because he was not a gambler by nature, but was simply making a little experiment with an idea of his own as a flier. For several years after his first visit he used to drop into the Casino now and then just for a flutter, as he expressed it, and always came away a winner.

There are still some people who play his system at Monte Carlo, and for those that have the nerve to stick to it is still a winner, although only in a small way. It is not one gambler in 10,000 that can stick to a system, win or lose, without deviating from it for a single bet, and this is what the Englishman's system requires. It is the only system which the Casino has never been able to beat, and the managers are probably thankful that there are not enough people with the nerve to play it or that it is not well enough known to be dangerous to them.

Foley's Orino Laxative is a new remedy, an improvement on the laxatives of former years, as it does not gripe or nauseate and is pleasant to take. It is guaranteed.

BIDS WANTED

The Town Board of Clover Leaf, Red Lake County, Minnesota, will, up to the 22nd day of September, 1908, receive sealed bids on contract for grading and ditching in said town, on both sides (4 miles) on each of the section lines running north and south within the range lines, one section line 6 miles east and west. Grades to be 14 feet wide, the inside 6 inches deep, outside 18 inches deep, with slope accordingly. From outside to outside of ditches shall be 8 rods. Four miles on one side of both range lines, these ditches to be 6 feet wide, 2 feet deep in the middle of the ditch and the dirt to be laid on the line and leveled. If said contract be taken, must be completed before the expiration of the year 1909 (if possible). Said contract to be paid by township bond bearing 4 per cent per annum. Bonds issued for a period of twenty years. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids. The town board will meet at 2 o'clock P. M. on the 22nd day of September, 1908, at the office of the town clerk, to open and take the bids under consideration.

News of the Theater

AT THE LYCEUM

"Checkers" on Monday and Tuesday, Followed by James J. Corbett in "Facing the Music" and Wilton Lackaye in "The Battle."

Another list of good attractions is offered for next week at the Lyceum. Monday and Tuesday evening, the old favorite, "Checkers," will appear followed on Wednesday and Thursday by James J. Corbett in "Facing the Music." Friday and Saturday, Wilton Lackaye in "The Battle," will be the attraction.

"CHECKERS."

Hans Robert and Dave Braham Still Head the Cast.

Playgoers with whom good plays do not grow stale with age, so long as the quality of the actors is kept up and the scenery maintained in fresh repair, will be glad to hear that "Checkers" is to pay another visit to the city.

It will appear at the Lyceum next Monday and Tuesday. Remembering the tremendous audience which packed the theater on the occasion of the play's last visit, and the large number of inquirers at the box office since then, as to when "Checkers" is coming back, its engagement here could safely be lengthened to the profit of both local and visiting managers.

It is the promise of the company's management, which is the same that has guided "Checkers" through its five full years of life, that the organization this season contains many of the old timers who will be seen again in the same parts, while the new actors and actresses are, in several instances, improvements.

Hans Robert and Dave Braham still head the company.

Though this is the sixth year of "Checkers" life, the unfolding of its ever fresh and interesting story will be reheard with renewed pleasure, and heard for the first time with a surprised delight. The story is natural. The dialogue is sparkling and clean; its love scenes are brief and full of charm. It has a thrilling, but not overdrawn race track scene, and the end of the play is as a happy world would that life might be.

"FACING THE MUSIC."

James J. Corbett Will Appear Here in a Farce Comedy.

James J. Corbett, whose success has been quite sufficient to entitle him to consideration as an actor, rather than as a pugilistic champion, will come to the Lyceum next Wednesday and Thursday, at the head of his own company, in "Facing the Music." The engagement will be doubly interesting from the fact that Mr. Corbett is a prime favorite in this city, and his new play will give him abundant opportunity to demonstrate his talents as a comedian. In this distinctly funny play, he has been surrounded with a particularly capable cast of players. It will be remembered that "Facing the Music" was originally produced in New York with Henry E. Dixey in the principal role, and that it enjoyed a long run at the Madison Square theater. Mr. Dixie became involved in a controversy with his management and abandoned the play.

Last winter, H. H. Frazee, who had entered into a contract with Mr. Corbett under the terms of which the latter was to be starred, decided that "Facing the Music" was just the play for his stalwart and handsome charge. The work is by Charles Henry Darnley, and the story may be briefly told.

In a Kensington flat, there liverd two John Smiths, one a curate and the other a sportively inclined young man with a liking for the race track. Both the Mr. Smiths were married to young and attractive Mrs. Smiths, and as both Mrs. Smiths have been out of town and the curate Smith has engaged a Kensington flat during his wife's absence, and as both Mrs. Smiths return unexpectedly and one of them late at night, during a heavy fog, and is shown into the wrong Smith flat, the complications can better be imagined than described. Suffice to say that with the aid of an actress and a detective, everyone becomes involved in a door opening and door slamming affair, that keeps the audience in a state of hilarity, ranging from a polite titter to a boisterous guffaw and culminating every now and then in enthusiastic applause. As John Smith—the sportively inclined flat dweller, Mr. Corbett ought to give a good account of himself. Among the prominent members of the supporting company are the Messrs. Joseph Sullivan, Corwin Luskmoor, Charles Horn, Tom Dare and the Misses Eleanor Montell, Amanda Hendricks, Lillian Leslie and May Dudley. Appropriate and complete scenic equipment has been provided.

WILTON LACKAYE.

Famous English Actor Coming in New Drama, "The Battle."

Wilton Lackaye opens his season here next Friday evening in Cleveland Moffet's new play.

It has been named "The Battle," and Wilton Lackaye will enact its leading part, for his first season under the Liebler banner.

"The Battle" is a brand new work of modern New York life, and the struggle suggested by the title symbolizes the Titanic clash of those elemental forces—Capital and Labor—now fascinating all thoughtful men. The biggest social and economic revolution which the world has ever known is taking place today and no one with imagination can escape the profoundly dramatic situation and its appalling significance.

In "The Battle," Mr. Moffet has tried to catch the bright as well as sombre aspects of this clash of giants and in his third act brings face to face as opposing representatives, a millionaire speculator commonly reported to be the richest man in New York, and a young idealist—a preacher in the streets—and they fight it out, free-handed to a staggering finish.

This argument, it is thought, will interest every wage-earner and every employer by the pith and power with which the adversaries enforce their points.

In the great role of John J. Haggleton, Wilton Lackaye will have perhaps the best modern role of his career. This millionaire capitalist is sure to be liked by all classes of theatergoers because he has besides the splendid courage of his convictions, a large sized and highly developed sense of humor.

But Mr. Moffat's play is no preachment. Seven-tenths of the action is comedy and good, fast comedy too. It is really a love story with a strongly dramatic background and two or three scenes that ought to make the public catch hard for its breath. Mr. Lackaye will have strong support from such actors as E. M. Holland, Grace Filkins, Harry Warner, Janet Beecher, Gerald Griffen, Will Mandeville, etc.

LYCEUM NOTES.

"Paid in Full" and Robert Mantell Coming to Duluth.

The well known publication, "Vogue," speaks of Wagenhals and Kemper's production of "Paid In Full," as follows:

"To Mr. Eugene Walter, practically an unknown play writer, is the New York public indebted for the first genuine dramatic surprise of the season, which was literally thrust upon it at the Astor theater, on Monday, Dec. 13. It is refreshing to have something out of the ordinary bob up at the right moment and, in this case, there is additional reason for rejoicing because success has rested where it properly belongs.

"Paid In Full" will be seen at the Lyceum on Sept. 23 and 24. The engagement will be notable. Wagenhals and Kemper promise an elaborate production and a brilliant cast of players.

In explaining the keynote to his production of "Macbeth," Robert Mantell, the Shakespearian actor, quotes Prof. A. C. Bradley of Yale, as follows: "Darkness, we may say even blackness, broods over this tragedy. It is remarkable that almost all the scenes take place either at night or in some dark spot. The blackness of night is to the hero a thing of fear, even of horror, and that which he fears becomes the spirit of the play." Mr. Mantell appears at the Lyceum for a week in September.

AT THE BIJOU

Great Hugo, "The Roman Gladiator," Will Head a Promising Bill for the Coming Week at the Vaudeville Theater.

The program of vaudeville to be presented at the Bijou next week is popular and expected to prove a big drawing card.

Heading the list is the Great Hugo, who comes from the London hippodrome, where he performed his act for four straight weeks. He is now making his first American tour in vaudeville. Hugo is known as "The Roman Gladiator," and is said to give most sensational and phenomenal feats of strength. Press notices from the London press speak highly of Hugo's act.

One of the best known comedy acts in vaudeville is that of Dick and Barney Ferguson, whose names have been before the public a good many years, and who will offer here a roaring bit of comedy with songs and dances.

Grace Passmore, a charming miss with a good voice and an ability to gurgle coon melodies, will appear, and a European novelty act is offered by the Romanoffs, who have stunts which require a perfect eyesight and great amount of practice. It is the only act of its kind that has ever played the Bijou.

As an added feature, the Four American Trumpeters will be seen in a musical act that is said to be very good.

Isadore Silver, the Bijou's popular singer, will give the New York song success, "Take a Trip Down to Luna With Me," with illustrations.

A special moving picture will show the New York to Paris Auto race. This picture was taken by the Melies company of Paris, France.

There will be the usual daily matinees at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30; school children's matinee Saturday afternoon. Performances are given Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Wonderful Development of Billie Burke---"Algeria" Shows Victor Herbert in His New Form---Arnold Daly in "The Regeneration"

New York, Sept. 12.—Until something like a year ago hardly any American knew that such a girl as Billie Burke existed. She was an American girl, however, working in music halls and appearing in musical pieces in London. Unless this scribe is greatly mistaken, she hails from Washington, D. C., and has relatives still living in the capital. Charles Frohman brought her over a year ago to assist John Drew in playing that intteresting French farce, "My Wife." Her success was instantaneous, and for the better part of the season New Yorkers went to see her at the Empire, praised her work, and went into mild raptures over her personality. Everybody liked her, and it was the same on tour during the short swing around the circle which John Drew took before the season ended.

Frohman was perhaps lucky that he secured "Love Watches" for her. This piece proved a great success in Paris, and has been rendered into English by Gladys Unger. It introduced the frisky Billie as a star and opened the season at the Lyceum. She did not disappoint the big audience, and today she is one of the real lucky girls, whose professional interests Charles Frohman so carefully looks after. She scored a personal and artistic triumph in this farce of MM. de Flers and Callavet, though the success was helped along materially by Ernest Lawford, the terrible pirate, Capt. Hook of "Peter Pan" fame, who played the principal part opposite the star.

There is no telling what piquancy has been suppressed, what particularly salacious morsels have been thrown to the pussy, or what hilarious incident to cap a mad climax has been omitted in the adaptation, but for a successful Parisian piece it is singularly lacking in the expected thrill. But it is not deficient in any other element of interest, and the success which Miss Burke scored was richly deserved.

In this lively, well-acted and sometimes brilliant farce, the insouciant Jacqueline—lovely, willful, vivacious, ardent and honest—confesses to the somewhat flirtatious Andre de Juvigny that she is in love with him, and in a momentary fit of resentment, flies to the bachelor apartments of a perfectly harmless and very bashful bibliomaniac and poor scholar, Ernest Augarde, who has always adored her at a distance and for a time hoped to become her husband.

Jacqueline is terribly in love with Andre, and all would have gone well but for a simple act of unavoidable politeness to the designing widow, Lucie de Morfontaine, an old flame of his, who turns up now that he and Jacqueline have returned from their honeymoon, and, of course, knows how to make Andre's simple act of politeness take on a very significant appearance.

Poor Ernest, whose life has been saddened by disappointment in love and who never indulged in an intrigue with a woman, is enchanted with the prospect of an adventure with Jacqueline when she comes to his room. He gives her a champagne supper, but he is so timid and she is so fearful of consequences that nothing worse happens than a frustrated attempt on Ernest's part to steal a kiss. Jacqueline flies to the top of a step ladder and takes refuge there at the mere approach of Ernest.

In the end, seeing he is made a mere stalking horse for her, Ernest advises her to go back to her home and promises to make Andre very much ashamed of himself. So she takes his advise, and after firing her husband's jealousy and driving him to the verge of desperation, to the imminent peril of poor Ernest, everything is nicely adjusted and everybody, including Andre, chuckles with delight when it is revealed that it was Ernest who excited the alarm of everybody. Ernest, of course, is an emblem of innocuous dissecutude. This is a little Parisian joke.

Not only was Miss Burke enchanting in the role of Jacqueline, but Mr. Frohman surrounded her with a company of remarkable strength and capacity for light comedy. Maude O'Dell was a feature as the designing young widow, who causes all the mischief, and Lawford added laurels to his chaplet of fame as Ernest Augarde. In the role of Andre a new English leading man Cyril Kelightley, made his first appearance with only fair success. Others in the cast were W. H. Crompton, Kate Meek, Stanley Dark and Louise Drew. "Love Watches" is one of the hits of the early season, and no doubt about it.

On Monday night occurred the first performance of the new musical play, "Algeria," by Glan Macdonough and Victor Herbert, which opened the season of the Broadway theater. The piece met with a hearty reception from a typical first-night audience. It is a big production, with a sirocco and a realistic sandstorm effect for the finale of the second act, and everything done in bright colors. The scene is French Algiers, more particularly the walled oasis of Sadi Almoud in the Sahara desert, peopled with French soldiers, bayaderes, Kabyle, female nurses and street vendors, forming a motley and extraordinary picture of Eastern street life. The composer has done his share musically of adding to the barbaric splendor of the mise en scene, for one of the most effective numbers is the chorus expressive of the weird rhythm and savage tempo of a desert melody musically developed. The brief overture and opening chorus are distinguished by dignity, solemnity, as well as beauty and volume.

The book is better than most books of musical plays of this kind. It tells an interesting story, which has to do with a mysterious poet, whose numbers enchant the fancy of Zoradie, sultana of Barakeesh, who commands a powerful desert tribe that the French try to gain over to an alliance, but in vain. The romantic Zoradie vows by the beard of the prophet that she will wed no one but the poet, and goes in search of him in the market place disguised as Miriam, mistress of the bayaderes. Thus she meets Capt. de Lorna, commander of the oasis of Sadi Almoud, serving under his uncle, Gen. Petitpons, governor general of Algeria. This young captain was a sojourner in Bohemia—that is to say, in the Latin quarter of Paris—a woer of the muses and a frequenter of Maxim's and the Moulin Rouge, when his uncle took him with him to Africa, determined to make a man of him.

But in the captain's nature the poet is stronger than the soldier: he writes poems as before, except that he does it under an assumed name. He it is that the mighty sultana is in search of and whom she is determined to make the legal consort of her sultanate. Already she loves him as Capt. de Lorna, not knowing that he is the author of "The Rose of the World," the poem that has ensnared her fancy, and he, who dares not tell her, loves her in return in the character of Miriam, ignorant of her real station.

At this juncture Gen. Petipons arrives on the scene and bitterly upbraids his nephew for his penchant for writing verses, which has got France into trouble. "Think of it!" he exclaims. "The Sultana will not form an alliance with France unless we produce the anonymouse poet that she may marry him!" Not knowing what to do under this dilemma they proceed to create a poet.

Three American adventurers, having deserted from the Foreign Legion, straggle into Sadi Almoud, are discovered and given the alternative of making good as the poet or being shot by French muskets. The general, Capt. de Lome and the Sultana's chief of police each select one of the deserters for the part, and here the real fun of the piece begins, when the yappear before Zoradie in all her savage splendor and try to establish their claim to the authorship of "The Rose of the World." It looks desperate for the three adventurers, when Capt. de de Lome recognizes in the powerful princess his own Miriam. He confesses that he is the much-sought poet and then and there the treaty with France becomes an accomplished fact.

The love story between the Sultana and Capt. de Lome, the fun provided by the three ragged adventurers, Gen. Petitpons's interest in Dr. Millicent Madison, an American girl practicing medicine in the East and the cooing and billing of a young love-sick couple from Paterson on their honeymoon, all added in developing interest in a consistently-built libretto in which the amusing effects, generally speaking, are of rational origin.

Mr. Herbert has written in musicianly form, and his numbers have the swing, rhythm and tempo to which the public always responds quickly in his case. The piece only needs one striking number to make it one of the biggest successes of the season, something sibilar to the "Yama-Yame" song and dance in "Three Twins," or the addition song in "Babes of Toyland." The composer soars ambitiously in his work and it has an abundance of bright things, but nothing that stands out clearly above the many good musical features. The production is on a scale of unsurpassed splendor, and in an acting and singing sense a credit to the producers.

Ida Brooks Hunt as Zaradie, William Pruette as Gen. Petitpons, and Leon Moore are names that stand for something musically in connection with a light comedy, and Ernest Lambert, George Marion and William Cameron as the three adventurers; Harriet Burt as Dr. Madison, Florence Nash and E. P. Arnold as the lovelorn couple from Paterson, help to make up one of the strongest companies likely to be seen on Broadway this season.

Virginia Harned, who in private life is Mrs. E. H. Sothern, from whom she is asking a divorce in one of the Western states, made her first appearance in vaudeville this week at a Brooklyn resort, where the men smoke just as they do at Hammerstein's at every performance. But Miss Harned will probably not mind this token of disrespect, in view of the fact that William Morris is paying her $1,500 a week. And she pays no royalty to an author, for the sketch is her own handiwork. It is called "The Idol of the Hour."

From all accounts the piece was successfully launched amid the usual excitement of a debut of a popular actress, but its effect was comparatively mild.

Many will consider this a big salary, but news received today from London indicates that it is only a trifle compared with what Morris is to pay Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, when he returns to this country in October. He is to get $5,000 a week, which is pretty good for a music hall artist. But Morris is fighting the vaudeville trust, and he must have stars of the first magnitude, and Lauder is that without cavil. His engagement is for twenty weeks. Morris will present him at the Lincoln Square theater, which began as a legitimate Shubert house, drifted into Blaney's hands and now becomes a vaudeville theater.

Comedians are tragic men in private life, as a rule, and regard their lives wasted because they are not permitted to strut in the sock and buskin and wear a toga. As a rule, too, they try and fail in depicting pathos, and then their smile deepens into a set expression of ineradicable grief with which they reproach the unappreciative world.

To this rule Arnold Daly must be accounted an exception. This irascible comedian, who hurled his defiance in the teeth of the New York critics time and again, feeling that he was not appreciated, scored successfully in a serious role at Wallack's the other night, when he presented for the first time in the metropolis Owen Kildare and Walter Hackett's play of New York slum life, "The Regeneration," played on tour for a short time last season under the title of "My Mamie Rose."

To attest their resentment, all but a few of the critics sent their assistants to Wallack's, while they attended the performance at another theater. But the next moring all but a few of the papers teemed with praise for his serious work, and by general consent the eccentric comedian has made a place for himself in the realms of serious drama.

"The Regeneration" is not a good play, in the general acceptation of the trem, but it throws into relief a vital character in the person of Owen Conway, the leader of a gang of thugs inhabiting a subterranean retreat on the Bowery. The play illustrates the progress of regeneration which this outcast experiences through the evolution of love.

On tour the part of Miss Mamie Deering, the teacher and settlement worker who brings about this revolution, was played by Chrystal Herne. Miss Herne is to play the leading part in Zangwell's new play, "The Melting Pot," and her place in "The Regeneration" was given to Jessie Izett, unknown to Broadway, but coming here with a good reputation as an actress on the road. She played the part with a good deal of sympathy and expressed the emotional qualities with considerable power.

Edwin Arden played a colorless part in the piece pending his transfer to a role more in keeping with his ability which George C. Tyler will have for him when some of his other enterprises materialize. In all likelihood he will go again with Viola Allen.

Advices from Australia give flattering accounts of the reception there by Margaret Anglin upon the occasion of her first visit to that country as a star. A letter from Sydney, under date of July 21, written by Louis Nethersole, who is directing Miss Anglin's tour in the Antipodes, gives some information after a month's run. Miss Anglin opened with "The Thief," on June 27, and was accorded praise by the Sydney critics, which the old timers say has not been given to a visiting player since Bernhardt visited Australia seventeen years ago. Hery Kolker, who played the part created in this country by Lyle Bellew, is also praised very highly. Mr. Nethersole says that the success of Miss Anglin has given Amerocan art a great impetus in the far-off country, and he believes that many American stars could arrange extremely profitable tours to the newer country, and that this in time would link the Australian and American stages closer than are the theaters of the former country with England at present.

At the time Mr. Nethersole was writing, Miss Anglin's engagement had progressed a month, and he says that the audiences are unusually large and wonderfully demonstrative. Upon the head of this personal success Mr. Nethersole has prevailed upon Miss Anglin to make several Shakespearean productions before she returns to this country, and she has agreed to put on revivals of "As You Like It," "Twelfth Night" and "Taming of the Shrew," before she sails for her home country. Miss Anglin is due back in New York in December, and will immediately put on her dramatic version of "The Awakening of Helene Ritchie," which will be her stellar vehicle in America for the remainder of the season.

Mr. Nethersole adds that his sister Olga will still be under his management, and with two such splendidly equipped emotional actresses under his direction the popular young manager is well fortified in that line.

There can be no question that in going to Australia Miss Anglin has given American dramatic art a decided boost in a foreign land, and now that the people have recognized the artist that she is her personal triumphs there cannot fail to enhance the credit of the American stage.

Robert Edeson's first effort this season has found to be among the wanting sort, and as soon as another play can be rehearsed for his company, "The Call of the North" will be laid aside. It was roundly condemned by the critics, and has not been a business success worth noticing.

The latest is that Joseph Medill Patterson's sensational novel, "The Little Brother to the Rich," is to be made over into stage form and given an early production.

William Farnum will have a star position under Liebler & Co. for a term of years, and his first venture in the new endeavor will be in "Tio Rene gade," a play by Paul Armstrong, in which Farnum will be seen as an Indian. Walker Whiteside, who went abroad to consult with Israel Zangwill as to some changes that are to be made in the play that author wrote for him this season, was a member of the cast that appeared in the copyright performance of "The Melting Pot" in London recently. Mr. and Mrs. Zangwill and Israel Zangwill, Jr., also took part in this remarkable presentation.

Inasmuch as the late Oscar Wilde was primarily the cause of the present Salome craze it is not strange that an ambitious young manager should hit upon his playlet of that title for revival just now. It is to be sent out soon with a wriggle dancer as the star. Enough!

Milton and Sargent Aborn have engaged as one of their principal prima donnas for their English Grand Opera company Miss Estelle Wentworth, who recently appeared with George M. Cohan. The company will include Harry Luckstone, Henri Barron, Henry Davies, George Shields, William Schuster, Bertha Shalek, Alice Kraft Bentson, Hattie Belle Ladd, Max Fichandler and a chorus of eighty. The company will open at the Teck theater, Buffalo, on Sept. 28, and will appear in Brooklyn commencing Christmas week.

Paul Potter has a new story on Charles Frohman, which is being quoted between the acts at all the theaters. It is the wont of Mr. Frohman to spend every Saturday evening communicating with a few chosen spirits on the porch of his place at White Plains.

For several weeks a gaunt white cat —possibly the astral body of some rival manager anxious to steal Mr. Frohman's business—has joined the gathering of saints exactly at 9 o'clock.

The appearance of Tabby on the stroke of the hour has got on the nerves of the coterie, and when her ghostly form came gliding up the path at 9 o'clock sharp last Saturday every one said "By Jove!" and threatened to write to Gus Thomas or the Society of Psychical Research about the phenomenon.

That is to say every one did but Mr. Frohman himself. The Napoleon of managers is a stern materialist, and he distinctly didn't invest in a single share of stock in the astral cat theory.

"But how does the animal know when it is 9 o'clock?" demanded John Jennings the other night after Tabby had made her appearance at the "juste" of the hours.

"She wears a watch on her foot like Richard Harding Davis," said C. F.

And that explanation satisfied every one, except possibly Mr. Davis.

Maxine Elliott will not delay her New York engagement this season until the opening of her own theater there. She has been booked for an engagement in Philadelphia the latter part of this month, and then goes into Daly's theater, New York, to stay until the Elliott house will be ready for her. During the preliminary season Miss Elliott will appear in "Bettina," the play by Rachel Crothers, which she produced last spring. She is also to bring out "The Chaperone," a new comedy drama by Marian Fairfax. These will be utilized until time for the opening of the handsome new theater, when "The Social Guide," written for this purpose by Clyde Fitch, will be Miss Elliott's first production in her own playhouse.

Pauline Chase, the little American girl, who has been the impersonator of many Barrie heroines in the six years she has been a favorite on the London stage, is outgrowing her latest great success. In fact, Miss Chase is untrue to the soul of her greatest achievement, Peter Pan, and is growing and expanding in her art at a gait that is calculated to disgust that delightful boy. Miss Chase has been spending a vacation of two months in America. She visited her old home at Rock Island and spent most of her idle hours at Narragansett. Last week she sailed back to London and soon goes to Paris, where she will head a company at the Theater des Arts composed entirely of French players. The Ziegfeld's new production for the season will be "The Bonnie Belles of Scotland" with Alice Lloyd as the star. John J. McNally and George M. Cohen will write this book.

Gertrude Hoffman, whose visions of Salome have been a roof garden feature of the summer season in New York, has abandoned vaudeville and allied herself with the Shuberts. It is announced that the dancer will likely be placed at the head of her own company and sent on tour of the country in order to realize on the Salome craze before it dies out. There is some talk that Miss Hoffman has abandoned her vaudeville managers rather precipitately, and that there may be a legal ro wover her services. The dance is rather sensational, and, like all things of its sort, cannot last very long.

For a time there were rumors in theatrical circles that gave out the impression we were liable to loose Anna Held for a run of seasons. It was intimated that London and Paris would claim her time, but last week the vivacious comedienne returned from her long vacation near Paris and set these rumors at rest by jumping into the preparatory work for her tour in the new musical piece her husband, Flo Ziegfeld, is now putting into shape for her use. Manager Ziegfeld, who also returned from abroad, brought back several novelties that are to be included in the Ja Held show. One will be the Tight Tiler Girls, now the rage of London and Paris, and the other, a Parisian sensation called Falco, a male musicle dancer, who has caused a stir in Paris, which is the fullest recommendation that he has a rare dance.

Miss Held's principal possession was a monster hat, a la champignon, which, interpreted, means a mushroom hat on Broadway, and she also fondled a new pet bearing the name of Bill Taft. He is a French bull terrier and, according to the owners, is valuable because he "is gifted with a magnificent and delicious ugliness. When asked about the sheath gown the fair star shrugged her expressive shoulders and asked innocently:

"What is the sheath gown? Whatever it was it is now de mode."

The pert dismissal of the subject left the impression that Miss Held regarded the sheath gown as very much out of fashion.

Surely Manager Dillingham is bent on having stage beauties always in evidence with Elsie Janis. Last season it was the striking blonde beauty of Kathryn Hutchinson that was noticeable in the clever young star's support, and this season for "The Fair Co-Ed," Manager Dillingham has engaged for a prominent part another reigning beauty of the stage in Nina Bluke, who made a wonderful hit in "Coming Thro' the Ryo" several seasons back.

Mlle. Dazie, who will continue with "The Follies of 1908," on tour, is rehearsing a new dance which she will put into the show before it starts out after its long run in Gotham town. The dance will be called La Luth, or The Imp, and is built up along the lines of La Matiche, which Mlle Dazie introduced to this country two seasons back.

The extreme popularity of the Music halls in London is given as a force that has cut into the theater receipts there to an astonishing extent. The British hall is an institution in itself and should not be confounded with the cheaper forms of entertainment that we get in this country as vaudeville. It is estimated that the three big halls of London took in last season receipts that ran close to $1,400,000 in round figures. The profit on this was about 33 per cent, which would indicate that music hall investments are quite the winners just now in London theater investments. In order to attain this popularity the producers have been known to make wonderful outlays. At the Ahlambra and the Empire, in addition to the individual bills offered, the ballets are the great thing. It is not uncommon for the directors to spend $50,000 on a ballet for a run at either hall. The Palace, the other music hall, is strictly dependent upon individual acts, and it pays often as high as $2,000 for their stellar lights, and then follow with acts that demand $500, giving three of four of these. As a sample of their outlay it is mention that in one season some years back they played on the same program Anna Held, Lottie Collins, Albert Chevalier, Marie Lloyd and Gus Elen. While last season they had such distinguished stars as Maud Allen, Marie Dressler, Evie Greene and Yvette Guilbert on the same bill. Alfred Butt, the director of the Palace, says that artists who get these salaries are all right, providing they earn them. His contention is that a turn is cheap at $1,000 while another one might be dear at $50. It is manager's business to be able to find out the value the public places upon them and pay accordingly. Quite a contrast to ideas as shown in the American vaudeville combinations where the effort is stifling. In England the music halls develop the stars for the big stage. In America it is too often the case that when they lose their usefulness in the legitimate they turn to vaudeville and get an outlandish salary on a past reputation. There is no managerial discrimination or instinctive knowledge of values to bolster up the most essential end of the game.

Eleanor Robson and her managers, Liebler & Company, have finally settled upon the Richard Harding Davis story, "Vera the Medium," as the play to be Miss Robson's stellar effort this season. The play is by Mr. Davis and is based upon his novel of the same name, which is well known. The story deals with the reclaiming of the young girl who has fallen into the hands of a set of professional spiritualists, who use hor for selfish gain.

Welcome to the growing list! This means Miss Georgia Caine, who has just been introduced to the title character in "The Merry Widow," with the New York company, and is the sixth young American to sing that part of the Savage production at the New Amsterdam theater.

Alfred Aarons has leaped into the breach in the interests of "The Devil," or rather the present stage representation of his majesty. It is reported that Aaroons is working in conjunction with Manager Savage and will have on tour three or four companies in this remarkable play. Joseph Kilgour has been engaed to play the title part in the first organization Mr. Aaroons will put out. It will mark the return to the stage of this former Cincinnati favorite after a lay-off of some time, due to his marriage last season to a wealthy Chicago girl.

George Arliss in Mr. Fiske's production of "The Devil," at the Belasco theater, New York, has broken all records of summer business for a play in that city. Musical plays have sometimes equaled these receipts, but they stand alone for a dramatic production. Every seat in the theater has been sold out every performance since the opening, and all the standing room has been occupied that the fire regulations will permit, and great numbers of people have been turned away nightly.

New Haven has gone wild over "Marrying Mary." Florence Gear opened the new Grand opera house there on Monday, Aug. 24, and remained the entire week playing to capacity. On the opening night, the mayor of the city and his staff occupied a box, and prominent townspeople and society folk from New York, Hartford and Boston were scattered through the house.

At every performance during the engagement, box parties were the rule, the summer cottagers coming from miles down the beach to enjoy the smart musical play, which Jules Murry put on in such lavish style. The ladies came to copy Miss Gear's Parisian gowns, the men to enjoy the witty nonsense of the play.

Every song was encored, every line made a hit. Miss Gear was compelled to repeat her song, "I'm so Lonely," from a dozen to fifteen times every night. The ensembles were perfectly drilled, the three ex-husbands were irresistibly funny, and the three wouldbes equally so.

"Marrying Mary" caught the town. No such enthusiasm has been aroused in New Haven in many a year.

On Aug. 28, Paul Gilmore returned from his two months' rest in Europe, on the Mauretania, and began rehearsals of his new play, "The Boys of Company B," on Tuesday, Sept. 1. He opens his season on Sept. 25.

Norman Hackett is delighted with his company, which he has been rehearsing since Aug. 24 on his new play, "Classmates." He opens his season on Sept. 17.

For the first time in the history of the American stage, a first-class dramatic production is on tour with a number of celebrated circus acrobats and clowns playing leading parts. The play is "Polly of the Circus," by Margaret Mayo, in which Mabel Taliaferro is the star, and the piece is being presented by Mr. Frederic Tompson at the Illinois theater, Chicago.

"Polly of the Circus" deals with a girl bare-back rider who is injured during a performance in a small town and is left behind to recuperate. Her period of convalescence is spent in the home of a village preacher, with whom she falls in love. Later, for reasons explained in the play, she returns to the circus—which makes it necessary to present a tent show in full operation on the stage of the theater. To give the necessary touch of realism, Mr. Thompson has engaged a number of the most famous circus folks in the world of "big tops."

No inkling as to the nature or locale of the new play which David Belasco is writing for his youngest dramatic pratege, Frances Starr, has as yet been made public, and the delightful little artiste who made a place for herself in the foremost ranks of dramatic stars on the American stage by reason of her convincing and artistic interpretation of the leading role in "The Rose of the Rancho," is as impatient as any one to know the character of the role she is next to essay.

Beginning last Monday with a special Labor day matinee, James Forbes' latest comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," was transferred to the new Gaiety theater, Broadway and Forty-sixth street. This attraction, which had an original booking in New York of only four weeks at the Liberty theater, has proved such an enormous success that a number of booking plans have been upset, and the new Gaiety thrown open to the Henry B. Harris attraction in order to keep it in New York, where it will doubtless enjoy a very long run. Indeed, so great has been the demand for seats that Mr. Harris has decided to give an extra performance of the piece by inaugurating Wednesday matinees.

Henrietta Crosman, who recently closed a successful New York engagement at the Academy of Music, where she revived "Mistress Nell" and "As You Like It," has already begun her tour of the South and Middle West states under the managerial supervision of Mr. Harris and Maurice Campbell. This will be the first time that Miss Crosman has ever been in the South, and it is not unlikely that she will find a very warm welcome in both "Mistress Nell" and "As You Like It," the plays to be offered by her. Some time in December Miss Crosman will be seen in a new vehicle, which is now being written for her by a well-known English author.

PREPARING FOR PACIFIC WORLD'S FAIR AT SEATTLE

All Eyes Will be Turned Toward Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in 1909---Buildings and Grounds Rapidly Being Completed.

By Frank L. Merrick.)

Activity is the keynote on the grounds of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition at Seattle at the present time. From morning till night more than a thousand men are busily engaged in the hugh task of creating the Pacific world's fair. With the work already finished and the rapidity with which the work under construction is being carried on, every indication points to a completed exposition on opening day, June 1. 1908.

With still ten month in which to toil the management is taking advantage of every day, hour and minute. Every department is wide awake to the fact that a complete-on-opening day exposition is the end for which they are striving. The people and the business interests of Seattle, which will have more or less to do with the success of the 1909 fair, are included in this hustling spirit—in fact, determination to be ready and waiting permeates the entire city.

The work has progressed so far that a visitor can begin to obtain some idea of the way the exposition will look when the buildings are finished.

A portion of the campus of Washington University, the Exposition grounds are 250 acres in extent, twenty minutes' ride from the heart of the city, and have been pronounced by competent authority as, scientifically, the finest ever used for such a purpose. Set between two beautiful fresh-water lakes, Washington bordering on the east and Union on the west, the grounds present unsurpassed stretches of water front, and tall stately giants of the forest, entrancing vistas, gentle slopes, and commanding terraces add to the beauty of the picture The principal thououghfare, Rainier avenue, is on a direct line with that white-cloaked sentinel Mount Rainier, 14,526 feet in height, whose pereptual snow-capped peak looks down on the exposition grounds the year round. On the west are the snow-covered Olympics, while on the east Mount Baker towers over the white-capped Cascade range

Work Well Advanced.

All of the work is well advanced. Taking the exposition as a whole, it is about sixty-five per cent completed. Experienced exposition men who have visited the grounds state that no other exposition was further advanced and in better shape so far ahead of its opening than the big fair at Seattle. All of the grading and clearing of the avenues, plazas, circles, etc., have been completed and the landscaping work is far advanced. Most of the large and important buildings are under construction or finished, and others ready to start. Applications for exhibit space are pouring in by the thousands and about thirty large attractions have been secured for the Pay Streak, the name of the amusement boulevard corresponding to the Trail at Portland.

The Manufacturers' Palace, a large structure fronting in the east side of the Court of Honor, was the first to be completed. A twin structure, the Agricultural building, across the court, was the next exhibit palace to have its finishing touches applied. Then the Machinery Hall, a permanent brick building, had its windows washed and its doors locked to await the arrival of exhibits. Right here it may as well be explained that the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition includes in its plan the erection of permanent structures. There will be at least four large ones and many small ones. The largest will be the Machinery, Fine Arts, Auditorium and Forestry. The first three are being built under the direction of the Board of Regents of Washington University, upon the grounds of which the exposition is located. Under the act of the Washington legislature appropriating $1,000,000 for the 1909 fair, it was provided that $600,000 was to go into permanent buildings for the use of the exposition during its period and after that for the use of the state institution of learning. The Forestry building will be erected by the Washington state commission which has the remaining $400,000 to spend on the Evergreen State's participation. This structure will be built of huge logs in their virgin state, along altogether new architectural lines for such a palace.

Putting on Auditorium Roof.

The auditorium is now having its roof put into place and the palace of arts across Puget plaza, which is just inside of the main entrance, shows its steel work in the air. The mines building is having its staff applied and will soon be completed, while its twin structure, the fisheries building, is rapidly rising. The administration building, where the offices of the exposition are located, has been occupied for a year and the emergency hospital has been in commission for many months. The fire station is also completed. Many of the decorative features for the main picture have progressed to the stage where it only takes the finishing touches to get them ready. These are the Cascades and the Geyser fountain. For over a year a nursery for the cultivation of flowers, plants, shrubs, etc., has been in operation and just as soon as building is finished, its surrounding ground is landscaped.

Other large exhibit buildings that will be started in the near future are the foreign, transportation, forestry and machinery annex. The latter was found necessary on account of the large number of applications for space in this classification.

Uncle Sam's group, which constitutes a small expositon in itself, will be started early in the fall, which will provide ample time in which to finish it before opening day. Consisting of the main government building and structures for Alasga, Hawaii, Philippines and the fisheries industry, the group will stand at the head of the Cascades, closing in the northern end of the court of honor. The United States government will expend $600,000 on its participation. Of this sum $250,000 will be put into buildings and $350,000 in exhibits. The government board consists of Jesse E. Wilson, chairman, W. de C. Ravenel and William E. Geddes. Special agents are now at work in their different fields arranging for exhibits.

Of the estates that have taken action, Oregon is ahead of them all in work. The Beaver state's building, which stands near the main picture on Nome Circle, is almost finished. It will be one of the most beautiful structures on the grounds. Its architect, David C. Lewis of Portland has given the state a building of which it may well be proud. Two stories in height, it is topped by a huge dome, which greatly adds to the sky line of the exposition in that section of the grounds. Exhibit, reception and all the different classes of rooms that are necessary for an up-to-date state building at a world's fair are provided. With the Washington building on one side of it and the Forestry building across the circle, the Oregon building will stand in a prominent and advantageous spot during the expositon period.

California has started its building and from present indications it will be the second state structure completed. It will be a fine edifice in the old Spanish mission style, and the commissioners state that it will be a much handsomer building than has ever been put up by California at previous fairs.

The Washington Building.

The Washington building, which will be a permanent structure, will be started within the month. It will cost much more than any other state building on the grounds and will present a handsome appearance. This structure will be the headquarters for all of the official functions given by the exposition management and the state commission. Much marble and hardwood will be used in the interior finishings.

Missouri, New York, Utah, Nebraska, Pennsylvania and several other states will erect their buildings this coming winter.

Four counties of Washington have decided to build buildings. These are Spokane, King, Pierce and Chehalis. Many others have signified their intention of doing the same.

Many other small pseudo exhibit buildings and headquarters for organizations will be put up on the grounds. Among these are the Arctic Brotherhood and Masonic buildings.

Many cities have indicated that they would erect buildings in which to demonstrate their advantages and resources for commercial industries. Chicago is the first city to definitely decide upon a separate structure in which to exploit itself. Representatives of the Chicago Association of Commerce, visited Seattle recently and picked out a site for the Chicago building, which will be erected at a cost of $25,000, under the auspices of the Association of Commerce. It is planned to introduce a series of stereopticon, moving pictures and general exhibit lectures, to be varied almost daily for the entertainment of visiting crowds. Scenes from the great stores, the stockyards, the big manufacturing plants, many of the downtown streets, and both club and home life will be introduced. The pictures will not only be moving pictures, but they will be "talking pictures." By a new device recently made successful the hum of conversation and machinery or street traffic is reproduced with moving pictures by a phonographic attachment.

The Chicago Association of Commerce will spend about $50,000 more for the installation and maintenance of the exhibit.

Applications for exhibit space are pouring into the division of exhibits. Besides the domestic firms and individuals that will make displays there will be many from foreign countries. There are several commissioners working in the Orient and in Europe, and reports from these indicate comprehensive and interesting exhibits for the Foreign building. Life, color and motion will be the characteristics of all displays and Director Dosch has arranged for several of these exhibits that have never been seen before at expositions.

The Pay Streak.

The Pay Streak will be more than three-quarters of a mile in length and will terminate on the shore of Lake Union, where an ornate boat landing and esplanade will be located. Only clean, novel shows, with educative and interesting features will have space. Some of the most famous concessionaries in the country will put on attractions on which hundreds of thousands of dollars will be expended. Many of the illusions will depict scenes in the Pacific Northwest, Alaska and the countries of the Pacific ocean. Included in the thirty some attractions arranged for are the following: Trip to the Moon, Burning of the Prairie Belle, Wreck of the Corsair, Hereafter and Resurrection, Temple of Mirth, Helter Skelter, Virginia Reel, Fighting the Flames, Trip Through Hood's Canal, Roller Coaster, Princess Trixie, Deep Sea Diving, Shoot the Chutes, Eskimo Village, Scenic Railway, 101 Ranch, Trip to the North Pole, Wild Animals, Igorrote Village, Merrimac and Monitor, Persian Theater, Baby Incubator, Fair Japan, Fall of Port Arthur, Oriental Village, Creation, Klondike Placer Mining.

Many large associations have decided to hold their national conventions at the exposition. Advices from railroad officials indicate that the crowds that will come West in 1909 will be enormous.

MOVEMENT IN EAST END PROPERTY DURING WEEK

Two Large Sales of Residence Property Made—Big Advances in East Superior Street Business Property Are Reported—Owners Holding for Further Advance.

East end property continues to demand the greatest attention from those interested in Duluth real estate developments. For several weeks past, there have been rumors of big deals brewing in East end property, but very few of them came to the surface. This week, however, two were closed, which are at figures that appear to indicate a demand for property in that part of the city that is unprecedented.

For lots 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15, block 9, Endion Park division, the property at the northeast corner of Twenty-third avenue east and Second street, with 200 feet facing on the street and 140 on the avenue, Mrs. A. M. Miller paid C. C. Cokefair $20,000, or $100 a front foot, the highest price ever paid for property in that district. Yesterday a deal was closed by Stryker, Manley & Buck by which Mr. Cokefair purchased from Willis J. Holmes the 200 feet immediately north of the property he had just sold. The purchase is the southeast corner of Third street and Twenty-third avenue east, with 200 feet on the street and 140 feet on the avenue and the price paid was $11,000.

Both pieces of property, which brought such exceptional prices, are unimproved, but it is understood that the transfers will result in two valuable additions to the cluster of magnificent homes in the East end. Mrs. Miller has announced her intention of erecting a home, and it is presumed that Mr. Cokefair's intentions are the same.

Two other deals of some proportions in East end property were closed by Stryker, Manley & Buck during the week. Dr. C. A. Stewart purchased from C. E. Vanbergen 100 feet on the lower side of Second street, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth avenues east for $4,500 and by two separate purchases Merrick J. Gochey gained possession of 100 feet on the lower side of Third street, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh avenues east. The property is described as lots 5 and 6, block 4, Harrison's addition. Lot 5 was owned by Ella M. Cooley, who was represented by Cooley & Underhill. E. P. Alexander represented the owner of lot 6. The consideration was $2,250. Mr. Gochey will immediately prepare for the erection of a home.

* * *

Dr. L. A. Sukeforth made another plunge in East end real estate in the purchase of lots 9 and 10, block 87, Endion division, the northwest corner of Fourteenth avenue east and Second street, from Maggie Clark. The consideration was $5,500.

* * *

It is understood that the last has not been heard from the East end. There are other deals still in the air. The property on Superior, First and Second street between Eighteenth and Twenty-fifth avenues east is particularly in demand and there are said to be several transfers in sight in the next month. The district has seen the erection of a number of beautiful homes in the past few years and next year should see additions to the number, just as beautiful and expensive.

East Superior street business property has come in for a good share of attention during the past week and there are stories of phenomenal advances. The Wisconsin Central has gathered in all of the property on one side of the street west of Sixth avenue west and the other side of the street is closely held. The business district can extend west on Superior street no farther than Eighth avenue west, as it brings up against the Point of Rocks. The trend is therefore up the hill to First street and eastward.

During the past year a number of buildings have gone up on East Superior street and others are planned. The new Folz building at Second avenue east indicates faith in the progress of the business district in that direction. The Seekins building on one side of the street at Third avenue and the new four-store building on the other side are further evidences that lots in that district are to become good business property.

Owners are holding closely for the bulge. Most of the property is cut up into twenty-five-foot lots, and it takes an almost prohibitive price to pry the owners loose from their deeds. Two or three new buildings are said to be planned for the next year and the owners of property are flirting gaily with prospective purchasers.

Eva Rein has sold Lot 14, Block 37, Endion division, to Mary Keedy for $2,400. The property is on the upper side of London road between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues east.

Primus D. Kreiter has sold to Lionel A. Sherwin Lot 10, Block 97, Portland division, for $3,750. The property is on the upper side of Fourth street between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues east and is improved with a residence.

* * *

Samuel Bingham has sold to Stans Nowak the easterly one-half of Lot 6, West Fifth street, Duluth proper, First division, for $1,225. The lot is on the lower side of Fifth street between Lake avenue and First avenue east.

* * *

Edward L. Palmer has sold to Harry T. Hurdon Lot 5, Block 4, Highland Park addition, on the lower side of Third street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues east, for $1,400.

* * *

A. C. Schwalm has sold to F. C. Harris the easterly fifty feet of Lots 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11, Block 14, West Duluth, Sixth division, for $5,000. The property is on the northern side of Hunting street near Fifty-seventh avenue west.

* * *

Through Stryker, Manley & Buck, D. H. Parks, executor, has sold to Michael Katzmerek the small house at 213 West Ninth street. The consideration was $630.

* * *

Through C. L. Rakowsky & Co., Nordstjernan lodge, No. 11, I. O. G. T., of the West end has purchased from Mendenhall & Hoopes the lot at the northwest corner of Twenty-sixth avenue west and Second street. The lot is fifty feet on the street and 140 feet on the avenue and the lodge will in the near future erect a building for lodge purposes.

QUAINT ENGLISH COTTAGE, WHICH WOULD COST $5,500 TO BUILD HERE

ANTHONY PUCK ARCHT

The above illustration shows a design of the quaint English cottage. Its plain, simple lines are attractive to the eye. It is suitable to a level lot.

The materials employed for the exterior are stucco, for the side walls, and "shakes" for the roof. While the entry is shown open it is intended to be enclosed during the winter months, forming a vestibule. The large living room with exposed floor joists, or "ceiling beams," and the immense fireplace for warmth and ventilation, would be especially attractive and homelike.

Off the dining room is the Tea Nook, an inviting place, suggestive of hospitality; it has a fireplace, small and quaint in its design, yet effective in its purpose. This cozy little room is to be wainscoted with tile to a height of five feet. The floor is also of tile.

The kitchen ample in its dimensions, is fitted with the usual cupboards, sink. It is also fitted with sufficient cupboard space.

Combination stairs have been planned, a very convenient feature. On the second floor are found four good sized chambers with closets off each and also a bath room.

The finish for the dining room is to be oak, and Oregon fir is used in the living room as well as in the hall. Pine is to be used in all other rooms.

The ceiling heights are 8 feet 6 inches first story, 8 feet second story. With hot water heat the estimated cost of this cottage to build in Duluth or vicinity would be $5,500.

FEW CITIZENS ESCAPE DULUTH SOCIETY WOMEN AND THE RED CROSS TAGS

"STUNG."

AN AUTOMOBILE "TAG" PARTY.

HOLDING UP A TEAMSTER.

"This is charity day. Don't you want a tag? asked the girl on the corner.

The man accosted passed her by silently, witheringly, ignominously and crushingly.

"Gee it's fierce the way they sting you" said the girl on the corner, cheerfully.

Then a dapper youth approached. "Why you're not tagged" she said in tones of tenderest sympathy. The dapper youth, who had been dodging it all morning began to feel sorry for himself.

"Could you fasten it on my coat lapel?" he asked.

"Yes, I could" said the girl on the corner " but I haven't time. And she turned to the oncoming citizens. Between little spasms of citizens she had time to talk.

"I'm having the time of my life," she said, "the time of my life. I'm talking to everybody, a thing I've wanted to do my whole life long and convention has made it impossible. My most courteous reception was from a colored gentleman, who greeted my appeal with the grandest bow you ever saw and the hat swept the pavement. 'Miss I have no money and I need a job' he said in response to my invitation. That bow was worth three tags and I got him a job. This is charity day," she said to a passing man, and although his eyes were closely glued to the walk he swerved from his track and wearily took another tag and deposited a donation in the ever ready box.

Early this morning the wholesale district on Michigan street, the street cars and all other corners of the city were invaded with the clan of red cross solicitors for the first thoroughly organized tag day in the history of Duluth. The contributions will go toward St. Luke's hospital and women of every denomination throughout thecity were interested in the day. Tags to the number of 50,000 were in readiness for the work and 500 boxes to hold the funds were provided. By noon 250 of these boxes had been in operation. One box in the hands of a Duluth matron started the day with a donation of $500, another with $125, although these high contributions were the exception rather than the rule and the majority of the red cross decorated boxes were made heavy with contributions of a dollar.

The tag day movement has been the most carefully organized of any such movement ever tried in Duluth and has been an undoubted success. The object was to get the people to contribute who are well able and willing to give a small contribution, but who neglect the matter unless it is brought with special force to their attention. And being asked fifty times in one morning to contribute any little sum to a worthy charity may well be said to bring the matter to the attention with some force.

The executive committee, consisting of Mrs. W. R. Stone, Mrs. A. M. Miller, Mrs. J. B. Adams, Mrs. A. B. Wolvin and Mrs. James E. Granger were at the headquarters at the Spalding during the day distributing the boxes and the badges and the tags to the assistants. The city in every portion of the business district was teeming with red cross-decorated women offering tags to the general public.

The reception that the interested women received was all that could be desired. Some few Duluthians plodded through the day without giving their mite toward the work, but they were very scarce. A great many of Duluth's men had a pocketful of change and a pocketful of tags, but went around with a guileless look that simply begged to be asked to contribute, and then exchanged some of the small cash for another tag. The spirit of the day communicated itself to the man with the most pronounced grouch and to the smallest newsie on the street. The automobiles were gaily decorated in many cases with large red crosses and the red cross was the symbol of the day in all quarters.

The boxes will go to the American Exchange bank for the night and W. I. Prince has consented to act as treasurer of the fund. There can be no estimate made of the amount which will be contributed, but it is expected to reach several thousand dollars.

AIDS INITIATION THEN DROPS DEAD

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 12.—While assisting the Masonic lodge in initiation ceremonies at Piedmont, Joseph Garrett Lowe, judge of the Thirteenth judicial district, died suddenly of heart disease, aged 62. Judge Lowe was a member of the national Democratic convention in Kansas City, in 1876, and was a delegate at large from Kansas to the national Democratic convention in St. Louis in 1888.

SECRETARY DAY OPENS QUARTERS

Democratic Campaign Speaking Will be Done by Volunteers.

St. Paul, Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—With Frank A. Day doing the glad hand and John King of Red Lake Falls, editor of the Courier, and state librarian under the administration doing the press bureau work, the Democratic state headquarters opened yesterday and commenced the business of the campaign, which will be mild. The speaking for the party will be done by volunteers. The state committee has in hand "no unlimited" funds and the prospect of speakers making much money out of the campaign itself is distant.

The press bureau claims the patronage of 150 papers throughout the state and will get out plate matter on a small scale to send to all the party organs. This plate will be prepared and sent out in two weeks. The bureau believes that it will be able to put out 500 columns of matter in the state every week.

The headquarters are located on the sixth floor, Fourth and Jackson street. The headquarters will not be enlarged until some time later in the campaign, if at all.

The Democratis will make no statements as to their position, saying that the campaign proper will not open until after the governor makes his opening address which will probably be next week.

Dances

LABOR

LABOR DAY A SUCCESS

Commitee Compliments Unions on Splendid Showing in Parade.

Labor Organizer Biggs Spent Night of Terror at Chisholm.

The crowd which turned out Labor day to take part in the parade and the celebration at Fairmount park was unprecedented in the history of organized labor in Duluth, according to E. P. Peters, who last evening made a report to the trades assembly on behalf of the Labor day committee.

In all ways it was a most successful celebration, but especially so financially, the program receipts amounting to $600 and the disbursements to $195. At Fairmount park the pavilion committee took in the net sum of $550. Mr. Peters thanked the delegates of the trades assembly and the members of the local unions for the manner in which they turned out, and complimented them on their fine showing in the parade. He said that the committee wished to thank the members of the city council who accepted labor's invitation to be present in the Labor day demonstration. He said that they were also grateful to A. R. MacDonald for his address to labor as speaker of the day, and to the daily papers for the support they had lent to the celebration.

D. G. Biggs of St. Louis, organizer for the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America, at the request of the assembly, spoke a few words on his work through the Northwest.

He had just come from Hibbing, and had been at Chisholm on the night of its destruction. He with hundreds of the inhabitants had been forced to flee before the flames across Longyear lake for safety. He slept that night in a miner's hut, and was awakened in the morning by the ringing of church bells in the distance. On looking out across the narrow stretch of water, he beheld the charred ruins of the town.

Mr. Biggs complimented Duluth on its attractiveness and industry. He said it is one of the most wideawake cities he had ever had the good fortune to visit. He told of organizing locals in Aberdeen, Grand Forks and Grand Rapids, and of adjusting some sick benefit difficulties at Hibbing. He also urged the buying of union-made goods.

• • •

Last evening's meeting of the trades assembly was exceedingly dull. There was but one communication of any interest. It was a letter from the National Anti-Asiatic Immigration League of the United States, urging upon organized labor the necessity of its cooperation in the movement towards barring Oriental labor from the United States. It also asked that the assembly lend its support to the members of the league in the lectures they are planning to deliver at meetings held in various parts of the country on the question of Asiatic immigration. The communication was received and filed.

In the absence of President S. S. McDonald, Vice President Edward Blackwood, occupied the chair. Former President Henry Perrault was appointed temporary vice president.

Some little discussion arose last evening on the request of the delegates from the Freight Handlers' union, for an explanation of the way in which they had their position usurped by the Carpenter's union, in the Labor day parade line of march. He stated that it had been announced in the program that the freight handlers were to head the second division, but on arriving there, they found the carpenters already in line in their alloted position. He said that the carpenters on hearing that they had the freight handler's position, were willing to give up to them, but that the marshal would not allow it, placing the freight handlers in the rear. The members of the Labor day committee endeavored to explain why this had been done, by saying that there had been a mistake in the program, and that the carpenters had been totally omitted from the marching order. To remedy this, and in consideration of the fact that the carpenter's union had been the hub of the lockout struggle for months, they were placed at the head of the second division, though they had not drawn that position.

Following is the corrected financial report of the joint lockout committee:

Receipts	$2,100.84

NORMAL NOTES

The summer session of the Duluth state normal school ended Thursday. Sept. 3, and the fall term commenced the following Tuesday with an enrollment of 147 scholars, an increase over that of last year. The classes are now all organized and the regular routine work has begun.

The first chapel exercises were held Wednesday. After addressing a few remarks of welcome to the new scholars, President Bohannon gave a short talk to the pupils, advising them that, as they had clear records so far and had made no serious failures, it was to their own advantage to begin their work in the right spirit and do each day's work as it came.

Of the 147 pupils enrolled, 32 are taking the English course, 30 the Latin, 7 the elementary and 78 the graduate courses.

The new scholars this year are: Amy Anderson, Moose Lake; Nella Anderson, Maple Hill; Sigie Anderson, Duluth; Sally Apel, Duluth; Ethel Beauty, Ashawa; Elsie Binney, McKinley; Agnes Brackett, Pine City; Mamie Brown, Eveleth; Adeline Buckley, Duluth; Kathryn Burris, Duluth; Minnie Cohen, Virginia; Astrid Dahle, Dorris; Harriet Dennis, Taconite; Zita Doran, Grand Rapids; Ethel Eckert, Northwood, Iowa; Pearl Elevitch, Duluth; Mary Gannon, Cass Lake; Theresa Gianotti, Ely; Charlotte Gianotti, Ely; Lillian Gronseth, Duluth; Laura Gronseth, Duluth; Catherine Grotheim, Duluth; Ruby Haigh, Goodland; Ruth Haigh, Goodland; Laura Hamblin, Duluth; Ruth Hamblin, Duluth; Freda Hanson, Duluth; Agnes Hawkins, Harris; Ella Hawkins, Harris; Bertha Helgeson, Proctor; Sara Irwin, Duluth; Maria Jacobson, Duluth; Myrtle Jensen, Duluth; Louise Kitto, Tower; Ruby Krause, Hancock; Anna Larson, Duluth; Winifred Leonard, Duluth; Anna Levine, Duluth; Fannie Lumm, Duluth; Agnes Lundmark, Virginia; Laura McFarlane, Duluth; Anna McGinty, Wayzeta; Ruby McMinn, Duluth; Mae Maloney, Duluth; Millie Mathison, Atkinson; Annie Mitchell, Ely; Gladys Moore, Duluth; Anna Nelson, Duluth; St. Clair Nisbet, Duluth; Ada Nyquist, Braham; Mary O'Brien, Duluth; Nora Olson, Duluth; Dollie Polinsky, Duluth; Hazel Prescot, Duluth; Ada Price, Aitkin; Lois Quinn, Mapleton; Pauline Rabinowitz, Eveleth; Clara Randall, Duluth; Vera Rockwell, Duluth; Blanche Russell, Sandstone; Frances Russell, Sandstone; Florence Ryan, Ironwood; Judith Satterstrom, Duluth; Hildegrade Snyder, Brainerd; Ione Stock, Coleraine; Ruth Stynsberg, Biwabik; Mary Sullivan, Duluth; Dora Tonkin, Ely; Ellen Vandegrift, Schaefer; Rebecca Walker, Duluth; Mamie Watson, Mahtowa; Hazel Welch, Duluth; Winifred Wright, Brainerd; Belle La Vaque, Duluth; Ethel Denton, Duluth.

Several members of the faculty spent very pleasant vacations traveling in Europe or in all parts of this country. Miss Carey and Miss Palmer spent their summer abroad; Miss Long at her summer home in Overbrook, Kan.; Miss Horn in Bellefontaine, Ohio; Miss Shoesmith in Lena, Ill., and Mr. Hubbard spent six weeks of the time in Indiana. The other members of the faculty remained here to teach in the summer school.

Only one change has been made in the faculty. Miss Anna Belswenger of Chicago is teaching the fifth and sixth grades of the model school, formerly in charge of Miss Doell, who resigned her position to become drawing supervisor in the public schools of Duluth.

Considerable improvement on the grounds of the school has been effected during the summer months. The land in the rear of the school and Washburn hall has been graded and sodded. The assembly hall and several of the classrooms have been retinted.

• • •

Washburn hall is filled to its capacity this year. Those residing there are: Maude Adams, Ethel Beatty, Agnes Brackett, Mamie Brown, Astrid Dahle, Harriet Dennis, Ethel Denton, Zita Doran, Ethel Eckert, Mary Gannon, Charlotte Gianotti, Theresa Gianotti, Ruby Haigh, Ruth Haigh, Anna Howkinson, Ella Hawkinson, Ruby, Krase, Bella La Vaque, Annie Mitchell, Ada Price, Lois Quinn, Florence Ryan, Hildegarde Snyder, Dora Tonkin, Winifred Wright, Grace Aiken, Fae Cook, Emeline Higgins, Hazel Helmbaugh, Marie Kibler, Ethel Lewis, Agnes Lundmark, Clara Lundmark, Margaret McCabe, Mabel Nelson, Margaret Raleigh, Ruth Raleigh, Jean Stapleton.

The first and one of the most important of the senior class meetings was held Thursday afternoon. The officers for the coming year were elected. Those holding offices are: President, Alta Merritt; secretary, Myrtle King; treasurer, Jessie Todd; Miss Robinson, class counsellor, spoke a few friendly words to the girls.

• • •

The Sophomores and Freshmen held their first meetings on Thursday, also. Helen Rankin was elected president of the Sophomore class and Flora Gibson, secretary and treasurer.

• • •

At the Freshman meeting, Miss Post was chosen class counselor. The officers elected were: President, Astrid Dahl; secrtary.Ruth Hamblin, and treasurer, Ethel Denten.

ROADS MAY ENTER EXPRESS BUSINESS

City of Mexico, Sept. 12.—The Mexican railways intend to go into the express business on their own account. The contract of the Wells-Fargo company for handling express business on the Central Railroad will expire Dec. 31. Application has been made for the renewal of the contract and this question is now before the directors of the merged company.

RANGE ROADS HAVE NO REPORTS

Danger From Fire in Range Towns Apparently Over.

No reports of fire damage have been received by the officials of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road this morning. The officials would be certain to receive some information were the fire encroaching upon any of the towns that have been endangered during the past ten days.

All was quiet yesterday and the officials of the road have reason to believe that the worst of the danger from fire has past.

DIVORCE IS GRANTED.

Alice Wood Given Separation and Custody of the Children.

Judge Ensign this morning granted a decree of absolute divorce to Alice Wood from her husband, Robert Wood. The woman is also given the custody of the two children, Robert, aged 15, and Helen Maud, aged 17 years, and possession of her home, which is described as lot 9, block 2, second to Hall's addition, West Duluth.

Mrs. Wood is 50 years of age and her husband the same. They were married at Alpena, Mich., April 16, 1889, and lived together up to March of this year. She charged drunkenness and cruelty as the grounds for divorce.

For health and pure food use Hunt's Perfect Extracts and Baking Powder. They are pure, uniform and reliable.

CITY EXPENSES.

A report of the census bureau upon the expenses of municipal government in the cities of the United States possessing more than 30,000 people contains some interesting comparisons as to the proportionate distribution of expenses in the various cities. The figures are for 1905.

The largest item is education, which took 25.9 per cent of all the expenses in the eighty-seven cities covered by the report. Taking this average and the figures for the Twin Cities and two Eastern communities of about Duluth's size for comparison with Duluth, it is found that Duluth's percentage for education was 30.3—it was much more this year than it was in 1905—that of Minneapolis was 32.3, St. Paul 27.8, Utica, N. Y., 29.9, and Hoboken, N. J., 32.3. Duluth's proportion was much above the average, therefore, but less than those of Minneapolis and Hoboken.

The next largest item in Duluth is interest, 17.3 per cent, as against 10.1 per cent in all the cities, 7.2 per cent in Minneapolis, 13 per cent in St. Paul, 6.1 per cent in Utica and 10.3 per cent in Hoboken.

Duluth's fire department cost was the largest in the list, and only one city of the eighty-seven—Peoria, Ill., showed a larger proportion. It formed 16 per cent of the total expense in Duluth, 9.5 per cent in all the cities, 11.8 in Minneapolis, 9.8 in St. Paul, 10.2 in Utica and 13.2 in Hoboken.

The cost of maintaining highways in Duluth is naturally higher than the average, being 14.9 per cent against 10.9 per cent in all the cities; but Minneapolis showed 19.6 per cent and St. Paul 18 per cent, while Utica showed 14.1 per cent and Hoboken 4.4 per cent. The Western cities, being newer, have to devote more to this item than the older eastern communities, while Duluth's topography tends to make the expense greater than elsewhere.

The cost of general government in Duluth is less than the average—6.6 per cent against 9 per cent for all the cities. That of Minneapolis was still less, 5 per cent, St. Paul's was 3.8 per cent, Utica's was 9 per cent, and Hoboken's was 7.1 per cent.

The cost of the police department, too, is lower than the average. Duluth's cost was 6.5 per cent, that of all the cities was 12.7 per cent, that of Minneapolis was 8 per cent, St. Paul's was 8.7 per cent, Utica's was 6.5 per cent and Hoboken's was 18.1 per cent. Other protection to life and property took 0.9 per cent in Duluth, 1.7 per cent in all the cities, 0.8 per cent in Minneapolis, 0.5 per cent in St. Paul, 0.7 per cent in Utica and 0.5 per cent in Hoboken.

The expense for health conservation in Duluth was 1.4 per cent of the total, exactly the same as the average for all cities. In Minneapolis it was 1 per cent, in St. Paul it was 0.9 per cent, in Utica it was 0.8 per cent and in Hoboken 1 per cent.

This city spends comparatively little for sanitation, only Grand Rapids, Mich., spending a smaller proportion. In Duluth it was 2.3 per cent, the average was 7.3 per cent, Minneapolis was 5.5 per cent, St. Paul 6 per cent, Utica 12 per cent, and Hoboken 5.3 per cent.

Other items were as follows: Charities and correction—Duluth, 0.4 per cent; all cities, 5.7; Minneapolis, 3.4; St. Paul, 2.8; Utica, 4.6; Hoboken, 2.7. Libraries, museums, etc.—Duluth, 1 per cent; all cities, 1.2; Minneapolis, 1.5; St. Paul, 1.3; Utica, 1.6; Hoboken, 1.5. Recreation—Duluth, 1.4 per cent; all cities, 3; Minneapolis, 13.4; St. Paul, 5; Utica, 0.9; Hoboken, 2.

WRITING A LIFE'S HISTORY.

Do you know that you are writing the history of your life? You may not think it, but you are. You are writing it upon the soul which came to you untarnished, and you are writing upon the face which in your babyhood was guiltless of lines or markings of passion and vice.

Next time you fly into a rage over something, and work yourself up into such a passion that you insult and wound your closest and dearest companions, hurry to the mirror before the fit has passed, and look at your face in the glass. It will not be pleasant to look upon, for upon it will be written the story of your ungoverned temper and your cruel jibes. You would hate a person that looked like that all the time. Presently, when shame overcomes your anger, the picture will change. But a little of its traces will be left. It takes time, but every such explosion leaves its marks, and if you fall into the habit of indulging in them, presently your face will tell the world what kind of a person you are.

Next time you plunge yourself into dissipation, young man, go to the mirror when you awaken in the morning, and look at the picture it discloses. That is you. You may not recognize the portrait, you may deny it as your own, but it is you. That sodden face, those inflamed eyes, that mottled and pasty skin—they are all a part of you. They register the effects of your intemperance and loose living. Yes, you can wipe them out by abstinence and clean living, but a trace of them will remain, whatever you do, and when you repeat the performance you will deepen that trace until presently every discerning eye will read in your face the history of your abandoned and profligate life.

In one of the magazines recently appeared a clever little story. It told of a desk mirror given by her pupils to a public school teacher, wherein the teacher could look to see how pretty she was when she smiled and how ugly when she frowned. The story related that the mirror changed the teacher from a crabbed and cross one to one that smiled herself into the affections of her pupils.

There is a good deal in that story. The mirror, after a fashion, will let you see yourself as others see you. They do not make mirrors that will flatter, even though they do flatter you in photographs. The photographer may skillfully mark out the lines and creases that tell the story of your ill temper or your intemperance, but the mirror will do you no such friendly service. It will tell you the truth, and the truth is what you need.

Patronize your mirror a little more. Take a little more notice of the story of your life that you are daily writing upon the face that mirror shows you. If you are sour and crabbed or greedy, dissipated and self-indulgent, don't take the world into the secret of it by painting the news on your face. You can keep the truth to yourself by refusing to give in to your passions or your appetites, and if you do this, the world will never know your secret. Better than that, by building up firmness of character you will crowd out those passions and appetites, and by and by there will be no secret to keep.

Keep in touch with your mirror.

THE PRESIDENTIAL SITUATION.

In Minnesota the primary election light still obscures the larger contest for the presidency, but in the nation at large an apathy most baffling to the political workers is slowly wearing off, and there is a fair prospect that by the time election day dawns the American people will have exhibited something like their usual interest in national politics.

The situation today, half way between the nominations and the elections, is a great deal more favorable to Mr. Bryan's chances than many of his friends had hoped to find it. Immediately after the nominations were closed, the best that some of his champions could say was that it was "no walk-away for Taft."

Today it is very much better than that. People who had expected the contest to be one-sided have waked up and remarked: "Why, Taft has a fight on his hands!" And he has. While the Democratic candidate has been going about the country, showing the people a Bryan very different from the Bryan his opponents had described to them, Mr. Taft has been gravitating between the golf links at Virginia Hot Springs and the bass grounds of the St. Lawrence, and an emergency call from headquarters is now bringing him away from the fishing while it is yet good and setting him at the hard and weary grind of campaigning.

Back of Mr. Bryan is a reunited party, confident in the integrity of its candidate and the vitality of its principles. Democrats who have been alienated from the party for a dozen years are active in Bryan's behalf, and newspapers that had fallen into the habit of opposing him are giving him cordial support.

On the other hand the Republican party, headed by a capable candidate who is more or less submerged in the heritage of Rooseveltism coupled with his affiliations with Republican toryism, is thoroughly upon the defensive. Its platform offers few definite promises of progress, though its candidate has presumed to amend that platform in some respects, and even if it did promise something tangible, that promise would be offset by the hearty support of men like Cannon, Payne, Aldrich and others who invariably oppose progress. The blight of Cannonism, in particular, is clouding the prospects of the Republican candidate in the states upon which his success depends. However splendid his promises might be, the voters will look once at the promises and twice at his organization, behind which are men known to be bitterly opposed to the fulfillment of such promises.

If, from a Republican viewpoint, the issue was certain in July, it is doubtful today. New York, which had been confidently expected to repudiate Bryan, is doing nothing of the sort, but is looking with considerable interest if not admiration upon the New Bryan who is appearing before the voters this year. The central states, alarmed at Republican repudiation of such matters as the guaranty of bank deposits, are hearing Mr. Bryan with keen interest, studying his proposals with kindling enthusiasm, and are exhibiting grave suspicions of the good faith of Republican promises.

Much may happen before Nov. 3, but unless most of the happenings favor the Republican candidate, it will be Bryan and not Taft that will succeed to the Roosevelt heritage.

ANOTHER WISE PEASE.

Minnesota newspaperdom has its Pease, whose position in the country newspaper field as a sayer of bright and cutting and often wise things is unassailably eminent. Up to now it had been supposed that this state was unique in this respect, for it hardly seemed possible that there could be anywhere another newspaper Pease fitted to shine as a star of the first magnitude.

There is another, however, and while we are not quite willing to admit yet that he is entitled to equal eminence upon the scroll of fame with our own Pease, he is worth some attention because he has made a very important discovery. He has found that the way to run a newspaper is to print the news.

Verne S. Pease, editor and manager of the Boscobel, Ill., Dial-Enterprise, is the man. He publishes a weekly paper, and in a recent issue he declares his independence, and maps out for himself a straight and narrow path which he proposes to follow without wavering, let his heavy footsteps crunch whose corns they will.

On three occasions last month, he complains, he "held out" news items from the columns of his newspapers at the request of friends. You have to be in the newspaper business yourself to realize what that means. Really, a man in the newspaper business, in that sense, has no business to have any friends; and if he gets too conscientious about publishing all the news the chances are he won't have any: because the average man's idea of news is that it is news when it hits the other fellow, but of no possible public interest when it hits him.

But Mr. Pease of Boscobel has revolted against this method of obliging his friends. Every time he did this, he says, "a contemporary that circulates in this section, perhaps edited by an editor, has printed the news, and we have been humiliated by an apparent scoop." This "sucker business," says Mr. Pease, must cease at once. He has been played for one too many times.

"It is a question of pleasing one person by disappointing several thousands," says Pease of Boscobel; "and we claim that the majority has the right to be served. When the printing of a news item does no harm to any human on earth or in the hereafter, and the holding of it pleases only one person, it is the duty of the editor to serve the public. Anyway, we shall print wholesome news when it is fresh, hereafter, and hope none of our friends will get skittish about it."

We hope not, too. The newspaper, when it comes to publishing the news, should know no brother. It should have no friend but the public. A newspaper which has the public as its friend can afford to incur the selfish enmity of individuals. It is well that the example of the Boscobel Dial-Enterprise should thus shine forth through the nation, pointing out to its contemporaries the way in which a newspaper should go. A newspaper which fails to publish the news is as weak as a butcher shop which refuses to sell meat; or which, selling meat, gives short weight.

HEARST AND HISGEN.

It must be rather embarrassing and ofttimes humiliating to be a candidate for president on the national ticket of Mr. Hearst's party, unless that candidate happens to be Mr. Hearst himself, which is not yet the case.

We are impelled to these reflections by a reading of Mr. Hearst's New York American, wherein is reported a recent meeting in Davenport, Iowa, addressed by Mr. Hisgen and Mr. Hearst. Mr. Hisgen, it seems needful to remind the public, is the candidate of the Independence party for president, and Mr. Hearst is merely the parent, the financial backer and the motive power of the party. Though, indeed, some say he is the party itself, and his newspapers make no effort to combat this impression.

Broadly stretched across the front page of the American, introducing the report of the Davenport meeting, are screeching headlines, of course. These headlines tell what Mr. Hearst said at Davenport, tell how the people cheered him, tell what a magnificent demonstration he provoked. The introduction to the real meat of the story, the speeches, mentions Hisgen twice and Hearst twelve times.

Running over upon the second page, the story leads up to the speeches. Occupying all but a fringe around the edges, printed in large type and widely spaced, appears the speech of Mr. Hearst, wherein he appealed to labor to support the Independence party, and proclaimed himself most modestly as no leader of labor, but a "humble follower in the ranks." We must say for the boys on the American that they gave Mr. Hearst's speech a splendid display. Nobody that read the paper could overlook it, and if they did not read it their eyes must have been caught by numerous sentences standing out in bold relief because they were printed in very large and very emphatic capitals.

It is not quite so easy to find Mr. Hisgen's speech, though he is the candidate and Mr. Hearst is only the party. We spoke hitherto of a fringe surrounding the boldly displayed Hearst speech. That fringe, upon careful scrutiny, turns out to be Mr. Hisgen's speech.

Most inconspicuously introduced by a modest head, printed in small type and interspersed with reading notices about flats to rent and fresh beef for sale, it wanders meekly and subduedly about the margin of the page, dwindling off into a pale conclusion in the shadow of the large type that conveys the Hearst wisdom.

Hearst is merely the party, and Hisgen is running for president. The meeting was supposed to be in the interests of the Independence party, and presumably that meant the interests of its candidate for president. It is barely possible that other newspapers failed to give Mr. Hearst the prominence he deserved, and rather subordinated him to the candidate. Not so the American. You see, Mr. Hearst not only owns the party, but the American, too; and if a man can't have his speech properly displayed in his own newspaper, even if it does obscure that of a candidate for president, for pity's sake where is the fun in owning a newspaper?

THIS IS CITY BUSINESS.

The Herald believes the city conference committee is making a very serious mistake in two particulars. It is at present engaged in making up the city tax levy for next year, and it is not only holding its deliberations behind closed doors, but it is refusing to make public its action on any part of the levy until the whole is completed.

The act of forming the city tax levy is public business of the very highest importance, and it is of the keenest interest to every taxpayer of Duluth. If it were the private affair of the members of the conference committee, it would be different. But it is essentially public business, and it is a function in which every taxpayer should take an interest. Not only that, but every taxpayer should be kept informed, through the newspapers, of the proceedings of the committee, in order that protest may be entered, if it seems advisable, against any of the committee's acts.

If the entire proceedings are kept secret until the work is completed, it will then be too late for the taxpayers to criticise it. If the details are made public, they may be approved by the taxpayers if they are just, and disapproved if they are unjust.

The practice of doing public work in secret is certain, sooner or later, to be misconstrued and condemned by the people. It is not at all improbable that it might, in fact, subject the members of the committee to serious reproach. It is always safer to conduct all public business in plain view of the public, for the very fact of secrecy is likely to arouse suspicion. The public should be given the chance to judge of the various items as they are approved by the committee, and to protest against any items that are not deemed proper. When the work is completed and the levy made, it is too late for public action except through the council, which may lower the levies made by the committee but which may not increase the total.

Says the Philadelphia Times: "Mr. Darwin lately declared that plants have nerve systems." Having only lately started in business, the Times has apparently not heard the sad news. Mr. Darwin departed this life in 1882.

At last politics is getting a little heated.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

George M. Russell of Minneapolis was telling at the Lenox yesterday of some of the scenes he witnessed at Hibbing, when the fire threatened the extinction of that town.

Mr. Russell says that the Montenegrins, living at the southern end and most exposed part of Hibbing, were nearly frantic when they saw the approach of the flames. He says that he believes that the bed clothing and furniture of some of the families was moved from the house at least twenty times between 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Montenegrins would think that the town was about to be destroyed and would rush into their small houses and bring out everything that they had tied up. In a short time they would become reassured and would lug their household possessions back into the house again.

This was a continuous performance during the afternoon. Some of the men even lugged all their household effects a quarter of a mile from their homes before they became assured that the fire was not going to destroy the town.

Mr. Russell says that he wouldn't have given 10 cents for Hibbing's chance a week ago last Tuesday. That was the day that the town was so badly threatened.

The fire was approaching from every side and there seemed but one result—the total destruction of the city. He says that every once in a while some one would turn in an alarm of fire and the engines would dash down the street, adding excitement to the already exciting scene.

People were out in their front yards, with all their possessions piled up ready for moving, thoroughly soaking their homes with the lawn hose. Many people were panic stricken and ran through the streets of the city without intent or purpose. But Mr. Russell says the majority of the citizens were cool and brave through the most threatening part of the fire, and declares that but for the spirit shown by the citizens in fighting the fire, the little city of Hibbing would have been totally destroyed.

Rev. G. L. Morrill, pastor of the People's church of Minneapolis, was telling yesterday at the Spalding of some of his experiences at Hibbing and Chisholm.

He says that there was some kind of a sanitarium at Hibbing. The owner or the man who had charge of the building, was out in the front yard turning water on the building. Suddenly, the hose burst and the people who were standing near were thoroughly soaked. Rev. Morrill was one of the people who were sprinkled by the spray.

At Chisholm, he said it was amusing to watch the men and boys trying to get some hat or coat to fit them. They would sometimes spend an hour inspecting the clothes in an endeavor to secure some garment that was originally made for a man or boy, somewhat resembling the searcher in physical appearance.

Some of the good citizens were not successful in their search, however, and at Chisholm you may find stout men wearing a coat or shirt that was made for a thin man, or you may find a thin man floundering in the folds of a flowing garment that was made for a man of expansive proportions.

Rev. Morrill says the "Minneapolis Makes Good" slogan will be exemplified in the present range situation. He says that Minneapolis will raise over $50,000 toward the relief of the sufferers, will send in addition, clothes and provisions, and that efforts will be made to send lumber to the town of Chisholm.

He says that the citizens of Minneapolis are ready to do anything in their power to aid the fire sufferers. He predicts that a very large amount of money will be raised at the mass meeting, to be held in the auditorium at Minneapolis, tomorrow.

The plan of the minister is to tackle every man at the door, as he enters the building. Then he has other means of getting to them. He has arranged one of the best musical programs that has ever been put on in Minneapolis, has secured some good speakers and before the meeting is over the minister is confident that he will have secured a very large sum for the fire sufferers.

Rev. Morrill stated yesterday that he was flat broke. "Had to borrow money in Duluth," he stated. "I gave all of my money away to the kids. I gave one child a quarter. The child had been crying before that, but when it received the quarter it brightened up and forgot all its trouble. I bought candy and other things. When I got here I found that I had only some small change left. But I never spent money that brought better results."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

•••The partnership between Dr. John Pierson and J. F. Erickson, under the firm name of J. F. Erickson & Co., druggists, has been dissolved, Dr. Pierson retiring from the business at 1606 West Superior street.

•••The Bank of Commerce will begin business at West Superior next week. W. C. Brooks will be cashier.

•••The Norhern Pacific Elevator company, owning a large line of country elevators and storehouses in Northern Minnesota and Dakota, has decided to close a number of its house in the frost-touched section, and will receive no wheat at them this fall, the company having come to the conclusion that the wheat in the country adjacent to these houses is not worth the expense of keeping them open.

•••A light frost last night was the first noticeable frost of the season in Duluth.

•••Miss Nina Burke left this morning for Brooklyn, where she will attend school during the coming year.

•••B. W. Phillips and daughter and H. D. Moore of Allegan, Mich., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Moore.

•••The attendance at the Duluth public schools has already reached 1,800 this term, a total much larger than ever before at the beginning of the year. Supt. Denfeld believes that before the close of the year the attendance will reach fully 3,000. The night schools, which proved such a success last year, will be started the first week in November.

•••G. C. Gilfillan, chief clerk in the passenger department of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern, is said to be slated to succeed P. A. Rockwell as assistant ticket and freight agent of the St. Paul & Duluth road.

•••The Duluth Ministerial association has invited Maj. James H. Cole, the noted evangelist, to spend severral weeks in Duluth conducting union services. The meetings will be held at the Methodist and Presbyterian churches and at the opera house.

•••Miss Mann of Boston, owner of considerable valuable Duluth real estate, is in the city.

•••M. C. L. Burlingame, with his wife and son, of Milwaukee, is visiting his brother, Ed Burlingame of this city.

•••M. Lafanta, who kept a grocery store on Tenth avenue east near Bench street, has closed up business and left town.

•••In digging a trench on Bench street today, the gas and water company's men unearthed a mass of float copper weighing nearly seventy-five pounds. The mass is pure copper.

THE WEATHER.

And still no sign of rain, though the woods are ablaze and dense smoke settles down over the lake and the city. This morning it was clear, as nearly as could be made out through the smoke, and dry as a bone. The weather man says it will be fair tonight and tomorrow, without much change in temperatures. The wind will be light. Yesterday's highest temperature was 74 dgrs., and last night's lowest was 50 degs.

A year ago today it was cloudy and unsettled.

The sun rose this morning at 5:42 and sets tonight at 6:27, making 12 hours and 45 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Dry weather prevailed Friday and last night, except that showers fell over Southwestern Montana and the Western Gulf states, with heavy rainfalls at New Orleans and Galveston. Slight barometric depressions are centered over Eastern South Dakota, Southern Florida and Northern Maine, while over the St. Lawrence valley, Wyoming, Southern Idaho and Nevada the barometer is relatively high. Temperatures are moderate generally though rather warm in the Central valleys. The outlook does not favor rain of any consejuence at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours.

As near the ocean's edge as I can go;
My tardy steps its wares sometime o'erreach,
Sometimes I stay to let them overflow.

My sole employment 'tis, and scrupulous care,
To place my gains beyond the reach of tides—
Each smoother pebble, and each shell more rare,
Which ocean kindly to my hand confides.

Yet oft I think the ocean they're sailed o'er
Is deeper known upon the strand to me.

Its deeper wares cast up no fear to view;
Along the shore my heart is on its pulse,
And I converse with many a shipwrecked crew.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Real New Year.

As our business and professional life is now organized, we are presented during the circle of the months with two opportunities for starting anew. Time was when the summer vacation was a privilege confined to a very few, but now the custom has become so generally established that the large majority of laborers have at least a breathing spell, somewhere between the first of June and the advent of autumn.

As I watch during these early September days people returning from their good times here and there in God's beautiful world, I realize what an epochal month September is, and how it may be set to mark the real beginning of the working year. In January the division between the years seems purely artificial. We go on doing Jan. 1 just about the same things we were doing Dec. 31. There is no such general resumption of labor after a period of change as we witness in September. The latter month, therefore, becomes the starting point for fresh and larger endeavors in the home, school, the social circle, the office, shop or factory, the church, and most of all in one's personal life.

It is not always easy to look forward instead of backward, especially if the backward glance takes in a series of delightful experiences marked by freedom from restrictive rules, merry comradeships and the various diversions that go with holidays, and especially when the forward look sees chiefly the treadmill of duty, stretching on for at least another ten or eleven months, confinement to certain places and duties, with comparatively little in the way of freedom. Nevertheless, thousands are going back to work at this time, who in their heart of hearts are glad that the school bell or the factory gong is sounding, or that responsible duties in the household or in the community are again putting an iron hand upon them. Said a minister to me the other day: "I am glad vacation is over. I've had enough of it. A mighty good time, too; but I want to get in the harness again." I overheard a mother remark to the father of the family the other day, "I tell you what is the matter with the children—they have had a little more vacation than is good for them, and the last week or two have really been frittered away, even from the vacation point of view. How I wish the summer vacation were a little shorter, the school year a little longer and the pace a little less rapid when school keeps."

Accept, then, the fact that for healthy persons, with any spark of ambition, work is better than play for most of the year. This will give an impetus for the coming season that ought to carry one more easily over the first few days, when it is so hard for many of us to buckle on the harness and get down to routine labor. But the spirit of resignation is only a compromise after all. Far more inspiring is the thought that this is in very truth a new year, and that we are going to repeat last year's record, but to better it. Surely we have no other use for another period of time than to employ it in such a way as to be conscious that we are growing in steadiness, efficiency and in all the qualities that mark the really growing man or woman.

Perhaps we have slid into our old seats already and taken up the familiar tasks without so much as a thought that we were at the gateway of a great opportunity; but for the sake of our own souls, let us abhor the idea of becoming merely routine men and women, going along from year to year, just earning our wages and not gaining in capacity, in the vigor of our grasp and the range of our ambitions.

Even those whose work is essentially monontonous, and to some extent menial, can grow. Whose work is more tedious and unremitting than that of a mother, and yet what person in any domain of human life grows so much as does the true mother? She is possessed with the ambition to do more for her home and for her children, to be more to them and her husband and if possible to the outside world as the years go on. It all depends on one's self. You can be a growing person, whether your task is the administration of a great business, or a subordinate position in that business.

"Happy New Year!" Let us say this to one another as these golden September days come, as well as the first of January. "Happy New Year!" Let us wish that each of our acquaintances may climb the ladder a little higher this coming twelve months. Let us labor and long to make for ourselves fresh attainments in the field of character and of service.

THE PARSON.

Seeing Oxford.

Success Magazine: An Oxford student was showing two fair cousins through Christ Church college.

"That," he exclaimed, "is the picture gallery; that the library and that tower contains the famous bell 'Great Tom of Oxford.'"

Stooping quickly he picked up a stone and sent it crashing through a second-story ivy-framed window, where there immediately appeared a face, purple with rage.

"And that," added the young man, helpfully, "is the dean."

Thus it was that he came to leave one seat of learning for another.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The trouble with saving money is you have to lend it to somebody who didn't.

A man wants his wife's clothes to be becoming; she doesn't care whether they are or not; if they are stylish.

There's nothing women can argue more about than what color the baby's hair is when it hasn't any at all.

A man can never understand a woman enough to see why she cries when there isn't a reason for it and doesn't when there is.

One reason a man who understands baseball hasn't such a good opinion of himself as one who understands the tariff is the former really does.

Easier to Talk.

Newark News: There wouldn't be a bit of trouble about aerial navigation if the airship men could fly half as well as they talk.

THE SPANISH AMER-ICAN WAR VETERANS

JOHN G. McEWEN IN WHOSE HONOR THE CAMP IS NAMED. M. J. MURRY COMMANDER

T. T. SIMON SENIOR VICE COMMANDER.

JOSEPH GIBSON CHAIRMAN OF TRUSTEES

EDWARD L. BENDER ADJUTANT.

Duluth has one of the most flourishing camps of Spanish-American war veterans in the Northwest. It has been a success since its organization, about one year ago, and the members have displayed and are displaying a keen interest in all affairs pertaining to it.

Camp John G. McEwen, No. 6, is the title of the local body of veterans. The camp was mustered in Jan. 26, 1908, by S. E. DeCheverall of Camp H. B. Paull of Warsaw, Ind., who is now commander of Camp Hector Swift of Superior. The present officers of the local camp are: M. J. Murray, commander; F. L. Simon, senior vice commander; L. J. Bush, junior vice commander; W. L. Pierce, quartermaster; E. L. Brewer, adjutant; A. F. Bletan, chaplain; L. S. Larson, officer of the day; N. Bergeson, officer of the guard; C. E. French, surgeon; trustees, J. B. Gibson, A. E. Broadbridge and John A. Barron.

Meetings are held on the second and fourth Sundays at Sloan hall, corner of Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

The camp comprises members from seventeen volunteer regiments; twelve regiments of the regular army, four troops of United States cavalry, one battalion of the signal corps, and two battleships.

John G. McEwen, after whom the camp was named, was the son of William McEwen of Duluth Heights. He was a member of Company C, Fourteenth Minnesota volunteers of Duluth, and went with the regiment to Chickamauga, where he contracted typhoid fever and died in the Sternberg hospital, in October, 1898. He was the first soldier from Duluth who died. His funeral was one of the largest ever held in this city.

Following is a list of the charter members of the local camp: M. J. Murray, T. L. Simon, L. J. Bush, E. M. Kelley, W. L. Pierce, E. L. Bender, Frank Storey, L. Wetterlind, J. B. Gibson, J. A. Barron, A. E. Broadbridge, Charles E. French, N. Bergeson, F. W. Kelley, W. H. Smallwood, Jr., A. R. De Vohn, M. C. Miller, O. H. Wetterlund, A. F. Bletan, G. Wetterlund, W. M. Anderson, James Hanson and Charles C. Tearc.

THE MAGAZINES FOR SEPTEMBER

When the immigrant goes home, as the occasion looks to an observing cabin passenger, is the topic opening Harper's Magazine for September. The article, by Lewis E. MacBrayne, is entitled "The Judgment of the Steerage," and describes a shipload of home-bound Portuguese and Italians, illustrative sketches on shipboard being shown in tint. Boston, in England—the Lincolnshire Boston—provides a travel sketch by William Dean Howells under a thoroughly American heading, "The Mother of the American Athens." The adventures in Tibet of Sven Hedin, the traveler and discoverer, are continued with particular reference to the temples, some customs of their priests, and the Tibetian pilgrims. An uncommon paper describing the eyes of worms and animals, and progressing to the vision of the human eye, is by Edward A. Ayers, M. D., of the New York Post-graduate hospital. Prof. Lounsbury of Yale, still opposing purists, argues for the superlative form of the adjective in such phrases as "the worst of the two."

The first part of Gertrude Atherton's new novel, "The Gorgeous Isle" is the initial feature of the September number of The Smart Set. In this the author surpasses her well-known style and shows her power of telling a love-story in strange settings—the scene is a West Indian isle—and in high lights. As a pleasant contrast follows "The Courage of Kittie," by Lillian Bell, revealing how a society girl, full of grit and humor, cures and captures a difficult person as a father-in-law. "The Better Right," by Johnson Morton is a very strong story with an old time motif. Other well-known writers are represented in this issues such as Mrs. Luther Harris whose "Particular Parmalee" with its gentle satire on the Brahmin caste of Beacon street will be highly appreciated, and nowhere more so than in Boston. Joseph I. C. Clarke contributes a delightful poem, "Awakening," which makes one feel at home in the cool forest; John Kendrick Bangs, the well-liked humorist, has also a short poem, "Only a Boy."

• • •

The September American Magazine is fairly alive with good reading. Charles Roman leads off the number with "The Wonderland of Delirium." It is a record of the personal experiences of the author, who, within the past year, lived through eighteen days of delirium in a Washington hospital. As a psychological document it is a story of surpassing interest, and as a piece of writing it is comparable to De Quincey's "Confessions of an Opium Eater." Octave Mirbeau's character sketch of Emperor William is equally interesting. Other articles of notable interest are George Fitch's humorous description of the divorce colony at Sioux Falls, S. D., "Mr. Dooley's" remarks on Big Game Hunting, and Ray Stannard Baker's personal conclusions as to what we ought to do about the negro. In addition to these are articles on "Handicaps" by Dr. Luther H. Gulick, and "Harnessing Socialism" by Ernest Poole.

• • •

Scribner's Magazine is fortunate in having the opportunity to publish some very interesting portions of the biography of Richard Mansfield which has been prepared by his friend and secretary for many years, Paul Wilstach. The September number contains a vivid account of Mansfield's "Beginning and Apprenticeship," outlining his early days in Boston and his first serious efforts on the stage in England. There was much comedy and some tragedy in these early days. Mansfield's proud spirit got him into many difficulties with his managers, but in the end he scored a considerable success, while a very young man, as "Sir Joseph Porter" in "Pinafore." The biography is the frank expression of a very complex and forceful character. One of the heroes of modern industrial life is "The Contracting Engineer," Benjamin Brooks, himself an engineer, describes the romance and adventure, the hardships and the ingenuity of this interesting character who subdues mountains and rivers with his daring schemes. The concluding acts of Henry van Dyke's poetic drama "The House of Rimmon," rise to a height of intense feeling and dramatic force.

• • •

The throb of life pulsates in every story in Young's Magazine for September—life in the underworld, in the middle world and in the high places. "What's Bred in the Bone," the novelette, is a story of an actress whose beauty has made her a countess, but in whose daughter the coursing of lawless blood transforms the shy, lovely girl into "Circe" of the Paris boulevards. "In the Black and Tan" is frankly a brutal story of a beast in the form of a man, a grim, shuddering tale, fascinating in its very horror. Widely different in tenor is "The Satterlen Affair," a dainty, appealing story of a winsome little dancer who matches her charm against the prejudice of the exclusive family of her fiance. Swinging from tragedy to comedy are the French translations, "At the Telephone," "The Two Peaches" and "A Contract," with the delicate flavor of realism and a distinctive liveliness of touch.

• • •

The Popular Magazine for September contains eight complete short stories of a high average of quality difficult for any magazine to maintain. They are "No Wedding Bells," a deliciously humorous bit, by A. M. Chisholm; "Heinze's Yarn," a grim tale of New York life, by W. B. M. Ferguson; "The Nucleus," a race track story, by Allan Taylor; "The Expert Accountant," an exceptional story of high finance and crime; "Gone But Not Forgot," one of the "Jack Bellamy Lawbreaker" series, by B. M. Bower; "Deep Down," a thrilling tale of deep-sea diving, by Charles Francis Bourne; "A Run to Rio," a sea story, by T. Jenkins Hains; "The Under Dog," an exciting tale of the Mexican border and outlaw life, by Philip Verrill Mighels.

Of all the newer magazines for the month which have appeared on the news stands, Smith's is perhaps one of the most attractive in appearance, and certainly one of the most interesting in the variety and worthy of its contents. The photographic studies which open the number include in addition to the usual portraits of well-known actresses a series of special photographs posed especially for this magazine and to be found nowhere else. The complete novel, "A Leaf in the Wind," is sure to make an especial appeal to every woman who reads it, and the article by Annette Austin, "The Store Girl's Chance," is a strong, thoughtful essay on a subject of vital importance to women.

"The Ghost Kings," a brand-new romance from the pen of H. Rider Haggard, is making its first American appearance in Gunter's Magazine for September. Robert Aitken's serial, "A Million a Minute," makes a fitting running-mate for Mr. Haggard's story. The series, "The Sword of Esme Dacres," continues to present a dashing adventure in each issue. Besides, there is a department of humor and a big parcel of short stories, all illustrated.

• • •

The September number of People's contains, among others, a snappy, exciting baseball story, called "Score an Assist for the Lady," by Will Wroth Aulick, the baseball reporter for the New York Times; a thoroughly human and delightful department store story, by Leo Crane; a humorous story of French vaudeville life entitled "Hercules and Aphrodite," by the noted writer, Leonard Merrick; a pathetic East Side sketch, by Zoe Anderson Norris; a particularly fine Philippine story in the Bobby Graeme series, by Wolcott LeClear Beard and the usual interesting "Billings'" tale, by Edward S. Pilsworth.

• • •

The cover of September 10 Story Book shows an entrancing maiden on an isolated spot on the beach, accompanied by a sea serpent, apparently humanized lobster. The stories are all of the crisp and snappy variety, just the thing for warm-weather reading. Nelle Gravey Gilmore leads the magazine for "Old Fashioned Notions," a clever bit of work up to this author's usual high standard. "How Columbine Loved the Prince," by Louise Arnold, is a touching little story of life behind the windows. Elizabeth Bowie contributes "The Subjugation of the Boss," an excellent story containing splendid word-pictures of Western life.

Ainslee's for September has a list of short stories, a complete novel, and a serial that together make a refreshing change from the conventional type of fiction now in the reading public is so familiar and, we suspect, of which is getting a bit weary. The complete novel is called "The Veiled Mariposa" and is by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, who is a story to attract attention because of its original plot, its skilful characterization, and its charm of style and atmosphere. It is a mixture of the society and mystery story, with some strong dramatic situations. May Sinclair completes her serial, "The Immortal Moment," in this number, and the concluding chapters only confirm the impression first made that it is her best work since "The Divine Fire."

• • •

The September issue of the Metropolitan Magazine is a fiction number, and contains an unusual collection of short stories. The fact that it is labeled "Fall Fiction Number," however, does not obscure its splendid articles. Hudson Maxim, the wizard famous inventor of naval and military appliances contributes a story about "The Naval Battle of the Future," which will be of interest to every sea-power. The first of a series of articles on the much mooted Osteopathy, by E. M. Downing, takes up the history, the accomplishments and the claims of this new school. There is a very timely article on Gold, by F. W. Fitzpatrick.

• • •

For September, Wood Craft deals with the shop practice of a chair factory, the presentation of many practical kinks for the finishing room, the buying and use of abrasives, errors in color values, drives for band-saws, Chippendale's characteristic designs, laying out cutters for moldings, the selection and the application of electric motors to machine tools, etc.

• • •

The September Century's leading article in the first popular account given to the public of the Wright brothers' aeroplane, written by themselves and liberally illustrated with pictures from photographs supplied by the authors. Their experiments—which are among the most interesting and important now being carried on in the scientific world—place these men at the head of American aviators; and their article is of special interest in view of the fact that they have contracted to deliver to the United States government a machine, the trials of which are planned for late August. Of far-reaching interest and importance is the discussion of "The Future Wheat Supply of the United States," by Edward C. Parker of the University of Minnesota agricultural experimental station. Two notable biographical articles are William H. Crook's reminiscences of "Andrew Johnson in the White House" (written by Margarita Spalding Gerry), and "The Early Life of Robert Fulton," by Alice Crary Sutcliffe, great-grand-daughter of the inventor.

• • •

Each number of Popular Mechanics magazine is like a Christmas stocking—crammed full of good things from top to toe—yet the September number surpasses previous issues by the addition of twelve pages of reading matter of the same high standard of interest the magazine has been wont to maintain. For the increasing numbers interested in aeronautics, there is an account of recent flights of Zeppelin's airship, with a picture of the big machine; a new view of the wreck of the Morrell airship; an illustrated account of the Chicago balloon race; a description of gyroscope motors for airships; a picture of the Delagrange airships and account of the record-breaking eleven- mile flight, and a description of a flying machine with spiral helices.

• • •

The Popular Science Monthly for September opens with an article by Prof. Francis Ramaley of the University of Colorado, on the Botonical Gardens of Ceylon, which gives an interesting and extensively illustrated account of the garden at Peradeniya and the tropical vegetation of the island. N. H. Winchell of St. Paul, Minn., gives an account of the prehistoric aborigines of Minnesota, of whom he has made a thorough study. Prof. R. M. Wenley of the University of Michigan concludes the series of four articles on the movement towards physiological psychology, in which he traces the development of psychology into a science.

• • •

Beginning in the Housekeeper for September is the first of a remarkable series of articles under the heading, "The Truth About the Public Schools." President Roosevelt has personally indorsed the series by an unsigned statement, as has also the United States commissioner of education. Nora Archibald Smith, the best known kindergartener, contributes the first article. Startling developments are promised for the succeeding months. The magazine is also replete with other interesting features.

• • •

Gen. Kuropatkin's Memoirs of the Russo-Japanese War, which were suppressed by the Russian authorities, furbish the leading article in the September McClure's. Gen. Kuropatkin makes striking charges concerning the causes of the war, and remarkable revelations concerning the great policies of the Russian empire. The fiction in the number is unusually diversified and attractive: Henry Graham's story of Charlotte Corday has a fine, romantic appeal; Gertrude Hall's "The House of Music" is a love story of unusual quality and insight; Elmore Elliott Peake contributes "Jungle Blood," a strong and notable tale of negro life; Stella Wynne Herron a lively comedy of child life, called "The Americanizing of Andre Francois, Fils," and Perceval Gibbon plots another African tale, "The Buried Anchor"—a story of a peculiar mystery on a lonely, far-off coast.

• • •

"The most beautiful queen on any throne," this is what Kellogg Durland calls the empress of Russia, in his great series of articles, entitled "The Romance of an Empress," which begins in the Woman's Home Companion for September. Mr. Durland, who is the author of "The Red Reign," spent a year in Russia, getting together all the facts of the romantic and sad life of the most powerful queen in the world. In this issue Irving Bacheller begins a new series of Cricket Tales, which bids fair to be even more popular than was his famous "Eben Holden." Other stories are: "The Golden Wedding," by Alice Brown; "The Heretic," by Juliet Wilbor Tompkins; "The Girl in the Mirror," by Hulbert Footner; "Dare You to Love Me!" by Annie Hamilton Donnell, and "The Minister's Barrels," by Hettie Bosly Goldrick.

In the September number of Success Magazine, John L. Mathews describes "The Reign of Lawlessness in Kentucky." Walter E. Weyl contributes an article, 'Making the Desert Blossom, and Albert White Vorse discusses our progress in aeronautics in an article entitled "At the Threshold of Flight." The subject of Orison Swett Marden's editorial is, "Why Take Life So Seriously, Anyway?" Margaret H. H. Morse tells how a young couple conquered their difficulties in an article entitled, "The Betty-Bob Housekeeping Co."

The picturesque features of the great West are well symbolized in the general make-up of the picture of "The Young Ranchman," which decorates the front cover of the September American Boy, and the contents of the magazine will prove delightful reading. The serials by Houston, Tomlinson and Optic, with Mr. Weir's vivid experiences "Under the Great White Canvas," are continued. There are many fine short stories in this issue.

• • •

The special features of the September number of the Review of Reviews are a series of articles on the platforms and candidates of the minor parties active in the presidential campaign, including "The Socialist Party in the Present Campaign," by Robert Hunter; "The Prohibitionists and Their Cause," by President Samuel Dickie of Albion college; "Why I Am Still a Populist," by Thomas E. Watson, candidate of the Populist party for the presidency; and "The Mission of the Independence Party," by John Temple Graves, Independence candidate for vice president; an exhaustive and up-to-date survey of recent progress in aeronautics, entitled "Real Navigation of the Air," by George H. Guy; "The Warfare Against Tuberculosis," by O. F. Lewis; "Modern Curative Methods With Tuberculosis," by Edwin L. Sabin.

Lippincott's Magazine "pursues the even tenor of its way" regardless of summer's heat or financial panic, each successive number being just as big, just as carefully edited, just as wholly satisfying. The September issue has for its leading feature a stirring detective novel by Nevil Monroe Hopkins—"The Investigation at Holman Square." It is published complete, of course, as is everything in Lippincott's. Among the shorter stories is "The Great God News." the tale of a war correspondent by a war correspondent—Will Levington Comfort. "Memories," by Fannie Heaslip Lea, is a delightful love story with an unexpected denouement. "The Child of a Widow," by Lucy Copinger; "Deported," by H. C. Stickney, and "The Disaffection of Penelope," by Laura Simmons, are also uncommonly good stories.

• • •

Chief among the artistic features of Uncle Remus'—The Home Magazine for September is the cover design, which is a reproduction from a remarkable photograph of Joel Chandler Harris—taken about a year before his death—and showing the famous author of the "Uncle Remus" stories standing in the middle of the big road on the Snap-Bean farm, the whimsical name he gave to his beautiful suburban home in Atlanta, Ga. About this photograph Don Marquis has written a short story of Mr. Harris's love for flowers, vines and trees, with all of whom the farmer of Snap-Bean farm seemed to have an intimate acquaintanceship not given to many mortals.

The Forum for September opens with a suggestive survey, by Henry Litchfield West, of the various issues of the presidential campaign which may produce sudden and unforeseen consequences. Simon Sterne, in his customary review of foreign affairs devotes special attention to the growing demand for constitutional government in countries which until recently have been thoroughly despotism, and suggesting that Egypt and India may soon catch the prevailing contagion of political unrest.

The September number of The North American Review opens with an extremely able article by Henry Wade Rogers, dean of the law department of Yale university, on "The New Federalism" and its dangers. Col. Charles W. Larned, U. S. A., gives startling proof of "The Inefficiency of the Public Schools." Prof. Archibald Henderson of the University of North Carolina, pays a tribute of appreciation to "George Meredith." William S. Rossiter presents "A Common-Sense View of the Immigration Problem." Henry White discusses "The Labor Unions and the Presidential Campaign."

The leading place in The Engineering Magazine for September is given to a discussion of the use and conservation of water power resources by H. von Schon. In this article, introductory to a series in which Mr. von Schon will discuss in all its bearings this most important element in the conservation and economic use of the natural resources of the United States, is presented a definite plan for federal, state and corporate co-operation. Illustrated features include Percival Robert Moses' discussion of the construction and use of storage batteries, to be concluded next month; A. Selwyn-Brown's review of modern developments in the metallurgy of lead and zinc; and Werner Boecklin's description of the methods of handling the immense amount of coal used annually in New York city.

The September Atlantic illustrates strikingly the wide range of interest which this magazine covers. This issue opens with a brilliant exposition of the needs and problems of present day American life under the title "Social Reconstruction Today," by John Martin. Two others papers of unusual significance treat distinctly American problems, "The Heart of the United States," by James P. Munroe, describes and estimates the throbbing life of the Middle West, and R. S. Spears in "The Moods of the Mississippi," writes a paper of extraordinary interest on this greatest of American water-ways. Charles A. Conant contributes a timely article upon "The Regulation of the Stock Exchange," and Ray Morris's paper, "Enforced Railroad Competition," will be of special interest to every business man and manufacturer.

• • •

Among the leading articles in the September number of the Technical World Magazine are: "Mexico Puts Vast Falls to Work," by Paul Adams; "The Hold-up Across the Counter," by H. D. Jones; "Tapping the Gunnison Canyon," by Rene Bache; "How the Blood Defends the Body," by E. F. Arnold, B. S., M. D.; "Sea will Succor a Famished World," by John L. Cowan; "All About Shotguns," by Emmett Campbell Hall; "A Country of Natural Bridges," by H. L. A. Culmer.

• • •

The Keramic Studio for September announces that hereafter with it will be issued (this year about Sept. 15), the first number of a magazine entitled "Palatte and Brush," with articles by C. C. Curran, Rhoda Holmes Nichols, Emil Carlsen, C. J. Pike, Florence D. Gotthold, W. J. Baer and Mary Averill In future numbers will be specials by Irving R. Wiles, Ben Foster, Will H. Drake, Childe Hassam, Colin Campbell and others. In the current issue the colored design of "Yellow Rose Spray," by Sara Wood Spafford, is very dainty and will appeal to a great many art students. The magazine as usual, is not lacking in new designs, and will be earnestly sought after by the china decorators, who are in quest of something new and decorative. The butterfly and white lily border designs for plates are very neat, as are also the comb and brush tray and puff box and cover.

• • •

The special articles in the New Broadway Magazine for September are: "Grover Cleveland," by Herbert N. Casson; "The Campaign Contribution," by Alfred Henry Lewis; "Sight Magic and Sound Magic in the Wireless Age," by Robert Sloss; "Making an American Aristocrat," by William Allen Johnson; "Country Clubs and Club Life," by John Gilmer Speed; "A Painter of Cheerful Yesterday," by Page Dunbar, "Our Helpless Coasts," by Rupert Hughes; "The Celluloid Drama," by Harris Merton Lyon.

• • •

No primitive race now existing is more interesting to the ethnologist or to the average civilized man than are the Esquimaux of the Arctic zone. In the current issue of Leslie's Weekly there appears a readable article, by J. L. Harbour, on the traits and customs of these peculiar people. A page of very excellent illustrations increases the attraction of the story. Among the noteworthy pictorial features of the number are Victor Perard's cover drawing representing a tigers' feast at the "Zoo," pictures of strange scenes and big game that President Roosevelt will find in Africa, aerial views of the four sides of Madison Square, New York; photos of Asbury park's great baby parade and of New York's welcome to the heroes of the Olympic games, glimpses of the great flood in Georgia, theatrical and sport pictures, and the prize contests.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Duluth Central high school opened for the term of 1908-9 last Tuesday. The enrollment for this year is much larger than any previous one, reaching about 840 pupils. Most of the last year's pupils are back to the "old grind," and especially those of the senior class, which undoubtedly will be the largest class ever graduated.

The school welcomes back most of the old teachers and a few new ones. Mr. Robertson takes the chemistry classes, instead of Mr. Ferguson, who is now the principal of the high school at Travers City, Mich. Mr. Gieger is the new manual training teacher, and has as his assistant Mr. Bullock. Miss Carson and Miss Smith have been assigned the pleasure of drilling the freshies in algebra. Miss Salter has returned after a year's leave of absence, in which she toured Europe.

A cloud has passed over the brilliant prospects which had been entertained last year for a fine debating team, because Mr. Lambert, the teacher of expression, who was the back-bone of the club, has resigned. As yet, no successor has been chosen and this leaves the club in a very crippled condition. Indeed, it is doubtful if there will be a debating team to represent the school in the league this year.

• • •

A great many of the "grads" took advantage of the opportunity of visiting the school on the opening day and a reunion was held in the hall. The class of '08 was there in force, and a few of former classmen, who are now attending college. They seemed to enjoy visiting the old haunts and again take part in the chapel exercises.

• • •

Occupying a conspicuous place in the hall near Mr. Smith's office is the statue of Nike, the headless goddess of victory, which the class of '08 gave to the school, as a parting remembrance. It is a full size reproduction of the old Greek masterpiece and is a great addition to the collection of the school.

• • •

Miss Sjosellus, who attended school here a few years ago, but now is studying music in Chicago, entertained the school by singing in chapel Friday morning. The piece which she so delightfully rendered was one entitled "A Song," set to the intermezzo from "Cavaleria Rusticanna."

• • •

The dramatic literature class held a business session on Friday afternoon. About sixteen members were present, most of them being of the class of '08. Leo Schmeld presided and after the minutes were read by Mildred Washburn, they proceeded to elect officers for the coming year. The new teacher of expression will be president ex-officio. Robert Ely was elected vice president by unanimous vote. A ballot was taken for the secretaryship and Myrna Pressnell was declared the victor. William Ecklund was elected treasurer by a large majority, and Harvard Rockwell was chosen sergeant-at-arms, by a unanimous vote.

• • •

Miss Wells, Miss McEwen and Miss Woodbridge returned Wednesday from a trip through Europe, which they made together. They say they had a delightful time.

• • •

Everything around the school is bustling and full of life, and everything seems to indicate that this will be the most successful year the D. C. H. S. has passed through. Interest is being shown in all the lines of high school activities and especially so in football. The men are working hard and if the under classmen show keen interest and get out and work, a fine team is assured. If it does not bring down the championship, it will certainly do the D. C. H. S. credit.

• • •

On account of the failure of the man that was to take charge of the lunch room to appear, the students have been forced to bring their lunches or go hungry. At first some of the boys and girls used to cross the street and buy a lunch, but Mr. Smith stopped this Friday and there were a great many empty stomach. However, they won't suffer long. Mr. Smith is hopeful that the lunch room will be open on Monday.

DETROIT CONFERENCE IS MEETING AT CALUMET.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Detroit annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church is being held in this city. Bishop J. W. Hamilton, D. D., of Boston, formerly of San Francisco, is presiding. Rev. James Pascoe is the district superintendent.

The conference commenced Wednesday evening and will continue its sessions until Monday evening.

Fully 400 ministers and their families are being entertained in private homes and at the hotels throughout the city. The full church choir will sing special music each evening.

The program for Saturday, Sunday and Monday follows: Saturday, morning, devotions, business session; afternoon, conference excursion to stamp mills and smelter of Calumet & Hecla Mining company; evening, men's chorus anniversary of home missionary and church extension society; address by Rev. Bennett; afternoon, memorial service, ordination service; evening, men's chorus, address by Rev. Homer Stuntz, D. D., of New York, Freedman's aid, Rev. M. C. P. Mason of Cincinnati, tenor solo by Harry King. Monday morning, devotions, business session; afternoon, Rev. C. H. Rutledge's report of anti-saloon work.

CHOLERA IS RAGING AT RUSSIAN CAPITAL.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 11.—This city has jumped to first place among the cholera-infested centers in Russia. The disease has gained a foothold in all quarters of the city. There were sixteen new cases and three deaths up to noon today, a total of sixty-eight for three days. The municipality has placed $21,500 at the disposal of the sanitary commission with which to fight the disease.

Millions of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar have been sold without any person ever having experienced any other than beneficial results from its use for coughs, colds and lung trouble. This is because the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package contains no opiates or other harmful drugs. Guard your health by refusing any but the genuine. Sold by all druggists.

MARRIED WOMEN

Every woman covets a shapely figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this liniment prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend makes the danger of child-birth less, and carries her safely through this critical period. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this remedy. "WILL you buy a tag from me?" inquired the pretty girl

"You bet I will," said the susceptible young man, and he gasped inwardly as he gazed into her wonderful eyes.

"Thank you so much," said the pretty girl and she allowed her lovely eyelids to droop prettily over the tender softness of her eyes of blue, or were they brown?

The susceptible young man brought out a half dollar and without looking at it or the tag which he was offered in exchange, received his first red cross charity tag. The pretty girl gave him one glance of gracious thanks and then dropped her eyes again. She picked them up directly and the young man was still there.

He was still gazing at her. "There are plenty more tags," said the pretty girl.

"I'd like some more," said the young man ardently.

The pretty girl held out a tag and dropped her eyes. Without removing his eyes from the wonderful sweep of eye lashes along her cheeks the young man handed her a quarter and sighed gustily.

"Thank you," said the pretty girl and over her tender mouth there hovered the merest suggestion of a smile.

Still the young man did not move. And still the pretty girl dangled a bunch of tags before his half-blinded eyes.

"I'd like some more," said the young man.

"We ordered 50,000," said the pretty girl, "so I guess we can accommodate you," and she let the glorious light of her blue, or were they brown, eyes rest upon him for a moment Then she glanced down. Every time she did that the young man thought he never could get away.

He reached into his pocket and handed out the first thing that came to his touch. His breath was now coming in sighs. He didn't have a single ordinary comfortable breath to sandwich in between the ecstacy of his sighs.

He took the tag and put it in his coat pocket and moved away a step and a half. Something called him back. Was it fate or was it merely his burning sympathy for the sick and suffering.

"I'd like another," said the susceptible young man. It is too bad there isn't a lot of brilliant repartee to recount, but there wasn't any. The pretty girl knew she didn't have to talk in order to sell tags. Hadn't she practiced the effect of beautiful eyelids, darkly fringed, drooping over the eyes of blue or were they brown? for more than a week. Why talk? Why indeed!

The pretty girl glanced down shyly and handed out another tag. Without taking his hungry eyes from her flower-like face, the young man again handed out the first coin that touched his fingers. He gazed at her and stuffed the newly acquired tag into his pocket.

"Oh," said the pretty girl, and the icicles in her voice made the susceptible young man feel that he never should get warm again, "we don't take anything but money for the tags."

The susceptible young man tore his eyes away and glanced at what she was gingerly holding out to him on the tip of one soft pink finger. It was brass and it said "Good for one beer."

"Oh," said the young man in an agony of apprehension. To think that she should even know what beer was! "Oh," said the young man again. And "Oh," he said a third time.

The eyelids of the young woman did not droop entrancingly over her eyes. She gazed straight at him and even then he couldn't discover whether they were blue or brown. "Oh," he said again with perfect savoir faire and brilliant attention, and faded into the midst of the surrounding crowd.

Thus has society been beguiling itself during the day and the past week has been devoted to preparing for the great Red Cross Charity day. Little else has been talked of or planned for during the week and together with the aid, which Duluth women have sent to the range fire sufferers, society functions have been just slightly neglected.

Many in Duluth's society were interested in the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Powell of Bisbee, Ariz., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jennie Jewell Powell to Roger T. Pelton. The wedding will take place early in December. Mr. and Mrs. Powell and Miss Powell are well known here, where they formerly lived.

Her skill was acquired in running her own motor in the Isle of Wight.

Fashionable Jewelry.

Persians journey from their own country and settle away from home to give themselves up to the making of some of the jewelry so much admired at present. It is mostly mounted in filigree gold with rough stones, such as topaz, turquoise, lapis, lazuli, for necklets and bracelets, no two being alike. Some of the German workers are very clever in adopting their designs to queerly shaped stones. The mode is first to make a wax model, then a plaster model, and then a good casting, which the artist works into his design. Animals are cleverly modeled in this way—tigers, frogs, bulls, etc. The Italian silversmith produces delightful things. French jewelers are famous for their stone setting.

the EVENING STORY

THE WRONG ONE

By A. B. Foote.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

He was a big, long-limbed fellow, with a mop of brown hair, a stubborn chin and a limp. (He was captain of a football team.) Of course he was possessed of eyes, nose and mouth like any other individual, but as they were decidedly commonplace, it is not worth while to discuss them.

He walked slowly down the road, his hands in his pockets and his eyes bent on the ground.

Bert was cogitating.

His thoughts ran something like this:

"By Jove! She's a darling. Just the kind of plump, rosy sweetness that a fellow loves to get hold of and squeeze. Say, but I didn't she look a peach last night in that filmy, white frock, and her dear, little Gibson ties bobbing in and out as she tripped along." (Bert was getting poetical.) "And her golden hair all curley and blowsy. And then her eyes, My, but she's a daisy. I'm 17," here Bert drew himself up and looked defiantly around as if to defend himself against any denial of the unuttered statement, "I'm 17, and know a lot about girls, but she's the first one who ever impressed me. I told her so last night, and she seemed pleased. Other girls flirt and giggle and act silly, but she just looks up at me with those big, blue eyes, so serious and earnest. She can smile, though, and when she does—" Bert's feelings at this point could only be properly expressed by a low, ecstatic whistle. "And then football and fishing, and other things a fellow's interested in. I know she likes me." He threw back his broad shoulders complacently. "It's her mother who makes the trouble. She's always around. Not that I dislike her. Oh, no. She's not so bad in a way. Jolly enough, and all that. But somehow she seems to know just what a fellow's up to, when eyes go right through you and makes you feel so small and deuced uncomfortable. Hello, I'll bet that's sweetness," he stopped and gazed intently down the long, dusty road.

About an eighth of a mile distant, stood a large, white house, and standing directly in front of it could be discerned a small female figure. As the sun caught her hair it flashed into gold.

"It is as sure as guns," ejaculated Bert, aloud. He hurried along, limping painfully.

The figure crossed the road, climbed the stone wall on the other side, and disappeared among the bushes that formed a hedge.

"She's going across the bridge and up on the montains," conjectured Bert. "Hello," he called, shouting at the top of his lungs.

After a moment, "Hello," came faintly back on the air.

Bert made up his mind.

"I won't go too near the house," he decided. "Her mother might see me and suspect. I'll go over here and wade the brook. It'll be hard work climbing that hill with this blasted leg," glancing ruefully at the crippled member, "but then, think of a whole morning on the mountain, alone with her. Ah," and Bert caught his breath ecstatically, at the bliss in store for him.

He got over the stone wall as best he could, thinking regretfully of the day when he could have vaulted it with one leap of his long legs. Making his way through the bushes, he paused by the side of the brook. The stream was not deep, but wide and turbulent. His eyes traveled eagerly up the steep ascent on the other side, but trees and bushes were all that met his keen scrutiny.

"Hello-o-o-o," he shouted, prolonging the cry into the familiar mountain call.

"Hello-o-o," came back, faint and clear.

"She's up there." Bert sat down by the brook and took off his shoes and socks, turned up the bottom of his trousers' legs, and began the task of crossing. It was no easy job, with his lame knee. There were many stones, some of them jagged and he was obliged to be very careful, as a misstep might result seriously. Every now and then he paused to call to his hidden charmer. When the answer came, as it always did, he would push forward with renewed energy.

At last, perspiring and with aching limb, he arrived at the opposite bank.

"By Jove, that was a corker," he exclaimed, as he sank thankfully down on the green sward.

Drying his feet on his handkerchief, he put on his shoes and socks, making a wry face, as he struggled with his lame foot. Then he arose, pulled down his turned-up trousers' legs, and pushed his way laboriously through the thick hedge. As he emerged on the other side he gave a final "Hello."

"Hello-o-o," came floating down on the summer air.

He climbed a few paces and turned his eyes eagerly upward.

There, in full view, on a moss covered stone, sat a solitary female figure, holding an umbrella over her head.

She waved her hand and smiled. "Hello-o-o," she called.

Bert stood stock still and stared. "By Jove," he gasped, "Sold."

It was his divinity's mother.

STRANGE MANIA FOR DANCING

Remarkable Affliction That Has Raged Intermittently for Centuries.

In the year 1374 there arose in Belgium a sect of dancers, who paraded the streets, entered houses and churches half naked, crowned in garlands, and, dancing and singing, uttering unknown names, falling senseless on the ground and exhibiting other marks of demoniacal agitation, says the Detroit News-Tribune.

Not any particular class of people were affected; every section of the communities, all grades of people in several nations fell victims. The most sober-minded and the least imaginative individuals, stolid peasants, educated men of the professions of the day, hard-headed tradesmen—those would watch with scorn the hordes of dancers in the streets, but it was a scorn that quickly changed to intimate interest, for the contagion seemed to be irresistible, and soon they were in the rout, leaping high, shouting unintelligible jargon, whirling about, vaulting chairs and tables in the houses, and finally falling exhausted. From village to town, from town to village, went the dancers. Children left their parents, wives deserted their husbands and husbands their wives, soldiers were carried away from the ranks, and members of officialdom from their duties, all dancing through the country in the grip of this terrible plague.

Nobody knew why it broke out, and nobody knew why it continued, nor exactly how to stop it. In the minds of the people it was put down to demoniacal possession, and the means taken to subdue the mania consisted in the solemn exorcism of the devil. In parts of Germany the magistrates decided to encourage the plague to wear itself out, and they paid musicians to play for the afflicted, and men to foot it with them till they all collapsed.

Some towns were seized with the mania more than once. It took hold of Strassburg again in 1418. By this time it had come to be believed that St. Vitus should be considered in the process of curing the dancers, and soon the latter were taken to the chapel of St. Vitus, where in solemn procession they were led around the altar. Other means adopted were drenching sufferers with cold water, thrashing them with sticks, and reading to them chapters from the Gospel of St. John. And all the time the dancing mania made progress. The invocations of St. Vitus increased vastly in number.

Why St. Vitus? Vitus was the patron saint of Bohemia. It was he, who, in the persecution of Diocletian, nearly 1,100 years previously, was martyred. He was in prison, and his father, looking into his cell through a chink in the door, saw his son dancing with angels. When Vitus came to pay the penalty of his Christian belief by martyrdom, he prayed that the people who might in the future be attacked by the dancing madness should, on invoking his name, be cured. The reply, we are gravely told, came straight from heaven: "St. Vitus, thy prayer is answered." Thus the legend explaining why it was to the shrines of St. Vitus that the afflicted came for cure.

It was Paracelsus who arrived near the truth of the matter. He diagnosed the disease as coming from several causes, in which the imagination and animal desire were features, and his treatment was most efficacious. He had his patients put on low diet and in solitary confinement. Misery and pain arising from the treatment, from corporal chastisement, and immersion in cold water, did what invocations and offerings of the saints had failed to do. By the seventeenth century it had died out completely in the countries so far referred to.

Nevertheless, the dancing devil was not idle elsewhere. He played dreadful pranks in Italy and Spain. In Italy the mania was regarded as a disease due to the bite of a spider, the tarantula. Persons nipped by the tarantula fell into a dreadful state of melancholy, conceived a passion for the set, a strange liking for one certain color. Nothing but music could arouse the victim. If the lethargy were allowed to continue the individual affected pined away with anxious misery, unsatisfied desire. But on hearing the tarantula music they leaped for joy and danced and danced until nature could hold out no longer and complete exhaustion put an end to the proceedings. Music was provided by the authorities, and the strains echo down to our own time, going to the making o the Italian dance, which is known as the tarantelle.

Tarantism held sway in Spain and Italy, and what with that and the disease in France, Germany and the low countries, there was justification for the statement that Europe was dancing mad, and that during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries nothing but one long quadrille prevailed in Italy. Tarantism was a sad fact, but the question of its origin is disputed, reliance on the story o the spider bites being anything but absolute. Certain persons bitten in this age by the tarantula do not feel the necessity of indulging in saltatory antics of the kind described.

We have not got rid of the dancing mania even yet. In the eighteenth century the French convulsionaries danced with fury. "They threw themselves into the most violent contortions of the body, rolled about the ground, imitated birds, beasts and fishes, and at last went off in a swoon." They stood on their heads—or tried to—and the ladies covered their feet with sacks. This sort of thing lasted for some sixty years.

Then there have been the jumpers, the American Shakers, and quite recently the Pentecostal dancers. In 1787 some 300 young women working in a Lancashire cotton factory were seized with convulsions, all declaring somebody had put a mouse down their necks, which had been the case as regards only one of them. And in Ohio, within the last two or three decades, an outbreak of dancing mania had to be put down by force.

Probably the dancing madness was an expression of disordered nerves. It followed on the Black Death of the fourteenth century. In Europe it carried off myriads of people and left the nations with their nerves out of order.

GIRLS WHO WORK

Girls who work for their living are especially exposed to the dangers of organic feminine disorders. Standing all day, or sitting in cramped positions; walking to and from their places of employment in bad weather all tend to break down their delicate feminine organism.

No class of women are in need of greater assistance, and thousands of letters like the following demonstrate the fact that restores the feminine system to a strong, healthy, normal condition.

Miss Abby F. Barrows, of Nelsonville, Ohio, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was very sick, had dull headaches, pain in my back, and a feminine weakness. I had been to several doctors and they did me no good. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong, and I can do most any kind of work. I am in better health than I ever was, and it is all due to your medicine."

Miss Lillian Ross, of 530 E. 84th St., New York, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had a female trouble, nervous headaches, and was tired all the time, and could not sleep. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me feel so much better that I hope every woman who suffers as I did will try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for feminine ills, and has positively cured thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice.

Class In Manners.

Youth's Companion: The father of Alexander H. Stephens, the vice president of the confederate states, was an old field" teacher, and one of his schoolroom exercises, which the pupils called "learning manners," evidently made a deep impression on little Alexander, writes Louis Pendleton in his biography of the statesman. The plan was no less admirable than quaint.

It is related that about once a month on a Friday afternoon, after the spelling classes had got through their tasks, the boys and girls were directed to take seats in rows facing each other. Then the boy at the head of his row would rise and walk toward the center of the room and the girl at the head of her row would do likewise.

As they approached, the boy would bow and the girl drop a courtesy, the established feminine salutation of those days, and they would pass on.

At other times they were taught to stop and exchange verbal salutations and the usual formulas of polite inquiry.

These exercises were varied by meetings in an imaginary parlor, the entrance, introduction and reception of visitors, with practice in "commonplace chat."

Then came the ceremony of introductions. The parties in this case would walk from opposite sides of the room in pairs, and upon meeting, after salutations of the two agreed upon, would begin making known to each other the friends accompanying them, the boy saying, "Allow me, Miss Mary, to present to you my friend, Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith, Miss Jones." After Miss Mary had spoken to Mr. Smith, she would in turn, introduce her friend.

These exercises, trivial as the description may seem, the vice president of the confederacy says, "were of great use to raw country boys and girls, removing their awkwardness and consequent shyness and the painful sense of being at a disadvantage or the dread of appearing ridiculous."

BIG GOOSEBERRY PIES.

London Standard.—Yesterday was the anniversary of the time—honored Gooseberry fair at Tollesbury, and a feature of the survival has always been the baking of huge gooseberry pies. The object was to give a welcome home to fathers or brothers who have been away on racing or pleasure yachts or fishing, and each family used to prepare a huge pie for its homecoming seafarers in specially large dishes.

There have been Tollesbury pies that held as much as a peck or half a peck of fruit, and tradition even relates that one pie was so large that the local baker had to remove one or two bricks to get it into his oven.

FIRES STARTED BY MOTHS.

Strand Magazine: Moths and flames are universally connected, yet few people suspect that danger could arise therefrom. The insects are such frail structure that generally they get destroyed before it is possible for them to inflict injury, and it is hardly credible that the wings would ignite and retain the flame long enough to enable the moth to fly to its surroundings.

That, however, has occurred. The moth was a very large one and its wings must have been very dry, so that when it floundered through the flame it set fire to one wing and darted on to a curtain near by, which at once flared up. It is possible that many summer evening fires in the country could be attributed to a source of this kind. It is notorious that mysterious fires often arise at sunset in the hot months.

WHY PAY FOR INARTISTIC DECORATING WHEN ARTISTIC WORK COSTS NO MORE?

BECAUSE taste, refinement and art are the principals upon which we base our work—and because pure, unadulterated materials are our hobby, is no reason that our prices are higher than less competent decorators charge.

It might really surprise many of our friends to know that we can decorate a room at a cost of $4.00 or $5.00 and do a neat, artistic job, which measures far beyond the ordinary in its finished appearance.

OLD CAMPAIGN ORATORS

Great Men of the Past Whose Fame for Oratorical Power Lasts.

No chapter in our political annals is richer in human interest than the one which has to do with the men whose gift of eloquence and persuading speech has been a deciding influence in more than one presidential canvass.

The names of Henry Clay and Daniel Webster head the roster of the great campaign orators of the past, says the Pittsburg Dispatch.

Clay was, perhaps, a more popular orator than Webster. His was a voice of great compass, power and melody, and with it at will he moved even a hostile assemblage to smiles and tears and enthusiasm. Clay's skill in electioneering, however, was largely due to his familiarity with the manners and customs of farmers, peasants and laborers. When he was first a candidate for the Kentucky legislature he gained the support of a company of riflemen by successfully shooting at a mark. Clay's opponents often ascertained to their cost that he could be ironical and sarcastic, but he usually resorted to satire in self-defense.

Webster's triumphs on the stump were of a different but no less decisive order. When he was to speak no hall was big enough to contain those who desired to hear him, and what with his pre-eminent power of speech, his singular charm of presence and his dignity of carriage and demeanor, he never failed to move his auditors. The impression has been current that Webster's great speeches were unstudied, but as a matter of fact he was always a laborious student, and in the early part of his career he expended a great deal of time in the preparation of his public addresses.

After Clay and Webster the most popular stump orator of the first half of the last century was Thomas Corwin, of Ohio. A born humorist, Corwin, at every stage of his long career, made a business of searching out the focularities of current issues and using them to lighten the seriousness of statesmanship. But humor was not his only gift. He possessed also a poetic sense, which he had cultivated by a diligent study of the best English poets, and he knew how to temper that sense so that it would appeal to the throng. Thus it was that his speeches, based on solid political truth, were also illustrated by wit, by anecdote and by imaginery rich, yet simple, such as the layman could understand. Corwin was unexcelled as a stump orator while he lived, and his superior has not appeared since his death. The people of Ohio were at his feet, and there was no office in their gift that they did not bestow upon him.

Another famous campaign orator of sixty years ago was Sergeant S. Prentiss, a native of Maine, who, removing at an early age to Mississippi, there rose, in a space of time extraodinarily brief, to a master place at the bar. Prentiss as an orator was inferior to Webster and Clay in vigor and strength, but he was the equal of any man of his time in the ready eloquence which captivates a popular assembly. He was never at a loss for an epigram or a retort, and his impromptu speeches were his best efforts.

The campaign efforts of John Van Buren and of James W. Nye belong to a somewhat later period in our political history. "Van Buren," said Gen. Thomas L. James not long ago, "was the finest stump speaker brought forward by the Free Soil movement. Unlike his father, Martin Van Buren, Prince John was of splendid proportions. Like Conkling, he was a man whom it did the eye good to look upon when he appeared in public; but unlike Conkling, he attracted by a delightful mannerism, which is illustrated nowadays by the sobriquet of prince, first applied to him by Thurlow Weed, by which he was always afterward known. He did not dislike to be called Prince John. He had achieved a fine reputation as a lawyer before he took a very active part in politics, and had he been possessed of that ambition that mastered his father, he might have gained as many successes as his father won. Prince John however, was a hail-fellow-well-met, yet always dignified, fond of the good things of life, possessed of wonderful animal spirit, a keen sense of humor with repugnance for some of the responsibilities and trials of office holding. The young men of the present generation can hardly realize the extent of his popularity now how great was his fame. The older generation alone remember him, and it does seems strange that a man who had such extraordinary gifts and such widespread popularity should now be almost forgotten.

Nye was also a man of infinite jest, but his humor was seasoned with shrewd common sense, and his gift for telling illustrations never failed him. All of his speeches were full of droll illustrations; his wit was caustic, yet delightful, and word that he was to speak always drew a crowd. His brilliant intellect was obscured, however, and he died utterly unconscious of what he was or what his victories had been.

The greatest campaign orators of the decade preceding the Civil war were William H. Seward, Stephen A. Douglas and Abraham Lincoln. Seward was never a very popular stump speaker, but he was always an impressive one, especially effective in his appeal to intellectual audiences. Douglas, on the other hand, was at his best when delivering an impromptu speech before a mixed assemblage. He was a small man like Seward, and Benton once said of him that he could never be president because his coattails came too near the ground; yet no orator of his time seemed of such imposing stature as Douglas did when in the fury and passion of one of his stump addresses. Blaine asserted that he was in some respects, perhaps in most, the ablest campaigner the Democratic party has produced. Certain it is that none surpassed this "little giant" in personal influence over the masses of the people, nor did any inspire more devoted friendship.

Only once was Douglas worsted on the stump, and that was when in the summer of 1858 he met Abraham Lincoln in a series of joint debates, the prize contested for being a seat in the federal senate then held by Douglas. Lincoln's work in these debates gave him rank as the most successful of American stump speakers, for his arguments not only served to crystallize the struggling elements in the party which he represented, so as to enable it three years later to enter upon a national canvass with easy promise of success, but they also served to make him the candidate of his party. The spirit in which Lincoln joined the fateful meeting with Douglas is best illustrated by an anecdote related long afterward by Leonard Swett.

"I believe, Abe, you can beat Douglas for the senate. You can carry the legislature if you make the best use of your opportunity," said Swett to Lincoln on the eve of the first debate.

"No, Len, I can't beat him for the senate, but I'll make him beat himself for the presidency!"

THE TRAINING TELLS.

Police Commissioner Bingham of New York was praising the police work of the ten Belgian watchdogs that, recently imported at a cost of but $10 apiece, have reduced the burglaries in the neighborhood they patrol from ten to two a month.

"They work well," said the commissioner, "because they are well trained. Training, you know, is everything."

He paused and smiled.

"Two physicians were discussing," he said, "a certain pretty nurse.

"'Was she a trained nurse?' said the first physician.

"'She must have been, replied the other. 'She hadn't been in the hospital a week before she was engaged to the richest patient.'"

BACK FROM ENGLAND

Bishop Morrison Returns From the Lambeth Conference.

Duluth Prelate Traveled Through England, Scotland and France.

Bishop James D. Morrison returned to Duluth today from the meeting of the Lambeth Episcopal conference, which is held at the Lambeth palace, London, every ten years. At this conference, to which bishops from every part of the world come, questions not only of religiousc importance, but also of economic, civic, social and moral reform are considered. The attitude of the Episcopal church toward the great problems of the day may be said to be gained from the opinion gathered at this conference.

There was 243 bishops in attendance. They came from India, the Arctic regions, from China, Japan and from every corner of the world. The conference opened July 4. Service was held in Canterbury cathedral, and the archbishop of Canterbury, seated in the St. Augustine chair, delivered the address of welcome to the bishops.

Sunday the service was held in Westminster abbey. The attending bishops marched from the church to the places assigned them in the Abbey choir. Bishop Morrison says that the Abbey was packed and that thousands stood outside.

The sessions of the conference were held in the library of Lambeth palace, on the south side of the Thames, opposite the parliament building. This is the residence of the archbishop of Canterbury, and his predecessors have lived in this structure for over 900 years. The sessions of the conference continued until the evening of Aug. 5.

The closing service was held in St. Paul's cathedral.

Bishop Morrison went to the North of England, traveled a little distance into Scotland, crossed over into Paris, and saw a little of the South of England. He had not much time for travel, but delivered quite a few sermons during his stay in England. He reached England June 21 and left Aug. 28.

A consulting committee was formed, composed of four bishops from the Aerican Episcopal church, four from the Church of England, and bishops from other churches of other countries. This body will act as an advisory committee.

NO RAIN, SAYS WEATHER MAN

No Prospect of Downpour for Thirty-Six Hours.

"We may get a little rain, but it will be very light, and will not amount to much." That is what H. W. Richardson, weather forecaster, said this noon, when asked about the downpour that has been prayed for all over the north country for the past two weeks.

There will be no wind, and that will help some. But the rain, that is what the range people and all who sympathize with them want, and there is no hope, at least for the next thirty-six hours.

FIRE CAUSED BY AN ENGINE

Chisholm Blaze Said to Have Started From Spark.

The origin of the fire that resulted in the destruction of the town of Chisholm is said to have been caused by a spark from an engine, not far from the logging camp of Power & Simpson, about four and one-half miles from Chisholm. The spark caught in some dry grass. A cruiser named Brown attempted to stamp out the flames, but fanned by the high wind, they were soon communicated to the bushes that surrounded the little village.

A report that the citizens did not fight the fire properly was spread by a forestry commissioner. They say that every possible effort was made to save the village from destruction, and that had they better fire fighting apparatus at their command it would have been impossible to save the town.

RICH FARGO MAN IS UNDER ARREST

Wyman Alleged to Have Shot Man Courting His Domestic.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Wyman, a real estate dealer and one of the wealthy men of Fargo, was arrested at noon today and held under $2,000 bonds for shooting William Dinehart.

Dinehart is a teamster and had accompanied Wyman's domestic home from a show. They were in the rear of the house. Wyman went out and claimed he thought they were burglars. He knocked Dinehart down and when the latter ran, Wyman shot three times, one bullet taking effect in Dinehart's head. The latter has been in serious condition, but it is now thought he will recover. Dinehart tells a different story. He says when Wyman asked him what he was doing he explained, then Wyman struck him and began shooting.

More Contributions.

Additional contributions to the fire relief fund came in today from C. A. d'Autremont, who gives $200, and Barbara Hibbing, who has sent in $100.

AMATEUR BURGLARS

Two Boys Enter Anneke Home in Broad Daylight.

They Steal Cash and Trinkets From the Bedrooms.

Bold robberies are getting to be quite the style among young boys who have the "Old King Brady" and Nick Carter ideas in their heads, and evidently believe that some of the theories set forth in these books are just as easy as they seem.

This morning when the 17-year-old son of S. Anneke of 523 East Second street returned to his home after an absence from the city of two weeks, he heard someone upstairs which he believed to be his mother and he called to her. He heard hurrying footsteps and ran upstairs to find out who the intruders were. One lad had already jumped out the window and the other was making his escape in the same manner.

Later, when they were arrested by Officer Roberg and George Fifer, the truant officer, they proved to be two boys both under the age of 16.

They gave the names of Simon Peterson of 1916 Piedmont avenue and Albert Johnson of 527 East Second street.

They had succeeded in laying their hands on $1.60 from the desk of Mrs. Anneke, and had a number of small trinkets, such as watch fobs, cigars and so on.

They were arrested on a charge of burglary, locked up in the police station and will have a hearing Monday morning in municipal court.

BLANKETS TO FIRE SUFFERERS

Tents and Covering for the North Shore People.

Capt. Miser of Company E, Minnesota National guard, has just received orders from Governor Johnson to turn over to Chief Black forty blankets and forty tents to be taken to the fire sufferers on the north shore as quickly as possible.

CHURCHILL IS WEDDED IN LONDON

President of London Trade Board Marries Miss Hosier.

London, Sept. 12.—Winston Spencer Churchill, president of the board of trade, was married in this city this afternoon to Clementine, daughter of the late Sir Henry Montague Hosier, who for thirty-two years was secretary for Lloyds. The ceremony was at St. Margaret's church.

SHOOT FOR LOVING CUP.

Militia Companies Will Try to Down One Another Sunday Morning.

Sunday morning fire rifle teams will hold a competitive shoot on the rifle range on the boulevard for the silver loving cup that has been contested for for four years.

The trophy is to become the permanent property of the team winning it three times. Company A, and the team from the officers and band have each won it twice, and should either win this time it will become their property.

There will be events of from 200 yards to 500 yards, and the teams which will contest are Company A, Company E and Companies C and I of Superior, and the satff and band. The fact that if either of two teams can, by winning the shoot tomorrow get the prize for keeps, makes the contest all the more interesting, and the othet teams will make a determined effort to win. Each team is composed of five.

SCHREIBER IS CHEERFUL

Man Accused of Murder Says He Has No Fear.

Has Been Converted by Religious Workers at County Jail.

William Schrieber, who is in the county jail awaiting trial in district court on a charge of murdering Frank Massapust on a claim north of Virginia last February, is about the most cheerful person in his predicament that can be imagined.

The trial has no terrors for Schrieber. He is so confident that he will be acquitted that he speaks of the charge with a smile. He suspended shaving operations for a few minutes this morning to give the reporter a smile of greeting and tell of his hopes. He smiled all the way through the conversation, expressed regret that the authorities should make such a mistake as to arrest him, and said that he will certainly be a free man after the trial.

"I'm just as cheerful as I can be here," he said. "It's a little irksome at times, but I don't mind it. The law must be respected and since it has me in the toils, I am willing that it should take its course. I am sure I will come out all right on the other end. There's no use worrying now. If the worst comes, there will be time enough to worry. For the present, I am satisfied that the mistake will be found out and I will be acquitted."

Since Schreiber has been in the county jail, the religious workers have found him a ready subject. He never showed the aloofness that some prisoners have, and it was not long before he had been fully converted. In a letter written to The Herald, he says:

"For the benefit of those who are away from God, and the duo reverence of those who have helped to bring the light and blessed life of Jesus Christ to my soul, I wish as briefly as possible to relate my own experiences. I was arrested and am held here at the St. Louis county jail falsely charged with murder. While here, I listened to the plain, faithful preaching of Mr. Moody, and the talk and influence of his many helpers, which brought conviction to my own heart. I began to seek this mighty power from the One, whom I, for the first time in my life, realized had died to save my soul.

"For two weeks, I prayed to God and read His precious Word. I seemed to come no nearer to relief until one evening, when I was lying in my bed praying with all my heart, I felt an indescribable thrill of peace and glory go to my heart. It has ever since filled me with a peace, which surpasses everything I ever experienced before. Among the many good hymns in the book given me, is one which says: 'He will never turn me away.' Please look this hymn up and sing it as I and you do, think of the one who penned these lines. My hope and prayer is that everyone who reads this may find the same Saviour as I have, and live to His glory.

"Before I knew the saving grace of God, I was an inverate user of tobacco, using about $3 worth each month, but now, thanks to my Savior, I am cleansed from even the desire for the filthy and ungodly weed. I have no longing for tobacco in any form and, in fact, can say with the poet:

"Let worldly minds the world pursue,
It has no charms for me;
Once I like trifles too,
But Grace has set me free."

The body of Massapust, whom Schreiber is charged with killing, was found in the smoldering embers of his cabin, which was near Schreiber's claim in the northern woods. Schreiber went to Wisconsin and while there is charged with forging checks with Massapust's name. He claims that the first time he knew of Massapust's death is when he visited the cabin, after it had burned and that the visit to Wisconsin was only a coincidence.

Sending Out Supplies.

Two shipments of clothing, furniture and household articles have already been sent from the Duluth relief headquarters to Chisholm, where they will be distributed among the sufferers. The last shipment was made this morning and consisted of about half a carload of goods. The committee expects to send another lot on this afternoon's train.

No relief supplies have been sent as yet to Grand Marais.

No Word From Ashawa.

No word had been received this afternoon by 3 o'clock at the office of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad, concerning the fire that is reported to be burning near the town of Ashawa.

VICIOUS BLACKBIRDS.

Los Angeles correspondence San Francisco Chronicle: Thousands of savage blackbirds infest the city, and in some of the suburbs they are so bold and vicious that dogs are kept on the jump avoiding them, men on bicycles are sometimes chased for blocks and pedestrians pecked on the heads if they happen under trees where there are nests. The birds usually fight in pairs.

If a man with a very wide hat comes along they swoop down, beat it with their wings and claw at it with the rage of wounded eagles. Frequently they aim t' eir sharp beaks at the victim's eyes and he has difficulty in defending himself. The painful yelping of cornered canines attracts flocks of the birds and then the fur flies.

PULPIT IN RAILWAY STATION.

Tit Bits Travelers who enter Shrewsbury by the Abbey Foregate station can scarcely fail to observe one of the most remarkable features to be seen at any railway station in the world. This is a pulpit. It stands prominently above the coal wagons and miscellaneous goods trucks of the station yard, an ancient stone structure, to which access is gained by an equally ancient flight of stone steps. This pulpit is the only remaining fragment of the domestic buildings of the once great and powerful Abbey of Shrewsbury.

In the olden days it stood in the monks' refectory and was used for preaching from and for reading the lessons while the monks ate their frugal meals.

KING EDWARD'S WINE CELLAR.

Tit-Bits: The supreme head of the royal cellars bears the title gentleman of the cellars, and it is his duty to attend or to be represented at all the principal sales and to acquire suitable lots. The fact that the king is really the purchaser is of course kept secret to prevent fancy prices being run up.

The king, when prince of Wales, always made a point of taking his own wine with him when he attended public banquets, and this custom is still followed by the present heir to the throne. The king has his own wine sent to private houses when he accepts invitations to dinner, except in places where he is an old or frequent visitor.

Originally the cellars at Windsor castle, which are of enormous extent, were the chief repository of the royal wines, and until they were overhauled nobody knew quite what they contained. The electric light now illuminates their dark depths and every bin is numbered and catalogued with all the accuracy of a business house.

A MISSOURI FISH STORY.

Kansas City Star: "It is a well known fact that when alarmed fish scuttle into dark places beneath the water. A friend of mine told me of an ingenious plan adopted by an old fisherman on the Blue river to take advantage of this fish custom," said A. S. Van Valkenburgh, United States district attorney.

"The old fisherman procured a barrel, bored a number of holes in it and weighted the bottom with lead and iron. To the top were fastened two ropes attached to a windlass on a boat. Rowing out to the middle of the Blue the barrel was sunk, resting on the bottom of the river. Then the old fisherman sent his four sons, two in each direction, to points fifty yards away, where they enterd canoes and commenced to beat the water with flat paddles, raising a great hubbub. Gradually they worked down to the boat, where the old fisherman was ready to haul out the barrel. As they came close to him he quickly manned the windlass and the barrel came to thes urface. By actual count there were twenty-eight shad, forty carp, seventeen catfish and nine jack salmon in the barrel. The catch weighed 160 pounds."

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

Woman's Home Companion: Have you ever almost run into some one on the street, and then dodged from side to side for half a minute, vainly endeavoring to pass, while the other person by some strange fatality blocked your every move by trying to pass you in the same way?

Such was the recent experience of a young man in Portland, Me. He and a strange young woman had been going through this performance for several seconds when his unwilling vis-a-vis staggered him by saying:

"Well, hurry up! Which is it to be—a waltz or a two-step?"

A Revolutionary Heroine.

On June 28, 1778, a woman—the wife of a common soldier—became famous. Her maiden name was Mary Ludwig, and her birthplace was Carlisle, Pa. While in her teens she married a man by the name of John Hayes, who afterwards became artillerist during the Revolutionary War. At the time of the breaking out of the war Mary Hayes was in her thirty-third or thirty-fourth year. She accompanied her husband on his marches, assisting him with his work of loading the cannon by carrying buckets of water to use in the swabbing out of the guns before reloading. In this capacity she became known among the soldiers as "Pitcher Moll," and later as "Moll Pitcher," for in those days the waterbuckets were called pitchers by the soldiers.

It was during the hottest part of the conflict of the battle of Monmouth that John Hayes was shot and killed at his gun. At the time his wife Mary—nicknamed "Moll"—was bringing water to him for the swabbing of the gun. As soon as he fell she stepped into his place and helped with the loading of the cannon till the battle was ended in the evening.

After the close of the war Moll Pitcher married a man by the name of McCauley, a sort of worthless, never-do-well, with whom she suffered hardship and poverty. She lived to the ripe age of 80, and died and was buried at her old home, Carlisle, Pa. And there to mark her grave is a monument of some pretensions. Another monument to commemorate her brave deed is to be seen on the old battlefield of Monmouth.

Why Fred Changed His Mind.

BY MAUD WALKER

Fred Smith did not try to hide the fact that he disliked going to school. Indeed, he had often said to his comrades: "Gee whiz, boys, I'd rather work at day labor than to go to school!"

One evening during the first week of the fall term of school Fred was loitering along the street, going home. He had been kept in after school for having missed his geography lesson, and had been obliged to learn and recite the lesson after the other pupils had been dismissed for the day. And the teacher had reprimanded him severely for his conduct, knowing his habits from the previous year.

So, as Fred wandered along homeward he was in no happy mood. "It's beastly, this going to school," he remarked to himself. "If you miss a lesson you've got to stay in half an hour—or long enough to get it—after the regular school hours. Now, it's bad enough to stay in the schoolhouse for the required time; but to be obliged to stay——"

But Fred broke off in his soliloquy, for just as he turned a corner he saw an old man with a small street telescope. He was placing it in position near to the curb to be in readiness when the early moon should appear in the sky. Fred walked up to him and asked if he'd be there after dark.

"Yes indeed, my son," replied the old man. "I'll have this instrument directed on the moon, and for 10 cents you may have a good look at our beautiful daughter—for the moon is the earth's daughter, you know."

"All right, I'll be around after supper to take a trip to the moon," laughed Fred. Then, forgetting his school troubles, he hurried home to tell his mother about the telescope and to ask her for the required sum to look at the moon.

And hardly had the moon come out clear and fine in the deep blue of the night sky when Fred ran to the corner where the telescope was placed, and paying the owner the fee took a good look at the moon through the magnifying instrument. How grand it was—our lunar body! Shining like gold, and its surface so plainly visible! The range of mountains on its right-hand side stood out as though they were only a hundred miles distant from where Fred stood instead of so many, many thousands. "Oh, it's great!" cried Fred. "Gee, I'd like to go there in a balloon!"

"There is no life on the moon, lad," explained the old astronomer. "The brown spots you see about its surface are the dry sea-beds. No water is there on the moon; consequently, there is no atmosphere. So, were it possible for you to reach the moon, you would die there for want of breath."

"Oh!" said Fred. Then, his time being up, the owner of the telescope asked him to step aside, that others might have their turn to look at the moon.

But even then Fred hung about the telescope, listening to every word that the old astronomer said. And the more he heard, the more he longed to know of the moon and the other celestial bodies that floated through space.

That night after going to bed he lay thinking of what he had seen and heard. "No water, no atmosphere, no life on the moon," he reflected. Then a voice spoke to him from the depths of the darkest corner of the room: "Of course there is life on the moon, boy," it said. "Just hustle into your clothes and come with me, and I'll show you if I'm not speaking the truth."

Fred arose on his elbow, looked into the corner of the room whence the voice proceeded, and to his utter amazement there stood the old astronomer who had been at the street corner with the little telescope.

"Why, sir, you are the very person who told me there was no life on the moon, and no atmosphere or water either. What do you mean now by saying something directly contradictory to what you told me this evening?" exclaimed Fred.

"Ah, ha, my son," laughed the old man. "And so you just believe the first thing you hear, do you? Well, that's like a boy who hates school. What can you ever know if you won't read and learn, eh?"

"And how do you know I hate school?" asked Fred, now sitting on the side of the bed. "I never had any conversation with you regarding school."

"That doesn't matter," grinned the old man. "In the first place, you were ignorant of the condition of the moon—our own lunar body; you might say, a part of us. And when I told you there was so and so there—or not so and so there, you believed me. Now, how do you know I was telling you the truth this evening? Maybe I am speaking the truth now—and maybe I'm not, eh?" And again the old man grinned.

Fred's face burned with shame. He was a proud boy and hated to have anyone think him ignorant. And he felt not a little surprised that this old stranger should have struck upon the truth. He had never given the thought of education due consideration before. But now he knew what it meant.

"Well, my boy, I was much like you as I grew up," said the old man, breaking in on Fred's reverie. "I hated school. I hated work the same way. I just wanted to roam about and have a good time. And now I'm suffering the consequences. I'm old and ignorant and poor. All I have is the little telescopic instrument which you looked through at the moon tonight. And it brings me a very poor livelihood. There are stormy nights when I can't get a glimpse of a star. There are the seasons when we have no moon. And even in moon-time there are cloudy nights that cut off my income. So you will see how precarious my living is. Ah, I loved to hear about the heavenly bodies when I was young, but I would not apply myself to study. Had I done so, I might now be professor of astronomy in a fine university, instead of tramping about the country trying to pick up a few dimes in this uncertain way. Ah, if only youth knew its possibilities, its advantages!" The old man sighed heavily. Then he rose to depart. "I must be going, for the night is clear, and we have a fine moon. I'll get a few coins to keep body and soul together."

Then he went to the window and stepped out through it upon the lawn. Fred's heart throbbed with pity for him—a sad, disappointed old man. He ran to the window to call him, to tell him he would ask his parents to assist him if he were ever in distress; but when he attempted to put his head out of the window he felt a keen blow and fell back, holding to his head. Then he opened his eyes to find himself standing beside the closed door, which was on the opposite side of the room from the window.

Fred rubbed his head—which he had bumped pretty hard against the oak door—and then rubbed his eyes, returned to the side of the bed and sat down. Had he been dreaming? Most certainly he had; or, had he? He would have been so positive that the old astronomer had been talking to him—there in that room—had it not been for that awful bump against the door when he thought he was at the open window. Then he went to the window to look out, for if there had been anyone in that room and he had gone through the window he could still be seen going off down the street toward the center of the town. Fred looked and looked in vain for the tall, bent form of a man going off through the moonlight. The street was entirely deserted. Then, the dream—if dream it was—held him so in its grip that he couldn't get to sleep for ever and ever so long.

"Ah, the old man said rightly," he soliloquized. "What do I know of the moon or any other heavenly body? In fact, what do I know of anything except playing and eating and sleeping, for I never get a lesson that I can slip out of. Well, I reckon it doesn't pay. Gee! I'd love to be an astronomer—a REAL one—not just a poor old make-believe, like the old man with the little telescope in the street. I'd love to know about the moon, the stars, the sun. And how easy it is to learn it all, too, if I'll just buckle down to school. Why, dad told me the other day that he'd send me to college as soon as I was advanced enough to go. Well, if I play all the term I'll never be any further advanced than I am now. And anyone can tell me what they want to about the moon and stars and sun and I'll have no better sense than to believe them. I reckon I'd better get to work finding out things for myself. After all, it's a fine thing to be a scholar. And you've got to work to get anything, too. Even grub has to be chewed. Gee! It don't pay to go through life like a numbskull. Mamma and dad are doing their level best for me; the teachers are doing their part; but I'm the off-member. I'll show them all something tomorrow, though. I mean to learn, and to learn a lot, too. And some day I'll be an astronomer, a great one—not a poor old tramp wandering about the country with a baby telescope."

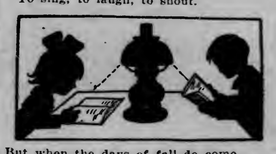

Then Fred dropped to sleep and dreamed of the moon, the stars and the sun and that he had paid them each a visit. And in the morning he was so full of the thought of astronomy, of learning in general, that he threw his arms about his mother's neck and said: "Mama, I'm going to turn over a new leaf today. I'm going to study and learn all there is to know. I don't want to grow up a poor ignoramus, I don't. And, Mamma, I'm going to become an astronomer. It'll be glorious—GLORIOUS—to spend my nights in the sky!"

And from the expression on her son's face the good mother knew he meant what he said, and she was glad. And she knew Fred well enough to feel sure that he would keep his word.

And he did.

School Days.

In the spring the children all
Are glad when school is out.
They love to play through summer hours,
To sing, to laugh, to shout.

But when the days of fall do come,
And summer playtime's o'er,
They're just as happy as can be
To go to school once more.

With books and slates tucked 'neath their arms
They hurry off together;
And every day finds them in school
In every sort of weather.

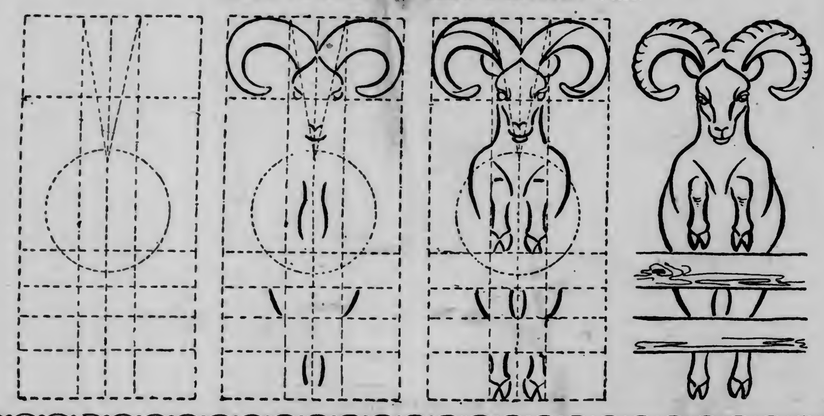

For what care they, the boys and girls,
If rains come pouring fast?
For just a little later on
They'll breast the winter's blast.

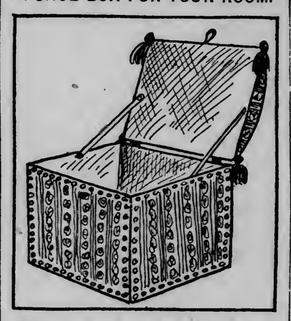

So, be it storms or sunshine clear,
All over this broad land
The schoolchildren are just the same—
A happy, studious band.

Helpful Hints For Our Young Artists.

LESSON NO. 27—HOW TO DRAW A MOUNTAIN GOAT.

A SHOE BOX FOR YOUR ROOM.

A pretty and serviceable shoe box may be made in the following way: Procure a small wooden goods box, say two feet long, two feet deep and one and a half feet wide. Fasten the lid on with small hinges. Paint the inside of the box and lid a rich dark red or blue. Cover the outside with cretonne or burlap in rich color, tacking the covering on with bright-headed brass tacks. The lid may be slightly padded so as to form a seat when closed. Four red wool tassels may be tacked to the corners of the box by way of decoration. A red tape loop to draw over a brass hook may be used as a fastening. Such a box is very handy to hold the boys' or girls' shoes and is ornamental in the room as well.

Real Babes in the Wood.

A Story for the Wee Ones, by Annie James.

They had not lived in the country long, the Browns had not. They had just moved into the pretty farmhouse a few days before the things told of in this story happened. There were Papa Brown, Mamma Brown, Bulger Brown (a little boy) and Sissy Brown (a little girl).

Now, before I go any further, I must tell you that Bulger's real sure-enough name was NOT Bulger; it was Franklyn James. And Sissy Brown's real sure-enough name was NOT Sissy, but was Stella May. But as Papa and Mamma Brown always called them Bulger and Sissy it is better for me to do the same. So, let them be known in this story—which is a very short one—as Bulger and Sissy.

Well, on the third day after the Browns had moved into their new country home Bulger and Sissy went out into the big yard to play. And after they had explored every inch of the yard they decided to investigate the barnyard. And it was such loads of fun to chase the big rooster about the barnyard, and to hear the hens cackle as if they were quarreling with them for their mischief. Then they visited the pig pen. And such a funny lot of little piggies there were in it, too, trotting about—tails twisted into knots over their backs—after a very fat mother who grunted, grunted, grunted every minute, and who looked towards Bulger and Sissy with a distrustful glance.

Then there was nothing new for Bulger and Sissy about the house, yard and barnyard. And they stood looking at each other, wondering where they should go.

Bulger, being five years old, spoke first. "Let's go down yonder." And he pointed to a line of timber about a quarter of a mile from the house.

Sissy, being four years old, trusted to her big brother's judgment and said: "All wight, buver."

Then away the two totlings went, hand in hand, toward the dark woods.

"It's very big an' dang'rous," explained Bulger, pointing to the line of timber. "Maybe bears are there."

Sissy held tighter to Bulger's hand, not fearing even bears while safely guarded by him. "But no bears will bover us—for I won't let 'em," went on Bulger.

And then they reached a few of the outside, straggling trees. "Oh, it isn't so very big an' dark, is it?" asked Bulger.

"No, it's just buti-ful," said Sissy. But still she clung tightly to Bulger's hand.

And so they walked about and about, going a little deeper and a little deeper into the woods. And then it became a little darker and they could not see so far about them, and Bulger decided they would better return to their home. "I dess we'd better do home, Bulver," said Sissy, seeing the uncertainty in her brother's face.

"Yes, it's mos' dinner time," said Bulger, not wishing Sissy to know that he was getting a bit afraid of the lonely woods.

And so they started out to go home, but, having forgotten just which way they had come, they went in the wrong direction. And so they walked and walked, growing so tired at last that Bulger said they would have to sit down and rest a bit.

And all the while they had been walking both Bulger and Sissy had been afraid, but neither owned it to the other.

While they sat on the mossy bank of a little brooklet Sissy fell asleep, her head in Bulger's lap. Then Bulger's blue eyes grew heavy, and he, too, fell into slumber, forgetting where he was and that there might be bears in the woods.

And there is no knowing how long the two little Browns might have slept in the woods or whether or not they might have come to harm, or have been forever lost, or whether at night the birds might have felt pity for them and covered them with leaves; but about half an hour after they had fallen asleep their own dear mother found them, and, lifting Sissy in her arms and calling gently to Bulger to wake, she kissed each and said: "Thank God, I found my dear little babes safe in the wood." And Bulger and Sissy were thankful to be found, too, and promised never to go away from home again without their mamma's consent.

Then Bulger's eyes grew heavy and he, too, fell into slumber.

Little Marie's First Day at School.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

"Come, dearie, jump up as quickly as you can. This is to be your first day at school, and it's almost 8 o'clock now. Come, open your blue eyes wide and don't let that old monster, Laziness, get a nip at you."

It was little Marie's mamma who was calling her from her morning's sleep. And Marie, rubbing her eyes, remembered that the day just begun was to be one full of interest for her, for she was to start to school that morning. And Marie had never been in any sort of school before. Her parents had thought it best to keep her out of the kindergarten, as she was not very rugged, and they wished her to be out of doors as much as possible, where she'd grow strong and healthy.

But during the summer Marie had had a birthday, and she was now six years old. But she was a very little Miss for her years, and as there were no other children in her home she was still her mamma's baby and her papa's only pet.

And so they had moved from the country into town, where Marie might have the advantages of schooling due a little Miss of six. And such lovely books she had, too, and a slate and a long, sharp pencil. Oh, Marie had gone into ecstacy the Saturday before, when her mamma had brought to her the fine book and slate-satchel so filled with all necessary school things. There was a sponge, too, with which to wash her slate. And a dear little box which held her slate pencil and lead pencil, and another to hold her two writing pens. Marie was to become a great scholar, so papa declared. And Marie was determined not to disappoint him.

As soon as breakfast was over Marie's mamma took her to the schoolhouse, which was several blocks away. And when mamma led her into the room where the "primary grade" was kept Marie was so glad to see it was filled with little boys and girls like herself. Some were a bit taller and a bit older, perhaps, and some were even younger than Marie. But not one was so small, so Marie was to be the "baby" of the grade. So said the pretty fair-haired teacher who came down the aisle to greet Marie's mamma and make Marie's acquaintance.

"What a little dear!" exclaimed Teacher, stooping to put her arm about the little stranger. "And we'll become the greatest friends, won't we, dear?" And Marie, so happy, smiled and said: "Yes'm, we'll be very good frien's, indeed." (Although Marie was six years old there were a few words she could not pronounce very easily. And "friends" was one of them).

Then the teacher and the mamma had a little private talk while Marie arranged her books and slate and pencils and sponge and writing pens in the dearest little desk that had been assigned her by Teacher. Oh, what a joy to have a desk for her very own—to remain hers till she should learn so much that she would be promoted to another room, where the desks were bigger! Marie was very proud that morning, too, and extremely happy.

Oh, please, Teacher, I'm so tired and would rather play.

Then mamma kissed Marie good-by and went home, telling Marie that she must not stop to play when school was dismissed for the noon hour, but to hurry home for her luncheon. And again Marie felt very proud to think that her mamma was going to allow her to go to and from the big schoolhouse alone. She was, indeed, becoming a big girl to be allowed so much liberty.

Then the school was called to order and Teacher talked so sweetly to the little ones assembled about her. And what a lovely lot of girls and boys they were, Marie thought as she looked all about the room. When Teacher said they'd sing a song Marie was glad, for she loved to sing, and her clear voice rang out louder than any of the others when a song was sung that she liked.

"Well, Marie, you have a fine voice and sing very well," said Teacher.

"And I can sing lots of songs," declared Marie. "If you'd like for me to sing 'Old Saint Nick,' I'll do so."

"Not now, dear," smiled Teacher. "We'll have our lessons now. But some Friday afternoon you may sing 'Old Saint Nick' for us if you like."

"Then I'll sing 'Little Bo-Peep' this morning if you'd rather have it than 'Old Saint Nick,'" said Marie, anxious to show what she could do with a little song all by herself. "And when I'm home I can play it on the piano."

"Not this morning, dear," said Teacher. "And now you know we all must be very quiet. It's study hour now, my dear, and you mustn't move about in your seat nor whisper to any of the pupils. After a while we'll have recess; then you may run out and play for 15 minutes and have fine sport."

Then Teacher called a class and began giving them their lesson, marking off a whole page to be learned, much to Marie's astonishment.

But as the day wore on Marie became very tired of the quiet of the schoolroom and of the monotony of the little ones' voices in recitation. As her mamma had taught her all her letters and to read through the first reader, and to write ever so many words, Marie was put into a class of boys and girls that formed the "A class."

At first Marie enjoyed reading, spelling and writing. Then her mind grew tired of books and she began looking about at her little schoolmates. First her eye caught a red, curly head sitting back of her. The head belonged to a very funny little chap, Johnny Rogers by name. He saw Marie looking him over and winked mischievously at her. This show of friendliness so pleased Marie that she called out to him: "Say, boy, what's your name? You're awfully funny-looking. What dreadful big——" But Marie's remarks were cut short by Teacher, who came quickly to her side, saying: "Oh, my dear little girl, you must not talk in time of books. Now, turn around in your seat and write the words I gave you."

"Oh, please, Teacher, I'm tired and would rather play," said Marie, not thinking for a moment that it was anything out of the way for her to do just as she liked anywhere and at any time. "You see, I'm sleepy when I look in my books, and I'd rather play for a while."

By this time all the pupils were laughing at Marie, for every one there save herself had been in school before. And Teacher was smiling in spite of herself, although she tried to prevent the children seeing her amusement. She led Marie into an empty classroom across the hall and explained the rules of the school to her. When she had finished she asked: "Now, my dear little Marie, don't you think you can sit quietly in your desk for just seven minutes? It will then be recreation time and you may go out of doors and play."

"Oh, I'll try ever so hard," smiled Marie, her blue eyes looking up into Teacher's, but there was not a gleam of mischief in them. Marie was but a baby—a happy, dear, good-natured little baby, if she was six years old.

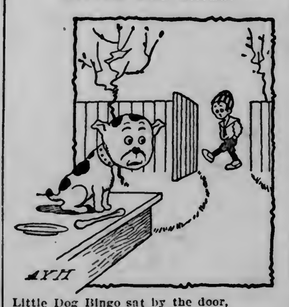

"Well, you'll soon get accustomed to school, dear, and then you'll not mind studying and keeping quiet," said Teacher.

And that noon, when Marie went home, she ran to her mamma with: "Oh, Mamma, I was very noisy and disobedient this morning, though I didn't mean to be. I just forgot. And Teacher says I'll learn how to behave after a while. Won't that be nice? But, Mamma, I'm sure I'll always laugh whenever I look back of me and see that boy with the red head and freckles. He's as funny as the clown in the circus."

"Then you mustn't look behind you," explained the mamma. "And perhaps after you get acquainted with the little boy you'll not think him so comical."

"Oh, yes, I shall, for he winks at me. And it makes his face go all into a bunch like this." And Marie winked one pretty blue eye and screwed her face all up as funny as could be, and her mamma laughed, caressing her dear little girl who had had such a new experience that morning at school—her first day at school, though she was six years old.

LITTLE DOG BINGO.

Little Dog Bingo sat by the door,
For a watch dog brave was he;
He barked at everyone who passed,
For that was his work, you see.

Little Dog Bingo loved a bone,
And he also loved just meat;
And nothing pleased him better than
To sit on the step and eat.

Thus little Dog Bingo chewed and barked
Throughout the live-long day;
For he was such a busy dog
That he had no time for play.

ABOUT this time of the year prepare for the appearance of the list of fatalities among the Alpine climbers of the past summer. Also for the publication of the traditional statement that Americans do not make good mountain climbers, for the reason that they rush in where the best guides fear to tread. Which may be true of the vast majority of Yankees who essay to scale the rugged, frowning, snow-capped peaks of the world. But there is some consolation in the undeniable fact that among today's most noted devotees of the most thrilling and dangerous sport of all, several Americans stand out prominently on the peaks of fame, for their intrepidity in gaining climbing goals that are at once the envy and the despair of the foreign contingent.

There is Miss Annie Peck, who, though she failed to reach the top of Mount Huascaran, in South America, recently, did make 25,000 feet, and so holds the world's record for the highest mountain climb yet made. Some time before this honor became hers William Hunter Workman, Yankee physician and explorer, held it, with a climb of 23,394 feet made in the Himalayas, and his wife, Mrs. Fanny Workman, held the record for women, with a climb of 22,268 feet, which height has been attained by a very, very small number of mountain climbers, including the guides. Dr. Frederick A. Cook of Brooklyn, now searching for the North Pole, and one of his guides on the expedition are the only men who have ever stood on the tip of the North American continent—Mount McKinley, in Alaska, which towers above the sea 20,391 feet.

No other country can boast of a quartet of living mountain climbers in possession of scaling records anything like so startling.

But these two men and these two women—of their sex the only ones in their class—are not the only mountain climbers owning allegiance to America who have fame and fame among the various Alpine and other mountain climbing clubs of the world, including the Sierra, the Mazama and the Appalachian of this country. There is the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, who has scrambled all over the Alps, ascended the Matterhorn numerous times, and engaged in the hair raising sport of tobogganing down Alpine mountain sides, past yawning ice crevasses and bottomless abysses. There is Charles E. Hughes, who, until he became governor of New York, was accustomed to spending his summers attacking the Alpine peaks, and who has walked or bicycled over and through the greater part of the Alpine country. There is David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford, Jr., university, one of the West's most euthusiastic mountain climbers and mountain protectors. And among still others there are Abbott Lawrence Rotch, the meteorologist at the head of Blue Hill observatory, which he has made world famous by its investigation of clouds, and William A. B. Coolidge, still an American in law, dispute his long years of residence and work in England.

Right here it may be proper to state that three of England's mountain climbers—perhaps that country's most famous peak scalers of the present generation—should be of interest to the average American on account of certain American ties. Capt. Edward Arthur FitzGerald, who has climbed the Alps from end to end, done the New Zealand Alps, when he discovered FitzGerald Pass, and come within a few feet of reaching the top of old Aconcague, in South America, is a Yankee by birth, Connecticut producing him back in 1871. Sir Martin Conway, who tackled and conquered Aconsagua when he learned of his friend FitzGerald's failure, who has scrambled all over the Alps and a great part of the Himalays, and who is England's premier mountain climber, and a business associate of Coolidge, has an American wife. As for the third subject of King Edward, he is today that sovereign's ambassador to this country, and he shares with just two others the distinction of being the only white men who have ever stood on the almost inaccessible top of the old world mountain against which Noah's ark is said to have bumped when the world's greatest flood susbided. If the duke of the Abruzzi weds Miss Katherine Elkins, another world-famous mountain climber will have American ties. The duke, you will recall, discovered and scaled the Mountains of the Moon before he turned Arctic explorer; and he, too, has ascended Mt. St. Elias, once thought to be America's highest peak.

The Great Climbers Are Great Scholars.

With but one exception—and that one FitzGerald—every mountain climber mentioned so far is a man or woman of high scholarly attainments. The fine arts, literature, scientific, geographical, exploration and surveying are three of Sir Martin Conway's divers fields of endeavor. His friend Coolide, a life fellow of Magdalen college, Oxford, has ben a professor in this, that and the other British college, and, like Conway, is the author of many standard works. Every newspaper reader, of course, has learned long ere this of the erudite learning possessed by Ambassador Bryce, President Jordan and Dr. Parkhurst, the latter being among the workld's finest Sanskrit scholars. Miss Peck is a Greek scholar and an archaelogist. The Workmans were deeply educated in three countries, and before he gave up active practice to devote himself to mountain exploration, Dr. Workman was a leading physician of Massachusetts. Among his other accomplishments Abruzzi numbers languages and cartography, Governor Hughes has remarkable mathematical ability.

Inspection of a more or less complete list of the famous mountain climbers of yesterday and today reveals the fact that most of them were and are men and women of the scholarly class. The late Prof. Tyndall was, in his day, a noted Alpine climber. Sir Francis Galton, one of England's present day great men of science, a sociologist of world-wide reputation, has scaled many African peaks. The senior surgeon to King Edward at Windsor Castle, W. political economist of Great Britain; Fairbank; Herbert S. Foxwell, a leading Gerald Mallory, rector of the Catholic University of Ireland and a geologist of note; Sir Frederick Pollock, editor of English law reports; Sir Alexander Kennedy, famous in England as an engineer, advisor to many of that country's railroads, and one of the men who opened up the Alps to the railroads in the sixties; Sir Alfred Willis, for two score years a judge of the queen's bench division of the High Court of Justice of England—these are others among the scores of the world's leading scholars and scientists who find their release from the prison of high thought and deed in experiencing the hair-raising excitement, and often the intense and almost unbearable physical suffering, inseparably connected with the most dangerous sport of all.

Of today's scholarly brigade of mountain climbers most of the members are now or have been connected with some seat of learning in a professorial capacity. Think of it—the men and women who not infrequently gain towering peaks by crawling up snow or ice covered slopes of sixty and eighty degrees, while they hang on to projections by the "skin of their teeth;" who brave the perils that lie in snow and rock avalanches, ice crevices and yawning abysses; who fight for breath and against death by freezing at one and the same time far above the snow line; who suffer intense physical pain at great heights when anything touches their bodies, and are often afflicted with mountain sickness and snow blindness; who have more than once been deserted by their guides at critical moments; who are slowly, but surely mapping the mountain ranges of the world as accurately as the levels are mapped—these men and women are known to the college campus and the study by the bookish stop of their shoulders! And the practical unanimity with which they take to their favorite recreation when they are in a position to leave the cares of the decture room and the laboratory behind goes a long ways to proving that much learning truly doth make a man mountain mad when it comes time for play.

Bryce's Climb up Ararat Alone.

Ambassador Bryce is to be numbered among the mountain climbers who have been deserted at critical moments by their guides. Miss Peck has been treated in similar fashion. The ambassador's guides left him to his own devices when he had proceeded so far up the precipitious sides of old Ararat that he felt there was nothing left for him to do but to go forward some way, somehow, to the very tip of the pile. And thence he went by himself, though the intense cold threatened to benumb his faculties and yawning ice chasms showed their cruel depths to him on every side. It was a foolhardy thing, even for so experienced a climber as the ambassador, thus to go forward alone on one of the most difficult climbs known to man, yet he returned from the summit without so much as a scratch and a piece of wood that he calls a relic from Noah's ark. The monks who live on the mountain are firm in the belief that the ribs of the ark still rest on the mountain top; the ambassador's guides had implicit faith in this belief and because they did not fancy the idea of coming in close contact with the remains of the world's first and most famous houseboat, they refused to proceed to the top of Ararat and left theiremployer to his own devices.

There are probably only two men living who have done more climbing in the Alps than Dr. Parkhurst and they are Sir Martin Conway and Capt. FitzGerald, great mountain climbing cronies, who together did the Alps from "end to end," as they have put it. Certain it is, they went up every Alpine peak worthy of the enthusiastic mountain climber's attention. This was in the Himalayas, now the stamping ground of the mountain climber who wants to taste the joys of mountain climbing without indulging in the effete luxury of a summer hotel as his base of operation. While on his Himalayan search for sport Sir Martin surveyed 2,000 square miles of that premier mountain country. He has also explored and surveyed the Bolivian Alps and the glaciers of Terra del Feugo, and because of the great importance of his mountain surveying work, the Paris exhibition of 1900 awarded him a gold medal. He and the Workmans, who also have been honored by France for their exploration and surveys in the Himalayas, are undoubtedly the world's best mountain climbers fro mthe scientific point of view.

Conway's Suffering on Aconcagua.

Conway's highest ascent was that of Aconcagua, 23,080 feet. Of the party that started to go up the mountain with him, only he and Zurbriggen, the famous Swiss guide who has been the companion of many famous mountain climbers on their most hazardous trips, succeeded in beholding the world from the topmost rock of the peak; all the others were overcome by the bitter cold, intensified by poor circulation due to the altitude, the blinding glare of the sun, sickness of some sort or physical exhaustion as the result of climbing over great shifting screes which threatened ayalanches at any moment. In his attempt to keep his feet warm Conway put on four pairs of heavy stockings, but still the cold and bad heart action combined kept his feet like icicles. He had to climb holding his baggage at arm's length, in order to escape the excruciating pain that ensued when his body touched anything. And after he had conquered the mountain and telegraphic congratulations were poured in upon him from his friends, he stayed at its base for several days supervising the thawing out of the toes of a porter who could not afford to lose those members, as he depended on mountain scaling for a living.

Though he is now three score and ten, the ambassador still numbers mountain climbing among his recreations. As a climber he is noted for his goatlike agility, springing from rock to rock with a lightness and a sureness of foot that few guides can excel. As late as seven years ago the ambassador was president of the English Alpine club, and he is one of that body's most active and enthusiastic members.

Dr. Parkhurst, who, like the ambassador, has climbed up most of the more noted Alpine peaks, would count that summer's vacation lost that found him not in the Alps; for nineteen summers he has spent his time there ascending peak after peak. The good doctor, who constantly keeps Tammany in mind when at home by the device of a tiger paper weight on his study desk, declares that were it not for the physical exercise and the mental rest that he secures by scaling mountains, he would not be able to cope with the religious, civic and charitable work that is his portion from the beginning of autumn until the warm days come.

So enthusiastic a mountain climber is the doctor that, if given the opportunity, he will leave off any time lambasting the tiger, as represented by Tammany, to tell of the delightful thrills he gets when he stands on a three-inch ledge on the Rathorn overlooking a bottomless abyss; of the day he lost a guide when going up the Mont Blanc; of his dozen plus ascents of the Matterhorn; of his descent of Monte Rosa by tobogganing down it at the express train speed; of his climb up old Ben Nevis, in Scotland, considered by him his most difficult conquest; of his boyhood days spent in climbing the Massachusetts hills round about his father's home, at which period the love of mountain climbing was given to him.

Sir Martin is rated as a careful climber, who will not do anything that an experienced guide cautions him against. But he feels that he was foolhardy once. This was when he was scaling Pioneer Peak, in the Himalayas. Zurbrigen was with him, and the two undertook to ascend a ridge about a thousand feet that lay at an angle of over forty-five degrees and was so slippery with snow that the nails in their shoes would not catch at all. Every step of the thousand feet had to be cut out by the guide with his ice ax; the two were momentarily in danger of slipping backward and plunging headlong down the thousands of feet they had climbed; and when finally they had conquered the ridge and gained the mountain's summit Zurbrigen, as fearless a guide as ever conquered a mountain, declared that it would have been impossible for him to have summoned the strength to cut out ten steps more.

When Capt. FitzGerald, Conway's friend, escaped to castle Aconcagua, his strength gave out just when he was a few feet from he summit; a guide, however, gained the goal that his employer could not attain. FitzGerald had thrilling experiences enough on this climb, but the thrilling experience of his whole life to date happened to him when he was scaling and mapping the New Zealand Alps. In the course of a climb he incontinently toppled over the edge of a precipice. His guide, Zurbriggen, at the time was on a dangerous footing, and as soon as he felt the rope tighten about his waist he quickly shifted to a more secure spot a little lower down. FitzGerald's first thought, when he felt the rope slacken and himself falling again, was that the rope had parted, and it would speedily be all over with him. Then suddenly the rope grew taut again. FitzGerald looked up. He saw Zurbriggen standing firm and cool above him—and he saw, too, that the sharp rock against which the rope was rubbing where it hung over the edge of the precipice had been sawed almost in two by contact with the rock! Though he had great faith in the skill of the wonderful Zurbriggen, still, at the moment, he didn't consider his chances of escape from a headlong plunge of a thousand or so feet any too good. Yet, so skillfully did the guide pull FitzGerald back on solid ground that in doing so he did not sever a single strand of the rope that was not cut by the rock before, and pull to safety began.

America's Two Women Mountaineers.

Miss Annie Peck, who is a Yankee by birth and training, and looks fragile enough to be an invalid, has had numerous exciting moments since she took seriously to mountain climbing. Several times, while essaying the famous peaks of Mexico and South America, she has been deserted above the snow line by her Indian guides, and the first attempt she made to crown Sorata the deserting Indians were so ugly that the Swiss guides feared an attack by them on the remainder of the party. The second time she tried to reach the summit of that mountain, the guide she had remained with her to a height of 20,000 feet declared that it was unsafe to proceed further. Miss Peck, however, thought differently and, attributing the guide's attitude to failure of nerve, started to cross a snow bridge, thrown by nature across a bottomless chasm. When she had reached the middle of the tickish passageway, something impelled her to look back and she discovered that the guide had cut the rope and was sitting down at the spot where they had argued about proceeding further. Miss Peck, as all her friends know, is a voluble talker, and what she said to that guide is doubtless ringing yet in his ears.

Miss Peck has been climbing mountains since girlhood. Then, when her family was summering in the mountains of the Atlantic states, she climbed all the peaks roundabout, and then, as now, made all her ascents at a rapid pace, which also is the method pursued by that other noted woman climber, Mrs. Workman. Sir Martin Conway is among the contingent that believes in making ascensions at a slow or moderate pace, punctuated by not infrequent halts. Miss Peck did her first climbing in the Alps without guides. She essayed, however, only the easy and comparatively safe peaks; but when she considered herself in fit condition to tackle the Matterhorn and other hard climbs, she, like every sensible mountain climber does, called in guides. She is to be numbered among the comparatively few enthusiasts who have conquered Funffingerspitze, in the Tyrol, considered to be the most difficult climb in all Europe. Part of the ascent is made at an angle of 80 degs.

Mrs. Fannie Bullock Workman has dared to make every climb that her husband has undertaken except the one that resulted in his holding for some time the world's record of "highest up." Until Miss Peck made her recent record on Mount Huascaran, Mrs. Workman held the "highest up" record for women, with a climb of 22,268 feet. She and her husband have discovered numerous glaciers and mountain peaks in the Himalayas, and the British government in India considers their mountain climbing so important that it always holds itself in readiness to furnish the Workmans with the necessary guides, porters and other attendants. The French government, too, has recognized the geographical value of the Workmans' mountain climbing, and at the express solicitation of President Loubet, Mrs. Workman was made an officer of the Public Institution of France. As for the Italian government it has conferred on her the Order of the Golden Eagle.

In their various ascents in the Himalayas the Workmans have frequently faced death from overhanging ice walls, hidden crevasses, avalanches, etc., but their most perilous ascent, when practically every danger known to the mountain climber threatened them, was made up Mount Bullock Workman, named by them in honor of their own and also of Mrs. Workman's family. Part of this ascent was made on a slope of sixty degrees, they were all but blinded by the glare of the sun on the snow and ice, their coolies mutinied several times, most of them eventually lost their lives from exhaustion and exposure, and only quick dodging to shelter kept the Workmans from being swept to their death in an avalanche. Yet, says Mrs. Workman, when she and her husband stood on the mountain top and surveyed the wonderful expanse of territory beneath them, they straightway forgot all about the suffering on the way up, and were supremely happy in the thought that they had accomplished a feat never before recorded among men.

The Workmans are New Englanders; have you noticed that most of America's famous mountain climbers hail from down East. Mrs. Workman is a daughter of Former Governor Bullock of Massachusetts. Besides holding enviable mountain records, she was the first American woman to lecture at the Sorbonne, and with her husband she has taken some of the longest bicycle tours on record. On one tour they wheeled 4,000 miles in Japan. They gave up this form of recreation to engage in the more thrilling one of which they are now devoting most of their time. Mrs. Workman's first mountain climbing was done in her teens, when she conquered most of the peaks of the White Mountains.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook of Brooklyn, who stood on the tip of the North American continent two years ago, after spending seven days in actual climbing to get there, and weeks in preliminary preparation, has declared that chasing the North Pole is child's play compared with the task of ascending Mount McKinley. During one of the nights that the doctor and his faithful guide spent on the mountain's snow-covered side, they slept in a snow dug-out made on a slope of 60 degs. To keep themselves from falling, they lashed themselves to their axes, which had been driven securely into the ice, and all through the night they listened to avalanches thundering past them at close range—so close, indeed, that the drift of fleece from them was sprinkled all over the two men. Two days after this trying experience, Dr. Cook and the guide gained their goal, and, as is the fashion with your real mountain climber, straightway forgot all about their physical and mental sufferings in the ecstacy of beholding the world from a height never before attained by man.

Pink Rambler Roses.

The crimson rambler had suddenly come into fashion abroad and in all the recent accounts of functions in London, one reads of its being employed as a decorative bloom. It has been a great favorite in this country for some years, but the pink species is now beginning to rival it.

In June and early July one sees it all through the suburbs, says Town and Country, and it has quite taken the place of the honeysuckle, the Virginia creeper and other climbers for summer house and trells covering.

Some years ago it was introduced by the dorists here as a potted plant for Easter, the blooms being forced. Before that time, both in England and France, it was considered as rather an ordinary variety of the rose and was not held in high esteem.

A new rose, faint pink and single, a climber, and evidently a wild flower in its native land, has been used in large quantities for decorative purposes. The blossom is quite small and feathery, but massed, the plants are most effective. The demand for pink flowers of any kind this year exceeds that of any other color. During the winter the Killarney rose led even the sterling favorite, the American beauty.

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Baltic Lode Encountered in Section 16 Shaft of Atlantic---Drifting at Globe Shaft of Copper Range Reveals Nothing Important.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The most important development of the past week took place in the section 16 shaft of the Atlantic Mining company, where drifting on the twelfth level having progressed a distance of 550 feet to within fifty feet of the Baltic-Atlantic boundary line with indifferent success, encountered the much sought Baltic lode showing a very fair degree of mineralization. Atlantic's operations during the past six months have been largely confined to this level, where copper ground was first disclosed 225 feet south of the shaft, early in May. The drift continued driving in vein rock carrying copper in commercial quantities for a broken vein matter and trap rock. A crosscut of about twenty-five feet into the hanging wall from the end of the drift, which has now attained a length of 350 feet south of the shaft, resulted in the present very encouraging showing. Drifting south from the shaft at the thirteenth level is also in progress and though the opening at this point is limited, an excellent showing of copper rock has already been disclosed. The shaft is again sinking steadily seventy-five feet below the seventeenth level, and passing through badly shattered ground requiring close timbering and making rapid sinking impossible. Crosscutting east at the twelfth level in search of the conglomerate underlying the Baltic amygdaloid lode is in over 440 feet without attaining the desired result. The recent finds have greatly altered Atlantic's prospects for the future, which unquestionably lies in this section 16 property, and it is confidently expected that the company will meet with better results in the future. The stamp mill is still treating Michigan mine rock, and two stamp-heads recently overhauled will shortly be falling on Superior mine rock. The Atlantic has installed a rock crusher at the mine and is breaking rock as it comes from the mine, but has signified no intention to resume milling operations upon its own rock in the near future.

At the Globe shaft of the Copper Range Consolidated company drifting is in progress at the 1,000-foot level, but the showing to date has revealed nothing of importance. The drifts are in about 150 feet, showing the lode well defined and carrying some copper, and although the showing is not discouraging, a decided improvement will be necessary to cause the company to exercise its option on the property. However, 1,000 feet is a shallow depth at best in this district of deep shafts

REORGANIZE LLANOS DE ORO

Meeting of Stockholders Called at Tucson, Arizona, on Sept. 21 for Reorganization of Company Promoted by Col. Epes Randolph.

Tucson, Ariz., Sept. 12.—A movement is on foot for the reorganization of the Llans del Oro Mining & Milling company, and if present plans are carried out the plant will be sold to a new company, to be known as the Llanos Consolidated Mining company, which will have mining property of acknowledged merit. To bring about the consummation of the above, a special meeting of the stockholders of the Llanos del Oro has been caled for Sept. 21 in this city, where the details will be outlined by Epes Randolph, the president of the company.

The Llanos del Oro Mining & Milling company is the company promoted by Mr. Randolph some time ago and its affairs are of special interest here. The plant of the company was closed down some time ago when it was ascertained that it could not be worked at a profit for the reason that the ground, which is placer, did not produce the values expected. Since that time Mr. Randolph has been bending every energy to putting the affairs of the company on a better basis and it is expected that the present organization plan will do this.

The proposition to be passed upon by the stockholders will be the transfer of the mills, machinery, pipe lines, pumping plant and equipment of the company to a new corporation to be capitalized at $1,000,000, in consideration of $350,000 worth of the capital stock of such corporation, such corporation to be the owner of the mines now opened by the Reina del Oro Mining company, and the El Tiro mine and some 20,000 acres of land appurtenant thereto, owned by the Sonora Quartz Mine Development company, all of which properties are about 130 miles from the United States border, and situated in the state of Sonora, Mex.

In the circular sent to the stockholders, the Reina mine is described as having been developed to the depth of 700 feet and shows 150,000 tons of ore blocked out and the El Tiro has also been developed and owns 20,000 acres of land containing large quantities of wood suitable for fuel. The ore in the Reina will average, it is thought, over $7 per ton gold and is owned by W. B. Tevis and H. R. Chase.

SALE OF OLD VULTURE MINE

Old Tales of the Halcyon Days of This Great Bonanza Revived---More Than $16,000,000 Taken Out of the Property.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 12.—The news comes from Wickenburg, of the sale of the old Vulture mine to a syndicate of Boston people, for $250,000, has revived the old tales of the halcyon days of that great bonanza. The Vulture has produced millions of dollars. It is known that $16,000,000 has been taken out, besides much more that was never placed on record. There are now thousands of tons of ore in sight, but the old-timers aver that the richest lead of all is cut off from the outside world by many tons of dirt and rocks.

The ore which is in sight is mostly low grade. When the Vulture mill closed down $4 rock was being treated, according to tradition. Just how rich it is the old-timers have forgotten. Though it may not surpass other discoveries in the amount of mineral to the ton, there is so much of it that it means millions of dollars to the owners when it is uncovered.

The date of the great cave-in which hid the rich ore from the outside world has even been forgotten. Near a score of men were entombed, but after more than twenty-four hours of unceasing labor they dug their way into another drift and escaped to freedom by a stope. Another cave-in closed this way of access to the treasure.

The Vulture, though it produced many millions of dollars, was always worked very cheaply. The various owners did not timber the underworkings as they should and miners know them to be dangerous places to work. But there are always men reckless enough to work anywhere if they are well paid for it, and the real necessity of using timbers was never brought home to the owners.

Vast rooms were hollowed out underground. In many places the roofs of these rooms were ready to fall. One day a roof did fall, and fell so as to block up that part of the mine in which fabulously rich rock had been found a short time before. About twenty men were inprisoned.

Among these men were some who had long worked at the Vulture and knew the works thoroughly. They knew where to dig to strike another drift, and for twenty-four hours the entombed men labored with might and main to dig a passage. They knew that if they stayed where they were they would die for lack of air before they were rescued, though they might survive for some time without water and food.

After a day and a night of incessant labor they made to the other drift. This, too, was closed up at the end by the cave-in, but they got out of the mine through a stope. Tradition says that not one of these men ever worked in the Vulture again. On top of the ground at some distance from the main shaft, was a vast hole, forty feet deep, where the crust of the earth had slid down into the workings.

A short time after their escape there

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Imperial Gold Company Has Encountered What Is Believed To Be Main Ore Ledge---Capacity of Homestake Slime Plant Increased

Deadwood, S. D., Sept. 12.—The Imperial Gold Mining company has encountered on the quartzite, in its Bald mountain mines, what is believed to be the main ore ledge. Some time ago the Imperial sank its shaft on the Dakota claim to quartzite, a distance of 575 feet, and then commenced drifting east and west. One ore body was opened 40 feet in the east drift and 40 feet still further in the second body was found. It is vertical and three feet wide, and widens out as it extends upward. The ore is of good grade and easily mined and milled. If this ledge proves to be the main ore ledge it will be the first quartzite ore mined in the Bald mountain district.

The Homestake Mining company is increasing the capacity of its slime plant in this city, with two extra filter presses. The present capacity of the plant is something better than 1,600 tons of slime a day.

The first carload of concentraes from the plant of the Tinton Tin company west of here has just been shipped east. These tin concentrates will be sent, it is understood, to England for final treatment. The mill of the Tinton company is now turning out about 800 pounds of concentrates, running 65 per cent in the tin, and it is expected that from now on regular shipments can be made.

A plan is in progress for the consolidation of the Alder Creek Mining company, south of here, and several adjoining properties. John A. Sandholm, of Des Moines, Ia., principal owner of the Alder Creek property, plans the erection of a treatment plant with a daily capacity of about 500 tons.

R. T. Walker has just purchased a receivership sale at Keystone, the property of the Extreme Gold Mining company and is planning to recommence operations on the ground. The Extreme has a large body of ore, plenty of which is high grade, giving a good average. There is a ten-stamp mill.

The Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing company, of Pittsburg, is busy with the production of mica near Custer. The company is employing over 100 persons at Custer. The shaft is down 200 feet, the mica being taken from the 200 foot level, where there is a vein of feet wide, the outpropping of which extends 800 feet across the ground. This ledge is six feet thick. The company is now shipping 150,000 pounds of mica each week to Pittsburg. The company has commenced the erection of a new plant which will have 000 horsepower and yield a voltage of 2,200. It will be operated by coal.

MAKING A SPLENDID SHOWING

Very Encouraging Development at the Mines of the Superior & Pittsburg—Fine Ore Body at the Hoatson Being Explored—Work Begun on Calumet & Arizona's New Offices.

Bisbee, Ariz., Sept. 12.—Developments at the mines of the Superior & Pittsburg are more encouraging, each day seeming to bring additional favorable developments. At the Hoatson much work has been done in exploring the ore body on the fourteenth level and it is presenting a splendid showing. It is believed that this body is a continuation of the huge lens of ore that's being developed in the Lowell mine of the Copper Queen, which it adjoins. The latter has been explored for over 200 feet and not a sample taken from along the entire crosscut has yielded less than 10 per cent copper.

At the Cole shaft work has been temporarily discontinued in the development of the ore body encountered in the crosscut, driven from the drift between the Cole and the Oliver shaft of the Calumet & Arizona.

This ore body is located in the Supplement claim on old Pittsburg & Duluth ground and is contiguous to several of the best claims of the Calumet & Arizona company.

The Junction shaft of the Superior & Pittsburg is at present handling more water than for some time, 3,733 gallons being raised every minute, or a total of 5,575,520 gallons every twenty-four hours. No. 5 raise from the twenty-two crosscut on the 1,800-foot level has been extended, through to the 1,200-foot level during the week and the 1,300 level has much better air on that account. Before the raise was completed the temperature on that level was about 140 degs.

On the fourteenth level of the Junction the ore recently encountered in drifts numbers 1 and 2 had been passed through and at present but few stringers are being encountered. The drifts on this level will have to be driven quite a distance further before ore is reached on account of the flat dip of the bodies on the level above. Two drifts on the 1,500 level are being given considerable attention. No. 1 has been cut for a distance of thirty feet and No. 2, forty-five feet. There is naturally considerable water on this level, as it is the lowest one in the district. The station will be completed the first of the coming month.. Crosscut 17 on the 1,300 level is looking promising at present. No. 5 raise from the 1,200 level is in ore averaging about 8 per cent. Raise No. 7 from crosscut No. 23 on the 1,300 level which was begun a few days ago, encountered ore averaging 11 per cent.

There was little change in the figures of the respective output of the Copper Queen and Calumet & Arizona companies for August and July, a total of approximately 12,000,000 pounds of blister copper having been outputted at both reduction plants, two-thirds of which comes from the Copper Queen.

Electrical expansion at the Copper Queen mines is rapidly progressing, the system being installed successively on each level of the various mines, and at the Sacramento shaft, where the new hoisting system was recently installed, the work of raising the ore by the new skip system is being carried on to the utmost satisfaction of the management, although nothing like full capacity has been obtained. About 400 tons of ore are being hoisted daily, which means ten cars of thoroughly mixed ores for the smelter. The capacity is being increased almost daily, as the equipment is being "broken in," and in a comparatively short time all of the company's ore will be hoisted through the Sacramento shaft, although this will not occur until all the levels of the mine have been connected with the 1,200 station of the Sacramento by electrically operated or trains.

The Calumet & Arizona company on Monday began the construction of its new office building at Warren, and according to the plans of the architects, it will be by far the finest quarters for any company in the Southwest. The building will be absolutely fireproof in construction and will consist of two stories and a basement. The dimensions will be 90 by 60 feet, and the building will front on Arizona street, the principal business thoroughfare of Warren, at the corner of Tener street, almost opposite the offices of the Warren company. The style of architecture will be mission and the building will set back thirty feet from the sidewalk line. The grounds in front of the building will be terraced, which will give it a very imposing appearance. The architects who planned the building are Hunt & Dieter of Los Angeles, the same firm that drew the plans for the home of General Manager Powell, which is now in course of construction at Warren.

N. S. Berray, the well-known mining man of Globe, returned a few days ago from a visit to the Anderson-Apache mine near Hachita. Mr. Berray stopped over in Bisbee, where he is well known. Speaking of his visit to the Anderson-Apache, Mr. Berray said that he regards the property as an excellent one, and stated that the development work is now reaching a state which will enable the company to ship a car of ore daily.

Tom Kavanaugh, another prominent mining man of the Globe district, was also at the Anderson-Apache when Mr. Berray visited it, and Mr. Kavanaugh

BUTTE MINES START AGAIN

Boston & Montana Company Resumes Operations in the Mountain View Mine—Ore Being Shipped to the Great Falls Smelter—Many LargeClaims Against the Ophir.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 12.—The Boston & Montana Mining company has resumed operations in the Mountain View mine, which had been closed for three months, and is again shipping all the ore mined from the company's properties to the smelter at Great Falls. The latter had been closed since about the 1st of June on account of damage that had been done to the plant by the floods. During most of the time since then the Leonard, West Colusa and East Colusa mines were operated and the ore was shipped to the Washoe smelter at Anaconda. The ore from those mines amounted to about 1,500 tons per day. It is now being shipped to Great Falls again. The Pennsylvania, the remaining mine of the Boston & Montana company, was started up last Monday. By the resumption of work at all the mines of the company between 800 and 1,000 additional men are put on the Butte payroll.

On Tuesday the Great Northern railway hauled 2,689 tons of ore to Great Falls for the Boston & Montana and yesterday about 2,800 tons. The shipments will gradually increase until the normal is reached. The normal shipments run from 3,500 to 4,000 tons per day.

All of the Great Falls smelter has not yet been started up. The concentrator is in full operation, but the blast furnaces will probably not be started for about eight days.

A meeting of the creditors of the Butte Central & Boston Copper corporation has been held in Butte for the purpose of selecting a trustee in bankruptcy, but some legal questions arising, a postponement was taken until today. There are two sets of creditors, the majority favoring the appointment of Sam McConnell, former superintendent of the company's mine, the Ophir. The other set of creditors wishes the appointment of W. R. Kirk, an attorney. The accounts presented at the meeting aggregated $128,000, of which McConnell represented $116,000 and the other side about $12,000. The big claims come mostly from Boston and include a claim of the Tri-National corporation for $53,000, the price paid for the Ophir mine by the promoters of the Butte Central. Other Eastern claims represent money alleged to have been advanced to the company and for notes issued by some of the officers of the company. Mr. McConnell also represented a majority of the Butte creditors.

In addition to the claims represented at the meeting of creditors there are suits, on preferred claims, pending in the courts to the amount of about $30,000, making the total indebtedness of the company about $158,000.

There were sixty-six different claims presented at the creditors' meeting. The bankruptcy proceedings were started by John M. Cameron, who has a claim of $2,700 for salary.

The stockholders of the Reins Copper company have voted to issue $600,000 in 6 per cent five-year first mortgage bonds, covering all of the company's property in Butte, including the Combination Ella and Louise Quartz lode claims and all the equipment. Some opposition to the bond issue was manifested, but it was represented that it was a bond issue or a reorganization. Nearly all of the company's 1,500,000 shares of stock were represented, a large majority being voted by proxy by Secretary W. F. Johnson, who came from Pittsburg to attend the meeting as the representative of Col. J. H. Guffey and his associates. About a year ago the capital stock of the company was increased from 1,050,000 to 1,500,000 shares of the par value of $1.50 per share, but that did not meet the necessities of the company. Col. Guffey and his friends spent a great deal of money in trying to develop a copper producing mine, but they could not find the Colusa-Leonard vein, for which they were searching. When work was stopped last fall the company was deeply in debt and a number of attachments have been placed on the property. The debts will be paid off with the money derived from the bond sale and a big working fund will be provided.

The Pittsburg & Montana company has completed its new 300-ton concentrator building and is installing the machinery.

Something seems to have gone wrong with the Montana Mine Owners' association, which was organized to fight the smelter trust. A working committee was appointed and instructed to secure the Panhandle smelting plant at Pon d'Oreille, Idaho. Progress was reported and the independent mine operators in Montana were notified to get ready for ore shipping. Various dates were set for blowing in the smelter, and then all talk ceased and the committee and the officers of the new association became so silent that it created a noise. The latest information is that the Greenoughs, owners of the Snowstorm mine at Mullan, Idaho, have secured control of the Panhandle smelter and will start it up soon.

The Copper Eagle Mining & Smelting company, which owns a silver property north of Butte, has resumed operations after a long shutdown, having funds needed to carry on development. A good body of ore has been found on the 250-foot level.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Ore Shipments Falling Below Expectations—Only Twelve Million Tons Sent to Lower Lakes Up to the First of the Present Month—Better Things Next Year Expected.

It is a dismal showing that ore shipments from the Lake Superior iron region are making this year. The movement is falling below expectations. It was realized early last spring that the outgo would be much less than that of 1907, but it was believed the closing months of the season would witness a considerable revival and that in the aggregate the tonnage sent out would amount to not far from 30,000,000 tons. There has been no particular improvement, however, and following the mid-summer cut in estimates of the probable outgo to 25,000,000 tons there has been a further scaling of figures.

Up to the first of September there had been sent to the lower lakes only 12,000,000 tons of ore, of which 75 per cent had come from the two Minnesota ranges, and the great bulk of that from the Mesaba. During the corresponding period a year ago the fleet moved in excess of 24,000,000 tons. Thus there is shown a loss of more than 50 per cent. It looks now as though the shipments for the season will approximate those of 1904, when 21,800,000 tons measured the outgo. This will be a very considerable reduction from last-year's record-breaking movement, which footed up 42,250,000 tons, still there have been only five seasons during which the production of ore has been greater, the 20,000,000 ton mark having been passed for the first time in 1901. Unsatisfactory as the showing is at this time, there is no lack of confidence in much better things next year. It is not the general expectation the movement will attain the huge proportions of that of 1907, but it is the belief it will exceed 35,000,000 tons and doubtless will approximate the record of 1906, which was 38,500,000 tons.

To Be Operated Through Winter.

While the great bulk of the ore in stock at the Crystal Falls group of Menominee range mines of Corrigan, McKinney & Co., will not be shipped this season, it has been a matter of great satisfaction to the people of the community to learn that the properties now in commission will be operated throughout the winter. The active producers are the Dunn, Tobin and Great Western, and in the aggregate they are employing a considerable force of men. The Armenia, Crystal Falls, Lamont, Kimball and Fairbanks are idle. There are large stockpiles at each of the three mines that are producing, and because latterly the shipments have been limited to the ore hoisted daily there has been fear that with the close of the season of navigation these properties, too, would suspend. However additional stockpile room is being provided and it is announced that the working forces will be retained throughout the winter.

Oglebay, Norton & Co.'s Bristol mine, a Crystal Falls property, which recently resumed operations, is now employing a force of upwards of 200 men, and it, too, will continue on the active list. Heavy shipments are being made, and it is evident that little ore will be left in stock at the end of the season. There has been no resumption as yet at the Antoine Ore company's Traders mine at Iron Mountain, a property in which the Republic Iron & Steel company, the Shenango Steel company and Oglebay, Norton & Co., all are interested, and which is wrought by the latter concern, and it is not believed a restoration to the active list will occur before next spring. The Traders is an open-pit producer, mining on the milling system, and it is operated only during the summer season. The Millie mine at Iron Mountain is expected to forward a fair-sized tonnage to the Algoma Steel works at the Canadian Soo yet this year, as is the Saginaw property at Norway. The Ontario railmaking plant is resuming work in all departments, and it is understood the orders already booked are sufficient to insure a lengthy run. Ore from the Northern mine, in the Frich Mountain district, is being shipped to the new Jones furnace at Iron Mountain.

A fine mine in the Kinney property at Stambaugh, Western Menominee range, is being opened by the Spring Valley Mining company, an Ohio corporation controlled by the Eugene Zimmerman interests. Railroad facilities have been provided during the summer, and shipments are now being made, some 400 or 500 tons of ore being forwarded daily. The property is being equipped with a new and more powerful plant of machinery. Underground, an additional level has been opened. The ore at the Kinney runs about 57 per cent iron, and the deposit was first encountered at a depth of only twenty-two feet. A more adequate equipment of machinery has also been installed at the McColman property of Pickands, Mather & Co. This property is located at the abandoned village of Atkinson, quite remote from other mines, and it is opening up satisfactorily. Sinking is in progress. It is not at all improbable that the McColman will enter the shipping list next season. At Norway, the Steel corporation is building a new sawmill at its Aragon mine. The product of the plant will be used for various purposes at the Menominee range properties of the company. A big acreage of timber lands on and tributary to the range was acquired last year.

Worry Over Timber Supply.

This question of timber supply is one that is beginning to cause the mining companies no little worry. The annual consumption of timber at the mines of the Lake Superior region, copper as well as iron, is something enormous. The great bulk of it is used beneath the surface to support treacherous walls, and it never sees daylight again. The Steel corporation's Norrie group uses 4,000,000 feet of timber per year; the Lake Superior group, 1,500,000; the Chapin mine, 1,750,000; the Cliffs Shafts property, 950,000; the Tilden mine, 850,000; the Regent group, 700,000; the Aragon mine, 600,000; the Negaunee,

UTAH COMPANIES COMBINED

Sixteen Claims in North Star District of Beaver County Consolidated---Jesse Knight Elected Manager of Old Emma Company.

Salt Lake, Utah, Sept. 12.—Negotiations under way for several weeks between the Cedar and Talisman mining interests have been brought to a successful termination and the consolidation of these two properties in Beaver county is now merely a matter of detail. Between the two companies sixteen claims are owned in the North Star district. They adjoin so closely that a development of one means development of all. Each company has a shaft down several hundred feet and has been shipping lead silver ore for more than a year.

A plot of ground in the heart of the new business district established by Samuel Newhouse south of the present business center of Salt Lake has been accepted by The Salt Lake mining stock exchange under an agreement to erect a suitable building. The new exchange will cost $60,000.

Development work has been started on the ground of the new coalition known as the King David in Beaver county. The King David comprises seventy claims, taking in almost the whole of the Grampian Mountain, adjoining the famous Horn Silver mine.

The Utah Copper company has added to its enormous holdings in Bingham canyon the surface rights to approximately eighty acres of ground owned by the Bingham Amalgamated company for the ypurpose of a right of way for the Bingham and Garfield railroad and for waste tracks and dumping room.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Old Emma Mining company, Jesse Knight of Tintic was selected as general manager. This means an active campaign of development on a comprehensive scale. In the early days the mine was one of the most liberal producers in Utah.

Taylor & Brunton have broken ground for a new sampler in the Tintic district to serve the patrons of the new Tintic Smelting company. The sampler will be located between the converging tracks of the Rio Grande Railroad and the Salt Lake route.

At the regular meeting of the Utah mine of Fish Springs the usual dividend of $3,000 was posted. The directors also authorized the purchase of the Last Chance claim, adjoining the Utah property on the south.

Another active company for the old Blue Bell district, about sixteen miles northwest of the Tintic district, gives promise that the once famous producing camp is to be opened up on broader lines. Recently the old Sharp mine was taken over by the Nevade-Utah

TEXAS QUICKSILVER MINES

Production Increases With the New Cinnabar Finds---New Route From Terlingua to the Mexican Fields Has Boom the Industry.

Terlingua, Tex., Sept. 12.—The production of quicksilver in the Terlingua district is constantly increasing. The first cinnabar discovery in the district was made about twelve years ago by a party of Mexicans, who had crossed over from Mexico to hunt deer. Some of them had experience in mining. They were quick to recognize the ore. They reported their discovery to two men named Wandless and Mendez in Mexico, and these, in connection with Charles Allen and a man named Case, organized a company and purchased two sections of land upon which the cinnabar prospects were situated. They did some development work and sold their claims to James Norman, representing the Marfa & Mariposa Mining company, for $128,000.

This company purchased additional claims and developed the properties. It erected two 20-ton furnaces, and for the six years its net production of quicksilver reached $15,000 to $20,000 a month. All told, it is said to have produced more than $800,000 worth. The mine is still being worked, but with a decreased force. It is situated about nine miles west of the Chisos mine. The workings are said to have reached a depth of about 500 feet. It is the opinion that large and richer bodies of cinnabar will be found in this mine at a still greater depth.

H. E. Perry of Chicago has one of the most valuable quicksilver mines in the district. During the few years that it has been operated, quicksilver to the value of about $5,000 a month has been extracted.

The Chisos mine was productive from the grass roots down. The ore contains no free quicksilver, but is very rich, some of it running 30 to 40 per cent. The average, however, is from 3 to 6 per cent. Only one shaft has been sunk. It is down 400 feet. There are many miles of drifts and the ore body is increasing.

In order to increase the output of the mine preparations are being made to extend the shaft to a depth of 1,000 feet. A new 20-ton furnace has been installed and an ore crusher of modern type will soon be put in operation. One ton of ore will yield about one flask of quicksilver, which is worth from $45 to $55. The expense of operating the mine is about $8,000 a month.

Alpine is the most available railroad shipping point for the mines. It is 100 miles north of Terlingua. The road is fairly good, but in case of rains it takes the teamsters from six to eight days to make the trip one way. There is no stage line. The building of a railroad from a rich lead and silver district in the mountains of Mexico, about thirty miles south of Terlingua, through the Terlingua district, to a connection with the Southern Pacific railroad at Alpine, Tex., is now proposed. Enrique C. Creel of Chihuahua is the principal owner of the mines in the Mexico district, and is back of the proposed railroad.

RICH MEXICAN ORE STRIKE

San Carlos Mine in Mezquital Has Run Into Ore Giving 1,000 Grams to the Ton---To be Actively Developed.

Guadalajara, Mex., Sept. 12.—E. H. Gregory, general manager of the San Carlos gold mines, in the Mezquital del oro district of Zacatecas, is in Guadalajara on his return from London. Mr. Gregory states that since ore running twelve ounces gold to the ton was cut in the San Carlos mines another rich strike has been made, some of the ore assaying ash igh as 1,000 grams gold to the ton. This is the richest ore ever secured in the Mezquital group of mines.

The strike of twelve ounces gold ore in the San Carlos mines was reported several weeks ago.

As soon as Mr. Gregory reaches the mines, development work will be resumed on an extensive scale, and the extent of the rich ore will be determined. During his ab?sence in England, operations have been practically at a standstill. Some time ago the scale of the mines was considered by the company and an option was given to parties in this republic, but the recent rich strikes have resulted in a change of sentiment, and as the option has expired, the scale of the mines is now by no means probable.

During the coming dry season it is probable that the hydraulic works necessary to enable the English company to use the water of the Mezquital river in the operation of its fifty-stamp mill will be carried out. Mr. Gregory, discussed the matter with the directors of his company, and their authorization is expected soon. He believes that direct water power could be used instead of steam in the operation of the mill during seven months each year, and a big saving thereby effected. Later a hydroelectric plant may be installed and the waterpower used for the generation of electric current.

The Mezquital group, which includes the San Carlos mines, is owned by the San Carlos Gold Mines Limited of London.

HAS GOOD SURFACE SHOWING

Spokane Company to Develop Property in the Libby, Mont, District, Located Between the Snowshoe and the Portland-McAlpine Mines.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 12.—Joseph Felton, secretary and treasurer of the Bunker Hill & Boston Mining company, a Spokane corporation, owning a group of claims in the Libby, Mont., district, announces that arrangements have been completed for extensive development work during the fall and winter. The company is fully financed and is prepared to continue its operations until the value of the property is fully determined. The claims are located between the Snowshoe and the Portland-McAlpine mines, and Mr. Felton says the management is convinced that a ledge running through these crosses the company's property. There is a good surface showing and J. M. Watkins of Spokane, president of the company, believes it will become a producer. The Snowshoe mine has produced more than $1,000,000 of silver-lead ore. The property has been in litigation for years, but it is understood it will resume operation, now that a settlement has been made. The tunnel on the Portland-McAlpine mine is to cut the ledge at 2,000 feet, and, as it has passed the development stage, it should make regular shipments in a short time. The ore in these properties runs from 30 to 40 ounces of silver, a high percentage of lead and from $30 to $35 in gold value to the ton. There is much activity in the Libby camp and hundreds of claims have been staked in the last few weeks.

Silver Queen mine on Rickey mountain in the Kettle Falls, Wash., district, north of Spokane, has passed the development period and is now turning out good ore. It will ship in a short time. The property is owned by the Ark Group Mining & Milling company of British Columbia, which also has eight claims in the Ymir district. Machinery was installed early this year and work has continued steadily since then, with the result there is much ore on the dump awaiting the completion of the road from Rickey Rapids to Marcus, Wash., when a traction engine will be used to haul the ore to the Spokane Falls & Northern railroad, nine

SOCIALISM AND THE LAW

"You Socialists believe in overturning the laws of the land and aim at a revolution in the affairs of government," says an opponent of our theory recently.

"Yes, we Socialists are revolutionists. We do believe in changing the statutory laws of the country, and, furthermore, we have the right to do so granted both by the Constitution of the United States and the Declaration of Independence. Socialism holds that within every epoch, predicated upon the economic system then in vogue—the laws, morals, customs, religious beliefs, rights—all and each, represent and reflect the economic class—interest of the dominant class in society.

Socialism recognizes that—under the law as it now exists—every injunction writ issued against labor organizations in the interest of the employing factors in conflicts between capitalists and laborers, is correctly based upon the constitutional law of the land. Judges, who issue restraining orders, impairing and hampering the endeavors of labor organizations, are not necessarily venal, or dishonest. In the interpretation of the statutes the judge is expected to leave sentiment and morals to one side. He is there to deal only with the legal phase. The fundamental laws of the country give every man, or corporation, the right to carry on any legal business, independent of state interference—also give them the right to enter into any kind of an agreement relative to numbers of hours to be worked, or wages to be paid, and to demand protection by the state at any time they feel their interests are being jeopardised.

The working men who object to injunctions and blacklisting and similar tactics used upon them by the employing class have only themselves to blame, if they keep on voting the old line politics, or for that matter any kind of politics, that does not touch at the real crux of the problem.

It is the law and not the men who interpret the law that is at fault, and the law exists because of the belief, sacred in the minds of the workers and toilers of the nation, that it is intended for their protection. We Socialists say, if you want to safeguard the interests of the wealth-producers in the nation, you must evolve an economic system that will make opportunities to the resources of nature equal for all. You must take away the special rights granted to the few, which permit them to own the lands and the resources of the nation as against the rest of the people—a right legalized by the state and with the consent of the voting population.

As the farmers and wage-workers constitute a majority of the voters of the country, they are alone to blame for the resultant evils of the present system. Change the laws that oppress and harass you and substitute for them laws in conformity with present day needs.

Socialists believe in conforming to the laws of the land while they exist, even though we are not in accord with them, but claim the right, and exercise it as well, to agitate for changes that are in harmony with our ideas and ideals. Collective ownership, co-operative production, co-operative control, distribution of product, based upon effort expended, is the aim of Socialism.

MORRIS KAPLAN.

SOCIALISM AND ITS CRITICS

"Socialism is a menace," cried Mayor McClellan of New York city, in an address to the students of Cornell university not long ago. "There is a great wave of social unrest sweeping around the world," he said further, "which makes a concerted movement of lawlessness and anarchy. It is known under various high-sounding names—universal human brotherhood, collectivism, communism, socialism, but no matter what it is called, it is distinguished by an unwillingness to recognize the difference between thine and mine."

These are the words coming from a man who stands high in the political circles of our country, and yet there are many persons in our country who think that this man holds his office of mayor through fraud.

When such men attack a philosophy, they must do so with clean hands; they must not use catchy phrases that have a tendency to delude and not to enlighten. The supposition that we Socialists assume the right to take thine and make it mine, to us at least is the cry of a person who feels himself slipping backward down a steep incline.

We Socialists make the claim, and can prove it by facts that are unearthed every year, that any great accumulation of wealth is accomplished through the exploitation of labor. We cannot understand how it is that men whose labor is not productive to the welfare of all the people can assume the right to try to drag through the mire a philosophy that is beyond their understanding, and they being unworthy of touching the hem of the garments worn by those who preach and teach Socialism.

If our so-called bright and intellectual minds could grasp the potent tendency for good that lies in Socialism; if they could cast aside their prejudice and study the question until they could realize that we do not propose to take "thine," for the reason that Socialism holds the most sacred of its teachings, the right of the worker to keep that which is produced by his own labor, but if we understand by thine that which was stolen from the labor of others, then there can be no moral claim upon that which they are pleased to call thine, as it is not the proceeds of their labor, but is the greater part of the wage produced by the worker that he did not get, and therefore, it seems plain, it must have been stolen.

All history points plainly to the fact that the workers of the world, and not the idlers, have been the producers of the world's wealth. Christ taught that the worker should be the first partaker of all wealth produced by him. These learned people speak of law, and while doing so are ignorant of its meaning. We understand law to be a restriction placed upon the actions of those who would usurp the rights of others. We cannot understand what law is as interpreted today, for the reason that it will not not be used only as against the interests of us, the workers. We cannot understand what law is as expounded today; for instance, the fine of $29,000,000 by one court for the violation of the law, and yet to find that the same law passing to another court is given another twist which renders the fine unconstitutional. There must have been a crime committed in the one case or the other.

Another instance of the miscarriage of justice in the interests of the ruling class, is the injunction placed upon us union men because, but no matter boycott, and that the same law denying us the right to use the boycott gives the employers the right to discharge us because we are union men, and gives the employers the right to use the blacklist.

We understand law to have a moral worth. It must have the potent force of dealing justice between man and man. It cannot be used by one set of men against another set of men, and still have the right to be called a moral law.

If our law-givers and law-makers cannot understand the duties that fall upon them, then there is but one thing to do, and that is to unseat them, and place them in a position fitting to their understanding, and in my behalf the most of them could qualify best with a No. 2 shovel.

The mayor seems to think it a disgrace to our twentieth century civilization for us Socialists to demand the collective ownership of the tools of production. What have they to offer to the poor, helpless women, who bring children into the wrold, in the dark holes under the sidewalk, where God's sunshine never enters, and in the very city of which this man is the mayor.

What have these intellectuals to offer to the men who are pleading for work? What have they to offer to the starving little children? What have they to offer to the maimed and injured each year? What have they to offer to the widows and fatherless children, to the men who lose their lives trying to get a living?

We Socialists are lovers of truth and justice and the same we will herald to and before all the world. We demand an industrial system that will give all men work, and one that will make all men work who are able to do so. We will provide for the sick and helpless, and will declare it to be unlawful to compel little children to earn their own living before they are 18 years of age.

The laws under Socialism will be enforced without respect of persons. The persons who gain merit and honor under Socialism will do so by honest work, and not as it is today. The person who lacks brains, or having brains of the inhuman kind, will in the Socialist Republic be compelled to gain his marks of distinction through useful and honest labor that is a benefit to all and not for individual gain. And I would say to all who are afraid of work amongst you intellectuals, that you should not vote the Socialist ticket if you are looking for soft-snaps. We Socialists have no time for grafters.

O. G. PHILLIPS.

WORK ON FORTUNE GROUP

At Jack Rabbit, Nev., to be Resumed---First Car of Ore From Rosebud Lease Shipped to Salt Lake Smelter.

Floche, Nev., Sept. 12.—Work is to be resumed on the Fortune group at Jack Rabbit, owned by the Bambergers of Salt Lake. The group consists of fourteen claims near the Bay mine of the Utah-Nevada company. The property has already shipped four cars of ore which average 60 per cent lead and 16 per cent copper. In addition to some gold and silver values. The shaft is now at a depth of 200 feet and the ground will be opened by a series of drifts which will cut the ore bodies.

The tunnel in the Gordon Mining company's property has encountered a good body of ore at a vertical depth of 600 feet. The ore averages $100 a ton.

Rosebud, Nev., Sept. 12.—The first car of ore from the Rosebud lease on the Rosebud mine has been shipped to a Salt Lake smelter. The ore will average $100 a ton in gold and silver values and was taken from the drift on the 100-foot level.

Bovard, Nev., Sept. 12.—The shaft of the Bovard Strike Mining company has encountered ore showing average values of $51 a ton. The high-grade is being sacked. The shaft will be continued to the 100-foot level.

Chapey, Nev., Sept. 12.—E. S. Chafey, owner of the Black Hol mine, has ordered a 40-horse power hoist and an 80-horse power steam plant and intends to increase the yield of the property as soon as this equipment can be installed to 2,500 tons a month. During August more than 1,000 tons were shipped, all of which was extracted and raised by hand power. The last shipment for which a settlement has been received was from both the shaft and the tunnel and amounted to twenty-six and a half tons. It brought $3,325.

At the El Rancho mine, four miles south of the Black Hole and on the same ledge, the management announces that $200 ore will be shipped within two weeks. There is said to be a twelve-foot body of this ore.

Rawhide, Nev., Sept. 12.—Shipments during the last three days of August from Rawhide Coalition ground aggregated 104 tons, of an estimated value of $11,340. Besides these shipments Kearns No. 2 lease on Rawhide Queen sent out forty tons of high-grade ore. Both the Murray and the Big Four leases have made strikes. In the Murray a new vein was encountered on the 200-foot level of which four feet samples $52. The Big Four has fourteen inches of ore that is said to break $1,400 a ton and four feet that mills $233. The Rawhide Western railroad is now being graded across the Red Top mine, in the north end of the town.

Goldfield, Nev., Sept. 12.—The production of ore last week was the second largest of the year, totalling 2,554 tons, valued at $245,190. Leasers produced 1,612 tons. The tonnage is slightly in excess of the week ended July 25, when 2,172 tons were shipped, valued at $299,925.

ANOTHER RICH STRIKE MADE

In Vicinity of Auk Bay in Alaska---Rich Gold Values and Enough Copper to be Profitable ---Valuable Ruby Find.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 12.—Another rich strike has been made in the vicinity of Auk bay, some little distance from the claims located recently by Dull and Stephens of Juneau. The finder is John Berg, a Juneau prospector, and the samples of ore brought in show rich gold values, with enough copper to make it profitable from that standpoint. The country around Auk bay has been prospected for year, but owing to the rough character of the country, the dense undergrowth and the masses of deadfalls operations have been confined to the beach. Berg, however, decided to do a little exploration and struck out from the beach directly into the heart of the tangle. He made his find at a point that would be only twenty minutes walk from the beach were there a good trail. As it was it took him several days to cut his way through. A score or more of prospectors have gone to Auk bay.

H. A. Ring, one of the most active mining men in the Port Clarence district, has returned from Europe, says a dispatch from Nome, and reports that he readily disposed of three thousand rubies picked up on his claim on Gold Run creek last summer. He asserts that experts in England and Germany declared the rubies equal to the best gems taken from the mines of India or Brazil. Of the 4,000 which he collected and brought to Europe with him, more than 3,000 were cut by an expert lapidary and commanded a ready sale at an average price of $5 each. The stones were discovered by Mr. Ring last summer during the building of a ditch. Their specific gravity first attracted the attention of some miners, and many thousands were collected for the purpose of having their value tested.

Having endured endless privations and spent the whole winter and spring in a fruitless search for gold in Siberia, thirteen hardy miners have returned to Nome from Anadir. Attracted to that country by the supposed strike on Nedeau creek last summer, they spent a considerable amount of money, and are now poorer but wiser on the subject of Siberia. For a radius of forty-five miles round Nelson creek they prospected, but failed even to raise a color, and as the country consists of a granite formation they believe a pay streak will never be uncovered there. The men recount harrowing tales of the severity of the winter, blizzard after blizzard making their lives miserable for nearly two months. Despite the severity of the weather and other unfavorable conditions there was no sickness among the party.

During the past week three steam schooners have left Nome for the Kuskokwim country with supplies required in the development work carried on at Kolmakofsky, where rich strikes in gold, copper, quicksilver and nickel have been made. This is the first time in the history of Alaska that nickel has been found in paying quantities. Many prospecting parties have gone into the Kuskowim this summer and several new placer strikes are reported.

Earl Hunter and Charles Davidson came into Juneau last week from a trip to Chickagoff island with some rich rock from claims recently located by Mr. Hunter in that vicinity. The claims are some thirty miles from the famous De Groff mine, and it is stated the ore compares favorably with that from the latter. Samples of the rock are being assayed.

Good pay has been located on Davison creek, in the Duncan district, northwest of Mayo. Some of the owners on the creek are getting $10 to $15 a day with the shovel. The ground is about fifteen feet deep.

THE COLORADO DISTRICTS

Rich Strike on Acacia's Property at Cripple Creek--- Corinne Mountain in Leadville District to Be Developed By a Tunnel.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 12.—The Morning Star claim of Acacia Gold Mining company, Cripple Creek, is in a shoot on the 450-foot level, screenings from which carry $200 per ton.

Lucky Gus No. 2, Cripple Creek, is shipping ore carrying $151.20 a ton.

Corinne Mountain, Leadville district, is to be developed by a tunnel starting at Franz and Birdseye Veltz 5,000 feet up Birdseye gulch from the high line station. Surveys show that the tunnel will be under the comb of Corinne Mountain at 12,150 feet altitude, and will have 224 feet over it there. It will pass through the White Quartz group of five claims and finally into the Little oCrinne, one of the oldest locations in the district, famous since 1879 for occasional production of picture value gold ore and the exceptional difficulty of working it, due to altitude and precipitout surroundings. Corinne Mountain is 14,000 feet above the sea. The tunnel will start up one of two parallel veins sixty-five feet apart, which have been traced from the London fault in Park county.

The Doctor-Jack Pot Gold Mining company has filed suit in the United States district court at Denver against the Work Mining & Milling company, both of Cripple Creek, for $100,000 damages for alleged wrongful extraction of ore and for right of apex.

First Vice President Leopold Zimmerman of New York, Bernard Kaiker of Amsterdam banking circles, and other officers of the United Rico Mining company visited their property at Rico this week. The company owns 2,000 acres of mines and mineral land and has a stamp mill in successful operation, with sixty tons daily output. The district yielded $15,000,000 in carbonate ores during its first producing period, but at that time sulphide ores were unprofitable.

Acting Governor E. R. Harper and Secretary James F. Calbraith, Jr., of the American mining congress have issued a call for a general meeting of mining men to be held in Denver Sept. 10 and 11. Steps toward the building of a mining temple in Denver will be taken. Denver is the home of the association. The state appropriated $10,000 for the temple building fund on condition that the temple be held in trust for the state. The structure as projected will afford a complete exhibit of mining specimens and will be headquarters for mining information.

B. J. O'Connell and associates of Joplin, Mo., have purchased the Gambetti group of mines located on Republic mountain, Georgetown, Colo., for $75,000 from Peter Bourquin's heirs. The retiring owners took hold of the property three years ago and developed it vigorously. A crosscut tunnel was driven down the mountain side 500 feet and drifts were driven in 240 feet both east and west. The ore streak has been continuous the entire distance, varying from two to four feet of solid ore, the character of which is a heavy lead zinc, and si impregnated that it can be assorted without the aid of a concentrating mill, the zinc class giving returns of 59 per cent in zinc, and the lead class 60 to 100 ounces in silver, the gold one to two ounces and 50 to 60 per cent in lead per ton. In a block already opened, the solid ore measures two to four feet in length by 340 feet in height.

Selfridge & Mann, operating on the Brockway group near Boulder, Colo., have opened a good streak of high-grade tungsten. In an upraise from the tunnel level a streak of ore two to twelve inches wide has been opened for forty feet. It assays close to $300 a ton.

and mine workings, and the management is not likely to condemn the property on showings had to date.

The Superior Copper company is busily engaged in making improvements to its surface equipment at the No. 1 shaft. A new "dry" or changehouse was completed this week, and the frame work of the large rockhouse is rapidly going into place. The railroad connecting the mine with the Atlantic stamp mill is nearing completion, and the company should be in position to begin rock shipments by Sept. 15, taking rock from the large stock pile, estimated to contain 18,000 tons of good copper rock. The construction of the shaft rockhouse has progressed far enough to allow a normal resumption of operations in the No. 1 shaft, all hoisting now being done during one shift only.

The Medora mine of the Keweenaw Copper company is sending few cars of rock to surface daily, operations being confined wholly to drifting, no stoping nor sinking in progress. The company is centering its attention on the mill test now under way. About 250 tons of rock are treated daily, but the company gives out no information regarding returns, and without official confirmation, no definite statement relative to copper contents of rock are had, but the consensus of opinion held by many local mining men who have given the subject considerable attention, is not favorable, and that the rock will not return more than ten pounds mineral per ton.

was another cave-in. This closed up the stope and drift by which they had escaped. The Vulture's richest ore was hidden in a dark recess of the earth, with many million tons of rock barring the ways.

No attempt has ever been made to uncover it. It was obviously impossible to tunnel through the rock which caved in, as it was broken up and cracked until it could no more be tunneled than sand. To drift around required more money than the owners cared to spend.

The people who sold the mine the other day knew of the hidden richness and often thought of drifting to it, but were afraid that the tales of the extent of the strike might not be strictly true. They told other people of the hidden ore and finally found some who were willing to buy the mine and search for it. It is understood that the first work of the Boston syndicate will be to run a drift into the closed chambers, where history says, the richest rock ever discovered in the Wickenburg section awaits the coming of man.

600,000; Ashland, 600,000, and so on through an extended list. At the big Calumet & Hecla mine, in the Michigan Copper country, the annual consumption of timber probably exceeds 25,000,000 feet. With the growing depletion of the supply, timber is gradually costing more, and as far as possible the mining companies are turning to the use of other materials. Much experimenting with concrete is being done in the Copper region. Use also is being made of worthless rock, walls of which are built to hold up depleted stopes. However, timber can never be entirely dispensed with and many millions of feet of it will be required each year.

It is the plan of the Steel corporation to use steel and iron whenever possible at its properties, and with this end in view, a committee of officials of the company is looking into the matter. As far as underground purposes are concerned, the use of steel as a substitute for timber has not yet been given a practical test. On surface there are many purposes to which steel can be applied. Heretofore, a very large quantity of timber has been consumed annually in the erection of trestles, mine buildings and shafthouses. Most of the principal structures now being built are of steel, and for this purpose there will be an increasing use of the material. As the bulk of the timber is consumed in underground work, however, it is in this latter direction that investigation is chiefly being conducted. It is believed that steel sets, although heavier than timber, could probably be handled as cheaply and be put in position as quickly, for the reason they would be uniform in size and not too cumbersome. There is doubt, however, that it would be possible to make use of the steel to as good advantage as wood.

Title Is Defective.

Because the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad company's title to the land is defective, the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company has suspended operations on the 40-acre tract in section 27-45-26, Swanzey district, Marquette range, where it had recently started the development of the Northwestern mine under a lease given it by the railway corporation. Probably due to a belief the property possessed no particular value, it being considered too remote from the iron-bearing formation, it appears that the taxes have been allowed to become delinquent ever since 1878. Tax titles have been purchased by a number of persons since that year, until at the present time the ownership of the land is in a decidedly befuddled state. Indeed, the assertion is made that there are no records showing that the Chicago & Northwestern company ever possessed the tract. The question of title is now in the courts, but it will likely be many months before the problem is worked out, and in the meantime mining work at the property will not be carried on.

There is no doubt now as to the value of the forty acres. Drilling operations conducted by the Cleveland Cliffs people have shown the existence of a large deposit of ore, and once the mine is opened it will be an important producer. The surface material is swampy and sandy, however. For this reason it will be necessary to put down a shaft of reinforced concrete by the air-lock method, and it was this work that was in progress, under contract with the Foundation Company of New York, when operations ceased. The ownership of many other tracts in the vicinity is beclouded in similar manner. Various tax-title holders are interested in them, and thus there is a prospect of a great amount of litigation before matters are finally straightened out. Leases and purchases have given the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company control of the great bulk of the mineralized lands in the Swanzey district, and it already is operating a number of mines, in addition to opening others. The deposits are so extensive in the aggregate that there is little doubt mining will be in progress in the field half a century hence.

It was in 1856 that Stephen A. Douglass of Illinois introduced a bill in congress authorizing the government to deed to the states of the Union every odd section of land, this land to be given in turn to railway corporations as an inducement to them to extend their lines over territory where there were no railroads at that time. The Chicago & Northwestern company took advantage of the opportunity to secure acreage through territory where it planned to build, and section 27 was included in its possessions. It paid the taxes from the time it built its railway through from Escanaba to Negaunee until 1878, or for a period of something over ten years. Then the taxes were permitted to become delinquent, hence the present complications which are holding up development work.

has started crosscutting for the Edith May and Jessie veins from the 2,000 and 2,200 levels of the Speculator. The stations and skip pockets were completed during the last week, and the Edith May vein, because of its dip to the south, was cut in one corner of the station at the 2,200. The vein has not yet been fully cut through at that point, but the portion opened shows the vein to be of the same character as on the 1,800, where the company has been doing its big mining during the last two years. A long crosscut will be necessary to reach the Jessie vein, which lies north of the Edith May, with the Granite Mountain, owned by the Lewisohns, between them. The levels on the 1,800 and 1,600 were driven through the Edith May and Granite Mountain into the Jessie.

It is announced that the financial difficulties of the North Butte Extension company will be met by the issuance of bonds for $400,000, at 6 per cent, maturing in five years. It is said that some of the large stockholders, presumably President Van Brunt and his associates, are ready to take $200,000 worth. The remainder will be retained in the treasury. The extension company owes a considerable sum on operating expenses and options.

Butte men are engaged in a lot of exploration work in a new copper district, situated in Jefferson county, sixteen miles from Butte and eleven miles southwest of Boulder. The first company to be organized to work there is the President Copper & Gold Mining company, incorporated under the laws of Montana, with $1,200,000 shares. It is proposed to keep 500,000 shares in the treasury. The company takes over eleven claims, on which Dr. Ferdinand Cravaan of Butte has been doing development work for a year. They are located along a vein for a distance of a mile and a half. The vein on the surface is from 30 to 60 feet wide and has been explored by two shafts sunk 3,000 feet apart. It is asserted that the bottom of the deepest shaft is in commercial ore, assaying well in copper, gold and silver.

Fortuno has smiled on Charles Simon, a Madison county mining man, who is now the possessor of a valuable property developed absolutely free by another. John Hatfield has been doing development work presumably on government land at Meadow Creek and was rewarded with high grade gold ore. Shipments were being made regularly. Simon owned an adjoining claim and in order to locate the markings definitely had it surveyed. This survey showed that Hatfield had been conducting operations on the Simon ground. Simon has taken possession, but Hatfield will be permitted to retain the ore already extracted, so that his work has not been in vain by a considerable margin. When the survey was ordered it was without the slightest suspicion on the part of Simon that Hatfield was a trespasser.

Solid bedrock has been struck at the site of the Hauserlake dam, and this will permit of the immediate repair of the structure, which was partially destroyed by the April floods. Stone & Webster, the Boston contractors, have delayed in finishing plans for the work until the results of the borings were made known. The dam will be practically constructed anew.

Rich gold uncoverings have resulted in a veritable stampede near Whitefish, Flathead county. The excitement is due to the discovery by Micho Bros., of high grade gold, copper and silver ore. One of the assays showed $630 a ton in gold. The whole mountain is said to be seamed with ledges of mineral. The Michos have located seven claims, and numerous samples show the existence of peacock copper.

Certified copies of the articles of incorporation of the Bunker Hill & Boston Mining company of Spokane have been filed with the secretary of state. The company has an authorized capital of $75,000, and its purpose is the development and operation of the Donna, Bunker Hill, Boston and Silver King, quartz lode claims in the Libby district, Flathead county.

A splendid gold discovery has been made near Fish Creek, Silver Bow county, by W. T. Clark. The discovery was made in July, but the fact was kept secret. Since that time Clark has been developing the property, and the vein, at first six inches, has widened materially. Much of the ore taken out shows free gold. One assay shows as high as $1,384 a ton in gold with 20 ounces of silver and another $138 in gold and 40 ounces of silver. The country had been prospected years ago and abandoned. One man, however, a few years ago extracted $500 from a pocket in less than a week. Being a searcher for placer gold he did not develop further. Clark made the discovery while searching for copper.

From Zortman, the scene of Northern Montana's profitable cyanide operations, comes the story of another rich strike. James Lackie has located a property at the head of People's Creek. After a great deal of hard work in removing shale rock to test his theory based on float discovered on the surface he was rewarded with a lead the ore of which is purple in color and which assays from $65 a ton upward.

is also favorably impressed with the property.

Mr. Berray was for a number of years superintendent of the Old Dominion at Globe, and afterwards was at the head of the United Globe mines. He has im portant property interests in Globe, being a large stockholder in the Old Dominion Commercial company. He stated that the outlook for the Globe district was never better. The present plant of the Old Dominion is one of the most modern to be found in the West, and the output there is most satisfactory.

Globe, Ariz., Sept. 12.—The Clark property, two miles from Globe, is maintaining its reputation for the production of silver. G. K. Faught, one of the lessees on the property, working a small force all summer, taking out high-grade ore all summer and in August, shipped two cars to El Paso. He has opened up a stope which will yield a large amount of ore, if the performance of last Thursday is repeated many times. Faught put in seventeen holes and fired them simultaneously, breaking sixteen tons of shipping ore which required no sorting, and was loaded into a car for shipment just as it came from the mine.

H. W. Clark, who owns the large interest in the property, has put on a force in the workings from which he took out 117 tons of fine ore last spring. Mr. Clark quit work last June to take a trip to California, and very little work has been done in the bottom of the shaft. The ore is high grade and runs 100 ounces and better to the ton.

Good copper leads have also been located at several places on the property, but no work is being done to them at present.

S. L. Gibson, president and manager of the Gibson Copper company, came in last week from Boston on business. Mr. Gibson stated that while the published report of a strike of rich sulphide ore in the Gibson mine was premature, the recent improvement on both the fifth and sixth levels has been encouraging. Quite a flow of water is now coming into the crosscuts on both levels, which were previously dry, and this is taken as a good indication, as the ore bodies on the levels above were quite wet.

The east crosscut on the fifth level, 100 feet north of the shaft, is in ledge matter for sixty-five feet, and the west crosscut on the sixth level is forty feet in the ledge, and neither has reached a wall, proving that the ledge is over 100 feet wid. The fifth level crosscut is in low-grade sulphide, which has improved considerably and shows some good-sized stringers of chalcopyrite.

The winzes are being sunk from the fourth level, one of which is close to a shoot of high-grade ore, but little headway is being made in sinking, owing to the ground being very wet and the fact that the fifth level drift has to be driven 200 feet farther before an upraise can be started to connect with the winzes. The ore body is there and it is only a matter of two months or so until it can be reached.

Mr. Gibson states that A. F. Hawkins and son have made a strike of high-grade sulphide on a claim situated between the New Dominion mines and the Central Copper company's property. The ore is chalcopyrite and the pay streak is eleven inches thick.

Development company, which is inaugurating and active campaign and now the Tintic Silver Crown Mining company has been incorporated to take over the group of twenty-four claims lying south of the Sharp property. The claims cover a well defined vein system nearly three miles.

Four feet of ore averaging over $250 a ton has been opened up in the lease operated by Duncan Frew and associates of Salt Lake on the Webster property at Marysvale. The Webster is owned by the Ivanhoe Mines company, which comprises the majority of the properties under the ownership of the Hearst estate and John Ben Al Haggin of New York and California. When the old tunnel on the property was cleaned out, Mr. Frew was satisfied that the old workings had missed the ledge. A cross-cut from the end of the tunnel opened the rich ledge before it had been pushed forward ten feet. An option on the lease has been secured by Alex Colbath and associates. The ore which has been taken out in the opening of the drift has been sacked at the property. The Webster has been idle for many years.

miles. Edward Liscomb of Spokane, who has just returned from the district, reports that the miners have broken into several ore bodies assaying as high as $392 in gold-copper and silver, but that is not the average. Three parallel veins across the property and it is believed they unite at the apex, where the Silver Queen is operating. J. J. Budd, president of the company, has reports from experienced mining men, who are unanimous in the opinion that the mountain is full of ore and that rich bodies will be revealed at depth.

Six miles of aerial tramway, costing $35,000, to connect the Polar Star mine with the Tacoma & Eastern railroad in the Cascades in Oregon will be built this year. The announcement was made in Sopkane by E. A. Sessions of Portland, president of the company, who was in Spokane on the way to Larson, Idaho, to inspect tramways there. An 800-foot tunnel in the mine crosscut the ladge when it was in 600 feet. The ledge is ninety feet wide, with a pay streak of thirty-four feet in it. A depth of 300 feet has been reached, but by drifting on the ledge a depth of 2,500 feet will be obtained. At the present time 100,000 tons of ore is blocked out, ready to be taken out for shipment as soon as transportation facilities can be installed. The ore, which is a copper sulphide, assays from 5 to 40 per cent copper, three to forty-four ounces in silver and from $3 to $11 in gold.

C. C. Titus, superintendent of the Panhandle smelter at Ponderay, Idaho, who has just returned from an ore-buying trip in Montana, gave it out definitely that the first furnace will be blown in Sept. 15. The rest of the work will be rushed and it is expected to have the plant in full operation Oct. 15. The plant will be operated in two units, each of 125 tons capacity daily. The furnaces have been installed and coke, ore and lime are being put into the bins. Mr. Titus says that he has been successful in getting contracts for ore, most of which will come from St. Regis, Mont. He added: "The mine owners of Montana have taken hold of the proposition in an encouraging manner and work at the plant is in excellent condition."

ORDER TO EXAMINE FINAL ACCOUNT.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.—ss.
In Probate Court.
In the matter of the estate of Lillian G. Harrison, Decedent.
THE PETITION OF Peyton R. Harrison, as representative of the above named decedent, together with his final account of the administration of said estate, having been filed in this Court, representing, among other things, that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that said final account of said administration be examined, adjusted and allowed by the Court, and that the Court make and enter its final decree of distribution of the residue of the estate of said decedent to the persons entitled thereto, and for the discharge of the representative and the sureties on his bond.
IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard, and said final account examined, adjusted and allowed by the Court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in the City of Duluth in said County, on Monday, the 28th day of September, 1908, at ten o'clock A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.
ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., Sept. 3rd, 1908.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

Meadowlands

Meadowlands, Minn., Sept. 12.—A meeting of the Farmer's club was held at A. F. Johnson's store Saturday evening, Sept. 5. M. Reisinger had prepared an unusually good program, which drew a very large attendance. In the absence of the president, J. W. Reisinger acted in his place. After an opening address by Mr. Reisinger, who announced that M. Zanker, who had expected to be present was unable to come. The program proceeded ass follows: recitation by Alonzo L. WORK WEAKENS THE KIDNEYS

Doan's Kidney Pills Have Done Great Service for People Who Work in Duluth.

Most Duluth people work every day in some strained, unnatural position—bending constantly over a desk—riding on jolting wagons or cars—doing laborious housework; lifting, reaching or pulling, or trying the back in a hundred and one other ways. All these strains tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they fall behind in their work of filtering the poisons from the blood. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, put new strength in bad backs. Duluth cures prove it.

W. W. Scott, operator on the St. Paul & Duluth railroad, and living at 126 Sixty-sixth Ave., west, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have already recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. I told in the statement made in 1898 how I had suffered with dull aching pains through the loins and kidneys. From the constant sitting position required in my work my back became so lame and sore that I could scarcely straighten. The kidney secretions were irregular and annoying. At times severe headaches would strike me and I was feeling worse than ever when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice. I began using them, and as I have stated, in my previous testimonial, they so thoroughly regulated the kidneys, removed the backaches, headaches, pains and weakness that I have felt like a different man. I have never had a return of any of these symptoms and have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills again and again."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SERVICES FOR SUNDAY IN DULUTH CHURCHES

Handsome Norwegian Danish M. E. Church in the West End Will be Dedicated.

Bishop Morrison Home From Europe, Will Preach in Morning at Trinity Pro-Cathedral.

Special services will be held at the First Norwegian M. E. church tomorrow, when the handsome new house of worship at Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street will be dedicated.

A "love feast" will be held in the morning, from 9 to 10, and at 10:30, the regular services will be held. Rev. August Peterson of Spokane, a former pastor of the church, will preach the sermon and the pastor, Rev. H. K. Madsen will be assisted in the services by a number of visiting clergymen. Sunday school will meet at 12:45.

The dedication services proper will take place in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. N. E. Simonsen, D. D., professor in literature at Northwestern university, and superintendent of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. seminary at Evanston. Rev. M. S. Rice of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Duluth will also speak. Rev. H. C. Munsen, district superintendent, Rev. H. K. Madsen and a number of visiting clergymen and members of the congregation will have a part in the exercises and there will be special music, as at all of the services tomorrow.

The Epworth League will meet at 7 p. m., and the regular evening service will commence at 8 o'clock. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. J. C. Tollefson of Chicago.

The new church cost about $28,000 and is substantially built of brick and stone. The interior is beautifully finished in quartered sawed oak and equipped with artistic windows. The pews are circular and are of oak and the floors are carpeted with a cork texture, wplich deadens the sound of falling feet.

Members of the congregation, of all the auxiliary societies, the pastor and the building committee worked hard to secure this new church and it is one of the finest in the city. The building committee, which had the erection of the structure in charge, was composed of J. J. Moe, chairman, Andew Otterson, secretary, A. O. Anderson, treasurer, Dr. Tufte, L. Jentoft, Ed Dahl, O. M. Jorgenson, John Sorenson, Otto Otterson, Peter Moertrud and P. G. Hanson.

The Endion Methodist Episcopal church will re-open Sunday morning with a sermon by the pastor, Rev. John Walker Powell. The church has been moved on to the rear of the lot, facing Nineteenth avenue east, and will be occupied this winter while the new church is being built on the old site. A change has been made in the building plans. The mission architecture, which was at first considered, has been rejected as unsuitable to this climate, the frosts having a tendency to cause the stucco to scale off. The new plan is of the popular English Gothic type, brick, with half-timbered gables. The plans were furnished by a specialist in church architecture, Oscar S. Teale, of New York. Frank L. Young & Co. of this city will superintend the construction of the building. Excavation will begin at once, and the work pushed as rapidly as the weather will permit.

The new building is estimated to cost about $30,000. The main auditorium will seat 400 on the floor and 150 in the balcony. The basement will be given up to Sunday school rooms, parlor, kitchen and the pastor's study. The building committee consists of C. C. Cokefair, J. L. Thwing, J. B. Richards, W. F. Quayle and G. H. Schulenburg. Tomorrow the pastor, Rev. John Walker Powell, will preach at 10:30 a. m. on "Still With Thee." Sunday school will meet at 12 o'clock. The musical program is as follows:

Solo, "Hold Thou My Hand"..Briggs
Miss Gilroy.
Offertory, "Nocturne"..... Schumann
Miss Young.
Duet, "O Divine Redeemer"....Gounod
Mrs. Collins and Miss Gilroy.

LENGBY MAN TAKES LIFE

Despondent Over Business Troubles Postmaster Ringstad Shoots Self.

Excessive Drinking and Worry Supposed to Have Unbalanced Mind.

Lengby, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ole K. Ringstad, postmaster and merchant here, and one of the oldest and most respected residents of Eastern Polk county, committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver some time during Thursday night, his body being found yesterday morning by a resident of Lengby who had been searching for him for several hours.

Recently Mr. Ringstad had been worried over financial reverses and had been drinking quite heavily. The worrying, combined with indulging in intoxicants, is believed to have caused a temporary mental derangement, and while he was in a particularly responsible mood he committed his fatal act.

Nothing unusual was noted in Mr. Ringstad's appearance Thursday except that he had again been worrying over his financial affairs, and that he had also been drinking to some extent.

Late that evening he left his place of business, saying that he was going to look for a team which had strayed away from his premises.

As the night passed and he failed to return, there was considerable alarm for his safety, and a searching party went out to look for him.

At about 7 o'clock yesterday morning his body was found about a quarter of a mile from the village. In the right hand was clutched a revolver, and a gaping wound in the head showed only too well how the despondent man had put an end to his earthly troubles.

The coroner of Polk county came up from Crookston and considered it was not necessary to hold an inquest, and the remains will be buried here.

Mr. Ringstad took up his residence at Fosston, the first town west of here, many years ago, when that place was the end of the Great Northern railway line, east of Crookston.

He was, for a number of years, foreman of the big farm owned by S. C. Bagley, near Fosston.

A few years ago he moved to the present townsite of Lengby and engaged in the general mercantile business here, where he has resided ever since.

The deceased was 44 years of age, and is survived by a wife and two children. There is general sorrow here at the rash act committed by Mr. Ringstad, as he was always well liked and considered a splendid business man.

CORONER'S JURY CAN'T SOLVE CASE

Mystery Surrounding Red River Murder is Still Baffling Police.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police department of Grand Forks have about abandoned all hope of being able to solve the mystery surrounding the murder committed in one of the two cities two weeks ago, when the body of an unknown man, who had been killed, was found in the Red river. The coroner's jury Friday returned a verdict, after delaying such action awaiting the investigations by the police officials, that death was caused by a blow from some blunt instrument, but that the parties guilty are unknown, as well as the dead man, who has noth been identified. Robbery is given by the jury as the object of the murder.

Several solutions of the mystery have been presented during the past couple of weeks, but at the inquest just completed, when summed down, were found to be without any foundation. It was supposed for a time that the man was Leon Donehouer, but there was no evidence to bear this out. The shoes which were found in the river shortly after the body had been located, proved to be a pair of those stolen recently from the "R. E. Z." store in Grand Forks, and therefore failed to furnish any clue to the identity of the dead man. The shoes of the murdered man had been removed by the men who killed him, and have not yet been located.

PLACING GIRLS IN RESORTS

Is Sensational Charge Against Man Arrested in Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Taylor, charged with placing girls in evil houses here, was brought before Judge T. A. Sullivan of the municipal court last evening, but his hearing was continued until Monday. Taylor is charged with placing Inga Vraa, a 17-year-old Grand Forks girl, in a resort in this city, being arrested after a two-day search in a residence where he had concealed himself. The girl was found shortly afterwards and removed from the place, which was located in the red light district. It is claimed that Taylor literally kidnapped the girl, first frightening her by threats of murder. They came to Grand Forks from Crookston just a short time since.

TEAMSTER IS INJURED FATALLY FOR KINDNESS.

Hunter, N. D., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—His humane act to the team he was driving resulted disastrously for Ole Sem, a teamstor on the Lewis farm here. He took the bits out of the horses' mouths so they could drink more comfortably. Afterwards they ran away before he could restore the bits. One of the animals crushed his head and a wheel also ran over it.

A WOMAN'S APPEAL

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box R, South Bend, Ind.

TO FIGHT HOG CHOLERA.

Tests Are Being Made of System of Innoculation.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A thorough test of the plan to innoculate hogs with vaccine to prevent hog cholera is being made in this state. There are epidemics of the disease reported in the northern part of the state, and to prevent the spread of the disease to the animals on the experiment farm at the North Dakota Agricultural college, Dr. Van Es has onnoculated each hog. It is claimed the vaccine will not only prevent contagion, but will cure animals already sick with the disease, if not in too advanced stages. The discovery was made at the Iowa experiment station and the vaccine used here was made by Dr. Van Es.

ELMER McDEVITT INJURED.

Former Duluth Football Player Hurt at Cloquet.

Cloquet, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—What was probably the first football accident of any consequence in this vicinity this season occurred here Friday afternoon, when Elmer McDevitt, while running with the ball caught his leg in a hole and dislocated his left knee.

McDevitt is well known here and in Duluth, having played on the Duluth Central high school team a number of seasons, and last year was star tackle on the Phillips-Andover team in Massachusetts. His knee was dislocated in a similar manner in Duluth a few years ago, and had never regained its full strength. The accident, which is not of a serious nature, may nevertheless render him unable to plow the gridirons of the East this season.

DRUNKEN MAN IS SHOT.

Starts Disturbance in Store and Gets Bullet.

St. Cloud, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Michael Coyne is at St. Raphel's hospital recovering from a gunshot wound which he received in a row at the Callahan store at St. Wendel a few days ago. The shot, which lodged in the injured man's ankle, was fired by Ambrose Callahan, the 17-year-old son of Pat Callahan, although the affair took place five days ago it was kept on the quiet until yesterday, when Coyne made complaint to County Attorney J. B. Himsl and asked for Callahan's arrest on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

According to the story of an eye witness Coyne was intoxicated when he came into the place of business and started a disturbance.

Young Callahan, who was present, pulled a revolver and told Coyne to get out of the store. This enraged the drunken man and he proceeded to take the firearm away from the lad. Callahan attempted to frighten his assailant and fired at the floor. About this time Coyne made a rush for the lad and the bullet struck him in the ankle, lodging in the bone.

TRAIN STRIKES AGED MAN.

John Goulette of Milaca County is Badly Injured.

Milaca, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Goulette, one of the oldest settlers of this part of Mille Lacs county was struck by a freight train while walking on the Great Northern track about eighty rods west of the Foreston depot a few days ago.

His left arm was cut off and his left leg broken, his thigh also being crushed. Besides this it is also likely that he sustained serious internal injuries. Owing to the advanced age of the injured man, 74 years, his chances of recovery are exceedingly remote, and his demise is hourly expected.

CALUMET DOUBLE WEDDING.

Two Sisters Led to the Altar at the Same Time.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A double wedding was celebrated Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in Mason when Miss Kate McGregor became the bride of Ernest Curnow and the former's sister, Miss Christina McGregor was married to Matthew Rodda. The double ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents in Mason by Rev. Daniel Stalker of the First Presbyterian church of Calumet.

The brides were gowned alike in white and were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Curnow will live in West Hancock and Mr. and Mrs. Rodda in East Houghton.

GOVERNOR'S FORMER PRINT

Executive's Old Employe Nominated for Montana State Office.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—John H. Tolan of Anaconda, Mont., formerly a printer under Governor Johnson, while running the St. Peter Herald, was, Wednesday, nominated for attorney general of Montana on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Tolan was raised in the same town as the governor and worked for him several years. He secured his law education in Kansas.

WORKED OLD GAME.

Borrowed Money on Strength of Having Load of Wood Coming.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Sept. 12.—On the strength of an imaginary carload of wood which he said he had coming from Glenwood, Wis., Anton Bauer appearing to be a hard working German farmer, swindled a number of his nationality here. He anxiously inquired at the depot for wood he claimed he had shipped. Being told it had not arrived he went to Louis Ritzinger, a butcher, and sold him the wood, being advanced $7 on the deal. He next succeeded in borrowing money from many Germans, giving orders on Ritzinger, who would deduct amounts from the price of the wood. Bauer has disappeared.

APPLE TREE BLOOMING.

Novel Spectacle Seen in a Dooryard at Calumet.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the first time in the history of the Copper country an apple tree is in full bloom at this time of the year. This freak of nature takes place in Capt. William Weir's yard in Laurium. Last summer the captain had a palatial residence built, and this spring he transplanted a few fruit trees in the rear of his dwelling. One of those trees now stands covered with white fragrant blossoms. Many people have called to see the strange sight. It is supposed the transplanting of the tree delayed the blossoming, an the continued warm weather has caused it to burst forth at this time of the year.

CANNON IS FOE TO TEMPERANCE

Methodist Editor Assails Czar of House at Ashland Conference.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—At yesterday's session of the West Wisconsin Methodist conference, Bishop Neely presiding, D. O. Thompson of Chicago, editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, vigorously attacked Speaker Cannon.

He said that the defeat of Congressman Jenkins was the mightiest blow Wisconsin has struck for temperance, for next to Cannon he was the greatest force in keeping back legislation for regulating liquor traffic.

He said the next blow will be struck by Illinois against Cannon.

Rev. U. S. Humphrey, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, also addressed the conference. He said that the saloon was one of the greatest hindrances to the progress of Christianity, but that it was about to be removed. It looks as if the prophesy is about to come true, that within ten years the reform movement will sweep the last saloon from the land.

He believed that Wisconsin has made more advancement in temperance sentiment during the last three years, than any other state in the union. He believed with Bishop Neely that the church has no right to dictate to its members as to how they shall vote, but he did believe that the church should give information as to the character and work of men running for office. This the Anti-Saloon league has been doing the past year. It had sent out information as to what a certain congressman had been doing the past five years, and by the majority of 7,000 votes the people had asked him to remain at home in the future.

The following preachers were transferred during the year: The Rev. E. F. Emery to the East Maine conference; the Rev. J. A. Willey to the South Dakota conference; the Rev. J. C. Burrall the Rev. C. P. Keast to the Northern Minnesota conference; the Rev. W. M. Atkinson and the Rev. C. G. Gorman to the Nebraska conference; the Rev. E. L. Eaton to the Rock River conference; the Rev. M. J. Sewall to the Erie conference, and the Rev. Mr. Nuzum to the New England conference.

PUBLICITY BRINGS RETURNS.

Advertising Fargo's Good Points Attracts Industries.

Fargo, Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—New enterprises are to be established in Fargo as a result of persistent effort on the part of the newspapers and the commercial club. Articles in local papers have attracted Eastern men whose enterprises are not prospering as they should since the financial depression. Representatives of packing houses, overall factories and pasteurizing creamery plants have been here looking over the field. Men in other lines have written they are coming and Fargo expects to add some new things. The city offers especial opportunities to enterprises in which fuel is not a chief requisite.

FRED PETERSON'S FUNERAL.

Tragic Death of Akeley Man Cause for Universal Sorrow.

Akeley, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hundreds of sympathetic people gathered at the Lutheran church Monday afternoon to pay their last respects to the memory of Fred Peterson, who was crushed instantly to death between two cars of lumber at the Red River Lumber company's mills. The pall bearers were workingmen from the mill, and friends of the deceased. Fred, Ole, Carl and Mary Peterson, three brothers and one sister were the relations present. The father and mother and nine other brothers and sisters being in Norway. The coffin was heavily laden with choice flowers and the funeral rites were in charge of the pastor, Rev. L. Moe, who gave an unusually good sermon in Norwegian language. Rev. J. T. Brabner Smith of the Methodist Episcopal church, at the request of the pastor gave a short address eulogizing the life of the deceased, whom he said was highly respected, and a bright and intelligent young man, whose untimely death was regretted by all. Peterson was only 21, and his sudden death cast a great cloud over the minds of the mill crew for two days. He was exceedingly popular with his numerous friends and acquaintances.

Travels Long Way Barefooted.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Sept. 12.—Because his feet had palned him, John Till, plaster specialist, traveled from Austria to this city barefooted. He arrived here on his way to Somerset.

They Like Senator Smith.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the fourteenth time the senatorial convention of the Republican party held here yesterday afternoon nominated Charles Smith of Hubbell for the state senate from the Thirty-second senatorial district, without opposition.

Baraga County Candidates.

L'Anse, Mich., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Republicans of Baraga county have nominated the following ticket: Judge of probate, James McMahon; sheriff, John Cosgrove; treasurer, Thomas D. Tracy; prosecuting attorney, J. J. O'Connor; county clerk and register of deeds, Martin Voetsch; coroners, William Hugo and Harvey Seldon; surveyor, John Markle.

Old Ishpeming Resident Dead.

Ishpeming, Mich., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. John Maroney, one of Ishpeming's pioneer residents, died Thursday. She had been ill for several weeks and for more than a week past her condition had been precarious. Her daughter, Mrs. Edward Thomas of Palmesdale, was called home several days ago and has since been aiding in the care of her mother.

Railway Men to Organize.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A meeting of the employes of the Great Northern railway, on the Dakota division, will be held here Sunday morning to organize a branch of the Railway Employe's Protective Association of the Northwest. The local organization will be similar to those already in existence in various cities of this district, Crookston having launched such an association three weeks ago.

Popular Bridgie Couple Wed.

Bemidji, Minn., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—John F. Morgan and Miss Annie Ersham were married at Bridgie Thursday evening by Rev. Father O'Dwyer, pastor of the St. Phillip's Catholic church of this city. Mr. Morgan has been a cruiser and timber buyer for the Crookston Lumber company and is popular. The bride is an estimable young woman and has a host of friends at Northome, Bridgie and other points north of Bemidji.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Iola—A cornice stone on top of the bank of Iola's new block was being hoisted when the derrick gave way and 2,000 pounds of stone, swung as a battering ram against the structure below, doing several hundred dollars' worth of damage. The front was nearly completed.

Milwaukee—The Rt. Rev. William Walter Webb, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Milwaukee, has returned to Milwaukee after a three months' sojourn in England, where he was one of about sixty bishops of the United States who attended the Pan-Anglican congress and Lambeth conference in London.

Port Washington—A motion for a nonsuit was granted by Judge Turner in the circuit court in the case of Richard Schleunert of Mequon against Dr. Henry Albers of Thiensville, in which damages to the amount of $15,000 were demanded by the plaintiff for the alleged alienation of the affections of his wife.

Neenah—While attempting to assist his horses in pulling a heavy load of household goods up an incline, C. V. Benjamin was badly injured. The load tipped over on him. He was struck by a heavy stove which pinned him to the ground and rendered him unconscious.

Chippewa Falls—A chapel designed after the Parthenon at Athens will be erected at Forest Hill cemetery by Mrs. Leslie Wilson in memory of her husband. Below the catacombs will be constructed where the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will rest. The chapel will be available for the use of the public.

Kenosha—Henry Buhlman, interested on a charge of having assaulted Miss Anna Doherty, and held on bail of $1,000, has made a confession of his crime before District Attorney H. V. Baker. Owing to the fact that feeling runs high against the assailant of the girl, the authorities have taken Bushman to Racine for safe keeping.

Ashland—The Ashland Advancement association, through the board of directors is holding weekly meetings and much good is being done.

Cambridge—The Rev. H. C. Johnson died at his home here of cancer. He formerly was pastor of the Scandinavian Methodist church of Neenah.

WHEAT HAS FIRM TONE

Strength in Chicago Causes Firmness in Other Markets.

Flax is Fraction Off at the Close in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Sept. 12.—Manipulation in Chicago caused the strength in wheat today. The closing prices showed a higher level than yesterday in all the American markets.

There was no news to cause a bulge and the only incentive to higher prices was the activity of Chicago bulls, who persistently boosted prices in that city at every stage of the short session. Liverpool closed ½d higher, Berlin ¼c lower and Budapest ¼c higher.

The September option closed ¼c higher in Duluth, ⅞-⅞ higher in Chicago, unchanged for new wheat in Minneapolis, and ½c lower in New York. Telegraph wires were down so that no closing prices were received from the Southwestern markets. The October option closed ½-½c lower in Winnipeg. The December option closed unchanged in Duluth and Winnipeg, ½-⅝c higher in Chicago, ⅝c higher in Chicago, ¾c higher in Minneapolis and ½c lower in New York, which market closes an hour earlier than Duluth on Saturday.

September corn closed ⅜c higher in Chicago and ¼d higher in Liverpool September oats closed ⅛c lower in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 520 against 152 last year, and at Minneapolis, 538 against 176 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 1,058 against 328 last year. Chicago received 69 against 149 last year. Winnipeg received 387 against 36 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,656,000 bus. last year 885,000 bus. Shipments 937,000 bus., last year 1,004,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 172,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 436,000 bus last year 665,000 bus. Shipments 335,000 bus., last year 721,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 150 bus.

Wheat was fairly active in Duluth, September wheat opened ⅛c higher at 99⅞c, advanced to $1, declined to 99⅝c, rallied to $1 and closed there, a gain of ¾c over yesterday. December wheat opened ¾c higher at 99¾c, declined to 99¼c and rallied to 99½c, closing at that price, unchanged from yesterday. May wheat opened late at $1.04, went off to $1.03¾ and closed at $1.03½, unchanged from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ¼c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1c over September for No. 1 northern.

Flax was fairly active and closed a little weaker. September flax opened unchanged at $1.25¾, declined to $1.24¾, rallied to $1.25⅞ and closed at $1.25, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. October flax opened unchanged at $1.24½, declined to $1.23¾, rallied to $1.24½, declined to $1.23¾, rallied to $1.24¾ and closed at that price, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. December flax opened ¼c lower at $1.22, declined to $1.21⅝, rallied to $1.22¼ and closed at $1.22, a loss of ¾c from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Buying by Bull Leaders Has a Strengthening Tendency.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Buying by three bull leaders tended to strengthen wheat at the start today. Later, however, an easier tone developed, and December sold off to 97½@97⅝c after opening at 97½@97⅝c and selling at 97⅞c. The market rallied again during the last part of the session on renewed buying by bull leaders, December advancing to 98c. The close was firm at net gains of ⅝c to ¾c with December at 98c.

December corn, which opened a shade sold off to 69c.

For December the low point was reached at 68¾@⅞c. Later in the day nearly all the loss was regained on buying by prominent commission houses. The market closed steady, with prices ⅛c higher to ⅜@½c lower, final quotations on December being at 69⅝c.

December oats opened at 50¾c and sold off to 50c.

Foreigners and local packers were active bidders for provisions, which caused a strong market, prices at the start being up a shade to 17½c.

Close: Wheat—September, 98½c; December, 98c; May, $1.01¼@¾. Corn—September, 81c; December, 69⅜c; May, 67¼c. Oats—September, 49¾c; December, 50¼c; May, 53⅜@½c. Pork—September, $15; October, $15.07½; January, $17. Lard—September, $10.10; October, $10.15; January, $9.90@9.92½. Ribs—September, $9.60; October, $9.62½@9.65; January, $8.90@8.92½. Rye—Cash, 76½c; December, 77½@78c; May, 81c. Barley—Cash, 62@66c. Timothy, September, $3.60. Clover—October, $9.

Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 99@½c; No. 3 red, 98@99c; No. 2 hard, 98@½c; No. 3 hard, 97@98c; No. 2 northern, $1.04@1.06; No. 3 spring, $1.01@1.05. Corn—No. 2, 81½c; No. 2 yellow, 81½c; No. 3, 80½@81c; No. 3 yellow, 81@½c. Oats—No. 2 white, 50½c; No. 3 white, 49@51c; No. 4 white, 47½@49c; standard, 51c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Today Was a Record Saturday in Matter of Receipts.

Minneapolis, Sept. 12.—No such big receipts were ever recorded in the Northwest on a Saturday before today. Minneapolis got 538 cars against 176, Duluth 520 against 152, Winnipeg 387 against 36, making 1,445 cars in the three markets against 364. The market sold off but did not show any great weakness. Much wheat has been bought by millers, to arrive as flour sales have been made. Delivery on these sales puts much wheat into consumption and relieves the cash market of much of the receipts. Minneapolis stocks gained 58,401 bus for the week bringing the total up to 541,982, with further increases of 25,000 bus for one day. Near the close on a good cash wheat clean-up and twenty loads sold for export the market turned firmer and the close was strong. Old September opened at 99⅞c, high $1.00½, low 99⅞c, close $1.00½. December opened $1.00⅝@½, high $1.00⅞@¾, low 99⅝@¾, close $1.00¼@⅜. Old December closed $1.00½. May wheat closed $1.04⅛.

Good demand at 2½@3c over September for No. 1 northern and ½@⅞c over for No. 2. The big receipts made little difference. Millers were after the wheat and they stimulated the market. Outside millers also bought and it was not difficult to clean up the sample tables. Close: No. 1 northern spot, $1.02@1.02½; to arrive, $1.02; No. 2 northern spot, 99½c@$1.00½; No. 3 wheat, 97½@99c; No. 3 yellow corn, 73¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 47¼@47½c.

No. 2 rye, 70¾@72¼c.

Barley—Receipts, 214 cars. The continued big receipts took about ½c off the market. Chicago was a good buyer here. Close, 56½@60c.

Flax—Receipts, 45 cars. Prices declined sharply 2c under on sharp selling for No. 1 seed. Close, $1.22¾.

Millstuffs steady at $18.50@19 for bulk bran.

Good domestic and export demand for flour today wit hprices unchanged. Millers look for a week of increased activity to come against a large output. Shipments, 57,524 barrels. First patents, $5.65@5.75; second patents, $5.50@5.60; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

THE SACRIFICE.

John Sparks of Keokuk was courting a pretty girl, but her father was unfriendly. The thing to do—and he and the girl decided it often enough—was to bring the father round.

Well, one night Sparks turned up at the house jubilant.

"I've got it, Marie!" he shouted. "I've struck a splendid idea for ingratiating myself with your old man. It will bring him round, never fear. Trust me; he'll consent now to our marriage within a month."

"Oh, what are you going to do?" the young girl asked.

"You see," said Sparks, "your father is an inveterate smoker of Havana cigars. He's a Havana tobacco connoisseur. Well, I'm going to——"

"Oh, you are going to give him a whole box of Havanas! But look out," said the girl, "they are frightfully expensive."

"No, no; I am not going to give any Havana cigars," said Sparks. "Better than that; I am going to establish a perfect communion of tastes and a close sympathy between us by beginning to smoke his Havana cigars myself."

ANOTHER ANTI-VACATIONIST.

The man who doesn't believe in vacations gathered his office staff about him.

"I want to read you something, boys," he said kindly, "from the diary of the great John Wesley. Listen."

And he read:

"'Today I entered on my eighty-second year, as fit for any exercise of body or mind as I was forty years ago. I am as strong at eighty-one as I was at twenty-one, but abundantly more healthy, being a stranger to the headache and other bodily disorders which attended me in my youth.'

"In his eighty-fourth year he said he was a wonder, writing:

"'I am a wonder to myself. It is now twelve years since I felt a sensation of weariness. I am never tired either with writing, preaching or traveling.'"

In the impressive silence that ensued the man who doesn't believe in vacations said:

"Boys, Wesley attributed his extraordinary health and longevity to early rising, to hard work, and above all to the fact that he never took vacations."

With grunts of assent the young men wearily took up their pens again.

WHAT'S A FRIEND?

Seated on the white beach, they talked of friendship.

"A friend is a balancing pole," said an athlete—"a balancing pole without which it is impossible to walk safely the tight-rope of life."

"A friend is a jewel," said a pretty girl, "that shines brightest in the darkness of misfortune."

"A friend is a volume," said a journalist, "a volume of sympathy, bound in cloth as a rule, though in rare cases the binding may be silken."

"A friend is gold link," mused a jeweler, "in the chain of life."

"He is a plaster," said a physician, "for the cuts of misfortune."

"Like ivy," said a botanist, "the greater the ruin, the closer he clings."

"A friend," said a grass widow sadly, "is the first person who comes in when the whole world has gone out."

TUSSLE WITH A DEER.

San Francisco Chronicle: James Snook of this city had an exciting experience with a buck deer at Occidental in Marian county yesterday. Snook was out hunting alone and sighting the animal fired two shots. The deer fell and thinking that it was dead, Snook ran up to his prize. To his surprise the apparently dead animal jumped up and rushed at him viciously.

Before he could protect himself, Snook was knocked down and trampled into insensibility. He finally recovered and upon staggering to his feet discovered the deer lying dead not more than two hundred yards away.

Snook sustained a fracture of two ribs by being struck by the deer's horns when he was first thrown to the ground. In addition, he was considerably bruised by the animal's hoofs.

THE TERROR OF THE METER.

Harper's Bazar: With a family of half grown children it is often difficult to keep the gas bills within reasonable limits. We hit upon the plan of sending each child to look at the meter while the gas was burning. The steady tick-tick-tick as the indicator moved around the dial impressed upon their minds the idea that burning gas is burning money, and a decided improvement has been shown.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Trading in Small Volume, Mainly Evening Up of Contracts.

Western Stocks and Reading Strong and Industrials Weak.

New York, Sept. 12.—There were changes both ways in the opening dealings in the stocks today, with the declines predominating. Dealings were quite active, American Smelting declined 1⅛, St. Paul 1, and Kansas & Texas, preferred and Pressed Steel Car ⅝.

The market was irregular for a while, but the weakness shown in the industrial section was offset by the strength of the Western stocks and Reading. The trading was in small volume and represented to a considerable extent an evening up of the week's contracts.

The market closed strong.

Development Work to Date and in Big High Grade Ore Body

DEVELOPMENT WORK WAS COMMENCED IN JANUARY, 1907, AND HAS BEEN CONTINUED WITHOUT INTERRUPTION UP TO THE PRESENT TIME, AND THE RESULT IS THAT WE HAVE OVER 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifting, sinking and cross-cutting done to date with most gratifying results to the present stockholders.

Splendid and encouraging reports received weekly and this stock will advance fast, because every foot of sinking or drifting in every direction as it is continued, is in solid and rich ore, and the only dead work done now is in driving and advancing the Bullfrog or main tunnel to the next KNOWN LARGE ORE BODY only 70 feet away, which it is expected will be reached by October 1st or sooner. Our first ore body is fully 60 feet wide and known to be over 400 feet long and the development work shows up more daily, both in drifting on the ore body and sinking on same. Within 90 days the stock will advance to $5 per share and in eight or ten months it will sell for $10 or more, and IN TWO YEARS WILL SELL FOR $50 a share AND IN 4 YEARS FOR $100 OR MORE, AND IN THE MEANTIME PAY HANDSOME DIVIDENDS TO THE FORTUNATE HOLDER OF THE STOCK.

Future Development Work and Plans

decided upon during the next eight or ten months include—

FIRST—1,000 feet of new drifting, cross-cutting and sinking, and continuing the Bullfrog Tunnel to the next big ore body, only 70 feet away now.
SECOND—Of installing a 250-ton smelter and increasing the capacity as fast as possible.
THIRD—Of increasing the force, and push development work vigorously.

REMEMBER IT'S A WINNER

WE OWN FORTY-FOUR MINING CLAIMS—(600x1,500 feet each), embracing 880 acres, in a solid body, located to cover the three big ledges, two miles long; have absolute and good title and no debts and financially in good shape. OUR ORE AVERAGES 8 PER CENT COPPER, 5 oz. silver and 80c gold, and is getting richer as we go deeper, where we have solid and high-grade sulphides below water level and our engineer says (and he knows what he is talking about, having been, and still is, closely connected with the "United Verde" for the past three years, and prior thereto with the great "Iron Mountain" Copper company of California for a number of years), THAT IN TWO YEARS THE MAZATZAL COPPER COMPANY'S MINE will be classed with such prominent and well known mines as the "United Verde" of Jerome, Copper Queen of Bisbee, Arizona, and the Cananea.

PRICE, TERMS AND ILLUSTRATION:

The stock is offered at $3.50 per share; one-seventh cash, and balance in six equal payments, payable monthly on or before the 5th of each month, until all the payments are made, when a certificate will be issued.

$175 Buys	50 Shares;	$25 Cash, and	$25 Monthly for 6 Months.
$350 Buys	100 Shares;	$50 Cash, and	$50 Monthly for 6 Months.

MARINE NEWS

CLERGYMEN STUCK.

Fifty Methodist Families Stranded With the Steamer Conestogo.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fifty Methodist clergymen with their families, bound for the Detroit conference in Calumet are high and dry on the rocks at Little Traverse between Gay and the Entry on the steamer Conestogo, is the news that caused considerable anxiety today when it was noised about among the members of the conference already here.

The smoke from the forest fires and the fog are said to have been the cause of the running aground, but there is no danger so long as the wind remains in the westerly direction which it had at the time of the accident. The boat is now in the lee of the land and is well sheltered from the wind.

It was planned at first to take the passengers from the boat in small row boats, carrying them to the Traverse bay dock and thence by the Mineral Range railroad to Calumet, but at noon the tug Richard left for the boat and the fifty clergymen and those with them are now on their way to Calumet.

The Conestogo is an old boat, belonging for many years to the Crosby line. She was built in 1878 and has long been engaged in the passenger trade between Lake Michigan ports. She is apropellor and had she gone aground in less favorable circumstances it is likely that she would have soon pounded to pieces.

TUSCORORA TO PORT ARTHUR.

Revenue Cutter Goes to Canadian Port on Mysterious Mission.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—International affairs involving Isle Royale are said to be responsible for the sailing of the revenue cutter Tuscorora for Port Arthur today. On the way the Tuscorora will go to the assistance of the stranded steamer Chauncey Hurlbut, which is leaking badly and said to be in danger of going to pieces.

There is no source in the Copper country from which anything regarding the Isle Royale difficulty could be learned and it will remain a mystery unless the Tuscorora will pass through Portage lake on her return trip.

Lake Covered With Smoke.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 12.—Lake Superior has been covered with smoke like a heavy fog nearly a week. There is not enough wind to blow it off. Fires for hundreds of miles are smouldering.

Crop Rush Begins.

Superior, Wis., Sept. 12.—New charters have been made during the past few days, and the rush of the crop down the lakes may now be said to be fairly under way. The daily receipts are no wrunning around 500 or 600 cars in Superior and Duluth, and heavy shipments of both durum and other wheat have been made the last two days.

Freight Business Dull.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 12.—Very little business was done in the freight line here yesterday, and the outlook is for a dull market for some time. Cargoes are scarce in all lines, and a number of vessels are waiting at Lake Erie ports.

Dredging Finished.

Col. Fitch, of the United States Engineers' office, states that the dredging of shoals from the entrance to the harbor of Grand Marais, Mich., has been completed, and has given a clear depth of eighteen feet or more, at low water, from deep water in the lake to the deep water of the harbor. The width of this 18-foot channel is 300 feet in the lake approach to the piers, and 260 feet between the entrance piers. These piers, are 500 feet apart, and the west edge of the dredged channel is 100 feet from the west pier and parallel to it.

The present stage of the lake is about one and one-fourth feet above low water, so that the least depth through the entrance is more than nineteen feet. This improvement will enable many vessels to enter this harbor for business or refuge that could not do so before, and with greater safety during storms.

MANY STUDENTS MUST PAY FINES

Hundreds Late in Being Enrolled at State University.

St. Paul, Sept. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Late registration at the state university will probably cost hundreds of students fines. With only two more days in which to register, the registrar will have to take care of 2,600 students and, as it is a physical impossibility to enroll all, those who have not had their names entered by Monday at closing time will have to pay.

Yesterday was the heaviest registration since the opening last Tuesday. Up to now only 950 students have paid their fees. The heaviest crowds will show up the first three days of next week for registration.

But three more students can be enrolled in the college of dentistry. So far 169 students have been enrolled in this institution, and the next three to show up and qualify will be the lucky ones. The fees paid by students during the registration amounted to over $30,000 last night.

UNWHOLESOME MILK.

Three Drivers of Wagons Arrested by State Inspector.

Charles Anderson and Oscar Wick, drivers of two Bridgeman & Russell milk wagons, were arrested yesterday, charged with selling unwholesome milk, upon complaint of Eugene Slater, state dairy inspector. The men pleaded not guilty, and their hearing was set for Sept. 18.

Tilif Olson was arrested on a similar charge this morning, and brought into municipal court. He also entered a plea of not guilty, and his case was set to come up Sept. 18.

FOREST FIRE IN THE EAST.

Big Track of Land in Ohio is Being Swept.

Greenville, Pa., Sept. 12.—What is known as the Dorset big woods, a large tract of forest land across the Crawford line in Ohio, is being swept by fire and farmers in that section are making desperate efforts to check the spread of the flames. The fire, which is supposed to have been started from the sparks of a locomotive, is now regarded as being beyond control. The long drought has parched the grass and shrubbery, which is burning like tinder.

LAST GAME TODAY.

Association Baseball Comes to a Close in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 12.—This afternoon, at Lexington Park, the American association baseball season will come to a close, with a double header at Lexington Park, between St. Paul and Minneapolis. When the last man is out tonight the curtain will ring down for the season of 1908.

It has not been a "highly successful" season in this city, but its end finds the local fans in a happy frame of mind.

The prospects for 1909 are so rosy that the fans forget the disasters of this year. Mike Kelley is back and already is building up his team for next year.

The fans have shown more enthusiasm this year than ever before, and had the team been up in the race the attendance would have been remarkable.

With Kelly and a good team next year will be a banner season in St. Paul.

While the boys did not break any world's records this year, they have been very popular.

Street Cars

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines it 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passengers safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has not better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines, nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.
